BRANT & COMPANY
208 P. & B. Bldg. Ranger, Texas

90-FT. DERRICK STOLEN; ONLY PART OF LOOT
Special to The Times.
FORT WORTH, Oct. 25.—Thieves made literally a clean sweep when they rebbled a well of the National Producing & Refining company on block 55, Purdum street, field, damaging the hole to the extent of $17,000, and stealing approximately $8,000 worth of equipment.
The company discontinued operations early in August. When its representatives went to the well recently they discovered it had been stripped of everything of value, and the thieves had damaged it to such an extent that it is doubtful it can ever be of value again.
A ninety-foot derrick, two 100-barrel tanks, a half mile of 2-inch pipe, a Fairbanks water pump, 640 feet of 2-inch casing, a half-inch casing, four pieces of six and five-eighths casing, a 2,000-foot measuring line, tools and other drilling equipment had been stolen and the thieves left no clue as to their identity.
About 300 feet of six and five-eighths casing in the well had been so badly damaged in a futile attempt to steal it, while the hole was damaged to the extent it is estimated, of $18,000. The well was 1,700 feet deep and the company had planned to resume drilling this month.

Holmes, superintendent of state missions, and H. Boyd Keith, Dallas superintendent of benevolence.

Bay State Has A Philosopher At the Helm
International News Service.
BOSTON, Oct. 25.—By practice "adequate brevity" Governor Coolidge has a literary skill that has attracted wide attention. President Meiklejohn of Amherst college brought this to public notice in an address conferring upon the governor the degree of doctor of laws.

Now Governor Coolidge has published a book called "Have Faith in Massachusetts," containing his most important official writings and speeches.

Some of the notable passages in it are:
"Have faith in Massachusetts. In some unimportant detail all other states may surpass me, but in the general results there is no place on earth where the people secure in a larger measure the blessings of organized government."
"Do the day's work. If it be to protect the rights of the weak, whatever objects, do it. If it be to help a powerful corporation better to serve the people, whatever the opposition, do that."
"Don't hesitate to be as revolutionary as science. Don't hesitate to be as reactionary as the multiplication table. Don't expect to build up the weak by pulling down the strong. Don't hurry to legislate. Give administration a chance to catch up with legislation."
"When you substitute patronage for patriotism, administration breaks down."
"The people who start to elect a man to get what he can for his district will probably find they have elected a man who will get what he can for himself."
"Service in the general court is not obligatory, but optional. It is not to be undertaken as a profession or a means of livelihood. It is a voluntary public service."
"No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave."
"We have lost our reverence for the profession of teaching and bestowed it upon the profession of acquiring."
AEROPLANE STRIGES A FAMILY—FATHER KILLED
International News Service
LANELEY, Va., Oct. 25.—A remarkable disaster in which an aviator's car was destroyed was here.

David Watts, a retired tradesman of Laneley, took his three children for a drive in his ownership car on the beach. An aeroplane was preparing to make an ascent close by, and the pilot apparently misjudged his approach, or else had no sense of direction, for the machine crashed into the ownership car. Mr. Watts and one of the children were killed. The father was suffering for a week in a hospital, died.

Self-Cleansing Bridgework Oral Hygiene Prophylaxis
—BY—
Dr. Jeff Halford
Crown and Bridgework Specialist

Self-cleansing Bridgework is one of the chief advancements in the dental art which has been recorded in the past fifty years. There is a type of natural teeth which appear to be self-cleansing. Then again, other natural teeth are very hard to keep clean; in fact, impossible to keep clean unless a dentist is employed.

Almost any bridgework is easier to keep clean than some natural teeth, because some natural teeth are very hard to keep clean, while if bridgework is properly made its three surfaces are easily reached with the tooth brush and cleansing agent.

