WHAT MUST HOLD—The checkered area is what the United Press figured two or three days ago that the US would try to hold and must hold to protect Pusan. Since the time this map was made, the KoReds have broken into the checkered area at Chinyu. The present line runs as follows: roughly one mile south of Yondok, seven miles northwest of Andong, five miles southeast of Yechon, 10 miles southwest of Sangju, one mile southeast of Kwannil, seven miles northwest of Kumchun, four miles northeast of Chiryu, and six miles southeast of Chinyu.

MACARTHUR PROMISES U. S. HELP

General Thinks Reds Have Hard Time On Formosa

TOKYO, Aug. 1 (UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned to his Tokyo headquarters from Taipei tonight after promising Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek that he will help save Formosa from the Chinese Communists.

He landed in his big C-54 plane "Bataan" at Haneda airport on the outskirts of Tokyo at 8:30 p. m. (6:20 a. m. EDT) after a 36-hour flying visit to Formosa. Mrs. MacArthur was waiting at the airport and kissed her husband as he alighted.

MacARTHUR ISSUED NO STATEMENT beyond telling newsmen that it was "good to be back" from his first overnight trip outside Japan since the beginning of the occupation.

He issued a formal statement just before his departure from Taipei, however, saying that he had completed formal arrangements with Chiang "for effective coordination between American forces under my command and those of the Chinese government better to meet any attack which a hostile force might be foolish enough to attempt."

"Such an attack would, in my opinion, stand little chance for success," he said.

MacARTHUR WENT TO FORMOSA yesterday in his dual capacity as United Nations military commander for Korea and Supreme American commander for the Far East.

As UN commander, he discussed with Chiang the Nationalist government's offer of troops to bolster Allied forces in Korea. MacArthur said it was decided that Nationalist troops should remain in Formosa to defend that island against any invasion attempt.

AS AMERICAN COMMANDER he discussed the defense of Formosa under President Truman's directive that Formosa must be held.

Official sources said Chiang also sought an easing of President Truman's demand that the Nationalists cease operating against the Chinese mainland. These sources said the question still was being studied, but there were hints that the order would be relaxed to permit raids on Communist forces manning for an invasion of Quemoy, one of the stepping-stone islands between Formosa and the mainland.

BULLETINS

WASHINGTON, August 1 (UP)—President Truman told Congress today that he has no objection to standby wage-price rationing controls.

The President made one condition—that the administration be given complete flexibility in exercising them.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 1 (UP)—To avoid civil war, King Leopold promised today to step down from the throne in favor of his 19-year-old son, Crown Prince Baudouin.

But he acted too late to prevent country-wide demonstrations led by Socialists in which there were frequent clashes with police.

WASHINGTON, August 1 (UP)—The Defense Department was expected to identify the four National Guard Divisions it has called to active duty with the Army.

The department also has called up two regimental combat teams and an undisclosed number of support units.

The calls, issued yesterday, affected an estimated 80,000 to 90,000 Guardsmen. It was the government's first major step toward tapping the Guard's reserve fighting power.

KOREDS PUT ON PRESSURE AGAINST U.S.

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff

TOKYO, Wednesday, Aug. 2 (UP)—The U. S. Marines docked at a Korean port today and prepared to join the thousands of fresh American troops streaming up to the front lines. The troops were armed with a formidable array of weapons including several still on the secret list.

While the Leathernecks of the 1st Marine Division waited to disembark, the U. S. Army's 5th regimental combat team arrived from Hawaii and hurried into the battle on the heels of the 2nd infantry division.

The dramatic arrival of American men and arms came at a crucial hour. Manned Communist forces hammered the Allies back in a general retreat through five key towns. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in his midnight communique that the enemy now was striking for Pusan, the U. S. supply port, and Taegu, the provisional South Korean capital.

As the Communists pressed their battle area toward Pusan and Taegu by sheer weight of numbers, United Press Correspondent Jack James reported from a Korean port that almost all the freshly landed Americans had hurried to the front, and the Marines were waiting.

"These are the men who are expected to start the push back north," he reported. "They are in full-strength units. They are armed to the teeth with every weapon which experience has indicated will be practical in Korea—including flame throwers, bazookas, and several weapons still on the classified list."

For the first time in the Korean war, time was running out on the Communists faster than space was running out on the Americans.

Confirming front reports of a general withdrawal along a shortened line, MacArthur's communique reported a pullback but said: "However, it was pointed out that this was not a forced withdrawal, but was planned for regrouping and effecting better disposition of the United Nations forces."

