Annual Awards Day Slated At Junior High School Tomorrow

The Annual Awards Day for the Junior High School Students will be held tomorrow at the Junior High School in Floydada. The assembly will begin at 8:55 a.m. and will be over by noon.

At the assembly the outstanding students will be recognized for their academic work and for other awards they have earned during the year.

Each year the students in the school who excel, are honored by having a book placed in the library in their honor, in the field in which they are doing outstanding work. This book bears the name of the student, subject in which he is receiving the book, grade section, and the following factors are among the foremost to be considered in choosing outstanding students from each subject field.

In Scholarship: the student must have an average of 85 or above (in the subject the student is considering, not overall); should display some interest beyond the text.

"We studied about a bunch of good people whose leader was named Moses, and they was being chased by these bad guys across a river. So Moses built a pontoon bridge and when the good ones was on the other side, his dive bombers blew up the bridge and drowned all the bad guys!"

Farmers Union president Jay cision by the Board was largely Naman of Waco told members influenced by the dramatic of the recently organized Bra- growth Farmers Union has exzos Valley Growers Assn. at a meeting in Hearne, "that Texas farmers want a new cotton program and can get together and agree on what they want. A lot of the indecision in high government places that is being blamed on differences between farmers is actually the result of the failure of the policy makers to listen to in 1960 farmers' voices.

"Those who have a vested interest in low prices and overproduction seem to have infiltered some cotton producer groups and along with others advocating the sliding scale schemes of a Chicago corn husker have entrenched themselves in these organizations and have rendered them completely ineffective to set policy. Farmers need to dig into these cotton producer groups that either can't or won't stand up for the producer-members and find out why they fail them.

"The 'warring factions' in cotton are not the farmers. Farmers don't object to receiving direct payments to permit them to produce competitively and as long as they have the opportunity to make a profit, ey are not suspicious that farmers from another area or one that is larger or smaller is benefitting more from the "Most of the so-called differences between farmers have been magnified far out of proportion, and I think that it is time that the policy makers in the Department of Agriculture stop relying on this wornout excuse for their failure to listen to farmers and to meet their responsibility to work out a sound cotton program. Farmers Union stands ready to assist them and will soon be calling together cotton producers from all cotton producing Washington for cotton policy

Continuation of the present cotton program would be disastrous to producers, and the failure of a cotton program to be included in the total farm package might mean its rejection by the congress," said FARMERS UNION BOARD SETS

MARCH WINDS AND APRIL SHOWERS BRING THE PRET-TY MAY FLOWERS! We can vouch for the March vinds; but the April showers

- -well anyway, weren't the lilacs beautiful and the bridal wreath, the tulips and all the others that show up from day

The month of MAY brings so many things - May Day -Mother's Day - and pretty spring-time parties galore.

Legends from the sixteenthcentury in England tell us that during this period the young at heart would flock to the woodlands to gather blossoms. At sunrise, they would return to the village to decorate windows and doors and the Maypole which was set up in the square. However, the choicest blooms were fashioned into a crown for the local beauty who was proclaimed Queen of the May Day festivities. Seems that in a sense both of these traditions still survive in some form in our American way of life today. The school children and youngsters make flower baskets and oftentimes leave them at friends' doors while many colleges preserve the traditional crowning of the May Queen ceremony.

The second Sunday is Mother's Day. Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia first conceived the idea of a Mother's Day in 1907, and it was first celebrated on May 10 of the following year. The Bible Baptist Church is holding a special service both Sunday morning and evening in observance of all Mothers. Special attention will be given the eldest mother present, the youngest mother present and the mother with the most children in attendance. They will be presented lovely corsages.

Gilbert Rhine, pastor, said both messages will be centered around the theme of mothers. Everyone is invited and is urged to attend this special Mother's Day service.

