By UNCLE BOB

The other afternoon while walking through a residential section of Ranger I paused for a few minutes to talk to a wonderful lady who lost her husband several months ago.

She explained to me how lonesome it was for her since her husband passed away and after 47 years together it seemed that he was a part of her. I listened as the little old lady pointed out the wonderful parts of their marriage life and it seemed that she was trying to use the happiness of yesterday as her life of today. She explained to me that she looked for her husband every evening when the sun went down, it was the most lonesome part of the day.

Evening's a lonely time
When you see and wait, Listening for footsteps to Turn up at the gate.

Up and down the little lane
Windows come a-light;
Fandlers pry again;
Close against the night.
Birds have sung their vesper songs
Within the nest,
The night is a lonely time,
You set and wait.

At graduation is over and The school is out vacations are the topic of the day in most of the homes in Ranger.

In this state a vacation can be spent that will compare with any part of the world.

Texas has mountains, lakes,
plains, ocean beaches, pine woods,
old landmarks and points of interested equal to any state in the nation for its scenic beauty. Plan now to spend your vacation in Texas. Spend your vacation at home. You can see a lot more for a lot less.

The pictures in the paper have fooled a few. Here is a tip on the pictures today under GUESS WHO? This gentleman now makes his home in Lubbock. He lived in Ranger a number of years and was a barber.

On the porch of a humble home beside the railroad tracks, in a small Georgia town, a little girl sat every day to watch the train go by. But she never waved, as most children do.

The engineer, Henry R. Lee, often wondered at this. So, one day, he slowed down and dropped a note addressed to the child's mother, asking why.

The mother wrote him a letter:
"Grace was born with her arms off below the elbows." Mr. Lee passed the word among his fellow trainmen. It spread. Contributions came in, operations were performed, and the child, whose father works by a garage, today has artificial arms, and hands she can wave.

ENGLISH "PAPOOSHKA"—This terry cloth beach jacket, designed by Joy Ricardo of London, has a hood which doubles as a carryall for books and magazines for the beach, or as protection for rainy moments. In pink and white, there's a matching make-up case on a string, as the wearer can't be "hoodwinked" for lack of alertness at the right moment.

A. A. Tuggle Is Honored With Banquet

A. A. Tuggle, wire chief for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. at Eastland, was the honor guest at a surprise dinner given by his associates and the Telephone Co. Friday evening.

Swimming Pool Opens At Willow Park Today

WHO CARES?—"Pierre" doesn't. It's sufficient that he's been brave enough to cross this thin bridge at Vincennes Zoo, in Paris, France. The deep-freeze put on by the penguins on the other side makes no-never-mind. Pierre has a bouquet for the lady of the air-conditioned Arctic evening—so who cares? (Says Pierre.)

LIFE-GUARDS NOW ON DUTY

The Ranger swimming pool, located in Willow Park, opens today at one o'clock.

The pool will be under the supervision of John Gibson this year. Gibson announced today that Seiden Wood and Eddy "Twister" Poiston will be life guards for the season.

The pool will be opened each day from one o'clock until nine at night.

Instructions will be given from 10 to 12 each week day under the supervision of an instructor.

The Ranger pool contains 450,000 gallons of water and is tapered from three feet to ten feet. The pool will circulate 400 gallons of water a minute or 24,000 gallons of water an hour with complete circulation of all the water in the pool in 18 hours and 45 minutes.

Admission this year will be 29 and 35 cents.

TEXANS RECEIVE THOUSANDS OF WARNINGS DURING APRIL

If you were stopped by a Texas Highway Patrolman during the month of April for an infraction of the traffic laws—you had a lot of company. As a matter of fact you had exactly 34,686 other folks in the same boat with you.

You could have been "fished", though. You might have been one of nearly half of the total who got a warning ticket instead of an arrest ticket. And you might not have been involved in one of the 13,196 accidents during the month. Better than that... you might not have been one of the 6,840 persons injured in traffic accidents in April. And one thing is sure... if you're reading this you're really fortunate because you weren't among the 168 killed in Texas traffic during the 30-day period.