Bridgework for the Lower Jaw is made self-cleansing by having the bridge made of solid gold; the cusps on top of the bridge are made to articulate with the upper teeth and are easily cleansed. The under surface of a lower bridge should be V shape, so that the tooth brush will cleanse all surfaces. In fact, if a bridge is made this way, a person cannot brush his teeth without cleansing the bridge.

The upper bridge is as easily cleaned, but it requires just a little more time and pains. The outer surface of upper bridge teeth is usually porcelain (white) and is easily cleansed. The under surface is gold, and slants from the upper inner side of the white facing downward and inward, and connects with the grinding or occlusal surface. The tooth brush is easily made to cleanse it. The one feature about bridge teeth is that there are no inter-proximal spaces between them for food lodgement, and as cavities cannot form in bridge teeth as they do in natural teeth, it is admitted that a well-kept bridge is cleaner than the average natural teeth.

Oral Hygiene and Prophylaxis (Clean Mouth)

A clean mouth includes a clean set of teeth, for if the teeth are not clean, the mouth is not—and surely there is no question but that a clean, well-kept set of teeth is one of the most valuable possessions a person can have.

In fact, there is a large profit in a person's teeth clean, because his dental bills are one-half if the teeth are well cared for. It is a pleasure to hear about our soldiers and sailors' paste when a tooth brush dipped in a little salt, makes of tooth cleansers in the world. At the same time, if you toughen the gums if a person will give sage with the thumb or finger, always ward the tooth on the lower gum and tooth on the upper gum, as this will give exercise and also aid the circulation.

ORAL HYGIENE is defined as the practice of keeping a healthy mouth, and in order to do this, consult a dentist every six months.

PROPHYLAXIS means the prevention of dental decay and dental prophylaxis would mean gums such care and attention as to state of health. This can only be done by cleansing and frequent calls on a dentist.

THE FOR OIL DELAYS

A. Wilke.
Oct. 25.—All delay in the past few weeks is due to bad road conditions of the recent heavy rain which has retarded the steel work.

Contractors complete their work claim that they have an account of shortage of steel which might have been avoided. This is of rig builders who are in a certain time when on the contract.

The strike in the North affected this field to a great extent as yet but the work is being done as fast as the material and mostly by hand. The large companies in this field main houses at Ranger, Oklahoma, and the supply will be enough to last time.

Larger companies require tools in the form of work them up in the shops. All of the tools and fishing tools skilled mechanics in that reason the strike to a great extent by the fact that they have material now on hand. Some of course have to buy equipment from Ft. Thoma and delays probably will be experienced by this equipment.

Work in this field has been delayed now for some time because of the rain. A fallen here almost the past two weeks, but the roads in very bad and it is now almost impossible to get large trucks and heavy machinery to the field. Construction is being delayed on account of the rig contractors a rig with wet timbers, probably more men out in this field than has been in the past. However, is not due to the rain but on account of a considerable activity in the field and there are probably wells which will be drilled upon the recent rain. The pumping campaign is planned to start in the near future and will surpass the work in this field. This campaign is being carried out in an extension of the field.

The shooting of the Kingbird in the well to the north of Eastland and a company now is coming, although the conditions in it is believed to be a field will extend West of the well.

This well will open up a new territory and will be a good small producer. The field may prove to be a great one in the Cañon field, where tight sand is encountered and all wells are to be shot.

The geologist claim, however, that this is not necessary as it is possible that this condition covers only a small area and that good production is not to be expected.

The Balentine wildcat well on the north tract is the well which is attracting the greatest attention right at present time. This well is nearly 800 feet deep and according to geologists is due to strike a low oil and gas sand shortly. This is being drilled by Balentine as a well and will be drilled through about a thousand feet. The geologist should be as successful in finding in this well as he was in finding in the 1 and 2 of the Ranger Oil field. It will not only make his geologist but will prove a great deal of new territory.

SAID TO BE COLONIZING UPPER SILESIA AS THE POLISH STATES TO POLICE COUNTRY DURING PLEBISCITE

American regular troops boarding transport at New York for Silesia and map of Upper Silesia.

