How Bremer Plann ed, Failed To Murder Nixon In Canada

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—A step-by-step account by Arthur H. Bremer of how he planned and failed to assassinate President Nixon in Ottawa, Canada, was read to a hushed jury in Prince Georges Circuit Court today.

As Bremer buried his head in his arms, Benjamin Lipsitz, his attorney, read page after page from Bremer's diary that told of his failure to get into the hotel where he thought Nixon would be staying, his failure to get into the airport where the President was to land and finally, his failure to get off a shot as the President's car rushed by.

'ALL OVER'

The diary related that Bremer, the accused assailant of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, had only a glimpse of Nixon as the President's motorcade from the airport sped by on the way into Ottawa during a visit in April.

"He went by before I knew it," Bremer wrote in the diary.

"A dark silhouette rushed by in a black car."

"All over."

"I had missed it. The best chance to get him was over."

Lipsitz, who had read the first 35 pages of the 114-page diary at a late night session Wednesday, picked up where he left off as the trial on state charges entered its fourth day today.

Bremer has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to 17 charges stemming from the shooting of Wallace and three other persons at a Laurel, Md. political rally May 15.

Lipsitz is reading the entire diary to the jury, apparently hoping it will back up his contention that Bremer is legally insane and not responsible for his actions.

GREAT DETAIL

Excerpts from the diary read today went into great detail about Bremer's trip from Milwaukee to Ottawa with two guns in his car.

The document related that once Bremer got to Ottawa he asked for the finest hotel and tried to get a room there.

"At the best place in Ottawa, I thought Nixon would be staying there. I wanted to be close to him and live it up in the last few days," the diary said.

The hotel was full, however, and Bremer had to look elsewhere for a room.

He wrote in his diary extensively of efforts the next day to find out where Nixon would be arriving and how he would come into the city.

NEWS REPORTS

He discovered through news reports the motorcade route into town and "drove up and down it to get familiar with it."

Fearful that metal detectors would be used at the airport, Bremer wrote of his efforts to find a place to conceal his gun.

He considered his rubber boot, but abandoned that idea. "Wouldn't it look funny, me bending over to touch my boot as the President spoke," he wrote.

As the time for Nixon's arrival approached, Bremer said he went to the military airport where Nixon was to land but, to his disappointment, guards at the gate would not let him in.

HAPPY THRONG

"From the very beginning of this plan, I intended to get him at the airport speaking to a happy throng," the diary read.

With his attempt to get in the airport thwarted, Bremer spent two hours driving up and down the road Nixon's motorcade was to travel into Ottawa.

"Surprised I wasn't stopped and questioned with my strange yellow American license plate and my easily identifiable blue Rambler," an entry in the diary noted.

Bremer eventually stopped and asked a policeman for a good place to watch the President go by. He was directed to a nearby abandoned gas station where a number of other cars had already gathered.

There was a young policeman on duty at the station, and Bremer noted in his diary: "Fantasy of killing Nixon while shooting right over that cop's shoulder."

LONELY GUY

As the time approached for the motorcade to arrive, Bremer wrote that he wondered that as the people rushed to see the President, "would the assassain get a good view?"

During a 13½-hour session Wednesday, Lipsitz put two psychiatrists and a psychologist on the stand.

They painted a picture of Bremer as a desperately lonely young man who, rejected by the only girl he had ever dated, dreamed of becoming important by assassinating either Wallace or Nixon.

Bremer's diary is a rambling 114-page account of his thoughts and actions for a two-month period preceding his arrest following the shooting of Wallace on May 15 during a campaign rally at a Laurel, Md., shopping center.

The 21-year-old former busboy from Milwaukee, Wis. has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to 17 counts arising from the wounding of Wallace and three other persons.

IT WAS LOUSY

There were two references to the President in the first 35 pages of the diary, devoted largely to an account of Bremer's visit to a massage parlor in New York City.

One was a notation that, "I needed a car to hide the guns in and get across the border . . . I had to meet Nixon in Ottawa on his arrival on Thursday — Thursday the 13th."

Nixon was visiting Canada at the time.

Earlier, noting that the girl in the massage parlor was looking at his suit, Bremer said he told her that, "it was lousy and just a disguise to get close to Nixon."

'I'll Not Be On Ticket,' HHH Insists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said today he will not be the running mate of Democratic presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern.

But he declined to answer a reporter's direct question on whether or not McGovern had offered the vice presidential slot to him.

"I'll not be on the ticket," said Humphrey in an interview. He said, however, that he would campaign actively for McGovern.

END-THE-WAR

The Minnesota senator met with McGovern at least three times off the Senate floor during the end-the-war amendment debate Wednesday night. McGovern and Humphrey also breakfasted Thursday morning together at the Senate Dining Room.

Humphrey declined to reveal the names of the possible vice presidential candidates which were discussed but a source said that some of those mentioned included Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Lawrence O'Brien, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Sargent Shriver, former Peace Corps Director, and others.

BEEN A BLOW

Asked whether Humphrey thought that the dropping of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, of Missouri, from the ticket would harm McGovern's candidacy, Humphrey replied: "I think Senator McGovern is the first to recognize this has been a blow, but he is anxious to get back to the issues and get on with the campaign."

McGovern, meantime, continued his search for a replacement for Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, dropped Monday night from the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

McGovern's national political director, Frank Mankiewicz, said Wednesday night the announcement of Eagleton's replacement will come by Friday.

McGovern is working toward selection of his second running mate in the same way he picked Eagleton—lots of caucuses with party leaders and lots of names leaked by advisers with Humphrey the latest to be mentioned.

CAN'T TAKE IT

Humphrey's press aide, Mikel Miller, reported today that Humphrey had talked to McGovern several times during Senate debate on a military procurement bill, passed Wednesday night.

Miller said he had asked Humphrey if McGovern had offered him the second spot. Humphrey, Miller said, replied: " 'So you can maintain your credibility tell them you don't know. And you don't.' "

But Miller also said Humphrey was firm in his resolve not to accept any such offer. "I just can't take it," Miller quoted Humphrey as saying.

$165,741 Head Start

Approval of a $165,741 for the Head Start program in the Big Spring Independent School District was announced Wednesday afternoon in Washington, D. C. This is up about $500 over the current year.

The offices of Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and of Congressman Omar Burleson said they had been informed by the department of Health, Education and Welfare of the grant, which is effective Sept. 1.

The funds will provide a full-time (five-days a week) program for 200 children. This will cover a period of 10 months.

The Head Start program is for children whose background, either in language or income, might put them at a disadvantage in grasping the school program. It operates at Kate Morrison school with Keith D. Swim as administrator.

National Emergency

LONDON (AP) — The British government assumed emergency powers today to force open the nation's strike-bound ports and bring in urgently needed food supplies.

Queen Elizabeth II signed a proclamation of a state of national emergency aboard the royal yacht Britannia, cruising off the west coast of Scotland.

The state of emergency will go into effect at midnight.

Prime Minister Edward Heath prepared to force the ports open after an asessment of the nation's dwindling supplies of food for both people and animals. The threat to farm animals appeared the most serious.

The emergency powers will enable the administration to bring in troops to unload more than 500 freighters tied up in the ports.

Stocks of animal foodstuffs "are running very low and we're very worried," a spokesman for the National Farmers Union told newsmen.

Some farmers have only three days supply left, he said.

"Poultry and pigs will be hit first — they depend on the high-protein feed" which is mainly imported. "But dairy cattle need it, too."

Women Go For 'Sissy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Francis "Sissy" Farenthold of Texas is the choice of the National Women's Political Caucus as the vice-presidential running mate of Sen. George McGovern.

The caucus in a telegram to the Democratic presidential nominee Wednesday, said:

"In your deliberations for vice president, we wish to remind you that Mrs. Farenthold made a strong showing in the vice presidential vote at the Democratic convention.

"She is a longtime McGovern supporter, a Catholic, a Texan and a woman.

"Her bid for the governorship of Texas showed that, in addition to support from the young, minority and women voters, she has widespread electoral appeal as well. Your ticket needs the mind of innovative step a woman vice presiential candidate would be."

Mrs. Farenthold came in second in voting to select McGovern's running mate at the Democratic National Convention in Miami.

'THEY SWEET-TALK YOU'

Ranger Changes His Mind About 38 Girl Foresters

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Forest Ranger Bill Dean says he had reservations about working with 38 teen-age girls on a project to restore nearly 40 square miles of fire-ravaged woodlands.

But after four weeks on the job with the girls, aged 14 to 18, Dean says he has changed his outlook.

"They're a great bunch of kids," he said. "Their fingernails aren't quite as long as they used to be and they don't pay much attention to their hair now."

$1.65 AN HOUR

The girls are from high schools at Delano and Rosamond, Calif., and are working on vital conservation projects funded by the Neighborhood Youth Corps that otherwise could not have been done.

"It's a thing that needed to be done," Dean said. "It's something we're not funded to do and it's getting done by the girls."

The girls — of differing racial backgrounds — are paid $1.65 an hour to build fences, check dams to prevent erosion of streambanks, construct landing pads for helicopters and a host of other projects in the Sequoia National Forest.

RESERVATIONS

They live in rough tent dormitories an hour's drive from the nearest town and return home on weekends. Forest Service and Kern County School District employes serve as counselors and work leaders at the camp.

"I had reservations when the news was first broken to me — 'You now have a camp of girls,'" said Dean, who was assigned to redevelop the forest after the Red Mountain fire burned more than 26,000 acres in September 1970.

After a brief orientation program the girls went to work, clad in blue jeans, work boots and hard hats. They use double-bladed axes, posthole diggers and other tools of the forester's trade.

"They sweet-talk you. I find myself digging holes, then I realize I've been sweet-talked and I hand the shovel back to them," he said.

Dean said the NYC project was first envisioned for boys, but a lack of interest prompted school district officials to turn to the opposite sex.

Six Gambling Indictments

DALLAS (AP) — Six men have been indicted by a special grand jury here in connection with an alleged football and basketball game gambling ring.

Named were Bobby Joe Chapman of Dallas, alleged leader of the operation; Philip S. Bosco of Dallas; Clark L. Darnell of Mesquite; Richard Melvin of Dallas and Edward A. Coker of Richardson.

Another man, Olton businessman J.B. James, was listed in a seperate indictment on accusations of lying to the grand jury.

The indictments arose from an FBI raid in the Dallas area Jan. 18 that netted more than $38,000 in cash and gambling paraphernalia.

A spokesman for the U.S Attorney's Office in Dallas said probes into gambling operations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area would continue for at least another year and would probably result in more indictments.

Senate Votes Second Time To Halt Combat Operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted a second time to halt U.S. combat operations in Indochina, but the battle to make it stick is far from over.

The amendment by Sen. Edward Brooks, R-Mass., was passed Wednesday night in a series of eight intricate, hard-fought votes. The tally on the key test was 49 to 47.

Attached to a $20.5-billion Pentagon procurement bill, the amendment provides for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina, except Thailand, within four months if Hanoi releases American prisoners and accounts for GIs missing in action.

The measure would cut off funds for all war operations except the amount required for withdrawal and the protection of withdrawing forces.

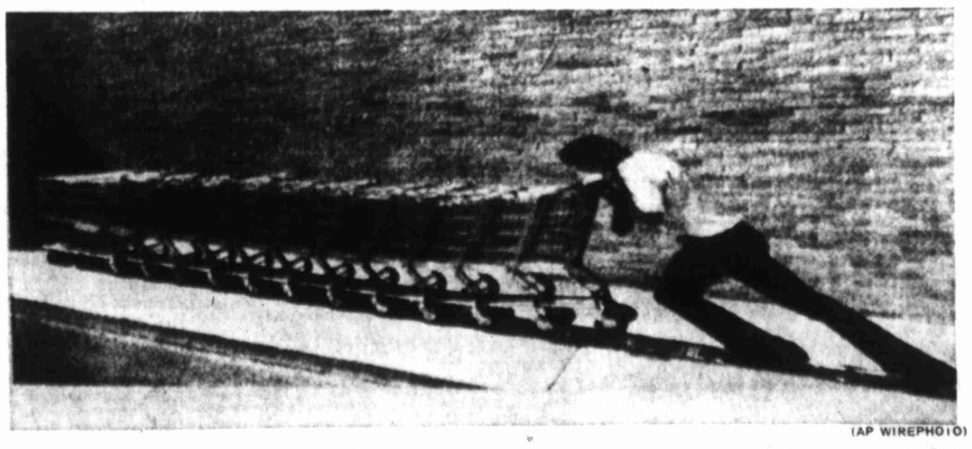

An amendment by Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., to incorporate President Nixon's conditions for withdrawal from Vietnam was adopted at one point 51 to 47, but was replaced later with Brooke's measure.

Nixon announced support for Aiken's amendment in a telephone call to the senator Wednesday afternoon, marking the first outward endorsement by the White House of any end-the-war language.

The bill itself eventually carried 92 to 5, unlike the foreign-military-aid bill which the Senate killed last week after a similar end-the-war amendment was attached to it.

However, the House version of the procurement bill has no end-the-war provision. A conference between the Armed Service committees of both chambers could kill it.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., raised another possibility: simply keeping the bill in conference without acting at all, to give Nixon more time to negotiate a settlement with the North Vietnamese.

LEGAL CHALLENGE BREWING

Hawaiians-Only Policy

HONOLULU (AP) — To the dismay and anger of Hawaii's dwindling native population, a legal challenge is brewing against the Hawaiians-only admission policy of the vastly wealthy Kamehameha schools.

The schools are a lingering symbol of the vanished monarchy which once ruled these islands.

"The very survival of the Hawaiian race is at stake," says the Rev. Abraham Akaka, a recognized spokesman for the approximately 70,000 persons of Hawaiian ancestry remaining among the state's 800,000 population.

KILL US

"We cannot stand by and let people kill us," Akaka said Wednesday as he laid plans to coordinate a defense of the schools' racial exclusivity and its policy of hiring only teachers who profess the Protestant religion.

Perched high on a hilltop overlooking the city, the schools operate programs of kindergarten through high school for 2,500 students in a $25 million plant sprawled across a 618-acre campus. Its budget of between $6 million and $8 million a year comes from proceeds of the Bernice Pauahi Bishop estate, a foundation established by the last member of the royal Kamehameha line. Valued at an estimated $300 million, the estate controls almost 10 per cent of Hawaii's 6,425 square miles of land area.

COLD LOGIC

While racially exclusive practices have been struck down at school after school in the rest of the United States, the policy of the Kamehameha schools had never been brought under direct attack in the newest state until last week.

Then, state Supreme Court Associate Justice Kazuhisa Abe stated in a legal opinion that he regards the schools' student admissions and teacher hiring policies unconstitutional.

Abe's opinion, issued as part of a routine review by the high court of the Bishop estate trustees' annual report, did not constitute a stand by the court.

But it prompted state Atty. Gen. George Pai to order a "thoroughly legal analysis" of the policies and brought predictions that they would have to be altered.

To many Hawaiians, the challenge was seen as another move in a 200-year process of dispossessing them in their own land.

"To any Hawaiian, anything involving his royal past can no more be subject to cold logic," wrote a Hawaiian columnist, Sammy Amalu. "It becomes a matter of pure emotion and rightfully so. The memory of that past is practically all that he has left of what was once only his."

Kennedy Kidnap Trial Underway

ATHENS (AP) — Eight Greeks went on trial before a military court today on charges of plotting to kidnap John F. Kennedy Jr. and others to finance an attempt to overthrow the military government.

If found guilty, they could get as much as 20 years in prison.

The indictment charged that the gang also planned a series of bank robberies.

The young son of the late U.S. president usually spends the summer in Greece with his mother and stepfather, shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis. The indictment said another prospective kidnap victim was Thomas A. Pappas, the Greek-American businessman and Republican party fund raiser who lives about six months of the year in Greece.

An investigating officer reported that the leader of the gang, Christos Ramadanis, described to him how assault squads were to be formed, modeled on the Urugayan urban guerrillas known as Tupamaros.

"Armed with the money they would get through kidnapings and bank robberies, they would aim at the forcible overthrow of the government and the establishment of a leftist state," the indictment said.

Their arrests were announced July 15.

Four West Germans were arrested about a week earlier and accused of planning to kidnap and kill members of the Greek regime. Police are trying to determine whether they had any connection with the Greek group.

Four Star Commander

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Gen. George B. Simler, head of the Air Training Command, will become commander of the Military Airlift Command at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., with the rank of four-star general, officials announced.

Spokesmen said Wednesday that President Nixon has nominated Simler for the promotion and that his assignment at Scott is effective about Sept. 15.

His successor at the Air Training Command, headquartered here at Randolph AFB, will be Lt. Gen. William V. McBride, now vice commander of U.S. Air Forces (USAFE) in Europe with headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany, officials said.

Simler is a native of Johnstown, Pa., and McBride is from Wampum, Pa. Like McBride, Simler came to Randolph from USAFE, where he served as vice commander.

McBride helped organize the present Air Force wide basic training base at Lackland AFB in San Antonio after World War II. During the war, he helped plan and flew on many missions in support of Allied ground forces offensives, including D-Day operations.

25-Year Pen Term

WACO, Tex. (AP) — James Hughes, 31, of Dallas has been assessed a 25-year prison term after his conviction for the March 1971 murder of Malone City Marshal Milton Boortz.

Two other Dallas men each had received heavier terms after being convicted for the same offense last month.

The nine-woman, three-man jury convicted Hughes Tuesday, then spent most of Wednesday deliberating his sentence.

Boortz was slain in a hail of gunfire as he walked to a car containing three men suspected of robbing a liquor store in Malone.

Benny Walker, 38, was sentenced to a life term in prison last week, while Willard Christopher, 32, was given a 90-year term two weeks ago.

Hughes contended in testimony that he went along with Christopher and Walker on the night of the slaying "strictly for a joyride."

One Out Of Five Texans Poor, Report Reveals

AUSTIN (AP) — One out of five—or 2.5 million—Texans are poor, according to a statewide poverty report presented today to Gov. Preston Smith.

The 300-page report was said to be the first such study in Texas.

It was prepared by the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity on the basis of a survey of 4,000 households, randomly selected, throughout the state by Louis, Bowles and Grace, Inc., of Dallas.

The survey was taken in May 1971, and used the following guidelines to measure poverty: a nonfarm family of one was considered poor if the gross annual income was less than $1,900 and the scale goes up to $2,500 for a family of two, $3,100 for three, $3,800 for four, $4,400 for five, $5,000 for six and $5,600 for seven.

The poverty income for farm families was lower.

The report reveals a statewide poverty rate of 22 per cent, with the region extending from Val Verde County southeast to the Gulf of Mexico having the worst poverty problems. Poverty rose as high as 42.2 per cent in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Next poorest is an East Texas area centered around Madison County, 29 per cent.

The rate of poverty for the entire nation is only 13 per cent.

According to the survey, 45 per cent of Mexican-Americans and 44 per cent of blacks are poor. The incidence of poverty was generally higher in the cities.

One of the major surprises of the survey, said Mary Ann Harvey of the Texas OEO at a news conference, was that 38 per cent of the poor adults in Texas were employed.

Almost half of the poor adults have only an eighth grade education or less, the report said.

Despite Texas' relatively high incidence of poverty, the report noted that in 1960 the U.S. Census estimated the poverty population in Texas at 31.6 per cent, or 2,970,271 people.

The report was produced to fulfill a requirement by the federal office of economic opportunity in order to continue receiving federal funds in anti-poverty programs.

School Board Oust Urged

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A jury here has recommended that four majority members of the Nederland School Board, including Board President Emmett Harper, be ousted.

The jury verdict went Wednesday to 172nd Dist. court Judge Thomas A. Thomas, who will enter a final order after confering with attorneys for both sides.

Plaintiffs in the case had alleged that the four board members were incompetent in handling school affairs.

The jury deliberated for three and a half hours before deciding that Harper and trustees O. R. Purdue, Dewey Arnold and Murray Liebersat should be ousted.

The action against the four was brought to court last week after the removal of Supt. Emmet McKenzie and an assistant superintendent.

Seven-Point Peace Plan More Remote Than Ever

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter said today the Communist seven-point peace plan seems "more remote than ever from political and military reality," and repeated the U.S. appeal for an immediate cease-fire in Vietnam.

The secret meeting Tuesday between President Nixon's adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators did not appear to have altered the Communist position in the talks.

Hanoi's Xuan Thuy stuck firmly to his demands that the United States end the bombing, pull out of Vietnam and stop supporting President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The American negotiator criticized the Communist demand for what he called "dismantling" much of the Saigon regime as a "precondition to negotiations," adding that "the psychological and practical obstacles to such change stagger the imagination."

Porter again urged acceptance of Nixon's May 8 proposals for release of prisoners of war and a cease-fire which would halt the bombing.

Assailing the American air war, Thuy told the 153rd session of the peace talks; "To launch saturation bombing raids with the B52 strategic bombers, to use napalm and toxic chemicals, to wage a war of genocide and biocide in South Vietnam, this is in fact the most barbaric invasion in history. The bombing of the dikes and dams to cause floods, a disaster for millions of North Vietnamese, is to commit crimes more monstrous than those of the Fascist Hitlerites."

