ROBERT LEE SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th Large Crowd Attend Edith Homecoming

TO BEGIN WITH LARGEST ENROLLMENT IN HISTORY

Even though summer is still getting in plenty of fiery blasts, there is a tang of autumn in the mornings when we reach for the cover sheet and now we can hear the echo of school bells and kind of get a whiff of the odor of new books and notebook paper.

The Robert Lee School opens 7:00 A. M. Monday, September 5th, with the entire student body meeting in the Auditorium in general assembly for invocation and instructions.

Due to the fact that there will be a larger enrollment than ever before, there will be no opening program, the time being needed for enrollment and issuing books.

Busses will run so as to arrive at the school building at 8:40 A. M. all during the year.

All students be sure to bring report cards and book cards when enrolling.

All high school students will be enrolled through the superintendents office, 11th graders first, 10th graders second, 9th graders third, and 8th graders fourth.

The following courses are open to the high school student:

- 11th grade
 - English IV
 - Civics and Economics
 - English History
 - Commercial Law and Salesmanship
 - Bookkeeping
 - Typing.
- 10th grade
 - English III
 - Plane Geometry
 - American History
 - Bookkeeping
 - Spanish I
 - Typing.
- 9th grade
 - English II
 - Algebra II
 - Biology
 - Commercial Arithmetic and Geography
 - Spanish I
 - Typing
- 8th grade
 - English I
 - Algebra I
 - General Science
 - World History
 - General Business Training
 - Typing.

The state does not furnish books for Economics, English

History, Commercial Law and Salesmanship, Typing, and General Business Training. The student must furnish his own book in these subjects.

There will be a fee of $5 per year, payable in advance, charged on those who take typing. This fee is necessary to keep the typewriters in repair and condition. The school board is charged $5 per year on each machine to keep it in good condition.

Eleventh graders will be given first preference to the typing classes, the 10th graders next, etc., as only 20 pupils can be given instruction in typing during one year.

Book covers will again be furnished by Coke Motor Co. and the City Drug Store. Students will be given slips of paper with the number of covers needed and signed by the teacher. The pupil will present these at either of the above places and receive their book covers FREE. The faculty, the students, the board of education, and I am sure the entire community appreciates this service extended by these two business firms. The state law declares that all state owned books must be covered. The student would either have to buy or make his covers if the covers if the covers were not furnished by these people.

All enrollments will be made and all books issued Monday morning, allowing the busses to return and the students to be dismissed at noon Monday. Classes will start Tuesday morning at 9:00.

The student will not be permitted to enter the school buildings before 8:30 each morning. I trust that the parents will abide by this rule and not allow the children to get to the school building before that time. After 8:30 the student must go immediately to his room and work until 9:00 o'clock.

Unless otherwise stated the busses will follow the same route as last year. If any changes are made later, notices will be given to that effect.

A teacher roster with their respective duties:

- G. L. Taylor, Superintendent and Algebra,
- A. F. Landers, Principal, History--high school & 7th grade Dorothy Downey, Commercial subjects.

T. J. Mullins, Science, Commercial Arithmetic and Geography, 7th Arithmetic, and Coach,

Lois Danner, English and Spanish,

Ray V. Stark, 7th grade and Geometry.

H. F. Teague, 6th grade,

Eunice McLure, 5th grade

Mrs. Margaret Brown, 4th,

Lois Vowell, 3rd grade,

Juanita Barger, 2nd grade,

Mrs. Mary Russell, 1st grade.

With the consolidating of Paint Creek and the transfer of Lometa students, Robert Lee will have the greatest enrollment in the history of the school. We believe that we have the best set of teachers yet and we are planning to accomplish great things this year. All we need now is the cooperation of the parents and patrons with the teachers and board of education to make this the best school in the state. The patrons are cordially invited to visit the school at any time and see what we are doing in the way of educating and preparing your child for a pleasant and fruitful life.

We had promised that the old school building would be reconditioned for the beginning of this term, but due to the fact that the Washington office has not yet approved our W. P. A. application, we are forced to resume studies without improving the old building. However, as soon as we get the approval we shall do the work required. We trust that it will not be too long.

I shall be glad for any high school student who desires to do so to come to the office Friday morning, Sept. 2, and arrange your program, in fact, I urge you, if it is at all convenient, to come. The heavy enrollment may require more time and if you will come at this time we can dismiss you at 12 Monday.

Why does not the people get interested in the school and make it the center of attraction in Robert Lee? Let us all get that old school spirit and put this school on the map this year.

Geo. L. Taylor, Supt.

It was a happy event when a great number of oldtimers, their descendants and friends met at the Edith tabernacle, Sunday for the fourth Old Settlers Homecoming. At noon a basket dinner with barbecue was served under an awning beside the tabernacle and the abundance of tempting food was evidence that the old-time spirit of hospitality that characterized the early settlers has not died out in their children.

Following the dinner, a program directed by Mrs. Sam Powell who also gave the introductory talk was given in the tabernacle. Chief speaker of the afternoon was D. M. West of Bronte who spoke in tribute to the pioneers and closed his address by reading an original poem, brief reminiscent talks were made by Mrs. C. M. Barger, L. D. Schooler, Mr. Yarbrough, Mrs. John McCabe, Mrs. Sam King, Mrs. Schooler, A. C. Johnson and Mrs. Bryan Yarbrough. Special music was given by the Jay quartet of Robert Lee, Glennell Johnson, Mrs. Bryan Yarbrough and Will Powers and his daughter, Jewell.

For aunt Martha Fields, the day was more than just an old settlers reunion, it was a homecoming of all of her own children, the first time they have all been together since the father died in 23. Aunt Martha remarked that she thought it had been one of the happiest days of her life. Special recognition was given her and her children and as the reunited family stood at the front D. M. West made a beautiful tribute to the mother and children and presented flowers. Flowers were also presented to Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. McCabe as the earliest remaining settlers and to Mrs. G. M. Manning of Demming N. M. for having come the farthest to attend the reunion.

At the suggestion of Marvin Stewart, those present who were among the first pupils of the old Paint Creek school came front and sang School Days, the group included, Mrs. M. B. Sheppard, Abilene; Mrs. R. H. Price, Ft. Stockton, Mrs. C. G. Cook, Edith Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fields, Edith Mrs. George Manning, Demming N. M.; Mrs. Jim Brown, Christoval; Mrs. Tom Peay, Edith; Mrs. Birdie Dickie Newman, Dallas; Ben Tubb, Robert Lee; Marvin Stewart, Robert Lee, Mrs. R. A. Linney, Midland; Miss Josie Millican, Edith; Henry Childress, Robert Lee; Ples Millican, Edith; and Mrs. A. C. Johnson, Robert Lee. The Paint Creek school days of this group ranged from '94 to about '98. Among the early teachers of the school were B. U. Smith, Ben Ross, Miss Addie Gardner and Mrs. Bryan Yarbrough, who was the only one of them present. Mrs. Yarbrough refused to be classed as pioneer, but spoke in beautiful tribute of the late Dr. Latham whose widow was among those who came from Abilene to the reunion. Mrs. Latham came with Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reed who were among the pioneer merchants of this country.

In a short business session, Ed. Hickman was elected president of the homecoming for the next year, J. B. Robertson, secretary, and Clarence Mitchell treasurer.