It reported relentless pressure in the Chinyu area where North Koreans had slugged through American foxholes to new positions less than 50 miles from Pusan. In that area, MacArthur said, the Communists "massed for an offensive toward the American supply port of Pusan."

Some 40 miles to the north in the Kochang area the enemy "continued his effort to break through to Taegu," 40 miles to the northeast, MacArthur reported.

Eastland County Demos Name Delegates For State Convention

The naming of delegates to the state democratic convention to be held Sept. 12 at Mineral Wells, highlighted the county democratic meeting in the district courtroom Saturday afternoon.

Cyrus B. Frost, Jr. was elected temporary chairman of the county meeting, and then was elected permanent chairman.

A resolution was accepted approving the actions of President Truman in the Korean crisis, and pledging the local party's support to state officers.

A resolution which would have cut down the number of precincts in the county was tabled on a motion that the convention had no authority over the matter, and authority lay with the county commissioners.

By a close vote the motion to table the resolution carried.

Delegates for the state convention were nominated by the nominating group, making those nominated the official county delegates at the state meeting.

The list of delegates includes, Dr. R. N. Whitehead, Mrs. Don Parker, W. R. Pickens, Frank Sparks, B. W. Patterson, Earl Conner, Sr., Cyrus B. Frost, Jr., Jack W. Frost, Turner Collier, Jesse McKee, Mrs. Sam Butler and Virgil Seaberry, Jr., all of Eastland. Alternates from Eastland are P. L. Crowley, Cyrus B. Frost, Sr., Oscar Lyerta, J. C. Allison and Omar Burkett.

Named from Ranger were: Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pearson, E. H. Hodges, C. B. Frost, J. J. Kelly, E. T. Eubanks, L. H. Hagaman, G. C. Boswell, W. W. Paschall, and Mrs. C. E. May, Sr. Ranger alternates are Price Crowley and Hall Walker.

Cisco delegates include: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stark, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Flournoy, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bearman, Mrs. L. H. McCrea, Mrs. H. N. Lyle, W. J. Armstrong, H. A. McCandless, O. O. Odum, Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Heyser, Sr., W. H. Lalloque, Benny Butler, J. J. Calloway, W. B. Wright, and alternates Gorham Pollard, Mrs. John Shertzer and G. C. Rosenthal.

Named from Gorman were: Henry Capers, T. S. Ross, F. S. Perry, John Kimble, Dr. J. B. Brandon, T. O. Shelly, Boyd Hilley, Mrs. John Love, Dr. Rodgers, J. E. Walker, Jr., and alternates Dick Jay, Glen Kirk, I. C. Underwood and Mrs. M. F. Allen.

Others were J. D. McCarty, M. B. Shook, and W. N. Favors of Rising Star, and L. E. Clark, H. H. Williams, S. W. Powers and P. F. Sparks.

Police Hunt For Soldier, Teen-Age Girl

AMARILLO, Aug. 1 (UP)—A young AWOL soldier straggled into an Amarillo cafe for breakfast today with a frightened teen-age girl he allegedly kidnapped from her Alamogordo, N. M., home.

Before the pair left, the girl—Jo Anne Kinder—slipped a waitress a note saying "she was scared to death," and to tell police they could be picked up on U. S. Highway 66.

New Mexico authorities notified Amarillo police the soldier was believed to be Frank Maklary, 20, AWOL from Holoman Air Base at Alamogordo, where he is charged with kidnapping the Kinder girl.

West Texas and New Mexico authorities watched highway 66 for the dispirited 1938 1/2 Dodge coupe in which the pair was driving. Amarillo police set up road blocks while they searched the city for the couple.

A Rhode Island man found three pearls in a restaurant oyster—and still likely complained about his check.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., (UP)—Russia will return to the United Nations Security Council today to demand the seating of Communist China as the price for peace in Korea.

But Chief Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik, breaking Russia's 29-week boycott, will find himself confronted with a surprise American demand that the council first debate a resolution condemning North Korea's continued defiance of the UN and calling on all mem-

Congressmen Working

Congress Prepares Wage-Price Control Bill; Administration Still Claims No Need Of Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (UP)—The Administration yielded to public and Congressional pressure today for some kind of government controls over wages and prices.

Although President Truman's advisers were still convinced such controls are not necessary now, his lieutenants in Congress were busy preparing legislation giving him standby powers to impose ceilings on prices and to freeze wages.

Under their bill, price and wage controls would go into effect only when President Truman gave the word. This could mean immediately, or it could mean that Truman would never invoke the powers at all.

The President's Congressional lieutenants decided to prepare such a bill when it became evident that Congress is in a mood to vote the President wage and price powers whether he wanted them or not.

