Car Crashes Against Telegraph Pole, Rebounds and Dashes Occupants to Ground

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Frances Burton Harrison, wife of the former congressman and democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in 1894, was killed by being thrown from her automobile on Thompson Island, Long Island City, shortly before noon today.

Mrs. Harrison, who was Mary Croker of San Francisco, who married Mr. Harrison five years ago, invited the Scotts and her brother to take a trip to Long Island today.

The party boarded the ship in Tampa, having just finished a two months' visit to the proposed site of the Zion Paradise plantations, which are in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas.

When the beaming Elijah II. caught sight of him he beamed still more and lifting his hat gave utterance to these words: "Peace to thee."

Mrs. Harrison fell out on her head, breaking her neck. The machine fell on her, crushing her most cruelly, but she was unconscious from the second she struck the ground.

SEN. BURTON FOUND GUILTY

Verdict for the Prosecution on Six Counts

MAKES NO STATEMENT

Counsel for Defense Declares New Trial Will Be Asked at Once

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—Senator Burton is found guilty on all six counts of the indictment on which he was charged. Burton's counsel stated that application for new trial would be made immediately and if refused an appeal would be taken.

District Attorney D. P. Dyere closed the arguments at 5:45 o'clock and immediately following Judge Vandeventer announced that court would take a recess in the Burton case until 8 o'clock when he would deliver the instructions.

In his argument Attorney Haynes questioned the credibility of Charles H. Brooks' testimony. Brooks was the star witness for the government in the trial. He testified to a conversation in which he said it was stated to him in Burton's presence that Burton had prevented the issuance of a fraud order against the Rialto company.

He tried to show, however, that all inquiries made by Burton were directed in regard to the criminal charge against Major Dennis, which, as attorney for Dennis, he had a perfect right to do.

AMARILLO SEWER APPROVED

Engineer of Fort Worth Supervised Its Construction

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 25.—Engineer John P. Hawley of Fort Worth, chief engineer of the construction of Amarillo's $40,000 sewer system, while here this week conferring with the council upon their acceptance of the system, stated that the new system was the best in the southwest.

"Every foot of the fourteen odd miles is laid correctly," said Mr. Hawley in speaking of the matter, "and the work is beautifully executed, the absence of rock and the use of the steam ditcher making that possible, and in many of the lines which were tested under my eye the flow exceeded the specifications considerably."

HOLY WAR IN TURKEY FEARED

All Christians in Ottoman Empire May Be Killed

SITUATION REMAINS TENSE

Complication Feared From the Stand Taken by Sultan Abdul Hamid

BY PAUL LAMBETH.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Russia's critical internal condition has faded into insignificance in view of the crisis in the Turkish situation and the menace of a "holy war" that may cause the killing of every Christian in the Ottoman empire.

The audacity of the position taken by Abdul Hamid in the face of what would ordinarily seem to be overwhelming odds has elicited the outspoken admiration of European statesmen, however much they disapprove of his policy in Macedonia and Armenia.

While the Turkish navy is little better than a collection of rotten hulks, manned by men who were never intended for sailors, the Ottoman army is a formidable body, well officered and drilled by German tacticians and strategists and would make a very difficult matter for the several powers to carry out the same plan that was found so efficacious in the affair with China.

Another fact overlooked is the unity of the various factions in Turkey in the face of a threatened foreign invasion. It may be stated as a fact that the young Turks, the so-called intellectual party and the various other reform organizations with ramifications running through both European and Asiatic Turkey, are unanimously supporting the sultan in the present crisis.

As to what the outcome of the hostile move of the powers will be there are various predictions made. The general opinion seems to be that the sultan will hold out in his present position as long as possible and will then yield with the possible proviso that the situation be further examined into by an impartial commission before the plan of the powers is in operation.

Austria and Russia have felt constrained to adopt precautions for the prevention of a possible revolutionary outbreak in the Balkans under cover of the confusion resulting from the struggle now going on in Constantinople but it is feared that an outbreak may occur which will precipitate the long predicted European war.

These are the two leading features of the proposed new bill which will be considered by the senate committee.

Mr. Cowan will likely remain in Washington until after the rate question has been finally disposed of by congress.

DRIVING CLUB'S OBJECTS TOLD

President Colvin Explains Purposes of Association

Numerous items have appeared in the Telegram in regard to the Fort Worth Driving Club, but its objects and aims have never been so well set forth and explained as they are in the interview given out last evening by G. H. Colvin, president of the organization, who said to a Sunday Telegram representative:

"Two previous attempts were made to perfect its organization, but both were complete failures. In the first instance we failed to secure enough members to finance the deal; in the second instance we tried to get permission from the city council to allow us to build a track in the city park, but the good ladies of the city were so strongly opposed to this proposition that we 'threw up our hands' and hollered 'nuff' in the first round." While we were disappointed, at the same time we were not discouraged, and we kept digging away until at last we have secured a large membership of the best and most representative people in the city. The track has been built, barns completed, we have a well of pure artesian water and a nice grandstand. The location is the most convenient that could be found; it is about three-quarters of a mile west of the court house on the Arlington Heights boulevard, a little to the northwest of the city park. The association has paid cash for all the work that has been done, and we have a lease on the property for fifteen years. Experienced trackmen say that this will undoubtedly be one of the fastest tracks in the south. Some people have an idea that this is a professional racing association, but such is not the case; it is simply a nice race track, owned by the best people in the city, where they can take their horses and have a nice, level, smooth place to drive them.

"It is not necessary to own a race horse, or even a fast horse, in order to become a member of this association; in fact there are very few members who have fast horses, but for those who do have them, it affords them an excellent place to drive them.

"In securing members, we have not solicited memberships from any except thoroughly respectable people; roughs and toughs are not wanted, and we do not solicit their memberships. No rowdiness, gambling or drinking will be permitted on the grounds, and those who are members need not hesitate to bring their wives and daughters to the track. We are anxious to get the ladies as well as the gentlemen interested. If the ladies will take an interest in our as-

CITY'S BLESSING HAS BEEN GREAT

Mayor Says Fort Worth Has Cause for Thanks

BY MAYOR T. J. POWELL.

In this day of strenuous politics, a stranger coming into Fort Worth and reading the newspapers might, in some instances, think the city had no occasion for a Thanksgiving; but, if we brush aside the selfish aims of men and examine the record fairly, the unprejudiced observer will see that Fort Worth has more cause for thanksgiving than any city in the southwest.

First of all, as to its sociological condition, the great army of laboring men of Fort Worth are restful and contented under peaceful conditions. This, in itself, is cause for general giving of thanks. The business interests of Fort Worth in all branches and lines have prospered in the past year as never before, and this is cause for thanksgiving. Within the past year the people of Fort Worth have acquired the right of self-government under the referendum and self-government is the most precious jewel in the crown of our liberties—for this Fort Worth has true cause to be thankful.

Water Supply

Fort Worth has the purest unlimited water supply that flows through the mains of any city in the world, and it is the healthiest city of its size in the United States. For this Fort Worth has cause to be thankful. It is the great inland railway center of Texas, which one fact makes it the best inland city in the state and, for this, we

Heart Trouble

The heart itself has no power—no self-control. It is made to beat by a tender nerve so tiny that it is scarcely visible to the naked eye. Yet ten thousand times a day this delicate nerve must assist the heart to expand and contract.

This nerve is only one of the branches of the great sympathetic or inside nerve system. Each branch of this system is so closely allied with the others that weakness or irregularity at any point is apt to spread. Heart trouble frequently arises from stomach troubles through sympathy, and kidney trouble may also follow. For each of these organs is operated by a branch of these same sympathetic nerves—the inside nerves.

In heart, kidney or stomach troubles, it is of but little use to attempt to doctor the organ itself—the most permanent relief lies in restoring the inside nerves. Dr. Shoop regards these nerves to be the real cause of such troubles. The remedy—known by physicians and druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is the result of years of endeavor along this very line. It does not dose the organ to deaden the pain—but it aims to go at once to the nerve—the inside nerve—the power nerve—and builds it up, and strengthens it and makes it well.

Every heart sufferer, and every Dr. Shoop's book on the Heart. It will be sent free, and with it you will receive the "Health Token" an intended passport to good health.

For the free book Book 1 on Dyspepsia, and the "Health Tok. Book 2 on the Heart," you must address Book 3 on the Kidney, Dr. Shoop, Box 7865, Book 4 for Women, Racine, Wis. State Book 5 for Men, which book you Book 6 on Rheumatism.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

Prepared in both Liquid and Tablet form. For sale at forty thousand drug stores. Mild cases are often reached by a single package.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall blood purifier, "tonic and cure-all," and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

A few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason taboed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any time all people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

NEW LINE FOR WESTERN TEXAS

W. A. Butts to Build From Town of Merkel

William A. Butts, formerly of this city but now of New York, is in the city on his way to Merkel, where he proposes to start work this coming week on a railroad to build north and south from Merkel. Mr. Butts is the promoter of the line and has a number of eastern capitalists interested in it with him. The ultimate purpose of the line, when finished, is to run from Corpus Christi to a point on the Fort Worth and Denver City. At present, however, the line will be built north from Merkel. The northern terminus of the line has not been fixed, according to Mr. Butts, but will be somewhere on the Fort Worth and Denver City line between Harrell and Quanah, probably at Vernon. Mr. Butts will take charge of the construction of the first division himself and will not let any contracts for the doing of the work by contractors until later.

Mr. Butts said last night that he believes Merkel will be the largest and best city between Fort Worth and El Paso within the next two years. He declares it is now the best town of its size west of Fort Worth.

The exact line of the new road has not been given out. It is learned, however, the line will almost parallel the Orient, which is now building. Mr. Butts stated that the new line was independent of all other lines and was not connected with either the Orient or the Wichita line being extended by Morgan Jones.

"The people of Fort Worth have gone to sleep over the matter of a line of railroad running between Fort Worth and Albuquerque," said Mr. Butts, "and I am afraid that they will awake too late if they do not get busy about it pretty soon, as the new roads that are being built north and south throughout the western part of the state sooner or later will take that territory away from Fort Worth and direct all the trade into Kansas City."

Mr. Butts was a resident of Fort Worth for eight years before he went to New York. He was engaged in the dry goods business here for twelve years. After leaving here he was immigration agent of the Southern Pacific at Houston for some time.

POLICYP HOLDERS TO MEET

Executive Committee to Call Another Meeting Soon

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 25.—H. G. Askew, auditor of the railroad commission and a member of the executive committee appointed at the policy holders meeting at Dallas, tonight made the following important announcement: "The executive committee of the policy holders' association of Texas, which was formed at Dallas Nov. 10, will, at an early date, call another meeting of the association to be held at either Austin or Houston, probably the latter, for the purpose of selecting a vice president from each of the sixteen congressional districts of Texas and disposing of other unfinished business. The principal objects of the association are to secure a reduction in the rates of life insurance; the prompt return to policy holders of excessive amounts paid in the past; the placing of at least one Texas member of recognized capacity and integrity on the boards of directors of the New York Life and Mutual Insurance companies at the elections to be held next spring; to demand the investment of a proper proportion of Texas premiums in Texas securities and to urge such insurance legislation as may be from time to time found necessary or desirable for the protection of the interests of life insurance policy holders."

TO THE TELEGRAM

PRACTICAL THANKSGIVING

To The Telegram

I wish to call the attention of the good people of Fort Worth, and especially the mothers of grown-up children, to thank offering they can make, which will count much to others but will cost them practically nothing.

In Monterey, Mexico, there is a Christian missionary school which last year was the largest school in the republic, having a Mexican department of 450 and an American department of about 100 children. These latter are those whose parents have gone to Mexico to develop the country, but whose children are denied the intellectual advantages that come from our American public schools, libraries and lecture courses.

To make up in a measure for this deficiency, the teachers are trying to collect a library of American books, which cannot be bought in Mexico, that the American young people will read with pleasure and profit.

We will be glad to pay the freight and forward to them any books which the sympathetic people of Fort Worth will donate. Will not the boys and girls, mothers and fathers, look up any good books they have outgrown or read and thrown aside, and leave them with J. B. Purnside, at Fifth and Houston street, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday? If names are put in the books the young people will know whom to thank for the pleasure they receive.

The president of the school, Jasper T. Moses, says:

"There are many good books that I long to have our girls and boys read. I remember how I used to enjoy Miss Alcott's works. We have only 'Aunt J's Scrapbook' of all her books. We have none of Butterworth's 'Zig-zag Journeys,' none of Miss Silsby's 'Five Little Peppers' stories; none of Alger's books for boys; nor of Duchallieu's African stories, that used to give me such delight. I remember the thrills I used to get from Mayne Reid's 'Desert Home,' and 'Adrift in the Forest.' Last spring, of my class of twenty boys and girls, from 11 to 17 years of age, not one had read a book by Walter Scott; nor have we one to offer them. We have nothing by Dickens either.

"I mention a few of the things we have not, so that any one wishing to know what we need may be informed. So many seem to think that only prosaic humdrum books should be sent. That is a mistake. Our boys and girls are critical, discerning readers. They want the same books you and I enjoyed when we were young."

COUNTY COURT

Louis Schmar was found guilty of pursuing occupation without license. Tom Williams was found not guilty on a similar charge.

CONTINUED

Now comes before me one H. R. Butcher, the contractor who is to put in our plate glass front, and says it will be impossible to do the work on the front of our store until next week. Therefore we have decided to permit the same plain figures to remain upon our whole stock of House Furnishings, except a few things, which will be marked even lower to close them out, for another week.

Of course our store will be closed all day Thursday (Thanksgiving.)

A Stunning Persian Lamb Coat With Fur

A stunning Persian lamb coat has cuffs and boa of the sable and a big muff and hat are fashioned to be worn with it. The coat is one of the new short models, with fitted back and a slightly bloused fullness in the front. This is cut away in pretty tabs below the waist line, and it closes with a diagonal lap which may be worn back and from which revers are formed. The boa is short and the finishing touch at the throat.

The toque is a large deep-brimmed affair, turning well off the face and trimmed at one side with a flat rosette of dull pink velvet, which is held in place with a jeweled ornament.

EVENTS ARRANGED TO OBSERVE DAY

Services to Be Followed by Horse Show

Thanksgiving day will be celebrated by Fort Worth in a fitting manner.

Religious features of the day will be observed by union services for three groups of city churches. Each service will be held at 10:30 o'clock.

At the First Presbyterian church, Rev. J. W. Caldwell will preach the sermon to the congregations of the First Presbyterian, Taylor Street Cumberland Presbyterian, Taylor Street Cumberland Presbyterian and North Fort Worth Presbyterian churches.

At the First Christian church, Rev. Charles W. Daniel will preach to the congregations of the First Baptist, First Methodist, First Christian, Christian Tabernacle and St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal churches.

At the Mulkey Memorial Methodist church, Rev. C. A. Stewart will preach to the congregations of the Broadway Baptist, Cannon Avenue Cumberland Presbyterian, Mulkey Memorial Methodist, First Congregational, College Avenue Presbyterian and Missouri Avenue Methodist churches.

The division assures the city three large Thanksgiving congregations, the first for three Presbyterian churches, the second for five downtown churches, and the third for three south side churches, and preparation will be made for large attendance at the different places of worship.

Horse Show and Races

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Auditorium horse show will be given in connection with the matinee races of the Fort Worth Driving Club at the new park of the club, north of the Arlington Heights boulevard.

Race Events

The following races to be decided by the best two of three heats run, according to association's rules, will be introduced between the horse show events:

First race, green pacers; second race, 1:15 pacers; third race, free for all pacers; fourth race, green trotters; fifth race, 1:15 trotters; sixth race, free for all trotters.

Many Good Entries

Secretary Lawler of the Driving Club and Secretary Harwood of the auditorium, with the women's committee of the city, have been quite busy for a week past answering numerous inquiries incident to the horse show and races.

There are already sixty-five fine horses entered in the show department, and the six races have almost been filled. Work is progressing nicely on the grand stand and track, and everything will be in readiness. ## WAR RELICS SECURED

State Librarian Receives Mementos of War of 1836

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 25.—Judge Raines, state librarian, today received some rare and valuable historical relics from Columbia, Texas, which have direct bearing on the Mexican war in 1825.

The relics consist of a piece of a live oak tree, marking the exact spot where Santa Anna was captured in 1824; also a leg of the bedstead which was occupied by the distinguished Mexican commander when he was a prisoner of war at the home of Dr. Phelps; also an old fashioned chair with an arm upon which a person may write while sitting. This is the chair in which the Mexican general wrote while in captivity during the months of October, November and December, 1825.

The old Phelps homestead is situated twelve miles north of Columbia, on the Brazos river, and ten miles from the plantation of former Governor James S. Hogg.

ELKINS WILL FIGHT

Has Not Surrendered to President on Rate Regulation

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins has not surrendered to the President in the matter of rate regulation. He announced this most emphatically today after an informal session of the interstate commerce commission meeting in the capitol.

"Such a story," said the senator, "is very ridiculous and I cannot imagine where it emanated from. I have not seen the President within the last three weeks and have had no conference with him and have not discussed the President's bill. At present we are discussing the bill introduced by Senator Foraker. It appears on its face to be a very fair measure."

A Fur Sale This Week—Keynote of Wise Buying!

Prices that Cap the Climax

Burton-Peel's

Nearly $10,000 Worth Furs Bought at One Clip

The greatest Fur event the town has ever known will start here tomorrow, when we shall place on sale a lot of nearly $10,000 worth of worthy Furs, bought by chance, as it were. This lot of Furs was sold to a St. Louis concern, whose credit became impaired before the goods reached them. The New York "furrier" promptly stopped the delivery. They were in dispute for several weeks, which was finally cleared in favor of the "furrier," who wired our Mr. Peel that he would sell him the lot at a great sacrifice, naming the price, but which was promptly refused. In return, a cash offer was made for the entire lot. We got them at our own figures, simply because we were persistent, and were not afraid to take the whole lot. There was never a sale like this; you will realize it the moment you go into the department. Few details necessary. You wouldn't buy without seeing the Furs—they will be their best argument when you come. Our patrons know that we excel in bargain-giving and making, that is why they continue to be our patrons. Every one of our friends have been convinced, hundreds are learning each week that Burton-Peel's is equally as well equipped to serve the wants of the people as any house anywhere.

Merchandise to gain our special recognition must be, first of all, WORTHY; next it must be seasonable; after that, absolutely sure to give the consumer satisfaction. Last of all, it must be possible for us to name a figure for it that will appeal to you as being LOW, VERY LOW.

This Fur transaction bears out each of these conditions. Just such events as this sale constitute the foundation on which is based this organization. If you are not convinced of this—if you are not unconditionally sure of every statement we make here—then it is to be regretted that you DO NOT REALLY KNOW BURTON-PEEL'S as it is. FURS FOR XMAS GIFTS may be most advantageously bought now. We will store them for you and deliver when wanted.

PACKERS' PLEA CONTRADICTED

Government Reply Makes Specific Denials

IMMUNITY PROMISE DENIED

Garfield and Other Principals May Be Summoned to Testify

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Unequivocal denials of the allegations of the packers in their special pleas filed some time ago in the beef hearing are made by United States District Attorney Charles B. Morrison in a reply filed in the district court today.

The allegations of the packers that they were compelled to appear and testify, supplanted later by a different plea that they testified and were promised immunity from future prosecution, are declared to be not founded on fact.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth, and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels, it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptic in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

denied. The other allegation in the plea that the existing federal injunction in the fresh meat cases against the defendants is a bar to criminal proceedings is made subject of denials.

The replies of the government so absolutely deny the charges of the defendants' petitions that it may be deemed necessary for Attorney General William Moody, District Attorney Morrison, Commissioner Garfield and his several assistants who worked on the beef industry report to testify before a special jury together with J. Ogden Armour and all of the other packers included in the indictment as witnesses in support of the allegations in the special pleas.

Commissioner Garfield will testify, it is said, that he did not promise the packers immunity and Attorney General Moody will deny that he used the Garfield report in directing the attack against the packers.

COTTON BRINGS 10.75

Slight Drop from Friday's Figure in Local Market

Cotton prices, which soared above 11 cents in Fort Worth Friday, dropped back again Saturday to 10.75 cents. The receipts were not large for the day, but the previous day there were more than fifty bales brought in by buyers.

During the week about 400 bales were received. If fine weather prevails this week Buyer Ingram for the Merchants' Cotton association predicts that there will be a good movement to this city.

Since the association began operations two months ago cotton has been brought here that has not before been sold on this market. The system of maintaining an association of merchants who will see to it that farmers receive the highest market price is having a telling effect. Farmers are learning rapidly that they will receive top prices for their cotton and are bringing it in from all sections of the county and in many instances farmers who live in adjoining counties are selling their cotton here. Thus far the plan has proven a success.

The buying is in the hands of an expert cotton man who understands the intricacies of the business. He is treating every farmer with fairness and cotton is priced fairly according to its grade, so that there is no chance for complaint on the part of the grower.

Not in years has there been such interest manifested in making this city a first-class cotton market as is shown now.

TAX COLLECTIONS GOOD

Figures Reach Close to $200,000 Mark at Present

Total amount of taxes collected up to and including Friday, Nov. 24, is $193,757.68. The first week of the collections, from Oct. 1 to 7, $32,112.12 was collected. The next week the amount jumped to $118,278.25. The next two weeks were not so heavy, being $5,494.47 and $8,877.66, respectively, but the following week the amount reached the sum of $18,252.35. The succeeding three weeks were approximately small amounts, collections being as follows: $2,524.21, $5,678.03 and $3,749.67. Total for last week up to Friday night at the close of the collection

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25.—Hemmed in by a ring of 43,000 cheering watchers, Yale and Harvard met in their annual football contest this afternoon, the latter losing by a score of 6 to 0 after putting up one of the finest fights ever seen by followers of the gridiron.

Harvard was perhaps as great in defeat as was Yale in victory and not a stand after the game was over why Yale ruled a five to one favorite.

At the end of the first half the rosters for the Crimson were beginning to hope for victory. Yale had been unable to make much headway against the massive Harvard line and the Yale defense seemed a bit wobbly when the heavy guns of the Harvard tandem plays opened up. When, about the middle of the second half, Harvard had rushed the ball well down into Yale territory, the cheering and the hoping was terrific. But the tide turned. An unfortunate fumble by Nichols gave Yale the ball on Harvard's 35-yard line.

Yale later put in a number of substitutes, Hochenberger replacing Erwin, Hutchinson relieving Jones and Levine going to Tull's place.

Yale Crosses the Line
After a series of fast plays, the leaver went spinning far down the field straight toward Nichols on a kick, H. Jones, Yale's left end, was down the field almost as fast. As the ball struck Nichols' arms, Jones hit him in a low hard tackle. The pig skin slipped from the Harvard man's grasp and quick as a flash Jones fell upon it. It was Yale's ball on Harvard's thirty-yard line. Seven times Levine and Bigelow crashed into the left side of Harvard's line. Harvard fought desperately. On the seventh try they landed the ball on Harvard's ten-yard line. When the pile cleared up Brill remained lying on the ground. His ankle had been twisted and the coaches took him out, putting Montgomery in his place. Straight at Montgomery Levine drove on the first line-up. The play netted five yards. Again Levine went at Harvard's left tackle and made two yards. But three yards separated Yale from a touchdown. Left Tackle Formes was called back and drove through the center for the touchdown that gave Yale the victory. Hoyt kicked the goal, making the score 6 to 0.

The line up:

ous for Yale. Squires was sent back to his position and Brill called upon to work from the fullback position. Tripp netted but two yards each. Brill was called upon to make up the necessary distance but he was not equal to the task and the ball went to Yale on downs on her own 41-yard line.

Yale then opened a strong attack and the Harvard stands were becoming speechless with fear as the blue neared the crimson goal line in a relentless manner. Finally a terrific smash by Quill placed the leather but twenty yards away from Harvard's goal line. Bare Stephenson, the Harvard cheer leader, was calling on his fellow students in the stands to get behind the team. The Harvard men responded finely. Yale had two yards to make on the third down and Rooms was sent into the freshman guard. But, but it was to no avail for the crimson line stood firm. It was Harvard's ball on downs on her own seventeen-yard mark. Carr deliberately tried for a kick to goal from the field on placement toward the end of the half. The kick was long enough and had good direction. The crowd at first thought it had made good, and the Harvard partisans shouted wildly, but the referee said, "No goal," as the ball had gone a little to the left. A series of Yale attacks against Harvard's impenetrable defense closed the half without score.

Second Half
Yale presented the same team in the second half, while Harvard made one change, Barney taking Parker's place in center. Yale later put in a number of substitutes, Hochenberger replacing Erwin, Hutchinson relieving Jones and Levine going to Tull's place.

The allegations of the packers that they were compelled to appear and testify, supplanted later by a different plea that they testified and were promised immunity from future prosecution, are declared to be not founded on fact.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth, and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels, it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptic in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

CHURCH HAS LETTER

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy Sends Regrets, Greetings and Check to Concord People. NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The pastor Emeritus and deacons of the First Congregational church of Concord, N. H., recently extended to Rev. Mary Baker Eddy an invitation to be present at the 17th anniversary of the organization of their church and have received the following letter in reply:

LET YOUR STOMACH HAVE ITS OWN WAY

Do Not Try to Drive and Force it to Work When it is Not Able or You Will Suffer All the More. You cannot treat your stomach as some mer treat a balky horse; force, drive or even starve it into doing work at which it rebels. The stomach is a patient and faithful servant and will stand much abuse and ill-treatment before it "balks," but when it does you had better go slow with it and not attempt to make it work.

Concord, where my parents first offered me to Christ in infant baptism. For about forty years and until I had a church of my own, I was a member of the Congregational church in Tilton, N. H. Today my soul can only sing and soar. An increasing sense of God's love, omnipresence and omnipotence enfolds me. Each day I know him nearer, love him more and humbly pray to serve him better.

COLONY CO. IS SUED

Action in Indianapolis Follows Adverse Decision of Case in Fort Worth

Simultaneously with the filing of a suit in the district court here by Luke F. Wilson against the American Tribune New Colony Company to recover balance alleged to be due on purchase of a large tract of land in West Texas, and in which case the plaintiff has just recovered a judgment for approximately $30,000, three suits in connection with the case have been placed on record in the courts at Indianapolis, Ind.

