AUSTIN, June 7 (UP)—Allen Crowley, Fort Worth, has been elected 1949-50 president of the State Bar Association by mail ballot.

William J. Park of Austin, secretary-treasurer of the State Bar, announced Crowley's election yesterday along with that of Austin C. Hatchell of Longview as vice-president.

Several new directors were also named.

HARLINGEN, June 7 (UP)—Lower Rio Grande Valley growers were eyeing an approaching black fly menace and two conflicting announcements on the infiltration today.

Nathan O. Berry, director of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Bureau of plant inspection and quarantine, yesterday denied that government inspection parties would be formed to look for the black fly.

Last Saturday, Jack Drake, manager of the Valley Chamber of Commerce, announced that steps would be taken.

"We don't think the fly is here," said Berry. And he added "regulation inspections will continue in a routine fashion."

Drake reported the fly had slipped 202 miles northward in Mexico in the last two months and was less than 200 miles from Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex. June 7 (UP)—Paul R. Doerz, 37, asked $200,000 damages today because of a tugboat accident April 3 near New Orleans in which he lost both legs.

Doerz filed a personal damage suit against Butcher-Atcher, Inc., the firm that operated the tug on which he had worked 11 years.

Doerz's petition stated that his legs were crushed between a barge and the tug, which was partially filled with water and unseaworthy. The accident occurred, he claimed, when the tug listed

More Showers Due In State

By United Press
 Skies were cloudy over most of Texas today, with forecasts of scattered showers continuing through tomorrow.

The sun beamed in the extreme western portion of the state, where Presidio chalked up yesterday's high of 100 degrees, but elsewhere, threats of spring showers caused overcast conditions.

During the 24-hour period ending early today, Junction received 1.45 inches of rainfall; Lubbock .63; Ozona .47; San Antonio .26; Clarendon .23, and Big Spring and Corpus Christi .21.

The predicted showers were not expected to have any effect on temperatures. They will continue to climb into the top's in many places, the weather bureau reported.

Today's lowest reading was 55 degrees at Dalhart, Amarillo and Guadalupe Pass. Yesterday's lowest maximum temperature was 80 at Amarillo, while four towns—Big Spring, Brownsville, Dallas and Galveston—shared the high minimum reading 76.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION

PRICES

PRICES AND PRODUCTION ON DOWNGRADE—These newscharts show how industrial production and prices declined in the first quarter of 1949, according to current economic reports issued by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Production is down from 195 per cent last November to an estimated 179 for April. The decline has been general, since activity has decreased in 13 of 19 industry groups. In prices, basic commodities dropped the most, while consumer prices show only slight reduction. Most significant decline this year has been in metal markets, with steel scrap and non-ferrous metals scrap down 40 to 50 per cent. The price support program for many farm products has prevented more market declines in that field.

Eisler's Escape Ship Returns

Conflicting reports indicated that the government may have seized the Polish liner S. S. Batory, above, on its return to New York after it had carried stowaway Gerhart Eisler to Europe. Assistant U. S. District Attorney John Donovan said the government had taken control of the ship. However, Edward J. Shaugnessy, district director of immigration, denied the report. It was rumored that the U. S. might seize the vessel for violation of immigration laws under which an alien was allowed to escape from the country. A detail of U. S. Immigration Department portmen met the ship when it docked two hours late.

Possibility Of Women As Envoys Draws Interest

WASHINGTON, June 7 (UP)—There were increasing indications today that Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, Democratic National Committeewoman from Minnesota, soon may be named U. S. Ambassador to Denmark. White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross acknowledged that Mrs. Anderson has been suggested for the job. Beyond that, he would not comment. Meanwhile, a high Democratic party source said it "would not be surprising" if Mrs. Perle Mesta, Washington's No. 1 hostess, is named minister to Luxembourg if she wants the job. President Truman himself said last week that several women were under consideration for diplomatic assignment. He did not name names. But there is increasing evidence that Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Mesta are the ones in line for jobs as lady envoys.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Only Question About General Fleming Is 'Can He Cook, Too?'

