ROOSEVELT CO. AT THE BIG FAIR

With Very Little Attention to Exhibit This County Pulls Down Several Blue Ribbons At Territorial Fair.

The Herald last week casually mentioned the departure of Coe Howard and wife for Albuquerque where they went to place on exhibit the meagre collection of products from Roosevelt county at the New Mexico Fair & Resources Exposition which opened in the Duke City Oct. 3, and deplored the fact that little or no attention had been paid to the matter of an exhibit from this county outside of Mr. Howard, some of his co-workers in the immigration business and a few patriotic farmers who had been apprised of the fact that we were really to make an attempt at an exhibit. But it now appears that though the event that Roosevelt county made some preparation to be at the fair with some of the fruits of her soil was not heralded abroad over the limits of her boundaries by the blare of trumpets and other tokens of great and glorious purposes, yet when it comes to the little matter of pulling down blue ribbons at a state fair, the County of Roosevelt is not to be reckoned least by any means. As a matter of fact, this recognition comes as a matter of no little surprise to many of our citizens, in view of the fact that little attention was given to getting "the biggest stalk in the hill" in the selection of the specimens which should bear the critical inspection of the sordid judges as well as the thousands of spectators who were in attendance at the fair, and the further fact that Roosevelt county won these distinctions with her so-called dry farming products in competition with products which had been grown under irrigation and the most intensive system of cultivation. The Herald is informed that this is a fact, there being no separate classification for the crops which had been grown by the two different methods, though the next annual fair will provide for this distinction and will award premiums accordingly. It may be observed right here that if Roosevelt county wins blue ribbons for the products of her soil without irrigation, what indeed may be expected of her when a great acreage of her virgin soil is made to respond to the magic touch of the modern irrigationists! But this is another story, which will no doubt be told for the readers of the Herald one year hence.

For the reasons mentioned above this county, while not securing the distinction of being the first in the lists for a general exhibit, yet come up the line to third place in this classification and secured blue ribbons on such entries as watermelons, millet, sweet potatoes and a general grain exhibit, and the red ribbon, or second ward for kaffir corn and onions. Besides getting the ribbons for the display the exhibit pulled down $50.00 in cash in premiums and $9,999 worth of advertising to the county, which latter will be collected not many years hence.

But the farmer was not the only class in Roosevelt county which collected its toll of distinction, for some of the ladies sent articles of that class of feminine handiwork which man is pleased to call "fads and fancies" and received many evidences of real merit. As in the agricultural exhibit little thought was given to a collection for an art exhibit from this county, there being only a short time in which to make the arrangements.

A blue ribbon was attached to an embroidery Lunch Cloth, the property of Mrs. Will Faggard. First place was awarded Mrs. W. H. McDonald for a handsome Rose Center-piece.

Another hand embroidered center piece entered by Mrs. Joe Howard also received the first in its class.

The coveted emblem of distinction was attached to a beautiful baby carriage Afghan entered by Mrs. Jas. N. Bolard.

Mrs. Coe Howard presented a beautiful hand embroidered linen and lace center piece and received second place in this class. The cash award to this display by the ladies brought the same cash consideration as that of the agricultural exhibit.

These prize winners will be on display Friday and Saturday in the show window of the Miller & Luskart Co. The citizens of the town will find pleasure in viewing this collection of the ladies, all of which, except the baby carriage afghan of Mrs. Bolard, will be shown during these two days. The ladies do this by special request of friends.

THE CLOVIS PRESS MEET.

Pecos Valley Editorial Association Have Memorable Session at the Queen City of the Plains.

Members of the Pecos Valley Editorial Association, which comprises all of the papers east of the mountains, were last Friday and Saturday shown the wonderful progress and metropolitanism of the seat of Curry county. They were deeply impressed, without exception. It is a little less than marvelous that in less than four years there should have sprung from the prairie a city of three thousand people, with dozens of handsome brick business blocks, miles on concrete walks, a modern municipal water, sewer and electric light system, a railroad shop system that is a wonder in itself, and many phases of city life that are seldom found in a city of less than ten thousand. After a close study of the town and its people, however, it was not so very wonderful after all. Such a public spirit as they have in Clovis would build a city anywhere in the world, let alone a place of such magnificent natural advantages.

This public spirit was manifest all of the time the editors were in town. A committee consisting of R. A. Baldwin, E. W. Reagan and J. F. Watson, representing the city and the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the incoming scribes, and constantly attended them, showing every courtesy that good taste and propriety could suggest.

The sessions of the association were held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, where Secretary R. A. Bayne took charge of the scribes. These rooms are beautifully furnished and furnished, being perhaps the finest east of the mountains.

According to program President J. M. Wood of Lakewood called the scribes to order at 2:30 Friday and after enrollment and the appointment of committees, papers were read as follows:

"Newspapers and the Law," a thoughtful discussion of the needs of the profession for an adequate libel law, of the attitude of the government toward the press, by James D. Whelan, editor of the Artesia Advocate.

"The Press and Public Confidence," by Hon. J. W. Mullane, Spanish editor of the Roswell Register-Tribune. Mr. Mullane discussed his subject both from the standpoint of a journalist and a legislator and his paper was distinctly worth while.

