REFORMERS AND HUMAN NATURE

Our observation of reformers is that they are always in too much of a hurry. We haven't anybody especially in mind, but we see and hear of lots of good people who think the world ought to be made over at once.

As far as we have read about what has gone on in the world in the past, there have been lots of tries at remodeling human nature, or at least of changing the shape of human organizations and institutions in the hope that, somehow, the change will react beneficially upon human nature. We have heard about very few such attempts that have succeeded in less than a few hundred years. Therefore we are inclined to be somewhat skeptical about any sort of an attempt to reform anything of material consequence in a few weeks or months or years.

We are not against reformers, the contrary. We feel a good deal, at times, the way Omar Khayyam did when he wrote:

"Love, could you and I with Him conspire

To grasp this sorry scheme of things entire,

Would we not shatter it to bits—and then

Remold it nearer to the Heart's desire?"

We confess, however, that we have been unable, so far, to "grasp this sorry scheme of things entire", and we question whether anyone else has been able to do that. And if we were able to "remold it nearer to the Heart's desire," the question would immediately arise to vex us: "Whose heart?" It takes a brave man, indeed, to assume that what he thinks is best for everybody will be accepted as best for themselves.

On the whole, perhaps, reformers do not do as much damage as some people imagine. And, on the whole, we think humanity has been doing a pretty good job of reforming itself, through the ages.

WOULD MAKE DELPHI GREEK ART CENTER

Ancient City Attempting to Stage Comeback.

Washington.—Delphi is staging a comeback. This ancient city, once an artistic center of Greece, long in ruins, may again become an intellectual hub of Greece and a meeting place for scholars of all nations. The erection of a large library, auditoriums, and probably a new hotel, will make this community, its rebuilders hope, "a Geneva of thoughts and the arts."

"Thus history stages another revival," says the National Geographic society. "For the desolate ruins of Delphi, bleaching on the southern slope of Mount Parnassus, were once a crowded city, beautiful with temples and thousands of statues.
A symbolic, central stone in the temple of Apollo marked the supposed center of the world, and so Delphi must have seemed to the early Greeks.

"Here flocked merchants, over the great network of trade roads that led to the city; pilgrims, to consult the famous oracle; athletes to compete in the Pythian games.
Delphi became enriched by votive statues of pilgrims and temples built by Greek states. To protect the riches of Delphi, twelve states north of the Gulf of Corinth united in what was the oldest league of Greece. Delegates from rival states came under flags of truce to settle disputes by arbitration. Interchange of ideas among these visitants from different sections of the country made Delphi rich in geographic information. In the Eighth and Seventh centuries B. C. when Greece was founding numerous colonies, none were established without first consulting the oracle as to the best locations.

Goats Responsible.
"According to tradition, the ubiquitous Greek goats were partly responsible for the oracle at Delphi.
Legend relates that a stream flowing through a crevice on Mount Par-nassus exhaled intoxicating vapors, Goats inhaling these evorated until their goat-herd also breathed the vapors. Hearing his mutterings, Greeks deemed them inspired by Apollo and built a temple over the stream. They seated a priestess on a golden tripod over the chasm and surrounded her with priests who interpreted her ravings in ambiguous verse. In the winter months, when Apollo was on his vacation in the land of the Hyperboreans, Dionysus, also prophetic, was worshiped instead.

"Most important temple of the sun god in Greece, the Delphi temple was for centuries the greatest of Greek shrines, thronged with thousands of pilgrims. The oracle was consulted for decisions on everything from marriage to wars until the end of the Fourth century, when the Byzantine Emperor Theodoric stopped the consultations by slaying those who consulted.

"Today, the temple lies in ruins, the magic stream has dried up, and there no longer exists even any trace of the chasm through which it is said to have flowed.

"Almost as important as the oracle to Greek life were the Pythian games, which were celebrated every fourth year. Various Greek states sent delegates to compete for laurel crowns in what originated as a song competition, turned into foot-races in the stadium, and ended in chariot races on the plain below Delphi. What splendid runners the ancient Greeks were may be judged by the record of the fire-bringing Euchidas who ran 111 miles in a single day, to take the sacred fire from Delphi to Plataea.

