New Slav Cabinet Is Pro-British

German-hating Slavs, led apparently by the Serbian Agrarian party and probably master-minded by the recent Slav ambassador to Moscow, this morning overthrew the Yugoslav government, put Peter II, the boy king, on the throne, and thus jerked the nation out of the Axis brotherhood into which it had formally entered Tuesday.

Details are lacking. For instance, it is not known what happened to Regent Prince Paul who has been ruling for the boy king. And there is still the question of whether or not the Slav people will support the revolution, but there seems a good chance that they will.

Thousands of high school and college students rioted throughout Yugoslavia last night. Observers believed the students were inspired by their parents who felt that police would deal more kindly with the youngsters than with adults.

Germany was stunned enough by the new pro-British Slav government that it had no comment. Berlin played up the visit of Foreign Minister Matsuoka of Japan who is in Germany to confer with Hitler. But observers said there was no doubt that the Slavic action had wrapped a huge wet blanket around the Matsuoka show with which Germany hoped to frighten the U. S. by threatening Japanese action in the Far Pacific if U. S. aid to Britain continues.

The U. S. promptly welcomed the new pro-British government; and pledged it full aid under the new British lend-lease bill if it decides to resist aggression.

Britain howled with glee, and Prime Minister Churchill promised the Slavs material and military aid. Greece also is jubilant and there were growing indications that the Slavs and Greeks may soon be fighting side by side.

Russia was quiet, but observers are more than half convinced that wily Josef Stalin helped engineer the coup. The Slav ambassador to Moscow resigned several days ago in protest of the scheduled Slav entry into the Axis, and before the ambassador left Moscow for Belgrade he may have had an understanding with Russia.

Russia is no longer an open ally of Germany. She has shut off oil exports to the Reich; has scolded Bulgaria for joining the Axis; and has promised Turkey every aid short of actual troops if she resists the German thrust southeastward.

The new turn of events indicates that Britain may finally realize her desire to have an anti-German Balkan bloc comprising the Slavs, Greeks and Turks. Certainly, the upset hands Hitler his most dangerous problem since he started his Balkan conquests.

What Hitler may try next is problematical. He might try to keep the old government in power by pouring German troops into Yugoslavia, but there are good reasons.

Cooking School Closes

Not only is The Texan's Tenth Annual Free Cooking School history—but it made history.

For instance, 35 cakes, a new high, were entered in the annual cake baking contest, always one of the headline attractions of the school.

And both written and oral comments of the more than 800 women who attended the school indicate it was the most popular The Texan has ever held.

The women liked, among other things, the snappy, straight-to-the-point programs. "I didn't have to sit through a session that wore me to a frazzle," said one woman. "Miss Crosson made her instruction compact, pointed, easy to remember, and she and the others conducting the school got us out of the theatre before we got tired. I

ABSENTEE BALLOTING HALTS SOON

CIO Bows Neck At Government

The CIO United Automobile Workers at Milwaukee have flatly refused to reopen the Allis-Chalmers plant, that has been strike-bound 65 days, at least until after a scheduled union meeting Saturday.

Secretary of Navy Knox and Wm. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, last night wired the Allis-Chalmers company to resume work immediately because the strike "is vitally affecting delivery of naval orders." They directed officials to notify all men to report for duty promptly, and said negotiations could continue while the men work on the company's $45,000,000 of defense orders.

CIO Chieftain Philip Murray today challenged authority of Knudsen and Knox to order the CIO workers back on the job. However, semo-official sources in Washington pointed out that Knudsen and Knox are backed by the full power of President Roosevelt who has the authority to take over any or all U. S. plants in the name of the government under the selective service act.

Secretary of War Stimson today told states to hurry up and get their home guard units perfected so they can be used in event of strike or other domestic trouble. National guard units are, of course, in the U. S. Army for intensive training.

The government's action at Milwaukee, and Stimson's blunt hint that the government might start taking over plants, softened up the CIO steel strikes at the Bethlehem Steel plant in Philadelphia. Overnight they suddenly got the negotiating notion and started arbitration proceedings this morning.

