NOW BOOST FOR THE BIG EXHIBITION WELL

The Power Company Offers to Equip the Well If the City Will Furnish the Right of Way

100,000 GALLONS WATER FLOWING FOR PASSERS-BY People Passing Through Can Get Some Idea of the Valley. Also Beautify the Town

Now that the new station is nearing completion, the matter of putting in an exhibition well at or near the station grounds is one which needs immediate attention. The Power Company states that they are willing to provide for the apparatus required, run a power line from their plant to the location of the well and furnish such current as is required for exhibition purposes. They call our attention to the fact that in order to run a power line from the Plant to the well site, it will be necessary to pass within the city limits and in order to do so the city will have to provide for that, some right of way or franchise right.

It is expected that this well will deliver approximately 100,000 gallons per day while running during the time of trains in and out of the station. These 100,000 gallons of water will have to be run through town to be disposed of on lands south and east of town and it will be necessary to grant the Power Company some right of way for this water through the town.

This running water through the streets of the town will enable the planting of trees on both sides of Main and Colorado Streets and such other streets as this water run over. It will be of inestimable value to have this running water going through the streets and the consequential planting of trees will immediately change the aspects of a Plains town and make it look as cosy and home-like as a great many other irrigated lands Colorado particularly Lovel, Fort Collins and Rocky Ford.

As soon as the necessary preliminary arrangements are provided for it will be the duty of the citizens of the town to get out and boost for the necessary funds to provide suitable concrete ditches around the well and otherwise assist the Power company in getting this improvement established.

People coming through the town at the present time do not see the water running and consequently many people pass through this town without knowing of the immense quantity of water within twenty feet of the surface of the ground. By having this well running at the station grounds the town will get a large measure of advertising from the talk of the people who will see this water flowing.

Let us all get together and make this installation an affair which will get the town talked about as a progressive town with plenty of running water and beautiful trees. Nothing will call the settler to the town better than an appearance of an abundance of foliage, water and prosperity which a well of this character will make apparent at first glance.

With this power line and water in the city it will be possible to serve water for irrigation purpose on all of the small acreage tracts immediately in the city and adjoining the city. This would enable all owners of land on the school section and other blocks and additions to the town to have an ample supply of water and develop their garden tracts.

Prof. J. S. Long

The trustees have elected Prof. J. S. Long to the superintendency of our high school for the ensuing year. The board has made a wise selection and deserve the thanks of every citizen of Portales.

Mr. Long is a school man of recognized ability. He is fitted, both by nature and training for his chosen profession. He is an educated man with seventeen years of experience behind him.

Some of Mr. Long's recent work was at Stanton and Pecos Texas. At each place he was instrumental in the erection of modern, splendidly equipped buildings and affiliated these schools. He is a success.

But let us not forget that how ever successful the superintendent, he alone can not build a successful school. He must have a good, well equipped building, an efficient corps of teachers and the sympathetic cooperation of the patrons. Give Mr. Long these and he will give us a school second to none in New Mexico.

We have a splendid building, fairly well equipped. We believe an efficient corps of teachers have been selected. Will our people stand by Mr. Long. This is very essential.

The Herald believes in the business sagacity of our school board. It believes these gentlemen will take an intelligent interest in our school affairs. In other words the Herald believes these men will do their part to make our school a success. Will our citizens do their part? A long pull, a strong pull and a pull together means everything for our school.

Rain

Portales and Roosevelt county have been the hold out for rain for the past four or five days. Friday a nice shower fell over the valley in spots. Everywhere it fell it did much good and stopped irrigation. Tuesday night a fine shower fell and probably was general from what reports can be gotten. These rains are starting the growing crops off fine and the numerous sweet potato and small truck plants that have been put out in the past week or two are starting off without even wilting after being transplanted from the hot beds.

Is Your Ad Being Read

The Herald will this week give to the party first presenting the ad of a certain store running in this weeks paper and which has a word misspelled in it, a neat present.

Read all of the ads and the one in which you find a word misspelled clip out and take to the store which is advertised and ask for the present the Herald left there for you.

Tucumcari Boosts Us

The following article was clipped from the Tucumcari Sun of the issue of the last week in May and to say that it makes us feel good to read it is saying very little indeed. We thank Tucumcari for their boost and ask that when they want the favor returned to merely say so and we will be more than glad to return it in duplicate or triplicate.