Elsewhere in Congress:
Spending — The House appropriations committee ordered its various subcommittees to go back over the House-approved $28,894,000,000 appropriation bill and trim all non-essential items. Chairman Clarence Cannon, D. Mo., said he looked for a substantial cut in view of the anticipated heavy boost in defense spending.

Foreign Aid — Administration leaders claimed enough votes to block the attempt of Sen. Pat McCarran, D. Nev., to earmark $100,000,000 in Marshall plan funds for Spain. But they conceded the vote would be close. Because of parliamentary technicalities, McCarran's proposal needs a two-thirds vote for adoption.

Crime — The Senate's special crime investigating committee intempts to expand its inquiry to Pennsylvania and California. The committee already has opened an investigation of underworld operations in Missouri and Florida and has served notice that it would look into conditions in Chicago.

Sanctions — Seventy-two Republican Congressmen have joined in demanding that the United States and the United Nations impose economic sanctions against aggressor nations and their supporters. They said there is "no justification for continued trade on a business-as-usual basis with governments supporting the North Koreans."

Byrd — Sen Harry F. Byrd, D. Va., urged Congress to investigate what he said was the South Korean's failure to resist effectively the Communist invaders. He also demanded to know why Congress was told two weeks before the invasion that the South Koreans could handle "any challenge."

Insurance — The House executive expenditures committee recommended that the government stop selling life insurance to servicemen, and grant free death benefits instead.

Watchdog — The Senate's watchdog committee—a subcommittee of the Senate armed services committee—set out to see that everything possible is done "to defeat aggression wherever it may appear."

The committee held its first meeting yesterday.

Civic League Buys Street Markers Here

Street markers, purchased by the Civic League, will be erected sometime during August, a spokesman for the city commission said today.

Mrs. C. A. Strong, president of the league, headed the drive to get the markers. It has not been decided which streets will be marked.

The Loves of Carmen
By SOPHIE KERR
Copyright, 1948, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Don Jose, young officer in a fashionable Spanish regiment, falls victim to the charms of the bewitching gypsy, Carmen. His helmsman infatuation leads him into a sword-fight with his commanding officer, and the older man is killed. Jose is forced to flee to a mountain hide-out with Carmen. There he meets the gypsy rogues, Pablo and Remondado. Another member of the band, Dancaire, is in the town to get their leader, Garcia, out of jail. Carmen explains to Jose that they live by smuggling and robbery. Murder is sometimes incidental, she says, but she is sure that for Carmen when she becomes his wife, Carmen supports to acquire the second of her name and awaits in honor.

XVII
THE shouts of the men welcoming two new arrivals introduced Garcia, the bandit leader, who strode toward the fire, boisterous and masterful. He was an enormous man, well over six feet four inches, heavy-boned, broad-shouldered and dark-skinned—an evil-looking gypsy, with the promising, arrogant grace of a lioncat.

He was in command of that group because his presence made him leader and he spoke as a leader, with sharp orders. "What a rife! Pablo, take care of the horses. What's in the pot? Remondado, get me something to eat. Carmen, come here. Show these ruffians how glad you are to have me back."
The two bandits hurried to obey instructions. Carmen walked slowly toward Garcia, and he seized her, lifting her off the ground, and kissed her lavishly, crushing her to him. "Ah, how I thought of you. Every night I said to the jailer: 'My Carmen is the most beautiful woman in Spain.' And he said to me: 'Go to sleep, you filthy brute, and dream about her.'" He held her high, laughing

LATE that night when the fire was low, Carmen moved stealthily across to Don Jose, so silently that he did not hear her when she came up to him and knelt for a moment looking down into his face. His hands were clasped behind his head and he looked miserably off into the horizon, sleepless. He turned his head, startled, as she whispered, "Jose—Jose!" His face tightened with bitter disgust and he turned his head away from her.

Carmen crept closer to him. "Joseito, let me tell you something."
"There isn't anything you can tell me now. Why didn't you tell me before? Why didn't you tell me about Garcia?"
Carmen was ready with excuses. "I didn't know he'd come back so soon."
"But you knew he was—"
"Yes. Yes. But I didn't think he would be here until tomorrow." She became indignantly defensive. "Is it my fault he arrived so fast?"
The words came from him slowly, bitterly. "What kind of a creature are you?"
"Your kind, Joseito." She put her face against his. "Can you forget me? Can you?"
He shoved her away and turned his back on her. "Go where you belong. Go back to him."
Carmen touched his hair, pleading. "Joseito—look at me."