Pie Baking Contest Is To Be Tomorrow

Come on, you pie-bakers. Here's a chance to cash in.

Responding to requests made by a number of women at The Texan's Tenth Annual Free Cooking School that closed yesterday, The Texan and the Mission theatre are staging a pie-baking contest for tomorrow.

There are no entry fees and the only rule is this: The pies must be at the Mission theatre by 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Every woman in this whole Dalhart area is invited to participate, and she may enter any kind of pie she chooses.

These culinary masterpieces will be judged by carefully chosen experts who are recognized as authorities. And of course they will be disinterested.

First prize is $2 cash; second prize is $1 cash or a week's pass to both the Mission and La Rita theatres; third prize will be either the $1 cash or the week's pass, choice of which is offered to second place. And there will be ten more prizes, each a pass to see "Trial of Mary Dugan," at the Mission Saturday.

Tom King Again Becomes Issue

Austin.—State Auditor Tom King became an issue before the Texas senate again today when Senator Joe Hill of Henderson charged that he is trying to hold office until his successor qualifies, despite the fact that the senate refused to confirm his recent re-appointment by Gov. O'Daniel.

Hill asked why O'Daniel has not made a new appointment; and further asked if he intends to delay a nomination until after the legislature adjourns. In that case, the nominee could serve without senate confirmation till the legislature met again.

Is Everybody Happy?

That booming voice that comes to us through the ether waves resounds with happiness and brings a smile to our lips. Tromping through fields soggy with moisture that reaches deep down into the soil, and driving through streets that are covered with mud and water, and over country roads where huge ruts have been cut deep into the soil, we are tempted to ask:

"Is Everybody Happy?"

And the answer to that question comes to us from all sides, an answer that echoes the happiness and pleasure of the people of the Panhandle territory, hungry for just such weather conditions as we now have. Yes sir, Mr. Weather Man, we would say:

"Everybody is happy."

Farmers and ranchers who have brought in their Farmalls for repairs and replacements and business men who have visited our store to view the 1941 Farmall H and Farmall M, are all happy over recent blessings received from the Weather Man. They are laughing about things that were worrying them a few weeks ago and giving a friendly pat to our mechanics as they quickly make the repairs necessary to the Farmall. They know now that the money spent for repairs will be a good investment, that the Farmall is going to see some service and having it ready to go is of vital importance.

Of course the Weather Man can't remedy world conditions, neither can he be held responsible for them, but right now our farmers and ranchers are in a better position to help in the national defense program than ever before. And that help is coming in the form of abundant crops, hundreds of thousands of well-fed cattle, and truckloads of vegetables.

Yes sir, if you want to take our opinion for it, we would say definitely that out here in the Great Plains country,

"Everybody is happy."

EVERY SCHOOL AND EVERY BUSINESS HAS ONE OR TWO

In a school full of bright, self-respecting students, there are very likely to be one or two completely lacking in good common sense. And that goes for business, too... particularly the beer retailing business.

Out of thousands of beer retailers who conduct respectable, law-abiding businesses, there may be a few "dunce" retailers who disobey the law or permit anti-social conditions.

These few unwanted retailers are a menace to the future of the beer industry...and also of the benefits beer has made possible. Right here in Texas, beer provides employment for 31,165 persons, supports an annual payroll of $22,076,182 and contributed $2,273,968.64 last year in state taxes.

It is the brewers' responsibility to make good beer—the retailers' responsibility to sell beer in wholesome surroundings—and the legally constituted authorities' responsibility to enforce the laws. All of these, working together with the public, are needed to protect the future of beer.

You, too, can help the cause of moderation by (1) patronizing only reputable places where beer is sold; (2) and reporting any violation you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.

BEER...a beverage of moderation

COMIC OPERA

The handling of the aluminum shortage problem has reached the comic opera stage. It's been headed that way ever since Edward R. Stettinius, attractive young chief of raw materials for defense, solemnly proclaimed there was no danger of a deficiency in this vital metal—despite the warnings of plane makers and experts.

Stettinius doggedly stuck to his stand until one day he suddenly slapped aluminum on the priority list—thereby completely reversing himself and admitting he had been talking through his hat.