As a closing tribute, all oldtimers past sixty-five were given a seat at the front and a chorus sang God Be With You Till We Meet Again while loved ones and friends tiled by to wish them well and bid goodby till another year. In this group were:

- J. N. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Barger, J. J. Yarbrough, Mrs. Stewart, J. C. Rabb, Mrs. Joe Fields, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Milligan, Mrs. J. Q. McCabe, J. D. Biggs, W. B. Bessent, Albert Baize, Sr., Mrs. Dickey, and Mrs. Fields all of Robert Lee.

J. J. S. Smith, L. D. Schooler, Mrs. L. D. Schooler, Mr. and Mrs. Sam King, Mrs. Cain all of Edith.

John Copeland of Sterling City, Rev. D. C. Ross of Lubbock,

L. Modgling

Funeral service for L. Modgling, 77, retired farmer of this community, who died at San Angelo, Saturday, were held at the graveside in the cemetery here Sunday afternoon with Rev. Fred DeLashaw, pastor of the Robert Lee Baptist church officiating.

Mr. Modgling has been a resident of this part of Texas for many years, having first resided on Indian Creek and later at Sanco where he and his son, Tom, have lived for about forty years. He was married in 1882 to Mrs. May Miller near Llano and two of her children by a previous marriage are among the survivors

He was converted and joined the Baptist church at the age of nineteen.

Surviving relatives are three sons, Charlie, Pomona Calif. Jim and Tom of Robert Lee; one daughter, Mrs. Effie Roberts of Robert Lee, two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Patterson, Robert Lee and Mrs. Bettie Northcutt, Quemado and 12 grandchildren. Two children died in infancy and a son, Frank, who lost his life in action during the World War.

Pallbearers for the funeral were nephews, Barney Modgling, Walter Modgling, Floyd Modgling and Leman Modgling, all of Bronte, and Herman and Eddie Patterson of Robert Lee, Ila Bell Patterson and Mrs. Walter Modgling carried flowers.

SCHOOL ELECTION RESULTS

Although a light vote was cast Saturday in the school election Paint Creek was voted to consolidate with Robert Lee.

For Con.	69	Against	21
For Bond	68	Against	22
Total For	137	Against	43

You will profit by going to hear Rev. H. B. Ramsour at the Baptist Church. Just ask some one who has heard him.

Mrs. Monty Trimble suffered a broken left arm and injury to the left knee when her milk cow jerked her down and dragged her about fifteen steps, Sunday night. Dr. Griffith set the broken arm.

House Un-Americanism Body Probes Hollywood Communism

By Joseph W. LaBine

A. F. OF L'S JOHN FREY, INVESTIGATOR DIES They were obliged to discuss John Lewis.

Domestic

Last year Chicago Times Reporter John Metcalfe joined Fritz Kuhn's German-American Bund, traveled 20,000 miles attending Bund meetings, then resigned to write a startling expose for his paper. Direct result was a $25,000 house committee on un-American activities, which met last week under Texas' Martin Dies. After three days of probing, un-Americanism reared its colorful head everywhere from C. I. O. headquarters to glamorous Hollywood.

Ex-Bundsman Metcalfe told how Fritz Kuhn organized 500,000 German-Americans under instructions from Adolf Hitler, how in return Kuhn was given a whip hand over Germany's ambassador to the U. S. He told of Chicago's "Silver Shirts," organized to smash Communism.

Ex-Bundsman Peter Gissibl told how Nazi spies consorted with German-Americans, how the Red Star line "fixed it" so spies could slip back home when they got in trouble. But it was American Federation of Labor's John P. Frey who tossed in the biggest bombshell and caused C. I. O.'s John L. Lewis to snort with rage.

Naziism is one thing, but Metal Tradesman Frey promised to identify "several national C. I. O. officers" as Communists. Would he mention John Lewis? "How could I avoid it!" replied Mr. Frey.

The Frey disclosures had barely started before Committee Investigator Edward Sullivan hurried into Washington from California, anxious to reveal how C. I. O.'s Harry Bridges, America's most famous alien, "attended 'top fraction' meetings of the Communist party and received aid from officials of the U. S. labor department while patriotic citizens were trying to have him deported for his Communistic activities."

Continued Investigator Sullivan: "Witnesses can be produced who can name the day when an official of the immigration service contacted Harry Bridges and called him to his office, where he read . . . a confidential letter of instructions on his future behavior, written by an outstanding official of the labor department."

That Communist Bridges is financed by Hollywood cinema stars was Mr. Sullivan's next charge. Armed with this evidence, supported by Unionist Frey whose accusations John Lewis seemed unwilling to answer, the Dies committee prepared to remain in Washington two more weeks.

Foreign

Many years ago Germany's great Bismarck fooled his opponents by telling the truth, knowing they would not believe. Last week, when Adolf Hitler called 500,000 reserves to the colors for war games with a million regular soldiers, all Europe became jittery. But in Berlin there was scoffing; if Germany planned anything but peaceful moves, she would have assembled her giant war machine secretly. Remembering Bismarck, answering too that secret mobilization on such a giant scale would be impossible, Berlin's nervous diplomatic corps sped the news back home to Paris, London and Prague. There, these things happened:

(1) In Prague, England's Lord Runciman has spent a fortnight mediating differences between loyal Czechs and their disgruntled fellow-countrymen, Sudeten Germans. Sudetens want autonomy, eventual annexation by Germany. Was it possible that Germany's mobilization foreshadowed a quick annexation move?

(2) In Paris, where the government has also been having trouble with Mussolini, French frontiers along Germany and Italy were virtually locked. Next, Interior Minister Albert Sarraut re-enforced his counter-spying service against Germany.

(3) In London, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain forgot his catarrh and returned from Scotland. Since Germany recently closed its fortified zones to all military men, Britain's war office warned its officers to get special certificates to avoid "trouble" during travels in Germany.

Politics

Dearer than anything else to Franklin Roosevelt is his legislative program, blocked last session not by a Republican minority but by anti-New Deal Democrats. No silent sufferer, Mr. Roosevelt decided long ago that congress needed new blood to replace opponents of his reorganization bill, wage-hour bill and lesser measures. This year's primaries offered an opportunity.

By last week his "purge" program was not a success. But neither had New Dealism suffered many losses in elections thus far. Bound to break the impasse, Mr. Roosevelt decided to stake his political future on his tremendous personal popularity in the South. Fortnight ago at Barnesville, Ga., he bluntly read out of the party Sen. Walter F. George, who sat scowling in the audience (see picture). Last week 60-year-old Senator George took up the "challenge" and set out to beat New Dealer Lawrence Camp in Georgia's primary, September 14.

Stalking next into South Carolina, the President intimated that Senator Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith would be unwelcome at Washington next winter, intimated also that South Carolinians should send in his place Gov. Olin D. Johnson.

Back in Washington, news of the South's "purge" gave political commentators enough hard tack to chew on until election day. What Franklin Roosevelt wanted was complete domination of congress, insuring passage of his legislative program. Thus would he be able to dictate his 1940 successor.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Many years ago, this writer, quite unintentionally, aided in making Dr. Ben Reitmann of Chicago the first king of the hoboes, by some newspaper stories written with no partisan or political intent. For some reason or other, my name got on the hobo mailing list as a "jungle judge" or "shack" or something and, from time to time, there comes fraternal greetings, campaign literature or news of the order. The latest, from one "Bindle Pete," is quite violently prejudiced against Jeff Davis, the present king, and says he is to be deposed because he rode to Europe on the Queen Mary and because he has been working at Hollywood, helping coach the directors in studies of hobo still-life.

