FIVE ARE KILLED IN PRISON OUTBREAK

ABOUT THIS AND THAT.....

By W. H. MAYES Jr.
These lawyers are hard to beat. A report from Fort Worth says that Joe Jones, district attorney of Eastland, parked his car in a loading zone. When he appeared before the desk sergeant he gave the policeman some legal advice in exchange for his fine.

Now if Jones can just exchange legal knowledge and advice for groceries he will be sitting on top of the world.

One of the new developments in the cotton prohibition movement is a suggestion made to Governor Huey Long yesterday that the legislature of each cotton growing state name a committee of five to meet in some central point, preferably Memphis, Tenn., or Birmingham, Ala. These members of the committee, sitting in joint session, would work out a cotton law that would fit the requirements of the 10 states involved and would then present the same measure to the legislatures of each state, making the same state law cover the entire cotton raising district.

This would be an ideal plan if it could be worked out, but if the committee wrangled as much as some of the legislatures of the 10 states they would be in session too long to do much good.

A contemporary in Breckenridge doubts if the farmers of West Texas could stand for a year's holiday from cotton raising. He seems to have gotten the opinion that the farmers would sell their cotton this year for six cents, raise no cotton next year and try to live on the cotton raised in 1931.

The real object of the prohibition measure would be to raise the price of cotton this year to a point where it would bring more than the two crops combined without restriction and the farmer would have more money in the long run.

One provision is that the farm board would buy cotton at the present market price, hold it until next year and sell to the farmers at the price of the year before, but for bale, and let him resell it at a profit. In other words, if a farmer raised 10 bales this year and sold it all, the farm board would sell him 10 bales next year at this time for what he raised this year, and he would then sell it to the cotton buyers for the 1932 market price, which is expected to be in the neighborhood of 20 cents, making him a clear profit of 12 cents a pound without raising any cotton.

That is the theory, but it may not work out in practice.

Saturday the cotton farmers and the representatives from this county are to meet in Ranger to decide upon the kind of measure they want and as the rest of the world will probably follow the lead of Texas it will probably be the farmers themselves who decide what measures will be taken.

It has been said that "what Texas does in this cotton situation, the rest of the states will also do." That may or may not be true, but it is true that what Texas does will have a great bearing on the cotton market of 1932.

Now that the football season has started there is another subject to discuss and, though the season is still too young to do much but prophecy, another column was started today to take over the football problems of this section. Anyone who has anything to say on the subject is invited to give up ideas. The column may be found on another page under the heading of "Peeping Through the Knot Hole."

Whitehouse Says Operating Kiln a Simple Matter
Ben Whitehouse, vocational agricultural teacher of Ranger, who has been on a tour of inspection of sweet potato kilns in East Texas on behalf of the Ranger Truck & Fruit Growers association, returned to Ranger Wednesday morning.

He stated that he had received some valuable information on sweet potato kilns and found that the operation of such a kiln as is proposed for Ranger could be managed with a minimum of expense and labor. He was impressed with the simplicity of the operation and is enthusiastic over the prospects for a kiln and a large sweet potato crop.

Fire Burns Grass On John Thurman Farm At Staff
Fire that started when some men burned down a bee tree destroyed between 40 and 50 acres of grass on the John Thurman farm near Staff Wednesday.

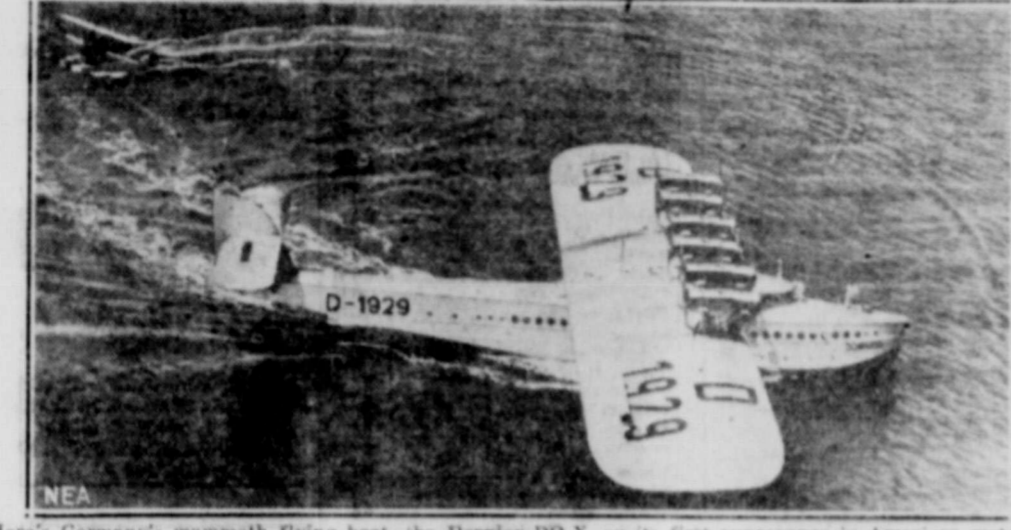

H. B. Kizzion had given permission to some men to cut a bee tree and after they had burned it the fire is thought to have spread to the pasture land.