This move was followed by announcements that in order to make the supply of the metal go as far as possible for defense purposes, its use in consumer articles, such as refrigerator ice trays, would have to be curtailed. But the latest antic is really funny.

From Stettinius' office, plane makers received a telegraphic order not to sell their scrap aluminum. Beyond that there were no instructions. So they kept it and soon had large piles of scrap aluminum cluttering up their plants, taking up valuable space. Finally they complained to Washington, wanted to know what it was all about.

Explanation they received was that the scrap was wanted for remelting.

The plane makers couldn't believe their eyes, because shortage in the metal is not in ingots but in sheets and forgings. So the plane makers let out a loud snort; whereupon another explanation was forthcoming.

Explanation this time was that the scrap was desired for its magnesium content.

This time the plane makers groaned in despair. For although aluminum does contain a small percentage of magnesium, apparently the Stettinius masterminds did not know that there is no known process for recapturing magnesium from scrap aluminum. It boils off when the scrap is melted.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

Moguls of the powerful American Farm Bureau Federation are ready to say "Uncle" and make peace with the administration.

Up to a year ago the farm bureau was the fair-haired boy on farm policy, largely due to the suave astuteness of Ed O'Neal, federation president, and his personal friendship with Roosevelt. The organization carried a lot of weight with the President and Wallace, so that hundreds of its local dealers got lush federal jobs administering the vast AAA program.

But at heart most of the federation's generalissimos never were very hot about the New Deal, and last year they began demanding greater local control aimed at running the program themselves. And in a showdown over domination of the federal land banks, Wallace rapped them over the knuckles and the battle was on. Soon it spilled over into the political arena, when cornbelt farm bureau leaders, led by ambitious Earl Smith of Illinois, dumped the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket and put in some heavy licks for Willkie.

Willkie's defeat knocked the props from under the boys and behind the scenes they have been getting increasingly jittery because they've always leaned pretty hard on their "in" with the reigning administration. With many jobs and other "gravy" at stake, the prospect of being in bad with the powers was not healthy.

So, reverting to the old realistic axiom, "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em," the boys have propositioned Clifford Townsend, defense agricultural adviser and former New Deal governor of Indiana, on being their peace-maker.

Townsend was one of the organizers and first leaders of the farm bureau in the midwest. Yet when he stumped that area for Roosevelt and Wallace last fall he bumped up against the bitter opposition of many of his old associates. So he has not yet decided whether to be peace-maker.

NEW SLAV—

why he might not take such a course. The Slav army is pro-British, and while not in itself formidable would add a lot of strength to the British, Greek and Turkish forces. He may not want to provoke the Slavs into an open fight.

He may decide to ignore the situation, claiming that the Slavs have joined the Axis and that their internal troubles are now no business of his.

But chances are he can't ignore the new government long. It is a very likely to repudiate Axis membership shortly which means that Hitler then cannot even move supplies and wounded across Slav soil which he could have done under the old government.

If he can't move supplies and wounded across Yugoslavia he may feel that he cannot immediately attack Greece. Yet he can hardly delay because England and Greece might attack him and thus wrest the offensive out of his hands.

Also, the longer he sits twiddling his thumbs the more U. S. aid is helping Britain.

Yes, Hitler now has a hard nut to crack.

Births of negro babies have increased from 240,683 in 1928 to 270,060 in 1939, according to the census. During the same eleven years, births of white babies increased only from 1,982,246 to 1,982,671.

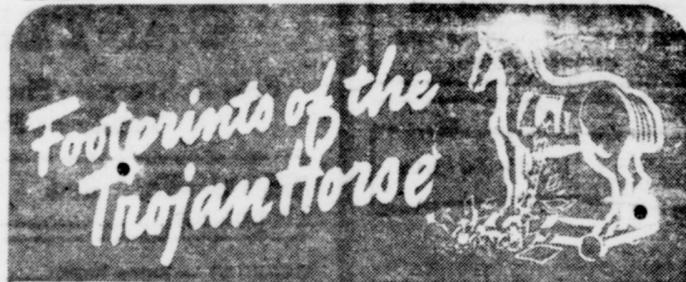

Tuberculosis in all its form is responsible for 9.4 percent of all negro deaths, according to the census bureau, while among whites it is responsible for only 3.8 percent of all deaths.