Friday evening came the big annual event of the association—the public meeting, and the club rooms were filled with perhaps the most representative gathering of business and professional men that ever honored a session of the association. Dr. Scott, president of the club, presided, and introduced Hon. W. D. McBebe, who delivered an address of welcome that came straight from the heart. Few men better appreciate the power of the press for good and what it has done for Eastern New Mexico, and having in his boyhood been a printer, his knowledge of the practical side was not altogether academic. President Wood, taking the chair, the response was assigned to Leroy P. Loomis, editor of the Texico Trumpet, who gracefully acknowledged the gratitude of the editors for the hospitality shown them, and introduced the principal speaker of the evening, Will Robinson, editor of the Roswell Register-Tribune. Mr. Robinson spoke for an hour, taking the broad questions of brotherhood as it appeals to the country editor, and his address was the best that he could produce. It is the annual custom to have such an address at the night meeting, which is open to all the public, and the speaker exerted himself to make the address enjoyable to the audience, in which were a number of ladies.

At the conclusion of the address the company were seated at the banquet table at the Harvey House, where a spread was served that far surpassed anything ever before tendered the editors, the service being faultless and the menu a dream, namely:

- Blue Point Cocktails
- Ripe Olives
- Radiishes
- Baked Hamlet, Anchovy Sauce
- Potatoes Duchesse
- Chicken Sauté with Mushrooms
- Roman Punch
- Tenderloin Steak, Bernaise
- Potatoes Hissale
- Tomatoes Tricorne
- Fresh Strawberry Sundae
- Assorted Cakes
- Roquefort Cheese, Toasted Crackers, Lemontasse
- Port
- Cigars
- Sherry

Mr. R. L. Bayne acted as toastmaster, and made a good one. All of the responses were short and bright, following the humorous introduction of the master, with the exception of the speech of Editor W. W. White of Hefferman, who responded to "The Army and Navy," a beautiful mingling of eloquence and patriotic thought.

When it came the turn of Editor Loomis he followed the usual custom, which calls for the reading of the annual resolutions, which were as follows:

Resolved, It has been the custom since press associations began to each time appoint a committee on resolutions. It is not our intention now to give any one an opportunity to say that we are not believers in precedent, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we feel proud of ourselves in having been chosen as the meeting place for the only newspaper town on this line of road. We want to assure you that we know what we were about when we made the selection, and that while we are here you need not be afraid of making it too wet to suit us. Most of us have not been thoroughly wet up for so long a time that nothing short of a universal deluge is going to jar us. That we send our greetings to the officers and members of the Southwestern Editorial Association soon to be in session at El Paso, and about them that if the walking were better and their session at some other town than El Paso, we might be there in a body. Ever last one of us would rather be in Clovis, anyhow, and as the oldest association in the southwest, we feel that they ought to have come here on their way to El Paso anyhow.

That we extend our condolence to Brother W. H. Mullane of the Carlbad Current, ex-secretary of the association, who is prevented from being here by a little trifle of a $19,999 libel suit, in which he is the defendant and the trial judge is Hon. W. H. Pope. We wish Brother Mullane to know that our sympathies are with him, but hope that this will be a lesson to him in regard to telling the truth—we believe in telling the truth, but in being almighty careful in picking out the truth.

That we demand at the hands of the next legislature a more just and equitable libel law. We want it fixed so that when we know that a man is a bore, thief and a rascal that we can have the privilege of saying so, without being required to prove it. His reputation is his own business. There are so many horse thieves in New Mexico that we feel that the freedom of speech, except in Santa Fe and Albuquerque, where nearly everybody is being open suspicion, the papers can say about what they please.

That we congratulate Secretary Arthur E. Curran, feeling that fat is fat or he would never leave his fat to go to Fort Sumner. We feel that the old land office ought to be at Clovis anyhow, and are ready and willing to help put it there, anticipating no trouble in getting on the blind side of the congressmen at the first election. We feel that Mr. Curran, one of the great country boosters of the plains country, deserves anything he wants whether it is nailed down or not, and forgive Bill Andrews for a lot of his other doings on account of this job. We feel that the land office will keep it up until we all have good federal jobs it will be all right with us. Every one of us is willing to give up the attitude of the weather bureau toward all of New Mexico, in which it is the just portion of rain. We need all there is coming to us. This drought joke has gone far enough. When it gets so that the jackrabbits have to carry canteens and children are starved to school who never want to stop joking. This is the best country on the face of the earth, and we mean to continue to grow and prosper whether the darned old rain comes or not, but we do not mean to have anybody else do that. The weather bureau should call off their dogs and restore the normal rainfall in this section.

That we extend our sincere thanks to the people of Clovis for the magnificent entertainment that has been extended to us, and freely confess that it is among the finest in the history of the association. As an indication that we appreciate it, just watch our smoke when we get back to our homes and typewriters. You people of Clovis, all right, and then some. All that you have said about this being the Queen City of the Plains goes. It is the game, also, also, high, low, jack and the game. The way in which you have built this wonderful city from the prairie in a few years affords an inspiration to all of us. Heretofore we had our private doubts about your get-up-and-get, but we doubt no more. You have shown us, and we are deeply grateful for it.

That we extend our sincere sympathy to Hon. J. W. Mullane of Roswell, who was prevented from attending our sessions by the result of a filarition with a broom-tail broncho. Mr. Mullane has been ever the friend of the newspapers. He helped to make Curry county. He has always been on the side of helpful progress and we are only sorry that the position was not reversed, and that he might have had a chance to kick the broncho first.

