HEAVY LOSS SUSTAINED IN TWO FIRES DURING THE PAST WEEK

On Thursday of last week a fire of unknown origin broke out in the barn on E. E. Taylor's farm about nine miles northwest of town, entirely consuming the building and much of its contents. Mr. Taylor was grading the road near his home and had made one round on the strip and stopped at his home to rest his horses only a few minutes before the fire was discovered and was about a half mile away at the time. His car which was in the barn was lost and he had about 500 bushels of threshed grain in the building, but succeeded in saving a large part of it. There were five calves also confined in a pen adjoining the barn and three of these were burned to death when Mr. Taylor reached the place. The other two, though badly burned, were still living when he got them away from the fire. Some harness and much other property stored in the barn were destroyed, all of which constituted a severe blow to Mr. Taylor.

MISS ESTHER REEVE WINS ADDITIONAL HONORS.

Word was received here last week to the effect that Miss Esther Reeve, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reeve, of our town and a member of the 1927 graduating class of the Friona high school, now enjoys the distinction of having won a complete scholarship in the V. T. S. T. C. at Canyon. This honor comes to Miss Reeve as a result of her having attained a continuous record of "A" grades throughout her high school term. This is only one of the many educational honors which Miss Esther has won during the past two years, many of which have been recorded in the columns of the Star from time to time as they occurred, and her many good friends and school mates are very proud of her and with her for these distinctions which she has brought to herself, her town and her school.

BOYS RETURN FROM AUSTIN.

W. D. Kirk, Reuben Giesler and Chick Schlenker returned last Saturday from a ten days trip to Austin and return via the Rio Grande Valley. The primary motive of this trip was to visit the state track meet at the capital city, in which Chick was a contestant for the high jump state championship, he having won the district championship at Canyon.

They say the Rio Grande Valley is beautiful, but 'tis too hot there for them and they like Friona and the Panhandle much better. We must not forget to state that Chick won fourth place in the high jump, which is excellent when considering the large number of contestants.

ENJOY CAMPING TRIP.

On Tuesday morning a jolly group of our boys, under the chaperonage of C. M. Stevens, departed in one of Mr. Reeve's school trucks for a camping vacation over in the New Mexico breaks. These boys, ranging in age from 12 to 15 years, devised this means of having a good time and upon Mr. Reeve's to take them. He, not having the time to spare just now, directed them to Mr. Stevens, and he being well acquainted in that territory and somewhat of a camper and butcher, and having a great liking for the company of boys, was easily induced to act as their escort. When the boys departed they confidently expected to be away for at least a week or ten days, and the date of their return will have to decide how well their intentions hold out.

COMPLIMENTS FRIONA BOYS

Willie Howell Welch, who was one of the graduates of the Friona school this year, has had a very unusual experience in his high school career. He spent his freshman year in Louisiana, his sophomore year in California, his junior year in Arizona, and his senior year in Friona, Texas. As was stated in last week's issue of the Star, this young man departed last Friday for his home in Colorado, but before going he visited his superintendent, Prof. H. J. Buckner, to bid him and Mrs. Buckner good-bye and at that time he stated to Mr. Buckner that of all the schools he had attended the boys of the Friona high school were the finest lot of boys, morally and otherwise he had ever had the pleasure of associating with. This is a most laudable compliment to our boys and this wonderful morale of our boys can be attributed in a large measure to the fact that they have been under the wholesome moral influence of Prof. Buckner for the past five years.

WEATHER.

The weather here is still dry and on two days of this week the thermometer registered as high as 90 in the shade. Some wheat is still holding out and bids fair to make a fair yield in spite of the extreme drought, but most of the farmers are taking a lay-off until rain comes.

HE CANNOT READ HIS TOMBSTONE WHEN HE'S DEAD.

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing, And you like him or you love him, tell him now. Don't withhold your approbation till the parson's sad oration, And he lies with snowy lillies o'er his brow. For no matter how you shout it, he would not then care about it, And would never know how many tears you shed; But if you think some praise is due him, now's the time to give it to him— For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money, is that comment kind and sunny; And the hearty warm approval of a friend; For it gives to life a flavor, and it makes us stronger, braver, With a cheerful heart and spirit to the end. If he's earned your praise bestow it, if you like him, let him know it; Let the words of true encouragement be said. Do not wait till life is over, and he's underneath the clover, For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead. —Selected.

NEW IMPLEMENT SHED HAS BEEN ERECTED.

During the past week a large implement shed has been erected on Sixth Street, just south of the Rockwell Bros. lumber yard. This building was erected by the Wilkison Implement Company in order to accommodate the large stock of implements kept on hand by this company for which is has no room in its main building at the corner of Sixth and Main Streets, and which have heretofore been stored in the long sheds on the Blackwell block.

WILL MILK MORE COWS.

J. E. Ware, whose farm is a few miles southeast of town, was in the Star office last Friday and says he is now milking ten good Jersey cows and they are making him money, and he takes the view that if a farmer will supply himself with plenty of good milk stock and take the proper care of them, dry weather will not hit him very hard.

STORK-O-GRAMS.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Giesler, a daughter, Friday, May 13th, at Hereford.

Charles Hoover, a son, Monday night, May 16th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilson, of the Rhea community.

Charles D. Woltman, a son, at 7:00 a. m., May 17th, at their home west of town.

TO TEACH AT RHEA.

Prof. Nelson C. Smith, who was superintendent of the Oklahoma Lane school last term, has been employed in that position at the Rhea school for the coming term. We are informed that Mr. Smith taught a very satisfactory school at Oklahoma Lane.

SPENT WEEK IN LUBBOCK.

Prof. and Mrs. H. J. Buckner returned Thursday evening from Lubbock, where they had been spending the week with Mr. Buckner's brother and family. They plan to go to Canadian within a few days, where they will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Buckner.

Will Jones Family Narrowly Escapes Death by Poison

Last Sunday morning the members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones, whose home is near Homestead, had a narrow escape from death by poisoning. It appears that some arsenic had been left in the Jones home in a can that had contained baking powder, and Mrs. Jones, wishing to use the can for some other purpose, took its contents to be baking powder, had emptied it into another can partly filled with baking powder.

On Sunday morning when she was preparing biscuits for breakfast she used some of the contents of the can for the purpose. After breakfast the family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Jones and a daughter about eight years of age, and a six-months-old son, got ready and started to Friona to attend Sunday school, but before arriving in town they all became very sick. They were accompanied by a Mr. Day, who is living with the family, and who also became very sick. They drove immediately to the home of Dr. McElroy, where their condition was made known, and some of the family having remembered the arsenic, this was given as the cause of their condition.

The physician at once administered remedies and soon had the stomachs of all the patients emptied of their contents. They were then taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Truitt, in Friona, where they remained until Monday morning, when they were able to drive back to their home.

TO MAKE EXTENDED VISIT.

P. M. Pritchard and family departed last Thursday for an extended visit with relatives and friends in Breckenridge, Texas, and points in Oklahoma.

A DAY OF CASUALTIES.

Sunday last seemed to be unusually full of casualties near Friona. Other than the poisoning of the Jones family, a young man by the name of Baker, whose home is northeast of town, received a broken arm and was obliged to come to town for medical and surgical aid.

A man, whose name we were unable to learn, but who has been employed by Homer T. Walker at grading work north of Friona, came in for treatment for an injured hand caused by being thrown from a mule.

BOVINA FARMER BUYS NEW TRACTOR.

The Turner-Parr Trading Company last week sold a new tractor to Messrs. Wakefield & Sons, of Bovina, which they took to the farm north of Bovina.

Mr. Wakefield and sons are among Farmer county's most progressive farmers and are cultivating an extensive tract of land this season.

LAZBUDDY STUDY CLUB.

The Lazbuddy Study Club held its regular session at the home of Mrs. Jim Bledsoe Thursday, May 5, 1927. The Bledsoe home was very cleverly decorated in the club colors, with flower pots decorated in pink and white crepe paper.

Visitors for the day were the Misses Jannita and Onida Ivy, Irma Duke and Ruby Buleah.

The business included electing officers. Mrs. Geo. Trader will be our new president, Mrs. Joe Paul, vice president; Frances Menefee, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Willie Steinbock, parliamentarian. The remaining officers have not as yet been elected.

The club decided if the new school is built the ladies will have a room in the basement instead of building a club house.