Cancer and other malignant tumors are responsible for 11.7 percent of all deaths among whites and only 5.1 percent of all deaths among negroes, according to the census bureau.

LAFF-A-DAY

"He wants me to elope. Shall I ask him if he can get a hov friend?"

EDITOR'S NOTE: This graphic analysis of "Fifth Column" techniques is published by the Texan in cooperation with the National Department of Americanism of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. The text and illustrations are taken from the book "Footprints of the Trojan Horse," published by Citizenship Educational Service, 122 East 42nd Street, New York City, a non-profit association of patriotic organizations dedicated to the preservation of Americanism.

After winning domination over Germany, Hitler decided to use the same strategy in conquering other nations. So he searched for a group that was a minority in the populations of his chosen victims.

If the strategy were reduced to simple terms it could be expressed as follows—

MILITARY HEADQUARTERS

To the Intelligence Staff:

In line with regular procedure, stir up suspicion in the population in order to set group against group and destroy the internal unity of the country. As a first step, sell the upper classes on the idea that Jews are communists and we are a bulwark against communism. Sell the lower classes on the idea that Jews control everything and are a menace to their jobs.

Under cover of this smoke screen we can move in and follow out our plan for economic and political conquest.

(signed) Chief of Staff

Barometer Warning

The record of the last 2,000 years of history has provided us with an unmistakable storm warning when human rights are in danger—a campaign against minorities. If this is allowed to continue, it is only a question of time until the civil rights and liberties of everyone will be lost.

America's Self-Interest

The whole of America is definitely concerned with stopping the use of prejudices as a means of creating disunity. Whether the propaganda is foreign or domestic, the result is always the same: Under the smoke screen of group hatred, unscrupulous elements attain objectives destructive to our common interests.

Ed Acheson

Before I start talking cooking school there's a job to be done. A little friend is all broken up because his dog is missing and he just wonders if it wouldn't be possible for us to help locate it. Eddie Waite wants his little 10-month-old black and white wire-haired terrier back. About three days ago "Rags" was missing when Eddie called and now Eddie calls every day and still no "Rags." He's not in the pound or at any of the neighbors' places and Eddie wants him back so badly that he talked his dad into offering a reward to anyone who will locate, or help locate "Rags."

Each year we say the cooking school was the best in our history. And as we repeat that statement here we do so more sincerely than ever before. We judge the success of the event by the comments of those attending and never before have we had so many, many nice compliments. Some of the statements made will appear in The Texan at a later date, just as quickly as we can check them.

Optimism Shines Over High Plains

College Station, March 27.—Approximately 2,283,000 acres in the Southern Great Plains region are without vegetative cover, according to an early 1941 report issued by the regional agricultural council. This represents about one-fourth of the acreage without cover of wheat or crop residues on Jan. 1, 1940. The region includes portions of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, and Kansas. Agricultural authorities contributing to the report say a year ago there were 4,700,000 acres of cropland and 660,000 acres of pasture in condition to blow. On January 1 of this year they estimated 1,116,000 acres of cropland and 166,000 acres of pasture which would be subject to wind erosion this spring.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Range pastures were said to be "of medium to good condition" in 77 of the 102 counties within the five-state region. Forage supplies are deficient in 20 counties, and it will be necessary to ship in roughage in 19 counties, as contrasted with 72 counties a year ago. This winter, 82 counties report adequate or surplus feed supplies. Apparently it will not be necessary to ship livestock out of any county in the region.

WOTAN'S WEDGE by FRANCIS GERARD A PRELUDE TO BLITZKRIEG

SYNOPSIS

Part young Prince Max von Welfens has just slain his former friend, Count Ulrich von Welfens, in a duel with swords for "family honor" on the part because Ulrich's love, Princess Elizabeth von Welfens, Max's sister, outraged her. This episode was to have an aftermath forty years later when U-boats and bombers about England. But the day after the fatal duel in the Schloss von Welfens, Princess Elizabeth is in bed, her recently born son, as a servant, Anna, ponders the story of the house. They have yet heard of its latest

CHAPTER EIGHT

The woman by the fire looked faint tinkle of metal came from the door. She hurried into the room by the bed and looked at the girl and the thing in the Princess Elizabeth held in her right hand. It was a steel Cossack dagger used as a knife to cut the pages of the novel which the girl would you do, mein liebste asked Anna, her old eyes. "You would not?"

