DAUGHTERS OF CONFEDERACY ENTERTAIN

An Enthusiastic Public Meeting at the Methodist Church Last Evening--A Very Large Audience

BESTOW THREE BEAUTIFUL BRONZE CROSSES OF HONOR

To Three Worthy Confederate Veterans--Fortunate Ones Were Messrs. Jones, Martin and Graham

The Verina Jefferson Davis chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met in open session last evening at the Methodist church for the purpose of bestowing crosses of honor on three confederate veterans. The meeting was an enthusiastic one from every standpoint, and it was well attended by the citizens of Portales.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Bro. Heck, an old veteran who saw much hard service during the late unpleasantness between the north and south, in which he prayed the blessings of the Heavenly Father upon us as a nation--both north and south alike. Following this invocation came a splendid and well rendered program consisting of an address by Superintendent J. S. Long, the son of a Tennessee captain, and several instrumental and vocal solos by members of the local chapter, all of which were well worthy of mention in the columns of the Herald. The applause from the audience was frequently so great that a number of encores were rendered. However, that which was most appreciated by the daughters, the veterans and the entire audience was possibly the vocal solo rendered by Mrs. Freeman entitled "The Home Spun Dress." It was a song which was strictly southern and which depicted very strongly the hardships so faithfully endured by the southern ladies during the war and reconstruction period. Mrs. Freeman was attired in a beautiful home spun dress which has been in her family for almost fifty years. The encore was a repetition of one of the most beautiful verses of the song.

The crosses were delivered by Mrs. S. F. Culberson who made a very interesting and enthusiastic talk concerning the work of the daughters, the origin of the cross of honor, and the services rendered by the confederate veterans and their comrades who so freely spilled their blood for a cause which they believed to be right. She also read a splendid letter from Brother W. P. Graham, a veteran who is so feeble that he was unable to attend.

The cross of honor was bestowed upon H. F. Jones, J. H. Martin and W. P. Graham, Mrs. Jones receiving the cross for her husband who is now in Oklahoma account of his health having been compelled to go there in search of a lower altitude. Mr. Martin was present to receive his in person, and that of W. P. Graham was received by James A. Hall.

Benevolent Society Election

The annual election resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Wolforth, Vice President, Mrs. Carr, secretary, Mrs. Priddy, assistant secretary, Mrs. Corhn, treasurer and collector, Mrs. Pew, soliciting committee, Mrs. Wolforth and Mrs. Merrell, investigating committee, Mrs. Lindsey, chairman, Mrs. Humphrey, Prof. Long and Dr. Dunaway, executive board, the officers, Messrs. Neer, Lindsey, Leach, Turner, Deen, Humphrey, Priddy and Reese.

Merchants and others are requested to refer all charity work to this society. Phone the chairman of the investigating committee. All cases will be carefully attended to if reported.

The preliminary hearing in the case of State against J. W. Buckelew, charged with having murdered Dean Collinsworth, was held yesterday before Judge J. P. Henderson. The state rested its case upon the testimony of two witnesses, Dr. W. E. Patterson and B. B. Clayton and thereupon the defendant introduced himself and Mr. Glass, when the hearing closed. Mr. Buckelew was not represented by counsel, conducting his own defense. He was bound over to await the action of the grand jury and bail was denied.

Minister Shepard will fill his pulpit Sunday after an absence of three weeks in church work.

Marcie Miller Maxwell

Little Marcie Miller Maxwell, died September 4th, 1913, age 5 years, 9 months, 27 days. Marcie died after an illness of nineteen days, then Jesus called the little one to rest and left many hearts sad. A cloud of sorrow hangs over the loved ones, but I would say to them, look up through their tears and beyond the dark clouds of sorrow and see the smiling face of Jesus. For Jesus says, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." You cannot call her back, but you can go to her. A FRIEND.

The Portales Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons will have work in the third degree next Saturday. There are four candidates to be raised. Worshipful Master Williamson announces that work will begin promptly at two o'clock in the afternoon, so that each of the candidates may be given the first section before the evening session. There will also be a big banquet served to the members and guests of the lodge, and a number of visiting brethren from Clovis and Elida are expected to be present, as well as those from the country.

T. H. Long and Sons, for the week ending Tuesday of this week, marketed in Portales $119 worth of cream. Mr. Long has heretofore been shipping his cream on Friday but has now changed the day to Tuesday.

"Better Baby Contest"

All parents in Roosevelt county are requested to take notice of the following:

The latest and most progressive movements for the betterment of the human race will be demonstrated by the "Better Babies Contest" at Portales during the county fair. The object in the "Better Babies Contest" is a universally popular yet, new and scientific movement to insure better babies and a better race. It consists of entering, examining and awarding prizes to children of three years or less on exactly the same basis or principles that are applied to livestock shows. Mere beauty does not count. Physical and mental development only are considered. The better babies contest insures a better race of Americans, because it teaches parents how to improve the physical condition of children already born and to protect those yet unborn. Interest in the conservation of child life and health and in all forms of child welfare. It forges a connecting link between parents and teachers, between the home and the scientific study of child life. It promotes civic interest in children of the community, their school and their recreations, and, finally, by means of a uniform score card, it will supply to the medical profession what has long been sought--measurement of the standard child. The "Better Babies Contest" will take place Friday Oct. 3, at the court house. All babies from 6 months to 3 years of age, may be admitted. The examination will be conducted by local physicians according to the rules and regulations as outlined by the Womans Home Companion.

Six prizes will be given as follows:

- Baby from 6 months to one year making highest score.
- Baby from one year to two years making highest score.
- Baby from two years to three years making highest score.

SWEETSTAKES

Highest scoring boy of any age. Highest scoring girl of any age.