O. L. Phillips, John Thurman and W. J. Howard worked for some time with wet sacks before they could extinguish the fire. Before the fire was put out it almost reached a large straw stack.

A LONG-EXPECTED VISITOR ARRIVES

Here's Germany's mammoth flying boat, the Dornier DO-X, on its first appearance in American waters. And if you don't think it's an aerial giant, just compare it with the average-sized biplane seen beside it (upper left) as the DO-X alighted on Biscayne Bay, Miami, Fla. The twelve-motored air liner reached this country after a nine months' journey from Europe by way of South America.

Murray Expresses Faith in People To Face Problems

By United Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 27.—The American people will win this fight against the business depression and unemployment, Governor W. H. Murray predicted today.

Reclining in his easy chair, his feet propped upon a desk stacked high with letters, the picturesque Oklahoma governor expressed complete faith in the masses to solve the present troublesome problems.

"The concerted move of the states to eliminate unemployment is about to succeed," he said. It was his first comment on business conditions since he returned from his Memphis conference, fatigued but ready to carry on his fight for dollar oil.

"The Memphis conference was highly successful but was intended only to crystallize sentiment so that a second conference might bear fruit," he said. "The greatest unemployment has come about February and they will be serious, but even if present plans fail there will be no breakdown until after election. If there is then, until after election people will steady themselves with the hope that the present president will be a strong, courageous man, unafraid to follow unbeaten paths."

Desert is Lake During Storm
By United Press.
ALAMOGORDO, N. M.—The strange experience of being rescued from drowning in a lake that suddenly was formed in the desert by a cloudburst was experienced recently by 10 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shows and their son, Charles, of El Paso; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry O. Driscoll, and Jerry Jr., of Galveston, Texas; Mrs. Cooper Polk, her son, Jimmie, and W. L. Jones, of Hattiesburg, Miss., suddenly found themselves in the midst of a lake while driving in the desert.

They became stranded for hours in three automobiles without food or drinking water when a cloudburst 15 miles southeast of Oro Grande, N. M., turned a dusty desert road into a dangerous wind-lashed lake.

Shows said the lake was about one mile and a half wide and two miles long. Water raised a foot in 15 minutes during the cloudburst.

The men spent three days working to get their cars out of the water and mud. Twenty New Mexico highway department men helped them save the cars. The women turned cooks for the highway gang while they worked.

"Once we were up to our waists in water trying to get the cars gathered over the desert again, then the bottom fell out of that cloud. It got so black and rained so hard we couldn't see each other out in the lake."

Congressman Wants Ship Named After Spanish War Hero
By United Press.
NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass.—Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., has asked Secretary of the Navy Adams to have one of the new U. S. destroyers now under construction named for John J. Doran of Fall River, Spanish war hero.

When the U. S. S. Kearsage hit Roncador reef in 1892, Doran volunteered to put ashore, in the face of enemy fire, to rig a breeches buoy.

Large Crowd Is Present at Baptist Meet in Eastland
"Pilate's Wash Bowl or Trying to Dodge Responsibility," will be the theme of the Thursday night sermon by Rev. W. T. Turner, evangelist who is preaching at the Baptist revival services, which are being held each evening at 8 o'clock on the grounds of the South Ward school on South Seman street.

Approximately 400 were present for the Wednesday evening service. At the close of the service the popular Eastland band under the direction of Prof. A. J. Campbell, gave a concert which was greatly appreciated by those attending the revival.

The interest in the service is increasing, according to Dr. Turner, and it is expected that the closing services between now and Sunday night will see many more added to the church.

An attractive feature of each service is the singing by a large choir under the direction of Mr. Fletcher S. Nelson.

Seniors will register Monday, Aug. 31; juniors, Tuesday, Sept. 1; sophomores, Wednesday, Sept. 2; freshmen, Thursday, Sept. 3. All who fail to register at the appointed time are requested to do so Friday morning, Sept. 4.