American troops have just left this country for Upper Silesia, where they will act as police during the coming plebiscite. The Silesians are to decide by vote whether they shall belong to Poland or Germany. A vast majority of the population of Upper Silesia is Polish, but the German minority is being swelled by colonists from Germany for the coming plebiscite, according to report.

The Germans have confessed to the use of force and the commission of atrocities in Upper Silesia. They are old hands at transporting Poles in droves, or rendering their tenure of their own lands intolerably inconvenient.

brought in Wednesday but was delayed by the heavy rain, it is 3465 feet and is making good production from the black line.

No. 2, is rigging up and the Prairie Oil & Gas is rigging up an off-set of the same tract.

The Barber well adjoining this lease to the south is making about 1200 barrels a day now. This is one of the heaviest producers which the States Oil Corporation has drilled. There has also been several completions on the Norwood, Boyd and Littleton tracts this week but all of this is entirely proven up and there is nothing essential on the bringing in of a well on either of the three tracts.

The Colony School house well on the Hawk tract probably will be brought in today or Sunday.

The development also is still working south of Eastland and Desdemona. Should another good well be brought in in this field the entire stretch between Eastland and Desdemona will be spotted with rigs within the next 60 days.

ELECTRIC PLANT HELPS GENERAL HOSPITAL PLANS

Miss Lena Clermont, owner of the Ranger General Hospital, has purchased a $1,400 electric plant for the hospital and expects to have it installed within the next two weeks. The Davenport residence, just north of the hospital, on the Strawn road, has been purchased to provide a home for hospital employees.

The Ranger General Hospital has been in operation several months. Most people do not realize the tremendous difficulties under which this institution has labored. The three things most essential to a modern hospital—lights, sewers and running water—have been lacking. What this means to such an institution can be grasped only by an inspection of the makeshifts which have to be employed. All the water used in the sterilizing room and in all the rooms, for that matter, has to be carried up by hand. Unsatisfactory lights have added to the difficulties of operation and the problem of sewage disposal has been difficult of solution.

Sewer connections will soon be made, and the electric light plant purchased by Miss Clermont will solve the problem of lights, but no immediate relief in the way of running water is in sight.

Miss Clermont, Mrs. A. L. Daly, superintendent, and H. B. Richardson, a hospital expert from New York, aided by other employees, are working night and day to take care of the sick and the victims of accident that are brought to the hospital. Some of their work is with patients sent to the hospital by the city, and owing to the depleted city treasury, no payments have been received for this work, according to Mr. Richardson.

Miss Clermont is planning extensive additions to the Ranger General Hospital. The institution has a great deal of modern equipment and has a capacity of forty-one patients. Miss Clermont deserves credit for the work she has done. Every day brings proof of the urgent need of a modern hospital and of the good results being accomplished at this institution.

Weather Holds Up Filtration Plant

Completion of the filtration plant of the city waterworks system has been greatly delayed on account of bad weather. The road to the filtration plant is almost impassable.

Shortage of materials needed in the construction of the filter also has handicapped the builders, but this shortage now has been relieved, according to R. E. Neims, superintendent of the Ranger Waterworks company, and three weeks of good weather should see the plant finished.

The waterworks company still is busy making taps for water connections. Every day new firms and individuals take advantage of the raw water from the lake by installing taps.

ALL FOR THE TAILOR.

For 50,000 in 1920." was the slogan adopted here in 1919. It provoked laughter of our sister cities. They believe we could do it. And "dollar squeezers" in our own that pussyfooting gentry which here to grab our dollars and off to another town to spend were incredulous.

But "50,000 in 1920" is going to be realized. In fact from present indications 50,000 is going to be a too conservative figure. Something like 75,000 would be more reasonable.