CHAMPIONSHIP

Highest scoring girl or boy. The prizes offered will be mentioned in next weeks paper. This movement is being put forth by the Womans club of Portales.

COMMITTEE.

Notice

During the past few weeks the citizens of Portales have become accustomed to walking across the court house lawn in going to and fro to opposite sides of the square, and more particularly to the post office. This traffic has worn some paths which are very injurious to the lawn. The Commissioners Court has instructed the janitor to see that this traffic is stopped. Resting upon the lawn is not objected to, but the traffic across the lawn must be stopped. All parties are hereby warned that if the practice of walking across the lawn is not stopped prosecutions will have to be instituted. 38-2t

Mrs. Seba Kirkpatrick and children left Wednesday for a two months visit with relatives at Texarkana, Arkansas, and Shreveport, Louisiana. They were accompanied as far as Amarillo, by Rev. Kirkpatrick who will return Thursday.

They Liked 'em

We acknowledge with pleasure the receipt of a crate of fine Gem cantaloupes sent us last week by the Portales Commercial club. Like all Panhandle and eastern New Mexico editors, we have been pampered and dined until eating has become a fixed habit, and when it comes to something good to eat, a crate of Portales Valley cantaloupes is the acme of perfection in that line. The Portales Valley cantaloupe has become famous and considered by experts far superior to any grown elsewhere, not excepting the once famous Rocky Ford. Its symmetry and markings, the smallness of seed cavity, density of flesh and excellent flavor could hardly be improved. It is said that the patrons of the Harvey houses along the Santa Fe invariably ask for Portales Valley cantaloupes, and for that reason are bought by these hostleries in preference to any others.--State Line Tribune.

Public School

The public school which opened the fall term last week is getting a most excellent start. The total enrollment during the first week reached 350 and is yet increasing. The teachers have fully organized themselves into a splendid teaching force, the work has been properly divided and the students classified so that the regular routine of work is now well planned and understood by all. Athletics are being well cared for since all teachers and most of the students fully realize the beneficent results of physical as well as mental training. Superintendent Long states that he expects the Portales Public School Athletic association will be one of the very best in the state. The faculty has promised the Herald weekly notes from the school but account of the heavy work during the first week it was impossible for them to be furnished this week.

May Return To Canada

The six attorneys of Harry K. Thaw have not yet given up hope of taking him back to Canada. N. K. LaFlamme, one of them, announced in court last Monday that he and his associates still expected to ask appellate court of Quebec for a decision on the constitutionality of the immigration act invoked when Thaw was deported. If they succeed in having the law declared invalid, they would make a formal demand through the proper channels for Thaw's return to the dominion.

Six of Thaw's legal staff appeared Monday before appellate court to see what Chief Justice Archambault and his associates would do to the immigration officers for disobeying the courts writ of habeas corpus when Thaw was suddenly deported. To this disappointment, the court, in stead of meeting summary punishment, adjourned the proceedings until today.

Jack Heard, the cashier of the bank at Knowles, New Mexico, which was closed about six months or more ago by the State examiner, was indicted by the Eddy county grand jury last week upon the charge of having received deposits while knowing the bank to be in an insolvent condition.

COMMERCIAL VALUE VALLEY CANTALOUPE

Some Facts Showing the Real Incentive for Production of the Famous Gem and Yucca Cantaloupes

FIFTY CARS WERE SHIPPED FROM THE PORTALES VALLEY

The Cantaloupe Producers of Portales Valley Realized Enormous Sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars

Doubtless many of our readers who have been reading about the famous Yucca and Gem cantaloupes for which the Portales Valley is famous, now that the season is over are wondering just what the outcome of this years business was. Well, the business was simply great, and those who raised and shipped the melons are wearing smiles and say that they will engage in the same business this coming year. But, you say that isn't enough. Then you want to know something in dollars and cents.

The records of the depot here at Portales will show that there were 43 cars shipped in car lot shipments, 21 being shipped by the Gem association and 22 by the Yucca association and in addition to this a very conservative estimate is that there were at least calculation 9 cars shipped by express shipments, making a total of 50 cars shipped this year from the Portales Valley. At this rate the enormous demand for these famous cantaloupes could not be supplied. The returns that have been received show that those melons shipped in car lot shipments netted the producer from $1.00 to $1.50 per crate, making an average of approximately $31.25 per crate. However, the nine cars which were shipped by express netted a larger sum than did the car lot shipments. The average car is 320 crates which would make a grand total of 16000 crates shipped from Portales this year. These at the average net of $1.25 per crate brought to the cantaloupes producers of this section in cash the sum of $20,000.00. Land planted to cantaloupes at this rate will produce $250 and upwards per acre. The figures that we give here have been given us, and they are stripped of all freight and marketing charges. Of course these cantaloupes had to bring handsome prices on the market in order to make the average, but the Portales Valley cantaloupe is a seller for when a person once tastes its delicious flavor he has a burning desire to get that same kind of a melon.

Langston-Pendley

Wednesday just as the last rays of the King of day bid adieu to this old world, for a few hours, Mr. Glen Langston and Miss Eva Mae Penley drove up to the residence of Minister J. H. Shepard and, after producing the necessary papers, that gentleman spoke the words that made them husband and wife.

These are worthy Portales young people.

Lester Bayless and Mr. Smith, two employees of the Santa Fe system, came down Monday from Clovis to inspect lines of the Irrigation company crossing the road at the power plant. Upon investigation they found that the lines were four feet low according to regulations and that the lines will have to be raised.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed S. Mundy and little daughter, Elizabeth, left Monday for a months visit with friends and relatives at Rosnoke, Virginia. Mrs. Stowell of Elida is keeping house for the other Mundy children during the absence of their parents.