Thuy said the Vietnamese people "have done no harm to the United States. On the contrary, the U.S. has waged a war of aggression in Vietnam for many years now, and the Nixon administration is pursuing that unjust war with unprecedented cruelty and perpetrating war crimes surpassing the gravity of those already condemned by the Nuernberg tribunal."

YESTERDAY'S STARS TODAY

Audrey Totter Believes 'Serendipity'

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Audrey Totter met her husband, got her first big movie break and, more recently, resumed her television career through what she calls "serendipity."

According to "The American College Dictionary," "serendipity" is the faculty of making desirable but unsought-for discoveries by accident.

'MEDICAL CENTER'

To Audrey, "Serendipity" is the remarkable force which sent her to Saks to buy cuff links at a propitious moment and which, on another occasion, jumbled the film in a projector so that Robert Montgomery saw her rather than the girl he'd expected to see.

By way of a dress that didn't fit and a taste for hamburgers, it also put her in the role of Nurse Wilcox in "Medical Center."

An Illinois girl, Audrey had learned acting through work in radio and on the stage before she was discovered by Hollywood and cast in a few minor productions which caused no excitement what-so-ever.

'LADY IN THE LAKE'

Audiences didn't really discover her until she played the feminine lead in "Lady in the Lake," an MGM film starring and directed by Robert Montgomery.

Thus it isn't surprising that she says now, "Of the actors I've worked with, maybe Robert Montgomery was my favorite, though perhaps that's only sentiment.

"I worked with Robert Taylor and Robert Ryan (such a nice man). With many nice men. But Bob Montgomery had such a twinkle. His daughter, Elizabeth, looks just like him.

Montgomery became aware of Audrey through accident — or "serendipity."

He'd been urged into a screening room to see film of an actress someone had recommended to him as a possible lead for a picture he was about to direct.

For reasons never properly explained, the wrong film was in the projector.

INEXPERIENCED

As a result, it was Audrey, not the girl Montgomery had been scheduled to see, who came on the screen.

"Someone has made a mistake," a friend who was with Montgomery advised. "That's Audrey Totter, and you wouldn't be interested in her. She's too new. Too inexperienced."

However, Montgomery was interested. He tested Audrey and gave her the major role in "Lady in the Lake."

The film brought her many fans and the attention of many producers. She not only attained star billing in a subsequent film but worked steadily until her husband asked her to quit.

"I almost missed meeting my husband," Audrey said, her smile outtwinkling Montgomery's. "I was going to be overseas at Christmastime with a troupe including Keenan Wynn and Walter Pidgeon. So, in the fall, I went into Saks to buy handkerchiefs for the men in an orchestra I'd worked with.

WILD TO MEET YOU

"I forgot one, so I went back to get it, and when I did the salesgirl told me, 'Miss Totter, we have another customer, a doctor, who is wild to meet you. He says you are the only actress he's ever wanted to meet.'

"I said something like, 'Fine, and will you make the initial on the handkerchief a W,' and then I left.

"Two days before we were leaving the country, I went back into the store to buy another gift, cuff links. Once again the clerk began to talk about the doctor and this time, for some reason I can't understand even now, I told her she could give him my telephone number, adding that I would be out of town until the middle of January.

Value Of Life: It's Not How Long, But How Much

By JOE HUGHES
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — In the last few years, Paul Isleman has lost his mother, his wife, his children and his job.

Any day now he expects to lose his life.

Isleman, 27, has a terminal case of diabetes. Doctors say he could die tomorrow.

DYING MAN

Death comes sooner or later to everyone. For Paul Isleman it will be sooner.

But this last chapter in a story of a heartbreak, disappointment and pain is not the usual study of a dying man frightened by the specter of death.

Instead, Isleman discusses his fate freely with friends and relatives.

"It seems I'd be upset about dying," he says. "I always thought I wanted to live a long life — at least until 40 or 45.

"But it just doesn't bother me. I think there's something beyond.

"It seems like there's gotta be."

Isleman admits his view of death may be influenced by the increased suffering he must endure to stay alive.

POOR HEART

Severe arthritis keeps him from making ordinary movements. He must take four nausea pills daily to keep what small amounts of food he eats in his stomach. He has a poor heart, a failing kidney, nerve problems, the blood pressure of an 80-year-old and a skin disorder.

On Christmas day he woke up with fluid in his lungs, the first sign of congestive heart failure.

"There are so many things wrong with me," he says, speaking from his living room couch in his home. "I don't know if it is worth it to stay alive this much longer."

DAY TO DAY

Isleman's doctors have told him he now is living day to day.

"They don't want me planning anything more than a day ahead and this is what bothers me.

"If I only knew how much time I had left, I'd know what I would want to do."

But the uncertainty has caused Isleman to think of other things.

WORTH IT

"I believe in mercy killings, I certainly do," he says. "When it comes time that I can no longer take care of myself — when my kidneys completely fail or my heart goes — it's time to let me go. I have large amounts of codeine I could take."

Isleman feels he has lived as full a life as was possible for him.

"Life is worth it," he says. "I've given life to someone else, raising two kid. I've traveled a lot, done a lot of things. Life isn't really how long you live just as long as you do something with it."

DIVORCED IN '70

Isleman's last wish was seeing his two children, a boy, 7, and girl, 5, placed in a foster home. He and his wife were divorced in 1970 — before doctors told Isleman he wouldn't have much longer to live.

He suffered heart and kidney problems in 1971, the same year his employer had to lay him off from his electronics job because of failing health.

Paul Isleman was born April 26, 1945, in Nashville, Tenn. For his first seven years he led a normal life, sprinkled with those childhood ailments every kid gets.

But one morning Paul was going to the bathroom when he suddenly fell over once, twice, then three times.

NO SWEETS

The third time he was so weak he couldn't get up. He was rushed to a hospital in a coma.

The diagnosis at the hospital was diabetes.

Doctors told my parents I'd have it the rest of my life," Isleman remembers. "I learned to live with it. Sure it caused some inconveniences. I had to stay on a strict diet, no sweets.

"It's really funny. I really did't like candy that much until i knew I couldn t have it, then I started eating it."

REGRETS

Isleman didn't stay on his diet, something he regrets now.

"One thing I'd like to get across to young kids who are diabetic," says Isleman. "It may sound funny, people telling you not to eat this or that. But look at me. I'd probably be living another 20 years, maybe, if I had stayed on a perfect diet."

He met his wife in San Diego in 1954. They were separated in 1968. "It got so we couldn't get along," he says. "Just a lot of personal problems."

DOING FINE

In 1969, Isleman noticed a sudden worsening in his condition. He started going to various doctors.

While living in low-income housing, he went to a doctor who told him he was doing fine.

"He kept patting me on the back," says Isleman. "Told me not to worry about a thing, yet he kept giving me more and more drugs. It started worrying me. I wondered what he wasn't telling me. I wasn't feeling as well as I had been feeling yet he kept telling me I was fine."

Isleman then went to another doctor, one he'd been seeing on and on for several years. He told Paul:

"I'm going to level with you because I think you can take it. You've got five years to live, maybe 10. Under ideal conditions you might live 15 years. But if you died tomorrow it wouldn't surprise me a bit."

This was a year ago.

SHOOK UP

"For a couple of days I was really shook up," says Isleman. "I felt sorry for myself. Then I sat down and thought things over.

"There are a lot of people in Washington, New York, Chicago who live and die in the same flat. At least I'd been around."

Each remaining weekend of this life, Paul Isleman takes a journey into solitude.

LONELY JOURNEY

It's usually a lonely journey away from the city, into the Mojave Desert in his camper van.

"My doctor told me not to hold up on anything, to do what I want to do," says Isleman.

"I know what to look for and when to go to a hospital when I start getting sick.

"I'd probably find a hospital, if I needed one. I've been in so many darn hospitals it's pathetic."

On his desert outings, Isleman collects rocks, his favorite hobby and sits out in the hot sun and thinks.

"I usually can collect rocks for about 10 minutes then I become so tired I have to go in the camper and rest," he says. "I can't dig anymore and it's even an effort to walk up a hill."

CREMATED PLAN

Sitting on a chaise lounge next to the camper, a small table in front of him, the hot desert sun beating on his 122 pound body, Isleman has time . . . time to wonder.

Isleman still has a bit of unfinished business.

"I have to make out a will yet. I don't know why I keep putting it off. My mind keeps wandering. I forget names and places. Sometimes I forget somebody I know as well as my own name, then a few minutes later I remember."

Isleman's father plans to have Paul cremated.

COUNTERFEIT GAME

Do You Know Who's On Face Of $20 Bill?

By KATHARINE STARK
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — A game once popular in newspapers and magazines required the reader to interpret visually a series of dots, lines or impressions.

"What do you see in this picture?" the caption often read.

After some concentration the image would snap into place before your eyes. Once your mind had focused on the image — an animal, movie star or a former president — you wondered how you could have missed it in the first place.

HOW COULD I?

Today people wonder the same thing when they find they've accepted a counterfeit bill — "How could I have missed it?"

In most cases it could be avoided simply by being more careful and focusing your mind on the currency you accept.

Have you looked at a $1 bill lately? Whose picture is on a $20?

"This is a good indication of how careless people really are," says Robert E. Powis, special agent in charge of the U. S. Secret Service in Los Angeles. "People actually accept a bill like this."

INSPECTION

He pulled out what appeared to be a $20 bill and slid the money across his desk for closer inspection.

The corners of the bill were genuine $20s, all right. But the body of the bill was clearly that of a $1. The bill had been pasted up crudely with Scotch tape, and the original passer had long since been lost in a maze of exchanges.

Both crude and sophisticated crimes of this type are being played at the expense of the public for hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

CREDIT CARDS

And counterfeit money is not the only sport of such criminals. Bad checks and stolen credit cards are also prevalent.

Although the rules differ in each instance, the name of the game is fraud. It's performed in real life at real expense throughout the United States every day.

Regardless of the type of fraud used, it could not succeed at its present scale without help from a careless, apathetic public — because most fraud is conducted in the most primitive styles.

ONLY LOOK

"If people would only look," Powis says.

Cesar Cedeno Hits For Cycle To Pace Houston To Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Cesar Cedeno says he doesn't think about what kind of hits he gets in a game. He just wants to get hits.

The Houston Astros' super star outfielder hit for the cycle Wednesday night, collecting a home run, a triple, a double and a single, as the Astros defeated Cincinnati, 10-1, in the Astrodome.

The victory cut the Reds' National League West lead to five games over the second place Astros.

"I just want to get hits," said Cedeno, who hiked his National League leading average to .353.

"If I get three hits, I try for four. If I get four, I try for five."

Cedeno barely missed going 5-for-5 as he forced a runner at second his other time. It appeared he could have beat it out if there had not been a runner on first who was forced.

Cedeno shared honors with Astros pitcher Dan Wilson who checked the Reds on six hits.

"When you get 10 runs it makes it a lot easier," said Wilson, who evened his season mark at 7-7.

Wilson said he still believed the Astros can catch the Reds.

"It won't be easy but if our pitching can come around we can overtake them," he said.

The only run allowed by Wilson was a fifth inning home run by former Astro Denis Menke.

The Astros collected 16 hits off four Cincinnati pitchers, chasing starter and loser Gary Nolan in the fifth. Nolan, seeking his 14th victory, suffered his third defeat.

Cedeno hit his 15th home run in the third, a blast over the left field fence with Tommy Helms on base with a walk, he singled in Roger Metzger who had tripled in the fifth and he tripled in Metzger who had singled in the eighth. Cedeno's double came in the first with no one on and he was stranded.

Lee May hit his 22nd home run in addition to a run-scoring double and Jim Wynn had a pair of doubles and two runs batted in. Doug Rader also knocked in a pair.

Astros manager Harry Walker said the victory was a big one but he added: "They're all big, regardless of who you play."

Terrell Gets Glory; David Gets Game

HOUSTON (AP) — Ira Terrell of Dallas Roosevelt got the glory but Gaylord David of Houston Wheatley got the victory and he's satisfied with that arrangement.

Terrell, the two-time all-state center with a 32-point scoring average, hit 26 points and grabbed 16 rebounds and earned most valuable player honors in the 27th annual Coaches North-South All-Star basketball game Wednesday night.

But Davis poured in 21 points of his own, including a crucial free throw in the final seconds to engineer the South to a hair-raising 72-71 victory over the favored North.

'SURPRISED ME'

"He surprised me," said South Coach Ron Truitt of Cypress-Fairbanks. "He's so quick and he's such a great leader. They didn't really look good in practice but what surprised me was the way they pulled together after only seven workouts."

Davis hit three early baskets as the underdog South jumped to a 6-9 lead before 9,490 fans in the University of Houston's Hofheinz Coliseum.

The North fought back to take a 34-32 halftime lead and it took some fancy scrambling by the South Stars to win it in the tense final minute.

NORTH BATTLES BACK

The North battled back from a 63-56 deficit in the fourth quarter and tied it up for the last time at 69-all with 2:38 left.

David Brown of Silsbee hit a bucket with 1:03 to go and the South never trailed again. Davis hit a free-throw with 31 seconds left to make the North's final bucket at 18 seconds worthless.

PGA TOURNEY OPENS

Palmer Seeks To Regain Throne

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — He's like an aging fight champion, going after the men who occupy the throne that once was his.

Week after weary week he musters his forces to make another challenge, looking for the knockout, seeking a return to lost glory — and week after frustrating week he absorbs his painful, ego-bruising beating.

"Sometimes," Arnold Palmer said with a tired sigh, "I feel like I'm fighting Cassius Clay every weekend."

He hasn't won this season, doesn't have any idea when he will and admits to being dead tired as he went into his fifth tournament in five weeks in three countries.

Still, his head was up, the adrenelin pumping through 42-year-old veins, the muscular forearms writhing like tormented snakes as he clinched his huge, farmer fists in preparation for today's first round of the PGA national championship.

"I still want to win, as much or more than I ever did," said Palmer, the man generally acknowledged as being the guiding force behind golf's emergence from the private preserve of the idle rich to a game played and followed by millions.

"I still think I can win.

"There's nothing wrong with me physically. I just can't seem to make anything happen."

Victory has escaped him this season.

"I've had several chances to win. Greensboro I just threw away on a bad shot," he said. "I could have won the (Bob) Hope and I hit one out of bounds.

"I could have won the (U.S.) Open. I should have won it. There was another, where was it? The Byron Nelson? I should have won."

There's no question that middle age is upon this man who may have been the most popular figure the game has ever seen.

The sandy hair is graying, thinning and receding. There's the trace of a bulge around the beltline. He has a history of bursitis. He's experimented with eye-glasses to correct a near-sighted condition. He's subject to strange, unexpected aches and pains.

But he still exerts a magic effect on the gallery. They flock to him, the elderly citizens, the middle-aged salesmen, matrons and giggling teen-agers, clustering around him, seeking an autograph, trying for a peek at the broad, sloping shoulders, hoping to catch a glimpse of one of the world's most photographed faces.

But there are some deserters from Arnie's Army. It's still a vast, unruly mob, but the numbers aren't the same and the feeling isn't the same. They're more hopeful than confident. And when the hope wanes they drift away to Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino.

"Who's to beat?" he repeated the question concerning the PGA, the one major title he hasn't won. "Oh, it's just the same old mob."

And he went out to try it again.

Oilers Prep For Cowboys; Ferguson Looking For Team

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Oilers will keep up their preparation for Saturday's game with the Dallas Cowboys while their wandering tackle, Gene Ferguson, must be trying to figure out where he will be playing this year.

Ferguson, unhappy over his 1972 contract, left camp last week. He was traded twice Tuesday and now finds himself the property of either the Oakland Raiders or the Washington Redskins. Or maybe both.

The problems began Monday night when Oiler Coach Bill Peterson and Oakland managing general partner Al Davis talked trade.

The Raiders would get Ferguson while the Oilers would be given wide receiver Rod Sherman, two draft choices and maybe an offensive lineman.

Peterson says Davis promised the offensive lineman. Davis says he told Peterson the Oilers "would have to pay" for the lineman.

"As far as the Houston Oilers are concerned," Peterson said Wednesday, "there's no trade. This is a misunderstanding between Al Davis and myself."

Meanwhile, the Oilers dealt Ferguson to Washington for four draft choices—namely a second, fourth, eighth and ninth over the next three years.

Both Washington and Oakland sent telex messages to the National Football League's New York offices confirming the trade.

"As far as I'm concerned, we made a valid trade with Washington," Peterson said. "We never reached final agreement with Oakland."

LOCKWOOD SHACKLES TIGERS

Brewers Pound Detroit, 13-1

The Milwaukee Brewers were working over the Detroit Tigers Tuesday night but the game was called after six innings because of rain. The Brewers finished the job Wednesday night.

Milwaukee, a city known for beer and a baseball team known for its hold on last place in the American League East, pounded Detroit for 16 hits and nine runs Tuesday night. Brewer pitcher Skip Lockwood also limited the East-leading Tigers to one hit.

The team returned to Tiger Stadium on Wednesday but didn't take the normal pregame batting practice. Manager Del Crandall believes this may have helped as the Brewers collected 18 hits and beat the Tigers 13-1.

"They must have decided to use the game as batting practice," said Crandall. "At least my players aren't clock watchers."

BREWERS WARM UP

The Brewers got warmed up in the third inning and scored seven runs. Starter and winner Jim Lonborg, 10-5, singled twice in the rally while George Scott drove in two runs with a single.

In the fourth, the Brewers struck for three runs, then came back in the fifth for two more. Milwaukee stranded three runners in the sixth but Scott hit his 12th home run in the seventh before the Tiger pitching strengthened.

Detroit Manager Billy Martin used seven pitchers among the 20 players he put in the game. The Tigers only run came on Gates Brown's sacrifice fly in the fifth although Dick McAuliffe went 3-for-3.

Scott finished the game with three hits, three runs scored and four RBI. Mike Ferraro got three hits and two RBI and John Briggs had two hits and drove in two.

In other American League games, Chicago beat California 10-9, Texas topped Minnesota 4-1 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 5-0.

YANKS SPLIT TWINBILL

New York downed Boston 5-1 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader. The Red Sox took the second game 7-4.

Baltimore blanked Cleveland 7-0 in a twinight opener, then the Indians downed the Orioles 6-3 in the nightcap.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia 5, New York 3; San Diego 5, Atlanta 0; Houston 10, Cincinnati 1; St. Louis 10, Pittsburgh 5 in 6½ innings, rain; and Los Angeles 12, San Francisco 11. Chicago edged Montreal 5-4 in a six-inning, rain-shortened game. The second contest of the doubleheader was postponed.

Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter for his 14th victory and Boog Powell, Bobby Grich and Johnny Oates hit homers for Baltimore in the first game at Cleveland. In the second game, Chris Chambliss blasted a three-run homer and Roy Foster hit a two-run shot for the Indians. Paul Blair homered for the Orioles in the nightcap.

A'S EXTEND STRING

Catfish Hunter pitched a five-hitter for Oakland. It extended the A's shutout string to 29 innings. Joe Rudi collected three hits, including his 12th homer. He also scored two runs and drove in two. Kansas City produced a bases-loaded threat in the ninth with three singles but Hunter escaped with his shutout.

TEXAS TRIMS TWINS

Ted Ford Leads Rangers To Win

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ted Ford's sleeping habits are very predictable. When there're no hits, there'll be no sleep.

After a couple of sleepless nights, Ford should've slept soundly Wednesday. He went two-for-four in the Texas Rangers' 4-1 win over the Minnesota Twins. One of his hits was his ninth homer of the season.

He also threw out Danny Thompson at third as the Twins shortstop tried to advance on Steve Brye's fly to right.

"On the homer," said Ford. "I hit a fastball up and in. For a change, I hit the pitch I like to hit. On the throw, all I was trying to do was make it easy for Dave Nelson to field. I just wanted to be accurate."

On Monday night in Oakland, Ford, obtained from Cleveland in a late spring trade for outfielder Roy Foster and outfielder-first baseman Tommie McCraw, ran toward the Ranger dugout after catching Joe Rudi's fly for the second out.

Vida Blue, the runner at second, scored easily while Ford trotted in.

Tuesday night, the 5-9 right-fielder went 0-for-four striking out three times.

"I haven't slept in two nights," said Ford. "I went to sleep mentally out in Oakland. Really messed up there. That's the low point of my career, I think. Then last night I struck out three times and left a runner on third with only one out. There's got to be some way I can score a man from third with only one out."

While Ford was the hitting and fielding star, pitching honors went to lefty Mike Paul, who allowed only four hits and one run in his seven innings.

"Paul pitched a helluva seven innings," said Texas Manager Ted Williams. "The difference between him now and in spring training is finesse. I've got to think his confidence is up a little, too."

Paul, also acquired from Cleveland after the 1971 season, started the season in the Ranger bullpen.

"It's great being in the starting rotation," Paul admitted, "but I'm sure Williams will still use me once in a while in the bullpen. As long as I pitch I'm not complaining. He knows what I can do and as long as I pitch well I'm sure he'll keep me as a starter."

Texas scored three runs in the fourth thanks to Minnesota pitcher Ray Corbin's two-base throwing error on catcher Bill Fayhe's ground ball. Ford's homer made it 4-1 in the eighth after Cesar Tovar's single and Danny Thompson's double made it 3-1 in the sixth.

The three-game series concludes Thursday night with Texas' Dick Bosman scheduled to face Minnesota's Jim Perry.