This department has been quite indifferent to the hard luck of kings in recent decades, but it would seem too bad if King Jeff Davis were dethroned. He has been a likeable monarch, bald and genial and diligent (perhaps that's the trouble) in the interests of his kingdom, and not making any trouble for anybody.

His father, James Davis, was a journeyman of newspaper mechanical trades in Cincinnati, and young Jeff took to the road at the age of 13, covering more than 1,000,000 miles in his subsequent 40 years of rambling. He assails radicalism in the hobo brotherhood and says he will keep it 100 per cent American. He made more than 2,000 speeches on Americanism during the World War.

How could a hobo ride these slick new chromium trains with the catfish frame? King Jeff probably is working on that.

WHEN she was bad, she was very, very good, and when she was good she was horrid. Not exactly, but, in a rough general way, that was the story of Bette Davis.

Bette in Scarlett Marathon

Hence, while other stars shy away from the hell-cat Scarlett O'Hara, as not their type, Bette Davis may take her on. Early in her career, Miss Davis played charming hellions with great effectiveness and didn't seem to mind.

She was Ruth Elizabeth Davis, a Massachusetts school girl, changing her name to "Bette" at the age of 12 in preparation for her stage career. She later changed her hair—it is brown—and her general make-up. Entrance to the theater came easily, after a course in a dramatic school. She went to Hollywood in 1932. Her first play, "Broken Dishes," brought few cheers, but, with coaching by George Arliss and better casting, she hit the up-grade.

Trying a break-away from Warners in London in 1936, a ruthless British court condemned her to continued servitude at a top salary. She is one of the few actresses who like unsympathetic roles and she plays them well.

UNTIL recently Franz Lehar was living in Vienna. The news that he is rewriting "The Merry Widow" makes one wonder whether he finds Vienna still merry

Lehar Now Rewriting Merry Widow

—whether young writers still write their plays in the cafes along the Kurtenstrasse, as he did in 1905. The world has waltzed along quite a way in the interval between the original and rewritten versions.

Herr Lehar got $300,000 from his overwhelming New York success in 1907. He waltzed it all right into the stock market and bade it good-by. He returned to his native Budapest, lost another lump sum of $75,000 and then became a good business man. His thirty or more operettas, five of which have been produced here, have made him rich.

He is, or was a member of the Vienna Rotary club, attending luncheons faithfully, singing club adaptations of old tunes, wearing a two-inch button with his name on it and engaging in friendly back-slapping—big and gregarious, 68 years old, with his lush mustache touched with gray. He was a "knapsack child," as he put it, the son of a wandering musician. He was a child violinist. Dvorak persuaded him to hang up his fiddle and take to composing.

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WASHINGTON.—Something like a year ago, quite a furor was raised here by the revelation that the Home Owners Loan Corporation had loaned $40,000 out of its own treasury to its employees who wanted to organize a group which could hire its own doctors on an annual basis. This was public money, because the HOLC is wholly owned by the federal treasury and its function is to loan money on private homes to encourage home ownership. The Group Health association, as it was named, guaranteed medical treatment to its members for a fixed annual fee and hired doctors to do the job.

There was a roar from many quarters at the time because of the use of government money in this manner, but the loudest roar came from the doctors who are members of the District of Columbia Medical society. Few of us realized then, I think, where this controversy was going to lead. I doubt that there were very many persons expected to see the tiny spark fanned into a flame so large. Now, however, that spark has become a national flame, national issue of serious import. For what could be more serious, indeed, than a chance to live when the cold fingers of death creep closer?

The issue as it is now defined, succinctly, is whether the long and honorable history of the medical profession, and all of the scientific assets that this implies, shall be thrown to the winds; whether, in the place of that history and gain and the services of those individual doctors, there shall be created a new basic method, a procedure where the doctors are hired by a corporation subsisting on the annual fees paid by its members who will telephone the corporation offices and say: send me one of your best doctors.

That is the preface to the recent legal proceedings by our own government against the American Medical association and the District of Columbia Medical society, which are threatened with prosecution as a "trust." The government's action, of course, makes the controversy a national issue, one which interests all of us. The trust busting assistant attorney general, Thurman Arnold, former Yale professor, vows he will break up the "trust" which is the national organization of doctors, but there are those of us who cannot help linking the corporation method of medical practice with Professor Arnold's blast and threats against the doctors who believe in individual practice.

The whole department of justice position strikes me as rather fuzzy, rather asinine and, in some respects, reprehensible. However, if there is to be a complete analysis made and a complete understanding of the situation obtained, it is necessary to know that "President Roosevelt wants it done," and Mr. Arnold is proceeding. It does not seem to matter that there are only a few medical crooks, only a few unethical and unscrupulous medical practitioners; the whole profession must be attacked and defamed. Nor does it seem of great concern to the prosecuting officials that some of those doctors who are promoting corporation medicine throughout the United States have been denied admission to the American Medical association for reasons of character and ethics deemed sufficient to warrant non-recognition.

And while I am about it, I want to pay tribute to that greatest of all American characters, the country doctor. I have personal reasons for offering my humble praise to one of their number, but throughout America there can be found no greater asset. He is a friend and confidant and adviser, minister to the body and the mind. There are some among his numbers that will not have, even do not warrant, respect. But that obtains in every walk of life and my belief is that there are fewer country doctors lacking in honesty and good conscience than in any regular profession or avocation of life.

Lauds Country Doctor
The country doctor is different from his brother practitioner of the city. The latter probably is better trained, more up to date on all developments of science, perhaps more expert in most fields, but I think I can say without equivocation or doubt because of personal experience that the country doctor is not excelled anywhere among humans for good, common horse sense. And the man or woman who is equipped with horse sense keeps the human race on an even keel.

But to get back to the government proceedings: here we see an action, or threat, against a whole profession that has done as much or more for mankind as the ministers of the gospel. I take it for granted that there are skeletons in the closets of many doctors. There is, and can be, no justification, for example, of some of the high fees charged in cases where people without worldly goods are concerned. Their lives are as valuable as the lives of the richest multimillionaires. There can be no defense, as a further proposition, for laxness and disinterest which are matters of record. But I maintain and shall always believe that there are comparatively few members of the medical profession who fail to give the best that is in them. And when I mention disinterest, I cannot help wondering whether doctors hired by group health associations are going to be much concerned about hurrying to the bedside of an association member after a few years of such practice. The monthly check is going to come in whether the corporation doctor is sympathetic and skillful or apathetic.

But let us get on to another phase; two of them, in fact.

According to the best legal opinion that is available outside of the department of justice, it seems likely that no court will hold the medical society to be a "trust." The organization of doctors is effected for the purpose of maintaining high standards, to keep racketeers out of the profession. Its members must be of good character; they must adhere to rules that are designed for the protection of the layman who obviously is at the mercy of the man trained in the science of medicine and surgery. The whole purpose seems to be the very simple proposition of self-discipline. (I might say just here that New Dealers all along have called for self-discipline among business and professional men.) The medical men want to destroy the type that feeds upon the hopeless individual's desire to regain health, to live; they want to rid society of the abortionist, the quacks and the men and women who traffic in blood. And the question I propound, therefore, is: can such a profession be catalogued in law or in morals as dealers in commodities like steel or oil or calico? If it can be so held under our laws, then there surely is no point in young men and women slaving through six or seven or eight years of training for the profession. They had better go out and start practicing medicine as the unskilled laborer digs ditches.

Other Phases

In this connection, too, it seems proper to mention the implication of a decision holding the medical societies to be trusts. As set down above, membership is based on character and training. If the medical society is a trust, what are all of your fraternal organizations, your civic societies, your clubs, who elect or fail to elect members because of good character or lack of it?