Legend Clings to Parnassus.
"The stadium was built in the highest part of Delphi, itself 2,000 feet above sea level, and breathing its crisp cold air, which put a bluish patina on Delphi's bronze statues, one realizes why Delphi became a sort of health resort, crowded by patients and physicians.

"East of Delphi loom the twin silvery cliffs, the Phaedriades, so-called 'shining rocks,' from whose crannies eagles and vultures soar over snow-capped Mount Parnassus.
These cliffs rise sheer for about 800 feet and were convenient for the Delphians, who used to hurl their enemies from them. The path zigzagging up to the summit of the mountain passes through pine woods resounding with woodsmen's axes, and over bare gray rock relieved only by moss and lavender crocuses. The shouts of muleteers and tinkling mulebells replace the revels that legend ascribes to this mountain famed as the haunt of Pan and the nymphs.

"To France goes the credit for excavating Delphi. A modern village, Kastri, had been superimposed upon the ancient ruins, but French excavators moved the village a mile further southwest on the slope, and restored as far as possible the ancient city of Apollo."

LUCKY GIRL

Her mother felt that family physicians and child specialists, and the hospitals must be right. A simple test that proves they are.

MRS. STRONG AND DAUGHTER, NANCY

If anyone in your family is occasionally sluggish or constipated; especially any child, you should know this medical truth:

You cannot get safe relief with any medicine if you cannot regulate the dose. And to regulate dosage, you should have a liquid laxative.
With a liquid laxative, you can gradually reduce the dose. And that is the secret of safe relief from a sluggish, constipated condition.

Why Doctors Use
Liquid Laxatives

A liquid laxative can be measured.
Its action can be thus controlled. If properly made, of natural laxative elements like senna and cascara, it forms no habit—even in the youngest child. And such a laxative will help the bowels to help them-selfes, not make matters worse.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative containing herbs, active senna, and cascara, and is the one widely used. You can always obtain it at any drugstore. Why not make the "liquid test" which has attracted so much attention of late? It helps nearly everyone who tries it. It may make you feel better than you have in a long time.

If you will risk sixty cents to discover the natural, comfortable action of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, we believe bowel worries will be over for your household.

Purposeful Lamps for Study and Reading

By Jean Prentice

OF COURSE no mother means to hurt her children's eyes or her own. Nor does Betty, away at college in the hubbub of quizzes and rushing tests, mean to injure hers.

Yet they do that very thing when they fail to provide good lighting for reading, study or sewing. And that, scientists say, is one reason why 20% of grammar school children, and 40% of college students have defective eyes.

Now comes a new lamp that obligingly takes such responsibilities off mothers' and students' shoulders!

You will know you are actually protecting eyesight when you use it, because it bears a tag of approval showing it meets specifications of a national scientific organization, the Illuminating Engineering Society, designating it as an "I. E. S. Study and Reading Lamp."

And what a relief such scientific approval is—when you consider that good light actually adds to the alertness and chances of success for your child. Recent comparative school room tests reveal that pupils studying under good light are keener and more progressive than those handicapped by poor lighting.

One of the nice things about the I. E. S. lamp, designs for which have been created by many leading manufacturers, is its variety of style.

Whether you live in a spacious home, college dormitory or modest cottage, appropriate ones to suit every purse are available for any decorative scheme beside chair, davenport, or on table or desk.

Several things make these lamps "kind to the eyes." The one in the large sketch at the right is scientifically the correct height for the table, 19 inches from base to bottom of shade. A glass bowl in each lamp shade directs light upward and at the same time sends well-diffused light downward, thus eliminating glare. Excellent results are attained by using a standard 100-watt bulb for which all have been designed.