THOMPSON DIDN'T MAKE IT — Danny Thompson, Minnesota Twins shortstop, tried to take third base on a fly-ball to right field in the sixth inning against the Texas Rangers in Arlington, Tex., Wednesday night. He was thrown out by Rangers right fielder Ted Ford. Dave Nelson, Rangers third baseman makes tag as Thompson slides into third. Rangers won, 4-1.

SMART MOVE — Tommy Hutton of the Philiadelphia Phillies drives head-first into third base, well ahead of throw from the outfield, in the top of the ninth inning against the New York Mets at Shea Stadium in New York Wednesday night. Hutton advanced to third on a long fly to center by Willie Montanez. Hutton scored later on a homerun by Deron Johnson. At left is third base ump William Williams, Jr., and third baseman Wayne Garrett of the Mets. Phils won, 5-3.

DeKalb Ousts Red Sox From Soph Tournament

EULESS — The Big Spring Hi-Noon Optimist Club Red Sox were eliminated from the State Sophomore League tournament Wednesday morning as they were defeated by the DeKalb Ponies, 6-1.

Both teams got only four hits in the game, but the Red Sox generously contributed three errors and seven bases on balls to the Pony cause. Big Spring was especially hospitable in the bottom of the first when it allowed three DeKalb runs to cross the plate without a hit.

The Ponies were very stingy with the walks and the errors. Pony pitcher Gary Cooper surrendered only one walk in the game and had only one error behind him in the field. That one came in the third inning, and it cost him Big Spring's lone run.

Eddie Vela led off that inning with a double before Greg Halfman hit a ball to the third baseman who made an error on the play that allowed Vela to score. Cooper, however, retired the next three batters on a strikeout, a groundout and a pop fly and Halfman didn't score.

DeKalb scored the three runs in the top of the first when Mike Moore started the inning with a hit toward first base. An error was made on the play to allow him to reach base safely. Stan Loftin then lofted a fly ball to right field that was misplayed for another error.

Cooper hit a fielder's choice ground ball on which all runners were safe. Ricky Harrington, Steve Dyer and Gene Lewis all walked to give DeKalb the 3-0 lead.

Mark Moore then came into the game to relieve starting pitcher Dick Battle. He promptly struck out Roger Batchelor and Barry Capps to end the inning.

Moore did not fare quite as well in the second inning. After striking out John Walraven to get the inning started and getting Mike Moore to fly to right, he gave up a single to Loftin. Cooper walked, and Harrington singled to give the Ponies a 4-0 lead. Dyer walked to load the bases, but Lewis struck out to end the inning.

Harrington scored another DeKalb run in the top of the fifth when he banged a triple to lead off the inning. He crossed the plate on a groundout to shortstop by Lewis.

In the sixth, Mike Moore hit a two-out triple for DeKalb and scored on a passed ball.

Big Spring had serious threats to score in both the first and second innings. In the first, the Red Sox had men on first and second base before a ground out back to the mound ended the inning.

In the second, the first two batters were retired by Cooper. However, David Spence singled and Greg Pearson walked before a pop to second ended the threat.

After the run-producing third, Big Spring was completely shut down. Counting the last three batters in the third, Cooper retired the last fifteen batters to face him. Seven of them were strikeout victims, and seven more were infield groundouts. The other batter popped out to second base.

PHILLIPS NOW IN SECONDARY

Signal-Calling Days Ended

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Eddie Phillips, who spent the last three years quarterbacking for the University of Texas, figures his signal-calling days are over.

Instead of throwing passes these days, Phillips is trying to bat them down as a rookie free safety with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Now second string behind veteran Kermit Alexander, he is expected to see his first game action Friday night when the Rams are hosts to the Cleveland Browns in their preseason opener.

"I've got quite an adjustment to make," said Phillips, who didn't play defense in college.

The 6-foot-2, 200-pounder was drafted as a defensive back by the Rams, who noted his natural athletic ability.

Rams Coach Tommy Prothro remembers him well, because Phillips threw long a touchdown pass in the final seconds to beat Prothro's UCLA team in 1970. The coach of that UCLA secondary was Larrye Weaver, who now is Phillips' mentor as backfield coach of the Rams.

In college, Phippips' Texas team used the wishbone-T, primarily a running formation and therefore not well suited to the pass-happy pro game.

"I guess we could have exploited passing more," he said. "We talked about it before every game. But when you have so much success running, why pass just to prove something?"

He has no illusions, either, about the wishbone making a breakthrough in the NFL.

"It might be good for some short-yardage situations but not as an entire offense," he said. "The quarterback would take a tremendous beating from those big pro linemen."

Although Phillips realizes his portion of the Texas offense isn't transferable to the Rams, he thinks another former mainstay of the Longhorns' attack, running back Jim Bertelsen, can be just as successful as an NFL ball carrier. Bertelsen was the Rams' top draft choice.

"He can run, block and catch passes," Phillips says, although he didn't get a chance to catch many because. "I just didn't throw that much."

Sneak Preview Of Frosh Teams Set Tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — A sneak preview of some of the state's most promising college freshmen football players will be on display in the Astrodome tonight for the 38th annual North-South All-Star football game.

It is the wrapup to the 40th annual Texas High School Coaches Association Coaching School and some 25,000 fans are expected to watch the all-stars play their final game as schoolboys.

PREMIER BACKS

Premier running backs abound on both squads with Wichita Falls' great Ronnie Littleton of the North and Joe Washington Jr. of the South the most publicized.

They were two of the most widely sought blue chippers in the state before Littleton decided on Texas Christian and Washington went to Oklahoma.

"He's so elusive and he's got the power to go with it," North Coach Tommy Watkins of Andrews said of Littleton.

South Coach Jack Hays compares Washington to Colorado's Charlie Davis, who played under Hays at West Columbia High School.

'EXCELLENT MOVES'

Joining Washington on the South's starting backfield will be Alvin Bowers of Wharton at running back, Keith Thomas of Tomball at wingback and all-stater Marty Akins of Gregory-Portland at quarterback.

Akins will have an able target in receiver Richard Osborne of San Antonio Lee, who helped the Volunteers win the Class AAAA state crown with 42 catches and 10 touchdowns in 1971.

The South's offensive line will include Edgar Bell of Aldine Carver and Robert Johnson of Austin McCallum at tackles, Mark Olbrick of Rosebud-Lott and Jimmy Norman of Ennis at guards and Billy Gordon of Port Arthur Jefferson at center.

Tommy Ingram of Copperas Cove will be the tight end and Osborne will start at split end.

TRAIL ALEXANDRIA

Memphis Shackles Amarillo

Memphis is finding it mighty hard to make up any ground on redhot Alexandria in the Texas League's tough Eastern Division.

Memphis shackled Amarillo 5-0 Wednesday night but looked up on the scoreboard to see that Alexandria had bombed Amarillo 10-5 to remain five full games ahead of the Blues.

In other TL action, Arkansas blanked San Antonio 4-0 and El Paso socked Shreveport 9-1.

Randy Sterling scattered nine hits for Memphis and Joe Nolan hit his fourth homer of the season. Sterling allowed five of the hits in the first four innings then shut the door on Amarillo. Sterling evened his record at 9-9 while Leo Mazzone's slate is now 7-6.

Dan Spillner allowed nine hits but got the victory behind an 11-hit Alexandria attack highlighted by John Scott's sixth homer of the year. Spillner is now 13-5 for the season.

Greg Millikan of Arkansas outlasted Bill Travers of San Antonio in a pitcher's duel. Both hurlers allowed seven hits. Milt Ramirez clubbed a homer for the winners.

El Paso's Dennis James captured his sixth victory in seven decisions with a five-hitter over the aces. Rick Hansen was the loser, his ninth loss against five wins.

The same teams play again tonight at El Paso, Midland, Amarillo and San Antonio.

Baby Market Ring Smashed

MIAMI (AP) — A Miami Beach lawyer accused of being a member of a "three-state adoption black market" ring has been arrested and charged with seven counts of buying and selling children, police said today.

Walter B. Leibowitz was arrested Monday and the State Attorney's Office said the investigation involved persons in Florida, New York and New Jersey.

Asst. State Atty. Douglas Williams said Leibowitz was alleged to have conspired with Sonia Chernin of New Jersey and Martin Ginsberg, a Brooklyn, N.Y., lawyer, to sell a baby to a New Jersey couple for $5,500.

Williams identified the couple only as "M. and S. Kosmin," an engineer and schoolteacher.

Officials said the New Jersey couple allegedly purchased the days-old infant using travelers' checks.

Leibowitz also is charged with inducing the mother of two small children to commit perjury during a juvenile court hearing before Judge John V. Ferguson.

At the hearing before Ferguson earlier this year, officials said, Melanie Rawlings, 21, and her husband Thomas, denied planning to sell their two small sons for $4,000.

Italy gained ground in today's hand, taken from the final round in their 1972 World Bridge Olympiad victory over the United States, by uncovering a superior contract.

West opened the bidding after two passes with one club. Pietro Forquet, seated North for Italy, made a takeout double. Altho he held a six-card spade suit, he also had good support for the other major which makes the double superior to a mere overcall. East's raise to two clubs was a mild preempt, but South with 10 high-card points was not to be shut out and he freely bid two hearts. West's jump to four clubs was an effort to continue the preempt. North persisted to four hearts which closed the auction.

The king of clubs was opened and trumped in dummy as East followed suit with the three. A spade was led to the ace, followed by the jack and West was in with the queen. He persisted with the ace of clubs to force dummy again, altho his partner's play of a low club at the first trick suggested that the latter did not have the queen.

South was now in full control of the proceedings. He led the king of hearts from dummy and East ducked. The ten was continued and East put up the ace to return a club. South played the queen on which he discarded North's jack of diamonds. The queen of hearts drew East's remaining trump. A diamond put dummy in to ruff out West's king of spades and establish the North hand to take the rest of the tricks. Declarer made five hearts, losing only one spade and the ace of hearts.

If West shifts to a diamond when he is in with the queen of spades, the king of diamonds is played and a small heart is led from dummy which, we will presume, East ducks. A heart is continued to the ten and if East plays the ace and returns a third round of trumps to North's king, South ruffs out the king of spades to establish dummy's suit. The ace of diamonds puts North in to run the spades for 10 tricks and a diamond is surrendered at the end.

At the other table, North chose to overcall in spades over West's third-seat opening bid and now a final contract of four spades was reached. Two spade losers and the ace of hearts were unavoidable and when the diamond finesse lost, North suffered a one-trick setback on the deal.

The Italians netted a profit of 50 points for defeating four spades at one table and 450 for making five hearts at the other for a total profit on the deal of 500 points.

The United States whittled away at Italy's margin in today's hand taken from their match in the finals of 1972 World Bridge Olympiad recently held in Miami Beach—and won by Italy.

The bidding is presented at the table where the Americans held the North-South cards. Bob Goldman opened the South hand with one spade and the Italian, seated West, overcalled with two hearts. Mike Lawrence's double on the North cards is not the conventional penalty double, but is a specialized call which in their methods indicates a respectable hand containing values in the unbid suits.

South's jump to four spades shows considerable playing strength and suggests that little trump support is required from partner. Looking at several controls himself, in the form of the black aces as well as the king of diamonds, North felt warranted in making a slam try and his action took the form of a raise beyond game to five spades. This call suggests that everything is under control except for the opponent's suit and that if South has no more than one loser in hearts—he should bid a slam. Goldman appeared to hold what his partner was seeking, so he carried on to six spades.

There was little to the play. West opened the king of hearts and continued with the queen which declarer ruffed. A spade was led to the ace, the closed hand was reentered by trumping another heart and when the king and queen drew the opposing trumps, South had the rest of the tricks.

At the other table, the Italian player seated South opened the bidding with one spade, however West did not choose to overcall on the deal and passed. North responded with two clubs and South now jumped to three spades. When North merely carried on to four, South decided not to look for slam and contented himself with a mere game undertaking. Twelve tricks were routinely taken and the net swing to the United States was the margin of the nonvulnerable slam bonus, or 500 points.

EVERY KID'S DREAM — For Paul Murciko, the rain brings an instant playground of mud around his Hanover Park, Ill., home. For his parents, the rain brings headaches, flooded basements and mud-clogged streets and lawns. The area's residents say that builders have not lived up to their promises to improve the conditions, and each cloudburst means hours of scraping and cleaning to get rid of the muck.

Not Unfaithful?

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am male, 46, married, and the father of four children. My wife and I have been married for 25 years, and we hope to be married for at least 25 more.

Abby, so often I read letters in your column from distraught wives and husbands (mostly wives) who have just learned that their spouse has been "unfaithful." Then they describe how "hurt" they are, and wonder if they can ever "forgive" him.

Abby, how stupid can these people be? I think I speak for 99.9 per cent of all red-blooded American men when I say I'd hate to be married for 50 years and never have sex with a woman other than my wife.

I am a devoted husband, I love my wife, and nothing will change that. And having sex away from home is not being "unfaithful" to her. It doesn't take anything away from our home life. If anything, it adds a little spice, and at our ages we can us some. My wife enjoys a change once in a while, too. We've even talked about it. It isn't the kind of sex which involves love. It's purely a physical desire satisfied. It's like a good game of golf or tennis.

I am good to my wife and family. I deprive them of nothing. I don't squander my money on other women. I don't rent them apartments or buy them gifts. If I see another woman it's because I enjoy her and she enjoys me.

Now, Abby, you tell me, who is hurt? HAPPY AT HOME

DEAR HAPPY: In your case, nobody. But not everyone shares your (and your wife's) attitude about sex. To some, sex without love is hollow, cheap, and meaningless. And what assurance have you that while you're gathering "a little spice" one of your playmates won't become emotionally involved with you? Or you with her? It's happened, you know, and there are a lot of broken hearts and broken homes to prove it. Better arrange a good game of golf or tennis. The stakes aren't as high.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law recently invited me and some other women over to see her new home.

I had already sent her a very nice housegift, but I never like to go anywhere empty-handed, so I brought her a box of my favorite chocolates, which I know she likes, too.

When I arrived I handed it to her. She thanked me for it and put it aside. A while later I hinted that I wished she's open the candy. She ignored the hint. Finally I said, "Why don't you open my candy and pass it around?"

She said, "I'm serving a nice snack. I'm saving the candy for later."

After the snack, I said, "Well, is it late enough to open my candy?"

She laughed and said, "It's not YOUR candy. It's MINE. And I prefer not to open it right now."

I let the matter drop. Tell me, was she rude or not? Wasn't the candy mine? I brought it. ANNOYED

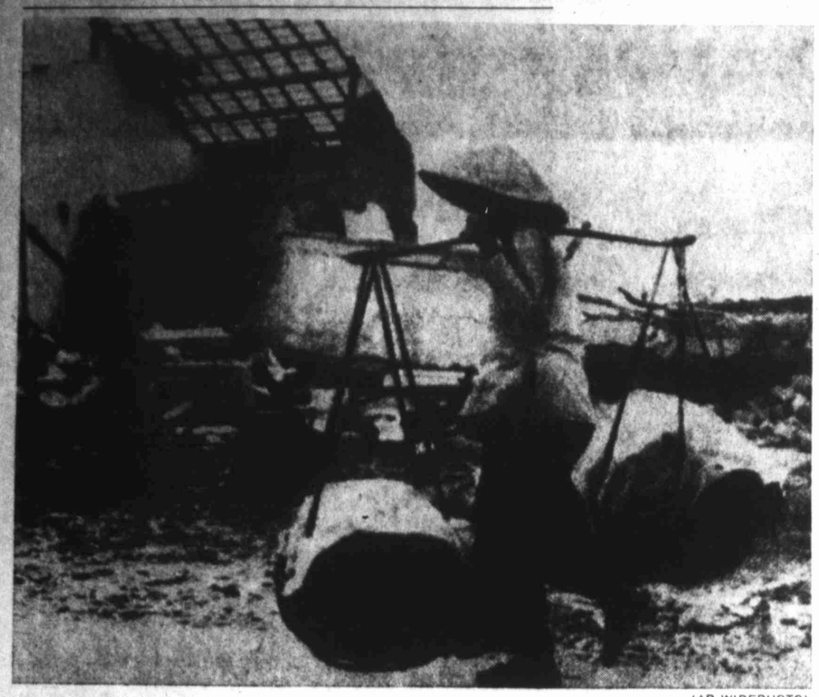

DEAR ANNOYED: The candy was yours until you gave it to her. Then it became hers. After she ignored your hints you should have given up.

LIFE RETURNS — South Vietnamese peasant woman carries her vegetables to marketplace, past the rubble of destroyed homes in the district town of Phu My located on the central coast of South Vietnam. Saigon troops have been fighting in Binh Dinh province in recent days, leaving much of the town in ruins. But a reopened marketplace is the first sign that life is returning to normal.

2,000 South Viet Marines Assault Quang Tri City

SAIGON (AP) — More than 2,000 South Vietnam marines assaulted the western half of Quang Tri City today, but they ran into house to house fighting and heavy North Vietnamese artillery fire.

American jet pilots reported destroying an ammunition depot on the outskirts of the devastated town so big there were more than 300 secondary explosions and 14 fires.

"It looked like a big fireworks display," one pilot said.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Quang Tri that south Vietnamese tank fire leveled the last few buildings still standing outside the Citadel in the country's northernmost provincial capital, which the North Vietnamese captured on May 1.

Despite earlier claims by the South Vietnamese government that its forces had recaptured most of Quang Tri, the North Vietnamese still hold the western part and the 50-acre walled Citadel in the heart of the city.

The Marines last week replaced a brigade of some 2,000 paratroopers who suffered heavy losses in an unsuccessful attempt to storm the Citadel.

A U.S. adviser indicated that the marines would try to starve the North Vietnamese out of the Citadel. While South Vietnamese bombers hammered the enemy inside the fortress, U.S. F4 Phantoms beamed 2,000-pound laser bombs onto former allied combat base now being used by the enemy west of the Thach Han River.

Eighty miles to the southeast, Communist forces heavily shelled the U.S. air base at Da Nang, killing one American and four Vietnamese and wounding 20 Americans and one Vietnamese. It was the second American base shelled in three days.

Field reports said another attack on the Bien Hoa air base 15 miles northeast of Saigon was forestalled when government militiamen found five rockets ready for launching and scores of launching sites 4½ miles northwest of the base. One American and one Vietnamese were killed and 31 Americans and 24 Vietnamese were wounded when 86 rockets hit Bien Hoa just before dawn Tuesday.

Twenty-five miles to the south of Da Nang, South Vietnamese infantrymen battled North Vietnamese troops around the district town of Que Son.

The Saigon command also announced that Fire Base Bastogne, 12 miles southwest of Hue, has changed hands for the fourth time since the North Vietnamese offensive began March 20, and South Vietnamese troops are back in it.

Two platoons of government troops — less than 100 men — reoccupied the artillery base Wednesday without a fight while U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese positions around it, the South Vietnamese said.

National Guard, Reserves Add Blacks To Dixie Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although falling short of the announced goal to double the number of blacks, the National Guard and reserves added more than 6,000 Negroes to their rosters during the past year with the biggest gains coming in units in the South.

According to the Pentagon, stepped-up recruiting efforts since last fall boosted black membership in the backup forces to 23,213 as of June 30.

There were 16,792 blacks in the Army and Air National Guard and reserve forces of the four military services as of June 30, 1971.

At that stage, blacks represented about 1.7 per cent of the guardsmen and reservists. The latest figure represents 2.5 per cent of the million-man reserves.

Pentagon officials say they are encouraged by the black-recruiting effort so far because it represents "the only appreciable increase" in the number of blacks that ever has been registered.

"We're not proud in the sense of full accomplishment," says Dr. T. C. Mars, Pentagon manpower official overseeing the recruiting drive.

Most important, says Mars, the recruiting success thus far has laid the foundation for future increases as new members begin bringing in their friends.

Most of the effort has focused on the National Guard, traditionally a predominantly white organization. This was particularly true in the South where even after segregation laws were dropped, only a few dozen blacks joined.

Mississippi, which had but eight black guardsmen in 1969 and 60 by last Dec. 31, now has 179, Pentagon officials say.

Louisiana more than doubled black membership in its units, from 106 at the end of 1971 to 277 by last May 31. They now account for 3.1 per cent of the state's 8,650 guardsmen.

South Carolina raised black membership in the Guard from 58 in December to 248 by the end of May.

During the same time period the Tennessee Guard went from 152 blacks to 235, Texas from 153 to 255, Alabama from 86 to 207, Florida from 104 to 201, Georgia from 52 to 124 and North Carolina from 126 to 200.

In the North, Michigan added 51 blacks to its Guard rosters, while black membership in the New York Guard went from 549 to 591.

Illinois, the state with the highest percentage of blacks in the Guard, added 109 Negroes, raising black membership to 4.7 per cent of the state's 14,571 guardsmen.

Newspaper Text Seminar Topic

LUBBOCK — "The intelligent and systematic use of daily newspapers can measurably benefit the teacher in achieving learning objectives for a class," according to Dr. Duane Christian, professor of education at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Christian is director of the first annual "Living Textbook Conference" to be held under the joint sponsorship of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and the College of Education at Texas Tech University Thursday.