Rev. Rhine reports of having three more conversions into church Sunday and also three added to the church for baptism and two are awaiting baptism. The church has had an average of three conversions each Sunday since the first of the year. In the past eight weeks they have had 37 conversions and an average of over 50 visitors per Sunday. Rev. Rhine reported that they have already outgrown their present building, but their Sunday School space is their biggest problem at present. They hope to begin an expansion program in the very near future, Rev. Rhine said. He commented that he guessed his faith was a little weak when the present building was erected only two years ago, because they have found the building is much too small for the present attend-

Their Vacation Bible School starts the third week in June. Everyone is invited to attend the Bible Baptist Church in any or all services during each week. Their new starting time for Sunday nights will begin this Sunday at 7:30.

what, and to distribute what is produced to the citizens in a fair and reasonable manner.

For example, there are cotton producers in the United States who would like to produce 20 million bales of cot-Only 12 million bales of otton are needed. How is the system to determine who will produce, process, handle, and ise these 12 million bales and at what price? The determi- FARM POLICY, page six:

nation will either be made in the market place or by some board or committee authorized by government. If the decision made in the market place, all citizens can be assured of an ample supply of commodities at the lowest possible price. If a planning board makes the decision, those who can offer the most in the form of "votes" will be rewarded at first until all freedom is controlled by the planners; them, all will be assigned a task and punished if the task is not completed as directed. Congress will again this year, as in former years, be flooded with a large number of proposals to correct the agricultural problems.

The agricultural problem in Washington has been one continuous battle each year since 1933, to write a program attempting to cure the mistakes of the programs used in prior years. The problem has developed to a point where the administration in power is expected to develop a solution each year. The present administration has introduced its proposal for 1965 in the form of H. R. 7097 or S. 1702.

The immediate problem is to substitute a sensible and workable program for the one being advocated by the administration. If this is not done, the planners will make the decisions made in former years in the market place. The new plan is to channel a part of the market price due the producer through the hands of government in the form of payments in order to control who will produce, handle and consume what and at what price.

All freedom rests on man's ability to trade in the markets of his country. If the individual producer must have a certificate to trade in the market, then he is a slave of the system that has the power to issue the certificate or the right to produce, sell, or buy in the market. The function of government is to guarantee the freedoms of the citizens. Payments have not and will not improve the net spendable income of the producer or any other group who receives them. The net result of any payment program is to channel a portion of the market price due the citizens through the hands of government. Commodities are not regulated; it is the people who produce, consume and handle these commodities who are regulated. These regulations invariably produce inefficiency, which in the long run, destroys supplies and creates scarcities. It is often referred to in the press as "legislated scarcities."

theory of reducing production and increasing income (produce less and earn more) is an economic falsehood. The theory has been disproved for many years. "When I was a graduate student in agricultural economics at Cornell, my major professor, Dr. Frank A. Pearson, assigned readings on what he called 'two classic failures of agricultural policy.' One of these was the Stevenson Plan to reduce the supply and raise the price of rubber in Malaya during the 1920's, a plan which resulted mainly in a loss of a good share of the Malaya rubber market to the Netherlands and East Indies. The other was the Brazilian Plan to restrict the supply and raise the price of coffee, which resulted in a loss of part of the Brazilian coffee industry to Africa and to the rest of Latin America. These failures were classic in that the programs were clear-cut, with specified objectives were given a fair trial, failed emphatically, were closed out, and were judged as failures by an informed world. "Some future professor, assigning readings in agricultural policy to his students, may add to this list, the American effort to restrict the production of and to support, at high levels, the prices of wheat, cotton, corn, and other farm products during the mid-twentieth century.'

Farm Bureau's program through the years, has been and is today, one of supporting the market price system. Specifically for this year, it is a price support program operating through the Commodity Credit Corporation which would isolate Commodity Credit's stocks from the domestic market and set a loan level low enough to permit the market to function above the loan. The program also provides that farmers and ranchers would be given assistance in retiring and adjusting their cropland when and where needed on a voluntary basis at competitive prices. Farm Bureau's program would eliminate much of the unworkable and damaging legislation we now have, for example, marketing quotas and acreage allotments on wheat and feed grain programs. The program would provide additional legislation in future years, based on the following guide lines taken from page 2 of the 1965 AFBF Policy Book: "Policies affecting agriculture should-Increase economic opportunity for farm people. Promote efficiency in the farm business.