That we send our greetings to Brother T. J. Mabry, now in the discharge of his duties at the constitutional convention, and trust that he will be able to attain those strong ideas that he has advanced in advance, though a few of us did what we could to send the other fellow, Mr. Mabry is trusted and beloved by us all.

That we hope he will have it inserted in the constitution that a paid-up receipt subscription to the nearest newspaper will be an essential to suffrage, that any man who introduces a bill like that, fellow, introducing a clause to locate the capital of New Mexico at Clovis whenever it is moved from Santa Fe, and an article like this might happen to occur to him, we don't bar anything now.

That we extend our greetings to Tom

Gallagher, traffic manager and official white man of this division of the Santa Fe. It isn't his fault that we couldn't all have passes to come to this meeting, and we hope that he will stay on the job, and be friends with us long after the state corporation commission has made it possible for us to put the blocks to his house, and get a freight rate for Clovis and all other valley towns. That day is surely coming, for while we wait for the Santa Fe and the Harvey house at Clovis, we do not deny that there is a long scope of freight business. Eastern New Mexico owes much to the Santa Fe, and we will never forget it. The Santa Fe owes much to Eastern New Mexico—and we are not going to forget that either.

That we congratulate Clovis upon having such an alert and progressive Chamber of Commerce. They build cities around such clubs in this flyless west, and we trust and hope that when it shall be our good fortune to meet in Clovis again that every worth while man in town will be a member, and doing his part sure enough for the welfare of the better Clovis.

That in conclusion we wish again to thank the people of Clovis for their hospitality, which we feel has been extended to us as much as evidence of their appreciation. The editor of the Clovis Journal and the Clovis News, as on our behalf, in a great measure the future Clovis will depend upon the way in which her advantages are published to the world, and in this direction these newspapers must necessarily be the greatest factors. Remember this when their solicitors and newspaper men come around. Don't get the idea into your head that in giving them a small advertisement you are buying them. They will bring thousands of people to Clovis and after they get here it is up to you to do the rest. Seeing a liberal sprinkling of real estate offices, we are confident that will be a plenty. The newspapers are your best friends, particularly your home papers. Believe in them as they believe in you and Clovis. If you stay with your friends of appreciative fellow workers for the common good you will find in you to do the rest. Seeing the prairie freeze over, and every paper in the Pecos Valley Press association being almighty careful in picking out the truth.

Dr. Scott proved that a physician is capable of real humor by a bright little answer to "The Microbe of Christ," and the speech making was closed by Will Robinson with "Impressions of a Tenderfoot." At the request of the many delegates from the south, both sessions of Saturday were crowded into one, so that they could catch their train. The principal feature of the session was the address of the veteran J. E. Curran, who gave a graphic account of his life in a printer and newspaper man on the frontier. Many things have happened to this fine old man since he began setting type in the war times, and his quick sense of humor made the narrative pleasing in spite of its tragic points. After discussion of technical papers, the association proceeded to the annual election of officers.

President—G. V. Johnson of the Portales Times.
Vice-President—R. F. Mullane, of the Knowles News.
Secretary and Dean—Will Robinson, of the Roswell Register-Tribune.

Local Secretary to Help in Arrangements for Next Meeting—J. M. Wood, of Lakewood Progress.
Delegates to National Editorial Association—J. M. Wood, G. V. Johnson, Albert R. A. Baldwin of the Clovis Journal and J. E. Curran.

Then followed a lively contest for the meeting place in 1911. Portales and Lakewood being the contestants, in which the White City was victorious.

The association adjourned sine die at 11 o'clock and the members were then related to a joy ride over the town and out into the country, where they were deeply impressed with the great accomplishments of the people. The country is dotted with fine farms, and farm houses, and in spite of the drought, proofs of the great fertility of the soil were seen everywhere. The country around Clovis is by long odds the handsomest in New Mexico, and the soil being deep and rich, it offers an opportunity for the farmer which has few equals anywhere. The majority of the editors attending were fully convinced that the farms of Curry county are capable of great things without irrigation, and that in moderate price of lands it offers great opportunities for the land hungry.

Clovis itself is even more of a revelation, chief of which are the great railroad shops, built of enduring concrete, equipped with the finest modern machinery for railroad machinery repair and construction, and not the least with an ice plant that is capable of supplying thirty or forty transcontinental fruit trains a day with frozen crystal, also an electric light plant that would be a model for many cities. The railroad establishment is completed by the great hotel of the Harvey system, the finest between Wichita and Albuquerque. Work is beginning on the court house for Curry county, and it will be one of the best in the eastern tier. There are splendid schools and churches and private residences that will compare with any town in New Mexico. Owing to the fact that the municipal water plant is of but recent establishment, trees and grass are not yet far advanced, but when they do show the green, Clovis will be one of the most beautiful cities in the southwest, as it is now the most active. There is nothing wonderful about it, the editors concluded. With such a public spirit, such real goods to build on and from, the future of Clovis is assured. It is now the busiest place on the plains, and must continue to grow, steadily and substantially.

Practically all of the delegates left for their homes on Saturday's noon train, and it was with a warm feeling for Clovis that will never rub off.