A dispatch from that city says: Three suits alleging fraud in connection with colonization schemes in the southwest, in which $306,000 is involved, were filed in the county courts against the Southwestern Colony Company and the American Tribune New Colony Company, in which P. H. Fitzgerald, Frank M. Fitzgerald and Harry A. Fenton are named as the principal defendants.

The suit, asking the appointment of a receiver and judgment for $300,000 is filed in the name of Wallace Markwell against the American Tribune New Colony Company, P. H. and Frank N. Fitzgerald, Harry A. Fenton and Luke F. Wilson.

All save Wilson are residents of Indianapolis. The complaint alleges that the defendants, having collected from the stockholders $300,000, purchased from Luke Wilson 60,000 acres of Texas land at $3 instead of $6 an acre, as agreed in the contracts with the stockholders. It is further alleged that but $100,000 of the purchase price was ever paid and that the title was returned to Wilson in January, 1905, upon foreclosure of a mortgage for $50,000.

HEARST GAINS EIGHTY VOTES

Ballots Left Out of Count Are Found by Committee

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—A gain of eighty votes for William Randolph Hearst was made today when the Fifteenth election district of the Twenty-sixth assembly district was reached by the aldermanic subcommittee which is comparing the certified returns of the last election with the poll clerks' tally sheets.

These eighty votes had apparently been left out of the count deliberately. There is special significance in this "error" for two days ago the entire board of elections in this district was indicted for failure to report the rights of watchers at the polls and refusing to mark ballots for identification or to regard protests.

Comparison of the returns from the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh assembly districts today further confirmed the fact that the ballot boxes will have to be brought to the light of day to show the true expression of the men who cast them. Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, is reported to be in Mount Clemens, Mich., close to the Canadian border.

J. P. MORGAN TO TESTIFY

Committee of Investigation to Ask About New York Life

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—J. Pierpont Morgan will, in all probability, be called to the witness stand next week in the investigation being conducted by the legislative investigating committee. The investigation of the financial connections of the New York Life has brought the firm of Morgan & Co. so within the scope of the inquiry being conducted by the committee that Mr. Morgan's presence and the production of the firm's books have become necessary.

It is also certain that George W. Perkins and John A. McCall will be recalled by the committee to explain the statements made on Friday by Milton Mattison, clerk in charge of the securities of the New York Life. Mr. Perkins, on the stand, testified that he had never known of any payments to Andrew Hamilton. Mr. McCall testified that he had made all the payments that Hamilton had received and had charged these payments against the company. It has been shown that $60,000 of profits amounting to $55,000 in a syndicate deal had been turned over to Hamilton through an arrangement with Perkins. It was also shown that $40,000, the profits on a loan of $300,000 by the New York Life, had been turned over to George W. Perkins bodily, as trustee of the "Nyle" fund. The investigation from this time, however, will trend away from any further political revelations. Mr. Hughes will confine himself more closely to the financial and business mismanagement of the various companies, as the committee had been started by the exposure of graft affecting every branch of the state administration.

ELEVATOR LOT SOLD

Smith Grain Company Secures Site Between Fifth and Sixth Streets on Railroad

Smith Bros. Grain Company, with headquarters in this city, late of Houston, has purchased three lots between Fifth and Sixth streets, on the Santa Fe tracks and Pecan street. No definite plans have been made for the use of the lots, but it is intended by the firm to build an elevator and grain house upon it as soon as business conditions warrant the step.

The officers of the company here will not say when the elevator will be built, but admit that the company had the idea of an elevator in mind at the time that they purchased the lots and that they hope to build one there as soon as it is possible, although it is impossible at the present time to set the date. The elevator may be built soon or maybe not be for a couple of years.

It is the opinion of some of the leading grain men in town that the elevator will probably be built before the opening of the grain season next year. The location is a desirable one, and the Smith Bros. elevator, if built, will be the most central of any in Fort Worth elevators.

FEW REALTY DEALS

Total Deeds for Week Reach Approximately $200,000

The past week has been another dull one in the real estate field in the matter of big deals, or down town deals. The only deal of any importance was the purchase of three lots between Fifth and Sixth streets on the Santa Fe tracks by the Smith Bros. Grain Company.

Notwithstanding the fact that the week has brought forth practically no deals, there have been a large number of deeds filed for record, the total being almost $200,000.

Twice this week the total value of the deeds filed in one day has gone over the $45,000 mark. The total value of the deeds filed this week is $157,429.06. The totals for last week were $113,585.05, for the week before last, $107,916.10, and the week before that $233,232.23. The total for the month so far is $61,925.47.

Thanksgiving AT THE WHITE HOUSE

HORACE VOSE, THE NEW ENGLAND FARMER WHO HAS DONATED THE TURKEY FOR 35 YEARS.

PRIVATE DINING ROOM WHERE THE THANKSGIVING DINNER IS SERVED

THE PRESIDENT'S PASTOR DE. SCHICK.

WRITING THE THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

SOME OF THE SILVERWARE USED ON THE WHITE HOUSE TABLE

THANKSGIVING DAY is brought prominently to mind at the White House weeks before the advent of the holiday, owing to the unwritten law which makes it the duty and the privilege of the President to issue an official proclamation designating the day of rejoicing and calling upon the people to give thanks for the blessings enjoyed during the year just drawing to a close. In the early days of the republic such presidential reminders were needed to gradually make this November day of acknowledgment to Providence an annual institution. In later years Thanksgiving would doubtless have found universal observance even had the President not taken the initiative each autumn. However, sentiment will doubtless always impel each successive occupart of the White House to give the keynote to the national spirit of thanksgiving. The presidential Thanksgiving proclamation is always issued about the same length of time in advance of the holiday, and a glance through the pages of history shows that there has been little variation in the length of the proclamations issued by the various chief magistrates of the nation. In many instances the wording of the different documents is so similar as to indicate that numbers of them were prepared from one form. President Roosevelt, however, doubtless owing to his literary training, has infused a certain individuality into his invitations to public thanksgiving. In the Roosevelt family circle Thanksgiving Day finds added significance in that it is the occasion of a family reunion. Under ordinary conditions the members of the household are widely scattered. The popular Miss Alice is absent from home much of the time, visiting one friend or another, while almost all the other children are away attending school. Thus it comes about that President Roosevelt, who has the typically German belief in family clanishness, looks forward with the keenest anticipation to the reassembling each holiday of all his nearest of kin, augmented oftentimes by a goodly number of nieces and nephews and cousins, who vie with his own youngsters in appetites and vigor of lung and limb. Much as he might like to make it so, Thanksgiving is not so absolutely a day of rest for the President as it is for many a citizen of fewer responsibilities. Habit and instinctive energy impel the President to arise on Thanksgiving Day, as on every other day, fairly early, and 7:30 o'clock, or 8 o'clock at the breakfast table. After breakfast the Chief Executive walks briskly along the white-pillared colonnade—looking out upon Mrs. Roosevelt's old-fashioned Colonial garden—which connects the White House proper with the President's office building, and dropping into the green leather chair before his big flat-topped mahogany desk gives himself up for a time to the more pressing letters and telegrams and cablegrams which have arrived during the night. If urgent matters demand attention Uncle Sam's highest salaried servant will not get an opportunity to return to the White House until almost time to depart for church. The President in his official proclamation urges all citizens to attend church on Thanksgiving Day, and he and the members of his family assuredly set a good example in the matter. On such an occasion the President and Mrs. Roosevelt may go together to church, but as a rule the plan followed is the same as on Sunday. The President, accompanied by several of the children, attends the unpretentious Little Grace Memorial Church, while Mrs. Roosevelt, with others of the junior members of the household and any guests of the presidential family, walk across the park from the White House to old St. John's Episcopal Church, known as the "Church of the Presidents," from the fact that every president from Madison to Lincoln worshipped there. The President invariably walks to church, regardless of the weather, covering the half mile between the White House and place of worship in long, swinging stride that sometimes appears to tax the pedestrian ability of the younger children who accompany him. Behind him and across the street trail several Secret Service men, but they keep at a respectful distance, for the President does not exactly relish being "shadowed" while walking to and from church, and on one or two occasions he has turned about, and recognizing his protectors as Secret Service men, has good-naturedly dismissed them, with the explanation that he believed that he could be trusted to take care of himself. The little church is filled to overflowing, for Thanksgiving is one of the occasions when the public feels sure that it can see the President at church, and there is a great outpouring in consequence. This new church—built especially for the President—with its quaint Gothic exterior and simple interior, appears truly spacious in comparison with the little chapel, with a seating capacity of only 150, which was the home of the congregation when Mr. Roosevelt first became a member; but, after all, it can accommodate only about 600 persons, and hundreds of persons, disappointed at not gaining admission, wait outside each Thanksgiving morning in order to catch a glimpse of the President as he enters and leaves the building. During the service the President occupies the third pew from the front and listens attentively to the common-sense discourse of Rev. Mr. Schick, one of the most practical of pastors. After church the President walks back to the White House, and at 1 o'clock lunch is served. Following a favorite custom, the head of the nation may devote the early part of the afternoon to reading or to a chat with personal friends, but 3 or 4 o'clock will most likely find him in the saddle, ready for the long cross-country jaunt which is a feature of the daily program, save on Sunday. On Thanksgiving, as on other holidays, the President usually sets out upon his horseback excursion somewhat earlier than on ordinary days, when he remains at his desk until 4 o'clock. Similarly, instead of riding unattended, save by an orderly, the President is wont to celebrate the occasion by inviting a party of personal friends to accompany him. Very often Mrs. Roosevelt participates in the horseback outing, and occasionally in the past Miss Alice has also had a mount. All the members of the presidential household can be depended upon to report with splendid appetites for the holiday dinner, which is served at 7 o'clock in the evening in the private or family dining-room, which with its Colonial decorations in white and its old-fashioned mahogany furniture, is much more cozy than the imposing state dining-room, which is after all, only suited to banquets at which there are upward of 100 guests. Of course, the Thanksgiving menu includes all the traditional old standbys from turkey and cranberry sauce, on down the list. In accordance with the good, old-fashioned tenets, the President himself carves the turkey and apportions the light meat and dark, with bountiful portions of dressing, among the relatives and friends gathered about his board. Mrs. Roosevelt, although she is one of the best housewives who has ever presided over the presidential mansion, and constantly exercises supervision over domestic affairs at the first home in the land, does not find it necessary to give the close, personal attention to the preparation of the Thanksgiving dinner that does many a mistress of so large a household as is to be found at the White House. Even the preliminaries in arranging for the feast do not burden her with responsibilities. For one thing, the First Lady of the Land need give herself no uneasiness lest she fail to secure a perfect fowl for the all-important repast. Horace Vose, a patriotic farmer in Rhode Island, attends to that. Every Thanksgiving for more than a third of a century past this turkey expert in the smallest state in the Union has donated a tremendous specimen of the bird of the hour to the President of the United States, and never once has the Rhode Island turkey failed to arrive on time or to prove the tenderest and richest in flavor that an epicure could desire. ## Preparation for the opening of CONGRESS

THE UNITED STATES SENATE CHAMBER

THE CAPITOL AS IT WILL APPEAR WHEN ENLARGED

SPEAKER CANNON OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

WHEN the nation's lawmakers assemble at Washington, the first week in December, they will find awaiting them practically a "new Capitol." Not only has the usual annual housecleaning rendered the big marble workshop as spick and span as soap and water and paint can make it, but there have been extensive alterations and improvements which give a wholly new semblance to many portions of the interior. The entire system of ventilating committee-rooms has been changed and this has unshowered the removal from the roof of the unsightly chimneys which have long marred the exterior appearance of the Capitol. Bright, new carpets have been laid in the halls of Congress, committee-rooms refurnished, desks redished and a thousand and one things done to rejuvenate the famous old building. After all, however, perhaps the most important undertaking which has been successfully carried out since the Congressmen ceased their labors, last spring, was the restoration of the rotunda of the Capitol to its glories of half a century ago, before the inside was smeared with blue-gray paint—full 40 coats in all—and rendered unattractive to the artistic eye. The walls of the rotunda are constructed of sandstone of an exceptionally fine, rich color, resembling Sienna marble, but for years all their natural beauty has been hidden under coats of paint, while the heavy carvings and high reliefs which adorn the walls looked like cheap plaster casts. Now, after a struggle, the successive layers of paint have finally been removed; the introduction of 1,200 electric lights has enabled the banishment of the hideous gas jets; the great historical paintings have been touched up, and for the first time since the Civil War the visitor to the Capitol will see the rotunda as its designers intended it to look. Not included in the $50,000 which has been expended in brightening up the great white-domed building is the cost of the massive new bronze doors which have during the past few weeks been set in place at the entrance to the House of Representatives and which will henceforth constitute one of the show features of Uncle Sam's law factory. Of the outfit made in Capitol improvements, some $10,000 has been expended for the three complete systems of fine ventilation, but the major portion of the money has gone for one part or another of the campaign of scrubbing and cleaning, which has been carried into every nook and corner of the building. Very few persons even among the Senators and representatives have any conception of what a herculean task it is to put the Capitol in apple-pie order for a session of Congress. The huge building has an area of more than three and one-half acres, and inasmuch as it is three stories in height, there is an aggregate of more than 10 acres of floors to be scrubbed. There are 430 separate rooms, the walls of which have to be cleaned and the woodwork touched up, to say nothing of the renovation of carpets and upholstered furniture, and during the past few weeks dozens of apartments—all completely transformed, the work embracing the decoration of walls and ceiling and refurnishing with new carpets and new mahogany furniture. Let the average housewife try to imagine what it would mean to wash 700 windows, each twice as large as any window in an ordinary house, and to clean the woodwork of 500 doors, and she may gain a slight conception of the immensity of the annual housecleaning at the nation's Capitol. Moreover, in addition there is more than an acre of glass skylights to be washed inside and out, and 140 fireplaces to be set in order, 299 wash basins to be scoured, and an indefinite number of other tasks enjoined to keep a large force of workers very busy for weeks before the date for the assembling of the legislators. Members of Congress coming back to work within the next few days after their long vacation will find that electricity is to a greater extent than ever chief servant at the Capitol. The magic current plays the most important part in heating, lighting and ventilating the monster structure and has lately enabled marvelous advances in the facilities for quick communication between the various parts of this official city under one roof. Take, for instance, the new electric bell system with its 100 alarm gong stations so distributed that a legislator, no matter in what part of the building he may be, is warned when any important action is to be taken in the legislative chamber and has time to reach his seat and cast his vote if he desires to do so. Under this new regime there is an entire absence of visible lighting fixtures in the congressional halls, and yet at the first suggestion of dusk the chambers can be flooded with artificial light. This is accomplished by more than 25,000 incandescent lamps, each of 16-candlepower, tucked away in unobtrusive places. Similarly not a single coil of steam pipe, nor so much as one radiator, is visible, and yet it is safe to predict that none of Uncle Sam's salons will complain of cold this winter. Finally, 75,000 cubic feet of fresh air is poured into the hall of the House and 25,000 cubic feet of clean atmosphere is forced into the Senate chamber each minute, and yet the task is performed so scientifically that there is not the suggestion of a draft in any part of the vast rooms. Congress is pretty economical in most matters these days, but it must be admitted that the members have not for long been so frugal in providing for their own comfort when on duty. Surrounded by many new luxuries which could not be enjoyed a year ago, the twentieth century congressman sits in a chair that cost $25; has his shoes shined free of charge at a bootblack stand that cost $35, and is served with drinking water from coolers which cost $26 apiece, and each of which will hold 117 worth of mineral water. The Speaker of the House of Representatives has a new mahogany desk that cost $120, and may rest on a leather couch for which Uncle Sam paid $60. There are 90 toilet-rooms in the Capitol, and 14 bathtubs have been installed for the use of congressmen. These tubs are all cut of a blocks of solid marble, and are equipped with shower apparatus and other up-to-date adjuncts. Indeed, the United States Capitol as it stands today awaiting the coming of the 500 men whose activities focus the attention of the nation, is a city in itself. There is as complete a telephone system as is to be found in the average city of 10,000 inhabitants, the exchange being connected with more than 200 telephones throughout the building; large restaurants, a postoffice, a weather forecasting station, a police department that numbers more men than are on the payroll of the average small city; a bank, and all the other adjuncts of a self-sufficient community. Incidentally, it may be noted that the colony of lawmakers has its own stores which, while they are known as "stationery-rooms," carry not only paper and envelopes, but immense stocks of silver goods, leather novelties, etc. There is many a congressman who requires for writing materials only a small portion of his annual stationery allowance of $125, and such fortunate can frequently be seen in the Capitol shops selecting at no expense to themselves trinkets for use as Christmas presents. The opening of the coming session of Congress will bring many newcomers to the select community in the nation's biggest building. There are many new members of both Senate and House of Representatives who will have to be assigned to desks in the legislative chambers, and both new and old members will be affected by the shakeups and rearrangements of committees. Hence under present conditions a member's only office at the Capitol is his committee room, the apportionment of the desirable plums in the way of committee memberships, and particularly chairmanships, is anxiously awaited. When the new office buildings of the Senate and House of Representatives are completed every member of either body will have his individual private office, where he can install his private secretary if he does not prefer, as does many an economical legislator, to answer his own correspondence, and thereby save the $1,200 a year which the government gives to each congressman for clerk hire. WALDON FAWCETT.

A Wife's Revenge

During the latter part of the eighteenth century two young men, Jean Desmoulines and Alphonse Cateret, both living in Dijon, France, were bosom friends. Cateret proposed marriage to a young girl, Louise Placon, but his suit was rejected. Louise secretly loved his friend Desmoulines, and in the course of time Desmoulines married her.

Ten years passed. Cateret had gone to Paris to live soon after his friend's marriage, the Desmoulines following later. Both men became leaders in the revolution which was sweeping over France like a cyclone. One evening Desmoulines came across the Seine by the bridge directly opposite the corps legislatif and walked toward the Place de la Concorde, or Place de la Revolution, as it was then called. At the same time Cateret turned into the place from the opposite direction. The two men met at that point where the guillotine was set up and where it had done a great work that very day. Night was falling, and the Place was deserted except for the friends. They stopped directly under the instrument of death and began to talk.

"Alphonse," said Jean, "this revolution is like a tongue of flame which at one moment sweeps in one direction, the next in another. The favorite of today is the condemned of tomorrow."

"You are right, Jean. Do you know that if either of us has an enemy that enemy can send the man he hates to the guillotine."

"I don't like it," replied Jean. "If I were single like you, I would not mind the danger so much, but I consider my family."

Cateret stood for awhile lost in thought, then said: "I have an idea. Suppose we make an agreement. If you are the victim, I will pay your wife 50,000 francs; if I am the victim, you pay my mother the same amount."

After some discussion Desmoulines consented, and the friends went to Cateret's house, where the contract was drawn up in duplicate, duly executed, and each party to it took a copy. Ten days after this agreement Desmoulines was arrested under an accusation of having corresponded with the royalists across the border. He had received a letter from a fugitive, but no one knew of it except his friend Cateret, to whom he had shown it. But there was nothing in this, for the letter, bearing a foreign mark, must have been opened in the postoffice.

Louise Desmoulines was frantic at the danger that threatened her husband. As soon as she became quieted she set her wits to work to discover who the secret enemy could be. At a conference she had with her husband in jail he told her that Cateret knew of the letter he had received from abroad. Louise, remembering that Cateret had once sought her hand in marriage, was seized with a suspicion which she finally confessed to her husband.

"Nonsense!" said Jean. "There can be nothing in that, since at my death Alphonse must pay you 50,000 francs." And he told her of their agreement. She was but half convinced.

Jean Desmoulines died on the scaffold beside which the agreement had been made. His wife shut herself up. After a few weeks she received one visitor, her husband's old friend, Alphonse Cateret. Him she saw constantly and but a few months after her husband's execution promised him that she would be his wife. Meanwhile she frequented the courts and places wherein she might learn the name of her husband's accuser. After awhile she became known as the widow who was hunting for one to send to the guillotine. One day she received a visit from one of the leaders of the revolution, who said to her:

"I know who informed on your husband. He is in my way, and I wish to get rid of him. I will tell you who he is on condition that you trump up an accusation against him, leaving me out of the matter. You will not believe me without proof. That proof I will furnish."

"It is proof alone that I wish. I know the man."

"How do you know him?"

"By the instinct of a woman."

"He is?"

"Alphonse Cateret."

"You are right."

The visitor the next day met the widow in a building where records were kept and, being in authority, took her to a room where no other man in France except the keeper could go. He took down a volume which contained a record of more villainy than any volume in the world and, consulting an index, turned to the name of Jean Desmoulines. There was the charge and the name of the accuser, Alphonse Cateret. Louise looked at it apparently without emotion; her guide closed the book, and they withdrew.

The friends of Louise Desmoulines were shocked a few months after her husband's death to learn that she was to marry Alphonse Cateret and the wedding day was set. Cateret, who did not know what moment the tide might turn against him, was secretly preparing to leave France with his bride. A week before the wedding was to come off the revolutionary committee got hold of his intended flight, he was arrested, and on the very day he was to have been married he died on the guillotine in the Place de la Revolution.

In the book in which his case was recorded appeared the name of Louise Desmoulines, informer.

WOMEN GIVEN PRISON SENTENCE

Mary Whited and Sarah Crabtree Sent to Penitentiary

Sentences were passed in eleven cases Saturday morning in the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Texas. Mary Whited, who was convicted with her husband of counterfeiting, was sentenced to three years of hard labor in the United States penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio. This is the first case in this district in which a woman has been convicted of counterfeiting.

The case was that of T. M. Whited and Mary Whited, his wife, who were arrested last summer and were captured by the officers while in the act of making the money. They operated near here in the Trinity river bottoms and when the officers arrested them a large number of bad nickels, quarters and half dollars and dollars were found in the room. Counterfeit money was also found in the woman's pocketbook. The officers found molten metal on a stove at the time of the seizure and also a large number of molds and ladles. Counterfeit money had been passed upon the street and in the vicinity. At their trial they entered a plea of guilty. Judge Meek sentenced them this morning. T. M. Whited getting five years at hard labor in the United States penitentiary at Atlanta and Mary Whited getting three years at hard labor in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Whited received her sentence quietly, making no comment.

A fine of $25 was passed upon Will Carey, who was charged with having taken a letter out of the Fort Worth postoffice the contents, $15. At the trial of the recent fall delivery from the Tarrant county jail Carey was one of those that escaped, but he came back and gave himself up. On account of his age, 19 years, and the fact that he had been in jail over four months, Judge Meek did not impose a sentence of imprisonment. Carey had been traveling over the county with another lad named J. W. Kirkland, now in Atlanta, Ga., and they had separated to meet here. Carey claimed that Kirkland had told him that he was going to write to his brother for $30, and that when it arrived $15 was to be his. When the letter came here there was only $15 in it and this Carey took.

Pension Case
Judge Meek also sentenced J. A. Good and Sarah A. N. Crabtree, who were convicted on a charge of having conspired to violate the United States laws in an attempt to secure pension money. Both were sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Mrs. Crabtree was the wife of a Union soldier in Missouri who died. As his widow she was entitled to receive a pension of $12 a month provided she did not remarry. Afterwards she married S. A. Cruise. She declares that she did not consent to the marriage at the time of the wedding feast, but it was testified that the two had been married by a preacher, whom they met after leaving the feast on horseback, the marriage being performed in the middle of the road. Afterwards she left Cruise and when he obtained a divorce, it was testified, she married Good. She has had three children by Good. Vouchers, it was declared, were presented twice for twelve months' payments of $144 each. The woman's name in the court papers appears as Crabtree.

Thaddeus E. Huffman, who was postmaster at Crystal Falls, was fined $600 and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., on a charge of failure to remit a money order to the Fort Worth postoffice. The law requires that all amounts over $50 be sent to the office of deposit. On the night of Dec. 5, 1904, Huffman's store, in which the postoffice was maintained, burned down and the safe was found opened with the books burned. A few days before, it was testified, he had issued money orders to the amount of $450 and had failed to remit this amount to the office here. There were other orders charged against him and the fine imposed this morning was for the purpose of covering the amounts. J. E. Hendon was sentenced to thirty days in jail and a fine of $100 on a charge of illicit retail liquor dealing. The case was first filed in 1905. Steve Roberson of Stephenville was fined $25 on a charge of injuring rural free delivery boxes.

Frank Neblett, Dan Smith, Louis Russell and Ed Davidson, all of Stephenville, were sentenced to a year and a day in the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and a fine of $100 each on a charge of illicit retail liquor dealing. The case of Cleve McNeill, charged with a violation of the United States bankruptcy laws, was postponed until a further date on account of the illness of the defendant.

STOCK FEEDING CUT

Railroad Man Expects Little Fattening Here Owing to High Price of Hulls and Meal

Assistant Live Stock Agent Comer of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, who has given the matter of cattle feeding and cattle prices much close study and observation, said Saturday that in his opinion there would not be one-third the number of cattle fed in Texas and the territory country this winter that were fed last year. He gives as a reason the high price of cottonseed meal and hulls and the depressed condition of the market which has continued for several months. He does not look for any great improvement of conditions soon.

Another reason why there will not be the cattle on feed in this state this winter is the fact that in the north feed pens than has been the case in years. The price of corn is not high in the corn belts and cattle will be corn-fed this year in the north. This being the situation northern cattle feeders in the south are not in position to feed high-priced meal and hulls and then throw their fat stuff on the market in the spring in competition with the northern feeders, who have enjoyed low priced feed.

Most cattlemen believe that dressed meats next year will be far higher than this year. They estimate that the output of fat cattle will be greatly reduced over last season, which fact will bring about this situation in the markets of the United States. There need be no uneasiness as to sufficient feed cattle to supply home consumption, however. Still the number will be very much less than for several years past. Mr. Comer looks for a better movement of cattle to market in the course of a couple of months. There is little moving at this time.

ROSEN HEIGHTS WILL NOT CHANGE

Meeting Votes Against Annexation or Incorporation

There was an attendance of about 150 people at the meeting of Rosen Heights citizens held Saturday night at which a vote was taken resulting in a large majority against incorporating and a large majority against becoming a part of Fort Worth, the sentiment being in favor of Rosen Heights remaining as it now stands.

City Secretary Proctor of North Fort Worth announced Saturday afternoon that the work of installing the new air compressor will be finished and all connections made, so that water can be turned into the North Fort Worth mains about Thursday. The work of placing the compressor in position is being rushed as rapidly as possible in order to complete it immediately.

