Here's How Nazis Would Dismember Russia

THE NAZI PLAN for RUSSIA -
TO GERMANY. ALL EUROPEAN RUSSIA WEST OF THE URAL MTS.
TO RUSSIA. ALL TERRITORY EAST OF URAL MTS. AND WEST OF LENA R.
TO JAPAN. ALL TERRITORY EAST OF LAKE BAIKAL AND LENA RIVER.

This map shows how the Nazis plan to cut up the Russian Bear (with the aid of Japan). Germany has a big slice in the West for herself; a big slice in the East goes to Nippon, and what's left would be "free" Russia under orders from Berlin. Even the name of Russia would disappear from the map. This plan was elaborated in detail by Alfred Rosenberg and his expert staff.

SNOW BALKS NAZI TANKS

Germans today hurled horse cavalry against Moscow, when mechanized units and tanks bogged down in snow and mud, while in England there were mounting demands that Britain do something about relieving the pressure on her Soviet ally.

Admitting that bad weather is hampering its mechanized forces before Moscow, Germans nevertheless insisted that the city's main defense had been reached at many points and that some Nazi troops were within 37 miles of the Kremlin.

Berlin claims, undisputed by the Reds, said Nazi forces were still gaining on the Donets basin front. Premier Stalin, it was revealed, has taken personal charge of Moscow's defense and has replaced Marshal Timoshenko with the chief of staff.

The Soviet organ, Red Star, claimed German assaults on Moscow were being thrown back, and many neutral observers believe the front is rapidly becoming static as a result of winter's onslaught. Roads are said to be quagmires, while snow, ice and slush are everywhere.

Moscow said that Red forces are rapidly fighting out of a German encirclement maneuver near Vyazma and joining the main Soviet armies.

Led by left wing Laborites and one Communist, the House of Commons in London today vigorously condemned the Churchill government for failing to open a second front in the West "or somewhere" and take pressure off the beleaguered Soviets. There was talk of calling for a vote of no confidence in the Churchill regime.

Foreign Minister Anthony Eden told Commons bluntly that England does not have material to open a second front, especially since it has been and still is necessary to send a huge stream of it to Russia in order to keep the Soviets fighting at top speed.

He said the Dunkirk evacuation, 16 months ago, stripped Britain of arms and that it had to start over again from scratch.

Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply, told the House of Lords what Stalin privately thinks of the war. Details had not been given the public at noon.

The group demanding action said there were 100 places in Western Europe where Britain could raid and take pressure off Russia. The (Turn to Page 15, Column 5)

FLOODS RECEDE

The flood threat to Dalhart's $500,000 Rita Blanca dam has temporarily receded, but weather forecasts indicate heavy rains in the North Panhandle tonight, continuing perhaps until early tomorrow.

Flood conditions also are apparently improving in the Salina, Kan., area, but six blocks of the Woodward, Okla., business district are under two to three feet of water as a result of 5.65 inches of rain in the past 24 hours. The nearby North Canadian stood at 7.4 feet, which is 3.4 feet above flood stage.

The Rock Island reported drenching downpours all over this Panhandle division which includes a portion of Eastern New Mexico, the Northwest Texas Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma and Kansas. From a quarter to a half inch of rain, it said, fell this morning from Liberal to Pratt, Kan.

The Denver said slow but persistent rains are falling all the way from Texline to Childress. Amarillo has had about 4.5 inches of rain in the past 48 hours.