MRS. W. E. OLDHAM ENTERTAINS CLUB.

The Womens' Club met yesterday with Mrs. Oldham and spent a very pleasant and profitable afternoon in the study and discussion of "The Boy Problem." Mrs. W. R. Brandon began the program with an outline of Judge Ben Lindsey's work for the betterment of the boys in cities, and his Juvenile Courts. This was followed by general discussion. The subject "Retaining a mother's influence" was ably led by Mrs. Molinari. Miss Bryant told in a very interesting way of her experience with "Curing bad habits—cigaretts" among school boys. Several mothers of boys then gave their methods of dealing with bad habits. "Choosing his friends and his literature" provoked unusual interest among mothers of girls as well as those of boys. Mrs. Humphrey began the discussion and her thoughts, which were very practical and are in successful use by this mother, were listened to with much interest. Mrs. Monroe gave, also, in a comprehensive manner, the synopsis of a very able magazine article on "Choosing the girl's friends." Mrs. Monroe said that there should be more brother and sister friendships among the sexes and pointed out these friendships, devoid of silly sentiment, refined the boy and strengthened the girl.

Mrs. Mesdames Jackson, Staples and Reese were elected to membership. The Club rejoices all ways over such splendid additions. Appropriate to the occasion, Mrs. Oldham had four boys, Joe Blankenship, Goodwin Humphrey, Joe Patterson and Vassar Smith, refresh the ladies with salad, olives, beaten biscuit, cheese-straws and tea, which these young lads did with as much grace as could their sisters. After refreshments, the boys distributed as souvenirs, pictures of boys attached to cards tied with the club colors on which were written "The Boy Problem," the name of the hostess and the date.

The visitors on this occasion were Mesdames H. F. Jones, W. H. Garrett, C. V. Harris, A. B. Austin and G. C. Brock.

Next Wednesday the Club meets with Mrs. W. I. Luikart, Mrs. Milton Brown, leader.

PUMPING IN THE MIMBRES VALLEY

As the people of Portales Valley are now having their eyes opened to the possibilities of irrigation by drawing on the great underground water supply, it may be a matter of interest to most of them to read of the experiments of regions similarly gifted, as showing the methods employed to accomplish the same end. With this purpose in view, the Herald herewith presents an article taken from the El Paso Herald of recent date. The article is as follows:

When they first began to talk of pumping water for irrigation in the vicinity of Deming, N. M., there were many Thomases who doubted the feasibility of pumping water anywhere for irrigation, much less onto the desert lands of the lower Mimbres Valley, which were never known to produce anything valuable except a little grass during rainy seasons. Some maintained that there was no water to speak of under this valley, others said that you could not raise anything even if you had plenty of water; another that the cost of fuel would eat up the profits; and still another based their opposition on the very general grounds that to pump water for irrigation in this country was tinkering with the plans of the Almighty, that to irrigate a country which was so manifestly meant to be a desert simply amounted to flying into the face of Omnipotence with ill-smelling, new-fangled machinery, and that such irreverence would be chastised—"see if 'tain't."

However, a few hardy souls who had the courage of their convictions and money enough to back them, went to work to raise the abundant underflow and convert it into an overflow. These men have not only demonstrated the feasibility of pumping water for irrigation in this valley, but have finally convinced a doubting community that water can be pumped here at an enormous profit.

The waters of the Mimbres river sink into the sand and gravel strata about twenty miles north of Deming, and it is only under the pressure of tremendous floods coming out of the mountains that water is pushed through the usually dry bed of the river as far down the stream as Deming. The Mimbres river does not flow at Deming—it underflows and sometimes overflows. While the flood waters are utilized for irrigation, it is to the underflow that the great majority of the farmers look for their water.

THE WATER STRATUM

In the vicinity of Deming the first water-bearing stratum occurs at a depth of from ten to seventy feet. The second sand and gravel stratum occurs fifteen or twenty feet below the first, and the third, or main stratum, occurs at a depth of from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and seventy feet beneath the surface. When this third stratum is punctured by the well drill, its water rises in the well to a point about ten feet above the water level of the first stratum. A pump delivering two thousand gallons of water per minute can pump a twenty foot head off of one of these wells, or a pump delivering twelve hundred gallons per minute can do it, but when that is done, the water level cannot be lowered further. Thus, it will be seen that a man's pumping depth is usually ten feet below the point at which he encounters the first water-bearing stratum.

A TYPICAL PLANT

We take as typical of irrigation plants in the Mimbres Valley, the Shull well, three miles east of Deming and the Hund well, two and one-half miles southeast. In drilling the Shull well the first water-bearing stratum was encountered at a depth of thirty-three feet, and the second stratum at about eighty feet, and the third at one hundred and fifty feet. The aggregate thickness of these three stratas is 40 feet. The well proper is 12 inches in diameter and is cased solidly except where the second and third water-bearing strata occur, and there, instead of casing, the Layne screen is substituted. A fifty foot steel pit is installed two feet in diameter (perforated where the first stratum occurs) at the bottom of which is set a No. 5 Layne & Bowler pump. It can be seen that the perforation of the pit and the screening of the two lower strata connects these three layers of water-bearing material, so that the well is furnished with water from all of them.

um at about eighty feet, and the third at one hundred and fifty feet. The aggregate thickness of these three stratas is 40 feet.