Baseball Tournament

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 17.—No state fair in New Mexico would be complete without one of those baseball tournaments which have made the city talked of by professional players and ball fans the country over for years past, and the coming one is not to be an exception to the rule. Baseball at this fair will be of the best quality in the country.

Two thousand dollars has been offered in prize money and for the expenses of holding the tournament and this in itself is enough to bring many teams. Add to this that the event of victory will add many and rich laurels to the victor and the assurance of a fine tournament is complete.

Entries have been received from many state cities, the event being open to all Arizona and New Mexico towns, with the addition of Trinidad, Colo., and El Paso, Tex. The "Copper League," whose playing has long been a sensation in El Paso and the southern part of the state, is entered in a body. These teams will afford some startling ball and will prove hard contenders for the first money. Ample second and third prizes will console those nosed out, while fourth money is more than enough to make it worth while to compete.

Letter From Texico

Texico, N. M., Sept. 8, 1913.
Mr. J. P. Deen,
President Commercial Club,
Portales, New Mexico.

Dear Sir:—
We wish to express our thanks to you for the crate of splendid cantaloupes which we received with your compliments a few days ago. We assure you the said cantaloupes were very much enjoyed, they being exceptionally and of superior quality. We predict for Portales a world wide reputation for the production of this much favored melon.

Very truly yours,
Craig-Hunter Land Co.

The above letter speaks for itself. It shows that the Portales cantaloupes make friends for the Portales Valley wherever they go. We would remind the Craig-Hunter Land Company and the world in general that cantaloupes are only one of the many big moneyed crops of this valley. There are many more just as "bewitching." Come to the Portales Valley.

Better Fair Than Ever

Albuquerque, Sept. 17.—Farmers, ranchers, stock raisers and truck growers have been busy the last few days eagerly examining the new premium lists issued by the New Mexico state fair, whose annual exposition is to be held here next month. The lists offer a bounteous supply of premiums, including everything from thoroughbred stock, pumpkins and field crops of all sorts to Navajo weaving and pottery.

Owing to the fact that the fair has more money available this year than at any time in the past, attractions and premiums are better than ever before.

There are a great quantity of individual awards, both cash and special prizes, and a number of substantial county or community prizes. The latter are attracting a lot of attention among the big growers and county boosters over the state and a host of splendid county exhibits are apt to result therefrom.

Premium lists may be secured by addressing the manager of the State Fair, Albuquerque, New Mexico. The same applies to racing programs.

Messrs. Maxwel, Fred and Charley Rogers were business visitors in the city Monday and Tuesday.

Some Fruit

Much has been said of late about Portales Valley cantaloupes, Portales Valley sweet potatoes and Portales Valley alfalfa, but little has been said about Portales Valley fruit. The first three are big paying crops but the last is the biggest of them all.

We think that every man who is growing fruit in this valley will agree with us in that statement. This is destined to become, and that quite soon, one of the real fruit producing sections of the country. The climate, soil and sunshine here is conducive to the growing of fruit in abundance and with a flavor second to none.

These are facts that can be backed up with unquestioned evidence. We will produce a bit of it just here. Saturday Mr. W. W. Hensley, one of the substantial farmers of the Delphos community was in our office and gave us the following "fruit" facts: "I have one and a fourth acres set to fruit, and from this I have sold $120 worth of grapes, $80 worth of peaches and 170 gallons of wine at $1.50 per gallon." Now all this is in addition to the fruit used by the Hensleys at home. This has been ample and abundant.

Miss Ethel Crawford, daughter of our fellow townsman, J. B. Crawford, who has been teaching in the rural schools of the county for the past three or four years has been assigned a position in the schools of the city. Miss Crawford is thoroughly qualified and will no doubt strengthen the teaching faculty.

Richard Evans of Nobe was a business visitor in the city Monday.

We have a new supply of dishes.—The Racket.

The County Fair

The Roosevelt County Fair will be held the second and third of October. This will give plenty of time for the exhibits to be placed at the state fair at Albuquerque. Committees have been appointed to have charge of the various departments, as follows:—Agriculture, Horticulture, Live Stock and Arts. Every endeavor possible will be made to make this the grandest fair of the county. Every citizen of the county should aid in this progressive move. x x x

Letter to Captain Molinari

Pinos Altos, N. Mex.,
August 20, 1913.

Dear Captain Molinari:

It may seem unkind for me to offer the criticisms, expressed or implied, which this letter contains, in view of the fact that I have personal knowledge of the splendid effort made by the members of Company M, at the cost of the sacrifice of much comfort, the repression of their personal feelings, and the sufferance of considerable unpleasantness and even mortification, to perform fully and faithfully their duties as soldiers, and to conform themselves to the unaccustomed conditions surrounding them in camp, but it is largely because they showed this uncomplaining, faithful devotion to duty that I am doing so, believing that a greater part of them belong to a class, the members of which can accept honest, unmalicious criticism and profit by it, even though it should hurt.

The very first thing which a man must learn in preparation for becoming a real soldier—the kind that counts—is, that no matter what he may have been before, no matter what he may be at other times, the moment he puts on Uncle Sam's uniform he is a soldier—and nothing more. He may be a good soldier or a bad one, an efficient one or a worthless one, a faithful one or a careless one, a loyal one or a traitorous one, one who stands out above his fellows or simply one of the mass, but he is only, and he should be altogether, a soldier, and he should concentrate all his energy and his ability, all his knowledge and his skill, all his pride and his ambition upon the faithful, honest performance of his duties as such, and a manly conformance to the regulations and the customs which govern the conduct of the grade to which he belongs.