Daily newspapers and their proper use in the classroom, he said, are particularly helpful in the areas of language arts, social studies, even math and reading skills.

More than 230 area public school teachers from as far as 100 miles away are expected to attend the conference to be held in the University Center at Texas Tech.

Orr, Briscoe Supporting Bentsen For Nomination

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is the choice of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Dolph Briscoe and State Democratic Party Chairman Roy Orr as Sen. Thomas Eagleton's replacement on the national ticket.

"I think it would be very wise of Sen. (George) McGovern to give serious consideration to Sen. Bentsen," Briscoe announced at a special press conference.

"It would certainly be more in the interest of Texans to have Lloyd Bentsen to vote for than some fellow from Maine or somewhere," Orr added.

The two state party leaders met here Wednesday to consider calling together the 130 Texas delegates to the national convention to fill three of the six places alloted to Texas on the national committee, which will formally select the party's new vice-presidential nominee.

Briscoe said the special meeting would be unnecessary since the national committee gave approval Wednesday afternoon for the existing four delegates—two share one vote—to vote proportionately to reflect the entire six-member delegation.

Of the four Texans currently on the national committee, Jess Hay of Dallas has one vote, Mrs. Jane Blumberg of Seguin has one vote, while Orr shares a vote with Mrs. Ralph O'Connor.

The Democrats expanded the size of their national committee at the recent national convention in Miami, giving the state six delegates. The Texas delegation had planned to fill the vacancies at its Sept. 19 state convention.

"I have been notified by the national committee that they will meet sometimes next week. I was most anxious to check their rules and regulations for our delegates because I wanted to insure Texas will be represented in full strength," Briscoe said.

Orr, in announcing that Bentsen is his and Briscoe's choice, said he felt Texans should attempt to influence McGovern to "balance the ticket" by selecting someone of more moderate views than Eagleton.

Law Banning Cancer-Causing Items Drawing Fire From Firms, Solons

By JOHN STOWELL
By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 14-year-old law prohibiting cancer-causing substances in American food has come under fresh attack from industry and some congressmen after claiming its second major victim, the livestock-feed additive DES.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Wednesday it is ordering a phaseout by Jan. 1 of diethylstlibestrol, fed to 75 per cent of the nation's cattle to speed weight gain and hold down costs.

The same law applied to ban the artificial sweetener cyclamate in 1970, and threatens saccharin, the only other sugar substitute on the market, as well as sodium nitrite, a widely used meat preservative, and Red No. 2, a dye commonly used in food, drugs and cosmetics.

Each is suspected of causing cancer when extremely large amounts are fed to laboratory animals. Saccaharin, for example, produced tumors in rats fed an amount equivalent in humans to 875 bottles of a typical diet soft drink daily. Yet if the tumors are found to be cancerous, the sweetener could disappear from store shelves overnight.

The problem, as the food industry and its legislative proponents, see it, is that the law is inflexible.

The 1958 Delaney Clause in the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act prohibits the use of any food additive "if it is bound to induce cancer when ingested by man or animals."

As testing becomes more refined, the government is detecting such substances at levels of less than one part per billion (ppb). One ppb has been explained as comparable to one second in 30 years.

"The government soon will be measuring down to parts per trillion and at that time many more chemical additives will be faced with the threat of extinction," said Rep. William Scherle, R-Iowa, as he reintroduced his bill to allow human tolerance levels in such cases.

"Congress now has a law on the books, which in effect, requires compliance which nature herself could not match," Scherle has said. Natural estrogens similar to DES are present at up to six ppb in honey and 2,000 ppb in eggs, he said.

The cattle industry, alarmed at the FDA ban on DES, agreed with Scherle's stand. "This FDA action is but another in a series depriving from the inflexible although well-intended requirements imposed by the Delaney clause," said the American National Cattlemen's Association represention 250,000 livestock men.

Joining the attack last week was Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs, who called the clause too "white or black, yes or no."

Car Flips Kill

DALLAS (AP) — Emory Bowens, 53, of Dallas was killed about 1:30 a.m. today when his car ran off the South Central Expressway in South Dallas into a drainage ditch, coming to a halt upside down. Workmen had to right the car before they could extricate his body.

CARROL RIGHTER

FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find this day has so much activity in so many directions you have to stop and think now and then just what is happening to be able to bend your efforts with the tide of the day's events. Your best results come through using your fine mind and refusing to question charmers.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Ideal day to get together with partners and work out new and better arrangements, but do not irk your mate in any way. Regular routines can be made much more productive in the future. Adopt some modern idea.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Think along lines of having far greater prosperity in the future and take the right steps now toward such end. Don't put your associate on the carpet. Get out and confer with bankers and business experts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on whatever is of a personal nature today and get such matters out of the way quickly and satisfactorily. A part of day spent on making your appearance more attractive is wise. A more sensible outlook on life is important now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Analyze where it is best to direct your efforts and energy now so you can accomplish the most. Try to do something nice for one in trouble and something nice comes of this for you. Show you are a clever person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good friends are in the mood to do you big favors, so be sure you show you are appreciative. You have to tone down your temper, or you lose out on benefits. This can be a gala social evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do whatever will improve your position with bigwigs and the public in general, and do not forget that civic work you handle so well. Take care of that credit matter that has been bugging you. Reach right decision early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have wonderful and practical ideas now that should be put to use for your advancement. Being analytical is important. Show others that you are a most capable person. Dress well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Being enthusiastic about the work you have to do brings the results you want and helps you be a perfectionist. Take the health treatments you need during spare time. Do not permit others to downgrade you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take the bugs out of any association matters or other dealings. Do not permit some public annoyance to disturb you, your equilibrium. Take time for real enjoyment with mate in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what bigwigs expect of you and try to please them now, and you get the support you want easily from them. Add that new item to your wardrobe that makes you more attractive. Think constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to get into the new kinds of recreations that appeal to you, so plan to do so with congenials, or make plans to do so later on. Show more affection for mate. This leads to far better understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Listen to what others have to suggest so you can have more harmony and happiness at home, and you cut down on delays, deliberations. Add new pieces to home that make it more charming. Improve the decor.

The payments aren't very big, either.

Just a $250 cash down payment and $59.01 a month for 36 months.

(If you're not too good at math, that works out to a deferred payment price of $2374.36 which includes a finance charge at an ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE of 11.08%.)

Along the way, you get a little financial help from the car.

It uses about 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts.

It doesn't need antifreeze because the engine's air cooled.

And although it does need gas, it doesn't need much of it (usually a gallon every 25 miles or so).

Of course, you might be the kind that likes to pay cash for everything.

In that case, the cash price is $2099.00.

Light Rain Spreads Over South Texas

By The Associated Press

Light rain spread from the Gulf of Mexico over much of South Texas today, and official observers predicted the unsettled weather would keep on moving into the state and neighboring areas of Mexico.

They said that what was described as "disturbed weather" was widespread over the western part of the Gulf. At the same time a military plane had been sent to inspect a tropical depression—often the forerunner of a hurricane approaching the Bahama Islands.

Meanwhile a new cool front was accompanied into the Texas Panhandle by another batch of scattered showers.

Much of the rainfall in southern areas of the state—sometimes falling at a rate of more than one inch per hour—spread over a sector embracing Fredericksburg, Laredo, McAllen, Corpus Christi and Palacios.

The new frontal system was cool enough to drop early morning temperatures to 64 degrees at Amarillo, 65 at Lubbock and 66 at Dalhart. Readings elsewhere stood mostly in the 70s but stayed as high as 82 at Galveston.

Top marks Wednesday afternoon ranged from 101 degrees at Wichita Falls down to 83 at Galveston.

Rainfall amounts Wednesday included Victoria 1.16 inches. Galveston .78, Corpus Christi .33, Beaumont .31, Lufkin .30, College Station .14, Austin .10. Palacios .09, El Paso .08 and Alice .01.

Forecasters looked for showers and a good bit of cloudiness to longer in South and Southeast Texas. It was expected to be at least partly cloudy elsewhere and a few thunderstorms were expected by evening in the Panhandle and extreme West Texas. Little change in temperatures was predicted.

Dump Suit For Spell

HOUSTON (AP) — A suit by seven Harris County residents to stop the city of Baytown from building a garbage dump near their home was settled Wednesday with a temporary agreement.

The city agreed to stop development work at the site until another suit filed by the seven could be heard in Austin.

The seven residents are suing the State Department of Health seeking to rescind the permit the department gave Baytown for the sanitary landfill operation.

They claimed the city annexed the site for the operation in order to keep from complying with Harris County rules governing landfills.

Wednesday during a hearing on a suit filed by the seven in Harris County seeking to stop the city from improving the area pending a resolutin of the Austin suit, attorneys for both sides made a call to Austin and arranged for that trial to be moved up to Aug. 23.

It was then decided to suspend the Houston suit.

Jurors Urge All Out War On Drug Traffic In Schools

HOUSTON (AP) — An outgoing grand jury recommended Wednesday a war on the use of drugs by school pupils which they said was now "virtually unimpended by either school or police authorities."

The four-point program for combatting drug abuse in the city's schools was handed to State District Court Judge Dan E. Walton by members of the grand jury ending its term.

LOITERING

The report called for increased pressure by both school authorities and police to stop what the grand jurors said was an increasing trafficing in drugs around schools. They said drugs are being sold to pupils by persons who park vehicles around school areas.

"We recommend that police and school authorities put such activities under strict surveilance. Further, an ordinance or laws to prohibit loitering by groups in the vicinity of school grounds might be worthy of consideration," the report said.

DAMAGE SUITS

The jurors recommended an increase in the number of police and school authorities assigned to stop drug traffic around campuses. "We think this price, even though substantial, should be paid even thought it might require a decrease in personnel assigned to other police divisions and a reduction in school personnel now assigned to other functions."

The jurors said police officers in the city narcotics squad told them they rarely enter school grounds to make arrests unless summoned by school officials.

"The police should not await calls from school authorities before acting if drug use is suspected," the jurors said, "and school authorities should actively seek police assistance in apprehending drug violators among school children."

When drug users are found at school, the jurors said, "strict and prompt enforcement of the existing authorized penalty of suspension from school" of the violators was recommended.

"We are informed that often school principals and authorities are restrained from proceeding against drug violators in their schools by threats of damage suits..." the report said. They said the state should pass a law to exempt school officials from such suits.

Employment Record Good

"This area has a lower unemployment rate than any of the surrounding areas currently. Our unemployment rate for the first months of this year is approximately three-and-one-half per cent," said Leon Kinney, manager of the Big Spring Texas Employment Commission office Thursday.

"Part of the reason for the low unemployment rate locally is that there is so much government employment with few layoffs. Cosden is another large employer that never has any reduction," said Kinney.

Employment picture for farm laborers is a little brighter this year than last year, according to Kinney.

"I have had enough jobs to place crews in cotton-chopping. Employment on cotton harvest was late last year, and there were fewer crews hired for cotton-chopping and getting rid of weeds last year than this year. The earlier rains this year have caused the weeds to grow earlier and has resulted in more and earlier employment," said Kinney.

Huntsville Tri-Weekly

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Huntsville Item, a semi-weekly newspaper, began Wednesday publishing three editions a week.

The new publication days are Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays.

The Item was founded in 1850 and changed from a weekly to a semi-weekly Jan. 8, 1968.

Now in its 122nd year of operation, the Item has the reputation of never having missed a publication date, and because of this it is considered the oldest non-metropolitan newspaper in Texas.

The tri-weekly Item has been converted from mail to home delivery for subscribers residing in the Huntsville local area.

Cliff Brown, Item publisher, said the Sunday issue will contain many new features, including color comics.

The Item was established by George Robinson, an English printer-journalist who had worked for the Galveston News.

In 1915, the late Ross Woodall purchased the paper from the Robinson heirs. It remained in the Woodall family 52 years.

On May 1, 1967, the publication was sold to Harte-Hanks Newspapers of San Antonio, which currently operates in 20 markets from coast-to-coast, most of them in Texas.

The Item is produced in a fully-automated printing plant on offset presses. The new building, completed in February 1970, contains more than 8,000 square feet of floor space.

Manufacture Book Covers Everything

AUSTIN — If you don't have the new 1972 Directory of Texas Manufacturers, you might not know the following items are made in Texas:

Armadillo novelties, wooden nickles, buck scent, dam gates, football dummies, mouse bait, electronic dog trainers, pinatas, tree shakers, snowmobile sleighs, flea, powder, grandstands, dumbwaiters, barbell benches, lights for taxis.

Those and thousands of other products are listed in the directory which is revised and published annually by The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. This is the 23rd edition.

Cheryl Roane Wins 2 Firsts

Cheryl Roane, Big Spring, captured two first places to set the pace for girls 16-19 events in the Taylor County Riding Club junior rodeo Wednesday night.

Cheryl turned in an 11.40 in the glag race and 20.58 in the barrel race. She nosed out her sister, Carolyn, and Claudia Swann, Gail, both of whom turned in 20.8 in the barrels.

Other area winners included Darrel Taylor, Snyder, second in bareback bronc riding; Billie Voss, Snyder, second in barrels 12 and under; Gary D. Sharp, Lamesa, second in boys barrel under 12; Maria Thomas and Lisa Voss, Snyder, Lamesa, second Snyder, in barrels 13-15; Clay Johnson, Snyder, first steer riding; Kell Youngblood, Lamesa, 19.7.

East Texas Voters Prefer 'Sin' Taxes

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A poll by state Sen. Charles Wilson in nine rural East Texas counties indicates the voters there want any new taxes dumped on business or "sin" items such as whiskey and beer.

Wilson's poll shows almost all of the people who answered his questionnaire want a strong ethics act for public officials and also think officials should make full financial disclosures.

SPECIAL SESSION

The lufkin senator said the poll results "ought to encourage" Gov. Preston Smith if he "is serious about calling a special session" on insurance laws.

Wilson mailed 60,000-65,000 questionnaires to voters in Tyler, Angelina, Sabine, Polk, Newton, Nacogdoches, Jasper, Hardin and Anderson Counties just prior to the June-July special legislative session, and he said 14,000-15,000 replied.

He discussed the results at a news conference in his Capitol office Wednesday.

Wilson said 63 per cent favored a state corporate income tax—if additional revenue is "absolutely required"—82 per cent wanted to increase whiskey taxes and 79 per cent favored raising beer taxes.

INCOME TAX

Only 14 per cent favored a state personal income tax.

Eighty-three per cent thought it a good idea for all automobile drivers to have liability insurance when they register cars, 83 per cent favored auto insurance rates to be set on a "competitive basis" rather than by the insurance commission and 71 per cent favored higher insurance premiums for drivers who have received traffic tickets or had traffic accidents.

Wilson said 92 per cent, or the greatest majority on any question, wanted a strong ethics act for public officials and 83 per cent favored full financial disclosure by officials.

He said the fact that 62 per cent thought tuition should be increased to pay higher public costs at state colleges and universities was "absolutely startling" Sixty-two per cent said Texas has enough four-year state-financed colleges, and Wilson said this indicated an "anti-college feeling among rural people."

'ASTOUNDED'

Wilson also said he was "astounded" that as many as 46 per cent of the replies would favor reducing the penalty for first offense marijuana possession to a misdemeanor.

The replies, he said, contained a "disproportionate" number from elderly or retired persons, and he added that the names for the poll were taken from 1970 voter lists which precluded questionnaires from being sent to the new 18-21-year-old voters.

DAVID ST. CLAIR

Champion Of The Occult

By JACK WEBB
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — David St. Clair, despite his widow's peak, his long golden hair and his beard (which covers only the fringes of his jaw), does not really look like a vampire.

The average reader may wonder why such a disclaimer is needed. He would not wonder if he had read any of David St. Clair's books.

That's because St. Clair, a man with the smooth pink face of a 20-year-old who claims unconvincingly that he's really 40, has written a series of books that sends shivers up and down the spine of the average reader.

St. Clair came bouncing into town a few weeks ago, dapperly dressed in a blue sports coat, a Spiro Agnew watch and a friga (a Brazilian charm to ward off the evil eye). He was busily promoting his latest book, "Psychic World of California."

STUPEFIED SHOCK

Half-way through an interview, St. Clair asked for the reporter's ring and, rolling it between his pale fingers, strung off a series of errie predictions about the ring's wearer.

He left the reporter in a state of stupefied shock.

St. Clair is a convincing champion of the occult.

"I believe that most of the things in my book are really true," he said.

St. Clair, whose wife died in a boating accident in the Amazon several years ago, believes that the world is experiencing a rebirth of the occult.

"People are searching for something. I believe THAT," nodding at his book, "offers them a possibility."

EYED GHOSTS

The author says he has seen ghosts "seven or eight times." He has been hexed by a Brazilian voodoo priestess and had his fortune told by Amazonian witches.

For the last year he has been chasing down psychics throughout California, including Anton La Vey, the self-styled "Black Pope" and teacher of Charles Manson, who he calls both a "promoter" and a man who uses occult forces for evil.

"I've been interested in occult phenomena since I was a little kid," St. Clair said. "When I was five I heard a ghost talk."

"Really?"

IN HER FACE

"Yeah. I was in my home and I was starting downstairs and I heard my grandmother say, 'Sib, how are you?' and this woman's voice answered, 'I just thought I'd come by and see how you're getting along,' and then there was this scream."

St. Clair shook his bearded head.

"I'd never heard a woman scream before.

"Anyway, I went downstairs and my grandmother had fainted. I got a glass of water and threw it in her face — I'd seen that in the movies — and she wouldn't tell me what was going on.

"I found out later the voice I'd heard was that of her sister, who'd been dead for years."

St. Clair has been having brushes with the psychic world ever since, he says.

UNDER HER SPELL

While he was in Brazil, working as a reporter, a voodoo priestess put a spell on him.

"She put a spell on me and I couldn't get any further in anything — in my personal life, business, anything."

St. Clair went to a midnight "purification ceremony" to get the spell lifted.

The ceremony worked, St. Clair said. He had been nearly broke, and within a week money started pouring in.

St. Clair said he was led to write the book about California psychics by forces beyond his control — a Brazilian fortune teller predicted it, in fact, before he had any idea of doing such a thing.

Since then he has interviewed dozens of California psychics. Originally expecting to find nothing but a few frauds and penny-ante psychics, he was amazed by the wealth of occultists in the Golden State.

St. Clair interviewed a small boy who said he could make the flames of candles shoot up like flares, just by looking at them. He interviewed spirit healers and fortune tellers.

Presidents Of Egypt, Libya Threaten West With Oil Crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The presidents of Libya and Egypt, announcing their intention to make their nations one, evidently mean to threaten the United States and the West with measures leading eventually to an oil crisis. But some may see a ring of desperation in their words more suggestive of frustration than of menace.

Both Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Muammar Kadafi of Libya are subject to home pressures and to infuriating contradictions on the world stage.

The two leaders seem frustrated because they are opposed not only by Arabs but by the powerful Russians to whom they have looked for help without a full measure of trust.

GO-IT-ALONE

So the Egypt-Libya union has the sound of a defiant go-it-alone challenge to Israel, the United States, Europe and Russia, all at once. To hear the young and hot-headed Col. Kadafi tell it, as he did in a speech more than a year ago, Egypt and Libya will lead a legion of a million Arab men, an air armada of a thousand planes and a land fleet of 5,000 tanks in a Jihad—a holy war—to crush Israel and "liberate" Palestine once and for all.

Now he and Sadat have made what purports to be a step in his direction.

The proposition is that united Arabs will mobilize and arm for the final battle with the money they get from Arab oil. Meanwhile they could mortally wound their "imperialist" antagonists by shutting off the oil.

But Arab unity has invariably been more shadow than substance, however passionate Kadafi seems to be about it. The United Arab Republic combining Egypt and Syria crumbled in 1961 after three shaky years. An attempt to unite Sudan with Egypt and Libya has wound up nowhere. The "federation" of Syria, Libya and Egypt, formed a year ago, is opposed by a number of elements, including Russian-backed Syrian Communists.

OIL WEAPON

The Sadat-Kadafi joint statement, an echo of a speech Sadat made last week, noted that the Arab world possesses a powerful weapon, oil, "which if used effectively and successfully would realize our goals, because Arab oil provides 60 per cent of the world's consumption." The West knows this and thus tries to stop Arab unity, it said.

But Egypt and Libya have yet to convince the Arabian peninsula's sheiks that they should shut off oil to the West. Libya gets $2.4 billion a year in oil revenue—in a nation of 2½ million people—but the Arab rulers cannot drink their oil. It's no good to them until it is out of the ground and marketed. And for Kadafi it can be political dynamite if the Libyans get restless and demand a bigger share of the oil wealth.

Perhaps some day joint Arab action might jolt the West. At the rate the developed world uses oil, a crunch will come some day unless big new sources of energy can be tapped. But the day does not seem close at hand, and meantime Arabs must wrestle with their own baffling troubles.

WASN'T ENOUGH

Egypt got Russian help twice over, in the form of billions of rubles worth of arms, but it wasn't enough to permit the risk of attacking Israel. Now the relationship is souring and Sadat has sent Soviet military advisers home, even though their services probably remain necessary.

Both Sadat and Kadafi—especially Kadafi—are devout Moslems who abhor atheistic Communism. Both fear Moscow.

Both leaders were shaken when the Communists in Sudan, then overflowing with Soviet arms and advisers, tried to seize that Arab nation.