FUN PLANS BEING MADE

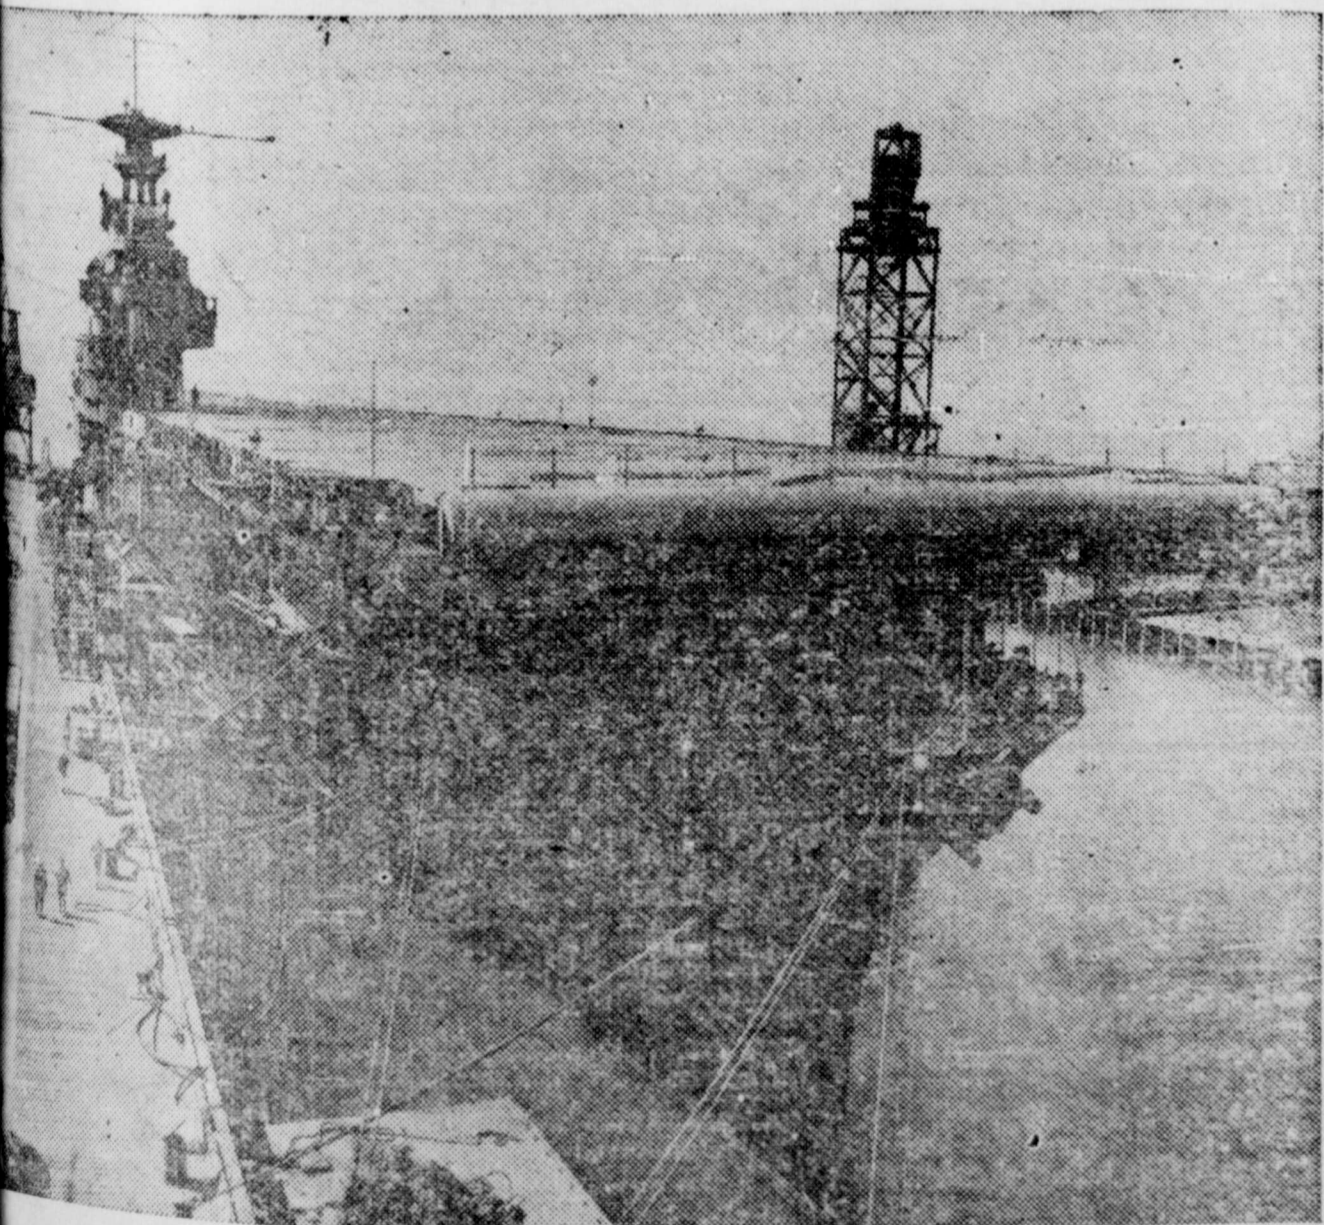

Hog and husband calling, sack and potato races are already on the entertainment program for the First Annual Fall Festival in Dalhart Friday and Saturday, Oct. 31—Nov. 1.

There will also be a special women's milking contest in charge of J. C. Parker, manager of the Mission and LaRita theaters. He hasn't disclosed details, but the event, he said, will be similar to those held several times in the Mission.

The Festival Entertainment committee is Hiram C. Sloan, chairman, John B. Honts and A. O. Swofford.

The contest will be held downtown Saturday afternoon, starting probably about 2:00, Sloan said. Honts will handle the loudspeaker announcements, while Sloan and Swofford will direct the various events.

W. R. Walkup Nabbed By Sheriff's Office

W. R. Walkup, of Texline, was brought to Dalhart last night by Sheriff H. D. Foust to face a swindling charge. Walkup was arrested yesterday in Clovis, Foust said.

THE WEATHER

West Texas: Mostly cloudy with rain tonight and Friday. Heavy rains locally in northern portion this afternoon and tonight and central portion Friday. Colder north portion.

Another New Organization Is Here

We've organized another department.

At the request of many friends, customers and members of our "Late-Frost Department" we have decided to expand our business by creating a "Sunshine and Dry Weather" department that will function only until our farmers have had ample time to gather their crops. After that this department will cease operation until further need.

Now like our "Late-Frost" department, which has produced such wonderful results with so little effort, this new department will have no membership dues, no badges, no conventions and not many meetings. It is open to all, regardless of race, color or creed, and the only qualification for membership is a genuine interest in the harvesting of the finest feed crop in the history of the Panhandle.

Now don't get the wrong impression about our new effort. We are not out expounding any theories about too much rain. We are not yelling our heads off because the rain hasn't come at the time we would have preferred it, or because the dry weather that we wanted didn't show up just when we wanted it most.

No siree, what our new organization expects to do is to direct the activities of the weather man a little more closely. We've had such wonderful cooperation from him on the frost that we think it will meet with his approval if we advise with him about the sunshine. Perhaps he thinks, since we complained so long about dry weather, that we were definitely through with it for all time to come. In fact we would have even admitted as much had we been consulted six months ago.

So, the "Sunshine and Dry Weather" club will work closely with the weather man and together we'll make it possible (we hope, we hope) for every farmer to gather that fine feed crop. We are very liberal. We are not going to confine our efforts to helping only those who use McCormick-Deering farming equipment, but we are going "all-out" for all farmers on this weather control business.

If you care to join our new organization just come in or drop us a letter or postal card and we'll enroll you at once. No dues, no badges, no conventions, no meetings, no banquets, no speeches. Just sunshine and dry weather for sixty days is the sole purpose of this new department.

He said petroleum inventories were only 476,000 barrels below a year ago, and that gasoline storage was 82,000 barrels above.

Fender Sitting Expensive
BUTTE, Mont. (UP)—Hayes M. Spearman could have bought a chair—almost any kind of a chair—on which to sit at a cheaper price than it cost him to sit on the fender of a parked automobile. It is against the law in Butte to sit on car fenders. The police told the court that Spearman was in the habit of lounging all over automobiles. His fender siesta cost him $25.