We are going to maintain the same high standards of scholastics in the past. We sincerely hope that the patrons, students and friends of the school will co-operate in every way possible.

The only department that will be eliminated this year will be home economics.

A complete list of the faculty will be published next week.

Texas Planning Canal Meeting

By United Press.
CORPUS CHRISTI.—The annual convention of the International Canal association of Louisiana and Texas will be held here Nov. 6 and 7, Roy Miller, active vice-president, has announced.

Indications are that several hundred persons will attend and preparations for one of the most interesting programs in the history of the organization are under way.

"This meeting should equal, or exceed any recent convention because of two things," Miller said. "First, the great interest locally, and second, increased interest in the interior of the state on the improvement and development of 'feeder' to the canal."

"Now that the ultimate completion of the canal to Corpus Christi and even to the Rio Grande Valley is assured, these interior sections are anxious to get on the system by improving some streams which reach far into the interior. Sections along the Trinity and Guadalupe rivers now have organizations seeking to promote a movement for navigation as 'feeders' of the canal."

"Even San Antonio had a navigation district bill passed at the recent regular session of the Texas legislature looking to the improvement of the San Antonio river.

Two Highwaymen Rob Bank Officer And Get $26,000
By United Press.
BURLINGTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—Two highwaymen firing several shots, waylaid an automobile carrying a bank treasurer on the outskirts of town today and escaped with nearly $26,000.

The victim of the daring holdup was George N. Harragan, treasurer of the Lowell Trust company of Lowell, who was enroute from that city to the Boston Bank with a leather bag containing $25,990.

KIDNAPED PUBLISHER RELEASED

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—John J. Lynch, wealthy publisher of racing information, was reported back in his home at Lake Geneva, Wis., today after being held captive almost a week by kidnapers, who threatened to kill him unless $250,000 ransom was paid.

Although several hours later no official reports of the release had been made to police here or at Lake Geneva, reporters standing guard in the vicinity of the Lynch estate, reported that the abduction victim drove home in his own car at 4:30 a. m. and retired immediately.

With the reported return of Lynch, authorities turned their attention to the hunt for Al Capone, whom they wanted to question about reports that the gang leader had acted as go-between in paying the kidnapers $50,000 for Lynch's freedom.

Capone, according to reports, had acted in Lynch's behalf and was not suspected of having any part in the abduction, but was wanted nevertheless because it was thought he had turned the ransom money over to the kidnapers and probably knew who they were.

RANGER LIONS HEAR TALK ON C. OF C. WORK

Wayne C. Hickey made the principal address at the meeting of the Ranger Lions club today when he presented a well prepared and interesting talk on the subject, "Chamber of Commerce Work in General or Origin of the Chamber of Commerce."

He brought out several points that were not known by the Lions, one of which was the age of the chamber of commerce movement. He said that the first chamber of commerce was organized in 1400 in France for the purpose of protecting the commerce of the nation.

Between 1500 and 1600 the idea spread to Austria and Germany, where it was taken up by those nations. It was about this time that the first guilds were organized by the gold and silversmiths and the watchmakers.

The first chamber of commerce in the United States, he said, was established in 1768. This chamber was granted a royal grant by King George III in the year 1770.

After mentioning the first chamber of commerce the speaker brought the history up to the present time and said that the first three major projects of the present-day chamber of commerce was to promote industry, promote commerce and to promote civic work.

An announcement was made that from 10 to 12 delegates of the Ranger Lions club would attend the banquet in Fort Worth in honor of Julien Hyer, president of the Lions' International and a similar delegation would attend the meeting in Mineral Wells on Aug. 29 and 30 when five state governors will be present.

Paul Pond of Wichita Falls was a guest of Lion J. A. Thayer and Lion Bert McGlamery of Eastland was a visitor.

Preacher Catches A Large Bass

J. C. Taylor, an authority on theology and fishology, was displaying a fish head at the office of the Ranger Times today that at one time belonged to a black bass which weighed four and one-half pounds.

The fish was caught by Brother Taylor, but he refused to say where he caught it, that part being a secret he is keeping in order to preserve the fishing.

Brother Taylor has been preaching around Ranger for some 30 years and is well known throughout the rural districts where he had preached.

Funeral Held For Miss Sabra Keys

Word was received in Ranger today that Miss Sabra Keys, formerly of Ranger, died in San Antonio, and was buried in Dublin Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. H. B. Johnson of Ranger officiating at the service.