THE TYPE OF ENGINE

A forty-five horse power Weber old style (1895) engine furnishes the power to run the pump. The loss in efficiency caused by the altitude (four thousand three hundred feet above sea level) is fifteen per cent. A belt from the engine runs the pulley of the pump, and when going at normal rate, this pump delivers twelve hundred and fifty gallons of water per minute or 75,000 gallons of water per hour. Engine naphtha, which costs twelve cents per gallon, is used, of which four gallons are consumed per hour.

The lift when pump starts is twenty-seven feet, but after a two hours run, the head is pumped off and the water stands permanently at forty-two feet. When pumping at full capacity, this plant waters one and one-half acres of Irish potatoes per hour; and this year it is taking care of one hundred and seventy acres of potatoes, onions and feed crops.

The cost of the Shull plant, including everything, was $3,000. This well, with its present equipment, is able to take care of two hundred and fifty acres of ordinary crops.

COST OF THE PLANT

The Hund plant cost $3,200. The same strata of water-bearing material were encountered at about the same depths, but the strata were thicker so that the Hund well was equipped with eighty feet of strainer or screen as against forty feet in the Shull well. Otherwise, the wells are about the same.

The machinery, however, is a little different. The Hund well is equipped with a No. 6 Layne & Bowler pump with nine and five-eighths inch discharge, and with a 35-horse power Western gas engine. Engine naphtha is used at this plant, costing twelve cents per gallon. Thirty-five gallons are consumed in a ten hour run, and the pump delivers fifteen hundred gallons per minute, or ninety thousand gallons per hour, or nine hundred thousand gallons in ten hours. The fuel cost for this much water being $4.20. This plant waters two acres per hour of ordinary crops, but requires three-fourth of an hour to water one acre of alfalfa. It will take care of one hundred and sixty acres of alfalfa, or twice that acreage in beans or ordinary field crops.

The cost of this plant may be itemized as follows: Engine $1,300; well and pump, $1,700; engine house, $300; total $3,300. These two plants are typical of the irrigation plants in the lower Mimbres Valley. There are a few plants larger than either of these, and there a great many smaller ones. It may be announced as a general rule that the larger the plant the less the cost of the water.

OUR ARID SOILS

One of the best indications of the character of the soil is the native vegetation. When rabbit bush, sagebrush, buffalo grass or cactus is found on a tract it is reasonably certain that the soil is fertile, easily tilled and well drained. On the other hand the presence of greasewood, stolonwort, salt weeds, or similar plants is indicative of heavier soil, less easily cultivated and irrigated and containing more or less of the injurious salts usually grouped under the common name of alkali. In arid regions most cultivated plants are deep rooted. These draw their supply of plant food and moisture from considerable depths and the deeper the soil the larger is the feeding ground for the roots and the greater is the capacity to store water. The presence of any impervious stratum lying between the first and fifth foot prevent deep rooting and the storage of moisture. A hard stratum lying between the fifth and tenth foot is likewise injurious but to a less extent. The character of the subsoil may be readily determined by boring holes with a suitable soil auger to a depth of ten feet if necessary and taking samples at different depths. It will be possible usually to find under irrigation in near by fields soils similar to those under examination, but if this is not possible a trial may be made on a small scale to determine how the soil acts under irrigation. In general the sandy loams irrigate well. Clay is hard to cultivate when wet, does not absorb water readily and bakes and cracks when drying, while a soil which is too sandy will not retain sufficient moisture to maintain crops. The most favorable condition for irrigating is a smooth surface, with a uniform slope of ten to twenty feet to the mile. Such land costs little to put into condition for the spreading of water over it and the slope insures good drainage. Sometimes the land is cut up by arroyos which increase the labor and cost of putting water upon it or it may have too much or too little slope. In other cases it is full of buffalo or hog wallows which are difficult to bring to an even grade. If land which is naturally smooth on the surface and of the right slope costs $5 the acre to prepare for irrigating, hog-wallow land may cost $15. Besides some hog-wallow land is inferior in quality, frequently charged with injurious salts. Good drainage is essential for a permanently productive irrigated farm. It is practically impossible to supply crops with sufficient water for the best growth without applying so much that some will seep into the subsoil. Unless this can flow away, the level of the ground water will rise until it comes near the surface and drowns out the crops and perhaps cause an accumulation of alkali.—By Samuel Fortier in Denver Field & Farm.

AMERICAN STYLES FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Jessie Tobey—how sweet and clean that name sounds—head of the millinery department of the household division of Columbia university, on returning from a visit abroad, declares that American women in Paris are more attractive in attire than French women, that New York will ultimately become the fashion center of the world, that the hobble skirt will have to go and that the freak hat must pass into oblivion.

For all of which the Lord be praised—except that about New York becoming the fashion center for we can't abide a place that makes it impossible for a gentleman to wear a wide-brimmed soft hat without being taken for a mining adventurer or a fake doctor and stared out of countenance.

But let American women once make up their minds to set the fashions and they will set 'em for New York as well as Paris.