The program was a Mothers' Day program.

Response. The modern mother as an all around worker in the home, school, church and community. A quotation about mother.

Paper about other, Frances Menefee.

General discussion. World famous mothers.

After the program a delicious and attractive plate luncheon consisting of pink and white pineapple cake, white loaf cake and pink and white brick ice cream was served. After a social hour the members departed assuring the hostess of the happy evening they had spent.

HICKS-WHITLEY.

The many friends of Virgil Whitley and Cleo Hicks were very much surprised to hear of their marriage, which took place on Tuesday, May third, at the Baptist church at Roswell, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitley are both well and favorably known here, the bride being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McClellan, of Friona, and is an active church worker. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitley, of Dallas, and is one of our progressive ranchers. The young couple will make their home near Friona and their many friends here hope for them a long, happy and prosperous wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Habbings spent last week end visiting relatives and friends at Abernathy.

FRIONA WILL ORGANIZE A BOY SCOUT TROOP IN NEAR FUTURE

BALL SEASON OPENED LOCALLY.

The first ball game of the season was played on the Friona diamond last Sunday between the Friona team and Dimmitt, resulting in a score of 6 to 8 in favor of Friona.

The Friona boys have a good line-up this season and bid fair to give ball fans some real playing.

The game next Sunday will be between Friona and Bovina on the Bovina diamond.

Lazbuddy News.

J. F. Vaughn has been carpentering for Mr. Carpenter the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Steinbock and son, Mrs. Emma Dyck and children were Thursday night visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Steinbock. They played forty-two until a late hour, when the hostess served luncheon.

The dance at the home of Mrs. Emma Dyck Friday night was well attended.

Those who visited in the Jim Jordan home Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. Willie Steinbock and son. They played forty-two.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Steinbock had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Ed Steinbock, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Steinbock and son, Johnnie Hleinhold and Carl Steinbock and Walter Dyck.

Miss Freda Dyck was a stunner guest of Miss Gertrude Pyritz Saturday night.

Mrs. John Steinbock and children returned Thursday from Frederick, Oklahoma. They say the blue bugs are ruining some of the wheat there and that that vicinity needs rain, although they had good rains in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Steinbock were Sunday night visitors in the Willie Steinbock home.

Several folks were at Lazbuddy store Sunday to witness the ball game.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jordan and daughter were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Steinbock Wednesday night. Several games of forty-two were played after which a social hour was spent with banana cake, divinity fudge and cocoa as refreshments.

Raising chickens, turkeys, ducks, etc. is the latest thing around Lazbuddy.

We hear that we may not have a store at Lazbuddy any longer, although we do not know how true this statement is. We certainly hope it is not true. We think it would be better to start a cash business instead of going out of business.

Johnnie Steinbock has a bad case of tonsillitis.

A number of young folks from this community attended the dance Friday night.

Bill and Ross Mick, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Layman and two boys, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Steinbock and son, Herbert Dyck and Ed Steinbock were visitors at the John Steinbock home Monday.

Rudolph Pyritz was a Muleshoe visitor this week.

The Lazbuddy box supper for the singing teacher was well attended Saturday night. $27.00 was received as proceeds from the box sales, pretty girl contest and ugliest man contest.

Mrs. John Steinbock and children were Sunday night supper guests at the Willie Steinbock home in honor of Mother's Day. It was more like the Seward's Day when we allude to the weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Shuping and children have moved one mile south of the J. E. Vaughn farm.

Gladys Griffin, Clifford Pyritz and Herbert Dyck were visitors of Ed Steinbock Thursday.

O. F. LANGE IMPROVING.

O. F. Lange, local manager of the Rockwell Bros. lumber yard, was taken seriously ill last week and his illness continued unabated until late in the week, when signs of improvement were manifest.

During this week Mr. Lange has been gradually improving until he is now able to be out and about again. Oscar's friends were truly glad to note his return to health and his reappearance on the streets.

Boy J. Bailey, of Clovis, who is field executive for the Eastern New Mexico Council of Boy Scouts was in Friona Wednesday in the interest of that great organization, with a view of organizing a troop in Friona.

Mr. Bailey called on the business men of the town, making known to them his business and endeavoring to create an interest in such a local organization, and it is hoped his efforts will be fruitful in securing the organization of a troop here.

Friona needs it and has ample material and good material for the troop and should keep abreast of progress in her sister towns by adopting this move.

At about three o'clock Wednesday, some twenty-seven men, both business men and farmers, congregated at the Star office and listened to the explanations of the organization and working of a Boy Scout troop by the field executive, with his recommendations for organizing a troop at Friona.

After his remarks, several questions were asked for further information and within a very short while it was moved to effect such an organization here, which carried unanimously and the following officers were chosen:

J. A. Blackwell, Scout Master; C. M. Stevens, assistant. The Scout Committee consists of F. W. Reeve, chairman; A. D. Carter, F. L. Spring, T. J. Crawford, O. F. Lange and J. G. Weir.

With the proper support and encouragement of the people, there is nothing to prevent this troop from being among the best troops in the state.

WOMEN'S CLUB TO HANDLE PICTURE SHOW.

The community picture show, which has been conducted once each week by the school while the school was in session, has been taken over by the Friona Woman's Club and will be under the supervision and direction of a committee appointed from the membership of that organization during the school vacation period.

This arrangement assures the patrons of the show that during the summer as in the past, they will have the pleasure of witnessing good, clean, wholesome pictures each Saturday night.

The Star bespeaks for these shows a most liberal patronage as what ever funds may be secured through the agency of the shows will be devoted to some worthy cause that will redound to the good of the entire community.

A CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM.

The members of the Congregational Sunday school will render a Children's Day program at the church on Sunday, May 29th, at 8:30 p. m.

The program will consist of a pantomime entitled "A Friend of Other Children," and will be executed by the children of the school assisted by the pastor, pianist and choirster.

The public is cordially invited and welcome to this program.

MORE RENEWALS.

Among those who have sent in their renewals to the Star for another year during the past week are Mrs. Hester Houlette, of 1652 Walker Street, Des Moines, Iowa; R. L. Galloway, of Georgetown, Texas, and A. D. Ribble, of Portales, N. M.

Each of these parties were formerly residents of Friona and we of the Star truly appreciate their renewals as a token that they are still interested in our town and its people, and each of them have many warm friends here who will be pleased to know that they still remember Friona.

Mrs. Houlette was one of Friona's pioneer citizens, having come to this country with her husband and sons about seventeen years ago. Mr. Galloway formerly owned land here and spent several years here farming and at other times of occupation, before removing to Georgetown, where he is now secretary and manager of a local insurance organization. Mr. Ribble was at one time manager of the Rockwell Bros. & Co. lumber yard here and while here made many warm friendships.

On Job Every Day 48 Years

Train Dispatcher Spends Spare Time as "Silent Evangelist."

Arkansas City, Kan.—Fred T. Horton, in retiring from his job as train dispatcher on the Santa Fe railroad in Arkansas City, is closing nearly half a century's career at railroading with an outstanding record:

He has never missed a day at work. He has never been late a day, except once, when his home was on fire. He has never been responsible for any serious trouble on the line while he was on duty.

He has refused all offers of promotion to official position. His refusal of offers of promotion by no means indicated a lack of interest in his work, however.

"Even when a little boy playing 'choo-choo' I said I was going to be a train dispatcher. I love the work and there never has been a day when I did not go to work in the morning with the eagerness of one who loves what he does," is Mr. Horton's unusual testimony after 48 years at railroading—38 years as train dispatcher at Arkansas City, seven years as dispatcher in St. Joseph, Mo., and three years as telegraph operator in Galesburg, Ill., his home town.

Wanted Time as "Evangelist." Mr. Horton simply wanted all his spare time to carry on his work as the "silent evangelist of Arkansas City" and this requires more time and work than the title indicates.

To do work at the office with all possible skill and care and then to slip out to a hillside near Arkansas City and in full view of the Santa Fe tracks north of the city there to construct his "sermon on the mount"—a rock inscription 475 feet long—these were the chief ambitions of Mr. Horton.

Mr. Horton has been preaching his brief "sermon" day after day, year after year, for about thirty years, without ever entering a pulpit. It reads: "Christ Died for the Ungodly."

