Culture Club Enjoys Trip

The Sanderson Culture Club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. M. Justice, with Mrs. H. C. Goldwire and Mrs. A. E. Creigh as joint hostesses.

After a very short business session our honorary members, Mrs. T. L. des Landes and Mrs. F. B. Carter, were welcomed into the club by Mrs. H. R. Laurence.

The ladies were delightfully entertained on our travels from New Orleans to Panama, by Mrs. H. L. Stuckey, who was hostess on the lap of our journey. The trip proved very interesting in many ways, and our stop-over in Cuba was not nearly so long as we would have liked to stay under the able guidance of our hostess, Mrs. Sims Wilkinson, who proved such an able one, as she told us so much of the history and traditions of that beautiful island.

After reaching Panama and being conducted through the locks of that most wonderful canal and traveling by train to Panama City, we went into the jungle with guides and safely back again to a surprise party put on in our honor at the hotel, by the club women of that, so different country, which we all enjoyed and hope to visit again soon.

While we were enjoying all of this trip in the different ports, our secretary, Mrs. H. D. John-

Terrell County Oil Activities

Transcontinental's Goode No. 1, on survey 26 in block 161, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co., drilling in the big lime at depth of 3,650 feet.

W. J. Banner's test in the Pecos River bed about three miles east of the Transcontinental's test, reported progressing with a showing of oil probably in line with the Yates Pool district.

Big Bend Oil Corporation's test on section 155 in Block D, M. K. & T. E. Ry. Co. survey, reported drilling at depth of 2,000 feet with favorable indications.

Jessie McPhee's well on section 78 in block D-7, E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. survey, reported to resume operations soon.

Keck Pecos Trust well on section 6, cert. 100, Georgetown Ry. Co. survey, reported resuming operations at the depth of 3,150 feet.

Geologists and mineralogists are now working on the Stansell & Jones ranch at present time. There seems to be quite a bit of folding and faulting on this ranch with out-croppings in the Edwards formation that tests both oil and gas. Mr. Stansell has been doing some development work in several different places on this ranch and has recently submitted quite a few samples to the School of Mines at El Paso, Texas, for inspection. A private mineralogist says that a calcite vein on section 120 in block D-10, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, shows a trace of uranium and other minerals such as gold and silver, and that another calcite vein on the same section tests oil and gas when a little heat is applied. Mr. Stansell has just received a communication from G. R. Cornelius stating he will arrive in this city within the next few days with plenty of blasting powder to assist in further developments.

The records here at the courthouse show that many individuals, independent and major companies, are still interested in purchasing oil and gas leases and royalties in various portions of this county. Quite a few people from Alpine, Midland and other points were here last week trying to purchase oil and gas leases and royalties.

son, was very busy writing an article on the natives and their customs which are so different from our own home land. These have proved to be very important hours for us, we learned so much about our near neighbors that we did not know before.

In closing the club paid tribute to the memory of Mrs. Lillie Mae Grigsby, with a prayer led by Mrs. des Landes.

Refreshments of pineapple ice cream and cake were served by the hostesses.

Know Your School Week By Week

The second annual outing sponsored by the high school took place last week-end when a crowd of juniors with the faculty camped out for two nights at Wilson Banne's ranch.

Boating, fishing, swimming, baseball and pitching horse shoes were the chief diversions.

The two day sojourn in the open provided the best means for students and teachers to become acquainted on an equal footing. Doubtless there were surprises on each side. It seemed a little queer to see instructors of the serious, determined type take part with the boys and girls in their kingdom of sports. They responded to the good-natured railery like veterans of that once favorite pastime.

The most noticeable thing in whole affair was the attitude the students took toward the outing.

They were at their best. No discipline trouble nor the semblance of a discipline problem pressed itself. They proved that they are able to meet in an excellent fashion the circumstances of their environment. Whenever there was work to be done, they were willing to push the job, and whatever it was, they performed it graciously.

Emily Post, herself, would have felt proud of our juniors and seniors could she have witnessed their politeness at the campfire, at the ball game, or at the swimming contest.

Becoming conduct as displayed by the students on their outing is worthy of note. It makes such trips an undisputed pleasure.