M. F. Ryan, first vice president of the Brotherhood of Street Car Men, spent Friday as the guest of Alderman J. J. Lydon of North Fort Worth and left this morning for Sherman. Mr. Ryan is a nephew of Alderman Lydon and lived here four years ago, when an employe of the Houston and Texas Central. His headquarters now are in Kansas City.

Alderman Lydon of North Fort Worth reports that ten new lights have been placed in Twenty-fifth and Twentieth streets. The Rosen Heights street car line has also agreed to place chicanes of lights on poles from one end of Main street to the other, providing the Northern Texas Traction company will do the same.

Mrs. J. L. Gaines and son of Rosen Heights have returned from a visit to her mother and friends at Brownwood and Lampasas.
Rev. Neal, the new pastor of the Rosen Heights Methodist Episcopal church, south, has arrived and will preach this morning at 11 o'clock and tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Rosen Heights school house.

The women of the Rosen Heights Methodist congregation will give a Thanksgiving supper at the school house Thursday night.

AUDITORIUM OPERA
The Auditorium Musical Association, a federation of the music clubs of the city, will sing "The Sorcerer" at the new Majestic theater on Dec. 15, the management having given the house free of cost for the occasion.

A number of the leading musicians of the city will appear in the comic opera, now in the course of preparation under the direction of Rowland Williams.

Aside from all this, the occasion promises to be one of the most delightful social events of the season, the boxes it is whispered going at such prices never before heard of in the history of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Drew Pruitt of the auditorium building committee, said yesterday: "If the public at large responded as promptly to our request for assistance in raising funds for the auditorium as the local music clubs, the matter of building an auditorium would be one of pure pleasure. Promptly on our appeal the musical association was organized, the object of which is to give high-class entertainments from time to time, for the benefit of the auditorium, great interest and enthusiasm being manifested in the work. Along with a number of other organizations, the music clubs feel greatly the need of an auditorium, for the accommodation of the State Federation of English Singing Societies, which meets here in 1907. The need is a crying one, and from now on people may expect great things from the music clubs of the city."

The officers of the association are: J. W. Spencer, president; Mrs. Drew Pruitt, vice president; Mrs. B. B. Padlock, treasurer, and Brown Harwood, secretary.

NEW LINE PLANNED

As a result of the recent visit to Texas of the executive officials of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, it is reported that that company will build a line from McKinney to Denton, where connection will be made with the main line north and south and also to Dallas and Wichita Falls.

It is said work of construction will begin in early spring. Reports on the proposed extension have already been favorably made by officials of the company.

DERAILER ADOPTED

Colonel W. A. Squires, who is projecting a railroad in South Texas from Cauza Springs to a connection with the International, is in the city. He reports satisfactory progress being made with the preliminary work.

Colonel Squires is also interested in a recently patented double derailing frog which is being adopted on several Texas railroads. A test of the derailer was made at Weatherford Saturday under direction of the Texas and Pacific railway.

Under a law passed by the past state legislature all railroads are compelled to use derailleurs at every switch. Thus far Colonel Squires' patent is being used on the International and Great Northern and the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass. An effort is being made by the company controlling this patent derailer to have it adopted on all lines in Texas.

I. AND G. N. ELECTION

George J. Gould has been re-elected president of the International and Great Northern. Other officers named at the Palestine meeting of directors are: Frank J. Gould, first vice president; Leroy Trice, second vice president; A. R. Howard, secretary and treasurer and transfer agent; H. B. Henson of New York, assistant secretary and treasurer.

SUIT BASED ON TURKEY CONTRACT

W. H. Jersig Seeks $30,000 for Alleged Breach

W. H. Jersig has filed a suit in the Seventeenth district court against the J. P. Baden Produce Company of Winfield, Kan., seeking to recover $30,000 for alleged breach of a turkey buying contract.

Jersig complains that on July 15, 1905, a contract was entered into by him with the company to furnish the plaintiff with telegraphic quotations at which plaintiff might buy turkeys in the state of Texas.

The petition further alleges that the company was to pay him for all turkeys he might buy under and in accordance with the quotations, $2.75 per hundred pounds more than the price paid here.

The plaintiff further alleges that had the defendant kept the contract, the plaintiff would have bought at least 2,000,000 pounds of turkey, upon which he would have received a gross profit of $55,000, and after making all proper allowances for expenses would have made and received a net profit of the same of at least $20,000.

The plaintiff, therefore, asks for total damages in the sum of $30,891.64.

In Thousands of Homes Pe-ru-na Is the Family Doctor.

Mr. and Mrs. Plamann and Children.

A Happy Family, Kept Well and Hearty By Taking Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Alvina Plamann, 1719 Walnut street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: "I am now able to do my housework again, and have a good appetite. I have used thirteen bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin. My husband and children are also in good health. We always keep Peruna in the house. I thank you a thousand times for your advice."

An Enemy to the Home. CATARRH is the natural climatic enemy of every home. Over every home hangs the inevitable certainty of catarrhal invasion. No home is entirely free from it. Every person is subject to it. It would be no exaggeration to say that two-thirds of the homes of America have suffered more or less from this invisible, almost omnipresent enemy, catarrh. Peruna is the natural protection of the household. It is intended to relieve catarrh and catarrhal diseases in any and all of their phases. A Safeguard Against Colds—Would Not Be Without Pe-ru-na. Mrs. Anna McSweeney, 235 N. 8th street, Kansas City, Kas., writes: "I would not for anything do without a bottle of your Peruna and Manalin in the house. Your medicine is a safeguard against colds, for I have given it to my children and they are in the best of health. My little daughter, Catherine, the one you have been treating, has such an appetite that I enjoy watching her eat. Before taking your treatment, she would eat scarcely anything. I can never be grateful enough for what you have done for our darling, Catherine.

without importance for the development of King Charles' character, which, it is generally said, has become fast and firm almost hard, so that there is no reason to expect that the new king of Norway should be a playing field for his surroundings.

The training of Queen Maud, the king of England's favorite daughter, at the English court is sufficient guarantee for her being fully competent to fill her future high station in life as queen of Norway.

The princess is not popular in Denmark, as she has never interested herself particularly in Danish affairs or persons. It is said that she is interested in music and painting.

Their little son is only 2 years old and he is said to be an advanced boy, who speaks both English and Danish, and who, with great dignity, salutes visitors in military manner.

The new king and queen were married Nov. 6, 1893.

THE NEW KING AND QUEEN, THEIR BOY AND PALACE

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Nov. 25.—King Haakon and Queen Maud, with their young son, Alexander, soon to be renamed Crown Prince Olaf, who arrived in Norway today, will take up their abode in Christiania castle, a palace which was ordered built by the Norwegian parliament in 1822, but which was not finished until 1848.

On entering Christiania, the eye is at once caught by the castle situated high above the sea level and affording a grand view of the Norwegian capital, but most beautiful the castle presents itself when seen from the fashionable promenade.

The arrangement and appointment of the interior harmonizes perfectly with the exterior. The main entrance is found in the great porch facing the promenade. Broad stairs lead from the ground floor to the second and main floor, that is covered with beautiful carpets made in Norway.

In the front facing south are found the royal apartments. In the billiard room which King Oscar used is seen the valuable gift presented by the Norwegian citizens at the king's silver wedding. This gift, as well as other ornaments presented by Norwegian citizens, will most likely remain in the castle, a friendly settlement of this point having been reached. The elaborate furniture belonging to King Oscar, however, is on its way to Stockholm.

It was quite natural that the provisional government of Norway fixed their eye on Prince Charles of Denmark when the time for choosing a king of Norway had arrived. Not only have Denmark and Norway been close friends for centuries, but the openly displayed sympathy with which the Danes looked at the successful outcome of the union strife surely influenced the Norwegian parliament in choosing a king.

The personal qualifications of Prince Charles make his especially adapted for his future high office. It must be admitted that the prince is rather young, 33, but he is old enough to know what he owes himself, his relations and the people of which he is going to be the ruler.

Like the rest of his sisters and brothers, he has received a most careful education. He passed the examinations required for all Danish naval officers, and he subsequently did good service in the Danish and the English

An Appeal

To be Fair to Yourself—to Learn by a Test What Ligozone Means to You. The First Bottle is Free.

To you who are sick and are waiting—this appeal is to you. An appeal to be fair with yourself.

Don't think that the help which you need is impossible. Please, for a moment, lay your doubts aside. Send us this coupon and see the good it may bring you.

The test is free; and, if it succeeds, think what it means to you. And do you suppose we would make this offer if the results were not entirely satisfactory?

Note what this product has done. Two years ago, Ligozone was known to but few. Now more than 11,000,000 bottles have been used.

We ask you to do what they did. Let this product itself prove its power. Please try it at our expense.

What Ligozone Is

Ligozone is a tonic-germicide, the virtues of which are derived from gas alone. The formula is sent to each user.

The process of making requires large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. It is directed by chemists of the highest class. The object is to so fix and combine the gases as to carry their virtues into the system.

The gases employed are vitalizing, and the product which results is a tonic. The gases are germicidal, and the product they create is a harmless germicide.

No alcohol, no opiates, no dangerous drugs are employed in it. Nothing whatever but helpful gases, and the water used to absorb them.

Kills Disease Germs

The main value of Ligozone lies in the fact that it is deadly to germs, yet harmless to living tissues.

That is not true of common germicides. They are poisons when taken internally. That is why medicine has proved so helpless in dealing with germ diseases. The usual germ-killing drugs cannot be taken in effective doses internally.

Ligozone is harmless. That fact has been repeatedly proved by scientific tests. Not only harmless; it is good for you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing and purifying. Its benefit is often apparent from the very first dose.

Germ Diseases

In the past few years, scores of diseases have been traced to germ attacks. These include most of our minor ills, and most of our serious sickness.

A few years ago, all these diseases were attributed to other causes. The remedies made for them were based on theories which have since been abandoned.

Germ diseases call for Ligozone. In any such disease—no matter how difficult—we send to each user a guarantee, permitting two months' treatment at our financial risk.

If the results are unsatisfactory, the patient's own druggist returns every penny paid. We do this so that none who need this help may find reason to go without it.

We have sent out many thousands of these guarantees, yet less than five in each thousand have been returned for redemption. Can you not see that a remedy so wonderfully effective in general is likely to be effective with you?

Where It Applies

These are the diseases in which Ligozone has been most widely employed. In these diseases, more than any others, it has earned its wide reputation. Not all of these are known germ diseases. Authorities differ on some of them. But, according to our experience, these are the diseases to which Ligozone best applies.

In each of these diseases we supply the first bottle free. And in all—no matter how difficult—we offer each user a two months' further test without the risk of a penny.

- Asthma, Gout, Gonorrhea, Hay Fever, Blood Poison, Influenza, Bowel Troubles, La Grippe, Leucorrhoea, Gall Stones, Malaria, Consumption, Contagious Diseases, Cancer-Catarrh, Diabetes, Rheumatism

Diarrhea, Dyspepsia, Dandruff, Eczema, Erysipelas, Fevers, Scrofula-Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Tuberculosis, Tumors-Ulcers, Throat Troubles

Also most forms of the following: Kidney Troubles, Liver Troubles, Stomach Troubles, Women's Diseases, Fever, Inflammation or catarrh—urepore or poisoned blood—usually indicate a germ attack.

In nervous debility Ligozone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing remarkable results.

50c Bottle Free.

If you need Ligozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and will pay the druggist ourselves for it.

This is our free gift, made to convince you, to let the product itself show you what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it today, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

Please don't argue, or doubt, or hesitate. Don't miss the help that millions have employed. Learn at our expense what Ligozone means to you, then judge its value by results. Please send this coupon today.

WHOLESALE TRADE GOOD

Jobbers and Retailers Both Thankful For Extra Fine Season

Wholesale grocers of this city are rejoicing in a trade that has never been better than it is at present. The demand is better now and prices are higher than for some time. The prosperity is largely due to the cotton prices.

Demand for seasonable articles, such as raisins, nuts, citron, figs, dates and other holiday stuff is a good gauge at this time of the year to tell how the market is, and the wholesale grocers affirm the report that the market for such things is unusually strong.

Seldom do the wholesalers have a better reason for thanks than at present. The jobbers are in good spirits over the existing conditions and the retailers are enjoying a fine trade. The trade of the retailer reflects immediately upon the jobber and he soon knows whether the public is buying. Outlook for a fine holiday trade is causing a thankful spot in the hearts of each.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS

Girls Cheer Fort Worth Students to Victory Over Venus by Score of 18 to 0

The high school defeated Venus 18 to 0 in a lively game at Haines park Saturday afternoon.

During most of the game the high school had things their own way. With but three minutes to play Venus took a brace and pushed the ball to within five yards of a touchdown. The end of the game prevented their scoring.

Both sides fumbled badly and neither side played fast ball. The game was perfectly clean and without wrangling. The boys from Venus played hard and did their best, but they were inexperienced. About fifty high school girls attended and their shrill Ki-Yi's cheered the local team incessantly.

Short halves were played. The officials were Mills, referee; Burleson, umpire; Borden, head linesman.

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF FORT WORTH:

It is our duty in selecting a mayor to look solely to the best interests of the people of our city. Of the three excellent gentlemen who are avowed candidates for that office, which one is likely to give the best service when elected and installed in office? That is the question now for every voter to consider, who desires the well-being and prosperity of the city and its people. The candidates are all men of high character, interested in the peace and progress of Fort Worth, and each one would, as mayor, sincerely desire to promote the public good.

It is fair to presume that neither one of these gentlemen will abandon his professional business during his incumbency of the office, for to do so would necessitate a new beginning in the practice of law after the expiration of the years of service as mayor. On the other hand, Colonel Taylor is so circumstanced that if elected he can without detriment to his private affairs devote all his time to the office. He is well equipped for the office by reason of a long business career as merchant, railroad builder and promoter, and other business enterprises. He was mayor of the city of Jefferson when it was one of the largest cities in the earnest solicitation of its citizens, at a time when financial ability was indispensable in the management of its fiscal affairs. His administration accomplished much for the city and people, and more than the most sanguine believed could be accomplished.

He will, if elected, give his undivided thought, time and energies to the city's best interests, and being a progressive and enterprising man, it is fair to say that he will give Fort Worth and its people a satisfactory and successful administration.

CONFEDERATE ORDER ISSUED

Call for Home for Veterans' Widows Made

K. M. Van Zandt, commanding the Texas division of United Confederate Veterans, Saturday issued the following circular letter, which is to be sent out to all camps in the state:

"The major general commanding desires to call the attention of the camps and comrades in the state to the resolution which was adopted Confederate day at the Dallas fair by the large concourse of veterans there assembled, which resolution urged all camps in the state to make an earnest effort to influence their representatives in the next legislature to support a joint resolution to submit an amendment to the state constitution which shall permit the state to lend its aid to those noble women of the state, the Daughters of the Confederacy, who are earnestly striving for the means wherewith to erect at the state capitol a home for the aged and destitute wives and widows of Confederate soldiers. No grander work has ever called for your help, and I beseech you give it your hearty and faithful co-operation and support."

It was with some misgiving that I engaged a man whom I had not heard to be the star lecturer of the Popular Lyceum for this season. But after thorough inquiry Guy Carlton Lee, Ph. D., LL. It is with great pleasure and confidence that I announce him for Saturday night. In his greater lecture, "The Man of Sorrows," He is a deep thinker, a scholarly man, an eloquent and forceful speaker, and has a great message. He is the third number of the lyceum. VERDICT NOT GUILTY

Case Charging Pool Selling Results in Favor of Defendant

WACO, Texas, Nov. 25.—Jim Igro was tried in the county court here on a charge of selling pools on horse races, but was found not guilty. This was the first case tried here under the law against the selling of pools in Texas.

Defendant claimed that he made all deals in Arkansas by wire, and that therefore the laws of Texas had not been infringed. On this contention he won.

Judge W. R. Booth, Who Will Be Master of Ceremonies.

Decorators were busily at work Saturday on the interior of the New Majestic Theater, in Jennings avenue, just south of the postoffice, painting and gilding the proscenium arch and such parts of the newly-completed wood-work as need painting. By tonight it will all be finished, and the special decorations for the dedication exercises at Monday night's opening will be put in place.

The roomy, comfortable red leather seats are in place, the lights are installed, the scenery is set and the curtains hung, and within the next forty-eight hours the entire staff of house attaches will be so thoroughly rehearsed in their duties that there will be no hitch and no confusion when Monday night's big audience arrives.

The big company which will furnish the nine star vaudeville acts which constitute the bill for the opening week closed its engagement at Waco Saturday night and will reach Fort Worth today, beginning at once the necessary rehearsals with the orchestra on incidental music, and the handling of scenery just to see that it is in perfect working order. The heating plant is fully installed, so whatever the weather, the house will be comfortable.

There is every indication that the performance will go more smoothly than any opening performance ever given in a brand new play house, and it is certain that those who attend will see the prettiest theater in the south, see and hear the best vaudeville acts now traveling on any circuit, and will enjoy themselves generally.

A Social Event

The opening will be an event of much social importance in Fort Worth, and much professional importance in the theatrical world. Society people of Fort Worth will be there in force, and the opening will be distinctly one of the social features of the season. The theatrical world is interested from the reason that a new and expensive theater has been added to the limited number of good ones in the southwest, and that vaudeville, the most popular form of public amusement in the world, has obtained a strong foothold in West Texas.

Despite innumerable difficulties, the management has succeeded in getting the theater completed. Everything is in readiness—the carpets down, the seats in place, the boxes furnished, the walls, ceilings, proscenium arch and stage front fully painted and ornamented, and the entire house staff properly rehearsed in its duties.

The audience, when it assembles, will find that nothing has been half-done—everything is wholly ready. It has cost an immense amount of work, worry and cash to bring this about, but the managers of the enterprise declare they promised certain things to Fort Worth, and were determined to keep their promises—not only on the opening night, but at all times.

Seats Are Comfortable

In no theater in the country have more complete preparations for the comfort of the audience been made. The seats are of the most comfortable design—thickly upholstered in red leather, with backs inclined at the angle most productive of ease, with ample space between seats and in the aisles, and with direct access from all parts of the house to numerous exits on three sides. At the door there is a uniformed attendant who will meet all carriages, assign them to positions, give them numbers and, at the end of the performance, call them as soon as their occupants appear. A competent maid will have charge of the ladies' parlors, an innovation in southern theaters.

No less complete are the arrangements for the entertainment of the big opening night audience. The dedication exercises, themselves, will be most interesting. Judge W. R. Booth, president of the Home Factory Club and one of the original friends of the enterprise, will be master of ceremonies. Mayor Powell will make one of the short talks for which he is famed; and Captain B. B. Paddock, secretary of the Board of Trade, who has also been a friend of the enterprise since its inception, will speak. President H. F. McGarvie, president of the Interstate Amusement Company, lessee of the theater and manager of the numerous vaudeville shows which comprise the big Majestic circuit, will make the closing address.

Then the orchestra, under the leadership of Professor Epstein, will render with thrilling electrical and military effect, Professor Epstein's imposing military overture, "A Warrior's Dream," which was written especially for this opening, and the first season

ALDERMAN WAGGOMAN MAKES ANSWER TO HARRIS

Refutation Made to Charges Against Street Sprinkling Company—Facts in the Case Brought Out—Statement From Books Shows Absurdity of Mayoralty Candidate's Figures

To The Telegram

Judge Harris is making such a fuss about the sprinkling matters that it is not out of order for me to make some remarks on the subject.

The sprinkling matter was taken up by myself and associates at the unanimous request of the mayor and city council then in office.

Sprinkling has been tried as a municipal matter without success, and we were asked to endeavor to relieve the city of the incubus.

After many meetings and discussions a contract was finally drawn which compromised the contention of the two sides, under which contract the work is now being done.

At the time the contract was entered into I had no connection with city affairs, nor any notion of ever being so connected.

When I ran for alderman of the Second ward, I consulted Judge W. D. Williams, then city attorney, who informed me that my connection with the sprinkling company was no bar to my serving the ward as alderman, as the contract had been made prior to my candidacy.

The work has been done during all these years to the almost entire satisfaction of the people who pay the bills, namely, the owners of property on the various streets sprinkled, and the city, as represented by the engineering department. The city engineer informs me that not to exceed three pieces have been made to him in all the time the contract has run, and one of those came from a person on Peter Smith street, who was not paying for sprinkling, but thought the city was doing the work and that he was being neglected, acknowledging his error when informed of the true conditions.

During the early part of this season there was quite an agitation over sprinkling matters, and a special committee was appointed to investigate and report.

This report is signed by Alderman Henderson and Alderman Maddox, and was unanimously adopted by the city council. It follows, in full:

"FORT WORTH, Texas.—Hon. Mayor and City Council: Gentlemen—We, your special committee on street sprinkling matters, have the honor to report:

"That after ample investigation we find but one discrepancy in estimates rendered by the city engineer, to-wit, the block lying between Daggett and Railroad avenues, on St. Louis avenue.

"It seems certain that the city engineer has included this block in his reports to the city council as a sprinkled street, although the sprinkling company has not, for many months, done any work there.

"From the letter of city engineer, hereto attached, addressed to Alderman Maddox, it seems that abutting property owners have done the street sprinkling of which fact the city engineer was not informed.

"The city engineer was probably warranted in including said block in his quarterly estimates.

"We, therefore, recommend that all former estimates of the city engineer on sprinkling matters be considered correct, and that daily reports, on blanks furnished by the city engineering department, copy of which is hereto attached, be insisted upon in case charges are made.

"J. F. HENDERSON, City Council.

"Reported to the city council and adopted by that body Sept. 1, 1905.

"A true copy.

"Attest—JNO. T. MONTGOMERY, City Secretary."

It certainly seems that Judge Harris has very little upon which to base his campaign, when he so bitterly attacks the work of the sprinkling company after such a committee has reported its work to the city engineering department evidently erred in reporting the one block, BUT IT WAS A SPRINKLED BLOCK, and even though sprinkled privately, was not a very great evil when publicly paid for. Think of it! If wrongly estimated for a whole year, which it was not, the public would have been mulcted in the enormous sum of a little less than $16.

With the afore-said agitation over sprinkling matters came up, the sprinkling company made a proposition to the city to sell their entire outfit of horses and sprinklers, at any price which the city might set, and let the city do the work municipally. This proposition met with disfavor, as it was discovered that Fort Worth is about the best sprinkled city in Texas, and at the least cost.

As to the awful manner in which Judge Harris is personally lied by the reason of the sprinkling contract, I wish to state for the benefit of the public, nor any of my family have ever paid one cent for street sprinkling adjacent to their premises. He gets the benefit of the sprinkling that other people pay for as he walks along the streets, or sits in his office, but pays nothing except his share of the $4,000, or thereabouts, per year, which is done by the general public. (The $4,000 figure can be checked at the city auditor's office.)

By the way, that brings up another figure. I notice that Judge Harris stated in his Wednesday night's speech in the Ninth ward that sprinkling figures might reach $120,000 per year, under the present contract, in addition to the extortionate amount paid by the city, of to-wit, $4,000 per annum.

I wonder if it ever occurred to Judge Harris that this sprinkling contract is nearly at an end, and that after all these years no such frightful thing has ever happened. I wonder if he really knows that it has been a hand to mouth matter with the company to keep in existence; that the company's banker has had to, from time to time, advance the money with which to keep the good streets of Fort Worth properly moistened? I wonder if he knows

CORONER ORDERS HAND ENBALMED

Step Is Taken in Effort to Identify Body

In order that the unfortunate man who was killed on the Denver Road near Saginaw Thursday night may be identified at any future time, Justice of the Peace Rowland gave instructions that the left hand be preserved in embalming fluid. The little finger of this hand has been cut off possibly for years, which fact may be the means of determining who he is.

The remains were buried by the county Saturday afternoon.

All day Saturday a stream of people passed into the chapel of the George Gause undertaking rooms to view the mutilated remains of the man in an effort to identify the unknown young man. Thus far no one has been able to identify the body.

For a short time Saturday forenoon a report was going the rounds that it was the body of one of the prisoners who escaped from the county jail three weeks ago, but county officials who viewed the remains soon dispelled the rumor.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

Furniture .. Carpets .. Mantels

"Human Hearts," one of the old favorites that always draws crowded houses, will be the Thanksgiving attraction at Greenwall's this week.

Each of the four offerings probably will draw a different kind of audience. Toyland's music and wit will appeal to the lover of light musical comedy and pretty stage pictures.

De Grasse's Richelieu ought to be an interesting study. He played Macbeth with a center-rush's enthusiasm, and after a host of afternoon tea ac-

Those in the strong cast are James M. Dougherty, W. H. Belmont, John R. Gordon, Walter Coyle, Miss Hattie Dougherty, Miss Ada Anderson, Miss Lelith Belmont and others.

MR. JOSEPH DE GRASSE AS "RICHELIEU"

The engagement of Mr. Joseph De Grasse in "Richelieu" for two performances at Greenwall's opera house Wednesday matinee and night, Nov. 29, is announced.

As this romantic actor has many admirers here and in the immediate neighborhood he undoubtedly will be greeted by the large audience that his talent as a player and the entertaining character of his production merits.

It seems to be an undeniable fact that the American public prefers a happy ending to a play. So strong is this feeling that many times a play has been rewritten and the logical ending made a happy one before success was attained.

Of all the light musical successes of the latter part of last season, no Broadway offering had greater vogue than B. C. Whitney's latest and greatest success, "The Show Girl," or "The Magic Cup."

The popular classic actor, Charles B. Hanford, coming soon.

SCENE FROM "HUMAN HEARTS."

tors, his vigor and dash was refreshing. How he will portray the crafty Richelieu will be interesting to watch.

"OVER NIAGARA FALLS"

"Over Niagara Falls," with its wealth of gorgeous scenery, electrical effects and wonderful mechanism, will be the offering at Greenwall's opera house Tuesday matinee and night, Nov. 28.

It is claimed nothing ever produced an equal in realism the effect this company carries of the Niagara Falls. It is so cumbersome and difficult to transport that only a few of the larger one night stands will be visited, it requiring several hours by the force of carpenters the company carries, and an extremely large stage entirely cleared of house scenery to properly set it.

"HUMAN HEARTS"

"Human Hearts" comes to Greenwall's opera house Thursday (Thanksgiving) matinee and night, Nov. 30.