This quotation Mr. Horton has built of rocks in letters 16 feet high and whitewashed so that it can be seen for miles. Some of the letters are 40 feet in circumference. It has taken time, money and work to build the sermon. How many miles he had walked back and forth while collecting stones, it would be impossible to estimate. He has rebuilt the letters four times. He counted up that he walked 700 miles rebuilding the letters once. Frequently he has even worked by moonlight, for all the work has been done after office hours.

It costs from $50 to $100 a year to keep up the text, since it takes three barrels of whitewash costing $15 to $20 twice a year to keep the giant letters visible, explains Mr. Horton. Thousands of railway passengers, pedestrians and motorists see the verse. Some scoff, Mr. Horton says, but others read it and stop to think or perhaps go home to look it up in the Bible and read for themselves.

Horton is absolutely nonsectarian and trusts entirely to his silent sermon and his own methods of living to reach the public.

Links Work and Faith. Horton's religion and his work are closely united.

"Not even the president of the railroad is more interested or more anxious to have things run smoothly than a train dispatcher," he said. "No one is more anxious to hear 'trains whistle at the same time' than the train dispatcher. They like to live by clockwork. There is no more responsible or strenuous job, either.

Now there are more automatic signals, the quick telephone service to supplement the wire, but even so washouts, long trains, floods, storms and such things are always on hand to make the life of a train dispatcher exciting. Sometimes it has seemed to me like playing checkers with trains across the map. I have worked straight through two shifts for 16 hours to relieve a fellow worker who was sick. I have often worked all day without stopping for a bite to eat.

"Fifty orders in eight hours are considered a good day's work. I have given out as many as 125 orders within eight hours besides the regular schedule orders."

Manipulating trains has become a sort of second nature to Horton. There have been times, he says, when he felt there was nothing left for him to do but pray that things would come out right.

"Once when I had three trains standing east and three west with only a blind siding between them, I did all I could and then prayed for divine help. Another time when someone failed to give an order for a train to wait at a station until a long overdue train arrived, and I knew there was only a blind siding without an operator between those trains, I knelt down by the tracks and prayed. I had a man climb to a telegraph pole and see if he could see what was happening. It was little short of a miracle that the train waited over for some reason, until the freight reached safety.

Woman Saves the Day. "On another occasion an operator on the road forgot to flag a train I had ordered to stop at a siding to let another pass. As soon as the train pulled out, the operator remembered the order. He was a quick thinker, however, and telephoned a woman up the line to stop the train. Dropping the phone, the woman rushed out and flagged the train with a red table cover and relayed the order.

"Such things naturally make a train dispatcher do considerable thinking. My thinking led me to the Bible and the Bible taught me to depend upon God both in my own life and my work."

In his daily life Mr. Horton lives simply. Born in Galesburg, Ill., 67 years ago, he attended school there until 1877. His brother taught him telegraphy and he took his first job at nineteen years of age on the C. B. & Q. railroad in his home town.

Each Thinking Other Dead, Brothers Meet

Mason City, Iowa.—Two brothers, each thinking the other the man who was found murdered in a box car, met face to face in a street here and the most promising clue to the man's identity went glimmering. The brothers are James Schell of Runnells, Iowa, and Phil Schell, an itinerant printer with temporary headquarters here.

Hearing of the murder the Runnells man came here and found every mark about the corpse to conform to those on his brother's body. He took charge of funeral arrangements.

The Mason City brother went into a pool hall and was told the name of the dead man had been found to be Schell. Confident it was his brother, he hastened to the undertaking place to confirm his fears. He was on his way when he met his brother in the street.

dispatcher do considerable thinking. My thinking led me to the Bible and the Bible taught me to depend upon God both in my own life and my work."

In his daily life Mr. Horton lives simply. Born in Galesburg, Ill., 67 years ago, he attended school there until 1877. His brother taught him telegraphy and he took his first job at nineteen years of age on the C. B. & Q. railroad in his home town.

Naturalist Finds Owls Can See in Daytime

Vancouver.—Dan McCowan, a naturalist and photographer of the Canadian Rockies at Banff, Alberta, has just discovered that owls can see in the daytime. McCowan, who has spent 20 years studying and photographing the wild life of the Banff National park, during which time he has taken more than 10,000 negatives, gives his judgment on the seeing capacities of the owl as follows:

"One day recently I climbed up a small Douglas fir near the Banff Springs hotel to photograph a nest full of young horned owls which could be snapped from the top of this tree in their nest in a big stump. I was just taking a closeup of the owls when the mother bird came at me in full flight, hit me in the back of the neck and knocked me out of the tree. I dropped about 25 feet, grasping various limbs as I fell, but being a Scotchman I kept a firm grip on my camera, which had cost money."

Only a short time previously McCowan had climbed 500 feet up the steep slopes of a cliff near Banff to reach an eagle's nest. He had just succeeded in photographing the young eaglets when their feathered protectors swooped down from a thousand feet above and made such menacing motions with their dangerous looking talons within a few feet of McCowan's face that he scurried down the cliff to safety.

NUMEROUS KINDS OF SALAD FOUNDATIONS

Springtime Salad With French Dressing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Salads at this time of the year appeal most when the ingredients are chiefly crisp, uncooked vegetables, bright with red slices of tomato, or whole radishes, set off by glistening bits of green pepper or watercress, which contrast well with the paler shades of lettuce, endive, sliced cucumbers, or celery. Winter salads must often be made partly of canned vegetables and fruit, and with them the tendency is to serve a rich mayonnaise dressing. There is a feeling of delightful freshness and daintiness about spring salads, with their gay colors, crisp texture, and the zest of a plain French dressing.

Numerous Foundations. No rules for combining these salads can be given. Put together a little of this, a little of that—whatever you can get. There are numerous kinds of salad foundations available in city markets, such as escarole, romaine, or chicory, in addition to lettuce. Use some of these from time to time, with watercress for its peppery tang, chopped celery for its flavor and crisp texture, and now and then a few very thin slices of cucumber. Those who like onion may include it in the form of large shaved rings, or as whole spring onions with two or three inches of stem. Or, lacking onion, rub the salad bowl with a clove of garlic—

Just to give a "soupçon" or suspicion of garlic flavor. Sorrel and other wild greens usually eaten raw may be put in the salad.

Tomatoes are generally scalded a minute and peeled before slicing for salad. Radishes are often cut in such a way that the red skin turns back in points, suggesting petals. If you can't get fresh tomatoes or radishes, use a slice or two of pickled beet or some canned pimento for red color—but don't use both reds in the same salad! Grated raw carrot brightens up a green salad, and adds to the supply of vitamins for which the dish is especially valuable. Rutabaga turnip may be used in the same way.

Make French Dressing. The bureau of home economics tells how to make French dressing. Use the following proportions and make any amount you need: Half-teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne, paprika if desired, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, six tablespoonfuls of oil. Add vinegar sparingly and beat the ingredients together until they are well blended. If you have a cruet, or other bottle with a tight stopper, you can keep French dressing on hand all the time, simply shaking the bottle vigorously when ready to use it. Many people like a tablespoonful of chopped pickle added to French dressing for a salad of this type. If you use it, add it just at serving time.

CANNED RHUBARB FOR WINTER USE

Fine Flavor Developed by Baking, Then Canning.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Sometimes a slight variation in a detail of method in preparing a given food makes considerable difference in the flavor and quality of the product. This is especially true with respect to canning certain fruits and vegetables at home. While there are general rules to be observed in connection with all canning, it is worth while to know what particular treatment will bring out the best flavor in the product with which one is working.

Rhubarb may be mentioned as an example. While it is entirely possible to stew rhubarb and then can it, it has been found that a much finer flavor is developed if the rhubarb is first baked and then canned. The stalks are washed and cut into half-inch lengths. One-fourth as much sugar as rhubarb, by measure, is added and the rhubarb is baked until tender, in a covered dish. No water is added. The cooked rhubarb is then packed hot into hot jars, and processed for five minutes in a hot-water bath. By a hot-water bath is understood any covered vessel of sufficient depth for the jars or cans, when set on a rack or false bottom, to be completely immersed while processing.

What is called the "hot pack" is now considered by the United States Department of Agriculture the best method of canning for all vegetables and a number of fruits. Certain fruits may be packed cold if boiling sirup is poured over them in the containers and the processing is continued for 20 minutes or more, according to the product. Rhubarb may also be canned in this way, if processed 20 minutes, but the other method, in which the rhubarb is baked without water and packed with only the sirup developed by the baking, is better flavored.