In doing this he need not—must not, let go his self respect, suppress his individuality, surrender his dignity of manhood, nor sacrifice his independence as an American citizen; he need not—should not, cease to make full use of his natural intelligence, his accumulated experience and his energy, native and acquired, nor to find full scope for the exercise of his noblesse, his genius and his ambition. He should simply hold these subservient to the good of the service, the weal of his country and the honor of the flag.

To men who by reason of birth, or because of the possession of exceptional ability, or as the result of the exercise of unusual industry are deemed by their fellows worthy to stand on a plain somewhat above that of the common mass, and who have been accustomed to receive the marks of respect and honor which men accord to those whom they look up to, and to exercise the power and authority, and to enjoy the privileges which are conceded to such, it is difficult to gracefully assume the apparently humble position of the enlisted man. To many it seems impossible, but to the true, loyal, sensible, red-blooded lover of his country it is never quite so, and the ability to do so marks the true man in contradistinction to the counterfeit presentment.

To be obliged to treat as equals or as superiors those to whom in civil life he would scarcely be expected to grant recognition, and to perform for them, or at their command, humble and even menial service cannot fail to be to the man of established position, distasteful, and it may become humiliating if not accepted in the right spirit—the spirit of noblesse oblige in its widest sense—the spirit which has its most terse and striking expression in the motto of the Prince of Wales, "Ich dien"—the spirit which consecrates the vilest and most disgusting service when performed in the line of duty, and enables a man while performing it to still maintain his own self-respect and to command the respect of others. It requires the greatest strength of character and the utmost self-control to continually and consistently maintain this equipoise and exhibit this spirit, but it can be done, and is continually being done by men in the ranks as well as elsewhere, and those who do so deserve and receive the most sincere respect from those with whom they are brought in contact, no matter what the position in which they may be placed.

There are persons who find it easy to submit to the domination and the dictation of those who are their superiors, either in authority, in ability or in aggressiveness, and to become puppets in their hands. These are things, not men. There are those who submit to authority only under pressure of force majeure and yet after submission perform the tasks assigned to them with a certain amount of faithfulness and efficiency. These are animals, pure and simple. There are others who never submit, but who, under active compulsion, perform under protest such duties as they cannot avoid. These are savages. None of these three classes ever become soldiers in the true sense of the term. But there is another class, thank God in America a comparatively large one, the members of which, without surrendering their independence, are capable, when impelled by a sense of duty, of voluntarily submitting themselves to proper authority, and of performing cheerfully and well the duties belonging to any position to which they may be assigned. These are men, and when fully animated and controlled by the divinity of humanity they are godlike men, and the dominating factors in the world's activities.

It seems to me that Company M is largely composed of men of this class, potentially soldiers of the very highest class, but actually not soldiers at all, and before they can become soldiers they must subject themselves to a rigid course of self-training, training which will tend to eradicate old prejudices and to create new standards for judging their fellow men and which will aid them to gain new conceptions of the dignity of service and to acquire new views as to what constitutes real worth and if they fail to catch the true spirit of the soldier which includes all these things and to rid themselves of the obstacles which custom and convention and personal pride will put in their way, and to lend themselves unreservedly to the discipline of the service, they are also potentially the most absolute and pitiable of failures, failures in the face of a possible splendid success.

"But" you may say, "you are an officer and do not know the mortifying experiences which fall to the lot of the private." But I do. I have served in every grade below that which I now hold, in almost every branch of every department, and with all classes of men from the gutter-snipe, the ex-convict and the street arab upward. I have served many more years as a private than as an officer, having been for twenty-three years in the ranks, during periods when much less care was shown in the selection of recruits and when the private soldier was treated than at present. Twice, after having been obliged by my physical condition to quit the service I have gone back from the rank to which I had worked my way and started again at the bottom. I have served with, shared tent and blanket with, treated as comrades and felt toward as comrades, men who at home were my subordinates in business, those to whom I dictated in the affairs of life, and those who, outside the service, did not expect of me social recognition. I have taken orders from and have loyally served under and loyally obeyed and have acted as orderly and striker to a man who at home was a servant in my household, and I lost none of his respect, of my own self-respect or of the respect of others by doing it. I am not propounding mere impractical theories. Every assertion which I make is based on personal experience and every item of the line of conduct which I propose I have put into practice myself and know that others can do as well.

It must not be thought that the good qualities of a private soldier or of a subordinate officer are habitually overlooked by his superiors. Many an officer has recognized and admitted to himself and to others the ability and the nobility of a subordinate and his equality or his superiority in birth and breeding, in intelligence and education or in higher aims and lofty ideals, when for disciplinary reasons he dare not give open evidence of such recognition. If the soldier has these qualities and adds to them loyal, honest, cheerful service he will always gain recognition and will find many who are willing to promote his advancement. But it must not be forgotten that all cannot be in authority, that we need men of character and ability just as much in the ranks as in the higher grades and it is in loyal service that the honor lies, the humblest private may deserve, aye and gain, more honor than the Major General.

With the kindest feelings toward every member of Company M, and the best wishes for his success and that of the company as a whole, I am

Very truly,
H. Milliken.
Surgeon Major N.G.N.M.

Quips on the Suffragettes

Recently an advertising agency offered cash prizes for the best epigrammatic definitions of a suffragette. Here are some of the results:

A suffragette is a woman who thinks she has been devoted long enough.

Not satisfied with the last word, she also wants the first. She is the corset needed to reduce the government waste.

She is a woman who needs the "poll" for her vaulting ambition.

A suffragette is a string of beauty and a jawer forever.

A woman who would rather break windows than clean them.

A woman whose troubles are certainly not "little one."

One who spends more time airing her views than viewing her heirs.