Neither Sadat nor Kadafi has looked secure in his position lately. Still, the two might be able to bring their project off, whereupon a year hence there will exist a combined nation of 35 million Egyptians and 2½ million Libyans equipped with Libya's oil money and Egypt's myriad of troubles. The new Egypt-Libya would still, however, be a long way from being in a position to launch their Jihad.

Hospital Group Plans Party

Family night for those connected with Big Spring State Hospital has been set for Tuesday 7:30 p.m. at the large pavilion in Comanche Trail Park.

Each family brings its buns, weiners and beverage, and the Texas Public Employes Association will furnish the chili, mustard, onions and chips for the hot dogs. TPEA also will furnish watermelons for the occasion.

Softball and croquet, etc. are set up prior to the picnic, followed by music and dancing.

Dividend Up

AMARILLO — The board of directors of Pioneer Natural Gas Company, at its regular meeting Tuesday, declared a quarterly dividend of 21 cents, This represents an increase of one half cent per share in the regular quarterly dividend rate paid by Pioneer. Burton P. Smith, Pioneer president, said that for the six months ended June 30, 1972, Pioneer earnings increased 8 cents per share, or 11.4 per cent.

Beneficiaries Check Urged

The Veterans Administration this week has urged all GI insurance policyholders to take a second look at the type of policy pay-off they have selected for their next of kin. Jack Coker, VA regional director, said today. Beneficiaries also should be checked.

VA warned that too many widows of GI policyholders are penalized following the death of their husbands upon learning he had selected small monthly payments over 36 month periods. In some cases, Coker noted, veterans chose smaller payments for life more than 25 years ago, and never updated their policies. In some instances their family situation has changed entirely.

Will Attend Electric Meet

Leadership and the role of Texas' 80 rural electric cooperatives will be discussed during the 32nd annual meeting of the State Association of Texas Electric Cooperatives in San Antonio's Convention Center, Aug. 10-11.

People attending the convention from the Caprock Electric Cooperative in Stanton will include O. B. Bryan, Jim Eiland of Stanton and Glenn Cantrell, Big Spring, president.

An indepth look at the electric industry will be presented by T. L. Austin, Jr., president of Texas Utilities and chairman of the board of Texas Power & Light Company. Economic development will be covered by Dr. Will Erwin, deputy under secretary of Rural Development in the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

The final Friday morning session will feature an address by David A. Hamil, administrator of the rural Electrification Administration; the business session; and election of officers.

An annual meeting highlight will be the Thursday evening banquet and pageant when the 1972-73 Miss Texas Rural Electrification will be selected to replace the current reigning Cynthia Akin, Slaton.

Juarez Bust May Replace 'Popeye'

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — A statue of Popeye the Sailor may be replaced here by a gift from Mexico's President—a bust of Mexican national hero Benito Juarez.

A large, multi-color likeness of the spinach-eating comic strip character now stands in front of City Hall in this Southwest Texas town, which is dubbed the "Spinach Capital of the World."

City Manager Francisco Rodriguez said Wednesday that "Popeye" may be moved to a planned children's park, "where it belongs."

Site of the Juarez bust is yet to be determined, but it may be located near where "Popeye" now stands, he said.

Rodriguez said the city received the larger-than-life bust of Juarez on Tuesday as a result of a meeting in San Antonio with Mexico's President Luis Echeverria.

Rodriguez and other Crystal City officials, all members of Raza Unida, the Mexican-American party that virtually controls politics here, met with Echeverria on June 19. The President pledged at the time to send a Juarez bust to this predominantly Mexican-American town, Rodriguez said.

Also as a result of that meeting, Echeverria recently sent his rural director of industry to Crystal City for talks with Raza Unida officials on ways to stimulate the economy here.

The President met with the Crystal City delegation while in San Antonio to dedicate a New Mexican Cultural Institute, where a bust of Juarez also is prominently displayed.

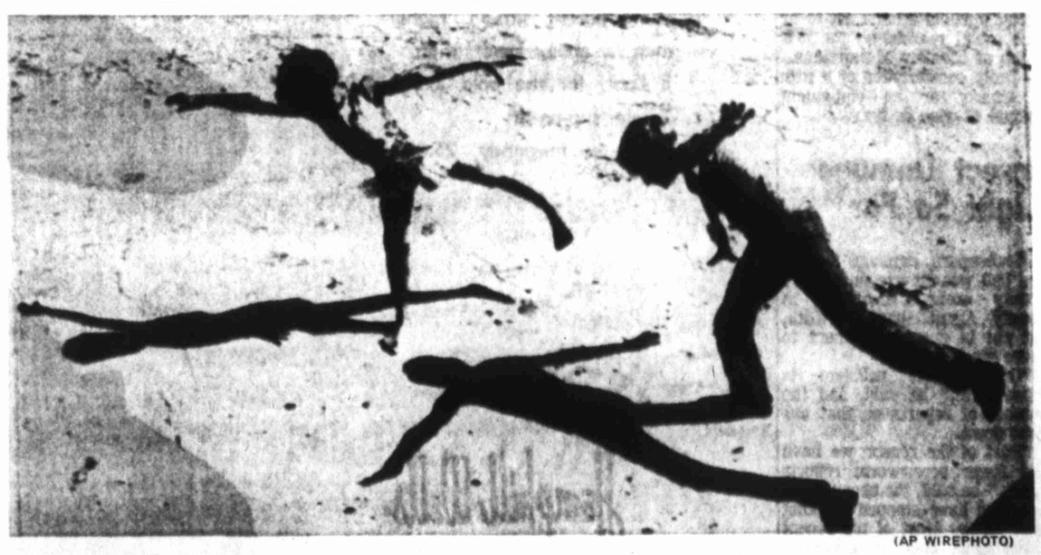

Rodriguez said Mexican dignitaries are expected to attend ceremonies to formally unveil the bust. A date has not yet been set.

He said he realized that if "Popeye" is moved, it probably will "create a ruckus" among some people here. But he said the Juarez statue is "a little more dignified."

Beaten To Death

HOUSTON (AP) — Sheriff's deputies found the body of John Poxon, 42, in a roadside rest area near the San Jacinto River bridge on Interstate 10 east early today.

They said Poxon, whose home was in the northwest part of Harris County, had parked his car and left his coat neatly folded on the seat but marks on his head indicated he was beaten to death.

SHADOW FUN — "I have a shadow that goes in and out with me and what can be the use of him is more than I can see," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson. But years later seven-year-old Joyce Evans and Clifford Mauldin, 12, of Greenville, Tex., found use for their faithful companion while playing in a park.

'I'M AN INSTANT LOVER, JUST ADD BOOZE'

Not Much For A Dime In Dime Stores

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

It is generally agreed that an hour for lunch is too long. Given an immediate seat at a reasonably alert restaurant, you lunch in half-hour. From a reasonably alert restaurant, you can finish an uncomplicated lunch in a half-hour. From a brown bag opened at your desk or in the park, without bolting or dawdling either, you can do your sandwiches in 10 minutes.

This, then, since most firms indulge their employes in lunch "hours," leaves millions of us with 30 to 40 minutes on our hands.

Many of us "walk it off," an exercise some authorities believe does more harm than good. And we often walk it off in stores; most likely, in that wonderful old American institution of a store called the dime store or the five-and-ten.

Although we still call it that — much like we call a refrigerator an ice box — the five-and-ten isn't anymore, frankly, because there is so little we can buy for a dime or a nickel.

Usually they are called variety stores. Most of the giants simply log their names on their familiar red and gold signs: F. W. Woolworth Co., S. S. Kresge Co. Only one, Cornet, still calls itself a 5, 10 and 25-cent store.

But whatever they are called, it is here that millions of Americans will have spent up to 3½ years of their lives when their working days are done, wandering through the aisles looking like comparative shoppers or thieves, but searching really for that elusive, nostalgic bird of their youth, the 5 and 10-cent merchandise.

In a tour through six dime stores, I found some for you, but not without some effort.

You can get an important document copied for 10 cents, although two out of three copiers I saw were out of order.

You can get a postcare (10 cents) bearing the excruciating good humor of, "I'm an instant lover, just add booze." On the other side it says, "Place Stamp Here."

And while certainly not a nickel or a dime, you can buy eyeglasses for $4.69. I had an uncle who during the last 25 or 30 years of his life bought his spectacles in a dime store. And he always left the price sticker in the corner of one lens. It was stamped $1.25.

"Only trouble with my eyes," he would say, "is they're old, and these glasses are good enough." They were, too. When he took them off he couldn't see the price sticker and when he put them on it was too close.

He smoked unfiltered Lucky Strikes and drank Yellowstone bourbon every day of his adult life. He died when he was 87.

OK. I frankly was hard-pressed to find anything for a nickel. However, I did find a nickel for $24.50 — a 1950-D Jefferson. And I found five bouillon cubes for 19 cents.

One store had assorted nips for 98 cents. A nip, you should know, is that little candy that comes twisted up in paper and sticks to the roof of your mouth.

You can buy a pencil sharpener for a dime, the kind you turn, and some J & P Coats thread (do two men named Coats really make thread?). Some hose nozzle washers made in Japan looking like a dime, but were a strange 13 cents.

Three tiny fake bananas with leaves from a petunia were 10 cents, also a fake yellow crookneck squash. A fake lemon, inexplicably, was 19 cents.

And, hey, here's a bargain to go along with the eyeglasses: two for $1. You can get a copy of Whistler's Mother and The Painter With His Wife Sakia by Rembrandt, complete with frames.

And the most wonderful part of it is, it doesn't make any difference which one you hang where, since they look exactly alike.

How NASA Saved Shuttle By Hacking Down Costs

By FRANK MACOMBER
Military-Aerospace Writer
Copley News Service

Back of America's upcoming manned space shuttle system is a story of how federal space agency officials saved the project from death by cutting cost estimates.

NASA's backstage agonizing is significant now that the agency has awarded North American Rockwell Corp. a $2.6 billion contract to build the space shuttle craft, the first of three big-money shuttle system awards to be made by mid-1973.

KNOWS STORY

The man who knows the story of how NASA cut the cost of the shuttle system is Mel Cohen, manager of planning and marketing for United Technology Center, Sunnyvale, Calif., a division of United Aircraft Corp.

Cohen says reduced cost was a must when it came to selling Congress on the shuttle system. Economy-minded Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., particularly, had to be persuaded.

Ideally, the shuttle system should have not only a manned earth orbiter which could be flown back to earth like an airplane, but a fully recoverable booster as well, NASA officials agreed early in the planning stage.

The agency officials were told by their engineers and technicians that such a fully recoverable system would cost from $10 billion to $15 billion instead of the 5 billion estimated earlier, Cohen recalled in an interview.

BACK OFF

"So NASA had to back away and look at alternatives, because that was too much money at a time when the space program was not capturing the imagination of the American taxpayer," he said.

One of the alternatives was a change from the first (IC) stage of the Saturn moon rocket to a modified Titan "workhorse" booster, with its two strap-on rockets. But with liquid-fueled engines this still would be an expensive undertaking. Thus NASA decided to slect solid fuel motors for the strap-on rockets — co-boosters that could be recovered for reuse after they parachuted back into the sea once the manned orbiter was on its way around the world.

The orbital craft which carries astronauts also had to be recoverable to keep the shuttle system price tag from zooming clear out of sight. And the booster recovery was desirable for the same monetary reasons.

COST CEILING

Further economy was forced on NASA when President Nixon slapped a $5.5 billion cost ceiling on the shuttle program, at the rate of roughly $1 billion a year for five years.

A chief objective of the program is to hold recurring costs for each shuttle launch to $10 million. To achieve this goal with liquid fuel boosters, each would have to be recovered from 50 to 100 times for reuse.

FIRST TIME

With solid fuel rockets, the $10 million-or-less per launch level can be achieved with 10 to 20 booster recoveries, Cohen said. Each additional launch will cut operational costs.

"This will be the first time a major NASA program has been faced with stringent spending limits," he said. "The agency is in the fishbowl.

"It must take the minimum risk approach in the shuttle program and use proved technologies wherever possible to meet the funding limits set forth by the President and Congress."

EXPERIENCE

United Technology Center is bidding on the estimated billion-dollar shuttle booster engine contract with eight years of solid fuel engine experience behind it. Its competitors for the award, to be made by NASA either late this year or early in 1973, include Aerojet General, Sacramento, Calif.; Thiokol, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Lockheed Propulsion, Redlands, Calif. Each has experience in this field.

Cohen also foresees military use of the shuttle program for launching satellites and repairing them later in orbit — especially if the shuttle cost can be kept to an anticipated record-low cost of $200 per pound of payload for each launch.

Math Model Predicts Economy Will Improve

HOUSTON (AP) — An economist at the University of Houston says, based on a mathematical model, the U.S. economy will continue to improve for the remainder of 1972.

The nation's Gross National Product, the aggregate value of goods and services predicted for final use, will total $1.14 trillion for 1972, Dr. R. William Thomas predicts.

He says he also sees a slowing in the rate of inflation to an overall increase in prices of 3.8 per cent for 1972 and unemployment declining to 5.3 per cent by year end.

The mathematical model of the economy on which the forecasts are based relies on the results of surveys of consumer spending plans, business investment anticipations and governmental projections, Thomas said.

In recent months, all these indicaters have brightened substantially, forcing upward revisions in most economic projections, he added.

The model shows home building leading the recovery pace. Construction outlays should total almost 25 per cent more than last year's figures, he said.

Consumer purchases of appliances and furniture also are strong, he said, with the major weakness in automobile sales, where no increase in unit sales for 1971 is forseen.

Fingerprints Of FBI's Gray

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three months on the job, the fingerprints of L. Patrick Gray III are clearly noticeable on the structure of the FBI.

As expected, much of the change has been in style of leadership only, but acting director Gray, 56 this month, also has made some moves that may presage major changes.

FEMALE AGENTS

For instance, a former nun and a former woman marine officer were sworn in last week, becoming the first two females to start special-agent training.

Gray's predecessor, J. Edgar Hoover, refused to permit women agents during his 48 years as head of the agency because he thought tracking down lawbreakers was too dangerous.

But Gray made the recruitment of women one of the first orders of business when he took over May 3. He also established a new office to help recruit more minorities—black Americans, Spanish-Americans, American Indians and Asian-Americans.

He also improved morale by relaxing dress and hair codes. But he said he would not tolerate extremism.

HAIR STYLE

"I don't judge the performance of a person on the basis of the color of his shirt, for example," Gray said. "I don't judge a person on the type of suit he wears, or the length of his hair, or his hair style."

Since moving over from the Justice Department's civil division, Gray has kept a high profile.

During the past three months, he has criss-crossed the country on speaking engagements and, as he promised upon taking office, he has kept his door open for interviews. In contrast, Hoover rarely made public appearances in his latter years and never gave interviews.

Gray has proven his ability to handle one of the most demanding roles in the government, perhaps because of his strict Annapolis training and experience as a submarine commander.

LAW-AND-ORDER

He has reached a good working relationship with the FBI's senior establishment, even though some of the top Hoover assistants retired shortly after the death of their leader.

He demanded changes but at the same time made it clear that basically he meant to leave the institution intact—as Hoover had molded it.

Like Hoover, he sounds like a hardline law-and-order man. In one speech, he gave a tongue-lashing to former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, a liberal who was often criticised by Hoover and his aides.

But at the same time, he has preached the bureau's dedication to civil liberties.

13 AREAS

The first few days after he took over, Gray spent the weekend at his summer home in Stonington, Conn., writing out in longhand pages and pages of questions he wanted answered.

The "avenues of inquiry" were edited into 13 specific areas to determine exactly what the FBI was doing to meet its challenges and what more could be done.

Among the challenges he listed: Organized crime, subversion, drug abuse and how law enforcement agencies can gain acceptance and appreciation from the communities they serve.

When he makes final decisions in the 13 areas, more change will be in the offing for the FBI.

Skyjacking Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered airlines to require every suspicious-looking passenger to submit to a thorough search of himself and his baggage before boarding a plane.

The special measures are the latest move in a campaign to stop airline hijackings. They must be applied to every boarding passenger who fits the FAA-developed profile of hijacker characteristics, and to anyone accompanying him, including children and infants.

Previously, if a passenger fit the profile, he usually could satisfy the boarding attendant by presenting some form of identification. Children rarely were regarding with suspicion.

The hijacking of a Delta Air Lines jet to Algeria Monday by a group of men, women and children alerted authorities to the need for a closer check.

The new rule was ordered after president Nixon told Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe that every possible means of hijack-extortion deterrence must be used.

Diagnosing Alcoholism

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Council on Alcoholism has established for the first time a set of medical criteria to help doctors determine whether a drinker is an alcoholic.

The council, a voluntary health agency founded to combat alcoholism, asserted that only about one out of 300 physicians is currently capable of accurately diagnosing the problem.

"There is no single symptom, laboratory test or physical sign which is in itself specifically diagnostic of alcoholism," Dr. Samuel C. Kaim told a news conference.

Kaim headed a 14-member committee of experts that drew up the criteria after a year's study. They said the major criteria for diagnosing alcoholism include:

—Withdrawal symptoms — gross tremor, hallucination, seizure or delirium tremens when deprived of alcohol.

—Abnormal tolerance for alcohol, indicated by the failure to appear intoxicated despite very high blood levels of alcohol.

—Continued drinking despite strong medical advice not to or such social reasons as the loss of job or breakup of marriage.

—Daily consumption of a fifth of whisky or an equivalent amount of wine or beer.

Insect Damage Light So Far

Fleahoppers, cabbage loopers and boll weevils are in Howard County crops, according to County Agent Bruce Griffith, but not in enough numbers to cause much damage.

"Our biggest problem is screwworm," he said, and the number of reports on that has gone down.

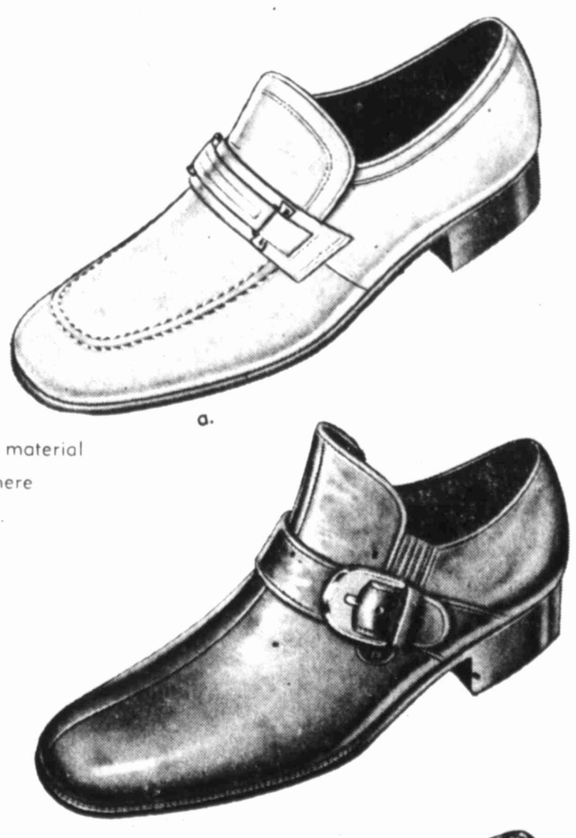

"Part of the reason we have had fewer screwworm reports lately," he said, "is because the ranchers have stopped working their cattle. Most of the recent cases have been in new-born calves.

"What we really need to perk things up in the county is about four inches of slow falling rain," said Griffith.

Cooking Came Easy Once She Tried It

By BARBARA LORD

"I can remember thinking in high school that there was a lot of time to learn how to cook later," said Mrs. A. J. Pirkle Jr., "but 'later' snuck up on me and I had an awful lot to learn when I got married." Although she knew very little about the culinary arts when she got married six years ago, today Mrs. Pirkle could spend all day in the kitchen and enjoy every minute of it.

Despite an active family that is involved in just about all types of sports events, Mrs. Pirkle manages to keep the evening meal on a regular basis. She feels it is important to have a time of day set aside when the whole family is together, so at 5:30 p.m. each day, the Pirkles sit down to eat and talk about the day's events.

Mr. and Mrs. Pirkle have two sons, Jay, 5, and Kevin, 1. Pirkle is owner of A. J. Pirkle Insurance Agency. Jay takes swimming lessons at the YMCA. Pirkle is an enthusiast of any sport, and particularly enjoys handball, tennis and slow-pitch softball. He and Jay both like to fish and will get up as early at 5 a.m. to get an early start. The family recently bought a bass boat, but Mrs. Pirkle has hopes of purchasing more of a family boat sometime.

"I love to go fishing with the boys," said Mrs. Pirkle, "but I haven't been able to much since the baby was born. I just get to cook what they catch. Jay has been catching more than A. J. lately, and that really irritates A.J."

The Pirkles eat a lot of fish, usually fried. Mrs. Pirkle fears the time is coming when she will have to learn to clean the fish as well as cook them, because Jay "doesn't think he should have to clean his catch if mommy doesn't clean hers."

During warm summer evenings, the Pirkles enjoy cooking and eating outside. He helps man the charcoal grill, but inside, Mrs. Pirkle said she'd just as soon he stay out of the kitchen.