Farmers' Bulletin 1471-F, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home," gives the fine points in handling each of the products commonly canned at home. It may be obtained, while the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

Remedy for Wet Cellar

Drainage is the surest and often the simplest remedy for a wet spot in the cellar. From a nearby depression or ditch lay four-inch drain tile to and along the outside bottom of the cellar wall, thus intercepting the ground-water before it seeps into the cellar.

Chocolate Pudding Old Favorite With Family

Of course the family enjoys a chocolate pudding once in a while, especially if you can serve a little plain or whipped cream with it, or a soft custard sauce. The recipe given here by the United States Department of Agriculture requires only one egg.

The ingredients are: 4 cupfuls milk, 1 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1/2 cupful sugar, 1 egg, 6 level table-spoonfuls corn-starch, 1/4 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful vanilla.

If you have no unsweetened chocolate on hand, a very good pudding can be made by using a tablespoonful of cocoa for each cup of milk. Mix the cornstarch and sugar thoroughly, and also the cocoa if you are using it. Otherwise, melt the chocolate in a pan over hot water. If melted directly over the fire, chocolate is likely to scorch. Combine it with the milk and salt in the double boiler. Pour some of this warm milk into the cornstarch and sugar. Return to the double boiler, stirring until thickened; then cover and cook for about 20 minutes. Beat the egg until light, and after pouring the hot pudding into it, beat well again. This gives the pudding a light, fluffy texture. Add the vanilla and pour at once into a wet mold and chill thoroughly. This could also be used for the filling in a chocolate "Washington" pie, which is really not a pie but a two-layer cake.

Why Sweets Are Harmful to Children's Teeth

Sweets may be harmful to children's teeth in two very different ways. In the first place, children who have the habit of eating a great deal of sweets, in the form of large amounts of sugar on cereals, or as desserts, or as candy between meals, are very likely not to get the building foods they need. Children who have acquired a taste for candy and sweets are not so fond of cereals, eggs, milk and simple vegetable dishes which are not highly seasoned. These foods are very necessary in the diet, because of the calcium they contain. The calcium builds good health and good teeth.

In the second place, children who eat sweets may have acid saliva in the mouth, caused by slight fermentation of the sugar in solution around the teeth. In time, this acid saliva tends to affect the enamel covering of the teeth. Furthermore, sugar in the mouth serves as a good food for bacteria which are normally present in the mouth. As the bacteria multiply in number, the chances for decay increase. Recent knowledge of mouth hygiene indicates, however, that poor diet has by far the greatest influence on poor teeth.

COYOTES, HORSES AND DOGS ARE HIT BY RABIES EPIDEMIC

Infected Animals Are Spreading Terror Among Residents in Certain Sections of Oregon.

Portland, Ore.—Tales of an epidemic which is making coyotes, dogs, horses and cattle attack people are coming into the local office of the United States biological survey from the little town of Isee, in eastern Oregon. A band of infected coyotes is spreading terror through the district. The situation has become so grave that skilled hunters have been dispatched to the region to try to wipe out the coyote population. The stockmen are working with them. The information that set wheels turning in the biological survey office came from the Grant county agent, who gathered all the ranchers' complaints together.

One farmer told how his two dogs had given their lives in saving him from the attack of a rabid coyote.

He was working in his barn when a large animal entered. The telltale foam was dripping from its jaws. It rushed for the man. He saved himself by climbing to the rafters.

One dog leaped at the coyote and by degrees worked it out into the corral. Then another dog rushed in, and together they killed the maddened creature.

However, both were bitten in the fray and shortly afterward they turned on their master and had to be killed.

One of the weirdest tales is told of a Bear creek rancher. He was riding along near a fence one day when his mount began to act queerly. Suddenly it turned on its rider and tried to tear him with its teeth.

Students Aid Monument Fund for Truant Officer

Yakima, Wash.—Students in the Yakima public schools have contributed $165 toward a fund for erecting a memorial in honor of Augustus Becker, truant officer, who died suddenly recently. While Becker was the nemesis of many a runaway schoolboy in past years he was beloved by every one attached to the schools. The money will be used in buying a monument bearing an inscription to indicate fittingly the man's popularity with the school children despite his onerously reputed job.

Slowing Up?

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging back-ache.

A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's! Mrs. F. E. Watson, 7 High St., Lynn, Mass., says: "The time came when I found myself in bad health. The kidney secretions were scanty and caused me much annoyance. My back ached constantly and I had attacks of dizziness. Doan's Pills were prompt in helping me and I shall never cease to be grateful to them."

THE DOOM TRAIL

By Arthur D. Howden Smith Author of PORTO BELLO GOLD, Etc.

"Yo-hay," muttered the warriors in natural assent. "We will keep our hearts strong, O Ta-wan-ne-ars." Their faces were more serious than before, but they exhibited no signs of fear.

We moved much more cautiously now that we were near our journey's end, with three scouts always in front, one on either flank of the path we trod. But we saw no signs of other men, although many times we came upon bear tracks. Toward evening we struck the waters of the tumbling little river through which Ta-wan-ne-ars and I had waded that night after Marjory had released us.

Scouts returned to report not a footprint in the snow. We ate a little parched corn mixed with maple sugar and some jerked meat we carried in our haversacks. About midnight we all moved forward, Ta-wan-ne-ars leading the line. The oaks and elms, maples and willows, which had composed the elements of the forest, now gave place to tall funeral firs, whose massive jade-green foliage remained untouched by the icy breath of winter. Grotesque shadows darted vaguely over the white ground as the trees swayed and groaned. In the distance an owl hooted solemnly. The Otter touched my shoulder.

"Did you hear the owl?" he murmured. "Yes," I whispered back. "It is cold for an owl to leave his tree hole." He threw back his head, and I started at the fidelity of the repetition. "Too-who-oo! Too-who-oo!" We listened, but there was no answer. Instead, after brief interval, the howl of a wolf resounded. A few yards farther on the owl hooted again. The line halted, and the warrior in front of him whispered that Ta-wan-ne-ars wished to speak with me. I passed by him and several others and came to where the chief stood, peering, or, trying to peer, into the night.

"There was something strange about the owl, brother," he said. "The warriors told me that the Otter answered it, yet it did not reply. And then the wolf—"

A yell as of fiends from hell shattered the mantle of silence. Flames spurted through the firs, and in the gleam of the discharges and of torches thrown into our midst I had a fleeting glimpse of hideous masked figures bounding between the tree trunks.

"Keep your hearts strong, brothers of the Long House," shouted Ta-wan-ne-ars. "They are only Cahnuga dogs. Stand to it!" He fired as he spoke. I imitated him. Our men shot off a scattering volley. Then the False Faces were amongst us, coming from all sides, springing out of the ground, dropping from the very branches overhead and wielding their ga-je-was, or war clubs, with dreadful effect.

CHAPTER XV

Ga-ha-no's Sacrifice

There was no time to reload. We fought with ax and knife as best we could. Ta-wan-ne-ars and I, with half a dozen of our warriors, crowded back to back. The rest of our party were cut off in twos and threes. Resistance was hopeless. The swarms of False Faces seemed to care nothing for death if only they could bring down an Iroquois. I was knocked senseless by a blow which I partially warded with my tomahawk. When I came to I was lying in the snow in front of a huge fire. My arms were bound and my head ached so violently that I felt sick. "Is my brother in pain?" asked the voice of Ta-wan-ne-ars. I rolled over to find him lying beside me, the blood from three or four trivial cuts freezing on his head and shoulders. "Yes," I groaned, "but 'tis naught." "There was treachery," he said. "They knew we were coming, and they lost many men so that they might take us alive." "All our warriors—" I faltered. He turned his head to the left; and following his gaze, I saw that I was on the right of a line of recumbent figures, which my dizziness would not permit me to count.

A shadow fell athwart us as we lay and a mocking voice replied for me: "By all means, most excellent Iroquois. I trust you will nurse our valuable captive back to full strength and health." I struggled to a sitting position, for I liked not to lie at De Veulle's feet, however much I might be at his mercy.