Protect the competitive principle. Be consistent with the law of supply and demand. Strengthen the market sys-Stimulate market expan-

Stimulate excessive production. Permit development of monopolies. Erode individual freedom. Freeze historical production patterns. Encourage use of synthetics or other substitutes. Shift adjustment burdens from one producer group to another. Increase farm production costs.

Make farmers dependent on government payments. "If farm people are to enjoy freedom to produce and market, we must accept the discipline of competition. We reaffirm our desire to move as rapidly as possible to the market price system."

In Floyd County, where average earnings have been going opulation amounted higher and higher with the years, the net worth of local families has been rising proportionately.

What it amounts to now, determined by dividing the $53,-960,000 total assets of the community by the number of families, is an average of $14,-200 per family. Since "average" lumps to-as old and young, no family is just average. The broad picture of personal gether rich and poor as well wealth shows that, for any particular family, it is closely related to its earnings. It also varies with age. A young family, just starting out, has a modest income and little in the form of assets. Its funds are used for equipping a home. The Federal Reserve Board finds that, in general, families with annual incomes of $5,000 to $7,500 have a net worth of $15,112, those with $7,500 to $10,000 income, a net worth of $21,243, and those in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket. $30,389.

The net worth figures combine all assets, such as the equity in a house, the value of life insurance, cash on hand and in the bank, stocks and bonds, automobile, the amount in pension funds, household appliances, furniture, jewelry and all other items of value.

From this total is deducted all outstanding debt, including mortgage obligations.

We read on the front page of the Silverton paper this week that the Muckleroy Clinic is closing there on May 20. The town's one doctor, Dr. Neville Muckleroy is leaving after operating the clinic for the past five years. He and his family will move to Dallas.

This is a good example of what happens to small communities when there is no adequate hospital in which a doctor can Silverton people saw the crisis approaching and made several efforts to create a county hospital or a hospital district for that area. Several people in that area opposed the creation of either . . . because it would cost money.

This means that residents of northeastern Floyd county will no longer have the services of a doctor at Silverton. True, Lockney has a good hospital but it can only take care of a certain amount of people. When it becomes full then our people must go on to Lubbock, Plainview or Crosby-

Doctors are sorta like farmers in one sense of the word. Farmers don't enjoy farming with a hoe or a breaking plow and horses. They want modern farming equipment with enormous power and efficiency.

Doctors want to do more than administer pills they want modern hospitals well equipped so that they can act in emergencies, operate, stop profuse bleeding, set broken bones . . . , rather than risk the patient's life in sending him to a larger better equipped hospital.

Floydada lost another doctor last week who had planned to move here next month. We lost him because of the new suit filed against the hospital district.

It's hard to understand what IS IMPORTANT to people if they don't want to spend their money for preservation of . . . and life itself . . . , what will they spend their money for?

Floyd County Continues To Grow

Recent figures released by Texas Business Review, a publication of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas shows Floyd county has maintained a 3.9 percent gain in population since the census was taken in 1960. The count in 1960 was 12,369 and the count in 1964 shows

This is very gratifying when you look at the counties around. Some have gained more than Floyd county, yet some have actually lost population in this four year period. Birth and death rates, scholastic census figures and other

Delays Cost Us All Money

Our tax payers are concerned about the cost of lawyers, court costs, etc. involved when these people bring suits against the building of a school and hospital. Actually, this is only a minor cost in comparison with the rising cost of building. The people who bring suit, basically are trying to delay or stop the building of the hospital. This means that the longer they delay it, the more it will cost us all - as building costs rise.

The school board has found that a school building that could have been built two years ago, before the suits, will cost a considerable amount more now to build. The hospital that should now be in construction will cost more

Although the Baptist Church here has had no problem of people filing suit, they have learned that estimates of building a new sanctuary of two years ago have increased greatly, now that they have let the contract cation bill is a major step forthan ever before.