A woman who will spare no panes to get her rights.

A woman who would rather rock the country than rock the cradle.

A female creature, queer and quaint.

Who longs to be just what she ain't.

The hen that would cackle and never set.

Is the woman known as a suffragette.

We can't efface, we can't forget her.

We love her still—the stiller the better.—Washington Post.

State College Opening

State College, Sep. 12.

The New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts is beginning its twenty-fourth year with a good opening attendance, two hundred four students being registered during the first week and many more known to be coming.

The opening assembly of students occurred on Tuesday and President George E. Ladd made his first talk to the student body. He gave a brief outline of his comprehensive plans for the up-building of the State college and pointed out that an unnecessarily large number of the young people of New Mexico went to eastern institutions for college training which could be obtained in the state at a smaller cost and of equal value. The meeting was then turned over to the students for election of officers. Kenneth B. Ogilvie of Roswell, was elected president of the student body and Richard H. Buvens of Mesilla Park, yell leader. The following were elected as officers for the student athletic association for the year: J. Guy Hamilton of Santa Rosa, president; Uil Lane of Las Cruces, vice president; Norfleet Bone, treasurer; Robert Magatagan of Dexter, member-at-large; and Edward Wharton of Tularosa, secretary.

Among the late arrivals at the college are Guillermo Morales and Alfredo Romero, two young men who came all the way from Caracas, Venezuela, to take agricultural courses.

GONE UP IN SMOKE

One-half of your coal—and it did you no good. Hard luck that. But there is a way to fix it. Here's how:

That stove of yours has seen its best days. You need a new one. You know it—but you have let things drift along. Meanwhile, you have been losing HALF of every hod of coal you have put in it. Of course, you knew it, but you did not think of it that way. You know that half of every lump is gas. Fail to burn that gas and it is like throwing into the ditch half of every dollar you spend in coal. Rather extravagant? Yes? The ordinary stove made of a lot of separate castings leaks air. They leak air at the wrong place. Places you can not control. RESULT—the best part of your coal—the 14,000 cubic feet of common illuminating gas that is in the average ton of $3.00 soft coal—goes up the flue unburned. You have lost it. It has gone up in smoke. Save that gas—mix it properly with air and you have the better kind of a blue flame. But there is only one way to do this—Buy the only heater that is made tight—holds tight—stays tight.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Heater

It leaks no air. This is the heater that mixes the gas and air and gives you all the heat in the coal. This is the heater that burns any kind of coal and makes a ton of $3.00 soft coal do the work of $8.00 hard coal in a high priced base burner. This is the heater that is a joy and comfort to the housewife. It makes no dirt or smoke in the house. This is the heater that saves labor—fix it in the morning and at night and FORGET IT THE REST OF THE TIME. This is the heater that gives a steady, constant heat from soft coal or lignite. The Herald is a booster for the county fair—are you?

From the standpoint of personal ambition, Huerta is playing an errorless political game.

The Department of the Interior has recently announced an amendment of the homestead regulations, providing that entrymen may be permitted to reduce the amount of land to be cultivated. This provision is permitted only where the land is not of the best for cultivation and good for grazing purposes. Any personal misfortune or disabilities after entry and actual settlement will be deemed sufficient cause to grant the reductions.

The merchant has one of the highest and most useful callings. He is a builder and educator as well as a dealer. As a rule he does more to promote the welfare of the community and to support its public institutions than any other class of citizens. Through the columns of the press the merchant teaches us to live economically and keeps us informed of the progress of modern business and science in providing means for our care and comfort. The merchant is an indispensable business educator and he diligently studies our needs.—Lakewood Progress.

What can equal a mother's love for the boy? You boys have grown up from tender babies under a mother's watchful care. Ah, boys, how many heartaches do you cause that dear old mother! Do you realize the world of affection in a mother's heart? What joy can you have in her sorrow? What pleasure in her pain? Stop, my lad, and think of your mother's heart. You have it in your power to make it glad, or make it sad. Let your heart warm to hers as it did when a babe in her arms. Kindly stroke the gray hairs on her head and assure her that in your heart there is seated a deep and lasting love and reverence for her.—Ex.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeds pass him over this way that we may have one look at his mortal remains ere he vanishes away for surely this earth cannot be his abiding place. Now we do not infer that one should be going through this world trying to find beams to knock and thump his head against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing and crowding all who differ from him. That, again, is another extreme. Other people have their opinions, so have you. Don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you more for turning your coat every day, to match the color of theirs.

When congress can find time to do something which is really necessary and important, it might well look into our federal pure food and drug act. At the present moment it is actually a protection for crime and a bulwark for fraud against the public. Take for example the announcements on the labels so common upon grocers' shelves, "Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act." It is the natural assumption that the government is behind it and that the contents of the package is safe and pure. It means nothing of the kind—the government has nothing to do with the cover, the contents or the label. It simply means that the grocer has purchased it with the manufacturers guaranty that it is all right, and that if it is found to be a fraud, the maker, not the grocer, will stand the consequences. For some reason congress was very reluctant to pass the law in the first place and made it so weak that it is in danger of doing more harm than good. It ought to be strengthened.

Fate Dealt New York a Blow

Fate dealt New York, a blow when death suddenly removed Mayor Gaynor from the sphere of life. It was odd that he should have been spared to complete his term of office so creditably; to have fully earned the reward of faithful service and, taken all in all, a remarkable devotion to the public welfare, only to be taken off when he was most needed. Regardless of his political difference of opinion, he accomplished one great result. He ignored the demands of Tammany, a ring of political despots unequalled in history. Tammany served a political death warrant on the fearless mayor, and the people responded mightily by tendering Gaynor a renomination. His mature judgment, his long experience and his absolute independence made him the first choice as his own successor.