"So you walked into the spider's web," he continued, standing betwixt me and the freight which ruddied his sinful face. "A woman's pite—and you threw caution to the winds! You fool!" "The letter was a bait?" I exclaimed incredulously. "For you—yes. I say again—you fool! Baptiste took the letter to Murray, and Murray read it to me. It could not have been contrived more skillfully to suit our plans."

"Twas ridiculous, no doubt, but I was eager in my heart for assurance that Marjory had not known her appeal ne-ars, of scouts who wore bears' pads for moccasins?" For the first and only time during our acquaintance Ta-wan-ne-ars' was surprised into a look of chagrin. "We thought it was late for bears to be out," he admitted. Murray chuckled with amusement. "Quite so, quite so! And so you visit us once more, Master Ormerod. I confess 'tis an unexpected pleasure which we shall strive to make the most of."

"The words you choose for your appeal do not commend it to me," he returned. "Nor do I perceive what business of yours it may be to question my daughter's marriage." Now, what put it in my head I know not, unless it was the fact that in her letter to me Marjory had spoken of him as "Mr. Murray"; but I leaped to the instant conclusion that she was not his daughter. Sure, no man could have disposed of his own daughter so cold-bloodedly!

"She is not your daughter in the first place," I retorted boldly. "And in the second place, she has expressed to me her abhorrence of her marriage, as you know."

"Zooks," he remarked mildly after an interval of silence, "tis strong language that you use. You are a headstrong young man, Master Ormerod. Can it be that you have some personal interest in the matter?" Again some instinct prompted me. "I have," I asserted. "Your daughter prefers me to the man you would force upon her. And as a suitor, according to your estimates of the world's opinion, I am far more eligible than this Frenchman."

"You are scarcely wise to say so to his face, and I beg leave to differ with you. I find the Chevalier de Veulle a very eligible young man, of rank in the world, of achievement, of distinct promise for the future."

"If you can call a man eligible who was not even eligible for continued residence at the most profligate court in Europe, I agree with you."

"Tut, tut," remonstrated Murray. "Your words are not those of a gentleman, sir. We will abandon the subject. Where do you propose to incarcerate the prisoners, chevalier?"

"I would not risk them a second time in the keeping of the savages," said De Veulle. "Let us try your strong room. There you and I can have an eye to their security." "That is well conceived. Is there any news of Pere Hyacinthe?" "I have stationed a man at the river crossing to bring word the instant he arrives."

"I applaud your thoughtfulness. This continued delay in the ceremony is annoying. Master Ormerod, your sufferings are upon your own head."

I looked eagerly for Marjory's face as we marched across the yard inside the stockade and through the heavy timber doors of the house. But she was not visible. Our guards examined our bonds carefully, fastened our legs and then left us.

We remained there three days, without intercourse with anyone except our Indian jailers, who brought us messes of food twice daily.

On the fourth day we were eating our meager fare of boiled corn when the door was flung open violently and the gaunt figure of Black Robe entered unannounced. Behind him, obviously unwillingly, walked Murray. "Which is the Englishman Ormerod?" demanded the priest in French. "Here I am, father," I answered, standing up as well as I could. "Mistress Murray tells me that you have won her affections?" he asked coldly.

My heart leaped with sudden joy. "That is true, father," I said. "And you love her?" "As much as a man may, father."

He turned upon Murray with a gesture of decision. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Acadians Returned to Get Hidden Treasure

When the Acadians were driven from their homes in what is now Nova Scotia in 1755, by the British and Colonial troops from New England, their expulsion came so suddenly that they made haste to bury their valuables, hoping that at some time they might return for them.

Some of them did return but others, it would appear, were not so fortunate, for at various times, pots and chests containing money and other valuables have been uncovered. There is a story well known in the region about a family living on the north shore of Cumberland basin in 1834. One evening members of the family saw a boat anchored about a mile from land and speculated as to its mission. Next morning it had gone and a little later it was discovered that a block of stone that served as a doorstep in front of the house had been moved. Beneath where it had lain was the imprint of a three-legged pot, doubtless having contained valuables left by the Acadians nearly a century before.—Montreal Family Herald.

Nature's Perfection With all our knowledge we cannot keep clean a piece of glass, if ever so precious, such as the lens of a microscope, without scratching it in the cleaning. The window and lens of the human body, the eye, is kept automatically clean for the time of one's life by means of a wonderful slightly disinfectant fluid, the tears, and the winking of our eyelids, and the water sent down the nose.

Oysters Like Yeast Oysters enjoy feeding on yeast and make rapid growth on this food, says a recent report of the British ministry of fisheries.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for May 22 PETER HEALS THE LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-4:31. GOLDEN TEXT—Neither is there salvation in any other for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereto we must be saved.—Acts 4:12.

PHILIPPIAN TOPIC—Peter Heals a Lame Man. JUNIOR TOPIC—Gifts That Money Cannot Buy. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Our Best for Others. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gifts That Are Better Than Money.

1. Peter Healing the Lame Man (Acts 3:1-10).

1. The place (vv. 1, 2). Peter and John were on their way to the house of worship. This man had been placed at the entrance of the place of worship where he might receive the sympathetic attention of worshippers.

2. The man (v. 2). This beggar was infirm from his birth. He was now more than forty years old (4:22) and had brought his ailment with him into the world. When he saw Peter and John he asked alms.

3. The method (vv. 3-8). (1) The man's attention gained (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look on them.

(2) Peter commanded him in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise and walk (v. 6). (3) Peter took him by the right hand (v. 7).

This was meant to give impetus to his faith—not strength to his ankles. 4. The man's response (v. 8). Strength came to his feet and ankles at once. He stood, he walked, he leaped and shouted praises to God.

5. The effect (vv. 9-11). The people were so filled with wonder and amazement that they ran together to behold this wonderful thing. Note: (1) This helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women out of Christ are so helpless that they need to be brought where the light of God can be applied to them.

(2) Peter taking the man by the hand shows the manner of helping the lost. (3) Peter Witnessing Before the Multitude (2:12-20). Though this miracle directed the attention of the people to Peter and John, Peter immediately turned their attention from himself to Christ. He told them that it was faith in Jesus Christ whom God had glorified and whom they had deliberately betrayed and crucified that had healed this man.

(4) Peter in Prison for Christ's Sake (4:1-4). It was his fidelity to Christ that brought him this persecution. Observe: 1. The leaders—priests and Sadducees—in this persecution (vv. 1, 2). The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their functions.

2. The result (vv. 3, 4). Though they were held in bondage by chains, Christ continued to work. The number of believers had greatly increased. (3) Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (4:5-21). 1. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). This inquiry admitted the reality of the miracle. They wanted to know what it signified.

2. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). Being filled with the Holy Spirit, Peter calmly and graciously answered. He showed them that they were not on trial as evildoers but for doing good to the helpless and needy man. Since they could not deny the miracle he boldly declared that it had been done in the name of Jesus Christ whom they had crucified and God had raised from the dead.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-22). (1) They marvelled (vv. 1-13). They saw that Peter's behavior and words were as unusual as the miracle. (2) They took knowledge that Peter and John had been with Jesus (v. 13). (3) They forbade them to speak in Christ's name (v. 18).

(4) Peter and John's reply (vv. 19, 20). They expressed their determination to obey God rather than men. (5) Their release (v. 21). Seeing the people were on their side, there was no way to punish them. V. The Church at Prayer (vv. 23-31). As soon as Peter and John were set free, they hastened away to their fellow disciples and told them their experience. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak the Word of God.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Heals Eczema in 7 Days or Less Or Your Money Back

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abscesses and ulcers that are discharging are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moore's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is next to impossible. Your druggist can supply you at any time.

Bees Saved a Missionary

While Cantonese soldiers were looting the home of Doctor Macklin, American missionary, they found behind the house a number of mysterious white boxes which they believed contained valuables. They broke them open with butts of their rifles. The boxes were beehives, and their signal was "repel invaders." There was a rapid and disorderly retreat, the Cantonese army's first real defeat.—Capper's Weekly.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BAPTIST.

Rev. Rex Ray will preach at our building Sunday, both morning and evening. Rev. Ray is a missionary just recently returned from China, where he has been posted as a missionary. He has purchased the W. W. Campbell farm northwest of town and will make his home among us in the future.

The other regular services of the church will be held Sunday as usual. You are all invited.

METHODIST.