And now to the politics of the situation. It appears to me to be a great tactical blunder on the part of the so-called board of strategy which has President Roosevelt's ear. Those men, most of them untrained in political campaigning, have failed to recognize the human element that is involved.

Let us think of the picture here presented in a hypothetical case. Suppose you are a great supporter of President Roosevelt, believe him to be sincere in his announced interest in the masses, praise his courage and his forward-looking program for government. Along comes old man sickness and lays you down flat on your back. Your doctor comes. You know him, have confidence in him, or you would not call him.

Then, after the manner that usually happens, the doctor talks about a number of things with you. Of course, you know something about the government attacks on the doctors and you want to hear the story from the other angle. I would, and so would you. What is all of this about, Doctor? Is there such a thing as a medical trust?

SYNOPSIS

Richard Exon, a poor young Englishman, befriends elderly Matthew Gering, who at his death gives him a statement claiming he, Gering, is Rudolph Elbert Virgil, Count of Brief, of ancient Austrian nobility who was betrayed 26 years before by his twin brother, Ferdinand, whose sentence for forgery he himself served. Ferdinand appropriated his title, property and daughter. Before he dies Gering tells Exon there is a family secret, known only to the head of the house, to be found in the great tower at Brief, by a doorway none can ever find. Exon inherits his uncle's fortune and sets out to right Gering's wrongs. En route he encounters Percy Elbert Virgil, son of the villainous Ferdinand and sees him in conference with Inskip, a diamond merchant. He engages a valet, Winter, who hates Percy and meets by chance at a garage. John Herrick, who is a linguist and who as a youth served as a page at Gering's wedding, and had visited Brief Herrick agrees to aid Exon. They establish headquarters at Brenda Revoke's farm at Raven. A few miles from Brief and make their plans. They find the castle almost inaccessible. They see a closed car occupied by Percy Virgil, a chauffeur and a woman hearing a dog scream, they see the chauffeur flinging it, just as a horse with a girl astride bounds along the path and is felled by a struck wire. The girl unconscious is picked up carelessly by the chauffeur and woman, who then run away, after dropping her. Exon rescues the girl and carries her to his waiting car. He identifies the girl as Elizabeth, daughter of the disowned Gering, tells her of her cousin's plot to abduct her and takes her to Raven, where he tells her the story of her father and promises to go the limit to help her right her father's wrongs. Incredulous at first, Elizabeth gradually wins faith in her benefactor. Percy Virgil brings the police to Raven, announcing that two strangers are being sought for the kidnaping of Elizabeth.

The sergeant swallowed, and Virgil put in his oar.

"You may be strangers," he said, "but that doesn't put you above the law of the land."

"Nor, I trust," said Herrick, "beyond the traditional courtesy of its inhabitants. What is your rank in the police?"

Virgil flushed.

"I am not in the police," he said.

"Then why," said Herrick, "did you presume to address me?"

"My name is—"

"I have no desire," said Herrick, "to hear your name." He returned to the police. "You were saying that the matter was serious . . ."

Virgil looked ready to burst, but the sergeant went straight to the point.

"I will be plain," he said. "A lady has been abducted—a lady of high degree. She was kidnaped early this morning upon her father's estate . . . at Brief . . . some ten miles from here." He held up our map. "I think you will hardly deny that you know where that is."

"I have known where Brief was," said Herrick, "for 23 years."

The others stared.

Then—

"We are dealing with the present," said Virgil.

Herrick raised his eyebrows.

"Allow me to suggest," he said, "that you should keep to yourself such, er, discoveries as you may make." He turned again to the police. "Yes, gentlemen?"

The sergeant cleared his throat.

"In view, sir, of what has occurred, I must ask you to explain the markings upon this map."

"With pleasure," said Herrick.

"And I sincerely advise you to tell the truth."

"You will find," said Herrick, "that we have nothing to hide." He fingered his chin. "I stayed at Brief, as a child, in 1912. My mother and the Countess Rudolph were very close friends. Happening to be at Innsbruck a week ago, I felt a strong desire to visit the castle again. For various reasons I did not wish to leave cards. Much has happened, you know, in 23 years. My mother, the Count of Brief and the Countess Rudolph have been and, worst of all, I'm told that a vulgar blackguard, the son of an uncle of hers, has the run of the place."

A ghastly silence succeeded these moving words, the police regarding the gravel with goggling eyes and Virgil, dark red in the face, surveying Herrick with the glare of a baited beast.

"We, therefore, came here from Innsbruck on Sunday last. On Monday we started out to try to discover, er, er, er, from whence we could view the castle, without going into the grounds. We only found one, and that was—too far away. Determined not to be beaten, we tried for the next three days—with the aid of that map. And all in vain . . . Last night we reviewed the position, and found it this—that we must either trespass or else go empty away.

"Now I do not like trespassing; but neither, I frankly confess, do I like going empty away. And in the end we decided to rise very early this morning, enter the park from the north and have a good look at the castle before anybody was up. And so . . . we did."

For a moment I thought that Virgil was going to faint. All the color was out of his face, which looked peaked and thin, and he did not seem to be breathing, but might have been turned to stone. Then a shiver ran through him, and a hand went up to his mouth.

But the police had no eyes for him. The two were staring at Herrick as though they would read his soul.

"At what times," said the sergeant, "did you enter and leave the estate?"

"We entered at four and we left about half past six."

There was an electric silence.

Then—

"I am bound to inform you," said the sergeant, "that what you have just admitted makes your position most grave. The outrage was committed this morning at six o'clock."

"Perhaps," said Herrick, "it was not committed by us."

The sergeant shrugged his shoulders.

"I shall have to—"

"I think it is clear," said Virgil, "that this gentleman is telling the truth." The two police stared upon him as though he were out of his mind. "I mean, if he were guilty, he would scarcely have made an admission which put the rope round his neck."

As soon as he could speak—

"But, sir," cried the sergeant, "a rope round the neck is harmless, unless it is tight. If every rogue was believed because he told such truths as could do him no harm—"

"These gentlemen," said Virgil, "have not the appearance of rogues. It only remains for you to beg their pardon and make a fresh cast. Good God, man, when time is so precious, do you propose to waste it in prying into two strangers' private affairs?"

With a manifest effort, the sergeant controlled his voice.

"Sir," he said, "if you do not wish to wait, you must leave us here. I have a sow by the ear, and until I know it's the wrong one, I will not let go." With that, he returned to Herrick. "You have said too much or too little. You were at Brief this morning from four until half past six. Kindly relate what you did there—from first to last."

"With very great pleasure," said Herrick, folding his arms. "We left our car at the mouth of the northern drive—after instructing our chauffeur, first, to seek some petrol, and then to wait in a wood a little way off. You will understand that we did not wish to be seen."

"Is your chauffeur here?" said the sergeant.

"He is. If you would like to see him—"

"Proceed, if you please."

"Before we had walked very far, we heard a car coming behind us, using the drive. At once we lay down in the bracken until it had passed."

His face like a mask, Virgil took out his case and selected a cigarette; but I saw a bead of sweat fall on the gold.

"It was not your car?" said the sergeant, plainly impressed.

Producing a notebook, his fellow made ready to write.

"It was not our car," said Herrick. "Others were abroad this morning . . . within the confines of Brief."

"Describe this car, if you please."

"It was closed and its blinds were drawn; its number-plate was obscured—I imagine, with oil and dust."