Mayor Gaynor's death, fortunately, does not leave the people of New York without another choice. The election of John Purroy Mitchell, the fusion candidate, is now almost certain. Mr. Mitchell, who is now under thirty-five years of age, has made a notable record for himself as a foe of Tammany Hall. His election as mayor will mean much to New York as well as to the nation at large. For, let it be remembered that Tammany's henchmen al but swayed the last Democratic convention. Mayor Gaynor's death is the indirect result of Tammany tactics. He is the victim of their inexorable rules: "Deliver or be Delivered." It is the black hand of our political system and its continuance in power would mean the fulfillment of Garfield's ominous death-bed prophecy, "Stangulatus Republicae."

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE

THE GOLDEN CALF.
Exodus 32:15-20, 30-35—Sept. 21.
"Little children, keep yourselves from idols."—1 John 5:21.

THE Israelites experienced a severe trial of faith and obedience soon after entering into covenant relationship with God. In this trial, they failed utterly. The Covenant was broken. However, after punishing them, God graciously renewed the Covenant. The circumstances of this testing are part of this lesson. After making the Covenant, Moses, by Divine direction, went up into Mt. Sinai, taking Joshua with him. He was gone forty days. His prolonged absence gave room for the cultivation of faith, patience, trust. The Israelites remembered the trying experiences through which they had passed. The Egyptians were behind them; the Amalekites might renew their attack. What would they do without Moses, whose up-held hands brought them God's favor and victory?

Here worldly wisdom came in. Aaron was perplexed as to how some Christians use the cross to keep the people crucified to assist faith, from utter discouragement. Apparently they were unable to trust the God whom they could not see. The leaders took counsel together and determined to make a representative of Jehovah—an image which the people could use as an instrument of worship. We are not to suppose that the Israelites recognized the golden calf as a symbol, just as the heathen use their idols as representations of their gods, and as some Christians use the crucifix—not to worship, but to assist faith and hold attention.

Today's lesson seems clearly to indicate that God was greatly displeased with their symbolic representation of Himself. One of His commands had been, "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image," to bow down before it and worship it as a symbol. Making the Golden Calf. We are not to suppose that the calf was made of solid metal. Probably it was made of either clay or wood, and then covered with molten gold, which in turn was graven or tooled. Having made the idol, the people rejoiced in it as an evidence of God in their midst, and gave themselves up to a season of feasting and dancing. After forty days, Moses came down from the mount with the tables of the Law. He heard the people shouting, and then beheld them worshipping the golden calf. Moses was justly angry; for he was the mediator between God and Israel—the representative of both, charged by God with the responsibility of that nation, and he realized that a serious crime against the Covenant had been committed. The tables of the Law into fragments, indicating that the Covenant had been broken. Armed with Divine authority, he fell upon the people, a just penalty for their rapid retrogression into sin. Then he went to God in prayer, and besought that, if the penalty of this sin was the casting off of Israel, he might himself be blotted out instead.

Such patriotism as Moses here evinced has surely not often been equaled—loyalty both to Israel, as representative and mediator, and also to God.

"Keep Yourselves From Idols." Let us apply the lesson to Spiritual Israel. After the Christian has left the world, passed the bitter experiences of Marah, had manifestations of God's favor, partaken of the Bread from Heaven, and entered into full covenant relationship with God—there comes a time when he must walk by faith, not by sight. If he fails to learn this lesson, as did the typical Israelites, it will be a serious matter.

This making of images which divert and absorb our worship of God is one of Spiritual Israel's greatest tests. The golden calf which some set up is business, to which they sacrifice both time and energy. The love of money and of things which money can procure leads into idolatry, and thereby breaks our covenant.

Others idolize the opposite sex, giving all they possess for its favor and fellowship. They make the great mistake of worshipping the creature more than the Creator, as the Apostle explains in the book of Romans. Still another idol is sectarianism, against which St. Paul warned the Church. (1 Corinthians 3:3-5) The same principle we may apply today. If one says, I am of Calvin, Luther, Wesley, are these not evidences of carnality? Is there not serious danger of worshipping the human institutions bearing these names, and thus of having something come between the Christian and his God?

Christendom's creeds are Christian traditions respecting the Truth, God's purpose evidently was that His people should have no creed but the Bible as a whole. They were to search the Scriptures daily, to ascertain God's teachings, and thus to grow in grace and knowledge. Christians should destroy their creeds, which misrepresent God's Character and Plan.

Beef Will Go Higher

The statement attributed to John T. Russell, president of the United Master Butchers' Association of America, to the effect that meat would be beyond the reach of the poor within five years is not exaggerated. While the statement seems to be sensational on its face the situation predicted by Mr. Russell is practically here now. The prices of meat are and have been extremely high, and there is absolutely nothing in future prospects to indicate any lowering in this direction. As a matter of fact, the greatest financier of to-day is the laboring man with a large family who has to make both ends meet on a meager income. Even the middle classes and the rich are feeling the stress of high food products, but they can practice economies in other directions and still keep the table fully supplied with the poor, however, where the matter of food is the first item of expenditure, the situation is really serious. They have almost reached the point in European nations where meat is a luxury.

We will have to make use of every particle of meat food the country can supply. We have been extremely profligate in our consumption of meats because there has always been up to now a more than abundant supply. With the cheapest and best meat the world has ever seen it has heretofore been necessary for our people to practice economy in its consumption.

Even our laboring classes have been in the habit of eating the better cut, and for years it was the practice to send the cheaper to Europe.