Walter J. Elliott, chief of the Texas Highway Patrol, has just released a comprehensive breakdown of the activities of 444 patrolmen who were on duty during the month. It shows that the men, comprising the sixteen Texas Highway Patrol Districts, worked a total of 108,922 hours during April at duties ranging from the gamut from giving road information to tourists to making 11,850 arrests and passing out 16,926 warning tickets. Thirty-seven percent, or 10,239, of those hours were turned in on night duty.

The 444 patrolmen operated in 317 cars for the incredible distance of 1,082,617 miles. It wasn't all riding and writing tickets, however. Accident investigations took up 3,555 hours of the time; another 2,151 hours were devoted to safety work other than enforcement; and the men spent 3,612 hours on court duty.

According to Chief Elliott's figures, 8,544 of the arrests made were for hazardous traffic violations—the sort that cause accidents. Speeding, as usual, led the field with 4,803. Next in order was "Improper Passing" with 801; and drunk driving accounted for 554 of the apprehensions.

Speeding was also the leader in (Continued on Page Two)

FRED SLOCUM TAKES HONORS AT RANGER GOLF TOURNAMENT

It was fast all the way Monday night at the Sportarena in Eastland. Big Billy McDaniels took two straight falls to win the main event over rough Roy Graham and Ruth Boatcallie took the first and last fall to defeat Carol Cook.

The referee disqualified Graham in the first fall to help McDaniels on his way, and then Big Bill gave Graham a working over to win the event. Graham and the referee then mixed it up.

Articles From Hospital Now On Display Here

Mrs. A. H. Powell of 901 Pershing has on display in the Powell Grocery Store located across from Young School merchandise from the Veterans' Hospital at Temple.

Mrs. Powell explained that the merchandise was made by the boys in the government hospital that are suffering from injuries received while in the service of our country. Many beautiful articles were presented to Mrs. Powell by Katherine S. Hentley, Chief Social Worker of the Hospital to display in this city, and accept orders.

The display contains beautiful throw rugs and leathercraft of wonderful workmanship.

Mrs. Powell added "the merchandise is made by boys who, in some cases have no other income. It is also the desire of the Veterans' Hospital to encourage this type of work to give the hospitalized men something to do. It is a worthy cause and you will be helping a boy that helped our country."

The merchandise will be on display in the Powell grocery store for a limited time and orders are being accepted now.

Home of Safety Cleveland, Ohio

CLEVELAND—There's a home in suburban Cleveland where you can't fall downstairs, slip on an icy driveway, crack your head against an open cabinet door or fall out of the window.

"Home of Safety" is what its builders call it. They've done everything possible to eliminate hazards, which the National Safety Council estimates takes 32,000 lives each year.

When Espino-Hames, Inc., planned the house, management tried to get rid of everything that would trip, stab, shock or burn the housewife and her family. They started with the stairs. Or rather, they started without them. The I.O.S. doesn't have a step in it. There's no basement and the front door is at the end of a ramp. The ramp would have created a fine slide for the children in the winter and also a slide for unwitting guests. So the builders skip-proofed the walk by rounding up the surface and ice-proofed it by burying electric heating cables in it and in the driveway.

One of the designers gashed his head on an open kitchen cabinet door in his home one evening and thereupon decided that only sliding cabinet doors would be installed. And so they were. Shock-proof heated glass in the ceiling keeps room and occupants warm by radiation. The natural principle that heated air rises is likely to be confusing — but the builders say their system has nothing to do with air movement.

The children, of course, are more adept at getting into trouble than their elders. But the builders say it would take a mighty effort for the youngsters to fall out a window. Windows are set high enough to be practically out of reach of children and they swing out instead of sliding up.

An agile child can take a tumble, but he'll have to work at it. You can still have accidents in the home of safety. The bottom of the bathtub is made so you can stand up without slipping, but if you step on a cake of soap you still can go down with a crash. The builders say the floor is still hard.

A copy of the warning ticket was filed in their permanent driving record at the headquarters of the Driver's License Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety where enough of them, just like a small collection of arrest notations or accident experiences, will automatically bring the errand driver up for suspension or revocation action on his license.

"Our men always give two or three times as many warnings as they do arrest tickets," Elliott explained. "But sometimes we wonder if we're really doing the motorist a favor when he is released with merely a warning. We always hope the warning will work; that is, that it will keep the driver from repeating his error, but many times a Patrolman is called to investigate a fatal traffic accident and