The sergeant turned to his fellow, pencil in hand.

"Have you got that down?"

The other nodded and Herrick resumed his tale, relating how the

I saw the police open their eyes, and Virgil in desperation let himself go.

"It's a warning," he snarled. "I do not believe your tale of the numberless car. That you saw a dog this morning proves nothing at all—except that you were at hand when the outrage was done. And who would think of so using a coil of wire—except a man who had planned to employ it that way?"

"Come, come, sir," said the sergeant. "You said yourself just now that these gentlemen—"

"I have changed my mind," spat Virgil, "as you have changed yours."

"I have just remembered," said Herrick. "That one of the men was called Max. Not the leader—the burly man, who got out of the car. The leader was sharp with him, as, indeed, with them all. I think that, if you could find them, they might give the leader away."

"And the name of the leader?" sneered Virgil. "Quite sure you didn't hear that?"

Herrick raised his eyebrows, before he returned to the police.

"You would not believe me," he said, "if I told you the leader's name. And so I prefer that you should apply to Max. But I'll tell you what I will do. I'll write it down for you, and I'll seal it up. And when Max has opened his mouth, you may break the seal. Thus I shall corroborate him, and he will corroborate me."

"Sir," cried the sergeant, "I beseech you to tell it us now."

"I will write it down," said Herrick. "Or, better still, Mr. Exon shall write it down. You will observe that I have not mentioned the name; yet he will go off and write it—which goes to show that he knows it as well as I."

With that, he turned to me and asked me to do as he said . . .

When I returned to the drive, Virgil was back in his car, beside himself with passion and shouting down the sergeant who seemed very much surprised.

"And if you choose," he concluded, "to take your cue from a couple of lying hounds who, if you had done your duty, would now be under arrest, you can take it alone."

With that he started his engine, let in his clutch and swung the car violently round. With storming gears, it squirted between the chestnuts and on to the road of approach.

The police stared after the fellow with open mouths; then they turned to see Herrick with a hand to his chin.

"I gather," he said, "that you find his behavior strange."

"I can't understand it," said the sergeant. "Ten minutes ago—"

"Quite so," said Herrick. "In fact, ten minutes ago he did his very best to get you away—because, when he heard the hour at which we had entered the park, he did not wish you to hear what I might have to tell." He took the envelope from me and held it out. "You may open that now, if you please, and read the name of the leader whom Max will betray. After that, you shall have some tea, and then, we'll drive you to Gable to take what action you please."

The sergeant ripped the envelope open, and he and his fellow together peered at the sheet.

Percy Elbert Virgil

I thought they would never look up.

When at last they did, they seemed dazed; and Herrick called for Brenda and told her to give them some tea.

It was strange to sit down to supper later on with Lady Elizabeth taking the head of the board, but she seemed so glad to be with us and fell so naturally into the ways we kept that, for my part, I soon forgot how she came to be there and began to accept a relation which seemed too fair to be true.

Enough is as good as a feast, and after supper that evening we spoke of the past and present, but left the future alone.

Points of Star of David

The six-pointed star, which is the emblem emblazoned on the Jewish flag, is the emblem on the battle shield of King David, the greatest king of the Jewish race. It has also been suggested that the formation of the star indicates that all points of the world are covered, indicating eventual universal sovereignty.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all things.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DEAR FRIENDS, FELLOW CITIZENS AND VOTERS OF COKE COUNTY

Please permit us to take a few minutes of your reading time by asking you to go vote in Saturday's Election. It will be impossible for Mrs. B. M. Gramling to see everyone in Coke County as she is obligated to her job whereby earning a meager salary in order that she may continue her campaigning, working only when she can be away from her job. Please consider this and vote for one who will be on the job at all times. Give her a chance to show she is in earnest and sincere and desires to serve the people. She is a very honest, honorable Christian woman and mother, a good dependable citizen and always helping the sick. She is a Baylor College graduate and has had several years experience teaching school. She still has the responsibility of rearing and educating two of her five children. She has no financial support from any source and sold her only cow to raise funds to enter the Treasurer's race.

We earnestly solicit your vote and influence, and all consideration will be highly appreciated.

For Your Family's Sake...

KEEP MILK SAFE! ...IT IS THE FIRST RULE

OF ALL-WEATHER FOOD-KEEPING

● Keep milk fresh and pure, if your family is to have one of Nature's most wholesome foods. To be sure milk is as fresh as the minute it's delivered to you, the U. S. Government recommends that you store it in a refrigerator, where the temperature is 50 degrees or less. Above 50 degrees, milk spoils rapidly, curdles, gets sour. Other food, not so easily detected as milk, spoils too in higher temperatures. Below 50 degrees, milk and other food is safe. Check your refrigeration now!

An Electric Refrigerator

PROTECTS ALL FOOD.. AT LOWER COST!
KEEPS MILK SAFE..KEEPS MEAT FRESH..KEEPS VEGETABLES CRISP
.. AND MAKES ICE CHEAPER THAN YOU CAN BUY IT!

● Don't waste money or endanger health with spoiled food! Keep foods safe in a modern electric refrigerator. And save money at the same time!

An Electric Refrigerator keeps foods safe, sweet, fresh, and saves you money every way there is to save. Saves on Current... on Food... on Ice... on Upkeep. You must save All Four Ways—or you may not save at all! And in addition, a Frigidaire provides a remarkable ice service for all-year needs—freezing tremendous quantities of ice cheaper than you can buy it!

Visit your electric refrigeration dealer. Ask for proof that shows you food is safe... even in the hottest weather. You'll be amazed to learn how much money you can actually save, too.

Dear Friends,

Although I have made an honest endeavor to see the voters again since the first primary, I find it has been impossible for me to keep up the family support and also to make a thorough and complete canvas. I earnestly crave your support and I trust those of you whom I have not seen will consider my failure to see you as an inability rather than as a neglect.

Very sincerely yours,

Mr. and Mrs. John Pierce and daughter, Winona, Mrs. Buster Pierce and Mrs. Jessie Parker returned Sunday from a two weeks visit with relatives at Quinlan, Overton and Kilgore.

Corporation Instead of-

John W. Hanes, member of the SEC, recently said: "I believe that the time has come for business men to cease harping on the theme that the government is the enemy of business. And it shall be my everlasting endeavor to persuade government officials from uttering publicly or privately the thought that business is the enemy of government."

Business men certainly don't want to feel that government is their enemy. This breach between government and business has been largely created by politicians who, in recent years, have chastised the many for the shortcomings of the few, in business.

It is politicians who have passed legislation hamstringing and punishing business. It is politicians who have saddled business with a tax burden that makes operations next to profitless in many instances. It is politicians who have forced government into direct competition with business in certain fields, using to the full its advantages of tax freedom, and unlimited public credit. It is politicians who have pilloried business men, and held them up to scorn and ridicule. It is politicians who have been undermining confidence in our American system of government and fomenting class hatred between labor and capital.

It is not business' duty to make "peace" with government. Government, Government exists to serve business and the individual. Government is a means to an end, not an end in itself. Government lives financially off the fruits of business. Government's true purpose is to act as an umpire, not a player, in the commercial affairs of the people. Government should punish the guilty--and cooperate with the innocent. And that is exactly what the politicians have prevented government from doing.

Government will find practically all business ready to work in amicable accord with it when the politicians pursue policies of cooperation instead of retaliation.