EDUCATION BILL CLEARED

BY CONGRESS On April 9, the Senate passed the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which was signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson two days later. After hard and extensive committee work, this bill was reported to the Senate without any amendments, which would have sent the bill to conference with the House. Although I objected strenuously to the formula of the bill under which funds are paid to each state as not being fair to lower per capita income states such as Texas, I supported the bill in the hope that a more equitable formula can be substituted next year when the bill automatically comes up for extension.

The enactment of this edu-ward in providing equitable educational opportunities to the culturally and economically deprived children of our Nation. This bill has great promise in raising the educational levels of our entire school system by netary resources into those specific areas of need, and providing children of poverty, educational opportunities which have previously been denied to them. This bill will mean over 85 million dollars of assistance the first year to the elementary and secondary schools of Texas. VA HOSPITAL CLOSINGS terans' Affairs, after holding extensive hearings on the Veterans' Administration order to close 11 VA hospitals and 4 domiciliaries has reported two bills to the full Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

The first bill which I proposed would delay any closings until June 30, the end of the fiscal year, to allow time for the President's appointed Commission to study this matter, and allow Congress time to review the report after its completion. The second bill would raise the total number of beds in the VA hospital system to 130,000, an increase of 5,000 over the present level. I have pledged to work to prevent medical care of our veterans from being impaired by the closing order.

What Should You Do With City When It Becomes Unnecessary?

I have the answer to this problem and will give it to you just as soon as I find the answer

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm tries to shift from the farm problem to the city problem this week. Dear editar:

While I never worry about the future, except maybe on the 9th of the month when I begin worrying about what I'm going to do about some bills on the 10th, still a lot of people do and lately I've been reading about their worrying over the future of the farmer in America.

The question to them, is should small farmers and what they call economically incompetent farmers and marginal farmers be allowed to follow the course of nature and go under, or should they be supported and maintained?

Some say, let nature take its course, we've got too many farmers now, they produce too much, every time you turn around somebody is putting up another supermarket to try to sell their stuff. Let em move to town and get a job.

FORT HOOD, TEX. (AHTNC) -Army PFC Michael L. Hoyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hoyle, Matador, Tex., qualified as expert in firing the highpowered M-14 rifle at Fort Hood, Tex., April 20.

graduated from Matador High School in 1959 and from Texas Technological College in 1964.

Meanwhile, there is another problem that ought to be tackled. According to an article I read last night, an economic expert claims that "many cities are nearly broke now."

You mean to say there are "marginal cities," there are 'economically incompetent' cities? You mean we've got more cities than the country requires? That we ought to let nature take its course and if Baltimore or New York can't make it, let them go under? I've never thought about this much, but what do you do with a city that's no longer needed? In fact, the harder I think about it the less I conclude.

I have a notion though that a marginal farmer who is nearly broke is going to think a long time before he gets enthusiastic about moving to a city that's in the same shape.

As I see it, the problem now is: this country has too many farms and too many cities. There are lots of things to think about outside Viet Nam. Yours faithfully,

PLANT THE BEST COTTONSEED MONEY CAN BUY!!

Cottonseed costs 3 to 6% of all cotton production costs, depending on whether you buy the best field selected seed or higher that we have for sale has been supervised by experienced seedsmen and is the first year progeny from certified breeders seed. Varietial purity of this seed has been maintained through proper isolation, cleaning of harvesting equipment, ginning the seed in large lots and large batch conditions as it is produced locally. This seed is selected from fields free of verticillium wilt that are mature at harvest. Mature fields produce high germinating seed that have good seedling vigor and resistance against seedling diseases. Our seed is culled closely during the acid delinting process and treated with a mercurial type chemical which gives protection against seed borne diseases and fungus. The Texas Department of Agriculture runs germination tests on all our seed to insure that we know our germination percentage.