"Woman is soon to wear the hat which most becomes her, without regard to the foolish and unbecoming article which style dictates," remarks Mrs. Tobey, which we would amend by offering the "fashion" for the word "style." Fashion may decree an unbecoming dress, but style in its pure sense cannot be unbecoming, for it is essentially an expression of art and beauty. If it is unbecoming to the wearer it is not style, however much it may be the fashion of the form or the fad of the season. And that is a point which the artistic woman understands by instinct. An unbecoming garment is as unstylish as an ill-fitting garment, and as there are few women precisely so in stature, figure, carriage or style, there are few fashions that are equally becoming to all women.

Most fashions, doubtless, have their origin in some striking and more or less becoming garment first presented on the person of a particular woman, and as it becomes her lot to look and inartistic modish manufacturers and dealers straightway thrust it upon the market and poor, blind, "fraid cat" women hasten to put it on. We disclaim any disrespect in this remark. The dear creatures under discussion are altogether the most delightful, delicious, lovable and charming handiwork of the Master Molder of good form and fashion, but too many of them are unmindful of their own peculiar beauty and too often conceal their natural graces of person and graceful raiment.

It is vulgar to accentuate mere beauty of figure and it is reasonable to hide the occasional "finess of figure, but it is pruriently silly to array the "human vivine" in habiliments that early represent the curves of the reel or the waist line of a corset or the bust of the fat lady or the side show or any of the freaks of the imaginative maker or milliner who "fashions women into shapes unlike anything in the heavens above or the earth beneath and are matched only in the hobgoblin nightmares of rarebit suppers and mixed drink jags.

Dress is primarily a covering of comfort and modesty and if it fails in either respect is a delusion or an abomination. When it becomes a hobble skirt it is a deformity and a cruelty. Headgear is primarily a protection, permissibly an adornment but when it becomes an inverted bucket or a spreading aeroplane it is neither protection nor adornment but a horror or a nuisance, or both.

And while she's at it, we hope Mrs. Tobey—again we invoke a blessing on that old-fashioned name—will whack a few inches high-heeled shoes which women perkily and periously on their toes as if they were trying to ease blisters or stone-ment, and no woman can move gracefully on her tip-toes—none but the danseuse, and she attracts mostly by her skill and the shape she exhibits above her toes.

We trust, also, that modern hair dressing will come in for reform. Some of it needs nothing so much as a shearing; some of it pleads for amputation, and some suggests pitch-forking. To conceal a pretty neck with hair is a sin, but to construct a hirsute haystack and pin it on the head is a fraud on the landscape of human beauty. A pretty head is as fetching as a pretty face, and a woman is to be commended for using her hair to conceal unshapeliness, but she is not to be excused for knowingly misfitting it to its ordained resting place on a big man's shoulder.

The American woman is the finest type in the world—the finest in face, figure, mind, heart and grace—and she bemoans herself when she accepts any fashion less stylish, less fit, less adorned than her unadorned self. She should lay no claim to equality with man so long as she proclaims her inferiority to other women, as she slavishly does when she follows the foolish fashions of her French sisters.

S. S. WORKERS DEPART.

The S. S. of the Methodist church, Portales, N. M., realizing that in the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Spahr from our town, it has lost two valuable workers, offers the following resolutions:

Resolved first, that Mr. and Mrs. Spahr have been, during the time of their residence with us, among our most faithful and helpful members; that they have ever responded willingly and cheerfully to every call of duty, and,

Second, that because of their departure the S. S. has lost a good Superintendent in the person of Mr. Spahr and a faithful and competent Secretary in the person of Mrs. Spahr, and that the S. S. feels this loss and wishes to express its sincere thanks to them for duties well performed.

Third, it is the desire of the School that a copy of these resolutions be sent Mr. and Mrs. Spahr and that a copy be furnished each of the town papers for publication.

REMAINS OF MASTODON.

Artesia, N. M., Oct. 5.—Rev. D. Terry of Toyah, Tex., who arrived to attend the Methodist conference, which convened here last week, this afternoon stated that a few days ago John Fornat, who is employed on the ranch of Mack Sayles, in this vicinity, discovered the remains of an immense mastodon imbedded in a gypsum formation about fifteen feet below the surface of the ground. It was found protruding from the walls of a gulch whither the water had washed the dirt from around it. The teeth, he stated, were fully half a foot long, the leg bone as large as a nail keg and the other bones proportionately large. Rev. Terry also states that in the same neighborhood there are many bat caves from which many tons of guano are being removed and shipped east for fertilizer, and in a spirit of research John Martin had explored one of these caves, and descending possibly to a depth of fifty feet, had discovered a basket on a ledge of rock in perfect state of preservation, and in it were found the skeleton of a baby and Indian arrow heads and other relics. The bones of the baby were somewhat badly decayed, but the arrow head and relics were still sound and perfect.

Rev. Terry, in discussing some of the natural wonders of this community, stated that in it there are numerous caves and subterranean channels, and that through curiosity he had once followed one of these channels in its descent into the bowels of the earth about a quarter of a mile. This channel, he said, is barely wide enough for two men to follow its down course side by side, that going downward over ledge after ledge and rock he finally came to an immense lake of water, which he thinks is possibly the source which furnishes artesian water to many sections in Texas; that the orifice of this channel is located in a basin formed by surrounding hills and that when hard rains fall the whirlpools can be seen at its mouth as the surface water goes rushing through it with terrific force and runs in to the great subterranean reservoir—Reported from Artesia to Dallas News.

WILL NEVER SEE IT.