Those who made the trip were Rosa Lee Harper, Myrian Carpenter, Novis White, Elizabeth Sherrod, Jack Smith, Jack Stovell, John Green, William Lea, Ernest Farley, Frank Jansa, Eugene Banner, Elmer Haass, James Daniels, Leo Daniels, Mitchell Ross, Russell MacMillan, Dean Williams, Gilbert Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Fuqua Younger.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Parker, Misses Ophelia Spradling, Martha Robinson, Dorothy Weatherby, Bonnie Cox, Margaret Martin, Gladine Bowers, Louise Noble, Mr. Jason Morgan, and Mr. B. J. Brannan.

The boys' debating team of H. D. Johnson and D. C. Thrift accompanied by Miss Margaret Martin and Mr. S. E. Nelson went to Austin Wednesday to enter the students in the state-wide interscholastic league contests which take place at the University Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Notice of Reward Offered.

A reward of $250 is hereby offered for information leading to the arrest, conviction and sentencing of any person found stealing sheep or goats from the ranch properties of the undersigned. A suspended sentence of a court will not entitle any informant of the benefits of this reward.

Girls Admitted To Quill And Scroll

Margaret Lattimore and Aurora Robertson have been admitted to Quill and Scroll, a national honorary society for high school journalists. This distinction has come as a recognition of their superior work in journalism.

Samples of work from each were submitted to the national secretary, George H. Gallup of Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, and approved by the national board of examiners of the organization.

The girls were presented with Quill and Scroll pins at chapel Thursday of last week by Miss Anna Lena Wirz, who teaches journalism.

Miss Lattimore is editor of The Eagle News this semester; Miss Robertson is associate editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doak Jr. were in from the ranch the latter part of last week. They report a rain.

Baptist Missionary Society Entertain

The Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. C. W. Gregory with Mrs. E. P. Hallie as joint hostess.

The program around the world in eighty-five years was led by Mrs. Gayle Mussey as conductor of the trip. In China, Mrs. A. D. Brown and Mrs. Druce acted as guides, while Mrs. Thornton was guide for Japan. Mrs. H. G. Johnson acted as guide in Africa and Mrs. Burnside in Brazil, Argentine and Chile. The program was closed by Mrs. Mussey carrying us through Italy, Spain and Serbia.

Refreshments of salad, cake and tea were served by the hostess.

O. B. and Mrs. Bendele were in from the ranch near Dryden Thursday.

In the Ad of James House this week you will find an error in price of potatoes. Ten pounds of spuds for 49 cents instead of 69 cents.

Birthplace Of Mother's Day

When and where did the celebration of Mother's day originate? Since this is one of the "youngest" holidays on our calendar, it would seem that the answer to that question should be easy because its origin is near enough in the past to make it possible to establish the exact date and place. But the fact is that there is a dispute as to both date and place and no less than four cities in as many states lay claim to the honor of being the "birthplace of Mother's day."

In this issue of The Sanderson Times appears an illustrated feature article by Elmo Scott Watson which presents the claims of these cities. Read it and judge for yourself which one has the best right to the title.

Origin of Mothers' Day

Bricard's "The First Step"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ALTHOUGH the official observance of the second Sunday in May as Mother's day is regarded as a modern custom, it is in reality a revival of one of the oldest feasts celebrated by mankind. For the gifts of flowers, candy and the like which we send on Mother's day correspond to the ancient smimel cake, a feature of "Mothering day" of the early Britons. On Mothering day all young persons away from home visited their parents, taking along gifts of sweet confections of honey in the form of smimel cakes. Still farther back in antiquity the people of Asia Minor held a feast early in May to worship Rhea, "the Great Mother of the Gods," and this feast later became the feast of Hilaria, an annual event on the Ides of March in Greece and Rome.

Just how much these ancient rites contributed to the modern celebration of Mother's day it is impossible to say, for there is some dispute as to the origin of the idea which resulted finally in setting aside the second Sunday of May for honoring the mothers of the nation. No less than four cities in as many different states claim that honor for one of their citizens. Up in Albion, N. Y., they will tell you that it originated there and offer the following facts in support of that statement:

George M. Pullman dedicated a home on the St. Lawrence river to "Father and Mother." This was opened for a large family reunion in August, 1888. In 1894 a church was built by Mr. Pullman in Albion, in memory of his parents. He put a great deal of thought, sentiment and time into both buildings—the home and the church.