NATIONAL FARM LOAN

More than 90 officers and directors, representing 25 National Farm Loan Associations, attended a group meeting held at San Angelo Aug. 22, 1938, according to G. S. Arnold, Secretary-Treasurer of the Robert Lee National Farm Loan Association, who has just returned from the meeting. Mr. Arnold reported that the conference afforded an excellent opportunity for officers and directors to discuss problems of mutual interest as well as to review the operations of the operations of the associations of the associations represented at the meeting.

More than 1,915 loans totaling $4,440,400 were made during the first seven months of 1938 by the Federal Land Bank of Houston and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation to Texas farmers and ranchers. Of this amount, $1,208,780, representing 596 loans, was for the purchase of lands for agricultural purposes. Nearly 400 bank owned farms were sold to Texas farmers during the same period. The sale of these farms involved considerations totaling $914,032.

These significant facts were brought out by A. C. Williams, President of the Bank and General Agent of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston, in talking to the group.

"When the bank is forced to take over farm properties," said Mr. Williams, "necessary repairs and improvements are made and the units are sold to new owners as soon as possible."

"Hundreds of young farmers," he continued, "have found it possible to acquire farms of their own either through purchase of a farm from the Federal Bank and Land Bank or by means of Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loan. In either case the buyer pays off his mortgage in reasonable semi-annual payments that gradually reduce the principal of the loan over a long term of years. By taking advantage of the Federal Land Bank method of financing, the farm purchaser avoids the necessity of costly renewals and has the added advantage of very low interest rates."

Collett Guests

Sunday, about thirty-eight relatives and friends were gathered at the Oscar Collett home in Valley View to honor Erman Collett and family who were here from Bakersfield, California. Relatives from out of the community included Mr. and Mrs. Vic Collett from the Harris ranch Mr. and Mrs. Will Walton and family from Bronte.

Mr. Collett and his family are visiting at Corpus Christi and Pharr this week and will return to christoval for the Old Settlers Reunion Friday when a large number of the Collett relatives and friends will be together. The Colletts will return to their California home next week by way of Lubbock.

A WORD FROM R. H. REAVES

Candidate for REPRESENTATIVE 92nd Dist.

A slight hip injury, that caused me to have Neuritis, is why I have not been able to see you since the July Primary.

Again I want to thank the good people for their support and splendid vote in the first Primary.

Let me urge you to go to the polls and vote Saturday.

With the help of the people of the 92nd District I believe if I am elected, we can do our part toward a real constructive business administration for Our State.

Invite your neighbor to GO VOTE.

Relatives from out of the county who were here to attend the Modgling funeral Sunday, included, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowers of pampr, Mr. and Mrs. Leman Modgling, Seminole and Mrs. Will Modgling and children, Quannah These and relatives living in Coke county met at the Walter Modgling home in Bronte Wednesday, for a family reunion.

THE LAWS

When you drink Beer in a tavern... choose your tavern

WHEN YOU restrict your patronage to legal, respectable retail outlets, you not only encourage those better outlets but you've made a start toward driving out the bad spots in your community.

And that is exactly the aim of the great body of honest retailers of beer who, along with the brewers, recognize that Beer's only problem is to remove the anti-social conditions that sometimes surround its sale.

Existing laws can curb these evils. Help us by demanding their strict enforcement! Sales to minors, or after legal hours... or use of a beer license as a screen, for selling illicit liquor or for operating an illicit resort... all these are violations of the law and should be stopped. Public opinion, once aroused, can see that such practices are stopped!

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Furred Terror"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Orville E. Gibbs of Jackson Heights, N. Y., is today's Distinguished Adventurer, and the tale he tells is one that will make the hair creep up the back of your neck. It's a yarn that reminds me of the gladiatorial arenas of Rome where they used to throw Christians to the wolves and pit men in deadly combat against Numidian lions and bears from the German forests.

But it was neither a lion nor a wolf, nor a bear that brought this package of thrills to Orville Gibbs, and instead of a Roman arena, he fought it out in the living room of his own house.

I don't know how it was in Roman times, but nowadays adventures, like Charity, almost always begin at home.

All his life, Orville Gibbs has been thrown into intimate contact with wild animals. He ran away as a boy to join a circus, started as a water carrier for the elephants and worked his way up until he was a full-fledged trainer handling all sorts and species of wild beasts. From the circus he drifted to Hollywood and helped direct animal films. While he was there he was given several monkeys which he kept in cages in back of his house. He trained these monkeys, and they're still there, taken care of by his father. None of them ever gave any trouble.

Jack Was a Bright Monkey.

But there's always an exception. Orville moved East, then went to South America, bought another bunch of monkeys and shipped them to his home in New Rochelle, N. Y. He and his wife started to train the whole bunch, but one of them—Jack—was brighter than the others. Orville concentrated on him. He would bring him into the house and have all sorts of fun with him. But Orville's wife kept away from that monk. He had bitten at her arm several times.

One evening Orville brought Jack into the house. He had him on his lap, playing with him in the usual manner when suddenly, without warning, Jack emitted a ferocious screech and leaped for Orville's throat. And that was the beginning of as horrible a battle as any Roman arena ever saw.

"As he came for me," says Orville, "I threw my right arm to ward him off. Jack's teeth snapped shut, and he broke practically every bone in my hand. The hand started bleeding as if an artery had been severed. I was so stunned that I could do little but shove him away, and at that he made another screech and leaped again.

It Looked Bad for Orville.

"I threw up my left arm. He crunched it at the wrist, piercing the skin and breaking several bones. Then I leaped to my feet, just as he jumped at me again. I was dressed in riding clothes, and the heavy boots stood me in good stead. I kicked at him savagely and it stopped him for a moment, but he bit clear through the boots several times."

That was just the start of a terrible fracas—and a mighty bad start for Orville. "There I was," he says, "cornered by a wild monkey, weighing thirty-two pounds—screeching horribly—and leaping from chair to chair to table trying to get at me. Whenever he thought he had me he leaped at my throat, and here I was, my hands useless, bleeding like a stuck pig, and growing weaker every minute."

Orville's wife had run from the room. He shouted to her to pass him his rifle and cautiously she broke a pane from one of the French doors and pushed the weapon through. "To my horror," says Orville, "I could not even pull the trigger. I passed the gun back through the broken pane to my wife telling her to cock it—all this time dodging several savage rushes and leaps. Finally the gun came through, cocked. I don't know to this day how I ever succeeded in aiming it and pulling the trigger, but if I had placed the gun to his head and fired I couldn't have made a more perfect shot—right between his eyes!"

He Shot the Maddened Beast.

Blood began to pour from the gaping hole in the monkey's head. But still, to Orville's horror, THE BEAST CAME ON AGAIN AND AGAIN! Frozen with terror he passed the gun out again for his wife to cock. And again Orville doesn't know how he ever managed to fire it. This time the bullet caught the animal right through the eye and down he went.

"And," says Orville, "down I went, too!"

"Orville's wife called the hospital. The ambulance came, and the orderlies found him lying on the floor covered with blood. Orville's own doctor rushed to the hospital. "And," says Orville, "he didn't have his glasses with him. While I lay groaning and bleeding, they sent back for the glasses. They gave me morphine and more morphine. By the time the glasses did come the doc told me that I was so well doped up that I might as well go on the operating table without an anesthetic."

Orville told him to go ahead. It took them exactly one hour and a half and forty-eight stitches to sew up the holes that animal had made. After that came Pasteur injections. His hands were reopened and the bones reset. "And now," he says, "I'm back to work with a stiff right thumb and a pair of hands and wrists that will be weak for some time to come."