Hollywood Film Shop

By Patricia Clary
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Just once, Dan Duryea says, he'd like to finish a movie poker game.
"I have sat in on about 23 poker games during my film career, and none of them was ever finished," he said. "I'm going to start a society for the prevention of interrupted poker games."
"A guy gets to play out his hand in real life. Why not in the movies?"
In Duryea's current Columbia western, "Al Jennings of Oklahoma," he takes part in two big card games. Each time he's winning and each time somebody breaks up the game.
One game in the current movie ends when somebody shoots another player. The other ends when the ranch boss bursts in and sends him off on an urgent mission.
That Ends It
A favorite way of breaking up a movie game is to catch the heavy cheating.

another man's life doesn't mean much to him."
"But—"
"He's her husband, Navarro. Dancaire said quietly.
Jose stared at him unbelievingly.
"Her—husband—"
"That's right," Dancaire said, and he continued on toward the stewpot.
HOURS passed before the camp fell to rest but Don Jose could not sleep. He lay on the high ground 20 yards away from them, separated by boulders which were built slight separation to a man who, such a short time ago, had been separated from men like these by a chasm of civilized time.
The night was very clear. The stars were high and bright in a cloudless sky. Had he wanted to look, he could have seen a great deal of the beauty of Spain falling away out of the mountains toward a warm sea, but he did not look. He was reeling in his mind the painfully simple steps that had led him to this rocky darkness. If they had been intricate steps, if everything that had happened to him had happened with blinding swiftness, leaving not a moment to permit him to choose and decide, then it would not have been so bitter, he thought. But each move was cut like a mosaic in his mind, each scene was clearly dramatized in the detail of his memory. He could see now that on the very few times, really, he had encountered Carmen, and with her his destiny, that she had carried with her the warning, the overt signs of a peril which he should have recognized.

He heard, within his mind, Andrew's sobbed indictment. He knew that she was evil but he knew in a surging, sharp, ascendant way that she loved him, and this relieved the guilt in his soul. But though guilt was gone, he was left with despair and dishonor.
Not only was his honor gone but at the sound of three words that could never be recalled, Carmen too was gone. The three words rang in mocking, frightening echoes in the depths of his mind, the words of Dancaire—"He's her husband."

and as they halted, he dumped Carmen unceremoniously to the ground. She landed on her feet and walked to a rock to sit down. Garcia rode toward the edge of a rise cautiously. The others waited, horses reined in. A burst of gunfire in the distance was followed by a warning about from Garcia. He wheeled his horse about and galloped down on them, yelling, "A mounted patrol. Take cover. They're seen us."
The bandits threw themselves behind rocks. As the patrol showed itself over the rise they began to shoot. Don Jose was crouched behind a boulder, and Garcia stopped down beside him. "Do you know how to use your gun, Navarro?" the brigand inquired in mock astonishment.
"I am a soldier."
"I know—but can you shoot?"
"I can do what you can do."
Garcia laughed a raucous, insulting laugh. Then he ducked out of the shelter of the rock and crawled toward another of his band, shooting as he went.
The constabulary were trained soldiers who entered the murderer's charge with Garcia's gang with a formalism dictated by international military tradition. They rode absurdly erect as they went forward in the correct line of advance, almost as though they expected the polish on the buttons of their uniforms and the solemn dignity of the uniform itself to sweep the bandits into misgivings and surrender. Unfortunately, this approach only succeeded in getting one of their number killed almost immediately.

It took this sudden death to remind the members of the patrol that before they were soldiers in the Andalusian constabulary, they had been mountain men, too. Imitating the opposition, they now dismounted and spread out, each finding a place for himself behind one of the enormous boulders which would remain as monuments to some of them.
Once they got settled they knew their business. They were marksmen. The fighting got underway in earnest.

Earthquakes, twisters, stomach cramps, Mickey Finn—something always breaks up a movie poker game.
Always Something
There was one of those 23 movie poker games that Duryea almost finished, and it was one he'd give his next option for.
The pot was as big as a three-tier wedding cake," he said. "I had two eights and an ace showing and a card in the hole. My opponent called, and I was just about to answer when the villain who had been stalking me let go with a shot from his hiding place outside the window.
"I slumped forward. A harpy reached down and peeked at the card I had in the hole.
"An ace, he had it," he announced. But I was stone dead."

Olden Baptist Start Revival Wednesday

Revival begins at the Olden Baptist Church Wednesday night August 2nd and will continue through August 12. Rev. H. J. Starnes will be the evangelist and Rev. James C. Peck will be in charge of the song services. There will be services twice daily. At 10 a.m. and at 8 p.m.

Rev. Clifford Nelson, pastor, invites any that will care to, to come and worship with the people of the Olden Baptist church in these fine gospel services. Every member will be expected and all visitors will be welcomed, and if you are too busy to go to church you are too busy, Nelson said.