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—They'll soon be calling Maj.-Gen. Philip Bracken Fleming, "General Fixit." Ever since about 1933, whenever there is a tough trouble-shooting job to do around here, they call on General Fleming. The latest one handed him is nomination to become chairman of the Maritime Commission.
He says he doesn't know anything about the Maritime Commission. All he knows about ships is what he learned as an Army Engineer officer. He has seen duty in the Canal Zone, the Philippines and on every district of the Mississippi river. He mentions with a quiet chuckle that before the war the Army Engineers had more shipping tonnage afloat than did the U. S. Navy. Most of the Engineers' fleet was dredges and barges and scows. But their job was to keep merchant cargo vessels afloat.
In October 1939 as a lieutenant colonel he was holding a hearing on upper Mississippi navigation at St. Paul when he was called to the phone by General "Pa" Watson, Roosevelt's secretary. He said the President wanted Fleming to come down to Washington and administer the Fair Labor Standards Act. Fleming had to ask what that was. Watson read it to him over the phone. He got hold of another copy of the law in St. Paul, read it on the plane to Washington and arrived to take over the job.
In the two years he had that job he cut out all the red tape which required every wage and hour case to be handled in Washington. He decentralized operations so that 13 regional directors handled most of the work. And he sold the program to industry to such a degree that it now runs on momentum and you seldom hear of it.
President Roosevelt had known Fleming through earlier work in Washington. He was a protégé of Gen. "Iron Pants" Hugh Johnson. He was deputy administrator of PWA under Ickes. He supervised $7,000,000 worth of work on Passamaquoddy till that project was shut down. Then he was brought back to Washington to co-ordinate and try to straighten out the old Tugwell Resettlement Administration.
All this experience fitted him for the job of Federal Works Administrator, to which President Roosevelt appointed him in 1942. As head of Federal Works Agency, General Fleming is in charge of the Public Roads Administration, the Public Buildings Administration and the Bureau of Community Facilities. He also supervises all Federal disaster relief programs and runs the President's Highway Safety and Fire Prevention Conferences.
GENERAL FLEMING has run all his administrative jobs in Washington very capably. He has a small personal staff—an executive officer, a counsel, a budget officer and a public reports officer. Then he has a responsible commissioner or boss in charge of every one of his departments and he lets them handle their jobs. He makes them work together, and he prides himself on their teamwork.
He is a quiet kind of operator. He doesn't look or act like a general. What he does open to public inspection and the general himself is available to individual newspapermen who want to come and ask him about things. But he holds no press conferences and he doesn't force his way into the headlines. He makes a lot of speeches. He was in Tuskegee, Ala., making a speech on "The Importance of Scholarship" when he learned that President Truman wanted him to be chairman of the Maritime Commission.
This scholarship speech is one he has made in half a dozen places this year. He has found that the top generals and leaders from his class at West Point all came from the top 25 per cent, scholastically.
General Fleming himself would probably have been a four-star general but for a physical injury sustained in earlier service. This barred him from field command. The Army's loss was governmental gain elsewhere.

Waltz into Darkness

BY WILLIAM IRISH

XXXIX
ACROSS the room, over in the far corner, miles away, stood a chair with his clothes upon it. An ebony wood chair, with apricot-plush seat and apricot-plush back.
Miles away it stood, and he looked longingly across the miles, the immeasurable distance from illness to health, from helplessness to ability, from death to life.
All the way across the room, many miles away.
He must get over there, to that chair. It was far away, but he must get over there to it somehow.
He could not get out of bed legs upright, so he had to leave it head and shoulders first, in a slanting downward fall. Then there was a second, if less violent, fall as his hips and legs came down after the rest of him.
He began to slide along the floor now, like some groveling thing, a worm or caterpillar, chin touching it at every other moment, hot striving breath stirring the nap of the carpet before him, like a wave spreading out from his face.
He was getting closer. The chair was no longer an entire chair; its top was too far up overhead now.
The circle of vision, straight before him, level with the floor, showed its four legs, and the shoes under it, and part of the seat. The rest was lost in the blurred mists of height.
Then the seat went too, just the legs now remained, and he was getting very near. Perhaps near enough already to reach it with his arm, if he extended that full before him along the floor.
He tried it, and it just fell short. Not more than six inches remained between his straining fingertips and the one particular leg he was aiming them for. Six inches was no little to bridge.
Then through his blinding tears,

Policeman's Wife Aids Arrest Of Slaying Suspect

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., June 7 (UP)—A policeman's wife was credited today with helping the arrest of a young accused of killing a motorist on a highway near here.
Mrs. Glen Crouse, wife of a Marshalltown policeman, set detectives on Alvin Brown, 21, Tulsa, Okla., when she saw him walk into a hotel, they said.
She told them Brown fitted the description of a gunman who reportedly shot William J. Muldoon, 33, Mason City, Ia., a few hours before.
Brown readily admitted firing the shot which killed Muldoon, police said, but he gave no motive.
Muldoon was found yesterday afternoon near his abandoned car on a country road. There were bullet wounds in his hip and head. He died in a Marshalltown hospital shortly afterward.
The Rev. Von Elbert, Knoxville, Ia., telephoned highway police to report that a man had been shot while trying to flag him at a highway intersection.
Elbert did not stop, he told police. They found Muldoon about thirty minutes later and started seeking his assailant.
Brown told police he had known Muldoon, a painting specialist, six years ago and they had renewed their acquaintance in Marshalltown after meeting accidentally. He told police he had pulled the trigger of the gun while scuffling with Muldoon for its possession.