"No! Anna," interjected Max. "Am I a monster? I would not do my son his right—his right to Wotan."

"Mean, Prinzessin!" Anna replied Elizabeth, who is a Tarlesheim and a girl whatever many may say contrary."

"Yes, liebste," nodded the man. "And he shall grow up a man of whom Your Highness will be proud. He is of the nobles; nothing may alter that. How goes the old saying? 'Child, Wotan's weal.'"

"I will order her young mistress there came a sharp cry from the child. "There, there, my darling," she whispered gently bathed the baby's arm and bound it carefully.

Afterwards, the Princess herself in the bed and "Anna! Anna, they are altering footsteps halted at the door. They waited for the knock. The rap came it was gentle, timid. "Who is it?" asked a tired quavering voice "Stengel."

"Stengel," said Elizabeth. "The major-domo came into the room and bowed towards the bed. "Highness," he began, "His Excellency desires to know—"

"The girl broke off, as the tears down his cheeks. Stumbling, he knelt upon one knee and held her hand. "Oh, Princess, what he said hoarsely, "what you doing to you?"

silence. When the knock at the door came, Anna opened it and gave the ghost of a curtsy as father and son walked into the room. Both bowed distantly. Then Max said, "I hope I find you well, Elizabeth?"

This greeting from her brother whom she had not seen for several months, and whom she now met in such terrible circumstances, was almost too much for the girl. The blood drained from her face as it might had he slapped her with his open hand. Tears fell on the sleeping babe.

Max stood rigid as though at attention before his commanding officer. He watched those tears fall and knew a pain in his heart, for he had a very deep love for his sister. What he had done already that morning had been an agony, but still he had done it. And he would do even more than that to live up to that code of behavior which had been instilled into him from his early boyhood.

"Father," said the girl rousing herself from what had seemed like a faint, "will you not tell me what I would know?"

"Elizabeth," replied the old prince, "you will please address your brother; for, since I am too old a man, he will maintain our family honour."

"Then, in the name of Our Lady, what of—Ulrich?"

Max bowed jerkily, stared over his sister's head, and replied, "I have to inform you that Graf von Tarlesheim is dead."

"Yes," nodded the girl. "I knew it all the time. He would never defend himself against you. He was too fond of you, Maxi. And you killed him."

"I did," replied her brother, whose normal healthily pink face was now almost livid, the perspiration standing out in great beads on his forehead.

"May God forgive you, Max," said Elizabeth quietly. "I never will."

Once more Prince Max bowed jerkily. "And now, Elizabeth," he said, "if you would be so good, I will take the child."

He took a pace towards the bed, his sister staring at him as though at some figure of approaching doom. Suddenly Anna, who had taken no part in the conversation hitherto, sprang forward and placed herself between Max and her young mistress.

"Stay where you are, Maxi!" she ordered.

So extraordinary was it for the old servant to address him in such a tone that Max halted in stupefaction. Not for more than fifteen years had Anna dared to speak to him in such a way, not since the day when she had ceased to be his nurse.

"You may go, Anna." It was the old prince speaking from his position near the door from which he had not moved.

"I will not go," declared the old woman, "and not all the House of Welfens can make me until I have spoken." The little figure in its rusty black seemed invested with strange dignity as she stood, a pathetic barrier, between her beloved mistress and the two men. "You shall both listen to me, for what I would say concerns you and your vital interests."

She looked up into Max's face, her eyes searching it for any sign of humanity, but the boy's features were impassive and his eyes blank.

"It is to you I speak, Max, prince of this House of Welfens, for the old man yonder will die within the year. Do I speak the truth, Maxi, when I tell you that I am gifted with the 'sight'? Do I? You shall answer me."