Seventeen city additions sprang in real estate existence in Ranger during the spring and summer. The local hooted the idea of Ranger even coming a residence city. He had left the mudhole and cesspool inscriptions of his own domicile his mind was frosted with the tiful memory of the cheap town which he cloped. But these fifteen residence divisions opened, who had seen Tulsa, Drumright other towns spring into virile quickly grasped the situation that Ranger had them work shade. The seventeen most sold out, lock stock and the lots did not go to either. They were purchased by workers in the oil field who know and who were willing to hold until the "evils of night" city could get on such Dallas, Tulsa and in the face with a job send them reeling into the class of marts of industries. Ranger is largely made up of anything wore pants in Ranger a few months ago. The lots which so "ador" the families of our present flock had not come into prominence served to be a utility borer who must be out in the proportion of males to Ranger now runs around to one. And expressed in there are at least 20,000 men in Ranger and the contingent.

Of this number at least married men. Allowing and of these have their we have eight thousand are spending nice, in other West Texas of these days there is to of wives and children. and women should bring up to 33,000 in a jiffy, away!

Our family contains three times 8,000 gives us inhabitants which added we would have by the, would bring our population to 14,000.

"sheep we have also" - because which has been and by the lure of and its get-up-iveness in during the next build up our population in the middle of 1920 the be conservatively expected.

Recent development and express Ranger is going to the wonderment. Its name will be on the minds of the daily sense a desire of other towns who three bricks at us come to this city, those who were less critical already.

Alfred T. Ringling head of El-

tion of a return of the lines to private owners. Many economic experts have freely expressed this opinion.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen are now in the limelight with a demand for a substantial wage increase. It is pointed out by certain well informed railroad students that to grant the demands would be tantamount to a blanket increase for all other railroad men. Not only is one craft of the railroad workers jealous of the other when additional stipends are being doled out, but they seem to be equal to the demand in presenting reasons why they should not be forgotten in the administration.

In the meantime many of the railroads are fearful that on the return of their properties they will not be in as good condition as when the government took them over. The Cotton Belt head is one of those in question. Recently he charged that the railway administration had allowed the line to become so dilapidated that it was unsafe for trains. The government sent a special inspector to go over the lines. From the newspaper reports it seems that he had no experience in judging condition of railroad properties. He rode on an observation car at a slow rate of speed and between puffs of his odiferous Havanas squinted his eyes at stretches of the track that seemed good. The state railroad commission sent its special inspector over the same line on a hand car. The disparity of the two reports is woefully "harmonious."

With the labor unrest, the unkept condition of the lines, and the counteractive effect of the government losing money daily by their operation, the railroad situation is in a very bad snarl. The public in general is praying that the appeals of the workers for higher wages not be heard—not because the public is opposed to the men receiving more wages—but because it means that the public must meet these wages out of its own pocket, by being subjected to payment of higher freight rates.

It is even doubtful if the railroad companies themselves can make their roads pay without additional increases for their services. The government under its "economic" system of rail operation has failed to smite the augmenting operating expenses. If the roads are passed back to the owners with wage increases granted and freight rates left at the same old figure, the public may certainly look for serious industrial troubles. The mounting wages pitted against the small freight rates will culminate in many a road being thrown quickly into the hands of receivers. At present the rail owners are enjoying a splendid profit by government operation. The men are receiving the first decent wages of their lives.

There is apparent a general trepidation on the part of the government to turn the roads back to their owners because of the nightmare of industrial disturbances which would follow, and yet the government certainly would like to turn loose to biting and scratching animal that is trying to extricate itself.

Every "bum" loafer, hobo and unemployed dade in Ranger should be started in one of the four directions out of Ranger as soon as possible. The vagrancy laws of this city should be enforced to the limit. A decrease in population might result, but this class of citizenship is very undesirable. And there's lot of them here.

PETROGRAD MEANS BEGINNING OF THE END FOR RED

The fall of Petrograd may not mean the immediate death of Bolshevism, but observers declare it the beginning of the end. The Russian forces in this part of Russia fighting Lenin are led by General Yudenich, who is closely co-operating with the allies, as well as with Admiral Kolchak of the Siberian army, and General Denekine of the Southern army.