Miss Keys lived in Ranger for a number of years, where she had a host of friends. She was at one time an employe of Joseph Dry Goods company.

Modern Babylon to Rise Soon

The Babylonian magnificence of the projected Rockefeller Building Center in mid-town New York is indicated by this architect's drawing. Note the sunken plaza, studded with a 30-foot central fountain, smaller fountains, statuary, grass, flowers and mosaic pavements, which is to cover an acre of ground. Three of the most important units of the project, soon to be constructed, are a 56-story office building, nearly half a million square feet larger than any other building in the world; the International Music Hall, which is to be the world's largest theater; and a capacious talking picture theatre.

FALL WOOL CLIP TO BE STARTED SOON

The fall wool clip in the Ranger territory is getting under way immediately, it was announced today by officials of the Oil Belt Sheep and Goat Raisers association.

Clippers have been working in the Strawn neighborhood for the past week or more and are now completing the clip in that section and are ready to move into Ranger and begin work on clipping the goats in this section.

Because of the relatively small size of the flocks here it is necessary that the clip be arranged so that the work may be completed on as short a schedule as possible and all who have goats to be sheared are requested to get in touch with John Thurman or Grover Jennings in order that the plans may be made.

The men have their machinery for shearing in this section now and are ready to move from one flock to another and want to have the work so arranged that as little time as possible be lost.

Regulation size sacks, six feet in length, have been secured for the use of members of the association and they may be obtained at the office of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce at 40 cents each. This price is 5 cents lower than the price last year. All members of the association will be sold the sacks at wholesale prices.

One reason the wool and mohair of this section did not bring a better price last year, it was pointed out today, was because of the sacks used by many of the raisers. Some brought their wool and mohair in small sacks and the hair did not make as good a showing when inspected by the buyer as it would have in regulation sacks.

All who have wool to be brought to the association warehouse should use these sacks if they have as much as 100 pounds, it was said today. Those who have smaller quantities may bring the wool in smaller sacks but an additional charge will be made for repacking.

It is expected that the fall clip will be completed by Oct. 1.

FOUR SUICIDE WHEN FACED BY GUARD

Two Trustees and One Guard Are Wounded in Gunfire.

By United Press.
MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 27.—Staking their lives on a chance of freedom, four desperate prisoners today tried to shoot their way out of Marquette prison, killed one man, wounded two and then they surrounded and faced with capture, ended their own lives.

Within two hours of the start of fighting quiet was restored and a prison official said there was no danger of a concerted outbreak. An investigation was started.

The dead: DR. A. W. HORNBOGEN, Marquette physician and former president of the Michigan Medical Association.

FRANK HOFFER, Detroit, serving a long sentence on a kidnap charge.

CHARLES ROSENBERG, Detroit, sentenced for robbery.

FRANK OLGISCHLAGER, Detroit, a trustee, was shot through the abdomen. His wound may prove fatal.

Joe Cowling, guard, was shot through the leg.

The outbreak started when three of the convicts entered the prison hospital and prevented all nurses. They opened fire as Dr. Hornbogen started to examine one of them.

Olgischlager and another trustee whose name was not learned, were wounded when they leaped to the doctor's defense.

Guard Cowling then opened fire and sounded a general alarm. Germain, leader of the revolting convicts, ran shooting from the hospital across the prison yard to a factory. Here the convicts erected a barricade.

When re-enforcements reached the prison a determine assault was made upon the barrier and several hundred rounds were fired with the convicts replying.

The revolters strengthened their position by seizing several prisoners not participating in the plot and using them as shields against the guards weapons.

Blinded and fearing capture the quartet finally killed then selves when machine gun bullets and gas bombs were turned loose upon the barricade.

Backfield material is so plentiful that every candidate will have a chance to make the grade. In addition to some of the regulars, there are one or two who look promising. Some are newcomers in the gridiron here while one, Gandy, played last year at Amherst, where he was attending a Catholic school. He and Yonker

Yonker, 241-pounder, was so sure that a pair of football pants could not be found for him and a special order is going to be sent for some larger togs. In spite of his weight he handled himself in good fashion and covered an inch ground as anyone on the team. At the end of the grid he was still going and seemingly as fast as anyone else. He surprised the railbirds.

Rever was tossing passes in a manner that thrilled everyone. His ball-like tosses—he throws a football like a catcher pegging to second—and his accuracy were noticeable.

Revens booted the ball high, side and handsome. So did Bob Weaver, Townsend, Conley and several of the others.