There's a farmer in the shallow water belt near Portales that has 40 acres under irrigation. On this small farm he raises alfalfa and keeps seventy Duroc-Jersey brood sows each of which produces a litter of pigs three times a year. For these pigs the farmer receives from $3.50 to $5 each as soon as they are big enough to wean. Suppose each sow brings six pigs at a clip (which is a low estimate) and raises 12 out of 18 until they are big enough to sell. 12 times 70 is 840. Suppose these pigs average $4 apiece and you will have $3360 for the year's crop of pigs.

Besides raising pigs and alfalfa this farmer grows cantaloupes of a choice variety which he readily finds a market for. It can readily be seen that he produces at least $4000 worth of stuff on his little farm of 40 acres each year.

Before someone discovered that an abundance of artesian water flowed underneath the ground in this region, the land was not worth $2 an acre now it is worth $100.

The valley about Portales is being developed for a distance of many miles in every direction. The water in the wells rises to a distance of 20 feet from the surface, being in fact semi-artesian. The water is pumped up either by private plants or by a large electric pumping plant, situated in Portales.

Information on Silage

If a larger per cent of the feed raised in New Mexico were put into silos and fed to live stock, especially dairy cattle it would undoubtedly be one of the great factors in settling up and improving the country. At present in the dry farming sections many silos are being dug in the ground and they serve the purpose very well, where the person has no money to build one above ground. New Mexico produces a great variety of crops, both in the dry and irrigated farming sections, that make excellent silage.

Kaffir and Milo—Just as corn stands preeminent as a silo crop in the Corn Belt States, the non-saccharine sorghums kaffir, milo and feterita undoubtedly are the leading crops in the southwest. In most parts of New Mexico corn does not produce as well as the above crops, and its advantages are not sufficient to warrant planting it for silage crops in preference to ones that are better adapted to our condition. Because of the woody and the coarser character of the milo stalk, kaffir is generally preferred when cut either for fodder or for silage. The grains of the two have about the same feeding value, which is about eight per cent below that of corn. Both of these crops withstand drought very well, produce as much or more feed to the acre than any other crop, and are not bothered by the worms. When they are cut just as the grain is be-

COMMERCIAL CLUB MEN ENTERTAINED

The Portales Chamber of Commerce Unanimously Decides to Entertain Clovis Visitors

SPECIAL TRAIN CHARTERED FOR THE GRAND OCCASION

Secretaries From Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and New Mexico Will See Water Supply of Valley

The Chamber of Commerce of Portales unanimously decided to entertain the delegates to the cooperative meeting of Clovis chamber of commerce next Saturday morning.

Clovis entertains the secretaries of all of the commercial clubs of eastern New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas, Friday and the delegates to this convention of commercial clubs will then be brought to the Portales valley Saturday morning on a special train and taken over the entire valley getting them back to Clovis for their train home at noon.

We are glad to see Clovis taking the steps that she is toward boosting eastern New Mexico and we are more than glad to be able to help her entertain her visitors in this manner and hope that the trip will be taken by them to indicate the feelings of the business men of Portales towards the business men of Clovis.

ginning to glaze, chopped into one-half or one inch lengths and well tramped into the silo, they make good, sweet silage which is relished much by all classes of animals.

Feterita. As this is a new crop no data are available on its use as silage, but as it is generally conceded to stand between kaffir and milo as a crop, there would be no difference in its value as silage.

Sorghum. There is a great difference of opinion in regard to sugar cane. Some think that it made sour and bad silage and is not fit to put up. However, the cane silage put up at the College last year apparently gave just as good results as the corn silage, and was relished by all animals. Because of a great amount of carbohydrates in cane, fermentation is greater, and if cut at the same stage as kaffir or milo the silage is apt to be a little sour. By letting the cane get a little more mature, thus allowing more of the starch to change to sugar before it is cut, less acid will develop and a very good quality of silage will be produced. Soule of the Kentucky Station, after feeding it for five years, says that it should be cut just short of maturity.

When a crop is planted for the silo it is much better to choose some one of the above, because of the larger yield per acre and of the superior quality of the silage; but there are a great many other crops that are successfully raised in New Mexico and have been proved to make very good silage. The larger part of the feeds that must be fed with silage in this country are of a nitrogenous character, and on this account it is also preferable to use a carbonaceous crop for the silo.

Alfalfa. Of course there is no advantage in putting alfalfa into the silo if it can be made into first-class hay. However, oftentimes when it is time for the second or third cut, our rains are so persistent that it is impossible to get it put up into good hay. By putting this into the silo all the nutrition can be saved and it makes a fair quality of silage, thus allowing the full value of it to be utilized. The Colorado station reports very good success with alfalfa, and states that cattle are very fond of it.