These two things and the manner in which the work was done made such an impression upon the people at Albion that at the first anniversary of the mother's passing on it was decided to call the Sunday nearest that date "Mother's day," and they voted that hereafter, in that church, it should be an annual event.

No one at that time had any thought of how far-reaching this observance would become, or that it would so appeal to all lovers of mothers as the yearly celebration has now shown.

Down in Henderson, Ky., they claim the honor for Mary Towles Sasseen Wilson, born and reared in this little city, on the south bank of the Ohio river, in the 60s, she labored earnestly to have April 20, her mother's natal day, observed in the schools in the manner in which the day is now celebrated.

In 1893 Miss Sasseen, then a school teacher, published a book setting forth her ideas, aims and objects, dedicating the volume to her mother, with a hope for national recognition.

She traveled extensively and addressed various educational meetings throughout the country in her effort to have the day observed in the schools. It was in the Little Center street school of Henderson that the first observance of Mother's day was held by Miss Sasseen, and in 1894 she succeeded in having it celebrated in the public schools of Springfield, Ohio. In 1899 she became a candidate for superintendent of public instruction of Kentucky, and it was then generally discussed over the state that she had first conceived the plan of celebrating Mother's day.

Mary Towles Sasseen married Judge Marshall Wilson of Florida, and gave her life to the cause of motherhood when her first child was born.

Still another claimant to the honor is Indianapolis, Ind., which comes forth with a citizen who, it says, is the "father of Mother's day." Recently Representative Louis Ludlow of Indiana in a speech on "The Origin of Mother's Day" put forward the Indianapolis citizen's claim to the honor. His speech, as reported in the Congressional Record, follows:

Mr. Speaker, one of the most blessed of all anniversaries is Mother's day. The very name of this anniversary makes a thousand bells tinkle in our recollection. It sends us back to first principles and revives all of the hallowed memories of childhood. It brings before the vision of every one of us the sweetest face much of its sorrow and leave it only its glory.

It is well to remember anniversaries, especially of imperishable ideas. It is also well for Indianapolis to remember in pride that with her other contributions to progress and civilization it furnished the birthplace for a great idea from which has come better things for all.

The fourth city which claims the honor of having given to the nation this red-letter day on its calendar is Philadelphia. The Quaker city points out that the movement, which resulted in congress passing a joint resolution authorizing a Mother's day and in President Wilson issuing a special proclamation designating a Sunday in May as the date, thus giving the observance the official sanction of the government of the United States, was started there in 1908 by one of its daughters, Miss Anna Jarvis.

Miss Jarvis' mother, who died in 1907, had been active in the work of the church and Sunday school of a small town in Virginia. On the anniversary of her death the pastor asked the daughter to arrange for a special service in the church where her mother had been a leading spirit. In complying with the request she began to realize the growing lack of tender consideration of absent mothers on the part of children who had left the home roof and strayed out into the world, each with a different interest.

Miss Jarvis talked the matter over with a friend, saying she would like to have one day of the year set aside, especially dedicated to the "best little mother in the world." Through the influence of this friend and others who had become interested, the first observance of the day was held May 10, 1908, in Philadelphia, with special services in all the Sunday schools in the city.

So popular was the idea with the people that Miss Jarvis became even more interested and began a widespread publicity of the event. She wrote letters or interviewed people in all walks of life for a proper observance of the day. By the time another anniversary had come around many individuals and organizations observed the second Sunday in May with appropriate ceremonies.

In honor of the best mother who ever lived." As a result not only the entire nation, but many foreign countries, observe this day with appropriate ceremonies.

Pennsylvania was the first to make it a state holiday. This was in 1913. In the same year the mayor of Boston set an example of giving a free picnic in a park, when all mothers and their children were given a big dinner by the business men of the city. The object was "to give a day of rest and recreation to mothers who have not had a summer vacation away from the city, and who get few opportunities to do so."

On May 10, 1913, a resolution passed by the senate and house of representatives to make the second Sunday in May a national holiday, "dedicated to the memory of the best mother in the world, your mother." President Wilson was authorized and requested to issue a proclamation to display United States flags on all government buildings in celebration of the day. It is said that when President Wilson signed the proclamation, he turned to William Jennings Bryan, his secretary of state, and said: "Bryan, that's the finest thing this congress has done. God bless the mothers."