Special nursery compartments supplied with children's playthings books and phonograph records, attended by stewardesses are provided on German federal railways where children may be "parked" for the duration of the journey.

MASTER DIPS—Frank Leahy returns from refreshing daily plunge at his home on the shores of Lake Michigan. With a string of 33 victories going for him, and Quarterback Bob Williams returning to direct the Irish attack, Notre Dame's football coach can relax.

Business Leader With Great War Record Tells How Hadacol Rebuilt Him Physically

Was run-down, weak, after service in South Pacific due to deficiencies of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin

Mr. Donald Hedburg, who resides at 1812 Parker in the fashionable Riverside District of Wichita, Kansas, has been an up-and-coming executive member of the staff of the great Wichita Eagle newspaper for over four years.

Mr. Hedburg has an enviable record of combat with the U. S. Army in the South Pacific in World War II. He is very active in civic affairs. And just as he was anxious to pitch in and do a job during the war—he now wants to help his fellow citizens who (like he was once) are physically run-down and weak due to lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in their systems.

Here is Donald W. Hedburg's witnessed statement: "When I returned from service, I faced the problem of rebuilding myself physically. I was in a general run-down condition. In my present capacity for advertising salesman for Kansas' greatest newspaper, The Wichita Eagle, it's absolutely necessary that I have plenty of vitality—get up and go. I had real cause to worry. Nothing seemed to rebuild me constitutionally. Then a friend of mine on the national staff told me about HADACOL—he asked me to try at least five bottles. I'm on my fourth bottle and already I feel like my old self. I look forward to a day's work and go home—play with the children—work in the yard—fish until midnight! Thanks again to HADACOL, energy and vitality once again course through every fiber of my body. You bet, I too am now a missionary for this great new HADACOL."

Get That Wonderful HADACOL Feeling Everyone is Talking About! HADACOL gives such wonderful results because it not only supplies deficient, weak run-down systems with more than their daily needs of important Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin—but also helpful amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness. If you are a victim of neuritis, pains, certain stomach and nervous disturbances, constipation, insomnia or a weak, run-down condition due to such deficiencies, HADACOL will start you on the road to feeling better often within a few days. Thousands upon thousands of records of grateful men, women and children proved this to be so.

Many Doctors Recommend It HADACOL is recommended by many doctors not only to their patients but to members of their own families who have such deficiencies. Before giving up hope—you owe it to yourself to at least give HADACOL a chance to help you. Why keep dragging yourself around feeling 'half-alive' when it's so easy to have that wonderful HADACOL feeling everyone is talking about! Trial-size bottle, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes.

World Will Listen To Red Malik Today; His Words May Decide Fate Of World For Generation Or More

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News Editor

The slow surge of history occasionally carries a single man to the point where the ears of the world are straining to catch his every word.

Winston Churchill was there when he was making his famous speeches of defiance against Hitler. Franklin D. Roosevelt was there when he told the world the United States had nothing to fear but fear itself. The Duke of Windsor was there when he broadcast the word that he was abdicating a throne for love.

This is Jacob Alexandrovitch Malik's day.

Before sunset he is going to speak some words that will give the world a better idea what is in store for it during the next generation. He appears before the United Nations Security Council this afternoon to assume the chairmanship for one month. It could be that what he says will reveal Russia's plans for the immediate future—whether she is going to be tough and do something that will lead to World War III or whether she has decided that she burned her fingers in Korea and now wants to put out the fire for a while.

The news may be that Moscow is still tough, but the message won't be delivered in a tough manner. Malik is a mild-mannered man who makes a matter of fact speech. He can't afford to get too excited because he has heart trouble. As he explains it to friends: "I look strong and healthy but I'm like a rotten apple. I am a hollow shell."

Other delegates at the U.N. have become accustomed to Russians who make long speeches with the maximum amount of shouting and arm waving—Molotov, Vishinsky and Gromyko. Malik is not that type. He works more in the tradition of Maxim Litvinov, the former Russia Ambassador to the United States, who always believed he could accomplish more by going off in a corner and making a quiet deal than he could by delivering an oration.

Malik is well equipped to represent the Soviet Union in this time of crisis in Korea because: 1. He is an expert on the Far East. He was formerly Soviet Ambassador to Tokyo and delivered the news to the Japanese that the Russians had declared war on them.

2. He is the top expert in the Russian diplomatic corps on the Atomic bomb. In 1945 he was a delegate to the council of foreign ministers' meeting in Moscow where it was agreed to set up the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. The next year he was promoted to Deputy Foreign Minister.