"I about had to learn to cook all over again recently," said Mrs. Pirkle. "I bought that waterless cookware and had to have the salesman come back twice to show me how to use it. I was tempted to pull my old beat-up pots and pans out again." The salesman convinced her that her biggest problem was that she was afraid to use it the way it is meant to be used, so she finally stopped treating it like fine china. She is convinced waterless cooking preserves much more of the "real" flavor of foods.

"This family could live on vegetables," said Mrs. Pirkle. "Usually it's the men who are meat and potato eaters, but in this family it's me. All they want are vegetables. I've learned to eat a lot of things I didn't used to like, and I can a lot of vegetables."

The Pirkles have made a lot of improvements in their home at 3216 Cornell. They had their garage converted into a den, and Mrs. Pirkle has refinished and antiqued a lot of furniture that adds a comfortable and atractive touch to the home decor.

Mrs. Pirkle is president of the local Jaycee-Ettes, and her husband is state coordinator for the Jaycees. In addition, they are active members of Prairie View Baptist Church where he serves as song leader. He is encouraging Mrs. Pirkle to take piano lessons.

Mr. and Mrs. Pirkle are both West Texas natives. He was born and reared in Big Spring, and she is from Westbrook. They lived in San Angelo and Austin before returning to Big Spring about 3½ years ago.

Cornbread Makes Snappy Sandwich

Here's a snappy sandwich idea for lunch. Cut basic corn bread in pieces; split horizontally. Combine ¼ cup mayonaise and 1 tablespoon prepared mustard. Spread each corn bread piece with the mayonaise mixture and top with a ham slice, a cheese slice and 2 tomato slices. Broil 7 to 9 minutes or until cheese is bubbly and tomatoes are transparent.

Unique Appetizer

Skewer golden pineapple chunks, crusty French bread cubes and cherry tomatoes for swishing through cheese fondue, canned or homade. A delightful change from the usual hors d'oeuvre and so simple to do.

Tasty Tuna In Unique New Dish

One of the best ways to treat a tuna sandwich is to French-toast it. That's exactly what is done in the following recipe and it produces an absolutely delicious offering for lunch, supper or a snack.

The filling for this sandwich is especially good because along with the tuna it calls for cheese and bacon. We think your family and friends will ilke it.

FRENCH-TOASTED TUNA SANDWICHES

2 cans each 6½ or 7 ounces tuna in vegetable oil
⅔ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
⅔ cup grated medium-fine cheddar cheese
4 slices bacon, cooked until crisp and crumbled
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. dry mustard
12 slices bread
2 eggs
½ cup milk
2 tbsps. butter

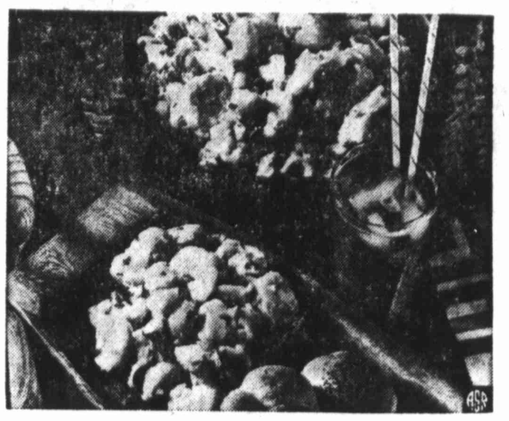

In a medium mixing bowl mix together the undrained tuna, celery, onion, cheese and bacon. In a small mixing bowl whisk together the mayonnaise, salt, pepper and mustard; add to tuna mixture and mix lightly. Spread on 6 slices of bread; top with remaining bread.

In a shallow dish or pie plate whisk eggs slightly; add milk and beat to combine. Dip sandwiches on both sides in egg mixture.

In a 10-inch skillet heat 1 tablespoon butter; add 3 of the sandwiches one sandwich cut in halfand brown over moderate heat, turning once; keep hot in a low oven. Fry remaining 3 sandwiches in remaining 1 tablespoon butter the same way. Serve garnished, if you like, with gherkins and cherry tomatoes. Makes 6 servings.

Make Meat Pie With Leftovers

Utilize those left-over bits of meat, gravy, and cooked vegetables by making them into a meat pie. Combine all ingredients in a baking dish and cover with refrigerated biscuits or rounds of baking powder biscuits. Bake in a hot oven — 450 degrees — and serve warm.

Plum Pies, Jam Are Just Plum Delicious

Among the highlights of summer are the fresh, delicious plums on the market. Plums are an ancient cultivated fruit. Seed pits of plums were found in the Swiss Lake Dwellers' ruins. They still grow in most areas in Europe and are one of the wider distributed fruits in America. Colonists from various areas in Europe brought the plum with them to this country. Monks in the Spanish missions in California were growing plums as early as 1792.

Although varied in appearance and flavor, just about all the many plum varieties provide succulent, out-of-hand eating. Fresh, ripe plums are on the market from May through September. Plums are grown in many areas, but the commercial crop comes principally from the West Coast.

Plums vary in color, appearing in skin shades of green, purple, blue, yellow and red. Flesh color also varies. July is the time of year when plums are especially plentiful.

PLUM PIE

Pastry for double-crust, 9-inch pie
1 qt. sliced, fresh plums
1 to 2 cups sugar
1-3 cup quick-cooking tapioca or 4 tbsps. cornstarch
Dash of salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tbsp. butter

Roll out half the dough on a lightly floured board, then fit dough into the pie pan. Put sliced plums into a bowl and add sugar. Then add tapioca or cornstarch, salt and cinnamon. Turn plum mixture into the pie shell. Dot top with about 1 tablespoon of butter.

Roll out remaining pastry and make top crust or cut in strips to make a lattice top. Flute the edge of the pie crust. Bake at 375 degrees about 45 minutes, or until crust is golden brown and fruit is tender.

PLUM JAM

4 lbs. fresh plums
½ cup water
1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin
8 cups sugar

Wash plums, remove pits and chop. Place in a deep six-quart kettle with water. Cover and simmer for five minutes. Remove cover, add powdered pectin and bring to a rapid boil, stirring rapidly all the while. Add sugar and bring to a full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil one minute, then remove from heat. Skim off foam and continue skimming for five minutes to cool slightly. Ladle into hot, sterilized jars. Seal at once. Makes about 12 one-half pint jars.

HOW TO TELL A 13-YEAR-OLD SON?

'I Just Kept Telling Myself This Is Going To Be Over'

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it was all over, Secret Service men dismissed and vice-presidential campaign plans but a bittersweet memory, Barbara Ann Eagleton said she couldn't care less if her husband never runs for public office again.

"By Sunday I was a basket case," she said. "You lose so much privacy way up there."

Mrs. Eagleton, wife of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton who saw his career peak and plumet in one short week, said in an interview that she was relieved when he and Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern announced Eagleton would withdraw from the ticket.

"He felt the same way I did," Mrs. Eagleton said of her husband's comments to her after the dramatic press conference Monday night. "I was on the phone when he got home. He came over and kissed me. He was sort of philosophical about it. He knew if George McGovern thought this was the best course to take, then it was fine with him."

Mrs. Eagleton said she was neither depressed nor disappointed by the decision that made her husband the only American ever to accept and then reject a major-party vice-presidential nomination.

"I was hoping this would be the decision they'd come to, frankly," she said. "I think a presidential election is too important to spend three months talking about what happened six years ago."

Curling her bare feet under her in an easy chair in the living room of their two-story colonial-style house in Chevy Chase, Md., Mrs. Eagleton said of the week's events: "It was kind of like a dream where I kept thinking, 'This is all going to be over with in a couple of weeks, I know.'"

Then, running a hand through her streaky blonde hair, she said with an ironic chuckle, "Well, I was right . . . .

"The reaction in California was great," she said, referring to the whirlwind campaign swing that reached from Missouri to Honolulu right after Eagleton disclosed July 25 that he had been hospitalized three times between 1960 and 1966 for psychiatric treatment, including electric-shock therapy.

"But when I got back and started reading the newspapers and saw what was going on the tube, I said, 'My God, this is bad, really bad.' I was surprised that it had become what I used to call lightly a 'cause celebre.'"

Mrs. Eagleton, 39, said she was worried about the reaction of their 13-year-old son Terry who was away at camp when the news broke. Before he had left, Mrs. Eagleton said, she explained to him that during an election year, politics can be rough on the families involved.

A day and a half after the final press conference, Mrs. Eagleton said, she called her son to explain why his father was no longer the vice-presidential nominee.

"I said, 'Dad was sick, as you know and I told you about. It seems to have become somewhat of a cause celebre now. He said 'why?' and I said, 'well, I guess the American people are not willing to accept mental illness in their elected officials.'"

Christin, their lively, blonde 9-year-old dubbed "Dynamo II" by the Secret Service, "hasn't reacted at all," her mother said.

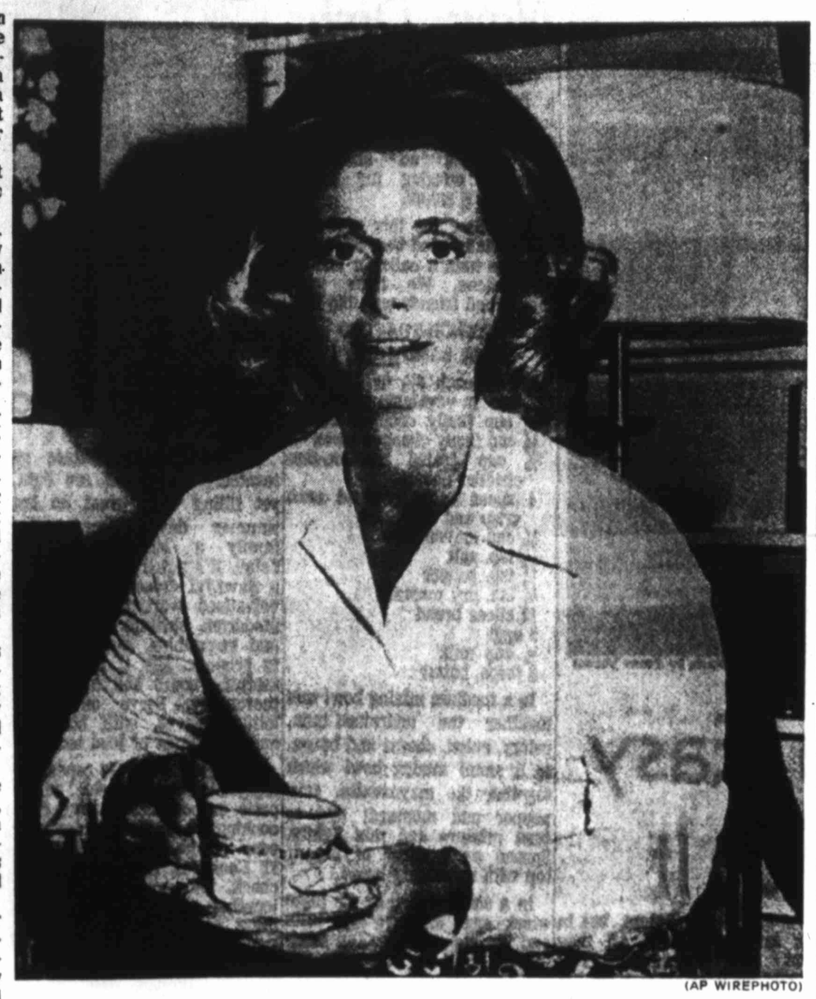

"Everyone asks how did I stand it. How was I so cool?" Mrs. Eagleton said. "My only response is that obviously I hadn't been sitting around being waited on all my life. We've all had problems to deal with. And every time you deal with one, and it's behind you, you're better able to cope.

"So the news of Tom's health that came as a shock to everyone was hardly a shock to me. I've already been there. It was horrendous in 1966, but it isn't now."

And their future?

"I would hope he would want to continue in the Senate That's how I've always felt. In the Senate you can go up, up, up. You can go sideways. You can do lots of things, you know. To me, that's the greatest job in the world.

"But that's me. That's not Tom."

SHE COULD CARE LESS — Barbara Eagleston, wife of former Democratic vice presidential candidate Thomas Eagleston, says she would care less if her husband ever runs for public office again. Mrs. Eagleston made the comments during an interview Wednesday.

Realistic Fakes

More fake fur for the ecology-conscious woman who loves the look of real fur. It's a brand new woven fabric, one which looks just like seal and one that looks like genuine sable.

Furs Banned At England's Zoo

"They will be allowed inside only if they leave their furs at the entrance," declared Leonard Plant, the zoo's manager.

St. Albans introduced the ban after an appeal by naturalist Peter Scott.

"It applies to men, too, but we have had no males to deal with on that subject yet," said Plant.

Week Set For Weight Watchers

Weight Watchers of West Texas is celebrating its third anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Bill McGinty of Lubbock, area directors, have set Aug. 7-11 as Weight Watchers Week, and Mayor Wade Choate signed a proclamation to that effect here recently.

More than 300 people are expected to attend a luncheon Saturday at Vann's Catering Service in Lubbock. Clarence Caywood of Slaton will be the principal speaker. He joined Weight Watchers a year and a half ago and has lost more than 140 pounds.

The first Weight Watchers class in West Texas began in Lubbock in 1969. Now, more than 140 classes are held in the area which is bounded by Amarillo, Odessa, San Angelo and Abilene.

In conjunction with the week's activities, all area people are invited to attend the first hour of local Weight Watchers classes which are held at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesdays and 7 p.m. Thursdays at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Local representatives of Weight Watchers are Mrs. Daniel Porter, Mrs. Carl Gum, Mrs. J. W. Tipton, Mrs. Theo McNallen and Mrs. Pat Dennis. Mrs. Jo Sparks of Odessa is area coordinator.

Connie Bartlett To State Contest

LAMESA (SC) — Connie Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bartlett, will be one of four girls to represent District 2 at the state 4-H dress revue Oct. 7 during the State Fair at Dallas.

Miss Bartlett, 16, was named a district winner at the recent revue in Lubbock where she modeled an evening ensemble consisting of a full-length red velveteen cape over a white embossed cotton gown. For the second time, her entry was judged the best all-cotton outfit.

A member of the Caprock 4-H Club for eight years, she has qualified for the district contest five times. The first year she was an alternate, and last year she was alternate to the state contest.

A LOVELIER YOU

Summer Stars Need Skin, Fashion Care

By MARY SUE MILLER

In the city, in the country, at resorts, a star of the evening wears an ankle-length skirt with a brief top of matching or blending material. Chinese florals splash jersey, crepe and chiffon; subtle monotones like shrimp or lupine color linen, voile and organdy.

Very short jackets or very long shawls go out in the hand and come home around the shoulders, back, throat or arms shoulders. Small wonder, shoulders, back, throat or arms are bared. The whole works sometimes!

Plainly, ther's more to fashion this summer than cut, cloth and color. Ther's y-o-u, a good deal of you. And what's on view needs perfection care.

Skin wants for petal texture and patina. Makeup must have a shimmer and glow that seem to come from health and vitality. Not a little pink jar. To accent a tan, try a slightly deeper shade of lipstick and nail enamel.

The polish and sheen of your hair literally caps appearance appeal. For a cool, unruffled look; draw your locks smoothly up or back. Brush on a bit of protein hairdressing or use a whisk of herbal hairspray.

Let the final touch be a delicate, illusive perfume. Surround yourself with it. Do you know how? Simply decant your frangrance into a glass atomizer. Atomize the atmosphere in front of you and walk slowly through the mist.

Result: Stardom.

Party Fetes Departing Couple

Sgt. and Mrs. Don Davis were honored at a bon voyage party Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Owen, 1610 Benton. Mrs. Davis is the former Loretta Owen, daughter of the host couple.

Sgt. and Mrs. Davis will leave Tuesday for Wasserkuppe, Germany, where he will be assigned with the Air Force. He has been serving at Webb. They are to remain in Germany for three years.

The refreshment table was highlighted with a cake decorated with a portrayal of a couple boarding a jet airplane. A floral arrangement and money tree centered the table. About 30 guests attended.

Reception Will Honor Travis Allen Meltons

Mr. and Mrs. Travis Allen Melton, 1104 E. 13th, will be honored by their children and grandchildren with a reception Sunday in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary. The affair will be held in the fellowship hall of the Baptist Temple. Calling hours will be from 2 to 4 p.m., and friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Melton have two children, a son, Troy Hoyt Melton, and a daughter, Mrs. Ben (Bennie Jo) Daughtery, both of Big Spring. There are 15 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Melton is the former Olean Speck, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Speck, and she was born and reared at O'Brien in Haskell County.

Mr. Melton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. O. Z. Melton, was born in Kentucky, but when he was an infant his parents moved to Grayson County.

The couple was married Aug. 5, 1922 in O'Brien, with the officiating minister being the late Rev. D. L. Duprey. Their first home was at O'Brien, then in 1923, they moved to a farm near Lamesa. Later, he became a carpenter, a trade he followed until his retirement. He has been a member of a carpenter's union for 30 years. The Meltons have lived in Big Spring since 1942.

Mrs. Melton, who was a charter member of Baptist Temple, is also a member of Cactus Chapter, American Business Women's Association; Rebekah Lodge 284 and the Center Point Home Demonstration Club. She and her husband like to work in their yard, especially tending their fruit trees, but his favorite hobby is fishing.

For the Sunday reception, Mrs. Melton will wear a pastel blue dress styled with straight skirt and three-quarter sleeves. She will be presented an orchid corsage, and Melton will receive a boutonniere. The couple's granddaughters, who will serve refreshments, will wear yellow corsages.

The refreshment table will be laid with a lace-edged yellow cloth overlaid with floor-length white net, and a similar covering will be on the registry. The centerpiece will be of gold chrysanthemums, pompons and emerald fern, and appointments will be of crystal and silver. A tiered wedding cake will complete the table.

Woman Exec Is Happy In Work

"When you're the only woman in a roomful of men, you know you're the most beautiful woman there," says Mrs. Doris Van Dam, assistant supervisor at the Grand Rapids Wastewater Treatment Plant.

Mrs. Van Dam is the only woman who is a Class A certified wastewater treatment plant operator in the state, and one of the few professionals in the field of waste treatment.

A wife, mother and organist, the supervisor has about 50 employes answering directly to her.

Winners were Mrs. John Taylor and Mrs. George McAlister, first; Mrs. Rip Patterson and Mrs. Dan Patterson, second; and Mrs. M. A. Cook and Mrs. John Davis, third. The group will meet again at 1 p.m., Wednesday at the country club.

TEEN FORUM

PARTY? (Q.) Stephen likes me — I think. But he has a complaint about me. I have a 30-inch bust and he likes girls that measure 32. My name is Patsi. He calls me Flatsy.

He is in the ninth grade now and I am in the seventh. When I was in the fifth grade he asked me to go with him. I said no. I regret that now. He has another girl friend.

But we were both invited to the same party recently, and we kissed most of the night.

Do you think I could have a party and invite him and maybe get him back? — Two Inches Too Small in Indiana

(A.) Stephen seems to be interested in you, but I do not think marathon kissing or a padded bra is your answer.

At your party, be friendly to everyone, including Stephen. Be natural, act yourself, and have an evening of games, dancing and interesting refreshments so that no boy and girl will have to entertain themselves kissing most of the night.

When Stephen sees there is more to you than lips and 30 inches around the chest he may ask you again to go with him.

* * *

SWEATER: (Q.) When I am on a date I sweat real badly. It's not that so much, but it really smells. You see my mother is from the Old Country and she raised me never to shave under my arms. None of the other girls has anything to do with me and I hardly ever get dates. What should I do? — 16 in Florida

(A.) Deodorants and antiperspirants which you can buy at any drug or department store or supermarket, will take care of your dampness and odor. You should also take a good all-over bath daily.

To be more like other American girls, you should also have smooth underarms. Shaving is the answer there. If your mother forbids shaving, talk to her about how girls are today in America and how you are different from the others.

This may change her mind. If not, you can look forward to the time, very soon now, when you will be on your own and can make your own decisions about grooming and other matters.

Son Of Retired Judge Is Guilty

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The conviction of Kirksey McCord Nix Jr., son of a retired Oklahoma appeals court judge, on a charge of violating the Federal Gun Control Act was upheld Tuesday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Nix was sentenced several months ago to serve five years on the firearms charge. He and two other men later were convicted of the murder of Frank Corso, a New Orleans grocer, and sentenced to life.

Newspapers Battle Ends

MOUNT PLEASANT, Tex. (AP) — The Mount Pleasant Daily Tribune has acquired the assets and name of the Mount Pleasant Daily Times and Times Review, Tribune publisher R. B. Palmer announced.

The Tribune has combined both publications and will operate them under the name of the Daily Tribune as an afternoon newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Furey were principal officers and stockholders of the Mount Pleasant Publishing Co., owner of the Times Review and Daily Times.

Furey, whose family has been in the newspaper business in Texas since 1869, is retiring after 43 years on the advice of his physician.

The purchase of the Times' assets ends a three and one-half year battle of the two daily newspapers in Mount Pleasant, a city of around 10,000 in Northeast Texas.

The Times traces its history back nearly 100 years and had been daily since the 1930s.

The Daily Tribune grew out of the old Titus County Tribune which the Palmer family had operated as a weekly since 1941. It became a daily in 1968.