Market Uneasy Stocks Decline

NEW YORK, June 7, (UP)—An air of uneasiness hung over the stock market today as securities worked their way down to new bases in line with decreasing industrial activity.
Approximately $1,500,000,000 (B) in paper value was wiped out in yesterday's busy trading when 1,380,000 shares changed hands. By comparison, only 700,000 shares were traded last Friday.
The session, marked paper losses since May 17 to nearly $5,000,000,000 (B).
The New York, Chicago & St. Louis (nickel plate) Railroad led the rails with a decline of 4 1/2 points. Douglas Aircraft dropped 2 3/4 points and Du Pont sagged 2 1/2 points.
The over all picture yesterday: 1,380,000 shares sold. 35 issues reached new lows. 85 made advances.
Key issues held the average decreasing third, she went out and with great difficulty obtained a pair of cracked ice at a Sebmonger's, and bringing it back, gave it to him piece by piece to chew and crunch between his teeth.
In every way she ministered to him. In every way but one.
"Get a doctor," he begged her at last. "I cannot fight this out alone. I must have help."
She kept her seat. "Shall we not wait another day? Is this my stout-hearted Lou? Tomorrow, perhaps, you will be so much better that—"
"He clawed at her garments in mute appeal, until she drew back a little, to keep them from being disarranged. His face formed in weakened lines of weeping. "Tomorrow I shall be dead. Oh, Bony, I cannot face the night. This fire in my vitals—if you love me, if you love me—a doctor."
She went at last. She was gone from the room a half-hour. She came back to it again, her shawl and bonnet on, and took them off. She was alone.
"You didn't—?" He died a little. "He cannot come before tomorrow. He is coming then. I described to him what your symptoms were. He said there is no cause for alarm. It is a form of cold, and it must run its course." He prescribed what we are to do until he sees you—Come now, be calm—"
His eyes were on her, bright with fever and despair.
He whispered at last: "I did not hear the front door close after you."
She gave him a quick look, but her answer flowed unimpeded.
"I left it ajar behind me, to save time when I returned. After all, I'd left you alone in the house. Surely—?" Then she said, "You saw my bonnet on the just now, did you not?"
He didn't answer further. All his ravaged mind could keep repeating was:
"I didn't hear the door close after her."
And then at last, slowly but at last, he knew.

HAIR-BREADTH HARRY

Long Weakens On Tideland Issue

BATON ROUGE, La., June 7 (UP)—The first chink in the solid state's front against federal ownership of the oil-rich tidelands had appeared today in the light of a statement by Gov. Earl Long.
In a press conference, Long indicated that a 50-50 share of tidelands revenues by the federal government and the state would be acceptable to Louisiana officials.
He told reporters yesterday that he believed Louisiana would "come out all right" if the tidelands issues were settled on that basis.
Long added, however, that he believed states should have some say in leasing offshore acreage and that such state participation would be "advantageous."

He inferred that the United States Department of Interior, which controls federal leasing, has grown too big for Interior Security Julius Krug to handle as a one man show.
Federal action to gain control of the tidelands is pending in the courts.

HOUSTON, Tex. June 7 (UP)—No bloom was on the sage, but it was round up time on Main Street last night just the same. Wild range cattle, veered in and out of the paths of expensive automobiles when a huge cattle truck overturned, tumbling 18 of the animals onto the pavement.

The sheriff's department, sirens ablaze, turned cowboy en masse. Startled motorists took over wranglers' chores in an attempt to clear South Main Street, by far the most heavily traversed thoroughfare in the city.

Traffic was tied up six blocks on either side of the wreck. Impatient drivers sat on automobile horns, and the lowing cattle ambled off in all directions.

While officers directed motorists to line up their cars in two long rows, making an improvised cattle chute, the wild-eyed animals ran berserk into shiny new fenders. Several ladies screamed.

State police and wreckers hurried to the scene to corral the wild-eyed cattle, just off the range and untamed. Three of the fear crazed animals plunged into a five foot ditch and had to be lifted out by wrecker trucks.

When the road was finally cleared by 6 a. m. today, the toll was three dead cows, one with a broken back, three with broken legs, and a half dozen