From this early stage of the season it looks as though the Bulldogs have two of the best ends in the state in Stevens and King. King is back at his natural position and will deal any team plenty of misery. For tackles there are several huskies who will be hard to beat in this district at least among them are Fleming, Jones, Yonker and others that will be mentioned later. Two of the best guards in the district will help to water up the line. Aishman and Williams will handle these two assignments, according to present prospects. Center will be the weakest position to fill, though there are several on the squad who are being mentioned for the position.

Tricky Ward was not on hand for the first workout, but he is expected back soon.

"Coin" Harvey Plans Meeting of New Party

By United Press. MONTE NE, Ark.—Dreams of a man for half a century to formulate a "perfect" financial system which would make prosperity permanent and abolish depressions will begin realization here, Aug. 25 to 28, when a new national political party will be organized.

The aged political warrior is W. H. "Coin" Harvey, one-time friend and colleague of William Jennings Bryan in the fight for 16 to 1 "free silver."

His dreams are to prevent bank failures by government operation of banking institutions; to formulate a "perfect" money system to establish a moratorium pending permanent relief from the present depression by expenditure of public funds to employ idle labor in the building of public improvements.

Nominate Candidates. The convention will nominate candidates for president and vice president and will name a chairman of the campaign committee. Harvey said that his recent trips throughout the middle west and letters he has received, point to an attendance of approximately 10,000 at the convention.

The New Political Party, as it is now called, is an outgrowth of Harvey's study of national finance. He was somewhat disillusioned in 1900 by the defeat of his friend Bryan for president and the failure of his scheme of a national money standard, free silver.

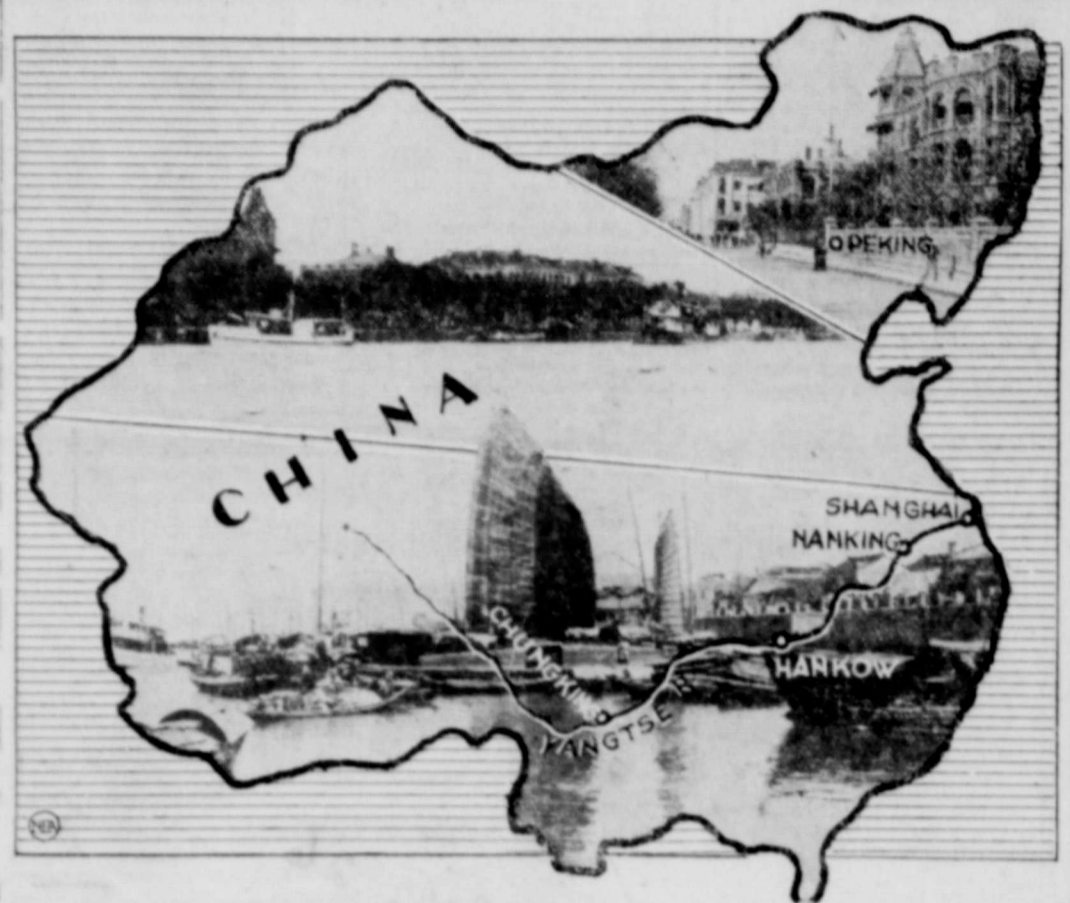

"I became disgusted with the trend of politics in 1900 and came to this place, which I named Monte Ne, to play the hermit and reflect on what might possibly save civilization," Harvey said.