'Wolf' Disease

Your Good Health

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We lost our 18-year-old son with this lupus disease last year. The shock (the disease was unknown around here, I think) has us all stunned. Can you explain a little about it? — Mrs. J.N.

The disease, lupus erythematosus (LOOP-us-air-i-thee-muh-TOE-sus) is pretty much unknown — except to those who have it.

It is one of the collagen diseases, so named because they attack connective tissues, including the skin. The cause is not known. Hence there is no specific cure, although cortisone-type drugs and anti-inflammatory drugs often keep it quiescent for years.

It is important to know that there are two types of lupus. One is discoid lupus. It is essentially a skin disease and the patient is not otherwise ill. The skin rash often features a "butterfly" pattern across the nose and cheeks, which once reminded somebody of the appearance of a wolf: Hence the name "lupus" or "wolf." The discoid type is not dangerous unless (in 1 to 5 per cent of cases) it progresses into another type — systemic lupus erythematosus, or SLE.

SLE can affect any part of the body: kidneys, liver, heart, lungs, nerves. It often includes arthritis or muscle pain, along with anemia, fatigue, digestive upsets and so on. A nasty disease.

It can indeed be fatal — although it varies greatly in intensity. Many patients get along tolerably well year after year, especially if treatment subdues infections and keeps the disease under control. In short, don't take lupus lightly — but don't ssume that it is a hopeless situation, either.

Obviously a great deal must yet be learned about it. I was asked, recently, whether there was a society devoted specifically to that disease. I said I didn't know of any, but I have since been told of a number that are active.

The Federal government is supporting research. Of the large voluntary health groups, the Arthritis Foundation (1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036) is most deeply involved because lupus is closely related to arthritis. It is supporting research in various parts of the country.

Other groups called to my attention as doing research on lupus include Universities of Miami, Virginia, Cincinnati and Pennsylvania, the Toledo Clinic in Ohio, and others.

There's a Constance Chapman Belder Memorial Fund at the Mayo Foundation, (Rochester Minn., 55901) devoted to lupus. The Cleveland Clinic (Cleveland, Ohio 44106) has a lupus fund and research project in its Department of Dermatology.

Betty Hull, 10619 Emmord Loop, Corpus Christi, Tex., 78410, heads a Leanon-Lupus Erythematosus Club which circulates a newsletter in other states and countries. I'm told there is a Lupus Erythematosus Foundation, Inc., in Nassau-Suffolk, Brooklyn and Westchester. The address I was given is: Mrs. Helen Nichols, 1182 Woodland Lane, Seafor, Long Island. I apologize to other groups which doubtless I have missed.

* * *

Dear Dr. Thosteson: With so many women taking hormones for the menopause and sometimes longer, just what are the symptoms of too much estrogen? — L.E.H.

Chiefly soreness of the breasts, and vaginal spotting or bleeding.

* * *

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you define a "brittle" diabetic? — Mrs. P.D.

Some patients with diabetes are known as stable diabetics. That is, the sugar level remains reliably under control with the usual requirements of diet and medication.

Other patients are subject to abrupt sugar fluctuations (high and low) without much warning. They are "brittle" diabetics.

* * *

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS IN EFFECT ORDERS

Less Busing For Corpus, More For Austin Schools

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — More busing for Austin schools and less for Corpus Christi's is the picture presented by an "en banc" decision of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday.

All 15 judges of the appeals court participated in the decision instead of the usual three-judge panel. The "en banc" procedure is reserved for unusual or important suits.

CROSS TOWN

The Corpus Christi case dealt with a district court ruling which called for extensive cross-town busing, which school officials protested would cost them an extra $1.7 million a year and would involve about 15,000 elementary school pupils.

The Justice Department, acting under anti-busing guidelines set forth by President Nixon, asked that the plan be sent back for changes.

In its ruling, the 5th Circuit said constitutional desegregation can be achieved in Corpus Christi without such extensive busing.

"We conclude that a different approach may achieve a constitutional result without involving the conversion of the school system from a non-transportation to a transportation basis to the extent ordered by the district court," the appeals court said.

MUST CLUSTOR

The legal question in Corpus Christi, the court said, was whether the Mexican-American segregation in the city is constitutionally impermissible.

"We ... affirm the district court's finding that the Mexican-American children of Corpus Christi are segregated in violation of the Constitution," the court said. "However, we disagree with the remedy prescribed by the district court and require that it be modified."

The main remedy ordered by the court to replace Dist. Court Judge Woodrow Seals' busing plan was a new student assignment plan, with Seals ordered to step in and draw his own plan if necessary.

The court also ordered the pairing or clustering of schools, the reallignment of school assignment zones and the relocation of portable classrooms as methods of eliminating segregated schools.

ONE RACE SCHOOLS

If such procedures do not eliminate one-race schools, the district judge was ordered to consider the pairing or clustering of schools in non-contiguous school zones, which would require busing.

Five judges concurred in part and dissented in part.

One dissent, by Judge Walter Gewin said, "There is no justification for changing the rules and guidelines which we have hammered out, just because the problem presented in this case relates to prohibited racial discrimination against a substantial number of Mexican-Americans and a small number of black students."

Gewin said he could never embrace the idea that children in Corpus Christi have different or lesser rights than children in other southern cities, "just because they are Mexican-Americans."

Corpus Christi School Board President James Albright said, "I am pleased the court saw fit to rule out Judge Seals' remedies as somewhat excessive.

"Obviously the board has some work ahead. We are going to have to come to a meeting of the minds, not only with the court's report, but with the plaintiffs and citizens, and settle this and get on with education."

SAME PLAN

Supt. Dr. Dana Williams said as far as he could determine, school will begin as scheduled here Aug. 24 using the same student assignment plan that was in effect last year.

Neither Albright nor Williams would indicate whether the school district would appeal the ruling that Corpus Christi schools are segregated.

In the Austin case, U.S. Dist. Judge Jack B. Roberts had decided on what critics called a system of "part time desegregation." He rejected a cross-town busing plan proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Austin's plan retained a neighborhood school concept, modified by the establishment of "learning resource centers" and visits between schools.

When the government appealed, Nixon intervened in an extraordinary move. He repudiated HEW's busing proposal and re-emphasized his opposition to extensive racial busing.

GOOD JUDGMENT

In reversing, the 5th Circuit said the district judge may not "totally reject the use of busing ..."

"Whenever possible, we defer to the good judgment of the district judge," the opinion said. "He knows the local situation better than we do. He may not, however, totally reject the use of busing as a 'permissible tool,' 'within the court's power to provide equitable relief.' "

"There is no basis on this record for tally rejecting the use of busing on the elementary school level except to the limited extent it is used to transport pupils to the 'learning research center,' " the opinion continued.

"Part-time desegregation does not meet constitutional requirement," the judges said, regarding elementary schools.

"On the secondary levels, there is no basis in the record for the district court's requiring the busing of two-thirds of the black students, a few Mexican-Americans, and no whites."

"The district court should call for the immediate submission of new plans by the intervenors as well as by the original parties," the appeals court said. "Appropriate relief must be ordered before the commencement of the 1972-73 school years."

The opinion added that no delaying order will be granted after the new plan is drawn up under the guidelines laid down in Wednesday's 93-age reversal.

"We cannot intelligently comment on the decision until we have read the ruling," said Will Davis, chairman of the Austin School Board, "but needless to say school officials here are extremely disappointed."

Loyalty Oath In Houston Heads For High Court Test

HOUSTON (AP) — A provision of the Houston city ordinance requiring candidates for city office to swear they believe in the present form of government appeared headed for a U.S. Supreme Court test today.

Wednesday the city council voted unanimously to appeal a Monday ruling of a three-judge federal court here striking down the city's loyalty oath.

By a 2-1 majority, the court allowed to stand only the section of the oath which requires candidates to "support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States and of the State of Texas."

Knocked out were sections requiring a candidate to "believe in and approve of our present representative form of government." The majority of U.S. District Court Judges Woodrow Seals and John V. Singleton said the section of the oath "created a chilling effect on political beliefs and ideas...at the very moment of a public election when a democratic society needs to freely and openly explore all possible political theories and beliefs."

Shot Below Nose

HOUSTON (AP) — Hector E. Guerra, 31, of Houston was shot and killed about 11 p.m. Wednesday at a house on the city's north side. Police said they were told the shooting occurred while he was trying to break into the place.

Officers said they found Guerra, shot once below the nose with a pistol, lying halfway through the back door in the home of Santiago Venegas, 30, and his wife.

Egyptian-Libyan Union Approved

By The Associated Press

The leaders of Egypt and Libya announced plans Wednesday night to unite their adjoining countries and set Sept. 1, 1973, as the target date.

A joint communique was broadcast by Cairo and Benghazi radio stations following a three-day meeting in Libya between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Col. Muammar Kadafi, chairman of Libya's ruling Revolutionary Command Council. It said the two leaders reached "a historic decision" to establish a "unified political leadership" that will work out a plan for union.

Egypt and Libya already are linked in the seven-month-old Federation of Arab Republics, with Syria as the third partner. A Libyan-Egyptian delegation was sent to Damascus to inform President Hafez el Assad of the agreement by Sadat and Kadafi.

SATISFACTION

Assad said he was following the talks "with happiness and satisfaction," Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported. But the right-wing Beirut newspaper Havat reported that the leftist Syrian regime was upset by Sadat's recent expulsion of Soviet advisers and did not want the Egyptians to worsen relations with the Russians by moving closer to Kadafi, a militant anticommunist.

In an earlier attempt at Arab unity, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser founded the United Arab Republic with Syria in 1958. It collapsed in September 1961 after a coup in Syria.

The Sadat-Kadafi communique in its preamble underscored the Arab struggle with Israel. It said:

"The imperialist and Zionist challenge, symbolized by the 1967 aggression and the attempts by U.S. imperialism and world Zionism to make it an accomplished fact, cannot be met, whatever help we get from our friends, unless Arabs unite behind Egypt, the spearhead of the confrontation."

POOL INFORMATION

It seemed likely that the move toward unity, proposed by Kadafi in February, was spurred by the refusal of the Soviet Union to sell Egypt the offensive arms the Egyptian generals wanted for a renewal of the war on Israel. Presumably the Egyptians are hoping to use some of Libya's huge oil revenues to buy the arms.

In Israel, commentator Dov Yinon said in a broadcast on the state radio that the agreement might increase prospects of a new Arab-Israeli war. But diplomats in Washington, recalling the numerous unsuccessful attempts at Arab unity, foresaw no immediate change in the situation in the Middle East.

Sadat and Kadafi agreed to set up seven joint committees to write a constitution, organize a joint defense force, merge their legislative, judicial, economic, administrative and financial systems, and make plans for unity of education, science, culture and information.

MRS. PHILIP BUNCH

To Discuss Drama Role

Mrs. Jan Bunch, wife of Capt. Philip Bunch, Training Officer in the Student Squadron Instructor Pilot (T-37) will discuss the role of the Community Theatre of Big Spring at the Friday meeting of the American Business Club.

Her drama background began in high school in Fort Worth and continued at Southwestern University at Georgetown, and the University of Texas in Austin.

Mrs. Bunch believes that it takes a myriad of talents to bring about a Community Theatre, and this can involve carpenters, artists, housewives, merchants, etc.

A one-act play has been cast and will be available for presentation upon request to area hospitals, clubs, etc. For further information Mrs. Bunch urges interested persons to call 263-4229.

Friday also is "Big Hat Day" for the Big Hat Club.

Still Has Wallop

Preston Smith is a slugging political operative, hiding his effective counterpunch behind a country-boy facade most of the time.

He popped the legislature and his special political foes last week with a televised veto message that proved he could get a no-new-tax budget for 1973 and that there would be plenty of money to do the job. There is more than one view of the budget's adequacy, of course, but the taxpayers of Texas will generally applaud the governor's actions.

Smith went to the governor's office from a legislative career, including a stint as lieutenant governor. He has defended the conference report method of budget writing. He has shown he knows how to cash political chips.

He once forced a state senator to apologize and give the governor credit for getting the medical school funded in San Antonio. He once forced speaker Gus Mutscher and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes off a course of action calculated to demonstrate the impotence of the governor's office He forced a single-year budget on those same leaders (he had opposed their efforts to do that new taxes in the regular session.

He had beaten off an auto insurance rate hike with a call for an investigation after the board said higher rates were needed. He forced the Legislature to abandon a sharp increase on gasoline taxes by a veto threat, after showing the tax was slipped into the legislative hopper with scant notice.

Although he was done in by the stocks scandal repercussions, the governor is still a scrapper with yet another target in sight: the insurance board. That the board has made itself an inviting target is merely an added temptation to the governor to punish his foes for punishing his good friend, Larry Teaver. Gov. Smith apparently isn't going to be content to loose to the end of his term.

Encouraging Cooperation

Somehow obscured by some of the more bombastic news is the expanding area of local inter-governmental cooperation on purchases.

The county Big Spring schools, city and junior college are going into joint purchase of gasoline. For most of these, this will extend to oil and grease, also to automotive tires. Some are making joint purchases on paper and office supplies. And so it goes. The potential for savings is tremendous.

While it is not likely that this will be passed on directly to the taxpayer, it insures to him indirectly in the freeing of these funds to help finance other programs which might otherwise require additional taxes. If this cooperative spirit helps hold the financial line, that's pretty good in this day and time. Commendation is due these agencies.

Teddy's At Sea

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Whenever the Democrats start searching for a vice-presidential candidate, Teddy Kennedy gathers up all his nieces and nephews at Hyannis Port and goes to sea in a sailboat.

ALL DURING the Democratic convention, Uncle Teddy sailed back and forth like the man without a country, awaiting word by signal lamp from shore that McGovern had selected a running mate.

The nieces and nephews love their Uncle Teddy, but four days at sea is a lot for anyone, and Teddy had his hands full preventing a family mutiny.

WHEN HIS WIFE, Joan, finally signaled Teddy that McGovern had chosen Tom Eagleton, Teddy pulled into port and gave everyone his solemn word that they would not have to sail with him again for the rest of the summer.

You can imagine the spot Teddy was in last week when the Eagleton furor was at its height, and Teddy was once again being discussed as the only candidate to be second man on the Democratic ticket.

AS SOON AS THE news broke, Teddy ordered his sailboat ready and provisioned for a month. Then he started rounding up his nieces and nephews.

"Who wants to go sailing with their Uncle Teddy?" he shouted in the Kennedy compound.

The older kids ran and climbed up on the roofs. The younger ones hid under Ethel Kennedy's and Eunice Shriver's skirts.

"WHY DO WE have to go with you?" Christopher Kennedy asked from under his mother's skirt.

"Because if you don't, it will look as if I'm just going to sea to avoid accepting the vice presidency. If I have my nieces and nephews along, it will look as if we planned the sail as a family holiday."

Ethel, who was holding on to four of her children, asked, "Why don't you stay on shore? The press can't reach you if you hide in the house."

"It isn't the press I'm hiding out from. It's George McGovern."

EUNICE SHRIVER said, "We gave our children in July. Why do we have to give them again in August?"

Teddy climbed the roof of Ethel's house and tried to grab Bobby Kennedy Jr. by the leg. "We sail in an hour," he yelled. "I don't have time to fool around."

Ethel and Eunice started to cry. "I guess we have no choice," Ethel sobbed. "Stop chasing them. We'll give them to you, but this is absolutely the last time."

THERE MUST BE an easier way to turn down the vice-presidential nomination, but so far, Teddy Kennedy admits he hasn't found it.

'NERVES'

Dog Fever

Around The Rim

Linda Cross

I am thinking of acquiring not one but two dogs after moving to a new home, which will have a yard.

CURRENTLY, I live in an apartment, which besides having a no-pets rule, fronts on a major highway and has no backyard, only a long alley used as a drive. Neither is the place for a four-footed friend.

While in high school and college, I had two poodles, now taken over by my parents, or rather they have taken over my parents.

SOMEHOW, largely with the help of my mother, I now recall, these two dogs were house-trained and taught other useful behaviors. Now, I will have to do it myself, and I just hope I can find dogs less intelligent than I am, but which are still not untrainable idiots.

First lessons will concern their bathroom habits. This will mean teaching the dogs that the living room and bedroom carpets are not at their disposal. With the first dogs I had, I learned that the living room rug is a favorite with dogs, and not a place they give up easily. They need to be taught to use the neighbors' grass.

AFTER THE BATHROOM battle is won, the dogs will have to learn to stay off the furniture. Our living room furniture is that mod-inflatable stuff which is so great until it comes into contact with sharp objects — such as claws. The first pup to leap on that furniture will land quickly on the floor — and into trouble.

A SOLUTION to the problem would be to exile the pups to the garage, but I'm soft-hearted, and I don't think I could withstand the mournful howling long enough to get them used to the garage.

I have seen children (other people's, of course) that I could keep in a garage or a deep, dark dungeon for years with no remorse, but a puppy would be an entirely different matter.

ALL THIS WILL change, though, if my husband gives in to his preference for German Shepherds, St. Bernards and other large dogs. Either they go to the yard and a snug bed in the garage, or we do. There'd be no room in the house after about four months otherwise.

Eagleton Affair

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Now that Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton has been ruled out to run for the vice presidency, what will the political impact be on the 20 million or more persons who have had psychiatric treatment? Also, will a new factor be introduced in requirements of employes that they always disclose past history involving visits to physicians for psychiatric aid?

THE MEDICAL COMMITTEE for human rights, a national organization of health and mental health professions, has issued a statement condemning the use of "gossip, rumor, and fear of mental illness" in dealing with the selection of persons for public office. The statement says:

"We consider unconscionable, distrustful and destructive the distortion and misuses of psychiatric information and opinion as a weapon to discredit anyone in the political selection process.

"We feel that the ability to turn to others for advice and consultation in times of stress is a quality that is imperative in making national and international decisions. The indictment of any person for stresses that are created by the present social and political conditions is unacceptable."

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE have consulted psychiatrists and resent the idea that this somehow impairs their capabilities. To have a candidate removed because he had psychiatric treatment six years ago is something that people who have undergone the same thing say is unfair. Large numbers will contend that they've benefited from such medical care and have had no recurrence of their troubles.

IN POLITICS, of course, the theory is that a vice-presidential candidate, like a presidential nominee, must be free from any serious weakness. One of the principal criticisms of Sen. Eagleton was that he didn't mention his having had psychiatric treatments when Sen. McGovern offered to put him on the ticket. The argument made on the other side is that the Missouri senator felt that he had completely recovered and did not think it was of significance to the future.

IN A POLITICAL campaign, however, almost any defect in a candidate can be the basis of a general attack. Sen. Eagleton had been under pressure to withdraw but had been assured that Sen. McGovern would stand with him — at least until their all-important conference was held.

SO THE DEMOCRATS really have a problem on their hands. This is why some of the party leaders argued that the best way out of the difficulty was to stand by Sen. Eagleton and take the position that his psychiatric troubles are cured.

Conserving Energy

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP)—Simple efficiencies in the use of electricity, mainly in lighting, could significantly reduce energy usage and reduce the impact of power shortages that exist in some regions and threaten elsewhere.

This is the considered judgment of many electrical engineers, who also claim that not only energy but many millions of dollars could be saved in operating costs.

At the recent annual meeting of the Illuminating Engineering Society, newly elected president Richard Dorsey of General Electric stated that 90 per cent of lighting systems produce only half as much light as possible for the energy consumed.

Other engineers claim that even those systems that deliver light efficiently still waste energy by generating so much heat that air-conditioning systems are forced to overwork.

The possible savings in energy and money have yet to be worked out, but it is estimated the buildings account for 20 per cent industrial-commercial energy consumption and that 20 per cent of that is for lighting.

George Clark, IES senior vice president and engineering manager for special projects of Sylvania Electric, estimates that better usage in these structures could reduce their energy consumption by 15 to 25 per cent

The critical nature of such savings is made clear in the perspective of rising energy costs and recurring power shortages—even blackouts of increasing frequency and size—in some regions of the country.

The possible efficiencies about which Dorsey and Clark speak are possible not only through correction of wasteful practices of the past but through the use of relatively recent advances in producing more lumens from the same wattage.

An incandescent lamp, most widely recognized of all, produces only 10 lumens—a measure of light quantity—per watt. But more recently developed lamps produce 10 times as many lumens without color distortion.

Other efficiencies are possible, Clark said, through more frequent cleaning fixtures and a regular program of lamp replacement. Many lamps remain in use beyond their effective life, producing less light but using no less energy.

Additional savings, in money and energy, are possible through the utilization in winter of the heat from lights and through the use of available systems for drawing off that heat in summer, he said.

Few buildings are so equipped today, but Clark and others believe that as an energy ethic develops—as builders realize that rising energy costs and availability is critical—waste will decrease.

Among other suggestions for conserving energy: Switches that permit lights to be turned on or off in part of a room rather than in a larger area; focusing light in work areas with less in circulation or conversation places.

What Others Say

"The only thing that might be unusual about the case was that the Democratic headquarters was involved and that one of the suspects caught there allegedly worked with Republicans." — Judge John J. Sirica, denying plea of an attorney to refuse to testify on the ground there are unusual circumstances.

"There are all kinds of people out there just ready to get back into politics. We're going to give all those people, millions of people, something to do." — Gary Hart, McGovern campaign manager.