YOUNG LAD TO BE CHARGED WITH $83 FORGERY

A 15-year-old boy from [unclear] has been arrested by local police in connection with a forgery to the amount of $83, which he is alleged to have perpetrated on a local merchant. The check given the merchant here bore the name of a citizen of Ranger. It was pronounced to be a forgery when presented for collection and the police arrested the lad. He was taken to Eastland Thursday afternoon by county officials. Since he claims to be only fifteen years old it is regarded as certain in case of conviction he will be sent to the state reformatory school. Hall said at headquarters his parents are both dead. He admitted having been tried before the juvenile court in Dallas, on one occasion, but claimed he was acquitted. The lad was treated with as much consideration as was possible under the circumstances. Local officers expressed sympathy for him, but their duty demanded that he be turned over to proper authorities for trial.

Midnight Follies On "Ranger Roof" Well Christened

The Midnight Follies is well named. The old Ranger roof garden on Austin street, rechristened, bears this title. The idea is simple, as are all truly great ideas, and it works best on the same kind of patrons. The place has an unspoken slogan which might be "Get it all," and the staff does its best to live up to it. The price of admission is two-bits, reasonable enough, you say. But wait a minute. For each dance the house receives an additional fee of 10 cents, and the girls, in the employ of the house, get the tip of 15 cents. Not so bad, you remark. Quite true. If a program of twenty dances were danced, this would amount to a little more than five dollars. The dances are painfully short. One patron arriving just a little after the start of the dance one night this week, checked his program when the evening was finished, at 1 a. m., and found he had danced 100 dances. His dance fee alone, then, was $2.50. The girls are exponents of a new dance. The floor is fast and the air of activity about the place is infectious. The average dancer, however, is a nervous worker. A nervous amusement, can goods than 100 brief commercial dances. The Follies is right. Though the only claim to the first part of the name is that the place operate an hour and a half later than the city ordinances allow, the last self is well chosen.

Ghosts and Hard Luck John Timps Never Were Friendly and Congenial

By Paul C. Yates. "Timps, do you believe in ghosts?" asked Tim Beady, as he vigorously kneaded a batch of dough. "Hard Luck John Timps was transferring a kettle of hot soup from the stove to the table. He paused and stared at Beady in surprise. The kettle burned his hand and he dropped it with a pained exclamation. The hot soup splattered on his ankle, which was sufficient in the matter of hosiery, and he gave voice to another exclamation more pointed than the first. "Of course," I believe in them," he declared. "Moreover, I've seen them—many and many a time I've watched them sit around the foot of the bed at night for hours at a stretch and never bat an eye. I never did say nothin' to them, though, for I know a ghost has peculiarities and maybe they are pretty sensitive. They again, it allus sets me to studyin', if I think one is 'nussin' around, and I ain't in a mood for no levity. "To get down to the truth of it, I'm skeered of ghosts. If I was to die and set to be one among them, I figger I'd be skeered of them just the same. I never could enjoy their company under no circumstances and the more scabbiel they get the more nervous they make me, shore. "You see, Beady, they are lackin' in manners. They don't wait for an invitation to come to see you, but they take a mean advantage and crawl through the keyhole when you're in bed and ain't expectin' them. And they surprise you, even if you knowed they was comin'. If one was to try to slap you on the back, it would only skeer you out of six months more of life. "I never would be contentious with any kind of spook. If I had a house and one wanted to move in it, I'd move out, right away. And as far as goin' out to their headquarters in the graveyard, I'd risk it in the daytime if I was helpin' bury a friend, but I wouldn't go nowhere clost after night, not if some feller would offer me a dollar to do it, shore I wouldn't. "If you'd so to work and help get supper you'd make a better hit with me," stated Beady. "You might clean that soup off the floor and straighten things out around here." "I'm plumb upset now," replied Timps. "I don't reckon I'll be able to work for a week. I never could