COMPLETE FEMININE HYGIENE DEMANDS:

MUCH has been written about feminine hygiene. But too often women overlook hygiene in the REAL sense of the word—underarm cleanliness and sweetness. You cannot be attractive with underarms moist, stained and smelly. Use Arrid, the new cream deodorant.

1. Arrid does not rot dresses, does not irritate skin.
2. No waiting to dry. Can be used right after shaving.
3. Instantly checks perspiration 1 to 3 days. Removes odor from perspiration, keeps armpits dry.
4. Arrid is a pure, white, greaseless, stainless vanishing cream.
5. Awarded Approval Seal of American Institute of Laundering as harmless to fabric.

Women use more Arrid than any other deodorant. Try a 10¢, 39¢ or 59¢ jar today at any store which sells toilet goods.

THERE GOES A TIRE!
...but why junk the car?

Any car can have a blowout in a tire. But you wouldn't junk the car. You'd just fix the tire—or replace it.

That's very much like a situation that exists in the retailing of beer. Beer retailing has its "flat tires," too—retailers who disobey the law or who permit unsavory conditions.

To protect your right to drink good beer, we of the beer industry want to eliminate the few "flat tire" retailers. Here's another reason: Right here in Texas, beer has provided employment for 31,165 persons, supports an annual payroll of $22,076,182 and paid $2,273,968.64 in state taxes last year.

The state, too, has an important stake in the beer industry's purchases—for material, equipment and services—from more than 100 other industries.

Those benefits are worth preserving. You can help us preserve them by patronizing only the reputable and legal places where beer is sold and by reporting any law violations you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

Washington—White House advisers have noticed a significant change in the President during the present period of tenseness with Japan. It may be the natural cautiousness of any man upon whose shoulders rests the major decision of war. Or equally important, it may be the very cautious advice of Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations.

At any rate, the president during recent days, appears to be putting the brakes on any bellicose talk about the Far East. A year or so ago, he was just the opposite, completely confident the Japanese were boxed in, cocksure his Navy would have 'em on the run in any showdown.

But last week Admiral Stark painted a much more pessimistic picture, and the State Department, always a bit appeasement-minded, chimed in with him.

However by no means everyone in the Navy agrees with Admiral Stark. Younger naval officers counter Stark's argument that the U. S. fleet is scattered all over two oceans by pointing out that the British now have seven big war units (many of them battleships) on the west coast which could be rushed into any battle of the Pacific.

And to the State Department's argument that every month of waiting weakens the Japanese through our embargo on raw materials, these officers point out that every week of the Russian campaign weakens our chief potential ally in the Far East even more.

Finally, the younger group inside the Navy believes that Navy morale is now at its peak, has the support of American public opinion, and that morale will be the drums if kept waiting too long. It would be natural to discount the enthusiasm of the younger officers, if it were not for the fact that Admiral E. E. Kimmel, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet, and one of the most important men in the Navy, appears to agree with them.

NOTE: Three years ago, when it was proposed that the U. S. Navy cooperate with the British in a long distance naval blockade to shut off the raw materials of war from the Japanese military clique, it was Admiral Stark who said No. Admiral Leahy, former Chief of Naval Operations, then Governor of Puerto Rico, emphatically opposed him, always maintained that was the time to act when the British Fleet was in its prime, Russia had a strong fleet in the Pacific, and the United States had no worries about the Atlantic.

MOSCOW WON'T BURN THIS TIME

Diplomatic dispatches from Moscow report that the Soviet capital probably will not burn easily, except for one particular building. This is the American Embassy. Because the structural materials are inflammable, the Embassy is expected to burn like a lumber yard, if it should catch fire.

Furthermore it is a white structure standing out on the square opposite the Kremlin, and easy mark for bombers. That was one reason most of the Embassy staff was moved long ago.

The rest of Moscow will not be easily destroyed, first because of the concentric circles of wide avenues which will prevent fires from spreading. Therefore, Moscow will not burn, though it may be pounded to pieces.

The Russians have concealed heavy artillery on the rolling hills around Moscow, and the fortifications are strong enough to prevent any rapid advance into the city. Therefore the Nazis are expected to attack chiefly by air and by starvation.

Encirclement of the city in the same manner that the Rumanian-Nazi army surrounded Odessa is sure to be Hitler's tactics.

Note—Military hindsight is always easier than foresight, and now it is known that one reason for the Nazi pounding of Leningrad in the north and Kiev in the south was to draw General Timoshenko's forces from the center. This ruse was successful. Timoshenko sent out wings of defense both to the north and south. Then the Nazis, with their greater mobility, withdrew part of their forces from Leningrad and Kiev, and rushed through the center.

SENATOR LEE'S BULL FIGHT

Now that he is back from Mexico, Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma can eat steak and mushrooms.

He went below the Rio Grande to attend a travel congress in Mexico City, and after a few meals of arroz con pollo and frijoles, he hungered for a good American steak with mushrooms. Going into a restaurant, the Senator from Oklahoma prepared to enjoy himself. But he couldn't speak Spanish, and the waiter couldn't speak English.

So Josh Lee restored to picture writing. He drew a picture of a cow, and beside the cow he drew two mushrooms.

"Si! Si!" said the waiter, and he darted away. Presently he came back, bringing two umbrellas, and a ticket to the bull fight.

"And that," says Lee, "is how I happened to go to the bull fight. was over, I didn't want any steak and mushrooms."

ANTI-WHEELER

Here is the story behind the report that Burt Wheeler would resign his Senate seat and run for reelection to prove that Montana supports his isolationist crusade.

Wheeler's worries started when a state-wide poll conducted by the Great Falls News, previously strong for Wheeler, showed sentiment better than two to one against him. At first Wheeler pooh-poohed the poll. Later Representative James O'Connor, Wheeler henchman who is being groomed secretly to run against Senator Jim Murray, returned to Montana for a personal survey. O'Connor found so little isolationist sentiment that he lined up for the draft extension bill. Whereupon Wheeler decided to rush home himself.