Though now in its eleventh season, Hal Reid's melodrama of the Arkansas hills, "Human Hearts," seems to grow better with each succeeding year.

Logan was a representative type of the Arkansas backwoodsman, with a warm heart beneath his rough attire—a heart that beat not only for himself but for every human being under the sun except one, and that was the man who killed his father and robbed him of his wife.

"BABES IN TOYLAND"

"Babes in Toyland," Glen McDonough and Victor Herbert's musical extravaganza, which was the vogue of New York, Chicago and Boston, having had a run of 250 nights at the Majestic theater and 150 nights in Chicago, will be presented at Greenwall's opera house Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, Dec. 1-2.

Unquestionably "Babes in Toyland" will be the event of the dramatic season in Fort Worth, as it has been in all the cities of both the north and south, where Hamlin & Mitchell have presented this musical company of international fame, with their all-star cast.

"Babes in Toyland," replete in brilliant scenic and electrical effects and gorgeous costumes, is a spectacle which charms, bewitches and entrances every one who sees it. Glen McDonough has treated the nursery fairy story, which is dear to the heart of every child, and to the heart of every one who has been a child in years gone by, in an entirely original manner.

"The Runaways" is the original greatest of all New York Casino successes. It is intact just as presented for seven months at the Casino. There are some new faces in the company. For instance, "Honey Boy" George Evans is assuming the role of Blutch the Jeckey. But, while not disparaging the work of the others who have been seen in this role, it can be safely asked, is there a comedian living who can put the life in this part that Evans can?

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Charles B. Hanford's revival of "Ingomar" promises to afford a rare treat for the theatergoers of this city. Mr. Hanford will appear in the title role and Parthenia will be played by Miss Marie Drofna. Mr. Hanford's productions in the past have invariably been such as to invite a measure of confidence such as is accorded few players. He has made, the classic drama his field and has found recognition in it such as is vouchsafed to but few men in each generation.

When Hal Caines wrote his novel, "The Eternal City," the fashions of the day differed from the modes of the hour when Jane Kennark plays the heroine. Mr. Caine may have his own views about the costumes which should be worn, but Miss Kennark and

The popular classic actor, Charles B. Hanford, coming soon.

New York city, and had a run there of over three months, will be presented, with its tasteful costumes, gorgeous scenery and effective stage business. There is a cat, not a real cat to be sure, but the most remarkable cat to be seen on any stage.

"The Chaperons" was immensely liked the first time it appeared in Kansas City, and from the applause it received yesterday afternoon that popularity is not on the wane. It is the same catchy mixture of comedy and song as when first seen here.—Kansas City World.

When "Hazel Kirke" was first produced it was declared to be the best play of its kind ever seen on the stage. That it possesses the ability to live on year after year is this season demonstrated by the splendid success with which it meets in every city visited by Miss Effie Elsher and her supporting company under the direction of Jules Murry, who has given this famous revival the most gorgeous production it has ever had. Effie Elsher and "Hazel Kirke" will appear here soon.

One of the attractions to be seen here early this fall is "The School Girl," which is generally said to be one of the prettiest musical plays ever written. Suffice it to say that the music of "The School Girl" was furnished by Leslie Stuart, the famous author of "Florodora."

Wilton Lackaye will appear as Svengali in the tenth anniversary revival of "Tribby." This is a play of perpetual youth, for it has aged but little in the past ten years since Mr. Lackaye startled the world with his tremendous success in the role of Evengal. Nobody but a prig would quarrel with "Tribby" now. You could call yourself a student of the drama and pick flaws in it by all set rules. But you would have your labor for your pains. Everyone else would silence you with a single sentence, "It pleases."

MAN'S UNREASONABLENESS is often as great as woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, manager of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable, when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Walkup & Fieldner, Holland's Red Cross Pharmacy and Renfro Drug Company, druggists. Price 50 cents.

The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs will be guided for the next two years by Mrs. Olgie Kohlberg of El Paso, first vice president; Mrs. M. L. Eklar of Orange, second vice president; Mrs. S. J. Wright, third vice president; Mrs. A. B. Storry of Lockhart, fourth vice president; Mrs. T. W. Wiley of McKinney, fifth vice president; Mrs. B. B. Bidwell, sixth vice president; Mrs. Howell of Bryan, recording secretary; Mrs. John W. Wright of Tyler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. L. Bradford of Bonham, treasurer; Mrs. H. C. Coleman of Colorado, auditor.

Probably no election of officers since the organization of the state federation eight years ago has been so satisfactory to the delegates. Complete harmony existed and the future of the federation promises larger and broader development than ever before.

The striking note of the present meeting was the enormous amount of business transacted. The five district presidents' report of the work of the past year under their supervision, Mrs. Reese Wilson of the Liberty district, Mrs. W. S. Banks of the Temple district, Mrs. Joseph Dibrell of the Seguin district, Mrs. Fred Fleming of Dallas, Mrs. E. E. Bramlette of Stephenville for the first district, including Fort Worth, and Mrs. John B. Pondrom of Pilot Point. These vice presidents of the state organization and presidents of their district federation, reported glowingly of the progress made, the advance in library work, art work, the energies quickened that were resulting in movement in the school courses of study and in the beautifying of school grounds. The attention being paid to domestic economy and domestic science was a noteworthy feature of the reports.

Fort Worth had very nearly the center of the stage during the four days of the meeting. Wherever there were club women in conversation the name of some Fort Worth visitor or delegate was heard. Mrs. Bacon Saunders, chairman of the program committee, was showered with compliments on her admirably selected and arranged programs. The making up of a program to be filled by material scattered from Galveston to the Panhandle and from Texarkana to El Paso is much easier to think of than to execute. Mrs. Saunders got together her people and chose for them topics that fitted each like a glove. The result was that the programs moved without a hitch or flaw, to the delight of delegate and visitor.

In his address of welcome Governor Lanham used pretty illustrations as a compliment to the club women. "Modern science has progressed to the point where the skillful surgeon can take apart and put together again the entire human anatomy. The greatest piece of surgery of all time was performed in the Garden of Eden, when the 'Great Surgeon' placed Adam under the influence of a divine anesthetic and, removing one of his ribs, made for him his companion, his counselor, and his helpmeet."

The mayor of Austin, W. D. Shelley, and the president of the State university, Dr. David Houston, followed the governor, voicing hearty sympathy in the work of women's clubs.

The response to the addresses of welcome was made by Mrs. Ernest L. Stephens of Fort Worth. In what was said by some of the club women to have been the cleverest speech ever made by a club woman to the club women in Texas.

Not only was the response of Mrs. Stephens one of merit, but her manner was so sweetly womanly and her voice and appearance so wonderfully beautiful that there was wholesale capture of the hearts of her hearers.

No speaker before the Austin audience received a greater ovation than Mrs. A. J. Roe, who as chairman of the kindergarten committee, made a brief, strong and practical report. Her calls for discussion were responded to by speakers from Houston, Dallas and other kindergarten centers. The young woman from Houston, a kindergarten teacher, evoked loud applause when she said that the estimate of the value of kindergarten work was not in numbers of schools or children, but in the kind of work done. That in intelligence and in effective enthusiasm, the leaders in kindergarten training were found in Texas.

Mrs. W. F. Beers of Galveston was prevented by family bereavement from being present, but her address was read by Mrs. Charles W. Connerly, also of Galveston, as of educational importance was the special theme of the report.

One of the weightiest papers of the meeting was that on compulsory education by Mrs. James C. Berney. Her wide reading and profound thought were revealed in a mass of statistics gathered from many sources, showing the money spent for education and the response from different parts of the country; the attendance of the children in Texas in ratio of population and the per cent of attendance compared with enrollment, were strongly urged as illustrating our educational conditions and needs. Dr. Houston in discussing with Mrs. Berney her paper said earnestly:

"While writing this paper and other papers, will you not urge the Texas people to take their educational system more seriously; to think of what they are getting and to be persuaded to put up money to get more and better returns for the time their children spend in school?"

One feature of the Austin meeting that created comment was that the Austin men were not afraid of the club women. At every session numbers of men were observed listening with evident interest to the papers, discussions and dispatch of business.

At the reception given at the woman's building of the university there were dozens of men, and even at the afternoon reception by Governor and Mrs. Lanham there were men in line. Where else in Texas could be found men of such courage? One Austin man confessed that his was curiosity rather than courage. A club woman's answer was that at times it took courage to be curious.

As a mark of special favor to the club women Miss Elizabeth Ney received the entire federation in her studio and no courtesy ever extended the federation created such a flutter of excitement. At the hour set there was a blinding rain storm but storm curtains went up and carriages bore to the quaint castle where the great artist lives several hundred club women. The studio with its originals or casts of her most famous works was crowded, and admiration and education were blended into one. The statue of Lady Macbeth exhibited in the fine art building at St. Louis and the cast of King Ludwig of Bavaria, the original of which is now in the museum at Munich, had crowds before them during the receiving hour.

"The woman's club is curing women of being stupid. Once they did not think much. They are getting over that. The club is doing it."

This is the observation of one of the greatest artists in marble now living.

The tribute during and at the close of the meeting to Mrs. E. P. Turner, the out-going president, was such testimonial to a beautiful character as does the heart good.

Mrs. Turner's two years as head of the greatest organization of women in the state has brought her in touch with many and varying interests and personalities, criticism, faultfinding, acrimony have melted before the warm heart, the practical judgment, the overflowing sympathy of this harmonizing executive. Her estimate of the essentials has been unerring, her lieutenants have been selected with the finest discrimination. The federation work of the last two years will remain a lasting monument to which words can add little.

EVENTS OF WEEK

The Sans Parlei club entertained informally Friday evening in the Imperial hall. Bert Honea and Miss Jerrard led the cotillon.

The guests were Misses Lee, Pendleton, Mallard, Stripling, Hosmer, McCarthy, Anderson, Webb, Newlin, Marklee, Green, Card, Diehl, Coppage, Fuller, Dingle, Connell, Gardner and Humphreys; Messrs. Ford, Hoenes, Helmers, Peak, Darling, Cooper, Dolan, Stewart, Weeks, Walker, Binyon, Gardner, Buck, King, Caldwell, Fuller, Taylor, Conrad, Gernsbacher, Way, Barks, Smith and Maddox; Mesdames Van Zandt, Dinglee and Hosmer.

The fortunate Daisies were entertained twice Saturday. Miss Alice Mallard being the hostess in the afternoon. Esther Connell won the club prize, a silk glove case, and Miss Beas Wombwell the consolation, a linen turnover. Miss Mallard's guests included Misses Edna Mae Card, Jerrard, Anne Newlin, Mary Dinglee, Ruth Hosmer, Bessie Winkele, Elizabeth Gardner, Edna Pendleton, Ollie Gulle, Connell and Mrs. Way.

Mrs. George Clayton gave one of the beautiful receptions of the year Friday afternoon. The hours for receiving were from 3 to 5. The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Willard Burton and ushered into spring, as the halls represented that season. The rooms were decorated in bamboo, smilax and American Beauty roses. Mesdames Harrison, Humble, Walter Ross, Andrews, Carter, Childress, Miss Alice Davidson and Miss Jessie Wardlaw received in the hall. The dining room was converted into a winter scene. The walls were hung in moss and icicles and hand-painted winter scenes. Mesdames Clayton, Davidson, Connerly, Cotter, Burney, Waples, Wells, Buchanan and Hardy received in the drawing room, gowned in white with powdered hair. The room was so typically wintered that the guests fairly shivered.

The dining room was a splendid representation of summer, with hammocks, parasols, baskets filled with apple blossoms suspended from the ceiling. The table was a pond with gold fish and frogs swimming among the ferns. Mesdames Covert, Jordan, Jackson, Gogins, Misses Stripling, Lucille Davidson and Anne Newlin assisted in this room.

In her refreshments the hostess carried out the idea of the seasons, rose ice cream and fruit representing summer; yellow fruit and nuts for fall; white ice cream with cocoanuts for winter, and creme de menthe for spring.

The punch room was upstairs. It represented fall attractions with quantities of autumn vines and chrysanthemums. The punch table was banked with fruit and stood under a cornucopia filled with grapes. Misses Waples, Edrington and Newlin served delicious fruit nectar.

The upper hall was decorated in yellow chrysanthemums. Misses Wardlaw and Davidson received at the head of the stairs.

A two-course luncheon was served to the house party later in the afternoon.

Miss Lillian Vickery and George Wesley Works were united in marriage at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 22 at the home of the bride's father, Richard V. Vickery, 303 Hill street. While awaiting the bride, Miss May Samuels sang Teschemacher's "Anthem of Love," accompanied by Miss Annie Maye Irwin of Waxahatchie on the piano and Miss Grace Davenport on the violin. Immediately after the solo, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played and the bridal party approached. First came the two groomsmen, Messrs. Morrison and Hay of Ennis; the bridegroom, George Wesley Works, and the best man, Hugh Gilpin of Groesbeck, Texas, followed by the two bridesmaids, Miss Stella White of

Cheering Up the Home For Thanksgiving Day

THANKSGIVING is distinctly a home celebration, and it's a poor home that doesn't put on a little extra adornment for the occasion. Today we speak of the Thanksgiving table and the China, Cut Glass, Silverware and Linen for its adornment. Go where you will, it would be hard to find a better, more varied, a higher grade or a more artistic showing of correct table appointments than we offer you for this Thanksgiving day of 1905. See the windows; they tell the story.

Be Thankful

That the founders of Thanksgiving Day, the sturdy old Puritans who landed on a "stern and rock-bound coast," had the grit to stay there and find something to be thankful for.

That you were born to enjoy the benefits of the magnificent country they helped to create, without encountering the hardships they endured.

That you live in the busiest city in the greatest state, where its benefits are most manifest.

That you reside in Fort Worth, destined to be and in many ways now, the greatest city of Texas, where you may enjoy the many advantages of this store.

Ennis and Miss Atha Jones of Houston.

The bridesmaids' gowns were dainty creations of white point d'esprit with green girdles. They carried bouquets of white plum chrysanthemums, and each wore a smilax wreath in her hair.

Miss Annye Vickery, sister of the bride, looked exceedingly handsome in green jewel chiffon over green chiffon and taffeta, trimmed with gold pimpernel. She also carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Preceding the bride was little Nellie Margaret Brown, niece of the bride, who carried the ring in an immense white chrysanthemum.

Last came the bride, lovely in a princess gown of white embroidered chiffon, paneled in real lace and pearls, over chiffon and taffeta. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil was caught up with lilies of the valley.

The whole lower floor of the home was decorated with bamboo ferns, palms and white chrysanthemums. One corner of the library was converted into a bridal bower. The bride and groom stood under a canopy of gray moss and ferns, from which was suspended a wedding bell of ferns and white chrysanthemums.

While the ceremony was being performed Misses Irwin and Davenport played Laugh's "Blumenlied" very softly. Rev. B. B. Ramage officiated.

Little Nellie Vickery and Allabel Brown assisted Florence Edrington and Billy Lerry as ribbon bearers.

An informal reception followed, and Mr. and Mrs. Works were heartily congratulated. The guests were served punch from a dainty punch bowl by Misses Vickery and Brown, and ice cream in the shape of chrysanthemums.

In cutting the wedding cake, Annye Vickery cut the ring. Miss Irwin the dime and Miss Spencer the thimble. Miss White caught the bride's bouquet.

BEALL-STEVENS
A wedding of the past week of great interest to many people of Fort Worth was that of Miss Varner Beall of this city and Mr. Forris D. Stevens of Grand Rapids, Mich.

chiffon elaborately shirred and trimmed with Cluny lace.

Miss Pendleton's gown was of pink chiffon with accordion plaited flounces edged with ruby thread lace and panels of renaissance lace.

The maids each carried large bouquets of pink chrysanthemums tied with pink tulle.

Miss Beall was attired in a beautiful gown of white chiffon cloth, with duchesse lace trimmings and her veil was caught with lilies of the valley. She wore a pearl and diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Homer T. Wilson of San Antonio and was beautiful and impressive in its simplicity.

After the ceremony refreshments were served in the dining room, which was decorated in white and green. Candeabra with green shades were on the table. The center piece was of roses and lilies of the valley, with smilax and ribbons from the chandelier.

The bride gave each of her maids pearl and enamel pins, and the bridegroom presented his ushers each with a pair of cuff buttons and stick pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left for a long trip in the east, and will be at home after the tenth of January at 24 Terrace avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. W. A. Adams entertained with a most charming tea Tuesday afternoon, in honor of Miss Davis of El Paso and Mrs. Hammitt Hardy. She received from 3 to 6 o'clock. During the last hour a number of men called.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. C. Edrington and then were introduced to the honorees by the hostess. Mrs. Adams was charmingly attired in a white crepe de chine gown, elaborately trimmed with Duchess lace.

Miss Davis wore a pink spangled chiffon gown, with a Brussels lace bertha that added just enough richness to the dainty costume to make it altogether charming.

Everyone was glad to welcome Mrs. Hardy, lovely in her wedding gown of

There is Nothing in the World So Exasperating to the occupants of an automobile when out for a ride as the sudden discovery that one of the tires has suddenly sprung a leak and "gone flat." That condition out on the country road means half to an hour's work with jack, tire-lifters, etc., to say nothing of wear and tear of muscles, hands and disposition. Tire punctures cause 90 per cent of an automobile driver's troubles, for no matter how careful he may be in driving he can't steer clear of invisible nails and tacks in the road.

There is a relief, however, from the worry of punctured tires, and it is believed that the remedy will some day be universally applied. This relief consists in filling the tires with a liquid preparation of rubber and other material, which is forced into the inner tube under air pressure, and then allowed to stand from 48 to 72 hours until thoroughly congealed. This leaves the tire practically solid, but it still retains almost all of the resiliency of and has already filled the tires of a number of cars in this city. The material used in filling these tires is a secret of the inventor, and Mr. Day has the exclusive right to use it in this section of the state.

The following is a statement made by one of the users of this tire-filler here in Fort Worth:

"The filler put into the four tires of my Winton touring car two months ago has given me a great deal of satisfaction so far, and I am contemplating only continued satisfaction for the future. I can see no difference in the ease of riding, and friends who rode in the car when air-filled and with the present filling, can distinguish no difference; in fact several did not know the tires had been filled until so informed. I have used the car on hard hill work and on fast driving since you put in the filler, and there seems to be no comparative difference. I would not, anyway, exchange the relief from worry of possible punctures in my country runs for a slight decrease in speed or comfort in riding. A bit of satisfaction is worth more than even an ounce of tire trouble. If I owned other cars I would have the tires filled by you."

FRANCE AGHAST AT MASSACRE

Gauls Condemn Russian Riots and Murders Done

NATIVES HATE ISRAELITES

Subjects of Czar Are Likely to Seize Relief Funds and Continue Killing

BY PAUL VILLIERS. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. By Cable to The Telegram.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—All France stands aghast at the terrible massacres of Jews in Russia, and in spite of the fact that the overthrow of the present regime in that country would probably mean a loss of several millions of francs to the French people, you hear everywhere, even among those who have invested all their savings in Russian securities, nothing but words of condemnation of the czar's government, which has done little or nothing to prevent the shedding of Jewish blood.

It is one of the most beautiful traits in the character of the French people that they are thrifty and saving though they are money is after all a secondary consideration, which is perhaps more than can be said about the citizens of other great republics.

Money for the relief of the suffering Jews in Russia is pouring in, but there are a good many philanthropists here who declare that money will be of no avail, as it will ultimately become booty for the assassins, and that the only remedy is to assist the whole Jewish population in Russia to leave the country where they are objects of such intense hatred.

A Russian of high standing in this city has endorsed this opinion, and while strongly condemning the massacres, and far from condoning the murderers, has tried to explain to the French people the hatred of the Russian against the Jews.

"While it is true," he says, "that the Russian autocratic government has always considered the Jews an undesirable element because of their mental superiority over the ignorant moujik. It should be remembered that this massacre have always been committed by the lower classes and without the instigation of the clergy or the officials, as it is often said. The lower classes hate the Jews because of their slylocken methods toward them."

"The Russian Jew has the antipathy of his race against bodily labor. He never tills the soil nor makes his living in the sweat of his brow. He is nearly always either a merchant or a money lender on a small or large scale."

"As a merchant he is always unscrupulous and very often dishonest, but it is as a money lender that he usually arouses hatred."

"The Russian has in his character many of the traits of the child. He is careless with money, whether he possesses little or much, light living and extravagant. When the Jew comes to him and offers to lend him money he accepts it, thinking little of the rate of interest or of the day of repayment. He gives as security anything demanded, and when the term of the loan expires and he cannot pay he cannot understand that the lender has any right to take possession of the security given."

"The Jew insists on having his pound of flesh, and in taking it he often seals his own doom. For all parties concerned it would be a great blessing if Zionism would induce every Jew in Russia to leave the empire."

Such are the views of an educated and liberal Russian, who deprecates the slaughter of Jews as much as anybody, and there are many men here acquainted with conditions in Russia who agree with him.

Diamonds Are Scarce
Greatly to the regret of Parisian ladies, who love the sparkling stones probably more fervently than their American sisters, diamonds are becoming scarce and dearer here every day.

It is said that even the rich mines of South Africa are being rapidly exhausted and no new ones are discovered.

In the meantime the efforts to manufacture genuine diamonds artificially are beginning to give more hope of success and in a great shop on one of the boulevards one may now see a diamond weighing a little over a carat and of the purest water which has been made by a young French scientist, M. Lemoine, who is carrying on his experiments with the financial assistance of one of Paris' most prominent dealers in precious stones.

The young inventor works in a little house outside of Paris at Colombes (Seine), which is as closely guarded as any fortress and his methods are kept a deep secret.

He hopes to be able to manufacture diamonds of any size within a very short time at a cost which will be nominal compared to the present price of the blue white stones.

Prophet Causes Riot
An inspired prophet of the Douai class has nearly caused a revolution in Belgium, and the police who accuse him of swindling peasants out of thousands of francs.

The prophet, whose name is Buisseret, and who professes to be able to cure all diseases and to promote the fortune of all who believe in him, is stated by the police to be a coal miner. He arrived quite recently in the village, and so great was the influence he exercised on the inhabitants that they provided him with a house, upon the front of which a gigantic white cross, a crown, and seven stars have been painted.

The other day Buisseret, attired in voluminous white robes, encircled by a crimson girdle, and with his head crowned with laurel leaves, was haranguing a crowd, which thronged about him, kissing his hands and garments, when a force of police approached to arrest him.

CZAR DISTRUSTS GOV'T OF GERMANY

Russia Has Not Relaxed Watch on William's Domains

BY MALCOLM CLARKE. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. Special to The Telegram.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—In spite of the many proofs of friendship which the czar's government has given the czar, the government of Russia plainly distrusts Germany, and has by no means relaxed her watchfulness.

Russian spies, military and others, are as plentiful as ever in the czar's domain, a fact which has aroused the czar's strong disapproval.

Only a few days ago the trial at Leipzig of a Polish student, Ladislaus Pawlowski, from Warsaw, brought to light the fact that even while Germany during the Russo-Japanese war was endeavoring to assist Russia in every way she possibly could without actually taking sides, Pawlowski, with scores of other secret agents of the czar, were busily photographing German forts and military documents purloined from the war department.

What has made the czar even more bitter is the confession of Pawlowski that the czar personally approves the system of espionage.

This confession is strengthened by the fact that another even more clever and dangerous spy, Mlle. Zinalda Smolniantzoff, who has just been sentenced to three years' imprisonment, came to this city with letters of introduction from persons high in the czar's council.

On the strength of these letters Mlle. Smolniantzoff, who passed as a lady of independent means, dabbling in literature for her own pleasure, was received with open arms by Berlin society. Being of distinguished appearance and gay, fascinating manners, she soon became a social favorite among officers and high state dignitaries, and was even received at court, and the number of military secrets which she boasts of having revealed to the Russian government has greatly alarmed the war department.

It is after this, probably rather doubtful whether the czar will feel justified in sending any more German emissaries to Russia to help the czar escape from the wrath of the revolutionists.

To Buy Electric Invention
The navy department has followed with intense interest the experiments in driving and steering ships with electric power from the shore which have recently been made at Bilbao, and negotiations have been opened with the inventor, a Spanish engineer, to sell his invention to the German government for an enormous sum.

The experiments at Bilbao, which were conducted under the auspices of the Spanish navy department and the inventor, Senor Torres Quevedo, proved that from a transmitting station on the shore he was able to steer a torpedo boat with the same accuracy as if he were standing at the helm and a large amount has been placed at his disposal by the Spanish government to enable him to develop his invention.

Beyond the fact that the invention is founded on the principles which make wireless telegraphy possible, nothing is known of it here, but to a country like Germany, which is always fearing an attack by a British fleet far superior to her own, it would undoubtedly be of incalculable value.

Prophetic Book Written
No book written during the last decade has been so widely discussed here as "The Collapse of the Old World," evidently written by a military expert of unusual ability hiding under the pseudonym of "Sea Star."

The book, which is full of vivid pictures of a great future war, describes how the great powers of Europe will sacrifice their predominant position in the world, owing to the outbreak of a war between England and Germany, in which France, Spain and Portugal take sides with the former power, while Austria and Italy remain loyal to the triple alliance.

Germany repeats her military successes of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, but her navy is wiped out by England's superior fleets, which, however, suffer dreadfully in doing so.

Finally Great Britain and Germany are obliged to abandon the struggle, owing to its disastrous effects in all parts of the world.

MAYOR'S ENTRY IS SMALL SHOW

London Crowds No Longer Throng Streets at Pageant

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. By Cable to The Telegram.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The lord mayor's show has been depleted in one of Hogarth's celebrated pictures, and in those days evidently created infinitely more interest than any time-honored procession can arouse today.

In Hogarth's picture, Frederick, Prince of Wales, watches the show from a city window, and on the night of the installation of the lord mayor, the king, the queen and the princesses were present at the banquet.

In 1566 we have an account of the show in which two "wooden took part and hurled squibs." In 1591 a sea-breeze which swayed a speech, and the "triumph of gold" was the masterpiece of the celebrated pageant. In 1811 "rural dancing, local songs, emblematic scenes, musicians in velvet coats and chains of gold, bachelors wearing crimson satin hoods, formed part of the past glories of the procession."

This year, when London was shrouded in yellow fog, the lord mayor's show wended the familiar way with its tinsel glories. The "entente cordiale" figures which swayed about as though they rust at last collapse in the mud, soldiers and sailors and Union Jacks decorated the car. Another was dedicated to peace, and another car bore a representation of the Statue of Liberty at the entrance to New York harbor, redressed to represent peace.