Malik is 44 years old and was graduated from the college of diplomacy of the University of Moscow in 1917. He first arrived in the United States in May, 1948, and New York reporters went down the bay to interview him.

"I am a man of peace" he told them.

We'll find out about that today.

Koreans Strip, Torture Captured Americans; Bayonet Wounded Ones

WITH US TROOPS IN KOREA Aug. 1 (UP)—Pvt. Alfred C. Meek of Walla Walla, Wash., was in a battalion sent to clean out what intelligence reports called "200 highly disorganized North Koreans."

But the enemy turned out to be anything but disorganized. So it was another case of a "lost battalion," of which there have been many in this war.

The battalion was cut off for six hours in an exposed position—exposed to Communist mortars, heavy artillery, machine guns and small arms.

"There was no battle to it," said Sgt. Charles J. Alsup of Fort Worth. "It was just a one-sided slaughter."

Finally the battalion was given the word to get out as best it could. Young Meek was alone in a concealed hill position, and couldn't go along.

"After the withdrawal," he said, "I could see the enemy taking prisoners, and making the well ones carry out the wounded. The wounded ones were bayoneted along the side of the road."

"When some of the well ones tried to make a break, they were caught and stripped. Then the Communists made them run up and down the road until they dropped.

"When one would drop, a bunch of them would gather around him and each would hit him."

"It was six when they started running. It was nine when the last one dropped. I got out in the dark across the hills a little later."

Cisco Battery Of NG Returns

The Cisco battery of the Texas National Guard returned Sunday from North Fort Hood where the West Texas units of the 648th Armored Field Artillery Battalion have just finished their annual encampment. The units from San Angelo, Breckenridge, Cisco, Ranger and Colorado City have undergone two weeks of intensive training at Fort Hood.

The Cisco battery is under the command of Capt. Frank N. Sayre of Eastland who recently succeeded O. O. Odom, jr., of Cisco.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to our many friends in Ranger for all the kindness and words of sympathy and the beautiful floral offering during the illness and death of our beloved mother and grandmother. We especially wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fox, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Max Ohr, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Campbell.

May God bless you all for your thoughtfulness. Mr. and Mrs. Onis Littlefield and sons, Jim and Jack.

WHIZ KID—Georgie Cole, 5, has speeded more than 60,000 laps on a miniature motorcycle since he was 18 months old. But authorities fined his father and the manager of the Birmingham, Eng. Speedway for allowing the youngster to take part in a dangerous performance.

BIG ACCIDENT—William Anderson cast for bass in Lake Chautauque, N. Y., without success. As Kennedy rowed shoreward, his line, accidentally trailing in the water, was taken by this 50-inch, 33-pound muskellunge. Minus a net, the Kennedy, N. Y. angler called on nearby fishermen to aid in boating the large fellow.

Bernard Baruch is one of the few men in America that I can't slander at some time in his life. Or if he has, I've never heard of it. I've read slanderous stories about Roosevelt, Truman, Taft, Wilson, J. Edgar Hoover and all the great and near great men in politics. But I've still to hear the motivations of Baruch questioned. And for that reason, I think that he's worth listening to. And when a man of his caliber—with wealth and interest in wealth—appeals for all out mobilization, expressing serious concern with the half-hearted measures that we are now taking to beat Russia, I think it is doubly important to listen to him. Today, whether we like it or not, we face an all-out war that will probably last 10 to 20 years that will change the international system beyond recognition—and will probably change our own national set-up so that a man of 1920 living in 1960 wouldn't feel at home.

How drastic that change in America becomes is going to depend a lot on what adjustments are made now to stop profiteering. Baruch, a capitalist, labeled a system contemptible that would allow profiteering while sending American boys to die. The words will be much stronger than that after half of the nation is wiped out if profiteering is allowed. Private enterprise will kill itself in the next ten years if selfish individuals are allowed to make money out of the spilled blood of your sons and daughters. And that will not cause you or me to shed many tears.