What he found jolted him. Long the Democratic boss of Montana, Wheeler discovered he no longer ruled the roost. Some of the politics were still giving him lip service, but most of the important organization leaders were against him.

Scared and furious, Wheeler launched two counter-bolts. One was the story, put out through a

The U. S. field station, four miles southwest of Dalhart, has recorded 2.84 inches of moisture since Monday noon, which is about a half inch more than was measured by gauges at the Canadian River Gas Co. plant two miles east of Dalhart. Rains all this week have been erratic. The field station registered 1.06 inches for the 24-hour period ending at 8:00 this morning.

In the 16 1-2 hours ending at 7:00 this morning the Rita Blanca and Carrizo creeks dumped 1938 acre-feet of water into Rita Blanca lake. But in the same period the floodgate in the bottom of the dam expelled 738 acre-feet so that the net gain was only 1200 acre-feet. This raised the dam two feet to 48 1-2 feet, which is still two and a half feet below the level of the emergency spillway.

A channel 11 feet deep and 11 feet wide recently was cut in the emergency spillway so that it would handle the water that ordinarily would be taken care of by the regular spillway; whose cement walls and floors were damaged by the floods of a month ago. The mouth of the regular overflow is sandbagged to a depth of five feet to prevent water running through it until repairs can be made.

The Rita Blanca rise, standing four feet deep over U. S. Highway 54 southwest of Dalhart, reached the lake at 2:30 yesterday. It apparently was pretty well spent when the Carrizo, which flows into the Rita Blanca a few miles above the lake, arrived with its flood cargo shortly after midnight. Water was again boosted to four feet over U. S. 54, but was down to three this morning and has been steadily dropping.

SCS officials said the floodgate, which has been half opened, would be closed to a quarter this afternoon. "We're playing a kind of poker game," SCS Chief L. L. Swim admitted. "But we want to keep as much water as possible in the lake, and still provide a margin of safety for the dam."

Mrs. C. W. Keplinger of Amarillo is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hutton.

friendly press source, that he planned to resign and run against Murray, who comes up for reelection next year. The other move was a series of public meetings to woo back waning political support. Both moves boomeranged.

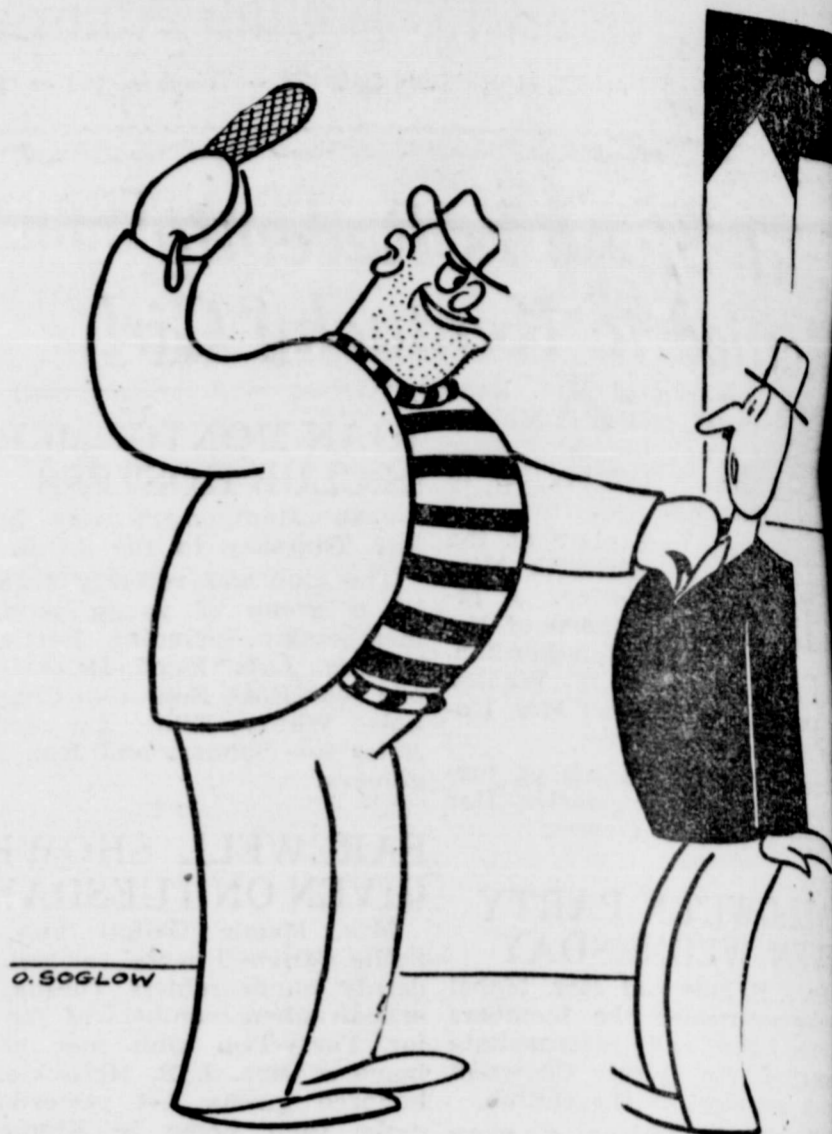

Instead of being frightened by the resignation story, the politicians challenged Wheeler to run. That was the last heard of the matter. At public meetings he was egged, booed and heckled.

So now Wheeler is secretly trying to organize a coalition of isolationist Republicans and Democrats to enter a full slate and congressional candidates under a new third party label, the "America First Party."

NOTE—One reason why political leaders laughed at Wheeler's threat to resign was that this automatically would make him lose his chairmanship of the powerful Interstate Commerce Committee—a highly prized post which he uses constantly to aid the isolationist. It was through this chairmanship that Wheeler engineered the movie probe and named the isolationist-packed committee to conduct it.

LAFF-A-DAY

"One or two lumps, sir?"