Wichita Falls is a good pattern of a town to sight you to. That town was twenty years reaching its present stage, but the few fellows that stayed with the town never lost the chance to say a good word for it, when in fact it was the laughing stock of Texas. But times have changed and the boosters are reaping the reward of those many years of hard times. It has now reached that point where the town is building upon its own merits. Hereford will never see the hard times that Wichita Falls and Quanah have. The Hereford country is prosperous now, yea twice fold more prosperous, than was once that country. "Twisting rabbits" for a living was the principal occupation in those days. Hauling wheat (when there was any) 80 and 100 miles to a railroad and receiving 30 cents a bushel was the history of those Greer country. Oklahoma fellows who are now living in "clover." Nerve and backbone has made the Wichita Falls, Quanah and Oklahoma country one of the most prosperous in the land. It is true that times are close all over the plains country but it is the honest opinion of the Recorder that it will never go through with an ordeal similar to that which those countries have passed.—Hereford (Tex.) Free lodging Friday night, supper and breakfast will be served in Portales homes to the visiting teachers. Come! Grace Fogle-son, Secretary, Supt. O. B. Staples, Chairman, Executive Committee.

C. A. Rector, the immigration agent, is home from a trip to Boone county, Missouri, where he has been for the past two weeks talking Portales Valley. While up there he negotiated a deal in which Geo. L. Bryant exchanged his 160 acres of land 8 miles southwest of town and a four room house and three lots in town for a Missouri farm. Mr. Rector says that the country up there was very much wet, it having rained almost the entire time that he was in the state. On account of this disadvantage he was not able to canvass the country very thoroughly, yet he feels that he has done a work there that will eventually mean much to Portales Valley, as the people with whom he came in contact are thoroughly alive to the "Go West" doctrine.

B. J. Reagan left this week for Aransas Pass to look after some property interests as well as to enjoy a brief respite from office duties. He carried along a good quantity of Portales Valley advertising literature just to show the people of the gulf port town that they are not the only people on the beach.

COMFORTING WORDS.

MARY A. PORTALES HOUSEHOLD WILL FIND THEM SO.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Portales readers.

Mrs. Charles Thomas, 101 E. Lead Ave., Albuquerque, N. M., says: "Our knowledge of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills dates back some eight years ago and since that time we have rarely been without a supply on hand. I suffered a great deal from backache, caused by disordered kidneys. I was all run down, had no ambition and felt miserable in every way. The first dose of Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief from the pain in my back and continued use restored my kidneys to a normal condition, making me feel like a different person. Doan's Kidney Pills have also been taken by another person in our house who at times had much difficulty in straightening after stooping on account of pain across the loins. Relief soon followed the use of this remedy. Whenever Doan's Kidney Pills have been taken since then, they have given prompt and positive benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 46-24.

AGATHERIDIAN NOTES.

One of the happiest incidents in the life of the Portales Public School took place last Friday when the 7th and 8th grades combined to celebrate the birthday of the 7th grade teacher, Miss Grace Foglesong.

Under the direction of Mrs. G. L. Reese, the 8th grade teacher, the pupils prepared an entertaining program, and what was still more touching, presented Miss Foglesong with a handsome gold bracelet and some beautiful flowers. Supt. Staples complemented the pupils on their generosity, and commended them for the spirit of culture and refinement shown on this occasion.

JINGLES

We Agatheridians are the smartest

That's ever been in school, If you'll examine us a bit, You'll see we know each rule.

History is our specialty, In that we always shine, While Latin is our soul's delight, And in Caesar we scan every line. No other society is half so good, They are so very silly; While we are angels all the time, Now don't you think so, really?

A LAY OF ANCIENT ROME

Oh! the Roman was a rogue, Hic, erat, was, you bettum, He ran his automobiles, And smoked his cigarettum. He wore a diamond studibus, And an elegant cravatium; A maxima cum laude shirt, And such a stylish hattum. He loved the luscious hic-haec-hoc,

And bet on games and equi; At times he won; at others, tho, He got it in the neque.

He winked (quo esque tandam?) At puellas on the Forum, And sometimes even made Those goo-goo oculorum.

He frequently was seen At combata gladiatoria, And ate enough to feel, Like ten boarders at a memorial. He often went on aprees, And said on starting homus, Hic labor—opus est, Oh, where's my hic-haec-domus? Although he lived in Rome— Of all the arts, the middle, He was (excuse the phrase) A horrid individ'.

Oh! what a different thing Was the homo (dative hominy,) Of far away B. C. From us of Anno-Domini.

"Little" Edwin Neer was not dead or sleeping, but dreaming in Latin class. After a course of time he realized the fact that Mr. Galbraith had asked him to give the principal parts of some verb, but he failed to understand the word. He nudged Cash, who murmured, "Durned if I know." Edwin at once began, "Durnifino, durnifinare, durnifinavi, durnifinatus."

This information will be received with pleasure by the many friends of this gentleman who are numbered all over the state.

WILL LEASE CITY POWER PLANT

The city council was in special session several hours yesterday, called for the purpose of having a proposition from T. G. Lomax, of Beaumont, Texas, who has been here for several days looking over the situation relative to a lease for the city water, light and sewer system.