THE BETTER THE LIGHT... THE HIGHER THEIR MARKS

YOUNG students often find arithmetic and geography a rather irksome task. Study becomes even more difficult with unnecessary eye-strain. In the schoolroom, teachers try to see that their pupils all have sufficient light. At home, parents should also make sure that their children have the right amount of shaded light when they do their homework.

Light is inexpensive but children's eyesight is priceless. Let Mazda Lamps protect their eyes.

ONLY 65 WARSHIPS IN RUSSIAN FLEET

Navy Found Inferior Even to Small Neighbors'

Washington.—The Soviet Union, which has been consistently shy in revealing its military or naval status to the outside world, plays a minor role in naval affairs, as shown by the League of Nations armament year-book, copies of which have just been received here.

While the Red army is popularly credited with being one of the largest in the world, the Soviet government has made no effort to put a fleet on the ocean comparable even with some of its small neighbors, and now boasts 65 warships of 194,615 tons, most of them dating from before the World war.

Japan, which always figures in any war talk between the Soviet Union and other nations, has 216 modern warships of 820,387 tons, and is building 21 new ships, which will increase its total tonnage to 889,910 tons.

The League Secretariat explains in a foot-note in the volume that official and public documents do not give desired information on Soviet affairs and that the data presented have been gathered from various technical sources.

The Red navy is pictured as composed of four battleships of 93,480 tons, seven cruisers of 49,980 tons, 38 destroyers of 41,776 tons, and 16 submarines, now under construction, will give the Soviet Union a navy of 71 vessels of 197,465 tons.

The four battleships—Pariskaita, Kommuna, Marat, Oklabraskia Revolutia and Mikhail Furunze—are each 23,370 tons and were launched in 1914-15. Three of the cruisers date from shortly after the Russo-Japanese war and one dates from the World war. Two were launched in 1924-25; one was launched in 1930 and one in 1932.

With one exception the destroyers were launched from 1900 on to the World war. The submarines all date from the World war.

The League of Nations data put the Soviet Union's army at 5,200,000 men and 37,000 officers, of whom 29,039 men and 2,397 officers are classified as naval forces.

The Soviet Union's low naval ranking in relation to other world powers, is shown by comparable naval statistics from the league's data.

Other Countries Listed. France has 185 warships of 541,630 tons, with 35 ships under construction, which will bring the total to 220 ships of 658,091 tons.

Germany has 47 warships of 152,480 tons, with two ships under construction, which will bring the total to 49 ships of 172,480 tons.

Italy has 177 warships of 378,858 tons, with 33 ships under construction, which will give her 215 ships of 445,979 tons.

Great Britain has 254 warships of 1,065,400 tons and 31 ships now being built will increase the total to 285 ships of 1,172,139 tons.

The United States has 350 warships of 1,007,400 tons and 51 ships under construction to raise the total to 401 ships of 1,228,350 tons.

'Dead' and Savings Gone, Canadian Sues for Life

Victoria, B. C.—Seventy-year-old Thomas Dresser has instituted proceedings to bring himself back to life. When he walked with his frayed savings bank book into a Victoria bank the other day he was surprised to find that he could not draw on his account for the reason that he was dead.

He had been declared dead last December by the Supreme Court of British Columbia and his estate had been ordered divided among his relatives, some of whom lived in New Zealand. The succession duties had already been paid to the government.

Norman Town Turns Its Back on Coeducation

Coutances, Normandy.—By unanimous vote, this town has taken a united stand against coeducation.

The reason given for this action is that "male school teachers cannot teach girls their future roles of wife and mother," and that "children of France are disconcertingly precocious."

Despite this anti-coeducational feeling in Normandy, there are 3,520 "mixed" schools in France. Wherever possible it is the principle of the French school system to keep boys and girls separated.

Mountain Sheep Still Abundant in Wyoming

Jackson, Wyo.—Mountain sheep, rarely seen by the average person, still are far from extinct. Game Warden A. O. Pendergraft and Fred Deyo, returning from a trip into the high mountains, reported that they had counted more than 1,200, including 260 rams. They made the trip to determine whether to close the season in the county this year.