Women will attend the Mission theater either Sunday or Monday in droves to see Clark Gable in "Honky Tonk" but the average man will say he had rather do something else. If he does he is missing a good bet. This particular picture was shown to a small group in Dalhart one morning several weeks ago, and let me tell you it is something that even the men will like. It has its full minutes of action, it's fast, thrilling, and with less of the mush that generally goes with most Gable pictures that I have ever seen.

Gable plays the part of a gambler who refuses to reform even though he falls in love with a beautiful, pure and innocent girl, who tries to reform him. Frank Morgan, the girl's father, is an old "sot" who, like a parasite, lives on the generosity of those who feel sorry for him. Rather than see his wicked son-in-law mislead the people the old Judge pays the supreme sacrifice. It is a dramatic story, and you'll love it.

Here it is 10 o'clock in the morning and the weather is almost cold but I'm sweating. That's the truth if I ever told it. And Mrs. Joe Storey is responsible. She called last night to ask if I would say a few words at the banquet being given for the distinguished women visitors in Dalhart today. Of course I protested, but she insisted and I agreed. Right then and there my worry started in. It is difficult enough for me to express myself before a group of men, much less a group of women. I turned and tossed in my bed last night, made a hundred speeches and every one of them was a flop. Right now I'm so nervous that my fingers just bounce off the typewriter keys and I grab for a cigar and smoke furiously. My heart pounds heavily and the blood rushes to my head.

I'll be a nervous wreck before 10 o'clock.

When in high school I was to be a public speaker. I tried to learn. My first public appearance was a terrible, terrible failure. My second (I was supposed to come the seventh grade graduation class into high school) was worse. I repeated practically the same speech the second time trying to think of the last two dozen words. I kept trying when I grew up. I have appeared before the public numerous times. It seems that I would cease bothering me, but it gets worse and worse.

Over at Amarillo during the handle Press meeting I was posed to make a short speech at the closing banquet. I was hard on it, and the more I thought about it the more nervous I became. When finally it came time for the speech my voice quavered and broke and I made a miserable talk, one of the biggest appointments of my life.

So it all sums up to this: I want to do me a favor, never let me speak to a public gathering. I have discovered I can't take

On top of this a letter came this morning to this column from Earl Walker, accusing me of bastarding organized labor. It took pretty hard to take, but I put that to making a speech. Tomorrow the letter and my answer. I can figure one up, will appear in this column. I don't have much chance competing with a man who has the education and background of Mr. Walker, and I prefer to get into a controversy with someone who has me whipped. I start with, but I suppose I go along with the responsibility of a person who has no more sense than to write a newspaper column and occasionally express his personal opinions in it. And I ago I quit trying to please individual or group of individuals.

Former Dalhart Boy Prominent In Colorado College

W. D. Roberts, 22, former Dalhart high school grid star and son of Mrs. Evelyn Roberts, has won outstanding recognition at Colorado State college at Fort Collins, where he will graduate next June. He is majoring in physical education and will graduate with a bachelor's degree, but will have several hours toward his master's degree, it was learned this morning. He plans to teach, instruct in physical education and coach. Roberts graduated from Dalhart high school in 1936 with scholastic and athletic honors and attended Panhandle A. & M. college at Goodwell, Okla., one year. He then entered Colorado State.

He served the sophomore class as treasurer and was named president of the junior class. He is now a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, one of the most prominent and exclusive in the U. S., and is serving it as rush captain. He was intramural heavyweight wrestling king at the college in 1939 and this year is left guard on the varsity grid team.

Masons To Confer Fellowcraft Degree

A fellowcraft degree will be conferred at a called communication of Rock Island lodge No. 869 at 7:30 ts and gay young blades of the human race have one common, according to Elephant Boss Elvin Welsh of Russell American circus, which will show on the ball park on Friday tomorrow afternoon and night. The performances will begin at 7 p.m. and 8 p.m.

They must have to shave regularly if they expect luscious hair like the two shown above, to hang around their necks. Welsh said Welsh, have sharp wire-like hairs that grow like a cutting blade. They are shaved with an acetylene torch only an expert can do it because while an elephant's hair and looks tough it is actually very sensitive. Fleas bite elephants terribly, which accounts for elephants using to swish wisps of hay up over their backs.

They must also be pedicured, else toenails as big as clam shells grow. The "nail file" is a carpenter's rasp, the better. Callouses and bunions sometimes form on the feet of an elephant's feet and have to be reduced with a knife.

Another Big Turnip On Display At Texan

A huge turnip from the Harvey B. Hayes farm in the Shallowater district was brought to the Texan office yesterday by Mrs. Dora W. Davis, Farm Security Administra- tion home service supervisor.

The turnip has a circumference of 20 1/2 inches and weigh about 4 3/4 pounds. It is now on display with other unusually large vegeta- bles in the Dalhart Texan win- dow.

Milton Anderson of Lowry Field, Denver, Colo., visited his aunt, Mrs. Felix Reeves, and family the first of the week.

Wolves Are To Invade Hereford Tomorrow

The Dalhart Wolves, already one game behind in the District 1-A flag chase, will try to even their conference standing tomorrow night at 8:00 when they meet the Hereford Whitefaces in Hereford.

Hereford last Friday at Dumas polished off the creditable Dumas Demons 22-0. However, the Demons opened the game weakened by injuries, and two more players were hurt while the battle was young.

The Wolves last Friday night overpowered the Boise City Wildcats 19-0, and indicated they were definitely over their early-season jitters.

Indirect comparisons indicate that Dalhart has a margin of several touchdowns over the Whitefaces because: Hereford beat Dimmitt 14-0, while Tulia beat Dimmitt 51-0 but nosed Dalhart out only 7-0.

Herman Jenkins, left guard, who missed practice last week and didn't suit out for the Boise City battle, renewed rehearsals this week and may be among the starters tomorrow night, Coach E. A. Kimmins said.

'Juniper Jardine' Menaced

LOGAN, Utah (UP)—"Juniper Jardine" has withstood 30 centuries of the worst abuse nature could offer, but the Forest Service has been forced to take action against two new enemies—souvenir seekers and initial carvers. "Juniper Jardine" is a massive juniper tree, named in honor of William J. Jardine, secretary of agriculture under President Herber Hoover.