Two waxwork soldiers, one a tall Russian and the other a small Japanese, stood in front of it.

But the most popular feature of the whole show were the two cars which represented Dr. Barnardo's homes, where the little waifs were working at their trades. A blacksmith's hammer was falling merrily, and the boys were toiling at a mimic forge. Bootmakers were at work with their machines, and carpenters and other trades were piling up the car with slowly by. The procession amuses the children now, and a few adults make an excuse to go because it gives them pleasure, but the pageant, like many others, is an outworn custom which must gradually but surely die.

Another ancient celebration is that of the Guy Fawkes Day. This again is a merriment festival, and is only celebrated in the corners of dingy streets by little boys letting off squibs, or a few fog signals startling respectable passers-by.

Duchess Rouses Criticism
The Duchess of Somerset has raised a perfect storm of discussion and criticism by her strictures on a certain village school in Wiltshire, which she had been closed and the children were enjoying the story of the "Sleeping Beauty."

The duchess was dismayed at the frivolity of the lesson. Could it be true that the teachers were fulfilling the rules by "stunning the children's heads with such nonsense?" The duchess hurried to the meeting of the board of guardians to protest. "It would be better," she said, "if stories were confined to the lives of Julius Caesar and other great men," and she severely criticized the futility of such instruction. It is lucky, however, that the education of the young does not rest with the Duchess of Somerset, and on all hands she is met with the strongest opposition.

Stephen Phillips, the poet dramatist, firmly believes in the beneficial effects of imaginative literature, and sincerely trusts that the old fairy tales will continue to be read to young children. "The fairy tale," he said, "touches a chord in the child mind which sets the mental machinery going, and which may develop the imagination to an extraordinary extent in later life. The very young child cannot be expected to take an interest in the doings of Julius Caesar, but he or she will take a vast interest in the possible doings of a fairy hero or heroine. Moreover the old-fashioned fairy tale often points a very good moral, which is absorbed almost unconsciously by the mind of the child."

The Duchess of Somerset can have studied psychology very little not to have realized that to be unable to people the world, when you are young, with all sorts of imaginary characters, is a handicap which is shown by the grimaces and glances lurking in the wood, dwarf's living in a cave, and above all to believe in heroic princes and beautiful princesses, is to lose half the joy of early life, and by and by, when we realize that these things are stories, we still have the power of perceiving the unseen, and of remembering that what the eye beholds does not necessarily mean the sum total of our world, but that there may be unseen forces and influences that mould life and guide our minds as surely as those which are tangible.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—First picture of Alderman Vaughan Morgan in his official robes as lord mayor of London. The new lord mayor is, in every respect, a self-made man. His father, who was a dealer in woolen goods, failed when the boy was only 9 years old, and he has made his own living ever since then.

Mr. Baker, who was a close friend of the late philanthropist, has been engaged in charitable work in the East End of London for more than eighteen years.

SKETCH OF LADY DIXIE IS GIVEN

Her Death Removes an Eccentric London Figure

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. By Cable to The Telegram.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The death of Lady Florence Dixie removes from the London world one of its most eccentric figures. Lady Florence was the daughter of the seventh marquess of Queensbury, a family which has been apparently doomed to all luck.

Her father was found under a tree shot through the heart when his daughter was only 3 years old. Lord Francis Douglas, one of the elder brothers, was killed while ascending the Matterhorn, and Lord Drumhugh, her nephew, died like his grandfather as the result of an accident with his gun on the very day which his betrothal was announced.

In 1875 Lady Florence married Sir Alexander Beaumont Dixie, and after the birth of her boy she started on her career of journalist, explorer and general free lance. Three years after her marriage she explored Patagonia. Then she acted as correspondent during the Boer War.

After the Zulu war when Cetewayo was captured and brought to England Lady Dixie commenced a great campaign against his being retained in this country, and finally won the point, and the dusky chief was sent back to Africa. In her earlier years she was a remarkable shot, but later she denounced shooting and sport as merciless and wrong.

She was a fine horsewoman, but scorned a side saddle, and she was one of the earliest advocates of rational dress. She was a woman of striking appearance, with dark eyes and a wealth of black hair. In later years she became a vegetarian and a teetotaler.

The Starvation Army
No sadder procession ever marched through the streets of any city than that which recently wended its way from east to west. Lines of women were to be seen, women of all ages and sizes and stature, walking in orderly march along the wide ways of the embankment. Six thousand strong they came, some weary for want of food, and tired from the long tramp, but full of determination. Many carried babies, or else the little ones walked by their side holding their mothers' skirts.

Then having come to the turning point, the band struck up the Marseillaise, and the six thousand women bore down on Downing street.

It was a remarkable scene, and one I think not readily to be forgotten. The thoroughfares were crowded with women of the west, dressed in beautiful furs, carriages drawn by fine horses, motor boulevards gliding through the streets, but the procession of the rich was stopped to make way for the procession of the poor, as women from the east in their rags and dirt and their sadness marched past to ask for bread.

At Westminster the procession parted, and the leaders who were to be received by the prime minister went to Downing street, escorted by Will Crooks, member of parliament, and one

The four children of General and Mrs. Arthur Paget, who, through their mother's American extraction, Miss Lila Paget, the only daughter of the couple, has all the charm and wit for which the American women have become famous.

Miss Lila Paget, the only daughter of the couple, has all the charm and wit for which the American women have become famous.

Mr. Elbert Edward Paget, a god-son of King Edward, who is seated on the left, did excellent service in the Boer war.

There came heartrending stories from one and another of hunger and poverty, and the prime minister listened, pale and uneasy. "I have had nothing to eat since Sunday night," said one of Mr. Balfour's visitors. He looked sympathetically, but his speech conveyed no hope. He promised nothing, he had nothing to promise, and he sent them back with the cold comfort that they must once more rely on private charity.

"We come before you today," said the wife of a young Poplar workman, "representing the women of east and south London, thousands of whom with their children are suffering misery and degradation owing to their husbands being unable to work."

Then came heartrending stories from one and another of hunger and poverty, and the prime minister listened, pale and uneasy. "I have had nothing to eat since Sunday night," said one of Mr. Balfour's visitors. He looked sympathetically, but his speech conveyed no hope. He promised nothing, he had nothing to promise, and he sent them back with the cold comfort that they must once more rely on private charity.

It was a sorrowful little company that went back to tell their comrades that no good had come of their effort and that they had gone in vain; but they are not daunted. They have made an appeal to the queen to use her great social influence to bring about some pressing reforms. I believe that this rising of the women may eventually mean that something will come to pass for when a woman will she will.

Seeing the Other Side
Nothing probably can bring into stronger relief the appalling difference that exists at this moment between the wretchedly luxurious and the half-starving than the contents of some of the fashionable shops which the starving women from London's poorest quarter might have seen had they given their time to examine their wares.

In one shop window in the Burlington Arcade is displayed a motor outfit for lap-dogs. Here there are coats in scarlet and leather, with velvet collars; motor goggles to protect the eyes and electro-plated foot warmers for the pampered pet; waterproof boots as used in Paris, in order to keep the contamination of London mud from the feet of the four-footed friends. The coats range from four to five guineas according to the fur with which they are lined.

A dog's motor coat at five guineas—and a woman who was obliged to tell the prime minister that if things go on as they are families will have nothing to do but eat each other—and the country is called Christian!

Death of Sir George Williams
The death of Sir George Williams, one of the greatest philanthropists of our time, took place this week. He has passed away full of years and rich in the countless friends who bless his happy beneficent career. The founding of the Young Men's Christian Association was the pioneer of a movement which has affected the social life of the entire English-speaking race. No man did more for the youth of the land with that enthusiasm which is the supreme gift of those who realize that no soul is commonplace.

He began his career under the shadow of St. Paul's Cathedral, where he entered the great draper establishment of George Hitchcock. In St. Paul's church yard, here he married his master's daughter and succeeded to the great business, and thus, like a modern Dick Whittington, he became a magnate of the city of London in his early days.

In 1844 the actual Young Men's Christian Association movement began. Sixty years ago they met in a modest room in Blackfriars, the rent of which was half a crown a week. Today the membership is 710,000, and the approximate value of the buildings owned by the association is over £2,800,000.

Sir George Williams was a man of a singularly kind and tender disposition. One anecdote is characteristic of the manner in which he worked. When many were waiting to see him on pressing and important matters, he would look down the long line in order to find the young man who looked most discouraged or disheartened, and to him he would give the preference.

It is well that he was laid to rest in the city of London's great cathedral, and that St. Paul's now holds the mortal remains of the man who did so much for the youth of his own country.

KING PREVENTS A SEPARATION

Marlboroughs Were On Verge of Parting

EDWARD VII TALKS STRAIGHT

Duke and Duchess Invited to Norfolk Home That Monarch Might Mediate

BY PAUL LAMBETH. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—In the American colony in London, and in the country houses where shooting parties are no assembled, the chief topic of conversation is the Marlborough ménage.

It is an open secret that the duke and duchess of Marlborough were on the verge of a separation when the duchess returned to New York. As usual, the king, with his infinitesimal tact, stepped into the breach. His majesty, who learns from his confidantes everything that is going on among his friends, at once asked the duke and duchess down to Sandringham. In his Norfolk home the king relaxes court etiquette, and those who were honored by invitation to Sandringham declare that the king and duke sat up very late at night after everyone had gone to bed.

The rest may easily be guessed. The king and queen both admire the young duchess, and it may be taken for granted that his majesty gave the duke a very straight talk indeed. There is always something pathetic about the duchess. As she explains to a young American, countless times, "People always say I am unhappy, but really that is the fault of my eyebrows, which are built on a plaintive scale."

Proud as she is, however, the young duchess cannot disguise from her intimates that the duke's manner of treating her has become intolerable. His "affairs" with a certain prettily society woman and a Galety actress might have been forgiven, but his studied indifference to the duchess' presence has often irritated his own best friends.

All the world knows that the duchess' allowance has been so reduced that Sunderland house will never be completed in the manner originally intended. Every one hopes, however, that the king's tact will prevent an open breach between the couple.

Lord Willoughby to Wed
The wedding of Miss Eloise Brees to Lord Willoughby de Eresby, who is definitely fixed to take place on Dec. 6, will be the smartest function of the winter.

Miss Brees has, with characteristic American frankness, intimated to her friends that she intends to make her mother-in-law, the countess of Ancaster, like her, and she is certainly succeeding. Lady Ancaster, who is one of the most exclusive and proudest grand dames in the country, has been entertaining Miss Brees at the principal family seat, Grimsthorpe, and has so far thawed out to the extent of putting a suite at the castle at the disposal of Miss Brees when she becomes Lady Willoughby de Eresby.

The earl, however, succumbed long ago to the charms of his future American daughter-in-law. It goes without saying that the dowagers with marriageable daughters are green with envy at this latest American triumph.

A triumph it is admitted to be. Lord Willoughby is not a poverty-stricken peer, and will succeed to huge estates and one of the oldest and proudest titles in England. Lord Willoughby has bought Miss Brees three fine hunters. The bride-to-be is a very clever horsewoman and the couple will hunt after the honeymoon at Melton Mowbray.

Mackey Are Coming Home
Mrs. Frank Mackey has completed her plans for the winter. She has altered her mind, and instead of going to Berkshire, Mrs. Mackey has consented to accompany her husband to California in December. The trip is a purely business one connected with the Mackey property.

Mrs. Mackey, however, is entertaining everybody in good spirits, and especially those who are taking the very nasty waters for which Harrogate is famous.

Mrs. Pell is determined to keep the "books" of the hotel herself, just as she did in the small London hotel she successfully ran near Cavendish Square. She will also take her meals with her guests and be "as one of them."

"When It Was Dark"

were deserting their posts, the Church the loved seemed tottering, a horrid confusion and anarchy was everywhere.

All that she could do was to pray. But as the girl moved about her simple household duties, as she tended the sick man with an almost wifely care, her prayers went on unceasingly and every action was interwoven with supplication.

Pale, subdued, but with a quiet cleanness and resolution in his eye, Basil came down to the meal. There was but little conversation during it. Afterward Helena went to her own room, knowing that her father and mother wished to be left alone.

In the study the two men sat on either side of the fireplace. Basil wore a long dressing-gown of camel-hair. He would not smoke, the doctor had forbidden it, but Mr. Byars lit his pipe with a sigh of satisfaction.

"To think, Basil," the older man said in a broken voice, "to think that Christmas is upon us now! It's the light of Christmas, and never since our Lord's Passion has the world been in such a state. And worse than all is our utter impotence!" His voice grew almost angry. "We know surely as we know anything, that his terrible business is some stupendous mistake or fraud. But there isn't the slightest possibility of any one listening to us. On one side the rightest expert proof, on the other nothing but a conviction to oppose or what appear to be the hardest acts. I cannot blame any non-Christian for acquiescing in this discovery. Viewing the thing clearly and without prejudice, I can't blame anyone. It is only the smallest minority, even of professing Christians, whose faith is strong enough to keep them from an utter denial of our Lord's Divinity. It is simply a matter of long personal experience that lives you and me and Helena our confidence in this utter darkness, but in comparison to the rest of the world, how many have that confidence?"

He put down his pipe on the table and rested his head in his outstretched hands, a gray and venerable head. "It's awful, Basil," he said in a broken voice, and with his eyes full of tears. "In my old age I have seen things which I wish that I had gone with my dear wife. Help, Lord, for the Godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fall from among the children of men. But what is so bitter to me, by dear boy, is the sight of the utter verthrow of Faith. It all shows how terribly weak the majority of Christians are. Surface and symbol! Symbol and surface!"

"It will not last long," said Gortre, gravely. "For my part, Father, I think that this terrible trial is allowed and permitted by God to bring about a great and future triumph for His Son, which will marshal, organize and consolidate Faith as nothing has ever done before. I am convinced of it."

"Yes, it must be that," answered the dear, "undoubtedly that is God's purpose. But I would that the light might come in my time. And I fear shall not live to see it. I'm an old man now, Basil; this has aged me very much, and I shall not live much longer. It is God's will, but it is hard to know that one will die seeing Christ dethroned in the hearts of men, the Cross broken."

"While I have been quietly upstairs," said Gortre, "many strange thoughts have come to me, of which I want to speak to you tonight. I have things to tell you which I have mentioned to no one as yet. But here I go into these matters—very dark and terrible ones. I fear—I want you to give me a resume of the position of things as they are now. The present state is not clear in my mind. I have not read many of the papers, and I want a sort of bird's-eye view of what is going on."

"The position at present," said Mr. Byars, "from our point of view, is a kind of anarchy. Within every denomination those who absolutely refuse to credit the truth of the discovery are in the minority. Abroad, in France especially, wild free-thought—the rabid Tom Paine order has taken out everywhere in a kind of hysterical rage against Christianity. The immediate social result has been an appalling increase in crimes of lust and cruelty. Great alarm is felt by the authorities. All the papers are taking a horribly cynical view. They say that the delusion of Christianity has clouded men's brains for so long that they are now incapable of bearing the truth, and that the best way to govern the state is to go on making believe. On the other hand, the vast majority of Roman Catholics, both abroad and in England, have remained utterly uninfused. It is one of the most marvelous triumphs of discipline and order that history has ever witnessed. The Pope forbade the slightest notice of the discovery to be taken by priests or people in the first instance. Then, when the Report of the Committee was issued, with only one dissentient voice—Sir Michael Manicheo—a Papal Bull was issued. Here it is, translated in The Tablet, magnificent in its brevity and serenity."

He took a paper from the table beside him and began to read:

"Venerable Brethren—Health and Apostolic Benediction

"It has seemed good to Us to address you on certain points dealing with the decay of faith in divine things, which is the effect of pride and moral corruption. And this is the natural result of pride; for when this vice has taken possession of the heart it is inevitable that the Christian faith, which demands a most willing docility, should languish, and that a murky darkness in regard to divine truths should close upon the mind, so that in the case of many these words should be made good, 'whatever things they know not they blaspheme.' (St. Jude). We, however, so far from being merely turned aside from the design which We have taken in hand, are, on the contrary, determined all the more zealously and diligently to guide the well-disposed, so that they may be saved from the perils of secular unbelief."

"And, with the help of the united prayers of the faithful, We earnestly implore forgiveness for those who speak evil of holy things."

"And inasmuch as certain persons not being members of the Holy Catholic Church have in an extremity of criminal madness laid claim to the covetous which are pretended and put forth as affecting the Eternal Truths of the Faith, We command you, Venerable Brethren, that it shall be stated in all the churches such pretences are void of truth and utterly abominable. The enemies of Christ cry out, 'We will not have this man to reign over us.' (Luke xix.14), and make themselves loudly heard with the utterance of that wicked purpose, 'Let us make away with Him.'"

"We therefore charge all Christians having peace and communion with the Holy Church that they shall give no ear or countenance to those on-lights upon the Faith. It is forbidden for them to speak of these things among themselves, or to listen to others concerning them."

"With these injunctions, Venerable Brethren, We, as a presage of the divine liberality, and as a pledge of our own charity, most lovingly bestow on each of you, and on the clergy and flock committed to the care of each, our Apostolic Benediction."

"That is the gist of it," said Mr. Byars, "though I have missed out a few paragraphs. The result has been that, with a few exceptions, the whole army of Romanists, so to speak, have closed ranks and utterly refused to listen to what is going on."

"It's very fine, very fine indeed, as a spectacle," Gortre answered. "I wish we had something like that unity and discipline. But is that submission, possibly without the fire of an inward conviction, worth very much? I doubt it."

"It is not for us to judge," answered the vicar. "But the result has been that the Catholic Church, both here and on the Continent, is undergoing a storm of persecution and popular hatred. There have been fearful fights in Liverpool and other places between the Irish dock laborers and a mob of people who called themselves Protestants last year and 'Rationalists' today."

"The attitude of the Low Church party is varied. Many of them are openly deserting to Unitarianism. Others have accepted the discovery as being a true one, and evolved an entirely new theory from it, while using it as a party weapon also. This attitude is reflected in The Tower in an article which says that, though the actual body of Christ is now proved never to have risen from the dead, the spiritual body was what the Disciples saw. It is a clever piece of work, which has attracted an immense number of people, and is directed entirely against the Holy Eucharist. The Moderate and High Church parties are in some ways in a worse position than any other. They find themselves unable to compromise."

"At the great meeting in the Albert Hall the other day, which ended up in something of a free fight, all the conclusion the majority of the clergy could come to was that it was utterly impossible to accept the discovery and remain Christian. The result everywhere is chaos; men are resigning their livings; there have been several suicides—isn't it horrible to think of—congregations are dwindling everywhere, and disestablishment seems a certainty in a very short time. The papers are full of nothing else, of course. We are fighting tooth and nail upon the standpoint of personal spiritual experience, which nothing can alter, but in a material way how little that helps! The Methodists and Wesleyans are more successful than any one. They are holding revival meetings all over the country. Very few of these two bodies have joined the infidel ranks. Dissent has always implied an act of choice, which, at any rate, means a man is not indifferent to the whole thing. I suppose that is why the Wesleyans seem to be making a firmer and more spiritual stand than any of us. To my shame I say it, but the Churchmen of England are not bearing witness as these others are."

"And the Bishops?"

"Most of them don't know what to do. Of course, the great leaders of

WHO IS MOST BEAUTIFUL?

You ask me who is most beautiful? I answer, it is THE WOMAN WHO HAS NEVER SUFFERED PAIN.

Pain, with its distorting fingers passed over woman's face, will soon steal away her great treasure—Beauty.

Have you ever seen a person you knew who had passed through some terrible experience of pain—a fire, a railroad wreck?

Did you notice the years—ten, twenty or more—that seemed to have been added to that person's face; the hair whitened perhaps in a single night?

In no way will so strongly be brought home to you the fleeting character of beauty.

It is not wrong for a woman to wish to be beautiful. It is a part of her NATURE, implanted in her at birth, and therefore must be right.

Now I want you to understand that the pain from which you, as a woman, suffer every month will act in just the same way with you as (only, perhaps, more gradually than) a railroad wreck.

It will steal your beauty.

It will undermine your health.

Your grinding headache, backache, dull aching, dragging pains, dizziness, etc.—You surely do not think these are NATURAL?

And if not natural, of course they can be relieved or cured?

Yes. Take Wine of Cardui.

It is the remedy for women's ills, for women's pain; the renovator of woman's health, the preserver of her beauty!

What more need be said?

"But is it all TRUE?" you ask.

So true, that for over 70 years Wine of Cardui has been one of the most popular of all medicines for women. Its use has grown continuously and steadily, and in that time over a million women have found in Cardui relief and cure.

The explanation is not far to seek.

It is a woman's medicine. It is prepared scientifically to combat woman's ills, to cure her pains. It is not for men. It is not claimed to be a general remedy for all diseases. It is composed of choice, curative plant ingredients, which are adapted to soothe, cure and build up the strength of women's special organs.

Because of all this, it goes deep down into the very origin and cause of women's special diseases and troubles, stops PAIN, relieves and cures inflammation and disease. Try it.

"MY DOCTORS GAVE ME UP" writes Mrs. Malinda A. Akers of Basham, Va., "and said no medicine could reach my case. I had trouble for 15 years, and suffered every month with headache, pain in my back, shoulders, limbs and side. I had 'prolapse' and could not stand on my feet. At last my husband got me Wine of Cardui, and after taking nine bottles I am now enjoying the best of health."

A Live Wire

Every nerve is a live wire connecting some part of the body with the brain. They are so numerous that if you penetrate the skin with the point of a needle you will touch a nerve and receive a shock—pain it is called. Aches and pains come from a pressure, strain or injury to a nerve; the more prominent the nerve the greater the pain. When the pain comes from a large nerve it is called Neuralgia.

Whether it be the facial nerves, or the heart, stomach, sciatic or other prominent nerve branch. To stop pain, then, you must relieve the strain or pressure upon the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this.

"I suffered intense pain, caused by neuralgia. I doctored and used various medicines without getting relief until I began taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They never fail to cure my headaches, and their use never leaves my head after-effects."

MRS. WM. BECKMAN, 357 W. 4th St., Erie, Pa.
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by every druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails, he will return your money, or 25 cents. Never take a cent's worth of any other pills.
Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

spiritual thought, W—, for instance, and G—, have written that which has brought comfort and conviction to hundreds. But see the horror of the awful thing can be combated is by just the methods which only scholars and cultivated people can understand. How are people who read the hard, material, logical speeches of people like Schuager, or that abominable woman, Mrs. Hubert Armstrong, going to be convinced by the subtleties of the intellect or by the reiteration of a personal conviction which they cannot share? Then the Court party, the Archbishop, Waikie, and all those, are leaning more and more toward the "spiritual" body theory, though they hesitate to commit themselves as yet. It is all to be shelved until Convocation meets. They want to see how things will go in Parliament. The Erastian spirit is rampant. They are nearly all afraid of any ecclesiastical action. They are following the lead of Germany under the Kaiser."

"It is all very terrible to see how much less Christianity means to mankind than earnest Christians believe, said Gortre, sadly. "To see the edifice tumbling round one like a house of paper, when one thought it so secure and strong. What a terrible lesson this will be in the future to every one; what frightful shame and humiliation will come to those who have denied their Lord when this is over!"

"When will that be, Basil?" asked the vicar, wearily. "It seems as if the real hour of test were at hand, and that now, finally and forever, God means to separate the true believers from the rest. I have thought that all this may be but a prelude to the Last Day of all, and that Christ's Second Coming is very near. But what I cannot understand, what is utterly beyond the power of any of us to appreciate, is what this all means. How can this new tomb have been discovered after all these years? Can all these great experts have been deceived? There have been historical forgeries before, but surely this cannot be one. And yet, I know, you know, that our Lord rose from the dead."

"I believe that to me, of all men in England, The Hand of God has given the key of the mystery," said Gortre.

Mr. Byars started and looked in amazement at him.

"Basil," he said, "I have been thoughtful. We've talked too long. You are not quite clear as to what you are saying. Let us read our Bible together and go to bed."

He watched Basil as he spoke, but before he had finished his sentence he saw something in the young man's face which sent the blood leaping and tearing through his veins.

In a sudden, utterly unreasoning way, he saw a truth, a certain knowledge, in Gortre's eyes which flooded his whole heart and soul with exaltation and joy.

His good and almost saintly face looked as John's might have looked when, after the octave of the Resurrection Day, the eight heavy-hearted men were once more returning to the daily round and common task, and said the Lord upon the shore.

(To Be Continued.)

"I THANK THE LORD!" cried Hannah Plant of Little Rock, Ark. for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for five years. It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at Watkins & Fielder's, Holman's Red Cross Pharmacy and Rents' Drug Company's drug stores; 25 cents.

THE FACT THAT WAS CURSED

God Only Knows Why Such Things Should Be In This Comedie Humaine.

He was my master and I his bondswoman; not however, by any form of indenture, but by love. Moreover, he loved me, albeit he was blind and I his housekeeper's daughter. That is he loved my voice—the rare voice that is like delicious music even to my ears. I thought, in compensation for my ghastly face.

"That face! That face! How I have cursed it! How I have cursed the hour when I was born!"

Why did I not die when my mother took fright at that wretched woman's staring eyes and grayed pallor? Why were both eyes and pallor proffered in me? What have I done that I should be brought into the world with such a heritage of horror?"

Enough! Enough! Let me go back—let me go back to the sweet vision that won him and thrilled him (he said) more deeply even than the transcendently delicious strains which we called forth together, day after day, in the first glorious flush of our love's first dream.

My face he had never seen; but my voice, my precious voice, was the one which claim by which I held him; it was him to love, it won him in pain, it delighted him in ease, it charmed him in sleep.

One glorious day he called me to him, and, pillow my ghastly face against his breast, murmured, tenderly: "My darling, I want my wife. I want her tomorrow. Will she give herself to me?"

So when the morning rose I became Mrs. Estelle Vaughn, Delicious memory!

A month passed—a month of perfect bliss to both. At the end of that month there was an arrival at the old hall. It was a proud neglectful sister whom I had never seen and Ralston little expected to ever meet again. She had accidentally learned of his marriage and came to inspect the bride.

"Good Heavens!" she exclaimed when he called me to him and tenderly pressed me. "Good Heavens, Ralston, you don't mean to tell me that this hideous-looking creature is your wife, and a misalliance at that?"