While negotiations have not assumed definite shape, yet the council felt interested in this gentleman's position to the extent that he was invited to remain over until today in order that the matter might be thrashed over thoroughly before either party made any promises or entered into any hard and fast contract.

The proposition as submitted by Mr. Lomax, stated in brief, provides for the organization of an operating company composed of Portales people, who shall take two-thirds stock in the company, Mr. Lomax taking one-third himself. The company, organized along these lines, proposes to take charge of the city utilities and operate them at the lowest possible cost to the individual consumer and to furnish the city lights, as now provided for in the system, free of cost to the city, also water for fire protection. The life of the lease is five years.

Mr. Lomax comes to our people with the best of recommendations and if certain barriers which have come to the surface in the preliminary steps can be overcome, it is quite certain that the council will acquint itself with all the pros and cons before turning down a proposition constructed along these lines.

Later—At a call meeting of the council held this morning at ten o'clock, a tentative agreement was made between the city and Mr. Lomax which will practically insure the leasing of the plant under the conditions mentioned above, and if this deal is consummated Mr. Lomax expects to have the plant in operation by November 15.

The Herald expects to discuss the features of this contract more fully in next week's issue.

S. E. Ward and wife left this week for Canadian, Texas. Mr. Ward has been connected with the Portales Irrigation project and goes to Canadian to take charge of similar work.

Pastor E. L. Young requests the Herald to say that there will be preaching at the Methodist church next Sunday morning as usual, but that the evening service would be dispensed with through courtesy to the Baptist congregation who are in revival meetings.

John Knight of Canyon, Texas and Mr. Stewart of Ft. Worth spent the first of the week here attending to business.

Miss Nettie Chesshure spent Friday to Sunday at Clovis with her mother who is there being treated.

R. A. Bain, Chas. Duncan, and Fred Crosby returned yesterday from Amarillo, Tex., where they attended an automobile fair.

This circuit covers quite an area of the west and Mr. Alldredge has promised to contribute an article for next week's paper giving some of the impressions of his trip.

Mrs. M. E. Reagan and daughter of Olney, Texas, mother and sister respectively of B. J. Reagan, our County Treasurer and Tax Collector, are visitors at the Reagan home.

M. E. CHURCH CONFERENCE APPOINTMENTS.

Rev. E. L. Young returned home Monday from Artesia, where he attended the annual Conference of the M. E. Church of New Mexico. Brother Young was returned to Portales, as mentioned elsewhere in this paper, and he kindly gave us the list of assignments made which may be of general interest to the people here.

Rev. J. Rush Goodloe, well known to Portales citizens, has been given the charge of presiding elder over the district of which Portales church is a part, and we understand that he will make his home here. Rev. Ausmus, of Clovis, who was just lately initiated into the mysteries of newspaper-making as head of the editorial department of the Clovis News, has been assigned work at Nashville, Tenn., and while this appointment may furnish a more inviting field for ministerial work, we dare say that the change will not be conducive to that enthusiasm which causes a man to break into the newspaper business. The New Mexico press had expected much from Mr. Ausmus in this venture, for while he was not a practical newspaper man, it was conceded by all the press fellows that he would dignify the calling not only in his home town but that the native genius of the man would illumine the pages of newspaperdom throughout the entire state. Rev. C. A. Clark of Albuquerque, will take the pastorate at Clovis. Rev. B. T. James, former presiding elder was stationed at Texico and Rev. Turner is returned to Melrose. Rev. J. E. Givens is sent to the work embracing Blacktower; J. D. Wagner goes to Causey; Rev. J. C. Jones takes the place of Rev. H. F. Shelton at Elida, Mr. Shelton going to Louisville, Kentucky.

Rev. E. L. Young Returned to Portales for Another Year.

Rev. E. L. Young returned home Monday from Artesia where he had been in attendance at the Annual Conference of the M. E. Church. It is a pleasure to the local congregation of the Methodist church to know that Brother Young was assigned work here for another year and, judging from the creditable showing which the church made during his one year's pastorate here, it would be a safe prediction to say that the church will go forward in the work as it has in the past.

NEW TEACHER ELECTED.

The problem of growth is before the trustees of the Public school of Portales. Two of the teachers, namely, Misses Gilliam and Bryant, have been trying to handle 114 pupils in their grades. At a meeting of the trustees Tuesday, it was decided to elect another teacher and Mrs. Will Jackson was promptly chosen for the place.

The Herald says "amen" to this movement and to all others for the betterment of the school. Let us have it in the best possible condition if everything else stops.

Amos Whiteman, a brother of Levi Whiteman who was formerly employed in the offices of the Times and the Herald Printing Co., arrived here Tuesday for a short business stay. He says that Levi has secured a remunerative situation as night agent of the Santa Fe's offices at San Marcial, and will move his family to that place at once. The many friends of Levi will be glad to hear of this substantial proof of his ability to do other things than be a good printer.

The seventh grade accompanied by their teacher, Miss Grace Foglesong, Miss Hutchison and Mesdames W. O. Oldham and Frank Tompkins, spent Saturday at Portales Springs gathering specimens for nature study.

Mrs. J. C. McNeill, Miss Cornelia McNeill and the Misses Hinkle, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Williamson for a couple of weeks, left Sunday for Lubbock, Tex., and from thence will visit the state fair at Dallas. They made the trip to Lubbock by auto.