Max bent his head and stared in almost childish astonishment at the old woman but he nodded and she went on. "Am I not known here, at Welfens, and far beyond, as the wise woman, old Anna who can see where others are blind?" She nodded as though to answer her own query.

"Do you not recall that when you were a little boy and were playing with Ulrich, whom today you slew and with Fritz, your other play mate, that I warned you not to cross the frozen lake? Do you recall that Fritz ignored my warning and drowned while you and Ulrich lived?"

She paused and stood shaking her head. "Mayhap it might well have been better had you, too, ignored my warning, for there would have been less sorrow in this house today. I have given other proof of my powers and now I tell you, Max, that this child born to your sister is a son of Wotan and of Fate. In his little hands he carries the destiny of the House of Welfens. If you do him harm he, in his day will break you and yours. I call the heavens to witness that I speak the truth as I see it. The Fates weave their web in a strange manner and Wotan's child, who bears the Wedge, shall know his help!"

The young Hussar shook himself as though emerging from a trance with. "But this is no child of Wotan's; at least, he shall never bear the Wedge upon him."

"But he does!" cried Elizabeth triumphantly.

"By the holy wounds!" cried Max. "Out of my way, old woman!" and he struck Anna across the face with the back of his hand.

He swept the bed-clothes aside, saw the tiny blood-marked wedge. His eyes went to the Cossack dagger upon the bed-table.

"So you have dared!" he raved, his iron control gone. "You have dared to mark this nameless one with the revered arms of our House!"

"And his father's arms, as well!" cried Elizabeth, her dark eyes blazing into her brother's.

"You—!" snarled Max. Snatching the baby from the bed, he strode out of the room.

The girl collapsed and her father moved heavily towards the bed to comfort her as best he could.

Old Anna rose from the floor, where she had fallen, her handkerchief dabbing at her lips where Max's knuckles had cut them against her teeth. She stood swaying slightly and stared through the open door through which Max and his little nephew had disappeared. In the depths of the castle she could still hear the thin crying of the baby—"Wotan's own"—as it was borne away. The sound grew fainter; presently, with the slam of a great door, it ceased entirely.

Old Anna nodded and passed a gnarled hand across her face. "Cry on! Cry on!" she murmured. "Though I shall not live to see the day, what they have done to you, so will you do to them and Welfens will be naught but a tragic name in a history book."

The states which showed the greatest percentage of increase in population in the 1940 census were Florida, New Mexico, California, Nevada, and Idaho, according to the census bureau. The District of Columbia, however, exceeded the percentage increase of these states.

The 1940 census reveals that the decade between 1930 and 1940 was the first decade in American history in which immigration was not a factor in population changes. It was the first decade in which there was an excess of emigration over immigration.

New Life Philosophy Needed, Says Babson

By ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Fla., March 27.—Today I am leaving Florida and do not expect to be back again until next January. As I am cleaning up my desk, I find three clippings which I have been saving to comment upon. Let me do so now.

Florida Growers Sad
A short time ago the following editorial appeared in a prominent Florida paper:

"There will not be much comfort for Florida growers in the department of agriculture's recent estimate of the nation's citrus crop.

The federal crop reporting board estimates an all-time record orange crop of 81,000,000 boxes this season; grapefruit production is put at 40,000,000 boxes, a total increase of about 10% over last season. Florida orange production, including tangerines, is put at 28,000,000 boxes. That's about the same as last year. The estimate on grapefruit is a Florida headache. Federal experts forecast the Florida production at 21,000,000 boxes, compared with a 1939-1940 crop of 15,900,000 boxes."

In reply, a reader sends the paper a quotation from Robert Ingersoll: "There is something wrong with a government when those who produce all have nothing, while those who produce nothing have it all." As I watched the growers of oranges and grapefruit sweat in their groves to pay interest and taxes and get almost nothing therefrom, I cannot help but be sympathetic with the farmers. What is wrong? It is not the law of supply and demand—it must be something else. Let us look at the record.