And nowadays, Orville has a motto. No more monkeys!

Dental Cabinet Modernized
A dental cabinet with photoelectric control of the drawer compartments has recently been designed which permits the dentist to open the drawers without actually touching the cabinet. The drawers can be operated individually by passing a beam of light directed at a photo-electric cell. Its use eliminates the possibility of transferring disease from the mouth of one patient to another through the handling of cabinet drawers.—Electronics.

Rats Conquer at Airfield
Officials were astonished when at an airfield near Karachi they saw seven stationary planes sink in the earth. Investigation disclosed that thousands of rats had tunneled under the ground. Poison was spread to kill the rodents, but with little effect. Gassing, firing, trapping and all other modern devices were employed against them, but without success. At last, says the London Daily Express, the authorities, exasperated, gave in. Now the rats are in full charge of the airfield.

The Good Old Days! How Would You Like—

To go out to the woodpile every morning and whack up enough wood for the breakfast fire.

To hike over to the icthouse every morning and get a chunk of ice so ma could keep the milk sweet and the butter firm?

To go out to the well every morning and fill up the water buckets so ma could wash and cook all day?

To trim the wicks on a lot of kerosene lamps and polish the chimneys with old newspapers so you could read at night?

To go to bed every night with the chickens because there wouldn't be anything to keep you awake?

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SO MANY readers have expressed interest in rag rugs that I know many of you will want to copy this one. I discovered it in a village on Buzzards bay where, a century ago, whaling ships put out to sea. In the book offered below there is a knitted rag rug found one time on a trip through Ohio. I have not yet done a special book on rag rugs. It does seem that there should be a way to exchange designs from different parts of the country.

The center medallion of the rug shown here is its outstanding feature. The braiding is fine and tight. The braided strips should be sewn together with strong linen thread or about size 8 cotton thread used double. The center round should be 8-inches long as shown. Sew around and around until the center oval is 14-inches long, then make the eight loops shown in the next round—three along each side of the oval and one at each end.

These loops should be 2-inches long. In working around the loops with the next rows, the trick is to "ease" the inside edge of the braided strip in just enough to keep the work perfectly flat, and to give the scalloped effect shown. As you work around, the scallops gradually straighten out and the rug becomes more oval in shape.

NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of directions for making slipcovers and curtains; dressing tables, lampshades and many other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid. Ask for Book 1, and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

ASK ME ANOTHER? A Quiz With Answers Offering Information on Various Subjects

1. What is the largest single industrial plant in the world?
2. Is the new British liner Queen Mary really two ships?
3. Who is the most talked of today as the man without a country?
4. What is an eisteddfod?
5. Are there jury trials in China?
6. What is the highest price paid for one pair of woman's hosiery?

The Answers

1. The Ford plant at River Rouge, Mich., which normally employs 80,000 men.

2. The Queen Mary is two ships, one inside the other with a space of six feet between the inner and outer hulls.

3. Haile Selassie.

4. A congress of Welsh bards.

5. No. In the lower courts, all powers are vested in a single judge. In the case of appeal to the higher court, three judges render final decision.

6. The record price is $2,000. The clocks were made up of real diamonds.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

HONEY WHITE CAKE

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup honey
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 4 egg whites

Cream shortening, honey and sugar thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients, alternately with milk, starting and ending with dry ones. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two 9-inch layer pans in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Seven Minute Honey Frosting.

Put two unbeaten egg whites, 1/2 cup white corn syrup and 1/2 cup honey in double boiler top. Have water in bottom boiling. Beat with rotary beater for seven minutes or until the mixture is stiff enough to stand in peaks. Remove from heat. Add 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, and a pinch of salt. Spread on cake. Then cover with moist coconut.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Prunes in Bread.—Pitted prunes cut in small pieces and added to the last kneading of bread, instead of raisins, makes a delicious bread.

Firm Pie Crust.—The lower crust of a pie will not become soggy if the plate on which it is baked is heated before crust is put on.

Clean Sharpening Stone.—If you use a stone for sharpening your knives, bear in mind that the cleaner the stone, the better it will sharpen. Wash it each time it is used.

Glycerin as Lubricant.—If you use glycerin instead of oil to lubricate the meat chopper and egg beater you will find it will not impart any taste to the food.

- ★ Pearl Was Canny
- ★ Gargan Reduces
- ★ "Willie" Flops

By Virginia Vale

PEARL WHITE'S death brought out an odd fact, when her father denied that she was forty-nine. She was forty-one, he said, and added that she had just tacked on a few years, long ago, "to keep ahead of Mary Pickford."

A woman who interviewed the serial star in the heyday of her popularity was talking about her recently. "She was an amazing person," she said. "Think of her having sense enough to save money, back in those days when to be a movie star meant throwing it around. I'll never forget, either, going to see her one day, and finding her reading a French book—in French."

"The Crowd Roars" not only gives Robert Taylor a chance to give an excellent performance; it also brings Bill Gargan back to us in a good picture, minus some 20 pounds. Leslie Howard sent for him to come to England and play in "Alias Mrs. Jones," which he is producing, before Gargan made a hit in the new Taylor picture. But the name of the production will have to be changed, probably, when it is shown in this country, otherwise people are going to think it's just another of the Jones family pictures.

If you've seen Hedy Lamarr in "Algiers" you probably have wondered whether she will be one of our A-1 movie stars in a year or so, or will just be making pictures that are nothing special. And if you've seen the announcement that Josef von Sternberg has been engaged to direct her first picture for Metro, probably you're still wondering. Of course, Mr. von Sternberg may not have been responsible for slowing Marlene Dietrich down so that she seemed to be doing nothing but stand around, but sometimes he's been blamed for it.

Charlie McCarthy has been such a success on the air here that the British Broadcasting company tried out the idea of having a Charlie of their own. They called the puppet "Willie Winkett." And "Willie" was a flop. Which proves how clever Edgar Bergen really is.

Edgar Bergen

Incidentally, Bergen is working on another puppet—figuring that, no matter how popular you are, there's always a time ahead when the public grows tired of the same old thing.

ODDS AND ENDS—Watch W. C. Fields make a come-back as author of, and actor in, "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," and make Paramount regret releasing him . . . Isn't it good news that Carole Lombard and Bill Powell are to make a picture together again . . . Harold Lloyd is threatening to turn producer—though he'd still act in a picture occasionally—and is also considering making his next picture in England . . . After having too much excitement, seeing too many people, and having the door of a car slammed on her finger, Shirley Temple was awfully glad to end her vacation and get back home . . . Lots of people didn't believe that Simone Simon would really sail off to France without signing a new contract, though the only contract that offered seemed to be one for appearance at a New York night club.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for August 28

ELI: RESPONSIBILITY FOR OTHERS

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 3:11-14; 4:12-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go. Proverbs 22:6a.

The responsibilities and privileges of fatherhood need special emphasis, and the lesson of today gives excellent opportunity for such consideration. Too often the rearing of children, which is almost inevitably largely in the hands of the mother, is entirely delegated to her, and the father becomes the man who pays the bills, occasionally carries out a severe act of discipline, but otherwise is almost a stranger to his children.

Girls as well as boys appreciate and respond to the loving and understanding fellowship of a father who really improves the opportunity to build himself into the lives of his children.

Eli is a striking illustration of a man who had attained an honorable position in life and who had discharged his public duties with success, but who failed his own boys, because of weak indulgence. Not a few Christian workers have followed in Eli's path.