Each year the idea grew more and more popular, until in a few years there was scarcely a small church or an organization throughout the land that did not make some observance of the day. And then came the World war, and it was during this time that the day was more universally observed than at any previous time. Boys in France were requested to write their mothers on that day, and so great was the response that shipload after shipload of letters landed at the port of New York to be distributed all over the nation to mothers whose sons had "gone across."

At the beginning the slogan adopted was, as it still is, "In honor of the best mother who ever lived," and the badge was then the white carnation. It is said that this flower was chosen because it was the favorite flower of a President, famous for his devotion to his mother—William McKinley, who habitually wore a white carnation in her honor.

ELOPEMENT OF PAIR NIPPED BY FORGERY

Find Pathway of Romance Is Not Rosy.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Alvin Krouse and Mrs. Olga Lossow, elopers from Minneapolis, did not find the pathway of their romance a rosy one, for both now occupy cells in the state penitentiary in Sioux Falls.

They were sentenced to indeterminate terms, not to exceed five years each, for forgery, when they pleaded guilty before Judge John T. Medin in Circuit court here.

Krouse was sentenced first, and when it came time for the woman she asked that she be given the same sentence. "I ask this," she told the court, "because I want to get out at the same time he does."

Alvin Krouse and Mrs. Lossow and her husband were neighbors in Minneapolis. Mrs. Lossow and Krouse often met secretly, and they became enamored of each other to such an extent that they finally decided to elope.

Takes $300 Certificate.

Mrs. Lossow decided to take with them a certificate of deposit issued by a St. Paul bank to her husband. This proved the undoing of the elopers.

After eloping from Minneapolis they came direct to Garretson, near Sioux Falls, where the parents of the woman reside. She had been married to Lossow after leaving home and her parents had never seen Lossow. This made it easy for the plans of the elopers, for to her parents she represented Krouse to be Lossow.

After thus deceiving her parents Mrs. Lossow prevailed upon them to accompany herself and Krouse to a Garretson bank to identify Krouse as Lossow, so he could cash the $300 certificate of deposit which was in Mr. Lossow's name. In order to get the $300 from the bank Krouse forged the name of Lossow to the certificate.

Forgery Discovered.

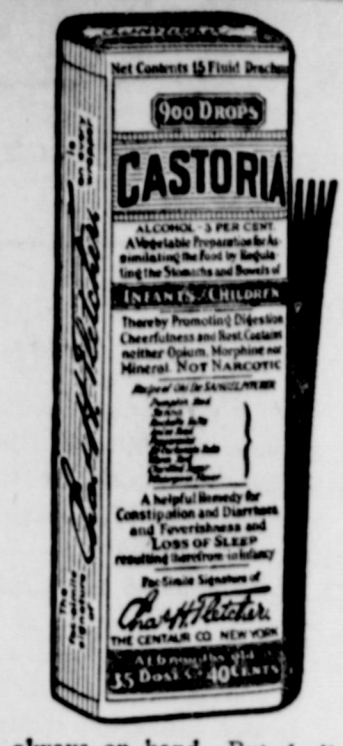

Soon after obtaining the money the elopers left the home of the women's parents and went East. When the forgery became known and officers sought to trail the elopers it was learned that they had gone from Garretson to the region north of Superior, Wis.

For some time all trace of them was lost. Then Krouse and the woman appeared at Superior, where officers saw them and recognized them as the elopers wanted in Sioux Falls for forgery.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Household oil must do 3 things, say experts

Household oils that merely lubricate do only half the job, say lubrication experts. Locks and hinges, sewing machines, electric fans, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, washers—all household devices are constantly gathering dirt and rust when not in service. To get best results one should use an oil that cleans and protects as well as lubricates.

Unlike ordinary oil, 3-in-One is a blend of high grade animal, mineral and vegetable oils, so it does these three things as no other oil can. 3-in-One Oil costs more to make than ordinary oil, but it costs much less to use. It is cheapest in the long run, for it will save you many dollars on repairs and replacements of expensive household equipment.

Don't be satisfied with anything but the best. Get the old reliable 3-in-One Oil. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c cans and bottles. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

So the road was built to curve around the rock.