"You forget yourself, Marion," he haughtily replied, "and—"

"But though my heart was on fire, I interposed:

"The countess is right, dear husband, I am no beauty, as I have assured you. My darling," he exclaimed with passionate volubility, as he took me in his arms, knowing very well how my poor heart was aching. "It is the gown that I love, not the perishable beauty of the casket!"

"The countess arose and shrugged her shoulders, remarking, as she did so: "It's well you are blind, Ralston."

With that she retired; but the same morning she wrote and posted a letter to Paris, and in the course of a week there was another arrival.

"Ralston," said the countess, after the necessary introductions, "Ralston, this gentleman is the most eminent oculist of his day, and I have sent for him hoping that 20 years of blindness may end in your seeing again, and I could secure a moment to myself, and I never know a man who needed his sight so much." And a malignant glance at me gave venomous point to the remark.

"He will see me, he will see me!" I moaned in tearful agony when I thought I may a man who needed his sight so much. And a malignant glance at me gave venomous point to the remark.

"I looked at her and shuddered. "He will see her! he will see her!" I whispered to my own soul.

Enough that the day came when he saw for the first time in 20 long years.

I came in just in time to hear my husband's cry of delight as his eyes rested upon the beautiful Lulu, who had been placed conspicuously in front of him, and to see him snatch her in a passionate embrace to his heart. I sprang forward, waiting mournfully:

"Oh, Ralston! Ralston! she is not your wife!"

"At the sound of my husband's tones he pushed her roughly from him and regarded with glowing countenance toward me. Words were not needed. Dismay, horror, repulsion and disgust were depicted only too legibly on his handsome features. Reeling to him I sobbed as I sank at his feet and clinging to his knees:

"I told you the truth, Ralston! I told you the truth!"

"Yes, yes, I know," he cried, covering his face with his hands and dropping shudderingly into his seat.

"Ah, well, that was only the beginning of the end. He tried hard to do his duty, but the countess and Lulu were both there—the countess with her manipulations and Lulu with her wondrous beauty."

They took me to a madhouse; then followed a divorce, then a wedding in which Lulu figured as bride, then my break-a-hearted mother's death. The countess had won the game. The misalliance was at an end.

NOT WHOLLY WASTED
Rejected Youth (mortified and indignant)—You are not only cruel and heartless, but you are unfair! You have allowed me to dance attendance upon you for a whole year without any other thought than merely to amuse yourself with me!

The Young Woman—Oh, well, your time hasn't been altogether thrown away, Harry. I can give you a first-class letter of recommendation to any other girl you may happen to take a fancy to, you know.—Chicago Tribune.

"Did you have any new experiences during your visit to the city?" said the first farmer.

"No," replied Farmer No. 2. "I was lunched, as usual."—Detroit Free Press.

"TAKE YOUR GREASY EYES OFF ME"

A STORY OF REDHOT CADET LIFE AT ANNAPOLIS.

Staff Correspondence of The Telegram
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23—A world as if it were on another planet, is the world of the boy who is a member of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The searchlight of public attention has been turned upon this little cosmos by the recent "affair of honor" which resulted in the death of Midshipman James R. Branch. In a fist fight with Midshipman Minor Merriwether the young man received injuries from which he died. A court martial has been ordered.

He is asked to hang by his hands from the top of his lockers. After a few other athletic "stunts" the "plebe" is generally required to tell a funny story. At its conclusion his audience demand to know where the point is, and he is made to look for it. This means that he must rush about his room, looking under the bed and other places.

The "plebe" at the naval academy is likely to be called upon at any time by an upper classman to relate a story. On the street, on the way to class or drill, even at a dance the poor "plebe" is likely to be pounced upon with this demand.

There is a tradition of a stuttering "plebe" who was thus accosted, and who was ordered to be unusually prompt in his compliance. He started in as follows:

"I-I-I—was w-w-walking down the road a-little while ago—n-n-n I met met nupper classman, n-n-n he w-w-was dandy f-fellow, n-n-n he slapped me on th' back n' said 'Hello, old man' n-n-n I was s-s-s-xited n' happy I-I-I fell dead."

"Running" is the method by which the unwritten laws of the boy-world of the naval academy are enforced. In addition to "bracing," "heading," story telling and singing the letters of the alphabet to some familiar tune, the boys devise new and original ways of lowering a boy's dignity. There have also been some instances of some severe "running." At one time the race prejudice made itself evident against a negro student. He was taken in the night in his night attire, and was conveyed in a boat to an iron buoy in the bay, a quarter of a mile from shore. The victim was found the next morning quite exhausted, clinging to the buoy. He took the hint and resigned. No negro has ever graduated from the academy.

Rank and caste are the two lessons most firmly impressed on the boy who graduates from the United States naval academy. A hundred artificial rules are devised to impress the lesson of rank on the new arrival. For the purpose of this lesson a new word is added to his vocabulary, "rate." A boy "rates" or he does not "rate" certain things.

An upper classman "rates" the brick in the sidewalk which fill in the right angle which is made by another walk which crosses it in front of one of the principal buildings. Which, being interpreted, means that an upper classman, who does not "rate" these bricks, may not walk on them, but must make the turn sharply at right angles.

"Class" is impressed upon the naval academy boy in many ways. But nothing, perhaps, is calculated to impress him more than the fact that even his girls are subject to military censorship. The powers that be, of the academy, have a list of the young women of the town of Annapolis who are to be regarded as "reg" (an abbreviation for regular), and these young ladies may be taken to the dances. Others may not.

"Reg" is a term which applies to many things. The cadet's shoes must be "reg," a watch-fob is "reg." Tobacco and liquors are not only "non-reg," they are contraband.

The upper classman looks to it that the under classman obeys "reg." There are sudden informal inspections, followed by "running" if infractions are discovered.

It is in such a world of rank, class and tradition that the custom has grown up of conducting "affairs of honor" of the sort that resulted in the death of Midshipman Branch. Bad blood arises between two students, and it is the unwritten code of the academy that they shall settle their differences by a fist fight conducted with or without gloves. It must be practically to a finish.

The Merriwether-Branch affair was with two-ounce gloves, and lasted twenty-two rounds. Merriwether then went to the hospital, and Branch was given a hot shower bath and put to bed. His serious injuries were not apparent until the following morning.

Affairs of honor, like all the rest of the academy customs and practices, are countenanced by the academy authorities. They have grown up with the growth of the academy.

It is the freely-expressed opinion of old naval officers that such fights cannot and should not be stopped. Tragic endings like the one the other day, they say, are the exception, and do not necessarily indicate anything wrong in the system. Boys whose trade is fighting must learn fighting by fighting. That is the navy point of view.

It results in many more farmers coming to the city to do their trading than formerly and this number will be increased in the future.

In some parts of the state we have labor troubles brought about by an attempt to inaugurate the "open shop" system, but we have no fears of its spreading to Fort Worth. We feel certain the citizens of this city are too wise and have the welfare of the city at heart to much to ever attempt a system which will decrease the number of men employed, decrease wages and decrease the amount of money in circulation.

HARVEST FEAST HAS NO CALENDAR

Circles the World in Continuing Celebration

First Thanksgiving day was celebrated as a harvest feast. Since that time all celebrations of the day have partaken more or less of that nature, and the feast is essentially one of harvest.

The wonderful farming machinery of the present day, the binder and thrasher that have just aided in harvesting one of the biggest crops that these

Sam ever knew were as distant from the minds of the Pilgrim fathers as a visit to Mars is to the people of today.

and with the peril of attacks by the Indians ever present.

Without the harvest there would have been no Thanksgiving day. The nation which rejoices is primarily giving thanks for those rich fields which have made the United States the great source of food supply for the world.

On this basis the American people never had more cause to be grateful than just now. The figures show that the crop of the largest in the history of the country and the wheat crop is not far behind the phenomenal figures of 1902.

The computation for corn shows 2,707,517,900 bushels. This is 182,868,688 bushels more than in 1902. The wheat crop will drop fully a matter of thirty million bushels below the figures for 1902, while the cotton drops in production, prices are such as to more than offset any loss.

What this means can be better understood perhaps in cash figures. The value of the farming products of the United States will this year exceed four billion dollars.

Two causes have contributed to the ing since the days of the Pilgrim fathers—wonderful advance in American farmers down to the present time. The first was, of course, the natural richness of the soil, particularly in the west; the second, and almost equal in importance, is the marvelous development that American inventive genius has wrought in the science of farming.

Harvests By Hand
 Despite all the modern harvesting appliances, however, half the world is still gathering its crops according to the method of the olden days, for the sickle was father to the long scythe, and both are the ancestors of the binder.

While the binder is working in Dakota, the Russian peasant, the busque of the Spanish midlands and the millions of the United Kingdom are reaping as their forefathers did almost before the dawn of history.

Of course the American binder is making its way even in Russia, and every year more and more of them are sent to the land of the czar, but the greater part of the harvest is still taken from the soil in the old way.

OLD THANKSGIVING DAY HAS PASSED

National Holiday Has Had Varying History

Thanksgiving Day of this year differs widely from that Thanksgiving in New England when Governor Bradford after the first harvest commanded the Pilgrims to go out in parties of four that they "might after a more special manner rejoice together." But the spirit of the day still lives, and however we may recognize it there can be no doubt that it will always remain a distinctive American institution.

There are records of other Thanksgivings in the early Colonial days and during revolutionary times, but there was no national appointment until General Washington in 1789 at the request of congress issued a proclamation calling on all the people to gather in their accustomed places of worship and give thanks for the bounties of the year.

After another Thanksgiving in 1795 the custom was not recognized as a national event until President Madison recommended a Thanksgiving for 1815. It was not until President Lincoln issued his memorable Thanksgiving proclamation in 1863 that the custom was firmly grounded in the federal government, since which time no year has passed without the chief executive calling on the people to observe the day.

Popular in New England
 Meantime, the governors of the different states had made a Thanksgiving day, an American day, but it was in New England that the custom had gained its widest popularity. From the time when men braved the dangers of the forest they have not departed from the teachings of their ancestors, and in every land where two or three Americans are gathered on Thanksgiving there will be observed the joyous occasion.

The customs of today are merely the outgrowth of those which found their beginning when the boys and girls in New England skated on the first ice of the season or coasted down the hills with the first snow. Then the father was wont to gather his brood about the great family table, and after a fervent prayer for the blessings of the year, often so long as to enumerate many of the blessings, his attention was turned to the turkey, once the

ORGANIZED LABOR VIEWS SUCCESS

Thorough Understanding With Employers Feature of Year

BY C. W. WOODMAN.
 In the city of Fort Worth, the organized workmen have many reasons for rejoicing this Thanksgiving. While there is much to be done before we have perfected some of our organizations, yet we can say that much progress has been made during the past year. Our contracts this year have been better than the ones of the year before; we have many more friends among the business men than we had a year ago, and we feel that Fort Worth is organized on a little firmer foundation than any other city in the south. We say this because we believe, in fact, know, that our work is better understood by the employers of labor which makes the work of securing contracts or adjusting differences as they arise without strikes or lockouts.

Arbitration has been the key to the success of the labor movement in this city, and we propose to make this one of our principle features for all time. In other words, we do not propose to ask anything of any employer we would not be willing to submit to a board of arbitration selected from the citizens of Fort Worth.

Especially are we thankful this year for having brought about a perfect understanding between the city and farmer union man. This has brought about practical co-operation which means a great deal to the whole city.

Arbitration has been the key to the success of the labor movement in this city, and we propose to make this one of our principle features for all time.

KENTUCKY FOX HUNTERS ARE HAPPY.

A BUNCH OF HUNTERS READY FOR THE CHASE.
 Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22.—Fox hunting, one of the most popular sports in Kentucky, has been in full swing this season. This state is the annual meeting ground for devotees from all parts of the country, and at Bardonia, in Nelson county, the annual meet of the National Fox Hunting Association opened this year with the largest attendance in the history of the sport.

There are three fixed events at this meet and they are open to the world. They are the derby for puppies, the all-aged stake and the championship stake.

One of the most interesting features of the meet is the marking of the hounds on the night before the race. Each owner selects a letter or mark for his hound, and they are marked with paints of different colors, according to the color of the animal. At daybreak the hunters mount their horses and gallop away to the hunting grounds selected by the judges, who are usually natives of the place where the meet is being held. The hounds are sent ahead in a wagon and released after the spectators and owners have arrived, being given an even start. Soon a trail is struck and then it is that the love for the fox hunt shows itself in the average Kentuckian. The hunters and spectators gallop away after the hounds, and many a day they have been in the woods and fields until after sunset before finishing the chase. Daring riding is a feature, and no bluff is too steep or fence too high for these sportsmen and women.

The hunt is entirely unlike that in the East or in England, having the characteristics of the true Kentucky sport, the "go as you please" tinge that makes every one feel free and easy.

Leading spirits in these hunts are Colonel Roger Williams of Lexington, who assisted in the formation of the association and compiler of the registration books on the American foxhound; Colonel Hayden C. Trigg of Glasgow, an authority on the breeding of foxhounds; Colonel Ed Walker and Colonel Woods Walker, members of the old family of Walkers, that with Wash Manupia, furnished the foundation stock for the finest foxhounds the world has ever known; Colonel Dick Willis of Cynthiana; Colonel Jack Chinn of Harrodsburg, who delights in the fox chase as a recreation from his strenuous life in Kentucky politics; Colonel Leland Hathaway of Winchester, noted as a woodsman, who with his daughter, Miss Carrie Lee, has never missed a meeting of the national association, and scores of others, all descendants of the pioneer families of wealth and culture.

Many wealthy and handsome young Kentucky women take part in these hunts.

SLEPT AT WRONG TIME
 August Ziesing, the new president of the American Bridge Company, was talking about a business man who made a good many mistakes, says the Buffalo Enquirer.

"These mistakes," he said, "are always in the man's own favor. He profits by them. Indeed, though it is so with too many mistakes, errors and misadventures, isn't it?"

"I once knew a young draughtsman who sat bent over a drawing board from 9 till 5 daily, drawing, drawing, drawing."

"This was hard work. The young man needed a lot of sleep to keep him fit for it. But the baby—he had recently been married—robbed him of four out of five hours' rest every night."

"At 4 a. m., in the chill, gray dawn of an October morning, the poor young draughtsman, as he paced the floor with the shrieking baby in his arms, said to his wife wearily:

"I wonder why it is this child won't sleep at night?"

"I can't imagine," the young woman answered. "I haven't a bit of trouble keeping her asleep in the daytime!"

give the effect of a puffed yoke, while the trimming provides tapering lines. The sleeves are quite novel, including shaped cuffs which can be trimmed and treated in various ways. Valenciennes lace is a favorite of the season, but Cluny also is much seen and almost every sort is correct, while again if lace is not desired any one of the pretty bandings of the season will be found appropriate. In addition to serving for the separate blouse the waist will be found a most satisfactory one for the entire gown of cashmere, veiling and the like and of the simpler soft silks.

The waist is made with a fitted lining, which can be used or omitted as preferred, fronts and back. Both the fronts and back are laid in tiny tucks, the trimming being applied over space between the groups. The sleeves are moderately full in conformity with the latest degree of fashion. The closing is made invisibly at the back.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 4 1/2 yards 21, 3 1/2 yards 27 or 2 3/4 yards 44 inches wide, with 1/2 yards of insertion.

The pattern and 5208 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure.

WILL PUSH Y. M. C. A.
 Delay Caused by Lack of Materials Now Overcome

Work on the Y. M. C. A. building which has been delayed for some time on account of material will begin this week and be pushed as rapidly as possible.
 It was expected by contractor and directors that the work on the building would have reached the third story before this. The fact that all the iron and steel mills are behind with orders is responsible for the delay, but con-

PROS ISSUE CIRCULAR

Considerable material is now on the ground and no more delays are expected.
 The directors of the association have suggested a plan which has been used elsewhere in securing building funds for associations—the memorial plan.
 An individual will pay for a certain part of the building, which can be named by the giver. An example of this is Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where Mr. Sultor, the pork packer, instructed the association to put in the best bath outfit possible and send the bills to him. He did this in memory of his son and the "Sultor Baths" are now a splendid feature of that building.
 The directors hope that some one in Fort Worth will pay for the top story, or dormitory floor, of the building; some one else the bath outfit, another the gymnasium and another the rooms for small boys.
 The secretary of the association has prepared figures as to the cost of the various divisions.

Plea For Poll Tax Payment Issued by Committee

H. H. Haisell, C. C. Rankin, C. E. Turner, H. M. Durrett and H. A. Ivy, the executive committee of the Texas Local Option Association, have issued the following appeal for poll tax payments.

"It is of the utmost consequence that every friend of good government in Texas should qualify as a citizen by paying his poll tax before Feb. 1, 1906, and be prepared to cast his ballot for the best interests of a humanity, home and native land, as occasion may arise. Let not the friends of temperance and sobriety in Texas fancy that the battle with the rum power is ended. In the language of the immortal Paul Jones, 'We have just begun to fight.' We may rest assured the enemies of local option are now seeking the pro-capture next year and are providing voting credentials for every man whose vote they can control.
 "Forewarned is fore-armed." Let every man in Texas who believes that the best interests of society, of government and of humanity at large, would be promoted by the suppression of the beverage liquor traffic, with its gambling adjunct and scarlet annex, see that his poll tax is paid in time to make him a part of the government, so that when the fight is brought on he can join in resisting the efforts of the rum power to recapture the territory now free from its ruinous domination. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom from the tyranny of rum-corrupted politics. See that your own poll tax is paid and pass the word along the line to other patriotic law-loving citizens."

OUR LAY SERMON

The girl who marries a man of dissolute habits with the idea that she can effect his reformation, is laying up for herself a veritable treasure house of anguish and repentance. And yet there are thousands of the best girls in America who are annually essaying this impossible task.

It may be set down as an incontrovertible fact that the young man who has not the moral stamina to reform himself before seeking to drag the object of his affections down to his level is a hopeless case and reformation is impossible. The man who is so leashed as to seek to win a trusting young woman's heart while a devotee of every form of debauchery and dissipation is not the man who will try honestly to do a man's part after he has accomplished his object.

These are pretty strong assertions, but they are borne out by actual facts to be seen on every side of us daily. And these conditions are confined to no particular section of our country. A writer in the New York Journal says:

A short time ago a girl came to me for advice, saying that she was deeply in love with a man and he with her. She wanted to know if she should marry him.

He was a great lover of liquor and often drank to excess.

She felt and she said that he hadn't strength to resist the temptation, but he added that with her to strengthen him he could resist any temptation.

Without her he couldn't even control this appetite for drink. Indeed he threatened, if she threw him over, he would go straight to the dogs.

That was his threat; that was the way he talked to the woman he loved.

Could anything have been more selfish?

Still that girl loved him and was even thinking of sacrificing her life to him. What a sacrifice it would have been.

You, girls, doubtless think me cold and hard-hearted to use such strong terms, but what else would it have been but a useless sacrifice?

Has a man who hadn't the strength or courage to reform before marriage ever been known to do it afterward?

Has a man who admits that he hasn't the strength to turn over a new leaf before marriage turned it ever as soon as he had spoken the few words of the marriage service?

There is no doubt that many men have been made better able to resist temptation by the consciousness of the fact that a good woman loved him.

Don't think I am making light of the influence of women upon men, for of course it is one of the most powerful influences in the world.

But what I do say is that a woman can't make a greater mistake than to marry a man to reform him.

If he hasn't cared enough for her to reform before marriage, the chances are he will not do it afterward, and she will be less lenient after marriage than before.

There are a thousand ways a woman can help a man if he is weak and faltering, but it isn't necessary to marry him.

Most people marry for happiness, and the marriage that is to lead to happiness must be founded on respect.

Can a woman respect a man who she feels is weaker than herself? Doesn't she naturally look down upon one who she sees is powerless to stand alone?

She may feel sorry for him and be only too glad to help him.

But she should never marry a man simply because she feels sorry for him; that kind of sorrow soon grows into contempt after the marriage contract is signed.

Before marriage that sort of sorrow may be made to flow into love if the object be at all worthy.

If a man has inherited a taste for drink and once or twice allowed that taste to get the upper hand, the fact that some woman believes in him and believes that he can overcome that taste will be the greatest help to him.

Her belief in him may be the means of his getting the better of his weakness and in time gaining absolute control of himself.

The woman who wouldn't respect such a man would be a fool indeed, but to expect happiness with a man you are trying to reform is the height of foolishness.

In marriage there must be mutual respect, and a woman can't respect a man if she looks down upon him.

There is no harm, and often much good comes from women trying to strengthen and uplift the men they know. But when it comes to marriage, leave reform work out, and marry a man whom you can swear with your whole heart, mind and soul to love, honor and obey.

This thing of attempting the reformation of a dissolute character is a big undertaking under any circumstances, and it is wholly unnecessary for any sensible woman to sacrifice her hope of happiness for the sake of an object that is not worthy. The girl who is considering such a step should pause and view the failures that adorn every avenue of human society in her immediate vicinity. They tell the story of those who have gone before her. They tell of the futility of woman's sacrifice.

If you feel a genuine interest in the young man

'LABOR IS A COMMODITY'

In many places there are factories if they ever knew how to play, they dust. He had a pain in his chest and childhood, yet still he permit the ruin which turn out a mixed product. Their principal product so far as the broad interests of the country are concerned consists of human beings stunted by too early toil, with minds made fertile for energy and misrule, and their bodies prepared for disease and early death. The other products of these factories are cotton and glass, but these things are only incidental, and boys who are from 10 to 12 years old, but may be worth so many cents a day by comparison unimportant. At the lowest estimate 29,999 children, all of whom are less than 12 years of age, school work in American factories.

Those who see the wonders of the new industrial south also see little children going to the factories at 6 o'clock in the morning and many of them not returning until 8 at night. They are for the most part patient little things, with pinched faces and dull, quiet eyes.

They only know how coughed a good deal. He was patient, and his employer said he was premature. To save the children will help us to better appreciate the sacredness which attaches to every human being. When this is conceded with regard to the child it will be easier to apply the same reasoning to the adult worker, and he, too, will be looked upon as a commodity, a mere instrument for dollar-making.

When we have solved the child labor problem, other labor problems will be easier.

Meanwhile, the most pressing labor question of all is in regard to the 20,000,000 and more children under 12 years of age, who every week day, in free America, work from twelve to fourteen hours or more.

So long as greed wrings toil from childhood our title to civilization is incomplete.

THE TEACHER LIKED PORK

A certain man, now prominently identified with the state board of education, began his career as a school teacher in the backwoods of New England. His pay was small, and sometimes he was compelled to find his own lodging and at the same time act in the capacity of cook. During such a period it was customary for the good people of the place to furnish him the necessities of life. There was one close-fisted farmer, however, who though he had several children attending the school, had never done anything for the teacher's support.

One day the teacher noticed a son of this particular farmer on a road. Greeting him kindly he encouraged the lad to speak—

"I say, Mr. —," broke in the boy, "do you like pork?"

Anticipating a donation from the old delinquent, the teacher responded: "Of course, Johnny, why do you ask me that?"

"Oh, pa is going to have a killing pretty soon and wanted to know," responded the youngster.

Several days passed and again the teacher met the little fellow under similar circumstances. Remembering the donation which had not as yet appeared, he said:

"Well, Johnny, how about the pork your pa was going to give me?"

"Oh," replied Johnny, "that pig got well."

SECRETARY BONA PARTE IS NOT IN FAVOR OF ANY BIG ADDITIONS TO THE AMERICAN NAVY, AND THE PREDICTION IS MADE THAT THIS WILL RESULT IN A RUPTURE BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT AND HIMSELF. BUT SUCH A THING IS HARDLY POSSIBLE. THE PRESIDENT IS BIG ENOUGH AND BROAD ENOUGH TO ADMIRE MEN WHO HAVE THE COURAGE TO STAND UP FOR THEIR HONEST CONVICTIONS.

Texas is attracting a great deal of desirable immigration this fall and winter, but it is not coming fast enough. Every citizen of the state should do all in his power to induce friends and acquaintances in the older states to come out and cast their lots with us while lands are so cheap and the time is so generally propitious.

Captain Frantz, the young rough rider who is to be governor of Oklahoma next year, is very modest in his demeanor, and is said to be very much of an enigma to the Oklahoma politicians. He refuses to do any talking until after his inauguration, and is consequently causing a great deal of guessing.

If the Elkins law granted authority to correct railway abuses, as is now being claimed for that measure, there would be no necessity for strengthening the interstate commerce law. But it is too well known that the Elkins measure not only intended to deprive the commission of power, but has actually accomplished that result.

Speaker Cannon denies he has any presidential aspirations, and it can be readily recalled that William Jennings Bryan recently made some remarks that have been construed into the same kind of a declaration. It is a little bit early yet for men to announce that kind of a candidacy.

H. J. Hagerman of Roswell is to be the next governor of New Mexico, and this will cause a prolonged howl to go up from many of the old-time territory politicians, some of whom have been waiting for a quarter of a century for the lightning to strike them.

President Roosevelt will soon have the great American congress on his hands, and there are a whole lot of people who are already wondering what he is going to do with it.

VERSES THAT RING

THE AVERAGE MAN

The average man is the man of the mill,
The man of the valley or the man of the hill,
The man at the throttle, the man at the plow—
The man with the sweat of his toil on his brow,
Who brings into being the dreams of the few,
Who works for himself, and for me, and for you,
There is not a purpose, a project or plan,
But rests on the strength of the average man.

The growth of a city, the might of a land,
Depend on the fruit of the toil of his hand;
The road, or the wall, or the mill, or the mart,
Call daily to him that he furnish his part;
The pride of the great, and the hope of the low,
The toll of the tide as it ebbs to and fro,
The reach of the rails and the countries they span,
Tell what is the trust in the average man.

The man who, perchance, thinks he labors alone,
The man who stands out between heaven and throne,
The man who gives freely his brain and his brow,
Is the man that the world has been built upon,
The clang of the hammer, the sweep of the saw,
The flash of the forge—they have strengthened the law,
They have rebuilt the realm that the wars overran,
They have shown us the worth of the average man.

So here's to the average man—to the one
Who has labored unknown on the task he has done,
Who has met as they came all the problems of life,
Who has helped us to win in the stress and the strife.