This is all changed owing to the shortage of the supply which is rapidly becoming shorter. The reasons for these conditions are well known to the students of the situation, but not to the general public. We have cut up our big cattle ranges into homesteads and livestock is not being grown on these small farms to any extent which would make up for the loss of the ranges. They are not really being worked for agricultural purposes at all to the extent they should be. Our smaller taking to the raising of other products than livestock and even high prices do not seem to tempt them to increase the supply of meat animals. We are killing heifer calves which should be allowed to grow and become productive. We are killing calves at an early age which should be allowed to grow at least a reasonable time and thereby increase the supply of veal. Government condemnations of animals and the cost of complying with the governments requirements on sanitary conditions are also factors in the increased cost to the public and altogether Mr. Russell is not far wrong when he says that meat will be out of reach of the people within a comparatively short time.—National Provisioner.

Gaynors Body on Vessel

The body of the late mayor of New York, William J. Gaynor, was put on board the steamer Lusitania last Saturday after receiving honors at Liverpool, London, seldom paid any except England most illustrious dead.

The Lusitania sailed last Friday and is due in New York tomorrow. In deference to the feelings of the passengers on the ship, which was crowded, the body was removed aboard early in the morning after a brief funeral service at the Liverpool town hall.

All night the body of the late mayor lay in state guarded by details of police. Cunard officials received the coffin on board the Lusitania from a White Star tender, which carried it from the landing stage to the vessel anchored in the stream. Representatives of the lord mayor and several councilmen were in attendance.

Acting under the instructions of the lord mayor, the port authorities extended every possible courtesy. The body was removed without the usual examination and was placed in a mortuary chapel aboard the ship. Rufus Gaynor, the mayor's son, accompanied by American Council Horace Lee Washington, boarded the Lusitania at five o'clock and was received by Capt. Charles and City Councilman Maxwell, to whom he expressed his deep gratitude for the high honors which Liverpool had paid his fathers memory.

On the tender the oak coffin, enclosed in a plain dial box, was covered with the American flag and almost buried in flowers. The official American ensign of the Lusitania was draped over the coffin when it was placed in the chapel.

Until the Lusitania went alongside the landing stage at one o'clock all flags on the ship were at half mast. When the ship reaches New York harbor the American flag will be hoisted at half mast at the forepeak while the crew stands at attention. Eight uniformed quartermasters will carry the body ashore where it will be received by the civic authorities.

Officials, clergy and citizens joined in their efforts to pay respect to the dead executive of New York City. As the Lusitania swung down stream the flags on all ships were dipped to half mast and other liners saluted with hoarse blast from their sirens.

Raising Good Stock

It appears that the fact that good blood is necessary to produce high class draft horses is not appreciated by the majority of farmers. Location, climate, feeds and accidents and many other influences are blamed by unsuccessful draft horse breeders for the mediocrity of their colts, when in reality the trouble is more often pure stinginess. A few farmers waste poor colts by giving them poor care, but a great many more waste good care on colts of poor breeding. There are many farmers who have the ability and skill to handle high class drafters who are afraid to try. The man who takes pride in his farm work teams, how to keep them in good vigorous condition ought to take his bank roll and acquire a few well bred mares and raise a few colts to sell every year. What good blood has done for others it will do for you. The very best draft colts are reared by farmers who keep a few well bred mares and do the work on their farms and depend upon the sale of young horses for a substantial increase to their bank account each year. If one makes good money in draft horse breeding he must have good blood.

The Racket sells it for less.

Forest Notes

Two million trees will be planted on the national forests in Utah, Nevada, and southern Idaho during 1914.

Makers of small hickory handles for hammers, chisels, and the like, are now trying to use the waste from mills which make hickory spokes and pick and ax handles.

There is much waste in getting out the flawless white oak necessary for tight barrel staves.

The forest service is trying to get the manufacturers of parquetry flooring to use some of this waste.

The U. S. consul at Aberdeen, Scotland, think that American manufacturers may have to compete in furnishing stave for fish barrels. There has been a recent rise in the price of spruce and fir staves from Sweden and Scotland.

Four new state forests have recently been added to those in Hawaii, making 27 in all, with an

Spinach

Spinach is an annual plant grown for its leaves, which makes excellent spring and early greens. It is one of the frost-hardy vegetables, and for that reason it will stand considerable cold weather without being materially injured. In cold climates it may be started in cold-frames or hot beds, or very early in the spring outdoors; but in mild sections such as most southern New Mexico valleys, it can be started in the fall in the field, before it gets too cold to prevent proper germination of the seed. By planting the seed about the last of September or first of October, it will germinate well and the plants will become pretty strong before the cold weather sets in. During the cold months the tops will not make any appreciable growth, but the roots seem to develop considerably. As soon as the warm early spring spells set in the tops begin to grow rapidly, and they become large enough to ship by March or April. Soon after the warm weather starts, many of the plants send out their seed stalks.

The seed can be sown in hills or drills, but the latter way is preferable. Spinach growers usually figure on one ounce of seed for 100 feet of drill. Under irrigation this crop may be grown on ridges or on level plats. Past experience shows that plants on ridges, particularly those on the south side, grow the faster and are ready for market earlier than those on the level. The rows may be from two to three feet apart. If planted on ridges, the seed may be drilled on or both sides of the ridge. Immediately after the seed is drilled, it should be irrigated, to produce germination. The frequency of the subsequent irrigations will depend upon the water holding capacity of the soil and whether the winter is dry or wet. Whatever the conditions, the plants should be kept moist during the winter.

The nature of the growth of the plant is such that it should have plenty of quickly available plant food; the plant should make a rapid and continuous growth in the early spring. For this reason, spinach should be drilled on good strong soil. If the soil is not naturally rich, it should be manured or fertilized.

