Feller's Only Trouble---Lack Of Victories---May Be Over BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Sports Editor NEW YORK-(NEA)-What's wrong with Robert William Andrew Feller? That was the question baseball was asking before the Iowa farm boy's most recent start against the Yankees.

Bob Feller supplied the best answer. "I've lost more than I've won," he said. "That's my only trouble." And it looked that way as Rapid Robert demonstrated to the Bronx Bombers that they still have him to contend with in the mad dash for the American League pennant.

It was a bit early to be counting out Feller at that. He's only 29.

It was only a year ago last June that the great Cleveland fireballer turned in one of his more brilliant performances, and his difficulties date back to that night at Shibe Park, when his spikes caught in front of the mound and he nitched forward on his face. of the mound and he pitched forward on his face.

Feller struck out nine of the first 11 Athletics who faced him.

and the accident happened when he broke off a curve to Barney McCosky for the ninth strikeout. He jammed up his pitching hand, twisted and skinned his knee, had to be removed in the seventh.

Connie Mack and the A's said they never saw Feller faster than he was that evening. He was so swift they simply could not get the bat around.

A 29-year-old pitcher who takes perfect care of himself couldn't be too bad one short year after a performance like that, yet there were too many times this season when Feller looked like anything but the daddy of all handcuff kings.

Feller missed the All-Star Game, but attempted to pitch too quickly.

Pitching unnaturally favoring his knee, he tore a rib loose on the right side. This left a knot on his back as big as an egg, which did not evaporate until he quit pitching on his barnstorming tour last fall.

THERE was a psychological aspect to Feller's difficulties of this season, too. Weird things happened to him. He has been plagued by

GROSS UNDERSTATEMENTS

Some people are lifted up by heir boot-straps but then again others are cut down by their chin traps. Kenneth Williams was well on his way to a 70-yard galop in the Olney fray when an unfriendly Cub reached out and anked Kenneth down by that hin strap.

Stopping off at an eatery in Oley the Bulldogs received the compliment of the year. Said the nanaged of the knife and fork establishment, "This Ranger team the finest mannered football eam I have ever seen." But unfortunately for Olney citizens the Bulldogs sort of reversed their temperament on the playing field.

We know the answer to "why sches get gray." After watching Jimmy Comacho recite the Getty-burg Address before kicking the xtra points we can understand vhy Stubby Warden sees an early alcer coming.

And we mentioned to Warden fter the game that he should be et for a good night's snoore after he victory. But Stubby sadly hook his sleepy head and said he'd be replaying every play for the next week or so.

That Olney football stadium is combination rodeo and football field. And in that second quarter Olney fans were rubbing their eyes to make sure there weren't Brahama steers down on the field instead of a bunch of Bulldogs.

When wee Jimmy Patterson blocked that Cub punt we wondered if we saw the ball or Jinmy vestigation proved it was the ball.

Nomination for the top bus driver of the year - Coach S. B. Aills. A more consistent man can t be found. Aills managed to find every bump and crevice in the road - and in the dark, too.

Every time we saw a red flag fall the referees seemed to march, off distance against our poor Bulldogs. Finally someone pointed out to the officals that it is customary to penalize both teams even if one on the short end of the score. He finally took the advice.

It pust shows that uniforms do not make the team. The Cubs were decked out in their flashy new moleskins while the Bulldogs are still waiting for the arrival of their new outfits. But you remember the score — 14-0.

Fort Worth Cats, Tulsa Oilers, Houston Buffs and Shreeport Sports rested today before launching the Texas League Texans. Shaughnessy playoff series tomorrow night after one of the most hectic four-place battles in League history.

There hasn't been any duobt for some time that the Cats, Oilers and Buffs would be around for the playoffs, but it took the final day's games, plus some mathematics to decide whether the Sports or San Antonio Misions would make up the final foursome.

The Sports won their final conest with Beaumont 4-1 while the Padres took two from Houson 3-1 and 4-0 to leave both of the teams 16 games behind the Cats. But because they played away from opening round tritwo more games than the Missions the Sports got the palyoff berth Shaughnessy playoffs today. when the percentages were carried to four places instead of the usual three-.4967 to .4966.

By United Press Four of the seven Southwest Conference football teams get Conference football teams get their 1948 baptisms of fire this week and some of the big question marks hanging around each of them may be answered by next Saturday night.

Headline attraction will be at Austin where Texas unveils its fine, enlarged stadium as well as its first Layneless team in four years against a potentially dangerous Louisiana State eleven.

Other games will pit Texas Christian against Kansas at Law-rence, Texas A. & M. against Villanova at Philadelphia and Arkansas against Abilene Christian at Little Rock.

Rival coaches as well as Long-horn supporters will center their interest on the Texas-LSU game to see if coach Blair Cherry's squad shows signs of living up to its rating as one of the top two clubs in the loop.

Especially will they be drawing the beads on stender Paul Campbell, the lithe youngster who has been given the big asignment of filling in where the redoubtable Bobby Lane filled in as the manunder in the devastating Texas T attack.

LSU, while a comparatively green team, doesn't rate to be any push-over for the Longhorns and the margin of victory should give a pretty fair line on Texas.

Hurricane Force Around Bermuda

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (UP) Winds and seas are increasin at Bermuda and should reach hur ricane intensity "very soon," the weather bureau reported today.

The severe 140-Mile-an-hour hurricane was expected to change course and "pass close to Bermuda about noon," a 6:45 A. M. ERT advisory by the weathere bureau said. At that time the storm was reported 120 miles south of the British resort.

Residents of the island were varned by the bureau to complete all precautions against hurricane winds and high tides "at

The bureau wanted all ships north and north-east of the 'severe" storm to exercise "extreme caution." The Coast Guard reported that several ships were in the path of the hurricane.

The storm was described as moving between north-northwest left Sunday for Lubbock where son have been removed to their and north at a speed of 18-milesan-hour. The bureau said that the highest winds of 140-miles-an-Dorothy Christian who recently hour.