Rev. Ray, of the Baptist church, occupied the pulpit of this church last Sunday morning and delivered a most interesting talk on missionary work in China.

Sunday school and League services will be held at the usual hours. Rev. Gilliam will fill his regular appointment on the first Sunday of next month.

CONGREGATIONALIST.

There will be no preaching service here next Sunday, but the Sunday school session will be held at the regular hour.

Rev. Shankweiler will be here on the 29th, and will preach in the forenoon and the Children's Day program will be held in the evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the Panhandle Association of the Congregational churches will be held at the local church this year, beginning Thursday, June 9th, and ending Sunday, June 12th.

M. E. MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The W. M. S. met at the M. E. church Tuesday, May 17th, with twelve members and six visitors present.

The third and fourth chapters of "From Over the Border" were read and discussed by everyone present.

A business session was then held and two new officers were elected as follows: Mrs. Brookfield, corresponding secretary, and Mrs.
Curry, voice agent.

Mrs. Verda Osborn was elected as delegate to the District Conference at Hereford May 24-27.

The next meeting will be at the church, with the last two chapters "From Over the Border" for the lesson. Everyone come.

Texas Railroads Prosperous.

The prosperous condition of Texas railroads is reflected in the report of the earnings of the Texas railroads for the months of January and February just made public. The operating revenue for the two months was $41,648,192, an increase of $6,775,338, or 19.49 per cent over the corresponding two months of last year. The operating expense for the two months was $31,982,399, an increase of $4,683,396, or 17.16 per cent. In this statement both the freight and passenger earnings showed an increase, though the greatest was in freight receipts. Despite the deep cuts that the truck and bus lines have made into railway receipts, the railway lines are evidently more prosperous than they have been in years before. The efforts of the railroads to extend their lines into unoccupied and often competitive territory shows that they are expecting much early development in the state.

Railroads to Fight Bus Lines.

Following closely upon the showing of increase in business, Texas railroads announce that they will fight the competition of the bus lines in short haul passenger business by reducing the week-end rates on such hauls from 10 to 45 per cent. The cuts apply to round trip rates and will be applicable to travel from Thursday of each week, with return privileges extending to Sunday and Monday. These rates will likely be met by the competing bus lines. Undoubtedly this action will result in increased travel. If the roads would only take steps to cut off the old war-tax increase of 50 per cent on Pullman service the traveling public would feel more liberal toward them.

Port Arthur Builds Hotel.

Port Arthur has caught the building spirit that seems to be spreading all over Texas. Plans have been matured for the early construction of a 10-story, 200-room hotel building, with roof garden, banquet halls and all the other conveniences and improvements that go with a modern hotel. The investment is to be about a half million dollars.

Texans Travel Fast.

Texas railway trains and automobiles make about twice the speed of 20 years ago, but that is not fast enough for some people, so a company is planning an aerial passenger and mail service to link up in air travel the leading cities and large towns of the state. The first air planes to be used will be five passenger, enclosed cabin monoplanes. In a few years air travel is likely to become a much used method of transportation, available at much more moderate cost than heretofore.

Terrell's Reforestation Plan.

George B. Terrell, Texas commissioner of agriculture, who is prolific in practical ideas, is suggesting a two cent tax on Texas lumber, the tax funds to be used by the state to buy cut-over lands and propagate new growths of timber. He estimates that this would purchase 200,000 acres of such land annually at $5 an acre. He also suggests that the unexpended funds of the game, fish and oyster department be added to the reforestation fund, as "reforestation and game preservation go hand in hand." That an equitable and comprehensive reforestation policy is needed in Texas is apparent to everyone, but methods of bringing it about will likely bring on much talk mixed with much politics.

Shipping Texas Fertilizers.

The first car of natural fertilizer ever shipped from Texas was sent out from San Saba recently, going to Columbia, Mo. This is the beginning of what is expected to become a big industry conducted by the American Fertilizer Company. The product being mined at San Saba contains potash, nitrogen, phosphorus, calcium, carbons and all other elements necessary to plant life. The plant is being equipped with buildings and machinery for operations on an extensive scale. Texans are just beginning to appreciate the state's natural resources.

Leon County Road Builders.

Three thousand citizens of Leon county got together and launched a campaign for a $1,250,000 road bond campaign. A big barbecue dinner was served. Delegations from Huntsville, Navasota, Mexia, Madisonville, Franklin and Houston were there to lend encouragement to the movement. It is pretty safe to predict that with such a start the enterprising citizens of Leon county will soon see a realization of their hopes for good roads.

Raymondville Ships Melon.

Raymondville leads in the early shipment of the luscious melon, having sent it first to Houston. Texas cantaloupes preceded the watermelon to market by a few days. Raymondville enjoys the further distinction of being the second largest onion market in the state and gives notice to the world that it is going to seek leadership in other things.

What's Doing In West Texas

Amarillo—Through its weekly traffic bulletin, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has directed attention of its members to the meeting of the Southwest Shippers Advisory Board which will be held in this city May 21, the day following the meeting of the Panhandle Grain Dealers Association. The Shippers Board gathering will be the fourth annual meeting and the fifteenth regular meeting of that body, and all members are urged to attend.

Rails—A modern, sanitary sewer system is being installed here, with two ditch digging machines on the job. Four modern residences have just been completed and others are to be started within a few days. A paving project will be taken up soon. Conditions in this section are ideal and the general outlook is good.

Carlsbad, N. M.—Four big bodies of visitors will see the famed Carlsbad Caverns during May. They are, the State Medical Association, Dallas Trade Trippers, New Mexico-West Texas District United Christian Missionary Workers, West Texas Geological Society members with the Bureau of Economics of Texas University. In addition to this, increasing numbers of daily tourist travelers will visit the noted caves.

Lockney—Work will start immediately on erection of a main building for the Lockney Cotton Oil Company. The contract price for the structure is approximately $75,000. In addition to this building, seed houses, ware houses and other elements are to be built to the plant.

Eastland—June 1 has been set as the tentative starting date for construction of Eastland's $300,000 Conelle Hotel. Final plans and specifications for the building have been approved by the local committee and preparations are being made to receive bids.

White Deer—Road signs have been recently placed at strategic points on highways entering this city. This is in line with a road sign placement campaign inaugurated by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which advocates establishment of road markers and mile-strangers perplexion, loneliness and loss of time. The White Deer Chamber of Commerce sign committee is taking action at this time to be prepared to the tourist season now opening.

Mayor Walker and a Bunch of Admirals

Mayor James J. Walker of New York surrounded on the steps of the city hall by the admirals and aides who arrived there with the fleet. The largest array of battle cruisers in history entered the Hudson river. The warships in the fleet numbered 118, and they carried more than 30,000 sailors and 2,227 officers. The men had a fine time ashore for some days. They and their vessels were fresh from the war maneuvers in the Caribbean sea.

Dynamiting the Levee Below New Orleans

This photograph, made at the instant of the explosion, shows the actual dynamiting of the Mississippi levee in St. Bernard parish when that and adjoining parishes were sacrificed to the flood waters of the Mississippi river to save the city of New Orleans. Afterward it was necessary to blast other openings in the dike and the operation was successful so far as New Orleans was concerned, but, of course, the farm and trapping lands between there and Lake Borgne were inundated and the loss there was considerable. All the inhabitants had been evacuated.

Has He Common Sense?

reception mos*

Common Sense, Lack of Flourishes.

think it

Common sense, the quality that keeps one in the middle of the road, is indicated by the simplicity of the writing, the absence of unnecessary flourishes and scrolls. Loops of letters made by the man or woman with common sense are somewhat smaller than the spontaneous, impractical, impulsive person who pens the loop big enough to take the whole world into his confidence.

Clipped terminals made like a checkmark and the t bar made at the end of the word off the bottom of the t show common sense on the part of the writer. Small y's at the end of a word having the lower stroke brought up to the right of the letter, ready to connect on to the following word, show the trait of common sense.

In brief, the writing of the man with common sense is made in the obvious way—the only way that it could be made in. An o looks like an o and not an a, etc.

T bars that are evenly made and letters that show a neatness of form and evenness of pressure, both go to stamp the writer as one who looks before he leaps.

Reason or Impulse?

why did to you fgt

The man or woman who is a natural reasoner, always measuring his moves, is the writer who makes small letters in his script. T bars are placed exactly on the upright. There is no indication of l dots or t crosses flying to the left, indicating that the writer flies off the "handle."