There are number of varieties which are grown, but the prickly seeded or winter spinach is the one that is recommended by the spinach growers for fall and winter planting.

A Sucker A Minute

Old man Barnum must have been pretty nearly right when he said a sucker was born every minute. But it does seem that by the time they reach man's estate they would learn to avoid the tricks and schemes of swindlers that were old in Barnum's time. For more than half a century the newspapers have exposed the schemes of gold-brick sellers, of fake race promoters, of land schemers who put their own and their victims money in a box, and give the victim the key to hold, of the stranger with a bill too large to be changed easily of the generous new acquaintance who can get the job hunter a good position if he will be put up for a uniform or for tools or something—and a long list of swindling schemes. In spite of all this publicity men continue to give away their money to swindlers. And not all of the victims are unsophisticated countrymen. Some of them are successful business men, and only recently a Texas banker put $5,000 in a box and let a stranger hold it for a few minutes. Another successful business man attended a fake prize fight and in the confusion following a false cry of man killed, became separated from an insinuating stranger who had $5,000 of his money. A few days ago a college student in Fort Worth turned over his earnings to a stranger who promised him a job, and three days later another young man gave $20 to a man he had known twenty minutes to buy a uniform to enable him to take a job the stranger said he had procured for him.

We reluctantly confess that there are still a few men who don't read newspapers.—Fort Worth Record.

Dry Farming a Big Factor

Dr. MacDonald, of the department of agriculture of the South African union, says in a recent report: "We in South Africa have grown a rainless wheat. We have grown wheat without a single drop of rain falling upon it from seed time until harvest."

In other words, "We in South Africa" have rediscovered the knowledge of the ancients, and have begun to learn all over again the trick of storing the rainfall in the soil from one year to another, making of the earth a natural reservoir, and growing crops with plenty of water instead of depending on the very uncertain and irregular, if not wholly deficient rainfall.

The variety of wheat used in South Africa was imported from the dry belt of Italy. It belongs to the Durum group, and is called Apulia. The method is the well known "dry farming" system that has been used in the United States for the last twenty years with a degree of success depending entirely upon the degree of intelligence and industry with which it has been applied.

The ground is plowed deeply. Then it is constantly cultivated so as to form a mulch of dust on the surface, which permits the rain to seep in but resists evaporation by breaking the continuity of the capillary channels. A crop is planted the second year. Thereafter, in South Africa, the annual rainfall is conserved by cultivation, and the wheat grows and matures each year upon the stored waters of the previous season.

In the United States, the preferred practice is to use the land only once in two years. A farm is divided into tracts and the various subdivisions are farmed every two years, the alternate years of each tract being employed in storing.

This system is a proved success wherever the annual rainfall is as much as 20 inches. Some crops are grown successfully when the annual rainfall is as low as 15 or 10 inches. If the average be below that, there is considerable risk of loss, because it takes the most careful, constant and intelligent application of the cultivation principle to hold the water in the soil in sufficient quantity to insure crops in the years that are below the average rainfall.

GOOD telephone service depends largely upon mutual courtesy. The telephone is more useful to those who talk as if face to face, for civility removes difficulties and facilitates the promptest possible connection.

As is other intercourse, it often happens that two or more people wish to talk with the same person at the same time. Without courtesy confusion is inevitable, and the confusion is greater when the people cannot see each other.

The operators must be patient and polite under all circumstances, but they will do better work if they meet patience and politeness on the part of the telephone users.

The Bell Telephone Service enters intimately into the social and business life of each individual. The best results come through the practice of mutual courtesy prelude to the sensational stunt of dropping Irving.

For the first few times the act was put on in California, the jump was not announced in the advertising, but Irving made the tumble so the crowds would think that he was falling. Hysterical women and weak-hearted men felt the effect of the stunt in such a manner that the Aero club of America and the fair associations, combined to stop the unheralded jump. Even now, with the widely advertised, the effect on the audience is sensational. Many seem unable to believe the form they see shooting through space at two miles a minute speed will be saved by the opening of the "chute." And oftentimes the parachutes do not open.

Francis and Irving are the only men in the world who seem able to get away with the act. Many others have tried, six have been killed and the rest never attempted it the second time.

Francis is twenty-four years old, while Irving is three years older. "Old enough to know better," is the way some people put it.

Both Francis and Irving are so dexterous in their judgment that Irving always lands about where Francis plans for him to settle.

MRS. H. F. JONES HOSTESS

On Thursday afternoon of last week, Mrs. Jones gave a very delightful party. Rook was played and the evening was so much enjoyed, due to Mrs. Jones' ability as a hostess, that it was growing very late, indeed, when the guests took their departure.

Misses Polly Monroe and Lucy Culberson assisted the hostess in serving delicious sherbet and cake. Those present were: Mesdames Sledge, Trammell, Lindsey, Hardy, Seay, Wylie, Monroe, James Monroe, Ed Hall, James Hall, Milton Brown, jr., Williamson, Patterson, Kelsey, Mears, McManaway, Harris, Pucket, Culberson, Pew and Misses Bryant and Patterson.

A SURPRISE

On Tuesday evening about twenty members of the Methodist church gathered together a bounteous repast and proceeded to the home of their pastor, Rev. Seba Kirkpatrick, where they spent a very delightful evening. This was quite a surprise to the host and hostess as they had not been previously advised that 'company' was coming. Mrs. S. F. Culberson made one of her bright and witty talks, and Rev. Kirkpatrick responded with some well chosen remarks. The evening was immensely enjoyed by all.

I. F. C's.

Mrs. Tom Amos was the genial hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of the T. F. C. club. After several hours of sewing and pleasant conversation a delicious salad course was served.
