What's Back of My Gas Burners? BUFFET SUPPER ENTERTAINS CLUB

A thousand years ago, the Chinese used natural gas fuel for evaporating salt brine. They transported the gas in bamboo tubes. Thus, in those days, the gas business was simple. Now, however, it has become complicated and technical, utilizing many scientific devices and processes.

Since natural gas service so vitally affects your daily life, we believe you would enjoy knowing more about it. Therefore we plan to publish a series of four advertisements which will attempt to explain how natural gas is brought from its deep-underground reservoir to the burners of your gas appliances. Due to space limitations, the story must be brief and oversimplified. The drawing at the left will help you follow the gas on its travels.

Most of our gas comes from Hutchinson, Moore, Carson and Potter Counties in the Panhandle Gas Field, one of the largest in the world. We purchase some gas in Ector County for use in the southern portion of our system. In the Panhandle Field gas wells are generally drilled by the "rotary" methods, so named because of the rotating motion of the drill bit. A modern rotary drilling outfit costs from $100,000 to $200,000.

The hard steel drill bit is the cutting tool which drills down through successive strata of shale and rock. Screwed to the top of the bit is a string of hollow, round drill pipe which in turn is screwed into the bottom of a hollow, square pipe known as a "Kelly." The Kelly works through a square hole in the rotary turntable. Thus, when the engines spin the turntable, the Kelly, the drill pipe and the bit also spin, and the bit cuts its way downward. Heavy pumps force drilling mud down through the hollow Kelly and drill pipe, through perforations in the bit, then outside the pipe and back to the surface, carrying with it the cuttings from the bit. As the bit moves downward, additional joints of drill pipe are added below the Kelly.

When the gas producing horizon is reached, a string of steel pipe, known as casing, is inserted in the hole from the surface of the ground to the top of the producing horizon. After running the casing, cement is run thru the casing and forced out around the bottom in order to prevent the gas from escaping around the outside of the pipe. Then the well is drilled into the gas-producing horizon.

A steel derrick, capable of supporting weights of 200 tons or more, is used to support the drill pipe during drilling and the casing when casing is being installed. When the well is completed, the derrick is removed. In its place is installed a "Christmas Tree," an odd-looking assembly of valves and fittings necessary in producing, testing and maintaining the well.