He has bent to his toil, thinking neither of fame
Nor of tribute, nor honor, nor prize, nor acclaim—
In the forefront of progress, since progress began,
Here's a health and a hail to the average man!

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

The egotistic, conceited man is the subject of many jokes and the object of much ridicule from almost every one, but after all is not such a set generally happy? This conceit makes a kind of protection against criticism and everything else of his nature, and consequently nothing disturbs the even tenor of his way, so as a matter of course he goes on his way rejoicing.—Terrell Transcript.

All men are more or less egotistical and it is a very commendable failing when not carried to an extreme. The world soon learns to accept a man very nearly at his own valuation.

Some of the finest pecan trees to be found anywhere in the state are located on the small streams in and near Austin. These in the vicinity of the old Wheeler Grove and east of there are particularly fine, but their yield of nuts is extremely small considering the size and age of the trees, because for years they have been thrashed by vandals who gather the nuts before the kernel is fully formed in the shell. While the nuts are still milky, small boys appear on the scene with clubs and sacks and gather all the nuts they can possibly reach.—Austin News-Tribune.

The same conditions prevail around Fort Worth and elsewhere in the state. The pecan trees are nearly all being ruined by the ruthless manner in which they are treated every year by those who spoil them of their product before it has matured.

The Current Issue of Austin has a good suggestion. It says that Dallas, San Antonio and Houston have great fall events, and that Fort Worth should come through with a spring event, and suggest a revival of the Spring Palace. It is a good suggestion. Fort Worth is coming to the front as one of the best cities in the South, and her people owe it to themselves to give a big show and attract people there to see what Fort Worth is doing. It is up to you, Fort Worth.—Sherman Register.

Fort Worth will measure up to every legitimate requirement in the matter of the Fat Stock Show. Preparations are being made that insure the very best results, and the public can rely upon the event being fully up to the usual Fort Worth standard.

FACTORY CLUB GIVES THANKS

Industrial Growth of the City Makes Seasonable Review

Thanksgiving day of this year is truly a day of Thanksgiving to the Home Factory and Industrial Association with the renewed interest that is now being taken by the people of Fort Worth in their factories and industries. During the past year many of those that were before indifferent to the interests of the city that could be advanced by home industries have awakened to the fact that there is good that can be done.

"During the past year every industry and factory, without a single exception, has increased its business at least 50 per cent," said Judge N. B. Moore, secretary of the Home Factory and Industrial Association. "In some cases the increase has gone over the 100 per cent mark. Orders are now exceeding the supply all over the city in the factories and industries.

"The people are receiving the support of the people to a far greater extent than in the past. The disposition to maintain and increase industrial plants in this city is growing greater every day, and it is a fine thing for the city of Fort Worth, showing indifference to the growth of the city and its industries is fast disappearing, and an earnest interest now prevails. Opportunities for investment of capital which will now give remunerative returns on the investment have never been as good as they now are.

"A cabinet factory added to the city's industries in the week of Thanksgiving is especially noted.

"The fact that the city is growing rapidly and substantially is another thing that the Factory Club has for which to be thankful. The growth is also marked in educational facilities, with a wide interest in the schools and institutions learning in the city.

The association is also thankful for its record in helping make a deserving, capable man to secure a position. Hardly a day goes past that some man is not given an opportunity to earn a living by being supplied a position that is suited to his ability.

Future prospects also contain an outlook for which the organization is thankful. Among the plants that are seeking location in this city are a skirt factory, which is being proposed by local business men, and which is almost sure to be carried through within a short time, as the chances for good returns are excellent in that line; two brick factories that will come to this city sure if the clays that are to be sent to them prove to have the properties to insure a good brick; a new bank for the lower part of Main street, which is now being organized with Fort Worth merchants owning nearly all of the stock; a new ice plant, a packing house of no mean size which Rosenthal & Son of Dallas expect to build here, and a trunk factory.

The last named industry is desirous of coming to this city, if it can get the proper accommodations. The desire is for a building of which two or three floors can be used, three being more desired than two. The ground floor will be used as a show room, and must have a depth of about 100 feet, while the upper floors will be used for manufacturing purposes. The factory will make trunks and leather goods, not including harness. The site desired must be on Main street, not above Fifth street, or in Houston street, between Tenth and Fifth streets.

GOOD YEAR FOR ROSEN HEIGHTS

Improvements and Prospects Mark Era of Prosperity

Rosen Heights has several things for which it is especially thankful. The greatest among these is, of course, the growth in its population. It is impossible to say what the exact population of the suburb is at the present time, owing to the rapid increase that has gone on in the last year, but some idea may be given from the increase in the number of school children, which has bounded from about 200 last year to over 400 this year.

Building is going on as rapidly as ever, and new houses are being started every day. Many of the houses are fine residences, and it grows more evident all the time that Rosen Heights is destined to be a place of residences. There are over 400 houses there now.

Among the most notable additions to Rosen Heights lately are the new public school and the new Catholic school, which is now about finished and will be dedicated soon. The public school has added largely to the growth and has almost given too great an impetus to the newcomers, as at the present rate of increase the school will soon be all too small. There are now about 125 pupils in the building, and they are under the charge of six competent teachers.

The new Catholic school has been erected at a cost of about $12,000, and is a thoroughly equipped building. It is a two and a half story brick structure and also has a basement. There are six class rooms besides music rooms. The building is equipped with dormitories and dining rooms for the sisters and the pupils, and is thoroughly up to date.

Another thing that will add greatly to Rosen Heights is the new pavilion and lake that will soon be started there. The lake is to be some fifteen acres in extent and will be situated near the power house. A pavilion for the performance of high class plays and vaudeville also will be built that will be one of the finest in the state. It will be in the form of a horseshoe, and will be used for a theater only as another building will be erected as a dance pavilion.

Rosen Heights will also have the chance to vote on the question of local option. The women of the place have been carrying on an active campaign against the liquor question and the matter will be put to a vote on Dec. 3.

The matter of annexation with Fort Worth has come up a number of times and has been defeated, the people of Rosen Heights preferring to remain as a separate corporation. The matter of a separate municipality is now being urged, and an election will no doubt soon be held.

NEW CAR LINE CAUSES THANKS

Citizens of Arlington Heights Appreciate Year's Advance

Several hundred feet above the din and roar of one of the busiest cities of 60,000 inhabitants in the United States, Arlington Heights will doubtless celebrate Thanksgiving day, 1908, in a happier frame of mind as a whole than for several years past. Naturally situated for a beautiful and popular residence suburb, Arlington Heights is in many ways blessed by nature, the none being more remarkable than the extensive panoramic view of the city of Fort Worth and surrounding country hardly to be obtained to such a degree of perfection at any other point in this vicinity.

Among the many things for which the people of Arlington Heights have to be thankful this year not the least is the efforts at advancement of the Arlington Heights Street Railway Company in its building and equipping the line recently granted a franchise over the streets of Fort Worth, and which will, in the near future, connect them more directly with the city. In the grading and graveling the streets in Arlington Heights and Arlington Boulevard, which extends to Fort Worth, more than a half million dollars has been spent during the past eighteen months, the greater part having been expended within the past year, including an electric lighting system, a water system having seven miles of water mains, improving Lake Como and preparations for the erection of a magnificent pavilion.

With the completion of its line into Fort Worth and the equipping of the same, the Arlington Heights Street Railway Company proposes to run a car every twenty minutes, the ride into the city taking about fifteen minutes, according to the calculations of the officials of the city.

Recently real estate has taken a different turn in Arlington Heights. People who have been waiting to buy lots upon which to erect homes in that suburb find that land is offered for sale which was not in the market several months ago. The future of the place now seems to begin to take definite form and lots are being sold a large number of people.

BEATS HORSE SHOW DRIVING

Major G. L. Lillie (Pawnee Bill) Showing a Party of Easterners His Fine Herd of Bison at Pawnee, Okla.

The talk turned from the bison to stage coaching, and many instances of wonderful driving, some real and some hyperbolic, were related.

"There is a story," he said, "of One-Eyed Pete McCoy. It is story is true the four-in-hand drivers of the east—the Alfred Vanderbilts and James Hydes and Lorillard Ronaldses—are only practicing a decayed and degenerate form of coaching. Before the next horse show they had better come out west and learn to drive.

"One-Eyed Pete drove a Dakota stage coach that made a circuit of Deadwood, Carbonate, Spearfish and Bear Gulch. He was notorious for his fast and daring and yet skillful driving. He'd have galloped, I guess, across a tightrope.

"They say that Pete tore into Carbonate one day on his usual dead run. Like an avalanche the coach clattered up to the hotel door. There, suddenly, it stopped, and one of the horses fell—stone dead.

"A very sudden death," said a bystander.

"Sudden? Not at all," said One-Eyed Pete. "That horse died at the top of the hill nine mile down hill; but I wa'n't goin' to let him back till I got to the regular stoppin' place."

This laxative makes strength

Most physics you have taken no doubt have left you weak. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an exception, because, while it is a laxative, it is at the same time one of the greatest stomach tonics ever compounded.

A physic which leaves you weak is dangerous, because it soon becomes necessary for you to take a drug of some kind before the bowels can be induced to act properly.

When this condition is reached, the patient has lost his strength and may become the victim of all sorts of stomach disorders.

contains a great deal of pepsin, as its name indicates, and so strengthens the weakest stomach that it can properly and voluntarily perform all its functions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is pleasant to take and it never causes griping or pains of any sort, and in all cases of stomach disorder is undoubtedly the finest preparation known.

CITY BUSINESS HAS BEEN GOOD

Board of Trade Review Shows Ground for Thanks

BY CAPT. B. B. PADDOCK.

From a business standpoint Fort Worth has much to be thankful for. The past year has been one of unprecedented growth and development. A large number of business houses have been erected, and every one found a tenant as soon as ready for occupancy, and all are doing as well as could be desired.

There have been fewer failures and financial embarrassments than in any place of its size in the country. The banks have increased their deposits beyond their most sanguine expectations, and the enlargement in clearings shows a healthful increase in business.

The future is so bright and so full of promise; that the country surrounding the city, and from which it draws its sustenance, is so prosperous, its development with such rapidity and is destined at no distant day to produce untold wealth which will aid in the development and upbuilding of the city.

Fort Worth has cause to be thankful that its people are all happy and prosperous, united and enthusiastic in all matters that pertain to the growth of the city; that there are no local dis-

THANKS DUE FOR HEALTH OF CITY

Fort Worth Escapes Threatened Epidemics of Year

Among the things that Fort Worth has to be thankful for is the escape from the epidemic of diphtheria that came near spreading over the city within the last few months.

During the months of September, October and November, there were over a hundred cases of diphtheria in the city, which is usually counted more than enough to cause an epidemic, but the disease has been controlled to a great extent and a still larger number of cases prevented by the vigorous methods adopted.

During the three months, with the large number of cases of diphtheria reported, there have been only six deaths, a remarkable record, and a thing of itself worthy of special thanksgiving.

Among other matters accomplished during the year was the conduct of a weed crusade. During the summer a number of men have been engaged in cutting down all the weeds in the central part of the city, which added greatly to the sanitary conditions. The weeds produce a pollen that is injurious and is especially liable to produce hay fever. The odor of the decaying weeds late in the fall is also unhealthy. All weeds that were cut down were hauled away and burned, and is still being carried on in one or two clear alleys and streets. The health department has warned a large number of owners of property that the alleys needed cleaning, and in almost all cases the warning has been heeded. A record has been kept of all such warnings in order to watch carefully all continued cases which are not kept clean.

The death rate in Fort Worth has been almost as low as Pueblo and Colorado City, two noted health resorts. The percentage of deaths here has been low, and during the past few months has averaged about eight to 1,000 inhabitants per year.

Poor of the city may be thankful for the charity work that is carried on by the city in taking charge of patients ill or injured that are unable to afford the costs of the treatment. This city provides for cases of this kind liberally. In every case the patient is given the best of care. The number of patients that are treated by the city in the hospital and outside average between 200 and 500 annually, and the city pays for everything in their cases, including medicine and all other expenses. There were thirty-seven patients taken care of in the hospital under the direction of the city during the month of Octo-

SYNOPSIS OF THE P. RECEDING CHAPTERS

Constantine Schuabe, a millionaire member of the English house of commons brilliant intellectually, of commanding figure, tremendous energy and irrepressible moral, is an infidel who has conceived a fierce and active hatred of Christ and his religion. Robert Llewellyn, an official of the British Museum, a man of great learning, considered the world's greatest authority on biblical antiquities, is a sensualist who neglects his wife to be in the smiles of Gertrude Hunt, a beautiful dancing girl. He lavishes upon her all the luxuries his income will provide, and more. He becomes hopelessly indebted to Schuabe, who, by exacting the debt and paying him an enormous sum, induces Llewellyn to conspire with him to bring about the downfall of Christianity. Basil Gortre, a curate, who is engaged to Helena, daughter of Ambrose Byars, is strongly impressed with the belief that the conspiracy exists, but knows nothing of its nature. He has just taken a charge in London and has rooms in Lincolnshire Inn with his wife and a journalist, Gertrude Hunt bears him a message, desiring to become a Christian, and sends for Gortre. He goes to her rooms, where Llewellyn, returning unexpectedly from his mission to Palestine, finds them together, but is forced to leave by the muscular preacher.

Harold Spence, Gortre's journalist friend, receives a letter from Cyril Hands, the agent of the Palestine Exploration Fund, stating that he has just excavated a tomb, on the wall of which was an inscription purporting to have been written by Joseph of Arimathea, confessing that Jesus never rose from the dead, but was secretly buried. His paper, the London Wire, publishes the news in a guarded way, and sends Spence to Palestine to verify it. The morning of the publication finds Schuabe and other prominent atheists as guests of Sir Michael Manichee.

"What that verdict will be, seems, it must be boldly said and faced, almost a foregone conclusion. We feel that we should be lacking in our duty to our readers were we to withhold from them certain facts. Not unnaturally His Grace the Archbishop and many of his advisers have wished the press to preserve a complete silence, to the result of the conference, a silence which should continue until the report of the International Committee of Investigation is published. We have endeavored to preserve a reticence for two days, but at this juncture it becomes our duty to inform the people of England what we know. And we do not take this step without careful consideration.

"We have informed the Prime Minister of our intention, and may state that despite the opposition of the Church Party, Lord — is in sympathy with it.

"Briefly, then, Sir Robert Llewellyn, the acknowledged leader of archeological research, has given it as his opinion that Mr. Hands' discovery must be genuine. Sir Robert alone has had the courage to speak out bravely, though he did so with manifest emotion and reluctance. The other members of the conference have refused to express an opinion, though of at least three from among their number there can be little doubt that they concur with Sir Robert's view.

"Private telegrams, which we have hitherto refrained from publishing, show that the cultured people of Germany, from the Emperor downward, are persuaded that the story of Jesus of Nazareth has at last been told. Many of the most eminent public men of France agree with this view. These are statements borne out by the evidence of our correspondents in foreign capitals who have secured a series of interviews with those who represent public opinion of the expert kind.

"The Roman Church, on the other hand, with that supreme isolation and historic indifference to all that helps the cause of Progress and Truth, has not only loftily declined to recognize the fact that any discovery has been made at all, but has not only absolutely declined to be represented at Jerusalem, but has issued a proclamation forbidding Roman Catholics to think of or discuss the events which are shaking the fabric of Christendom.

"In saying as much as we have already said, in placing our melancholy conviction on record in this way, we lay ourselves open to the charge of prejudicing the most important decision affecting the welfare of mankind that any body of men have ever been called upon to make. Not even the startling and overwhelming mass of support we have received would have led us to do this were it not our conviction that it is the wisest course to pursue in regard to what we feel almost certain will happen in the future. It seems far better to prepare the minds of Christian English men and women for the terrible shock that they will have to endure by a more gradual system of disclosure than would be possible were we to adopt the suggestion of the bishops and keep silent.

"And now, in the concluding portion of this article, we must briefly consider what the news that it has been our responsible and painful duty to give first to the world will mean to England.

"We fear that the mental anguish of countless thousands must for a time cloud the life of our country as it has never been clouded and darkened before. The proof that the Divinity of the Greatest and Wisest Teacher the world has ever known, or ever will know, is but a symbolic fable, will for a time overwhelm the world. A great upheaval of English society is beginning. Old and venerated institutions will be swept away, minds fed upon the Christian theory from youth, instilled with all its hereditary tradition, will be for awhile as men groping in the dark. But the light will come after this great tempest, and it will be a broader, finer, more steadfast light than before, because founded on, and springing from, Eternal Truth. The mission of beneficent illusion is over. Error will yet linger for a generation or two. That much is certain. There will be more who will base their objections to the New Revelation upon the unassailable and ultimate reality of personal spiritual experience, forgetting the psychological influences of hereditary training, which have alone produced these experiences. But, alas! the knell of the old and beautiful superstitions is ringing. The Doom is begun. The Judge is set, who shall stay it? Let us rather turn from the saddening spectacle of a fallen creed and rejoice that the infinite and eternal energy men have called God—Jah-veh, Theos—that mysterious law of Progress and evolution, is about to reveal man to himself more than ever completely in its destruction of an imagined revelation.

"During the afternoon preceding the publication of the above article, the three principal proprietors had met at the offices of the paper and had held a long conference with Mr. Ommaney, the editor.

"It had been decided, as a matter of policy and in order to maintain the leading position already given to the paper by the first publication of Hands' dispatch that a strong and definite line should be taken at once.

"The other great journals were already showing signs of a cautious 'trimming' policy, which would allow them to take up any necessary attitude events might dictate. They feared to be explicit, to speak out. So they would lose the greater glory.

"Once more commercial and political influences were at work, as they had been two thousand years before. The little group of Jewish millionaires, who sat in Ommaney's room had their prototypes in the times of Christ's Passion. Men of the modern world were once more enacting the awful drama of the Crucifixion.

Constantine Schuabe was among the group; his words had more weight than any others. The largest holding in the paper was his. The tentacles of this man were far-reaching and strong.

"For my part, gentlemen," Ommaney said, "I am entirely with Mr. Schuabe. I agree with him that we should at once take the boldest possible attitude. Sir Robert's opinion before he left was conclusive. We shall therefore publish a leader tomorrow taking up our standpoint. We will have it quite plain and simple. Strong and simple, but with no subtleties to puzzle and obscure the ordinary reader. It's no use to touch on history or metaphysics or anything but pure simplicity."

"Then, Mr. Ommaney," Schuabe had said, "since we are exactly agreed on the best thing to do, and since these other gentlemen are prepared to leave the thing in our hands, if you will allow me I will write the leading article myself."

CHAPTER VI.

Harness the Horses; and Get Up, Ye Horsemen, and Stand Forth With Your Helmets; Furnish the Spears, and Put on the Brigandines.—Jer. XLVI:4.

Father Ripon sat alone in his study at the Clergy House of St. Mary's. The room was quite silent, save for the occasional dropping of a coal upon the hearth, where a bright, clear fire glowed.

Three walls of the room were lined with books. There was no carpet on the floor; the bare boards showed, except for a strip of worn matting in front of the little cheap brass fender. Over the mantel a great crucifix hung on the bare wall, painted or rather washed with dark red color.

The few chairs which stood about were all old-fashioned and rather uncomfortable. A great writing table was covered with papers and books. Two candles stood upon it and gave light to the room. The only other piece of furniture was a deal praying stool, with a Bible and prayer book upon the ledge.

A rugged, ascetic place, four walls to work and pray in, with just the necessary tools and no more. Yet there was no affectation of asceticism, the effort was not comfort or decoration in any way. For example, there was one chair with college arms painted on an oak blade, leaning against the wall, a memory of old days when Father Ripon had rowed four and his boat at Oxford had got to the head of the river one Eight's week. The oak looked as if it were awaiting to be properly hung on the wall as a decorative trophy, which indeed it was. But it had been waiting for seven years. The priest never had time to nail it up. He did not despise comfort or decoration, but he had no time for it. He simply hadn't the time for it himself. That was all. He was always promising himself to put up—for example—a pair of crimson curtains a sister had sent him months back. But whenever he really determined to get them out and hang them, some sudden call came and he had to rush out and save a soul.

Father Ripon looked ill and worn. A pamphlet, a long, thin book bound in blue paper, with the Royal Arms on the top of the folio, lay upon the table. It was the report of the committee of investigation, and the whole world was ringing with it.

The report had now appeared for two days. The priest took up The Tower, a weekly paper, the official organ, not of the pious Evangelical party within the church, but of the ultra-Protestant.

His hand shook with anger and disgust as he read, for the third time, the leading article printed in large type, with wider spaces than usual between the lines:

"We have hitherto refrained from any comment on the marvelous discovery in Jerusalem, being content simply to record the progress of the investigations, which have at last satisfied us that a genuine discovery has been made.

"In the daily special issues of the organs of the sacerdotal party we find much more freedom of expression. They have run the whole gamut—Disbelief, Doubt, Desolation, Detraction, Demoralization and Dismay. Rome and Ritualism have received a shock which demolishes and destroys the very foundation of their sinful system.

which the Saviour bore our sins upon the Cross is exposed for adoration on the so-called altar."

"As Matthew Arnold put it, on the true grave of Jesus 'Syrian stars look down,' but the risen Christ, glorious in His Spiritual Body, reigns over the hearts of his true followers, and we look forward in faith to our departure from the earthly tabernacle, which is dissolved day by day, knowing that we also have a spiritual house not made with hands eternal in the heavens."

As he read the clever trimming article and marked the bitterness of its tone, the priest's face grew red with anger and contempt.

This facile acceptance of the Great Horror, this insolent conversion of it to party ends, this flimsy pretense of reconciling statements, which, if true, made Christianity a thing of naught, to a novel and trumped-up system of adherence to it, filled him with bitter antagonism.

But, useful as the article was as showing the turn many men's minds were taking, there was no time to trouble about it now.

Tomorrow the great meeting of those who still believed Christ died and rose again from the dead was to be held.

The terrible "Report" had been issued. During the forty hours of its existence everything was already beginning to crumble away. Tomorrow the Church Militant must speak to the world.

It was said, moreover, that the great wave of infidelity and mockery which was sweeping hourly over the country would culminate in a great riot tomorrow.

Everything seemed dark, black, hopeless.

He picked up the Report once more to study it, as he had done fifty times that day.

But before he opened it he knelt in prayer.

As he prayed, so sweet and certain an assurance came to him, he seemed so very near to the Lord, that doubt and gloom fled before that Presence. What were logic, proofs of stone-work, the reports of archeologists, to this?

Here in this lonely chamber Christ was, and spoke with His servant, bidding him be of good comfort.

With bright eyes, full of the glow of one who walks with God, the priest opened the pamphlet once more.

CHAPTER VII.

The Hour of Crisis

Although, during the first days of the Darkness, hundreds of thousands of Christian men and women were chilled almost to spiritual death, and although the lamp of Faith was flickering very low, it was not in London that the far-reaching effects of the discovery at Jerusalem were most immediately apparent.

In that great city there is an outward indifference, bred of a million different interests, which has something akin to the supreme indifference of Nature. The many voices never blend into one, so that the ear may hear them in a single mighty shout.

But in the grimmer North public opinion is heard more readily, and is more quickly visible. In the great centers of executive toil the vital truths of religion seem to enter more insistently into the lives of men and women whose environment presents them with fewer distractions than elsewhere. Often indeed, this interest is a political interest rather than a deeply Christian one, a matter of controversy rather than feeling. Certain it is that all questions affecting religious beliefs loom large and have a real importance in the cities of the North.

It was Wednesday evening at Walktown.

Mr. Byars was reading the service. The huge, ugly church was lit with rows of gas-jets, arranged in coronae painted a drab green. But the priest's voice, strained and worn, echoed sadly and with a melancholy cadence through the great barn-like place. Two or three girls, a couple of men, and half a dozen boys made up the choir, which had dwindled to less than a fifth of its usual size. The organ was silent.

Right down the church, those in the chancel saw row upon row of cushioned empty seats. Here and there a small group of people broke the chilling monotony of line, but the worshippers were very few. In the galleries an occasional couple, almost secure from observation, whispered to each other. The church was warm, the seats not uncomfortable; it was better to flit here than in the cold, frost-bound streets.

Never had Evensong been so cheerless and gloomy, even in that vast, unlovely building. There was no sermon. The vicar was suffering under such obvious strain, he looked so worn and ill, that even this lifeless congregation seemed to feel it a relief when the Blessing was said and it was free to shuffle out into the promenade of the streets.

The harsh trumpeting of Mr. Philimon, the vestry clerk's final "Amen," was almost jubilant.

As Mr. Byars walked home he saw that the three great Unitarian chapels which he had to pass en route were blazing with light. Policemen were standing at the doors to prevent the entrance of any more people into the overcrowded buildings. A tremendous and energy pulsated within these buildings. Glancing back, with a bitter sigh, the vicar saw that the lights in St. Thomas were already extinguished, and the tower, in which the illuminated clock glowed sullenly, rose stark and cold into the dark winter sky.

The last chapel of all, the Pembroke Road Chapel, had a row of finely appointed carriages waiting outside the doors. The horses were covered with cloths, the grooms and coachmen wore furs, and the breaths of men and beasts alike poured out in streams of blue vapor. These men stamped up and down the gravel sweep in front of the chapel and swung their arms in order to keep warm.

On each side of the great polished mahogany doors were large placards printed in black and red, vividly illuminated by electric arc lights. These announced that on that night Mr. Constantine Schuabe, M. P., would lecture on the recent discovery in Jerusalem. The title of the lecture, in starting black type, seemed to Mr. Byars as if it possessed an almost physical power. It struck him like a blow.

THE DOWNFALL OF CHRISTIANITY

And then in smaller type, Anthropomorphism An Exploded Superstition

He walked on more hurriedly through the dark.

All over the district the Church seemed tottering. The strong forces of Unitarianism and Judaism, always active enemies of the Church, were enjoying a moment of unexampled triumph. Led by nearly all the families in Walktown, all the Dissenters and many lukewarm Church people were crowding to these same synagogues. At the very height of these perversions, when Christianity was forsown and derided on all sides, Schuabe had returned to Mount Prospect from London.

His long-sustained position as head of the anti-Christian party in Parliament, in England indeed, his political connection with the place, his wealth, the ties of family and relationship, all combined to make him the greatest power of the moment in the North.

His speeches, of such force and reported verbatim in all the newspapers. He became the Marlborough of a campaign.