Whether the fruit growers get anything or not—the railroads get their dollar or more per box as freight, the packing houses get their regular fee, while the middlemen get their regular commissions. In fact, the more fruit there is, and the worse off the grower is, the more profits are made by these other people. After twenty winters in Florida, I have concluded that the problem will be rectified only through a pooling of the earnings of all these different groups. When all suffer and prosper together then something will be done to help all. This also applies to the officials of cooperative exchanges who get their good salaries just the same, whatever happens to the poor growers. I include herewith the growers of scores of other products from potatoes in Maine to prunes in California, and peaches in Georgia.

Employment After the War
A second newspaper clipping reads as follows:

"For the first time in ten years everyone willing to work in our town is fully employed. This compares with a large surplus of labor a few years ago. In fact, there is an actual shortage of labor here at the present time. Even our newspaper is looking for two boys—a condition that never existed before. Of course, this is due to the war orders which have come to our community. But something is wrong when we must manufacture things to kill people in order to give our men employment!"

The above illustrates conditions in America and, to a large extent, today in many other countries. Readers brought up in conservative Republican homes have been taught "this is the way of the world" and that these conditions must always be expected. We have been told "the poor will always be with us" and that "under the laws of nature only the fittest should survive!" Our difficulty has been not only with the wrong definition of the "fittest," but also with the fact that we have artificially put nature out of balance. Normally, the laws of nature will bring forth a good forest. When man, however, artificially sets a forest on fire, then other artificial means must be instituted to put it out. There would have been no abnormal unemployment problem if the character of our people had progressed at the same rate as the machine. Trouble came when we forgot God and went "machine crazy." It is dangerous now to assume that the employment problem has been "solved." It has been given only a "shot-in-the-arm."

Conclusion

I believe in a social structure which is founded on private ownership and which requires employers and wage workers, hiring and firing, and natural price levels, so long as these do not interfere with the greatest good for the greatest number. If, however, we can take care of the unemployed, when our own protection is at stake, we can provide work for them in times of peace. A truly Christian society demands some way of doing this however it hurts both those living on dividends or those living on relief. We must change our fatal in-

IN THE ARMY NOW!
WHY AND HOW
By S. T. Williamson

The World war draft of 1917-18 yielded a measurement of the physical health of young Americans. One-third of the men called to duty then were turned down as physically unfit for active military service. Today local board and army medical examiners reject some 44 per cent.

Many earnest souls are sure to make a hideous outcry over this seemingly damning evidence of the physical degeneration of the race. I have sought in vain for copper-riveted figures showing beyond question whether our new armies come from better physical stock than the 4,000,000 who shouldered rifles in 1918. It wasn't a lonesome quest, for I was almost trampled to death in the rush of investigators and researchers with the same idea in mind.

Although some of the Army's new calculating machines almost talk, they can't show what doesn't yet exist. Remember that the World war figures are now nearly 23 years old; whereas under our new selective service law the doctor's have been looking down recruits' throats and checking feet and eyesight for little more than four months. The present 44 per cent of rejections looks bad when compared with the World war's 33 per cent; yet, from what official data that has come to light, I'm willing to contend until the cows come home that the present Americans of military age are healthier than their fathers.

Meanwhile, here's some mail.

H. G., Elyria, Ohio: Are all men whose family are dependent upon them automatically exempt from the draft?

Oh, no. A man with dependents is not exempt; he is usually put in a deferred class. A man with wife and children dependent upon him would not be deferred if he had an independent income sufficient to care for them.

G. M. M., Monessen, Pa.: I'm 24. I'm married and work in the steel mill (in the open hearth). When my draft number is called will I be deferred because of my work?

Unless you are what the selective service regulations term "a necessary man" the chances are that your local board would not defer you because of your occupation. If you could be replaced satisfactorily or if your departure would not cause "a material loss of effectiveness" where you work, you would not be classified as "a necessary man." However if your wife depends upon you for support that you could not earn for her in the Army, the local board could, if it chose, grant you a deferment on dependency grounds.

Today's Don't: Don't send down lace curtains for your son's barracks.

Influenza and pneumonia combined cause 10.2 percent of all deaths among negroes, according to the census, while they were responsible for only 7.1 percent of all deaths among whites.