I. A Weak Father and Vile Sons (3:13)

The sons of Eli were wicked men who dared even to use the service of the temple for the gratification of fleshly appetites and lusts. (See 2:12-17, 22.) Eli protested against their most flagrant sin (2:23, 24), but evidently he had lost his influence over them, for they did not hearken.

It is not always true that the wickedness of a son is the result of weakness in the father, nor is it always the case that weak fathers have vile sons. Often the sons live far better lives than their fathers, and frequently a godly and faithful father suffers the heartbreak of having a wayward son. But usually "like father, like son" is true. Boys learn from their fathers—not so much by words of admonition, as by deeds. Let us tell our boys how to live by first living a consistent Christian life, and then lovingly but insistently requiring of them during their days of irresponsibility conformity to the standards of God. We need to build moral fiber into American youth of our country if it is not to fall into the decadence of the civilizations of the past.

II. Judgment—Personal and National (3:12, 14; 4:17)

Sin brings a horrible harvest of sorrow, suffering, and judgment, not only to the individual but to his family, and ultimately to the nation. No man can ever divorce himself from his relationship to his family. His people will suffer for his waywardness, perhaps more than he suffers himself. The nation is made up of homes, and consequently when the family suffers the nation will suffer too.

There is a strange theory current that social and political entities have an existence apart from the people who make them up, that our people can drink and gamble and steal and kill, and yet somehow we will still be the "land of the free and the home of the brave." America is what the families in our community and mine are, and our families are what we are.

III. Responsibility and Opportunity

This division of our lesson is drawn from no special portion of the Scripture lesson, but is presented to place squarely before us the fact that we (and we are speaking specifically to fathers) have a plain and inescapable responsibility for our family life, as well as to emphasize the fact that this is not a responsibility of which we should be afraid. It is God's gift of glorious opportunity.

Eli was a personal success as a priest. He had many commendable qualities, not the least of which was his gracious recognition of the ministry of Samuel, who had grown up in his presence and yet who was recognized by Eli as the messenger of God. (Compare Mark 6:4 and I Tim. 4:12.) But he missed life's greatest opportunity by losing his own boys.

Let us look on the brighter side in closing our study and recall the inspiring contribution that has been made to our national life, to our spiritual life and our social advancement by those who have come out of the most humble of homes, with the most meager worldly advantages, but with the rugged characters—physically, morally, and spiritually stalwart—which have been nurtured in a true Christian home. It pays, not only for the person and for the family, but also for the nation, to have Christian fathers.

C. Houston Goudiss Explains the Causes of Food Allergy

Well-Known Food Authority Names the Foods That Cause Trouble

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

A NEW phrase has crept into daily usage in recent years, and draw laughs from their audiences when they mimic, "I'm allergic!" But the words have deep significance for perhaps 30 to 60 per cent of the population who have cause to agree with the old saying that "one man's meat is another man's poison."

They are victims of the curious phenomenon known as food allergy and have an abnormal reaction to the proteins in certain foods and other substances. As a result, foods which are beneficial in themselves and which usually have an important place in a normal balanced diet, cause a variety of unpleasant effects.

These may range from hives or a skin rash to a gastric disturbance with spells of nausea. The individual may suffer from migraine headache or an attack of hay fever or asthma; or he may have a tendency to what appears to be bronchial or head colds.

It has been determined that these symptoms in an individual who is allergic are due to intolerance of certain proteins. Even when the offending foods are fruits and vegetables, it is the protein that is responsible. It has been suggested that the sensitization results because at some previous time, an unsplit or undigested protein in some way passed through the membranes lining the digestive tract and entered the blood stream. This acted very much like a foreign substance and sensitized body cells in some way so that whenever the same food is eaten, the disturbing symptoms occur as a sort of defense mechanism.

Heredity a Factor

A tendency to allergy seems to be inherited. But the substances which caused a disturbance differ with each individual, and the type of reaction also differs. For example, a mother may be allergic to milk; her child inheriting the tendency may be allergic to fish. Drinking milk may give the mother an attack of asthma; eating fish may cause the child to break out with hives.

Trouble-Making Foods

It is difficult to generalize regarding the foods that cause trouble, because they vary so widely among individuals who are sensitized, and often one person is sensitized to a number of foods. It has been found that the foods most frequently causing allergic symptoms include wheat, milk, eggs, chocolate, pork, fish and shellfish, tomatoes, cauliflower, cabbage, strawberries and oranges.

Skin rashes are believed to be caused most frequently by hypersensitiveness to milk, cereal or pork. Hives are reported to occur often from eating strawberries, chocolate, fish and tomatoes. Wheat is frequently an offender in migraine headaches. Asthma seems to be common in persons who are sensitive to milk, eggs and butter.

Other Offending Substances

Foods are not always responsible for allergy, and the symptoms may be produced by contact with wool, feathers, dust, pollen, dander from horses or other animals; or even the sting of a bee.

Discovering the Offenders

The ideal procedure for the allergy victim is to find out the offending foods or substances and avoid them. For early recognition of a tendency to allergy may prevent discomfort and trouble.

There are two ways to discover the trouble makers. One is to learn by experience, either by keeping a record of the foods eaten and noting the appearance of symptoms, or by eliminating from the diet, first one and then another of the foods that are suspected of causing difficulty. The other is to let your doctor conduct simple skin tests. Small scratches are made on the arms and legs, and each scratch touched with a solution made of the protein of a food or substance known to cause trouble. If a person is allergic to that substance, the skin around the scratch swells and becomes inflamed. The inflammation disappears after a few hours and causes no pain or inconvenience.

Other Foods Must Be Used

Once the offending food or foods are determined, they should be eliminated either for all time or until the individual becomes desensitized. If the trouble maker is an uncommon food, such as lobster or clams, the allergy presents no great problem, but when children react to necessary foods such as milk, eggs and wheat, the homemaker faces a difficult task.

SEND FOR THIS FREE CHART of FOODS THAT OFTEN CAUSE TROUBLE

C. Houston Goudiss will gladly send you, FREE, a chart showing which foods have been found most frequently to cause allergic reactions, and also those which are the least likely to cause trouble. Just state your request on a postcard and address it to C. HOUSTON GOUDISS, 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

When milk is the offending food, it must be avoided, not only as a beverage, but in bread, cakes and puddings. Sometimes dried or evaporated milk, goat's milk or soy bean milk may be used instead. When wheat is the trouble maker, the alternatives include cornstarch, rice flour, potato or rye flour; rice and corn cereals; tapioca or barley. When hen's eggs are injurious, duck's eggs can sometimes be used with success, or meat or fish may be substituted.

Sometimes after a period of exclusion, an immunity is built up so that later the foods may be reintroduced gradually into the diet.

Don't Jump to Conclusions

It must be borne in mind that many of the symptoms produced by food sensitivity may also result from other causes. For this reason, it is unwise to decide that one is allergic without due investigation. Nor must the imagination or the current widespread discussion of the subject be allowed to cause adults or children to mask their unwillingness to eat certain foods with the false notion that they are unduly sensitive.

On the other hand, homemakers should be sympathetic with both children and adults who say with good cause, "I can't eat that!" And it would appear that there may even be some compensation in this unpleasant situation. For a group of scientists who have studied the subject announced a few years ago that those who belong to the allergy group appear to have a definite capacity for becoming intellectually superior. Thus, the child who suffers from a skin rash or stuffy nose today, due to food sensitivity, is apt to be full of energy when he reaches manhood and exhibit unusual ability for cultural leadership.