On every side the churches were most deserted. Day by day ominous political murmurs were heard in streets and factories. The time had come, men were saying, when an established priesthood and Church must be forced to relinquish its emoluments and position. The Bishop of Manchester, as he rolled through the streets in his carriage, leaning back upon the cushions, lost in thought, with his feet between his hips, according to the and custom which had almost grown a scandal in the neighborhood, was hissed and booed as he went on his way.

With a sickness of heart, an unweariness that was almost physical, nausea, the vicar let himself into his house with a latch-key.

There was a hushed, subdued air over the warm, comfortable home. He felt quite certainly, though not ready to define. It was as though one had died in an upper chamber.

Mr. Byars turned into his study. Helena rose to meet him. The beautiful, calm face was very pale and worn as if by long vigils. Minutes of care had crept round the eyes, though the eyes themselves were as calm and steadfast as of old.

"Basil feels much stronger tonight, father," she said. "He is dragging now, and will come down to supper. He wishes to have a long talk with you, he says."

For two weeks Gortre had lain prostrate in the house of his future father-in-law.

It was as though he had watched the waters gradually rising round him until at last he was submerged in a merciful unconsciousness. The doctor said that he was enduring a very slight attack of brain-fever, but which need cause no one any alarm, and which was, in fact, nothing at all in comparison to his former illness.

His fine physical strength asserted itself and helped him to an easy bodily recovery.

To Basil himself, with returning health and a clearer brain came a renewal of mental power. A great strain was removed, the strain of waiting and watching, the tension of a sick anticipation.

"It was almost as if I was conscious of this terrible thing that has happened," he said to Helena. "I am sure that I felt it coming instinctively in some curious psychic way. But now that we know the worst, I am my own man again. Soon, dear, I shall be up and about again, ready to fight against this blackness, to take my place in the ranks once more."

To her loving solicitude he seemed to have some definite plan or purpose, but when she questioned him his reserve was impenetrable, even to her.

During the days of darkness Helena's lot was hard, her heart heavy. While Mr. Byars was at least active, militant, she must eat her heart out in sorrow at home. The doctor had forbidden any talk on those subjects which were agitating the world, between her and Basil. She was denied that consolation. So while her father was attending the conferences at the Bishop's palace, speaking at meetings, visiting the sick with passionate ardor, and, alas, how often useless assurance that the Truth would prevail and the Light of the World once more shine out undimmed, she must live and pray alone.

Helena's faith had never weakened. All through the trying days and nights it had burned steadily, clear and pure. But all around her she saw the enemies of Christ prevailing. Nor was it with the slow movement of ordinary secularism, but with a great shout of triumph and exultation which resounded through the world. Men

White Sanitarium Offers a Thoroughly Scientific Cure for Tobacco, Alcohol or Drug Addictions. Quick, Safe and Permanent. No Pain or Injury from Remedy.

No denial of either drug or drink as being as desired. Tones up the system, invigorates every organ and brightens the intellect. All poisons are rapidly eliminated from the system, and the nervous system permanently cured. A large per cent of our patients are physicians who unqualifiedly endorse our methods as the best in existence for the treatment of all characters. Likewise visiting physicians who have watched our work.

All of our patients leave us with praises for the institution, and come out of great gratitude, voluntarily give us letters for publication. Below we publish several from good people who have been cured:

Letter from H. C. Masingle of Mart, Tex., R. F. D. No. 5, who was cured:

I have been a victim of the ruinous drug habit, using morphine in large quantities for years, which made an awful wreck of me. I tried several cures without success, and my case was said to be incurable. My friends and relatives came to the conclusion there was no hope for me, and my condition was beyond description. I accepted the offer made by White Sanitarium. On going to them I was very thin and weak, weighing but 90 pounds; was relieved of morphine at once without the slightest shock, pain or craving for the drug, and in a few days was able to do the normal work of a man. In thirty days I gained forty pounds, and life assumed the charm of youth. While at the Sanitarium I saw men and women readily cured of Whisky, Tobacco and several drug habits, and I believe this institution can cure any case on earth of these troubles. I make this public statement hoping that it may be the means of others getting out of this awful trouble. Yours truly, H. C. MASINGLE.

Letter from Mrs. Johnson, widow of Dr. Johnson of Brownwood, Texas, who was cured:

To Whom It May Concern: For years I have been a slave to the Morphine habit, which robbed me of my health, strength and happiness. I tried every cure I could hear of, and spent more than $500 trying to be cured. I tried the advertised "Home Cures," all of which left me more helpless in the clutches of this awful drug. I came finally to believe there was no cure for this habit, and but for writing a friend who was cured at White Sanitarium I should yet believe so. I went to this institution and they relieved me of this drug without the slightest suffering, and in a little over one week I was a well and happy woman, never thinking of morphine only with horror and contempt for the drug. While there they were crowded with patients, including five doctors. Some were being treated for whisky and others for drug habits. All claimed their cures perfect and permanent, and thought the cure a wonderful thing. My deceased husband was a physician, and made a specialty of treating drunk and drug habits, besides for personal reasons I investigated all cures I could hear of. I think the work done at White Sanitarium is a wonderful thing. Though it embarrasses me to make public that I ever was a victim of this drug, yet I do so voluntarily, hoping it may be the means of rescuing some poor sufferer. Very truly, MRS. MAMIE D. JOHNSON.

Statement of Dr. Evans, a Visiting Physician:

White Sanitarium, Dallas, Texas; Gentlemen—I have closely observed your treatment for Whisky and Drug Habits. It is safe, quick and efficient, and I endorse same. Very truly yours, W. D. EVANS, A. M., M. D.

Statement of Dr. Fly of Amarillo, Texas, a Visiting Physician:

White Sanitarium, Dallas, Texas; Gentlemen—I have closely observed your treatment for Tobacco, Whisky and Drug Addictions, and I pronounce it a grand work. Your methods are quick, safe and effect permanent cures. I wish you great success. Very truly yours, D. R. FLY, M. D.

All cases are carefully examined and any weakness looked after. Place cure in any bank, and we will take care of you and effect a permanent cure before requiring one cent, and we will make you the sick judge.

By the way, the Texans are beginning to breed a quantity of high-class horses, and more than one competent authority in turf matters has been heard to say of late that if the Lone Star state keeps on progressing in this line, the day is not distant when it will be the greatest source of supply of thoroughbreds. # CORBETT'S GOSSIP OF THE FIGHTING GAME

BY JAS. J. CORBETT.

Copyright, 1905, Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

Jimmy Corbett, who is always on the alert and is recognized as one of the greatest promoters of the fistie game in America, has landed another plum in the O'Brien-Fitzsimmons battle.

Both men have been in the ring for many years, but today stand about as near to the champion, James J. Jeffries, as any of the heaviest men in the business. Their weight is about the same, and when it comes to knowing the tricks of the trade who in the business has anything on Fitz and the Philadelphian?

Should O'Brien prove clever enough to evade the hard-hitting Cornishman and should Bob's hands hold out I look to see one of the most scientific battles the American prize ring has ever seen.

In their battle at Philadelphia Fitz had a shade the better of O'Brien, but in the time that has elapsed since then a change has no doubt taken place. The Philadelphian showed that he had gone ahead some in his battle with Kaufman, and Fitz undoubtedly has gone back, if such a thing is possible in his case. He has stayed good so long that many believe he will always stay to the front.

The fight will prove a big drawing card on the coast, where O'Brien made a good impression in his battle with Billy Delaney's protegee. With the betting 10 to 7 against him, he went into the ring and made a monkey out of Kaufman.

I know that Fitzsimmons has been taking excellent care of himself, and if his hands hold out in a long fight he ought to prove O'Brien's superior.

The matching of Fitzsimmons with O'Brien recalls the Cornishman's arrival in this country. In the first place, he got over into this country as the result of the friendship of Captain Merce, of the steamer Alameda. Bob was a picture when he landed. He wore a cap that fit him about two sizes too quick and a suit that showed the effects of the damp air, as it had shrunk considerably, giving Bob the appearance of a youth from a farm in the antipodes.

Fitzsimmons happened along just at the right time. The old California club was then in the heyday of its career, and any fighter that could deliver the goods was given a show. I think Fuda was the president of the club, and he had been informed by other Australians that Bob was coming, and that he carried the goods in a large package. On his arrival Bob was sent for. At that time you had to show the California promoters what you had or you stood little show of getting on. Billy McCarty at that time was well thought of, and I think it was just after his bout with Jack Dempsey, in which the latter failed to knock "Billy" out, that Fitz was asked to don the mitts and show his hand.

The way that Bob trimmed McCarty opened the eyes of the California club's boys, and he was at once hailed as a coming champion. I had just got to going good at that time and was equally well impressed by the lanky Cornishman. In fact, I thought so well of him that I turned over a letter from New Orleans from the old Olympic club, which wanted me to return there and meet a big fellow whom they had predicted a wonder.

Fitz was substituted, and with Jimmy Carroll went to New Orleans, where he fought Arthur Upman. He won in three rounds, and his name was on the lips of every Californian. He would do.

Bob's rise was rapid, and when I faced him at Carson City I was a sure of victory as I ever was in my career, but he won, and did it in such a way that I still have recollections of that shift which has won him nearly all his fights.

Nearly all of the fighters who have fought Battling Nelson beat themselves. When it comes to the iron jaw Nelson has every other little fighter skinned several ocean lengths. Talk about Joe Gans being in his class—why, if Joe was to match his jaw against Nelson's he would stand about as much chance of winning as a snowball would of living through the Fourth of July in a Turkish bath parlor.

You have got to hand it to Nelson when it comes to taking the punishment. If it came to a show down the Dane could stand up and take the punishment from a clever man until his opponent had jabbed and pushed his fingers up into his shoulders.

One man who fought Nelson told me that his arms were so tired after a six-round battle with Nelson that his feet felt like they had been packed in ice.

Take Nelson's fight with Britt. The one thing that defeated Britt was much as anything else was the bulldog way that the Dane took those terrific punches. Why, it took more nerve on Britt's part to keep on than it took for Nelson to continue fighting. It would be well for all of Nelson's opponents to figure out some other point of attack than the jaw.

legs give way, his arms are heavy and weak. That is the first danger signal nature sends out.

His trainers cheer him up by saying that he has indigestion and that it will soon pass away. The truth is the exercise has run his system down. All these things tell in future years and at the time a fighter should be at his best he is on the downward path.

I have been a trainer and manager for twenty-five years, and was a pugilist for ten years. A fighter should be a champion until he is 27 years old. It's a pity such fighters as Terry McGovern and Young Corbett should be forced to meet their opponents in the ring today as ex-champions. Little McGovern has not reached 20, while Corbett is below his mark. Yet they have passed their titles over to other men.

About five years ago, when Terry's name struck terror to the hearts of all he met in the ring, he tried to tell me how I should train my men. He said that a man should keep on working all the time when preparing for a contest.

I hold that a fighter should not train more than three weeks for any contest. Cut out boxing entirely for that time.

Many persons will dispute the latter point, but if an experienced fighter boxes with a man not his equal in cleverness and strength, he naturally must be lenient with him. Consequently he spars instead of hitting hard. If he has a sparring partner, who is his superior, he must suffer much punishment before going on

OVERTRAINING More Harmful Than Drink

Billy Madden

William Madden, the well known trainer of prize fighters, the man who handled John L. Sullivan, Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and other champions, declares that overtraining ends more pugilistic careers than drinking and other forms of dissipation.

Municipality Assumes Burdens Assuring Future of City

Chief among the things for which North Fort Worth as a municipality has to be thankful this year is the strides in progress taken by that city since her incorporation in 1902.

One small item for which the city should give thanks is the fact that the total amount of taxes available for the year 1905 is $27,749.17. This is in comparison to $17,857.72, total amount due last year, and in the face of the fact that there has been a decrease in tax valuation by the board of equalization in the total sum of $545,172. Of this decrease the taxable value of the packing houses and kindred industries was made $347,825 less than last year, showing the decrease in valuation placed on real estate of private persons to be $97,538.

As a municipality the city has cause to be thankful in the increase of taxes for permanent purposes voted by the people. The rate in 1904 was 50 cents on the $100. The rate for this year is 85 cents. The addition is occasioned by a rise of 15 cents for streets and bridges and 20 cents for the school fund. Of the taxes collected on each $100 the following pro rata is made: For the general fund a total of $29.40 on each $100; for streets and bridges, $17.65 on each $100; for the school fund, $23.53; for water works bonds, Edward T. Butler, called "colonel," was boss of St. Louis for thirty-seven years.

Butler started in life as a blacksmith, became boss of St. Louis and later a millionaire.

As a result of Folk's investigation, Butler was arrested on a charge of bribery to secure a contract for a company of which he was a stockholder. He was convicted, but a higher court released him.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 23.—To see one's own countenance pictured on powder boxes, the cold cream receptacles and rouge pots of every drug store, is the experience of Miss Mabel Dean of the "Peggy From Paris" company.

Miss Dean is not only an acknowledged beauty, but is the original of "Peggy From Paris" pictures which thousands have seen and admired. It was while she was with Anna Held's "Little Duchess" company that Miss Dean, together with a friend, went to a photographer and posed for these pictures, broadcast over the country when the "Peggy From Paris" So great was her popularity that publishers of calendars and almanacs, and proprietors of drug store products and commodities of all kinds have seized her beautiful countenance to call attention to their wares.

The stage is soon to lose Miss Dean. "Next spring I shall go to Alaska," she says. "I am to be married at Juneau." Furthermore, "she is a young and successful man who owns many rich mines, and she has promised him that she will not return to the stage."

BOSSSES HELD A NECESSITY

Ex-Dictator Would Have Them Honest and True

WRITTEN BY EDWARD T. BUTLER.

Former Blacksmith, Boss of St. Louis for 37 Years and Now a Millionaire.

Political bosses are a necessity, but they must be honest.

They must be truthful.

They must have the confidence of the people and be outspoken.

They must have no relatives or friends who want office, and the bosses themselves must not be office seekers or grafters.

The wave of sentiment against bossism, the results of which we saw in Missouri a year ago, and in Ohio, New York and Philadelphia in the last election, grew out of dishonest leadership. I look for these conditions to prevail for a while, though eventually political parties will drift back to leaders—but those leaders must be honest. They can't "hoodwink" the people and remain in politics.

Jerome's success in New York is a remarkable example of the revolution against bossism that is going on all over the country. If the issues were similarly drawn in any other big city, the result would be practically the same, because the latter-day bosses have degenerated from the path of strictest honesty and truthfulness.

But every party needs a boss, because every business needs a head. There must be some supreme authority whose word is law. The preacher is the "boss" of his church. He has the board of directors with him, and has its boss, and must have to succeed. So with a political party. Without leaders a party will disorganize itself.

If Cox in Cincinnati had been honest he could not have been beaten. I know nothing about the facts, but the result plainly shows that there was dishonesty somewhere.

An honest boss is never beaten. He cannot be beaten as long as the people have confidence in him, and they will only lose confidence in him after he has proven his dishonesty by giving them the "double cross."

It was the same way in New York. Certain democratic leaders, who aspired to be bosses, tried to organize a Tammany in St. Louis several years ago. I told them they were fools to undertake such a thing. A Tammany can be successful only where there are masses of ignorant voters who are willing to be led around like bulls with rings in their noses. The people of New York are evidently becoming more intelligent, and the revolt against bossism is the natural consequence of dishonest bossism. Now Dick Croker, I think, was fairly honest, but I do not recall any present day boss who is honest. However, I am out of politics now and don't keep close track of the leaders.

When I was in politics I never deceived a man. Everybody knew where I stood. I did not do much bossing—in fact I let the other fellows do most of that, but I gave advice where it was needed, and took it, too. I never asked a candidate for money for the campaign, but I did ask it from people on the outside. The poor candidate who is elected isn't well enough paid to spend his money running for the office.

The boss who is out for the coin will soon be found out and dethroned. Why, I know bosses who made $50,000 or $60,000 a year. But they are not bosses now, and they won't be any more. The people found them out and turned them out.

I account for the prevalence of dishonesty among bosses by the fact that interest and sinking fund, $23.53; for the school bonds, interest and sinking fund, $5.88.

The city schools have much for which to be thankful. The taxpayers of North Fort Worth have caused to be erected at an approximate cost of $35,000 a handsome, large and comfortable brick building, which is the pride of every citizen, and will be well worth the indebtedness required for its construction. It is now rapidly nearing completion. Municipal water works is another work of the year for which North Fort Worth is thankful, while additions to the packing houses, construction of an ice plant and substantial growth in the number of business houses and residences makes the year one due deep thanks.

Johnny was a good boy, but he loved to fight. He had been provoked over and over again, and at last he had promised to battle no more. That very evening he returned from school with a cut cheek and swollen nose.

"John," said his mother, "you promised me this morning that you would not fight again."

"But I haven't been fighting, ma. This is an accident."

"An accident?"

"Yes, ma. I was sitting on Tommy Biggs, and I forgot to hold his feet."—New York Tribune.

they were born dishonest. Trace any man's family history who has been caught in crime, and somewhere along the line of his ancestry you will find a black spot. It is in them to be dishonest.

After a few years the parties will return to the boss idea. They can't be run successfully without leaders, and leaders will be called "bosses," though most of the talk about "rings" and "combinations" is nonsensical.

But when the bosses do come back into their own they will be honest, and they will not deceive.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

Just when the custom of giving books for Christmas gifts first began to prevail is not recorded. Certainly not during the time when volumes were so rare, librarians fastened them to their places with chains and assuredly not at the later date when the printing press was declared the invention of the devil and its product his Satanic majesty's handiwork. It must have been when bindings became cheap enough as to be within compass of purse strings not exceeding the ordinary length. Even after that, for long enough, book-giving at Christmas time was confined to exchanges of Bible, prayer books, psalters and occasionally—if the donor were one of the liberal-minded people of the day—so daring a gift as a copy of the paraphrases, or maybe, if not so religiously inclined, an old classic.

At any rate it was bindings and not the contents brought books within the reach of everybody for until bindings became cheap, books were dear, even though their authors profited little or nothing from their lofty prices.

Now cheap bindings, sinful as they may seem to the lover of rare vellums, calfskins, pigskins, Morocco and sealskin, may encompass any gem of literature and put it within the reach of the most modest booklover.

And yet at the climax of cheapness in book production, there is apparently a desire to return to a similitude of the old rare bindings and this year's offerings of the publishers include more leather coverings than ever offered before.

leatherette and tastefully decorated, can be had for half a dollar. The same price will get some of the best standard books of the period.

A QUIANT EGOTIST

If there was one mosque in Kairwan to which curiosity alone led me it was that of the modern, egotistical marmoset, Sidi Amor Abbada. In the district of the Glass tribe, in the eastern part of the town, rises this tomb-mosque. Its plain interior would not particularly commend it to one's attention, but its five domes, Turkish in their architectural aspect, and its association with its founder and builder, Abbada, make it unique among the mosques of Kairwan.

Sidi Amor Abbada was a man of a great idea. Perhaps he felt he was overlooked in the natural order of things, a Zacheus among his brethren. However that may be, his life was spent in taking thought so that men thereafter should add cubits to his stature. To prove his sanctity and his greatness, he spent his life making and collecting about him, by means as original as they were childlike, objects of colossal size which would stand as monuments to his physical bigness. Today the natives will tell you, as the old Arab of his mosque told me: "Yes, it is really true; Sidi Abbada was a giant."—The Christmas Metropolitan Magazine.

Hardup—I'll never go to that restaurant again. The last time I was there a man got my overcoat and left his in its place.

AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE FOR DECEMBER

Interesting as usual for its capital short stories and well illustrated articles, the Christmas number of the American Illustrated stands out among the magazines of the month because of one article of really colossal importance which it contains—"Who Shall Own America?"—The Control of Corporations—A Problem and the Solution," by Judge Grosscup of the United States circuit court of appeals. In this article Judge Grosscup gets away from the expose sort of thing that we see so often now and brings forward a real constructive piece of work—something that is a vast improvement on the destructive writing of the day. Judge Grosscup made a national reputation by his action in the Debs riots at Chicago in 1894, and by his recent meat trust decision, and as a prominent university professor said recently, anything that he says on corporations demands attention. Judge Grosscup points out specific remedies, not mad remedies, but thoroughly rational and practical; he advocates among other things the federal incorporation touched upon by President Roosevelt in one of his speeches in the South.

The American Illustrated is not a one-article magazine. All the stories of the number are excellent. Mary Cholmondeley's "Prisoners," the second installment of which appears this month, is a really absorbing novel. The short stories are by Francis Metcalfe, Emerson Hough, Henry M. Hyde, Juliet Wilbur Tompkins, Rafael Sabatini, Mary Talbot Campbell and Helen Haines. A very readable article is that of W. S. Harwood, on the agricultural experimental stations; Arthur Train, who is assistant district attorney under Mr. Jerome in New York, writes story of "520 per cent" Miller and the Franklyn Syndicate from inside sources.

BY WAY OF INDEMNITY

Mr. Henpeck—There are only seven-teen articles in the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia—less than half the number my wife demands before she will make peace with me!—Translated for Tales from Le Rire.

The Duchess of Marlborough's portrait produced by a process hitherto unattempted in magazine literature appears in the December issue of the Smart Set as a frontispiece—a distinctive new feature. This is the first of a series of portraits of woman distinguished as leaders of society in the metropolitan cities of the world to be published in this enterprising magazine.

FINE IMPOSED UNDER NEW LAW

Denver Road Pays $100 Under 28-Hour Ruling

The first fine imposed on a railroad for violation of the 28-hour stock law upon a railroad at the United States court for the Northern district of Texas here was given Saturday morning when a $100 penalty was imposed against the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad.

The cattle upon which the suit was brought were shipped by S. S. McCarter from Pueblo, Colo., to Forpycke, Ark. In the case, it was alleged the cattle were not set down for rest, water or feeding from Texline, reached at 6 p. m., June 13, until 2 o'clock, June 15, at Wichita Falls.

District Attorney Atwell said that he was in receipt of advice from the attorney general and the secretary of agriculture at Washington to ask for the lightest sentence and that he and the attorneys of the railroad had agreed upon the lightest sentence if the court would so allow. The reason of this was that the shipper of the cattle changed the point to which the cattle were shipped, after they had been taken to Wichita Falls. According to the time set for the train the cattle would have been set down at Wichita Falls within the twenty-eight hours if it had not been for a breakdown of the engine.

The fine assessed is the minimum, while the maximum fine is $500.

BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Main and Houston Street Buildings Included in List

Building permits have been issued by the city engineer for $20,000 worth of buildings to James F. Moore, as follows:

At the corner of Peter Smith and Lake streets, a veneered brick house, two stories with twelve rooms, cost $10,000.

At the corner of Fourteenth and Main streets, a two-story brick store and flat, with fourteen rooms, cost $4,000.

At the corner of Twelfth and Houston streets, a two-story brick store and flats, with twenty-two rooms, cost $6,000.

A building permit was also issued to William Rainey for the erection of a frame addition of four rooms, in Sandidge addition, to cost $700.

DISCUSSES COPPER WAR

T. E. Hickey Lectures on "Frenzied Finance" in Main Street

T. E. Hickey, from Butte, Mont., spoke Friday night to a large crowd at the corner of Seventh and Main streets, on "Frenzied Finance." He used a blackboard and sketched on it the story of Amalgamated Copper as told by Thomas W. Lawson. He then told the story from the side of the Montana miner, claiming that the state is in the power of a few men who can, if they desire, open up everything or close down as they please. His conclusion was that the remedy lies in collective ownership of the means of distribution, production and transportation.

Mr. Hickey left this morning for a tour throughout part of the state. He will speak at Dublin, Waco, Cleburne and other cities while on his tour. He has accepted the invitation of the local socialists to deliver another lecture on "Frenzied Finance" at the city hall at the end of December.

PROOF OF THIS MAY BE SEEN BY A VISIT TO THE BOOKSHELVES OF THE FAIR, WHERE THE WIDEST POSSIBLE VARIETY OF THE CHRISTMAS SEASON'S POSSIBILITIES IN BOOK BUYING IS ON DISPLAY.

For instance, there are probably fifty different editions of Omar Khayyam's "Rubaiyat," ranging in price from 25c to $6, but the vast majority have bindings either of leather, leatherette or limp cloth.

All the standard poets are to be had in leather bindings, mostly limp. Evidently pared calfskin, saved for law-books, does not appeal to popular taste so well as soft sealskin, even though the former is credited with more lasting qualities. One of the richest ornaments in the sealskin binding is an Oxford Bible in three volumes with a sealskin case for the trio.

ASIDE FROM BOOKS OF KNOWN REPUTATION, CLASSIC AND FICTION, THERE ARE MANY NEW PUBLICATIONS THIS SEASON THAT WILL APPEAL TO THE GIFT SEEKER.

The list for children is especially rich in variety. "Red Fox," a new book by Charles G. D. Roberts; Fraser's "Sa Zada Tales," "Kobo," a story of Japan, by Herbert Strang; a new Ernest Seton Thompson story with the author's illustrations; a new "Uncle Remus" book; a new "Elsie" book, by Marthan Finley; as well as a long list of the old favorites, Alcott, Sydney, Annie Fellows Johnson and so on through the list. For smaller children there are three or four new fairy books, some gorgeously illustrated versions of "Mother Goose."

BOOKS APPEALING TO PERSONS OF WELL-DEFINED TASTE IN SOME PARTICULAR LINE ARE NUMEROUS. BOOKS ON MUSIC ARE NUMEROUS. AMONG THOSE INCLUDED IS THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF THEODORE THOMAS, IN TWO VOLUMES. A WORK ON ITALIAN VILLAGES, BY EDITH WHARTON, ILLUSTRATED BY MAXFIELD PARISH WOULD APPEAL TO EITHER AN ARCHITECT OR AN ARTIST. FOR THE RELIGIOUSLY-MINDED THERE ARE PRAYER BOOKS AND RELIGIOUS ESSAYS BY THE SCORE, SOME OF THEM SUMPTUOUSLY BOUND.

BUT COMING BACK TO THE CHEAP BOOKS, THE BOOKS THAT CAN BE GIVEN INSTEAD OF A CHRISTMAS CARD, ONE FINDS PROBABLY THE GREATEST VARIETY IN THE ENTIRE STOCK. FOR INSTANCE A WELL-SELECTED COLLECTION OF VAN DYKE ESSAYS, BOUND IN