Highly-touted Ohio State last weekend squeaked by Purdue 16-14 by virtue of a first-quarter safety, and the spectacular runs of Halfback Dick Fisher. It's still undefeated. Fisher, above, is skirting the Purdue line for a 15-yard gain.

Two Loop Contests Scheduled

Four Southwest conference crews will engage in league play this weekend, two will hit the intersectional trail and SMU will rest.

All the games will be Saturday except the Arkansas-Detroit, Mich. battle which come off in the Capital tomorrow.

Arkansas was smothered 14-18 by mighty Texas last weekend and this week is looking for fresh air and revenge.

The league battles Saturday will see Texas A. & M. against Baylor at College Station, and Texas entertaining Rice. The Aggies trimmed Baylor 14-7 last year, while Rice blanked Texas 13-0.

Last week, as stated above, Texas bested Arkansas, while Rice lost 27-0 to LSU at Baton Rouge. The Aggies last week rolled over TCU 14-0, while Baylor dropped a 6-14 argument to Villanova at Philadelphia.

TCU left yesterday to battle Fordham in New York City Saturday. The Frogs fought gallantly last Saturday but the defending champion Aggies wouldn't be denied.

Border Loop To Push Conference Play This Week

ABILENE—With exception of the New Mexico Aggies, all Border conference clubs will be in league play this weekend. The Aggies will invade Bradley Tech at Peoria, Ill. Arizona University and West Texas State lead with two conference wins in as many strats.

They will lay their leadership on the line this weekend when Arizona U. meets the defending champions, Arizona State at Tempe; and West Texas invades Arizona at Flagstaff.

Last week Arizona U. shellacked New Mexico 13-6, while Tempe moved into fourth place in the circuit by downing the Aggies 19-14. Tempe now has a win, loss and tie. West Texas trounced Western Colo. 66-6, while Flagstaff was idle.

The other two loop battles this weekend will see Hardin-Simmons pitted against Texas Mines, while

Four Lone Star Clubs To Enter Conference Test

COMMERCE—The Lone Star conference teams, with exception of the East Texas State Lions at Commerce, will be busy with loop contests this weekend.

North Texas State College of Denton, which shares the conference lead with the Lions, will entertain Sam Houston State; while Stephen F. Austin will meet Southwest Texas State at San Marcos in the two conference tilts. Both games are tomorrow night.

North Texas State and the Lions have each won a conference game at the expense of Stephen F. Austin which is in the cellar with two straight losses. Southwest Texas and Sam Houston haven't played a loop game.

The Lions with four straight wins and no losses lead the all-season standings, but is rated the underdog against the rough Ouachita, Ark. Teachers who will invade Commerce Saturday night.

North Texas State is second on the all-season standings with three wins and one loss.

New Mexico U. tackles Texas Tech. H-SU and Tech are now in the loop this year and these games will be their conference openers.

Hardin-Simmons last weekend battled undefeated San Jose State to a 7-7 draw on the West coast; while Texas Mines, despite a brilliant aerial assault, had to bow 6-20 to Loyola. The Miners completed 32 passes out of 61 tries. New Mexico, as stated above, lost to Arizona, while Tech brushed off Centenary 25-0.

Boys Ranch Meets South Ward Friday

Old Tascosa—Boys Ranch six-man football team will meet Dalhart South Ward in Dalhart tomorrow afternoon about 3:30, and the Ranchers are putting final touches on their strategy for the fight.

The Ranchers defeated the South Warders, 19-6, in a game ten days ago. Clarence Jerry, Jr., is Boys Ranch coach; Frank Jones is South Ward coach.

The W. J. White family have moved to Pratt, Kan.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Who benefits most from purchase of Defense Savings Bonds?
The buyer: He has only lent money to the Government and gets it back should he need it. Bonds will increase in value. He is laying by future spending against a time of need.
Has labor voiced any objection to the participation of union members in pay-roll allotment for the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds?
On the contrary, voluntary allotment plans have been urged by the leadership of the I. O. O. F., and C. I. O., and the United Brotherhoods, as well as by many unions at national conventions.
Where to buy Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps, go to your post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps on sale at retail stores.

Meat Balls With Noodles
Broadcast by Mary Lee Taylor, October 15, 1941

1 cup ground beef (1/2 pound) 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 cup ground pork (1/2 pound) 2 tablespoons hot fat
1 1/2 cups Pet Milk 10 1/2-oz. can condensed vegetable soup
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs 3/4 cup water
2 tablespoons finely cut onion 3 cups broken noodles* (1/4-inch wide)
3 1/2 teaspoons salt 8 cups boiling water
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Mix together beef, pork, 3/4 cup milk, bread crumbs, onion, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt and pepper. When milk is absorbed, wet tips of fingers with water and shape mixture into 18 small balls. Roll balls in flour. Cook until brown on all sides in hot fat. Pour mixture of soup and water over balls. Cover and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, cook noodles until tender in boiling water and remaining 2 teaspoons salt. Drain, then add to soup mixture along with remaining 3/4 cup milk. Heat thoroughly, but do not boil. Serve at once, arranging meat balls on top of noodle mixture. Serves 6.

Present Relief Plan Undermines Character; Babson Proposes Idea

By Roger Babson
 BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 23.—A recent column, in which I discussed what would happen to business after World War II, has brought to me several suggestions. Among these is one from E. H. Pearson of Autaugaville, Ala., which I desire to pass on to readers.

Strange to say, a letter along the same lines came to me a while ago from a group of economists in Holland.

What About Markets?
 The immediate need after the war will be for markets for peacetime goods. These must be manufactured in great quantities in order to keep employed the millions now engaged in the manufacture of munitions. Furthermore, we are to have a great demand for machinery, building materials, and merchandise from abroad by people who have no money with which to pay.