Proper Time. "I think the time has arrived to get the attention of the people, a time for which I have waited, knowing that it would come, under the present financial system."

Several months ago "Coin" published a queer little booklet, in which he set forth the platform of the New Party. The publication is somewhat similar to his book on free silver entitled "Coin's Financial School," which attracted nationwide attention.

Utter lack of confidence in "Washington politicians" prompted this singular man to issue the call for a new party.

OTTAWA, Canada.—A "simple country doctor" is one of the commanding figures in the Beauharnois power scandal and he has become enriched by almost $1,000,000 in cash, plus vast holdings in the Beauharnois Power company.

Senator Wilfrid Laurier McDougall is now chairman of the board of Beauharnois—the company that probably will be reorganized since investigation of vast expenditures in granting the St. Lawrence concession—but was a member of the National Advisory Committee on the power project and was at one time chairman of the powerful Montreal Harbor Commission.

He is a commanding figure of immaculate dress. His fancy for fine clothing dates back to the days when he was a student at McGill University.

But his doctoring practice was slight. In 1909 he went to Montreal and there by dint of financial perspicacity became a prominent financial figure. He now has a palatial home in the Mount Royal section, where in 1927 he entertained the Prince of Wales.

He is a close friend of Liberal leaders of Canada. He is 50 and has been in the senate since 1926.

His colleague in the senate and in the scandal, Donat Raymond, is a far different personality. He started as a bell boy in the old Queens Hotel at Montreal and through business acumen became a wealthy hotel owner now owning the Windsor Hotel in Montreal which is internationally known.

Senator Andrew Haydon, the last of the five leaders, is the typical lawyer's lawyer. He is almost unobtrusive. His company is large but he seldom appears in court.

China River, Now Thundering Along China's Lowlands

The Yangtze river, now thundering along China's lowlands taking thousands of lives and leaving 30,000,000 homeless, ordinarily is a busy commercial artery tapping the heart of the nation's teeming reservoir of humanity.

From the wild and little-known country in the far interior it rushes 2000 miles seaward, chiseling a pathway through solid rock in the highlands, sweeps broadly through the low regions and links great towns and trading centers—Shanghai, mightiest Chinese metropolis; Nanking, seat of the Nationalist government; Hankow, the principal inland city; Chungking and others.

Even in the lower water period the Yangtze is called the most dangerous river in the world, with its rocks and rapids, gorges, sand bars and fogs, in addition to the fierce bandits who haunt its banks.

Hankow, with its million population, the center of the present disaster, extends for a mile along the river. Once a tiny fishing village, Hankow has made rapid advancement in wealth and importance, especially since the opening of the upper waters of the river to steam navigation.

Great buildings, like those in large American cities, dot its famous Bund, a wide street along the river front, which has suffered heavily in the recent floods.

Often the Yangtze has invaded the city, as well as nearby agricultural districts, drifting thousands from their homes. Yet cruel as the river seems, it sometimes proves kind. For the flood leaves a carpet of silt that makes the land more fertile.

Water For Dogs Will Keep Down Rabies Epidemics

(From a letter by F. G. Parker to The Boston Herald.) To the Editor of The Herald: May I call your attention to an article by Mr. Albert Payson Terhune, who writes the famous dog stories. He says: "I drove through a sizable town where recently there has been one of the ever-recurring and silly mad-dog scares. Here and there warnings were posted telling dog owners to muzzle their animals and keep them on the leash. But, though I looked closely, I could see no sign of an infinitely saner dog ordinance—namely, a rule that shallow drinking dishes should be set in various shady spots along the hot streets, and that these dishes should be kept filled with cool and fresh water for the use of the thirst-tortured stray dogs."

"Water costs practically nothing. Earthen dishes cost far less than does the very cheapest leash or muzzle. To inaugurate such drinking places would be a matter of petty expense. To see that they

Huge Airport To Be Completed By January 1st

By United Press. SAN ANTONIO.—A $10,000,000 building program that has been in progress for the last 18 months, is expected to be completed at Randolph field and the local army posts by Jan. 1.