Terminals that turn back and d upright strokes that turn back, show the writer who is inclined to deduce and reason.

Words that are connected and t bars that run from one word to another, each indicate a shrewd and introspective thinker. T bars that are a continuation of the terminal, turning back to the t and at the same time forming a triangle, show an inclination on the part of the writer to reason back and go from one corner or angle of a question to another and all around the subject. Y loops, made with the angle or corner effect, say the same about the reasoning type of mind in the writer.

Has He Humor?

es truly riding quite ink

True humor does not mean a silly laughing at people falling on the sidewalk. It is a fine mental and spiritual gift.

The man without humor has little mercy or flexibility in his soul. The humorous man often pens wavy t bars, and there are other curves in his writing, such as amusing little twice bent curves in strokes descending from the left to the right, as in the m, as well as the other small letters.

One of the most marked signs in writing of great humor is the letter y. If the first stroke of this letter is higher than the second stroke, as in the signature of Sidney Smith above, you may be sure the writer gives much of his time to the humorous twist of thought to situations.

Another sign of humor is the small letter beginning of a word which does not touch the line, but almost immediately begins on another letter, as in the word "ink."

There is more often than not, an angularity to the humorous writing than a perfect roundness, because angularity means a sharp focus and observation of details.

Note—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied.

Unlimited Benevolence

We have no pleasure in thinking of a benevolence that is only measured by its works. Love is inexhaustible and, if its estate is wasted, its granary emptied, still cheers and enriches, and the man, though he sleep, seems to purify the air and his house to adorn the landscape and strengthen the laws.—Emerson.

Poor Papa

The Texas family averages 4.9 persons, and papa knows who that nineth is.—Dallas News.

Wichita Man Says Tanlac Wins the Gold Medal

Victim of Nervousness, Loss of Sleep, Dizziness and Sour Stomach Finds Long-Sought Relief, Strength Restored, Gains 15 Pounds, Praises Tanlac

The brawn, muscle and health that nature gives us soon breaks down under the stress and strain of modern living. O. B. Elliott, 3530 East Thirteenth Street, Wichita, Kans., says: "I felt played out. Nervousness kept me in a tremble and made my nights long hours of tossing and turning, trying to find sleep that always evaded."

"For hours after eating I would suffer intensely from gaseous pains caused by food that soured on my stomach. I had no appetite. And before noon I would feel tired and worn out. My head would throb with splitting headaches and dizzy spells."

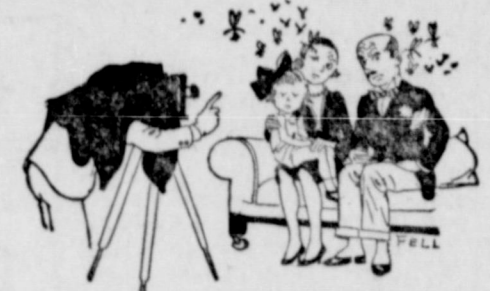

"In search for relief and new strength I began taking Tanlac. This wonderful tonic gave me the energy of an ironworker, a ravenous appetite. It banished my stomach trouble and happily, I can now eat without fear of suffering from a sour stomach. My nerves are smooth as silk and I sleep soundly. Tanlac wins the gold medal. Tanlac does relieve pain that ravages health. It usually conquers ailments, builds up strength in famished bodies. Made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula, this tonic has helped thousands of people to good health. Begin taking Tanlac. The results from the first bottle will surprise you. Over 40 million bottles sold. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today."

Don't let a bad habit get a mortgage on your life.

Bathers "Conservative"

You can introduce a bath into a village, but you cannot make the villagers bathe in it, is about the conclusion drawn by Rev. Gordon Smythe, rector in the village of Stow St. Mary, England. The community of four farmers and their hundred workers raised $1,000 for a new schoolhouse, and the enterprising rector collected a sufficient amount in addition to install two modern baths. Tubs have been the only bathing places of the villagers, and they were "conservative," as the rector explained, about using the new tubs. He, however, has hopes of inducing some of the leaders to encourage their children to take a bath at the schoolhouse and thus start the fashion.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOT. TLE and just see for yourself.

LACE COMES INTO ITS OWN;
STYLING OF HATS DIVERSIFIED

LACE has come into its own. For several seasons past the air has been rife with rumors of a coming vogue for lace. The long-looked-for has happened! Lace in its every phase will glorify the summer costume. Not only does this apply to lace as a trimming, for the vogue of the all-lace frocks is also destined to sweep through all fashionland. Nor is the lace-mode confined to evening wear, indeed no! The very latest idea is that of the plaited all-over lace skirt, attached to a lace-trimmed chiffon blouse, over which is worn a met a dear woman friend who exclaimed, 'How becoming that new hat is to you!' Later on a friend of the sterner sex met me with a 'Good morning! How well you are looking, what have you been doing to yourself—you seem to have found the fountain of youth—look ten years younger than when last I saw you!' The man of it, the woman of it! Anyway it is a fine argument in favor of becoming millinery.

A more diversified styling of hats seldom has been recorded, as exists this season. Perhaps this is because matching lace jacket or bolero with long sleeves. This ensemble is carried out in either black, beige or light gray.

As to the sleeved black lace dress, its name is legion. Here's a suggestion: Buy several silk underslips, a black one, a white one and several favorite tones or tints, thus enhancing the value of the frock as ready for every occasion. Why not have the sleeves made detachable, thus again scoring a clever move?

So much, and much more for the daytime frock of lace, but what of the ravishing evening gowns all of lace which have entered the summer fashion panorama!

No need to be in a quandary as to the modish compose idea so encourages imagination to soar to very heights. Not only in terms of combination of color but of materials does the milliner create. Especially are fine straws and crochet viscas partnered with taffeta, fallie and ribbon.

The fact that the crochet visca hat pictured first in this collection has a ripple brim of narrow grosgrain is significant, for ruffled ribbon-framing the face is one of the latest millinery trends.

what to choose for the next party dress, for lace is the answer. The gown in this picture suggests a pretty styling for lace of any color. The gypsy girdle of taffeta is a smart detail.

Here's a really-and-truly story about a new hat, as laughingly related by a certain well-known club woman, who seeing the humor and psychology of it, thought it too good to keep from her friends. "Soon after donning a new chapeau," said she, "I

PASSED AWAY

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

THE Eastman's day of trouble had come. It would be hard for an outsider to lay a finger on the spot in that comfortable household, but nevertheless trouble was there, dark, ugly, menacing.

John Eastman looked across the breakfast table with pained, troubled eyes. Helen was the same girl he had married a year and a half ago, yet not the same. Her laugh was forced. Her voice, her manner had a determined cheerfulness difficult to analyze. She seemed so bright, so busy, so energetic. No one would have thought of the word "trouble" in connection with her. There was no real need of trouble, but in the little world of which they formed a part a foolish misunderstanding had entered and threatened to destroy the happiness of two lives.

As a sport John Eastman would never shine. He was too quiet, too steady, too conservative. He was never considered helpful in the entertainment of any company. He had his uses, but they were strictly not in the social line. Therefore it was more puzzling to Helen, his wife, when he began to manifest an especial interest in the doings and sayings of Sybil Henderson, a bright, vivacious girl with whom he seemed to have a secret understanding.

Sybil's uncertainties of "I will" and "I won't" had nearly driven John's business partner frantic and afforded John considerable amusement as father confessor to the pair, under the seal of the strictest secrecy. Nods and winks intercepted by Helen had a natural tendency to make her put a wrong construction on the affair.

"You are fortunate, Mrs. Eastman, in having annexed the only perfect husband in the world," Sybil said to her on one occasion. "He is absolutely without a flaw." As a flaming tribute to a husband's perfections this speech was also without a flaw, but it evoked a response far from perfect.

"You have a high opinion of my husband. You flatter him. Here he comes now and can receive it in person," and with her head held high Mrs. Eastman turned her back upon her and walked away.

"I'm," murmured Sybil, looking after her thoughtfully. "Jealous, eh? And of me! Fancy! John adores her so, it may have the effect of making her appreciate him as he deserves if she imagines he might possibly see something in another woman to admire. Helen is too high and mighty. Because John is so willing to make a doormat of himself is no reason why she should wipe her shoes on him. I like Helen, but that does not prevent me from seeing her faults. To John she is a queen, and the queen can do no wrong. He seems down-hearted of late. Well, I am not going to worry about those two. I have troubles of my own."