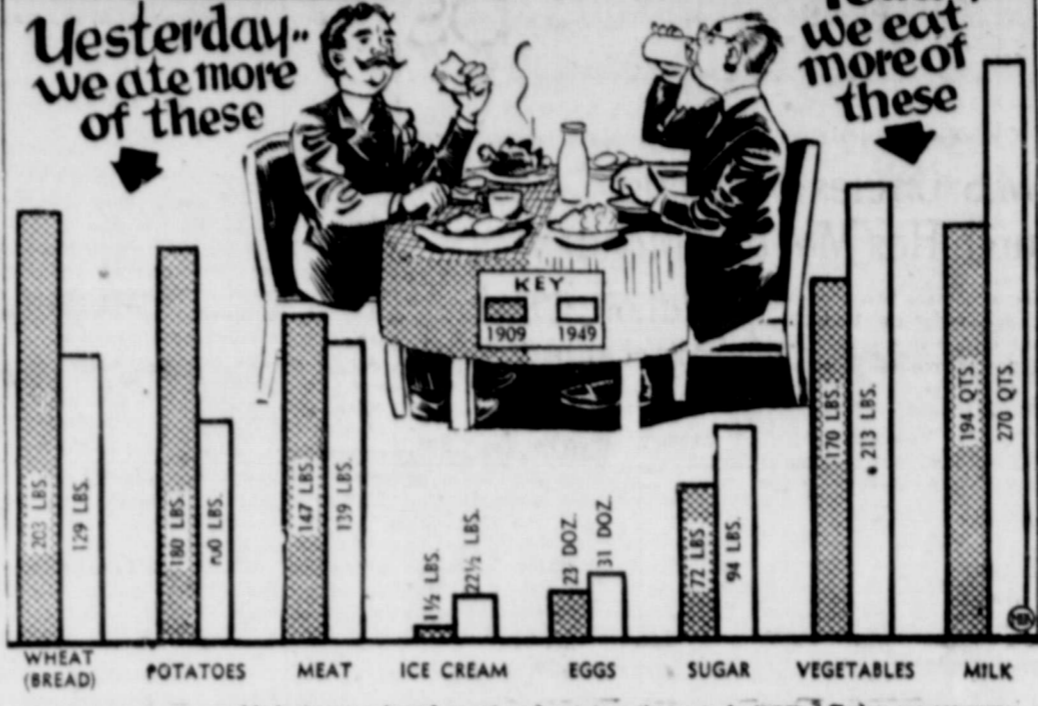

Our tears will be shed for those that died needlessly because someone here wanted to live a little faster off the blood of youth. Already some are moving to fatness off the Korean war and the men that will die over there. From Seattle we hear of landlords forcing the families of men now fighting in Korea out of their homes. From Los Angeles, we hear that the city council there refused to listen to rent holders' pleas and took off rent control. They did it fully conscious that Los Angeles will be a war boom town—that rents will climb so that the average American soldier will not be able to find decent quarters for his family.

In the Sunday Dallas Morning News, we read about banks threatening to foreclose on Marines, called to duty with a resultant cut in pay checks; we read about the furniture store that refused to turn back a Marine's check for furniture that he never received—and that he will have no use for in Korea. The government today is asking that Harry Bridges be put in jail as an enemy to the war effort. I have tried and cannot see the difference between Bridges, Accused Spy Gold and Eager Beaver Mortgage Foreclosers, Rent-Hike Crazy Landlords, Profiteering Wholesale and Retail dealers and Hoari-Mad You and I.

Alexander McGillivray was the only American who held simultaneously four military commissions—Mexico of the Creek Indians, general of the Continental army, colonel in the English army, and colonel in the Spanish army. Draft Officials Inherit Plenty Of Headaches From Peace Lull Harassed draft officials, struggling to get the nation's selective service machinery into gear, reported today that thousands of men were failing to respond to their greetings from Uncle Sam. In many cities across the country, a United Press survey showed, at least one fourth of the prospective draftees failed to show up for physical examinations. In Portland, Ore., the rate of delinquency soared to 42 per cent. Eighty-two of 191 men ordered up for physicals at Portland failed to keep the date. However, officials said they doubted that many of the delinquents deliberately stayed away. They said that those who put in tardy appearances had a satisfactory explanation in almost every case. Draft officials are using the same procedure in handling delinquencies. New induction orders are being sent out. The cases of men who still fail to show up will be turned over to the U. S. District Attorney and the Federal Bureau of Investigation for investigation and possible prosecution.

In New York, 329 of 1402 men ordered to report during the last eight days failed to do so. The selective service chief there blamed "the calendar, the weather, and the age of the individual." "Some are no doubt vacationing, and didn't receive notice," he said. "Each case will be handled individually to ascertain whether the delinquent was merely careless or malicious." Chicago officials said only about two-thirds of the men sent greetings actually were showing up for physical examinations. A selective service spokesman said that in most cases registrants just weren't receiving the notices. Draft board clerks, he said, are far behind in the task of correcting the addresses or registrants who have moved. Twenty-seven of 100 men called up in Washington, D. C., failed to report.

Business Magazine Writers Fear All-Out Mobilization Coming

Business Week predicts that even if the Korean war stopped tomorrow the current mobilization crisis would not end.