The largest of these projects, Randolph field, alone has meant the expenditure of more than $8,000,000 and the constant employment of between 1,000 and 2,000 men. The last building for which appropriations have been made will be completed before Dec. 1.

Other construction work at Duncan field, Normoye quartermaster depot and at Fort Sam Houston, will continue through December before being completed.

If congress follows up its policy of speeding up construction work on federal projects it is expected that additional funds soon will be provided for the construction of much needed new quarters at Fort Sam Houston.

Building activities at Fort Sam Houston, Duncan field and Camp Normoye have been inconsiderate in comparison to the Randolph field work, yet it has involved expenditure of more than $2,000,000. These expenditures are only the forerunner of a building campaign which in the next few years will involve expenditures rivaling those at Randolph field.

The new station hospital alone, scheduled to be built at Fort Sam Houston during the next two years, will mean approximately $2,500,000 and other construction required to permit the abandonment

X-RAY REVEALS ANCIENTS GREW BETTER COTTON

By United Press. URBANA, Ill.—Maybe it was because women didn't wear silk 2,000 years ago, but facts discovered through scientific investigation at the University of Illinois showed that Egyptians, before Christ, were growing better cotton than is now produced anywhere in the world.

Denying knowledge of women's dress then or now, but relying on facts revealed in his industrial X-ray laboratory with cloth taken from mummies of the vintage of 70 B. C., Prof. George L. Clark of the chemistry staff of the university told of an analysis which, he said, proves the advantage of the earlier cloth.

The discovery made by means of his X-ray, Clark said, in addition to showing that present-day cotton is inferior to that grown centuries ago, also disclosed that, by special treatment, Texas cotton can be made just as strong as the ancient Egyptian product.

The treatment involves softening of the cellulose molecules and aligning them under tension; the change in structure is determined by use of X-Ray pattern.

"It is possible," he explained, "that the Egyptians, or the Incas, treated the cotton to make the better cloth we have found on the mummies, but this seems highly improbable because of the widely separated regions in which the superior grade has been found."

The industrial X-ray means to industry as much as the X-ray does to the doctor of medicine today. By its use can be determined the strength of many opaque materials, such as steel, wood, and fibers. With it the strength or weakness of a material depending on gross structure can be determined, merely by looking through the object, such as the doctor does when looking for a broken bone.

Clark's industrial X-ray apparatus has shown the diverse molecular structure of the two cottons to be the alignment of the cellulose. In the Egyptian product it is practically perfect, while cotton of the present day has many gaps between the cellulose particles.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop) By Cowan

Retired Engineer Becomes Aviator At Age of 70 Years

By United Press. SAN ANGELO.—After 40 years of operating a Santa Fe railroad engine, Wyatt Warren Shortt, now 70 years old, will soon retire and will take up aviation.

From railroad engineering to "skyway engineering" will be his object. He has passed the government physical examination for a private pilot and in another month will be taking ground school work at the Money School of Aviation.

"Too old to take up golf," the veteran engineer says, "so I think I'll take to the sky."

And thus the man who fired a locomotive when troops were stationed at Fort Concho and who knew Judge Roy Bean, the famed "Law West of the Pecos," is to learn about the most modern of transportation methods.

Of the hundreds of Roy Bean stories told and published, Shortt tells one that perhaps has not been published before. A steam shovel engineer had to have a pair of shoes repaired. He took them to a Langtry cobbler before visiting a Langtry saloon. When he came back for the shoes, he had no money left so he took the shoes anyhow after an altercation with the cobbler.

Both were arrested; the judge was called "in session." Court Bean ordered everyone out of the combination bar room and court except the members of the jury.

"Now, gentlemen," Shortt quoted Judge Bean, "we got to use common sense in all matters. This railroad man has no money and we have no jail for him. If ain't a hanging case, but gentlemen, the cobbler has money. Now, I wouldn't have it said this court ever influenced a jury, but I trust you gentlemen will act wisely."

The engineer was found not guilty and the cobbler was fined!

Pioneer Remembers Early Indian Days

By United Press. GROW, King County, Texas.—Days when the Indians still struck terror on the Texas plains with their tomahawks are remembered by Isom Lynn, 81, pioneer of King county, who represents two widely contrasted periods when the frontiersman of yesterday becomes the hero of today.

When only a lad of 8, he remembers how some of his kinsmen were tomahawked by Indians who had been induced to rise up by desperadoes wishing to rob. That was the Cameron-Mason massacre, only long remembered by early settlers.