Cities of 25,000 and more showed a total population increase of only five per cent during the last decade, considerably below the seven per cent increase for the country as a whole.

Payment Application On '40 AAA Nears Deadline

College Station, March 27.—All applications for payment under the 1940 agricultural conservation program must be signed and in the county offices by March 31, Fred Rennels, assistant administrative officer in charge of the AAA in Texas, has announced.

The deadline applies to payments for soil-building and range-improvement work as well as regular payments under the conservation program, the AAA official said. The closing date is applicable all over the United States.

To date, 361,628 applications for a total of $43,314,700 have been certified for payment in the state office out of an anticipated 405,000 applications for $50,000,000 in payment under the conservation program, Rennels said.

These payments brought to $71,508,054 the amount received by farmers and ranchmen for cooperating with the 1940 AAA program. Estimates are that the total will reach $78,775,000.

COOKING SCHOOL—

enjoyed every minute of the school." Miss Mary Alice Crosson, home service counselor of the Dalhart Gas company, and of the West Texas Gas company, with headquarters in Lubbock, won the hearts of women in this territory even more completely this year than she did last.

She had an amazing range of recipes and knowledge, not only about cooking, but about buying foods, keeping them fresh and appetizing, and arranging them into the most tasty and healthful combinations.

Her instruction helps not only the young woman, but the veteran; and not only the woman who wants good, plain substantial food on an economy budget, but the woman who wants the most tasty and delicious dishes for parties and the like.

Opening Monday, the school was held three days in the Mission theatre. Classes began daily at 2 p.m. Approximately 100 daily prizes were given each day, including yesterday. And yesterday four grand prizes were awarded—one of them, a $25 credit on a Zenith radio by Hutton & Cummings coming as a complete surprise. It was won by Mrs. H. H. Harton, 1108 Denver.

The modern gas range, given by the Dalhart Gas company, was won by Mrs. Steve Gay, 506 Otis; the $50 credit on a Leonard refrigerator, given by Hutton & Cummings, went to Mrs. Kenneth Israel, 605 Denver; and a Mixmaster, given by Allender's Furniture, went to Mrs. F. L. Montgomery, 119 Tennessee.

First prize in the cake baking contest was won by Mrs. Iva Pitts, 1291 Lincoln; second by Mrs. Alyce Henderson, 423 Rock Island; third by Mrs. Henry Tandy, 501 Keeler; and fourth by Mrs. Arthur Herin, 907 Peach.

The cakes were judged by Miss Crosson; Miss Lillie Henrichs, county home demonstration agent; Mrs. R. M. Thompson, Jr., high school home economics instructor.

Boys Knitting, Too

Winter Haven, Fla. (UP)—Sympathy for Britain is wiping out sex distinctions in Florida. Six Winter Haven junior high school boys may be seen almost any study period knitting scarves and blanket squares, which they turn over to the local Bundles for Britain group. Occasionally the boys and girls get together for sewing bees.

Wildflower Festival Arranged
Trout Lake, Mich. (UP)—A wildflower festival to be held here May 29 through June 1 is one of the first of its kind in the state, and the initial festival of what is hoped will become an annual celebration in the upper peninsula. Two full days of tours of the vicinity, conducted by naturalists, are scheduled.

Poultry, Butter Eggs Now Paying Off For Texas

College Station, March 27.—Cash income on approximately 1000 Texas farms in 42 counties was increased by about $122,000 this past year through the sale of farm produce such as butter, eggs, fryers, fresh fruits and vegetables, canned fruits and vegetables, pickles, jellies and preserves.

Myrtle Murray, home industries specialist for the A. & M. College Extension Service, says this is not "pin money" now that the market for so-called cash crops isn't what it used to be.

These various products were sold at markets operated by home demonstration club women in Bexar, Caldwell, Dallas, Johnson, Potter, Nacogdoches, Polk, Smith, Tarrant, Taylor and Victoria counties. Other club women sold eggs, and some live and dressed fryers through the poultry and egg-marketing associations in Uvalde, Hill, Navarro and Floyd counties.

One family, the Malcolm Jones near Seagoville, Dallas county, sold on a roadside market. Many others sold individually to special customers or to local dealers.