The present situation, the magazine says, could easily span the whole decade of the 1950's. The Magazine of Wall Street seems to feel the same way and in an article by E. A. Kraus states "business as usual" can not last long if the way things are going. To quote from the article: "While it won't be premature to expect a quick, sharp reduction in the production of consumer durable goods, some cutbacks will be forced in coming months because of allocations of critical materials to the defense program. Autos, refrigerators, washing machines and a host of other durables may be affected in various and as yet unascertainable degrees."

The magazine article, remains optimistic most of the way about inflation. But it points out: "There is no question that the threat of inflation is greatly revived by the mobilization program. Even now, inflationary tendencies are getting up steam as scarce buying and precautionary forward buying by business begins to make itself felt. And the trouble is that there is not much leeway anywhere."

Business Week points out that we must assume there will be other Koreans and that we will have to buck up our allies or potential allies in these danger spots even before there is any overt attack. In addition, the magazine says, we should assume that sooner or later there will be a real showdown with the Russians, and prepare for the possibility of an all-out war sometime. This is the long-range, over-the-years, job.

Truman's limited mobilization program is designed to meet the first of these basic strategic needs," the article observes. "It will get the arms and armies to retake Korea and police other danger spots. And it will also provide the transition for a gradual build-up of strength for the final showdown."

The magazine warns that force of circumstances could quickly drive us from partial to total mobilization, adding that there are at least three things that could make the U. S. whoosh into an all-out war basis. First, Russia could force our hand by direct attack on us or our major allies. Second, the controls that Truman proposes could prove inadequate even for the needs of a limited military program; and, third, the additional military demands could start a whirlwind inflation and Washington would have to clamp down to protect the country from buying itself crazy.

"If the limited mobilization works, it will stay in effect until Russia forces the issue—or until we finally reach some long-term settlement with the Communists," says the article.

"If the limited program fails—or if Russia attacks—we will switch to all-out mobilization. In many respects this will bring fewer problems than the halfway measure."

The overriding problem of total mobilization would be manpower controls since there is no pool of unemployed from which to draw and here are few nonessential industries that the producers of military goods could raid for additional workers.

"Some sort of national service law, to put workers into industries where they are needed, would be almost inescapable," says the article. "But the planners still haven't decided what course the U. S. should take."

Other problems expected to face us in a total mobilization are inflation, higher taxes and civilian defense.

"If the limited program fails—or if Russia attacks—we will switch to all-out mobilization. In many respects this will bring fewer problems than the halfway measure."

The overriding problem of total mobilization would be manpower controls since there is no pool of unemployed from which to draw and here are few nonessential industries that the producers of military goods could raid for additional workers.

"Some sort of national service law, to put workers into industries where they are needed, would be almost inescapable," says the article. "But the planners still haven't decided what course the U. S. should take."

Other problems expected to face us in a total mobilization are inflation, higher taxes and civilian defense.

County Dairy Work Starts

Forrest Boone, Rising Star dairyman and newly qualified Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisor for the Eastland County Dairy Association, said today that the testing work has started on eight different herds.

Boone spent the week of July 10-17 attending a DHIA supervisors school at Texas A & M College. He planned to begin the testing work at A. Z. Myrick's Dairy near Cisco on July 31.

Included among those who have enrolled their herds for dairy herd improvement association testing are: Mosley Pro., Olden; E. R. Higginbottom, Kokomo; L. O. Swindle, Cisco; Raymond Sprawls, Scranton; A. Z. Myrick, Cisco; J. C. Caraway, Kokomo; Forrest Boone, Rising Star; and Leo Isaac, Cross Plains.

Boone will visit each dairyman enrolled for the night and succeeding morning milking once each month. Each cow's milk will be weighed and a butter-fat sample tested.

The feed per cow will also be weighed—and cost records made of the feed. All cows in lactation in the herd will be tested.

The fee for the testing service is very nominal according to A. Z. Myrick, Cisco, president of the association that is sponsoring the service.

"Cows that are not making a profit above feed costs can be detected by this bookkeeping system on individual cows and they can be culled out and replaced," Boone said.

The new testing program will be discussed at the meeting of the dairy association in Ranger Thursday night at the chamber of commerce building, Boone said.

All dairymen of the county are invited to attend the meeting.

Back in the Early Days—

... this country was surveyed in most part by the railroads in uniform and regular blocks or tracts. Tracts not so surveyed are usually irregular in size and description and are far more difficult to abstract and more expensive. But whether your property be a ranch spreading across the hills or a cottage by the side of the road, we find it by a system of abstracting unexcelled in this area. And by getting the best you also have the cheapest.