We, therefore, must work out some way to consume the finished goods which we are then able to produce apart from the wearing-out process and a World War every 25 years. A trade-in plan such as the automobile people have developed but made applicable to all industries has possibilities. Consumers need be trained to replace goods before they wear out.

We Will Need New Machinery
 We are advised to look for new uses and new products for raw materials and finishing goods. This means new markets must be secured. Manufacturers are today using fully depreciated tools and machinery which they should trade in for new machinery so as to give the American people better goods for less money. Prosperity comes only from lower taxes and lower prices. Continuous employment is far more important than increases in wages or unit profits.

We need some way to make it possible for the worker and those having private funds to consume the new finished goods that will be available a few years hence. Those who have funds to buy with are usually thrifty people. Being thrifty, they wear out the goods they own unless they are offered a value for such goods. Cannot the trade-in system which has been used in creating the automobile, refrigerator, and stove markets be applied to 100 industries?

Europe After the War
 After this war is over our neighbor nations in war-torn Europe and Asia are going to look to us for food, clothes, and other products. One good crop year in Europe will in a large measure greatly help solve the food problem. Their lack of raw materials, however, will make it difficult to make machines, clothing, bedding, and many other things for years to come. We will have to help these people in one of two ways:

1. With our warehouses full to overflowing with raw cotton and other products and our manufacturing setup geared to convert these into finished goods, we can continue to tax our overtaxed people by buying such new finished goods from our manufacturers and shipping them to needy nations; or 2, we can now organize trade-in centers, selling our new goods to our own people and shipping the used goods abroad. I earnestly urge the latter policy.

Establish Trade-In Centers
 We could have trade-in setups in all trade centers of our nation without any more government employees. We have plenty of Federal setups now functioning which can be used for this purpose. To these centers our consuming public could carry their used-goods and, after having such goods appraised, receive a trade-in certificate from the Federal Appraiser. This certificate, if used in ten days, would be good as cash in the purchase of new machinery and goods costing three times the face value of the certificates. The used machines and goods would be for export. In fact, no new products should be allowed to leave the country except as paid for by cash.

We will have accomplished the following: Remove from the channels of domestic trade enough used goods so that our consumers are able to replace such used goods with new merchandise. Two-thirds of the cost would be paid for by

CHAPTER THIRTY

An old French clock in the living room struck noon. What was everyone doing? Why hadn't Garrison telephoned? And Mat—? Fan suddenly had to confide in someone. She went into her bedroom, and shook David Farland awake. The drug had worn off. He was tossing in hallow dreams. He sat bolt upright. "I've got to talk to you," she said. This may explain—I mean, I do now something about Charlie's past life. She was afraid—always afraid, as I am now."

Fan sat on the edge of the bed, she flung the envelope at him, and lunged the contents of the tin box on her bed cover. She hadn't looked, herself, at what was in the box. There were letters, a diary, and a list of names.

David, coming out of his daze, lingered there while Fan talked. Her words poured out, disjointed, incoherent.

There had been a man in Charlie's life before she met Mattila Breanu. Fan didn't know anything about him, except that he had some sort of hold on Charlie, and that Charlie was scared.

David handled the few documents, his brow creased. "I can't make sense of this," he muttered. Give me that envelope."

"I can't make sense of it either." Fan's round face was troubled. "But look at the numeral seven—the dates, the figures. They're written like foreign sevens—I mean with a bar across the stem. We don't write events that way here."

David didn't think it was very important how one wrote sevens. After all, these old notes to Charlie, which he scanned, were not those of a lover. The list of names meant nothing to him, except that there were these occasional crossed sevens and dates or amounts.

"Well then, what do you make of this?" Fan thrust at him the top sheet of the dummy bulk in the envelope.

David gave it a disgusted glance. His head still ached. "If you ask me, it's junk!" His face grew red as he thought of Jane. With sudden suspicion, he demanded, "How does Breanu make his sevens?"

"With bars," Fan answered. The telephone by the bed, rang. Fan answered it, conscious that David was leaping out of the opposite side of the bed, and flying to her dressing room where his clothes were.

She said, "Hello," listening to the loud sound of the shower. It was Richard Garrison's voice, low, urgent. "They've found Anna Sweitzer's body, beaten up, not far from your place. Send Farland around here at once." His voice ended urgent.

Mattila Breanu was an aroused and bitter man the Sunday morning after Garrison's party. It had been a night of mistakes and frustration. For once, nothing he planned had gone his way.

His mood black as his robe, he glowered over a late breakfast. Cool October light came through the indows of the sun room.

The "big shot" cursed Fan Ruby softly and terribly in his native tongue. His sick hate moved like a archlight around him. Wherever he turned, he found himself hemmed by images of passion and despair.

Last night, for so short a time, he had felt happy with Jane Rider beside him—youth, fine, beautiful. Yes, he had felt warm and tender as he had never felt toward brilliant Charlie.

But Jane had let him down. She had sneaked away from Garrison's party with a nosey newspaperman.

In Breanu's tortured brain flashed the picture of the junk arsenal on the lonely meadowlands of New Jersey, the time Farland and Wright followed him to the creek. Blasted young snoopers! They hadn't found out anything. Perhaps tonight—perhaps tomorrow night, the greased chain would slip his cargo out on its dangerous passage to the Black Sea.

Breanu rose like a man on borrowed time, and went to the piano at which Charlie had so often sat, playing and singing in her low rich voice. His short fingers touched the notes delicately, lingeringly. He didn't hear the doorbell.

Kurt Helm came in, unannounced. He had pushed Doremus aside. But for a second he paused, seeing that stocky figure on the piano bench, outlined in the big room crowded by antiques. Breanu's music was limpid in melancholy, broken by ancient themes of folk dances.

Helm, svelte and blond, stood in a shadow, listening. These airs that Breanu improvised, clicked in his mind. The ageless beauty of them moved him strangely. He felt a sense of triumph. Mat Breanu was giving away a secret, without knowing it. The single clue—that bar of music Charlie had scribbled on top of an empty page in the dummy bulk of the envelope, now pointed to this place.