Cowpeas, Soy Beans and Field Peas. These are probably the best of the leguminous crops to use. They do not make as good hay as some of the others, and this is another reason for making them into silage. Field peas, although very good, can usually be made into hay.

Barley, Wheat, Rye and Oats. Some feeders report very good success with these crops when they are cut a little green. However, as the stalks contain so much air, they must be carefully tramped to keep, and although they can be used to advantage in some cases; it would not be advisable to plant them for this purpose.

Beet Tops. In sections where sugar beets are grown, the tops are often put into the silo with good success. They must be well tramped to avoid spoiling, and are not relished so much by animals as the corns and sorghums.

Roots. As for the root crops, there is nothing gained by putting them into a silo, as they can be preserved or covered over in holes dug in the ground and when fed in this way make just as good feed.

Rape. This crop is not proven to be a success, as the stalks are too watery, causing it to sour and also to decay more or less.

Russian Thistle. As this weed is so persistent in some sections a great many attempts have been made to utilize it in some way. It has been tried to some extent in the silo, but the best that can be said for it is that it furnishes a means of subsistence to animals during a time of drought or scarcity of feed. Where a person has not enough of the other crops to fill his silo or can dig a very cheap silo in the ground, he can utilize quite a large amount of the thistles and if cut when green and juicy, before the thorns are hardened, he has done a great deal toward eradicating them from the farm, and at the same time has a feed that will maintain stock. However, there is very little nourishment in the thistle and a large amount of woody fibre, which makes them more or less unpalatable. They are very hard to pack well in the silo and a great many small places of spoiled silage are likely to be found when feeding.

Some Difference, Yes

A gentleman said to us this week: "I am just in receipt of a letter from Missouri. It is 100 in the shade there and dry. The meadows and oats are rained."

A man just in from Oklahoma said: "It is very dry and hot in our section of the state. We have had but a little more than five inches of rain since the first of January."

Another man, who has just returned from Kansas points said: "It was 106 in the shade there."

Contrast this with the mellow showers, molient breezes and balmy nights of the Portales valley. If it should get a little dry here, why, we just touch the button, or have the other man do it for us, and the joy bringing, life giving water pours forth in copious streams from old earth.

Some difference, don't you think? Come to Portales.

Mrs. Underhill, mother of Ray Underhill, left Tuesday for her future home in Pawhuska, Oklahoma. Mrs. Underhill says that she will probably be back some time and that she thinks a great deal of Portales.

County superintendent Mersfelder of Curry county is in Portales this week on business. He is at present working with an insurance company towards making some loans of six and seven per cent money in this valley and is down looking after the proposition. He says that the chances are good for the money if he can make the right arrangements at this end of the line.

Miss Magdalene Humphrey left for her home in Clovis Monday after a weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. C. O. Leach. Misses Leach and Wilson entertained in honor while here.

Charles M. Payne of Lexington, Kansas, is here on real estate business.

Doss Clippings

Dear Mr. Editor: Having noticed no write up from here for some time I am writing you to let you know that we are still on the map.

Some may ask where Doss is. I will state seven miles south west of Portales.

This community has energetic and prosperous farmers and stockmen as you will find in eastern New Mexico. We have plenty of maize in the barn, stock are all fat and plenty of meat in the smoke house.

Crops are growing nicely. A good rain would be beneficial.

Quite a number are in the creamery business, we might mention H. Y. Freeman, Fred Kaptina, Miles Fowler and J. A. Tinsley. They are making a success of it.

We are glad to note that little Clem Lewis has recovered from a long spell of typhoid fever.

Junior Matthews is on the sick list.

Grandpa Read and Joe Naylor have erected wind-mills on their places.

Rev. Bristow filled his regular appointment at the school building last Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. Mrs. S. F. Culberson, county superintendent made a pleasant visit to the school one day last week. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Annie Culberson.

Mr. G. S. Hatch and family have moved to southern Texas. Ed Dickens and family have left for Magdalena, New Mexico.

Both families were old timers and well liked.

J. W. Hawks of Mt. Vernon, N. M. has purchased land and he and his family have moved onto it to make it their future home.

Several friends and neighbors gathered at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Grimes on Sunday May 25th where they enjoyed a birthday dinner which Mrs. Grimes had given in honor of Mr. Eugene Mayo. Ice cream was served and oh! Too many good eatables to mention. After dinner the young folks engaged in singing. Many thanks Mr. Mayo we wish such occasions were often.