GUILTY LIPS

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE" ©1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Norma Kent, pretty 20-year-old secretary in a law office, meets Mark Travers, attractive and wealthy, when together they rescue a frightened puppy from the midst of downtown traffic. Norma refuses to tell the young man her name or where he can see her again. Later she joins Bob Farrell, young lawyer, for a dinner, and Norma for the third time says "no."

The scene of the story is Marlboro, middle-western metropolis. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with Christine Saunders. Norma fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer, Bradley Hart, proprietor of an advertising agency. Next day Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in the lost and found column of the Marlboro Press. The first person to answer the advertisement is Mark Travers, who explains he has made every effort to learn Norma's identity. He tries to make a date but she declines his invitations. Travers departs. Later he telephones Natalie Price, debutante, and goes with her to a gay party concluding with a round of the night clubs.

Next evening a small boy comes to see Norma, claims the puppy and takes it home. Chris goes to aid Minnie Baker, an impoverished friend whose 2-year-old son has been badly burned. Norma receives telephone calls from Travers and ignores them. She will not admit to herself the interest she feels in this persistent young man.

Norma goes for a drive with Bob Farrell. He kisses her against her will, starts the car and begins driving furiously. Norma cries, "Where are you going?"

"NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII"

Farrell did not turn to look at the girl. His hat brim was snapped down squarely and in the dark she could not see his face. The coupe's speed increased and something in the road sent them jolting from their seats before he answered.

"I'm taking you home," he said firmly. Norma had never heard him use that tone. Bob Farrell had kissed her before but never as tonight. "Wait a minute—" he went on immediately. "Before you start telling me what you think of me, there's a little piece of news you might be interested to hear. Didn't mean to spring it so soon but I might as well. I'm pulling out of Marlboro."

Norma forgot that she was indignant. She could not conceal her amazement.

"You don't mean you're going away?"

"That's exactly what I do mean."

"But, Bob—! Where are you going?"

"Nothing's happened. I'm going away, that's all."

She did not know what to say. After a few moments she said, "You haven't told me where you're going yet."

"Bob Farrell, what in the world's the matter with you tonight? First you act like a crazy man. Then you say you're going away and get mysterious about it. Why don't you tell me where you're going and for how long?"

"I'll tell you," Bob promised. She had been driving along a sequestered road, a short-cut back toward a highway leading into the center of the city. "I'll tell you before I leave," he repeated, "but it's going to be for quite a while. You see I'm not coming back."

"Do you mean you're giving up your job?"

"Well, no, I'm not fired if that's what you mean," he interrupted, correctly interpreting the girl's thought. "It ain't anything like that. I just think it will be best for me to get out of Marlboro, that's all. Tired of the place!"

"But you've been doing so well, Bob?"

"Can't see it that way."

There was little more conversation between them until they halted before the red brick apartment. As Farrell brought the coupe to a stop the girl sought his eyes.

"I'll tell you," he said quietly, "you really mean that you're—going away?"

Solemnly he nodded.

"I'm sorry, Bob."

"You mean you don't want me to go?"

"Of course I don't. We've been such good friends. I'll miss you dreadfully."

The young man darted a swift, appraising glance at her. What ever he may have had in mind to say was checked. There was a pause. Then he answered carelessly. "Well, the deal isn't quite worked out yet. I'll give you a ring one of these days before I clear out. We'll—we'll sort of celebrate the occasion."

Norma felt that he was keeping something from her. She was dissatisfied with the way the evening had turned out and very soon told him good night.

"Maybe he isn't going away at all," she said to herself a little later after she had turned the lock for the night, undressed and stood before the mirror brushing out her hair—the nightly 60 strokes on either side. "Maybe he's just trying to get me to beg him to stay!"

When she let herself out of the apartment next morning, there was nothing whatever to indicate that the hours before her were to constitute a red-letter day.

The street car which transported her to Broad and Hanover streets was as crowded as usual. The hours of dictation and transcribing Mrs. Cunningham's letters were exactly as tedious. Even the interruptions were customary routine.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

"WELL JOHN, I THINK THE BOYS AND I BETTER BE STARTING BACK BEFORE SOMETHING ELSE HAPPENS TO THEM—SEE IF YOU CAN GET THEM ALL TOGETHER FOR ME."

"SURE I DON'T MIND TELLING YOU I'M GOING TO MISS 'EM... AIN'T NOTHING I WOULDN'T DO FOR THOSE YOUNGSTERS... I COULDN'T SAY NO TO ANYTHING THEY ASKED ME."

"BUT, BOB—! WHERE ARE YOU GOING?"

For the life of her Norma could not muster an indignant reply.