"Sorry to interrupt," Helm presently advanced on Breanu who, startled, crashed a minor chord, and swung around.

"How did you get in, Helm?" His voice was harsh.

The telephone whirred on a small gilt table. Breanu went to answer, and Kurt Helm followed him, smiling.

It was Attorney Garrison. "Are you alone, Mat?"

"No," Breanu snapped. "Well, this can't wait," Garrison said sharply, as if his patience were exhausted. "We haven't caught the Sweitzer man yet. We assume he killed his wife. As for Jane, Bill tells me that he left her at her friend Madge's apartment, after a round of the night spots. Now he's worried. And when he telephoned at nine this morning, the girl friend said Jane had taken a train for Haverstraw."

Helm moved nearer, cocking his ear towards the receiver. Breanu tried to push him away.

Garrison went on urgently, "The Rider girl told Bill a few things which bring other angles into the case. Do you know anything about this writer chap, Helm, who lives opposite the Riders? Jane told Bill he'd got her a job with some people called Givens, living near Haverstraw."

Breanu's hand covered the mouthpiece, and he turned around. Helm's jade green eyes were intent. If Breanu told on him, then he would tell on Breanu.

Mat answered Garrison's question with, "No, I don't know a thing, Dick. Not worried about the Rider girl, are you?"

"Maybe," Garrison rang off.

"So?" Kurt Helm said softly to himself. "So?"

"What do you want with little Jane Rider?" Breanu's dark face was convulsed. "If I thought—"

Helm shrugged and laughed. "Nothing she isn't willing to give. She is a sweet child. I wouldn't hurt her. At present, she is of enormous help. The good people around that part of the county will come to my lectures, subscribe to my little magazine, and contribute to my great cause." He paused to light a cigarette.

"That's interesting," said Breanu, "but you will leave Jane alone, hereafter."

Helm walked over to the piano. He didn't want Breanu to see his face just then. He looked at the photograph of Charlie. "I need Jane in my business," Kurt said.

Breanu grew livid. He walked out of the room. He came back with his ebony stick. His fingers pressed on the golden band. Gripping the handle, he jerked out the sword.

"You interfere with me, Helm—" He moved lightly, his black robe parted on his white shirt. His wrist was supple from long practice. The tempered steel was living as he whipped it from its cane socket.

"You are also a duellist, I know," he said. "In that Italian chest behind you, you'll find quite a collection of swords."

Kurt laughed, with a flash of his hand to his hip pocket. "Check!" he said, and the gun he directed upon Breanu meant business. "I happen to be expert at fencing in more ways than one. Drop it, Breanu, and stop wasting our time!"

Breanu knew when he was beaten. He slowly returned his sword to its ebony sheath.

"That's better," Helm pocketed his revolver and sat down in one of the big carved chairs. "The world has gone mad. We might as well profit by it, instead of quarreling over women."

"What do you propose?" Breanu waited, his heart thick with fury.

"When we last met in your office, we talked frankly enough." Helm crossed his knees, leaning back on the red damask of the chair, his narrow hands on the carved arms. "Our interests are not dissimilar. But, may I observe, my dear fellow, that your gun-running scheme will not, in the end, prove very practical. You will find that similar enterprises in America may be safer. I have friends who can use your name, your—prejudices."

Breanu scowled. "I'm sending this first shipment, any moment now, depending on the tides. My captain has his papers. You know that, of course."

Helm nodded, and got up, sauntering about the room. "It's agreed I'm in on that, fifty-fifty. You won't lose, because I'll put you in the way of other things. Now what are we going to do about the ill-advised curiosity of Attorney Garrison, that red-headed Farland boy, his pal, Wright, and that—friend of yours, the alluring Mrs. Rubley? By the way, are you quite sure she isn't—"

"Let's have a drink," Breanu suggested brusquely. He rang. No answer. "Confound that man of mine!" He went out to the pantry. Doremus had gone to keep his Sunday tryst with Selinda.

Hearings On Price Control Completed

WASHINGTON — The House Banking committee today completed hearings on the Administration's proposed price control bill.

Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, too ill to testify, sent the committee a statement saying some kind of price control is necessary to avoid inflation.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard earlier this week told the committee that the nation is already starting on the same ruinous inflation surge and at about the same time as in World War 1. Parallels between conditions now and in World War 1 are too close for comfort.

He admitted a rapid rise in farm commodity prices, but said they still are not inflationary because they were so drastically subnormal when the upswing started. He said in 1939 the farm price level was on 75 per cent of the so-called parity base period of 1909-14.

Hillman Accused Of Pushing AFL

WASHINGTON.—A. D. Lewis, chairman of the Construction Workers Organizing committee of the CIO and brother of former CIO Chief John L. Lewis, today accused Associate OPM Director Sidney Hillman of being a recruiting officer of the AFL. He also told the Senate Defense Investigating committee that Hillman's stabilization agreement with the AFL was only a cloak to give the AFL a monopoly in defense building.

Hillman, testifying just ahead of Lewis, denied that the AFL was being given a monopoly. He said his only interest was to avoid labor trouble and resultant delays in defense construction.

"I read about Hoyt's Compound in the paper, and I tried it. It gave me wonderful results. The pains, headaches, gas, belching and bloating are gone, and my bowels are regular. I hope others may find the same relief, for Hoyt's has been a blessing!"

Hoyt's Compound is recommended and sold by the Wolf Drug Store, and by all other druggists in this area.

Early Week Rains Heavier South And East From Dalhart

Rains Monday and Monday night apparently were heavier south and east of Dalhart, at least in some areas, than they were here.

L. D. Morton, formerly of Dalhart and now of Dumas, said three inches fell in Dumas Monday and Monday night.

W. L. Mitchell, Hartley county farmer 11 miles south of Dalhart, reported at least two and a half inches.

Gauges at the Canadian River Gas Co. plant, two miles east of Dalhart, registered about an inch for the Monday afternoon and night period. The U. S. field station, four miles southwest of Dalhart, measured 1.78 inches.