John became so deeply interested in Sybil's troubles that he failed to realize how wide had become the gulf that yawned between himself and his wife. Her calm aloofness had become an icy disdain. But in spite of her reserve he could not help seeing that she was desperately unhappy. And being ignorant of the cause, he knew not how to comfort her. If she regretted her marriage to him, what a tragedy for them both.

Because of his mental perturbation and restless John suddenly developed a taste for social life. He seized every opportunity for diversion that offered. A crowd of hilarious young people was more amusing and infinitely more to be desired than a solemn séance between two. It amazed and puzzled his wife to see the change in him. And always there was Sybil with her vivacity and her beguiling confidential manner. It was not pleasing to Helen to see John in this new role, that of a persistent encourager of frivolity, nor did she find it delightful when he announced carelessly at lunch: "Some of the young folks want to come in this evening, Helen. A little surprise party. But they say it will be no trouble to you. They will attend to everything."

"Oh, indeed," remarked his wife coldly. "Who are they?" "Just the usual crowd," replied John easily. "I believe Sybil has it in hand. She says all you will have to do will be to make yourself pretty for the party. Have you any objections?" uncomfortably conscious of the angry gleam in his wife's eye.

"Objections? Certainly not," said Helen haughtily, preparing to leave the room. "Why should I? The house is yours."

Why should she, indeed? John thought bitterly. She who had always been the first to enter into the spirit of such a diversion and who had so often bitterly lamented his own lack of interest in social stunts.

The young people assembled themselves in John's house. There was much bustle and laughter. Sybil was all life and animation, her cheeks aflame, her eyes alight with some hidden fire. She, apparently oblivious of Helen's cold, stiff manner and forbidding glances, assumed the role of hostess as if she had the right.

Two red spots burned in Helen's cheeks as she watched the lively scene from the background. She was raging inwardly. Furious, she must hold her peace. Besides, what was there for her to say? But this was carrying things too far. She would not remain in John Eastman's house another day to be insulted and set at naught. She would slip away and go to her mother when once these people were out of the house. John could have all the parties he wanted and have Sybil to entertain his guests for all she cared.

But what was this? What nonsense was going on now? For Sybil Henderson and Harry Lawson, John's partner, were standing together in the middle of the room, and in front of them was the young clergyman of the parish with a prayer book in his hand. Harry's chum had ranged himself beside Harry, and Sybil's most intimate girl friend beside her.

Helen's mouth opened in amazement as the first words of the marriage service sounded in her ears. Her eyes were opened as if by magic. It did not seem strange or out of place that her husband had slipped noiselessly through the crowd to her side and his arm had crept around her waist.

"They swore me to secrecy," John whispered under his breath. "For some reason or other Sybil was especially opposed to my telling you. The little witch! I'm glad she's caught at last. She has led Harry an awful chase."

Helen was trembling. Her eyes were filled with tears. But they were tears of joy. John was hers—her own true lover still. Nothing else mattered.

"Doesn't it make you think of the time when you and I—" but the tender whisper was interrupted by Helen's answering whisper, intense with emotion. "Yes," she said, looking into his eyes with the fond love of old. "Yes, John dear, it does. It does. But see, it is over. Let us go and congratulate the bride and groom."

Sybil's smile was mischievous and enigmatic as Helen kissed her.

"I knew it would work," she said but voicelessly.

Delve Into Question of Sex Differences

Is it a masculine trait to be abrupt and outspoken, and is it feminine to be vain of one's personal appearance? If a man is vain is he feminine to that extent, and if a woman is abrupt in manner is she more masculine than the average individual of her sex?

Such questions as this on sex differences may be answered, when a series of tests at Stanford university is completed.

Dr. Lewis Terman, who has reported progress of the investigation to the American Psychological Association, states that very little is now known as to the differences between sexes in abilities, talents and character. The investigators aim to find out where the differences really lie and how they may be measured.

Definite information may settle the age-old controversy of whether the extremely masculine type and the clinging vine feminine type really make the best matrimonial combination, the psychologist suggested.

Tests so far given indicate that popular ideas as to what a boy or girl is interested in are often far from accurate, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. It was hardly expected, Doctor Terman said, that girls would excel boys in liking civics as a study, or in their interest in public speaking. Nor was it expected that the boys would excel the girls in knowing what the Mona Lisa refers to, and in telling what kind of costume the colonial Quakers wore. But such is the case, the tests show.

Opium in History

From the First to the Twelfth century the opium of Asia Minor appears to have been the only kind known in commerce. In the Thirteenth century opium thebicum is mentioned by Simon Januensis, physician to Pope Nicholas IV, while meconium was still in use. In the Sixteenth century opium is mentioned by Pynes (1516) as a production of the kingdom of Cans (Kuch Behar, southwest of Bhuban) in Bengal, and of Malwa. Its introduction into India appears to have been connected with the spread of Islamism. Opium is said to have been introduced into China by the Arabs probably in the Thirteenth century, and it was originally used there as a medicine, the introducing of opium-smoking being assigned to the Seventeenth century.

Antiquity of Brewing

Brewing beer was a respectable household task among families along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers 9,000 years ago. Evidence of this high antiquity of the craft of brewing and its place in ancient social systems of Babylonia and Egypt has been traced by German scientists of the Society of History and Bibliography of Brewing. There were laws about drinking in those days the report shows. Certain rations of beer were allowed to each class of workers. Beer was also used in mixing medicines, and as an offering to the gods. Brewing was an organized business as early as 5000 B. C., it is stated.

Suicide Statistics

Suicide is more frequent among tea unmarried than the married, according to a study of 307 cases made by Dr. S. Serin, a physician of Paris, and reported by the French correspondent of the American Medical Association. Suicide is resorted to more frequently by men than by women and more often by the elderly rather than the merely adult, Doctor Serin finds. He divides the causes of suicide into five classes: insanity, alcoholism, severe grief, incurable disease and poverty.

"Stay away from
has killed your whole family!"

"DON'T walk through it. Don't smell it. Don't touch it. Go hungry for days first."

She's right. Peterman's Roach Food exterminates every roach in your house. Nothing is left but a little dry dust.

Some housewives make the mistake of fighting cockroaches with a spray. Those are the houses roaches stay in. They live down behind baseboards, under the floors. No spray can possibly reach them, or their young, or their eggs.

Only a powder can exterminate them. Peterman's Roach Food is the right powder. Just one roach gets a little powder on his legs. Back to his nest he goes. He crawls over the others and eggs. Every roach he touches dies and disintegrates.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD exterminates cockroaches.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD exterminates ants.

FLYKILLER kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We know that is true. We have had nearly 50 years' experience.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

New Jewel Fad

Paris has what is considered the most expensive fad of all. It is that each month of the year the chic woman must wear the month's "birthstone"—the ruby during July, the opal during October and the other stones according to their month. The fad was started by a blond actress of the Comedie Francaise, whose whims are adopted by many as fashion's law. Many rich women have taken up the idea with real jewelry, but this vogue probably will be followed by others who can sport only synthetic gems.

Champion Band of U. S. To Be Determined Soon

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, May 18.—America's champion school band will be chosen in a two day musical battle here May 27 and 28, when high school bands from practically every section of the country comprising some 2000 juvenile musicians, vie for the national title.

Prior to this sectional and state contests will have been held in 20 states to select the best bands to compete in the national contest held under the joint auspices of the committee on Instrumental Affairs of the Music Supervisors' Conference and the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. Many of the state contests already have been held. The states scheduled to have bands representing them are Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota and Texas. The six New England states will have one band represent this section, to be selected in a special contest May 20 at Boston.

Each competing band will play four types of composition consisting of a warming up march, not to be judged; an assigned composition, one composition to be selected from a list of twenty prepared by the committee on Instrumental Affairs of the Music Supervisors' Conference, and two well known numbers to be prepared for playing in unison with the other bands.

Three musicians of national reputation will be named to decide the winner. The bands will be judged on six main points: instrumentation, interpretation, intonation, tonal and harmonic balance, tone quality and precision. The grand prize is a large trophy hewn out of mahogany and symbolizing a temple of music, with beautifully carved columns and a decorative arch. In the