Our school under the management of Prof. Sam Stinnett, will close Friday June 13th making a nine months term. The school will give an entertainment at night free for everyone.

An Old Timer.

Wilson's Memorial Message

A great northern state did not hesitate to put the executive responsibilities of the great commonwealth into the hands of a southerner, and the United States has not hesitated to put in the place of chief power in the country itself, a native of Virginia.

I should indeed be happy if I should be permitted to deem myself in some degree the instrument of drawing together the hearts of all men in the United States for the service of a nation that has neither region nor section, nor north nor south. I would fain believe that my selection as president by the people of the United States means the final obliteration of everything that may have divided the great sections of the country.

Woman's Club Notes.

The Woman's Club will meet next Wednesday afternoon, June 11th, with Mrs. McDonald. Members are especially urged to be present and enroll in one or more of the departments. Those whose dues are delinquent must pay at or before this meeting in order to have their name appear in the year book.

I ship a car of hogs in ten days. If you have some fat ones bring them in and I'll pay cash for them.

Farmers all fighting weeds and planting their crops.

G. H. Edwards is still confined to his bed but improving slowly. His oldest son is now visiting him from Cleburne, Texas.

Our Sunday school is growing, forty present Sunday, everybody near enough is cordially invited to attend.

Some of the neighbors received a letter from Mrs. M. F. Wolfe who left this neighborhood about a month ago and went to Texas. She says she wants to come back to New Mexico.

J. E. Kilburn has just had two wells drilled on his place, one 37 feet deep and the other 237 feet getting a fine flow of water in both wells.

The Farmer's Produce Association will meet in special session on Saturday night, June 14th. All members are requested to be present.

H. L. Capps, Pres.

We don't feel competent to advise but we think the money would be well spent if our road commissioners would have the county road running from Portales south surveyed and straightened.

With best wishes for the Herald's success we will take off our hat to the editor, and bid the Devil goodnight.

Upton Eulogies

Milking cows is the order of the day. W. G. Upton milks from 4 o'clock in the evening until 9 o'clock. Nevertheless he is still happy.

Literary was a grand success last Saturday night. The children recite much better since the short school was taught here by Mrs. Hatcher. Mrs. Hatcher recited the "Famine Scene" from Hiawatha. The debate was postponed until next Saturday night, the subject is one of interest. V. J. Campbell and Mr. Hatcher are champion speakers, we are looking for a lively time.

Mr. A. J. McNut finished drilling a well for Jim Jones last week.

Arthur Allen is expected to return home soon in order to attend school at Ingram.

Charlie Gunn finished planting corn last week.

A. B. Crane, champion chess player at Upton.

J. R. Jones is building fence somewhere in the Pecos Valley.

Come and see the city of Upton, the largest city in the western part of Roosevelt county. The hub of the cream business.

Fly Money

The Herald will pay to the boy or girl bringing to their office the largest number of flies before next Saturday afternoon, June 14th at five o'clock the sum of one dollar. Bring your flies bottled and let us see how many of them we can get.

The older people can help the town by encouraging the young folks in their work and make of this not only a spirited campaign for the dollar but also help the town by doing away with thousands of the flies that are now just starting and which means that millions will be saved later on. Bring in the flies.

Millet, The different kinds of millet may under some conditions be put into the silo, but no data seem to be available that would prove it to be important as a silo crop. Although it could be grown to mix with kafir or milo, nothing would be gained, as it would not increase the volume of the silage as would a leguminous crop.

A great many by-products can very profitably be used for silage where they are available, and some of them make very valuable additions to the ration when properly preserved. Among those are beet pulp, apple pomace and sorghum bagasse. For those living near beet factories, the pulp is often available.

Mixed Crops. Sometimes two or more crops, such as kafir, milo and cane, are planted together, alternating the rows; or such crops as field peas, cowpeas and beans are planted in the corn rows. The former is usually practiced where the cane yields heavily and the milo or kafir is planted so that the silage will contain less acid. The reason for planting some leguminous crops in the corn rows is, first, to make a large yield; and second to make a more balanced feed. The great trouble with this is that the two crops hardly reach the same stage of maturity at the same time; and again, such a crop is very inconvenient to handle.

All crops for the silo should be grown thicker than where they are grown for grain and nearly all of them should be allowed to mature well or the grain to harden, before they are cut.