"It is not a withdrawal of spirit or determination to continue the battle that I've waged all my life for equal opportunity for all of our people." — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, quitting the presidential race.

Cruel Humor

William F. Buckley Jr.

I write before the final solution to the Eagleton problem has been reached, in which connection a few observations:

1) IT IS NEVER more painfully clear than at moments like this that politics is a very rough game indeed. Probably it should be, when you are dealing with a set of people who aspire to fly about the world in their own Boeing jets, issuing orders to their subjects on everything from whom to make war with, to how much duty they should pay on imported soybeans.

"I don't see why Sen. Eagleton shouldn't be vice-president," a prominent comedian meditated over the weekend. "After all, he's been playing Napoleon for years." The crowd roared, even those who are, in context of the joke, "pro-Eagleton." "I'm Just Nuts About Eagleton" became, just 48 hours after the news broke, about as dated as Lucky Strike Green Has Gone to War.

ON AND ON THEY came, flushing out the American mood, which is suspicious, belatedly, about the kind of power we have conferred on the executive. Irreverent jokes about the Queen of England are less savage because she has no power. There has got to be a correlation between the intensity of the feeling, humorously turned on this occasion against Sen. Eagleton, and the dreadful potency of the office he aspires to associate himself with.

2) HIS APPARENT failure to have disclosed his medical background is at least surprising, at most dishonorable. In defense of the former interpretation, it should be said that he unquestionably considers himself to be totally cured, and a living reputation of the superstition that once you have had a nervous breakdown, you are ever after unreliable.

ON THE OTHER hand, I cannot share the general indignation against Sen. McGovern for not having discovered Sen. Eagleton's medical record. In America, the offices of the Good Samaritan would not nowadays be accepted without first testing the thesis that he might be engaged in entrapment.

SEN. McGOVERN may be faulted for a very full indulgence of the practices of politicians who say one thing and mean the opposite, but he should not be faulted for inexcusable negligence.

New Orchestra Mighty Young

NEW YORK (AP) — The Orchestra of the City of New York, a new organization whose members are recent graduates of music schools, is launching a series of 15 free concerts. They will be given at prisons, hospitals and churches.

The orchestra hopefully will provide a showcase for young players, assisting them to launch their careers.

Also, an aim is to attract young and new audiences by imaginative programming and presentations at low prices. Jak Zadikov is music director. He has been music director of the Nassau-Suffolk Symphony on Long Island.

Program for the free concerts will include Stravinsky and Bach as well as guest appearances by folksingers Tom Paxton and Fat City, jazzman Herbie Hancock, and young Matropolitan Opera mezzo-soprano Frederica von Stade. There are several sponsors for the free concerts.

Naughty, Haughty Folks

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

One of the surest signs a man is growing old is the development in him of new small habits of thrift—such as the saving of string or paper bags, tossed into a drawer. Nature, the great conservator, has whispered in his ear that the time of life has come when he cannot afford to throw anything away but must cling desperately to everything he has.

A majority of the working population of America seems to get its gears going in the morning with a cup of hot coffee and a piece of pastry or a doughnut.

How can a civilization endure if most of its people start each day with such a dietary disaster? Shades of our pioneer ancestors, who breakfasted on biscuits, butter, honey, eggs, bacon, ham or steak. But the good temper, digestion and endurance on the job of the average man would improve vastly if he did just one simple thing—repiace the piece of pastry with a single hardboiled egg. Try this for two weeks yourself and see if you don't feel better.

A healthy mind is one that doesn't clutter itself with small animosities or waste its energy on trifles. Resentment drains your energy, just as too many small leaks will in time empty a reservoir. If you let yourself be eroded by petty concerns, you will inevitably wind up petty-minded.

The very poor and the very rich are alike in some ways. Utter poverty can make a man as selfish and egotistical and arrogant as wealth can make a man who feels it is a cushion against consequences. Both pauper and prince tend to have deplorable manners, the one because he is naughty, the other because he is haughty. Only members of the middle class consistently employ good manners—or hold each other in mutual respect.

If I were sitting on a jury, I doubt that I would vote for any verdict that would cost more than a year in jail for any man who robbed a bank in order to pay his own doctor bill or to buy a set of false teeth for his dear old gray-haired mother. It is essential at almost any price to keep up a good family appearance in this world.

You can't listen very long at a cocktail party to two people talk about their trip to Paris without one exclaiming, "And remember, on a bad morning, how well the strawberries went with the champagne?" And the other always murmurs assent and nods misty-eyed, and then a hushed reverent pauses ensues as if everyone was in church. For crying out loud, doesn't anyone ever go to Paris, wake up with a hangover, and reach out shakily for a handful of leftover peanuts and a bottle of cola?

My Answer

Billy Graham

I have a seventeen year old daughter who is acting strangely these days. She has several pictures of Satan in her room, and the other day I found a note in her room saying something about a meeting of a "coven." Is it possible that my daughter might be involved in some kind of witchcraft? Please help us.

M.Y.T.

Satan worship and witchcraft are experiencing a boom in America, and witchcraft among the young is commonplace in the United States today. It is estimated that there are 40,000 people who claim to be witches or warlocks, and witchcraft is being practiced openly for the first time in many years.

This really should not be surprising. The Bible teaches that there are periods in history when Satan operates underground and "appears as an angel of light," and then the Bible says that in the last days Satan will operate without former restraints from the populace. The First Church of Satan, in San Francisco is a fast growing church and has received many members into its fold within the last five years.

There is no doubt that the present trend of free-wheeling sex, the sexual permissive philosophy, and all the perversion of sex is in some way linked with the revival of Satanism. From the Garden of Eden to now it has been Satan's purpose to discredit the Word of God, and to impose his diabolical philosophy upon his victims. But the Bible teaches that as time progresses that his strategy will be intensified. The Viet Nam war is not the longest war in history. It is the battle between good and evil that has been waged through the centuries.

A Devotion For Today..

"He will rejoice over you with gladness, he will renew you in his love." (Zephaniah 3:17, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear God, discipline me that I may hear Your voice this day. Renew me in Your love; through Christ. Amen.

GOP Tuning Their Confab To Early-To-Bed TV Audience

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are tuning their three-day national convention to the early-to-bed television audience, not to the insomniacs.

Those making the arrangements promise an "interesting and exciting" convention starting in Miami Beach on Aug. 21, despite the fact the outcome is assured.

WATCH IT

"The American people will watch ours," the GOP National Committee chairman, Sen. Robert J. Dole, predicted Wednesday at a news conference.

The five sessions, two afternoon gathering of two hours each starting at 1 o'clock and three at night scheduled to end not later than 10:30, were arranged, Dole said, so every TV viewer wanting to can conveniently watch them.

"Not just the insomniacs," he added, referring to last month's four-day Democratic convention in which all sessions ran past midnight and two ended at daybreak.

The afternoon GOP sessions are booked for Monday and Tuesday, with the finale' starting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and ending at 10:30. At the final session the nominees will make their acceptance speeches.

The Monday and Tuesday night sessions will be two-hour affairs starting at 8:30. The nomination for president is set for Tuesday night, and for vice president Wednesday night.

To liven up the proceedings, Dole said, "spontaneous" victory demonstrations of about 15 minutes' duration will follow each nomination. Democrats barred such merry-making from their convention.

Five movies will be shown during the proceedings. None will exceed 15 minutes, Dole said. They will include tributes to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon, review of Republican accomplishments, some scenes about "Nixon The Man," and a visual keynote presentation.

The Republicans anticipate no squabbles such as the ones that split the Democrats over credentials, platform and party rules. Their Credentials Committee's first and probably only meeting is scheduled the day the convention opens.

It took the Democrats more than a week to draft a credentials report and an all-night session for the convention to act on it.

California Welfare Rolls Are Dropping

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sixteen months ago California's welfare rolls were growing by 40,000 a month and Gov. Ronald Reagan called public assistance "a monster" that threatened to bankrupt the Golden State.

Nearly 2.3 million persons or one out of every 10 were on welfare. The annual tab, including medical care, was consuming a third of the state's $6.5 billion budget.

Since then there has been a turnaround which Reagan points to as one of the major achievements of his 6-year-old administration.

Today, the state's welfare rolls are down by a net of 205,000 since March 1971 with drops in 13 of the past 15 months — through this past June. The June decline alone was 39,696, Reagan said.

"This dramatic decline has been achieved in the face of rising welfare costs and caseload increase elsewhere across the nation during the same period," the vacationing Reagan said in a news statement issued Wednesday.

Reagan made welfare reform his major goal of 1971 and achieved partial success in a compromise bill worked out with the legislature. Its provisions include tougher eligibility for getting on welfare, a program to track down absent fathers who won't support their families and a major effort at weeding out fraud.

About 18,000 of the June drop of 39,696 came in a category that is directly related to California's level of unemployment, which declined from 675,000 in March 1971 to 570,000 in June.

And the level of permanent recipients on Aid to Families with Dependent Children — not directly related to unemployment — was higher this June than June a year ago: 1,272,425 compared with 1,263,135.

Some critics say such things as the better economy, the rising number of abortions and the declining rate of immigration all are factors. There are 400,000 more Californians on the job now than in March 1971.

State welfare chief Robert Carleson said indications show that fewer poor people are coming to California to get on welfare.

"The word is out through the grapevines that the welfare golden egg is no longer available out in California," Carleson said.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, the legislature's independent nonpartisan fiscal expert, frequently has been a critic of administration welfare caseloads and claims in welfare savings.

Post said in an interview that Reagan reforms have been "a significant factor" in the lower caseload. But he said general improvement in the economy must be counted, too.

Building Has Healthy Gain

Construction costs on city building permits hit a high of $323,605 in July, the greatest volume of building applied for since February's total of $224,573.

The figure brings the total for the calendar year to $1,107,872, a healthy 61 per cent increase over the same period last year, the total of which was only $691,818.

The greatest contributor to the increase last month was additions to residences, businesses and churches, totaling $176,600, more than half of the total costs cited during the month. The largest applicant in this class was the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1803 Wasson Rd., applying for remodeling of present facilities and addition of a new building. The church's application estimated costs of $163,000.

Other significant construction projects applied for in July include Church of Christ, 1609 Cole Lane, $45,000; Masonic Temple, 219 Main, remodeling, $58,600; and Dovecote, Inc., 2704 Coronado, a new residence, $32,000.

TEXAS PARENTS DISENCHANTED WITH BUSING, OTHER PROBLEMS

Enrollment Shooting Up At Private Schools

By RENA PEDERSON
Associated Press Writer

Record numbers of Texas parents — disenchanted with busing and the attendant problems of public schools—intend to put their children in private schools this fall.

A check of private schools shows applications and enrollments have boomed at religious, military and commercial institutions since court-ordered integration plans hit metropolitan areas two years ago.

BUSING BACKLASH

Only the private Catholic schools in the Diocese of Dallas have not gained financially because they refused to contribute to the busing backlash and froze their enrollments two years ago.

But to the parents involved, the private alternative is a blessing. To most private schools, it's a financial Godsend. To the minority leaders, it's a setback to the integration effort.

"Parents are unsure and afraid of an unsettled situation. We have so many applications we can't handle them," said David Coterill, of Trinity Christian Academy in Dallas.

Coterill defended private schools and said, "They are not becoming an escape hatch for segregation really. Maybe it was initially stirred up by the busing situation, but it has led to a change in the parents' thinking about education. I like to think a new dimension has been opened to them by God."

BIGOTRY

George Allen, a black Dallas City Council member, said he feels the swell in private enrollments is "simply a way of avoiding court-ordered integration."

"It's ironical that most of them are called religious schools," Allen said. "You hate to see the church perpetuate bigotry."

Allen explained, "I don't want to blanket all private schools as bad since many of them offer the best prep schooling or religious schooling in the state. But so many of these schools were started in hysteria. Many are profiteering on the emotions of the people. And by perpetuating segregation, they are perpetuating bigotry."

The First Baptist Church in Dallas will be opening a new elementary school this fall. The Rev. Mel Carter, director of education at the 16-million-member church, said Dr. W.A. Criswell had planned a church school "for years."

BET ON THAT

"But the thing that brought it to fulfillment was busing in that we had so many requests from parents," Carter said.

"There are many other factors involved, of course," he said. "Many parents are just disenchanted with public schools or want a quality education or religious education for their children. Our school will be better because of smaller classes, lack of conflict, better discipline, a lot more attention, better Christian emphasis."

"I think basically the thinking people want their children out of the mess of public education. If the court settles in favor of extensive busing, then more parents will be sending their children to private schools, you can bet on that," Carter said.

Ted Peters started his own school in Fort Worth in 1971 with kindergarten, first and second grades. For 1972 he is enlarging the White Lake Private School to include third, fourth and fifth grades because of popular demand.

"Parents are tired of overcowded classrooms and unrest in public schools," he said. "Our impetus for starting was within the neighborhood. We needed a place that our children could get what we felt was a quality education close to home."

DISCIPLINE

Mrs. Jane Wynn, 25, sends her 7-year-old son Richard Joel to Tyler Street Methodist Church School in Dallas, which is near her home.

"They get no discipline in public schools any more because the schools and the teachers are all tied up," she said. "We don't know our status yet for busing in elementary schools this fall, but if I have to bus my son, I'd definitely keep him in private school."

Mrs. Wynn has to pay both school taxes and private tuition, but said, "I'd pay both as long as I could if I thought it was best for the child. The public schools are more concerned now with the adults' opinions than what's best for the child. He didn't want to be bused."

To be exempt from taxes and get federal grants, the schools have to be open to minority students. But most minority students cannot pay the tuition—which ranges from $500 at the First Baptist Church to $2,000 for exclusive boarding schools like St. Mark's and Hockaday in Dallas or St. Mary's in San Antonio.

$2,200 A YEAR

At San Marcos Military Academy in Central Texas it costs $2,200 a year to board a student. There are no black students and no minority applications so far this year, although applications generally are up.

"We want to encourage anyone who wants to attend Trinity to apply if they are doing grade level work," said Coterill. "We have had some blacks apply from the area, but the pathetic situation is that they cannot make the preliminary testing."

Coterill said the young school also would like to offer more minority scholarships to avoid economic discrimination, "but we just don't have the money now."

More established schools like St. Mark's and Ursuline Academy do have significant minority enrollments and recruitment programs.

EGGSHELLS

"We must recruit the minorities," said Joe Goeke, director of St. Paul's Lutheran School in Fort Worth. "And we tell parents who specify they are not keen on busing that we have blacks in the school. We have to be open about it so they won't be misled when they see a black in the class on the first day of school."

"We want to avoid classification as a haven for segregationists, but it's something you have to work at," said Sister Heloise, principal at St. Agnes in Houston. "We've talked about it at every faculty meeting this year. We are just walking on eggshells. But we know we need to get more scholarships for blacks and browns."

"It is a problem," agreed Marcus Ranger, head of the Dallas Legal Services. "I think that the private school has traditionally been used for segregation purposes in the Midwest and Eastern areas and it's just visibly increased recently in the South."

SAME FEARS

"It's just one more avenue o escaping integrating schools. It undermines the attainment of a pluralistic society, which integration is trying to achieve by educating blacks and whites, hopefully, together."

Ranger said the private trend can be attributed "to the same fears and antagonisms as the old dual-school systems imposed by the state. It's just more sophisticated. It's a social reaction that will have a damaging short-term and long-term effect on education."

State Sen. Barbara Jordan of Houston pointed out that legally the private schools are doing nothing wrong and the parents have the constitutional right to send their children to a different school.

"But it will have a destructive effect in that it will reduce the white population in schools to the result that public schools could end up composed of poor blacks and Mexican-Americans."

"It is legal and yet it is racial and economic segregation," she said.

Rabie Woes At Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A possible epidemic outbreak of rabies in the Houston area is possible, Dr. Albert G. Randall, city health director, has warned.

He urged area residents to vaccinate pets and animals against the disease.

The city health laboratory tested 15 rabid animals in June and July, triple the number for the same period last year. May tests revealed 23 cases, he said.

The 15 latest cases came from Harris, Jefferson, Wharton, Austin, Grimes and Ford Bend counties, he said.

"This means the diseases is epidemic and in wildlife of this area and can spread rapidly at any time to unvaccinated domestic animals," Rndall said.

Dr. Robert A. MacLean, director of the health department's communicable diseases division, warned against taking home baby skunks and racoons found in the woods.

'CRAZY ARMS'

Singer Ray Price 'Still Searching'

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ray Price says he has run the musical gamut and, in the process, has "changed the style of country music twice."

But Price doesn't want to be known for a particular style; he wants to be "just a singer."

"That's all I want to be," he said, "just a singer."

Price, a recording artist on Columbia for 21 years, said: "I was classified as a country singer once, and I had a tremendous struggle to get over that. It was one of the things I felt I had to do—for some unknown reason."

'DANCING BOY'

The gamut for the Texas native has ranged from country to pop to soloist with the Dallas Symphony. He was the No. 1 singer in the nation in 1956. And, a year later, his hit, "Crazy Arms," knocked Elvis Presley's "Heartbreak Hotel" off the top spot on the music charts.

Price, who still makes his home in Texas on a 200-acre thoroughbred horse ranch, is associated with such hits as "For the Good Times," "Heartaches by the Number," "Make the World Go Away," "Danny Boy," 'I'd Rather Be Sorry" and a host of others.

Price wants to be remembered, though, for two styles he says he brought about in country music.

"In 1956, I took the music of the day, rhythm and blues and country music, and made some chances by new chord progressions, raised the brass, lowered the steel and got started."

"In the country music business, everybody began to use the style I came up with because it became the basic country style," he said.

WORST CRITIC

"In 1957, I recorded the first big sound," he recalled. "I used the Nashville Symphony and the Anita Kerr Singers and recorded a faith album. That was the start of the big sound (in country music)."

Declaring, "I'm my own worst critic," Price said , "I think that any person who does any creative work at all, if he can't criticize his own work, then that means he's satisfied, and, if he's satisfied, he won't progress any further."

"I think I'm still going through a metamorphosis," he said, adding: "I really haven't changed that much in my way of thinking except to believe more firmly in what I'm doing."

CLOUDY PICTURE

Price, who originally planned to be a veterinarian, said he stays on his Texas ranch most of the time these days.

"One of my big dreams is to race good horses," he said. He had four at a race track in Chicago last week and hopes to have eight at the track by this fall.

There are two other things in the music field he said he'd really like to do: "Play the San Francisco Opera House . . . and record an album with the Boston Pops."

"But, outside that, I'd just like to be a good person that everybody likes and respects and to be treated like any other person."

"The picture of myself hasn't become clear yet," he mused. "I'm like everybody else, I'm still searching."

Shot, Killed

4-Hers Make Exchange Trip

STANTON — A group of Stanton teen-aged 4-H members went to Orange County in participation of the club's exchange trip.

Members visited in the homes of Orange 4-H families from July 24-29, and gained understanding of Southeast area, according to Victor Gene Hughs, Martin County agent.

The trip took the 4-Hers on a boat ride on the Sabine River and a tour of the moth-ball fleet. They also visited bayous and factories on the river, touring the Owens-Illinois Paper mill, and a trip to Galveston and to Louisiana.

They were entertained with a beach party and picnics.

Martin Co. 4-Hers attending were Tere Hazelwood, Pam Hazelwood, Carolyn Holloway, Mark Eiland, J. C. Tunnell, Lisa Hopper, Morgan Cox, Gerry Hanson, Belynda Blake and Tahita Blake.

Sponsors of the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hazelwood Jr., Mrs. Mary Holloway and Mrs. D. H. Hopper.

Local Enforcement Is More Exacting

The label of "hick town" law enforcement is a misnomer for small-city and county staffs, Deputy Sheriff Al Lee said in a talk to Downtown Liins at the Settles Wednesday noon.

Lee had put in nine years of law enforcement in a metropolitan situation in Florida before coming here.

There are few specialists in enforcement work in this area, he noted, hence officers have to be better trained, more knowledgeable and work harder. In his former situation, he said, there were officers who did nothing but investigate certain types of offenses.

"Here, law enforcement is more on a personal basis," he observed. "The people you are dealing with are friendlier and in 80 per cent of the cases no physical restraint or handcuffing is necessary."

Jim Lemons, club president, announced a meeting of the directors Thursday 6:30 p.m. at the Big Spring Country Club to complete the organization by committees.

Austin Makes Splash In Sunday's Issue Of Star

"Austin makes a big splash" next Sunday in the Texas Star magazine's cover story featuring the Capital City's annual Aqua Festival.

Festivities include such diverse events as world drag boat races, an art show, a golf tournament, an air show by Bergstrom Air Force Base, a Moto-Cross Off-Road race, in addition to the many aqua events. Taking place next week, the festival adopts a different theme each night for food and music, ranging from German Night to Czech, Western and Soul.

Another article in the Sunday supplement focuses on the nation's oldest church structure, a San Antonio mission. The 241-year-old landmark, Mission Concepcion, will be dedicated to the public Sunday by National Park Service authorities.

Alley Oop, the cave man of Sunday comic strips, visits the place of his birth in another feature. The fictional character is very real to residents of Iraan in Pecos County, where a reporter covering an oil strike was inspired to create the comic characters 46 years ago.

L. A. Wilke describes the conception of the character and his friends and the fantasy land that is being constructed in Iraan to commemorate Alley Oop's sensational success.