Highway engineers and geologists said they believed the rock was a meteor.

If this was so—if this man was the father he sought, there was a mystery behind it, for Pierre Lecroix would never have spent the summer on the Carcajou with these men, while his son mourned him at Hungry House. What was behind it all?

Then Gaspard's dark face knotted with pain. Could he be hurt—so wounded that he was helpless—unable to travel? But Nipissing assured Gaspard that this stranger was actively working around the camp.

Thus ran Gaspard's thoughts as they traveled through the small spruce of the low ridge to a point commanding the river. Nipissing, in the lead, suddenly stopped and beckoned with his mitten. Joining him, Gaspard followed with eager eyes the arm which pointed. On the opposite shore, high above the river ice, stood a schooner, blocked up with heavy spruce logs where it had been warped up from the river beyond the reach of the spring freshets. Some distance upstream, rose the white roof and the snow-banked log walls of the traders' camp.

"Ah-hah!" murmured the halfbreed. "There will be few men there now," said Nipissing.

"How many?" asked the other in Cree.

"Three—four."

"Any dogs?" asked Gaspard.

"No, they are away on the trap lines."

"Ah-hah!" And the eyes of the halfbreed glittered as he swiftly made his plans.

That night, through the murk under a thick sky, three shapes crossed the Carcajou above the camp and cut back from the shore. Approaching from the rear, three hooded figures stopped in the scrub, a hundred yards from where two yellow smears lit the wall of gloom. Then one of the men left the others and faded into the murk. Shortly, Gaspard strained against the log walls of the cabin, beside a window. Slowly he moved his head until he gained a partial view of the interior.

His father! Was he to see the loved face of the man for whom he had come so far? The heart of the youth shook him with its beating. His breath tortured his lungs. Was he in there—Pierre Lecroix—or was it all a grim joke—this tale of Nipissing's?

To his straining ears came voices and laughter. He moved his head farther, and looked.

In a chair fashioned from spruce saplings, sat a bulk of a man with a red beard. Across a slab table, on which stood a bottle and glasses, a swart-faced halfbreed studied a hand of cards in tight close-set, evil eyes. Indistinctly the one who watched through the frosted window, gripped the gun in his right hand, while his left mitten found the horn handle of his knife. Those men there, who sat at their cards, drinking, would pay to Gaspard Lecroix! Pay for the father they had taken from him. There, where they sat, he could wipe them out now, with but two crooks of his finger.

But—was his father there? Presently Gaspard's eyes widened, breathing checked, as another joined the table—but it was not the man he sought.

The man he sought was a servant—a prisoner. He would not sit with the others. The cabin seemed to have one room only, but there was a loft above the large room, for Gaspard saw the ladder leading to the opening in the door. He moved to the opposite side of the window where the sheetrock stove would not obstruct his view.

Then his eyes were drawn to the top round of the ladder. A moccasin foot was thrust from the open trap door and rested on the round. Then a peeled spruce stick passed the foot on the top round—a short spruce stick followed by . . . the stump-of—a leg!

Breathless, the one flattened against the log wall in the freezing air, watched the body of the one descending the ladder, sliding, lowered hand under hand. Reaching the floor, the tall figure of the cripple turned, and the light from a lantern lit the bold features of—Pierre Lecroix.

"Fader! . . . Fader!" With a sob Gaspard Lecroix watched the tall figure limp from sight.

Then a wave of grief and rage swept the one outside the window. Stepping back, steel clicked on steel as he threw the rifle to his shoulder and covered the chest of the big man, who sat, ten feet from flaming death. For a space, the steel tube in the murk menaced the unsuspecting "Red" Macbeth, as reason fought with hate for mastery of the emotions of the half-crazed youth. Then, slowly, the gun was lowered and the watcher by the window faded into the darkness.

Shortly Brock was seized by a pair of arms like steel cable. Holding Brock in a bear hug, Gaspard poured out his story.

"He ees dere! He ees dere! I saw heem!" cried the overjoyed boy. "He was hurt! He could not travel! So dey do not watch heem!"

In turn, Brock hugged Gaspard, in his delight at the news. "Your father! At last! Old partner, put it there! Golly, that's great!"

Then Gaspard stiffened. "You know 'at dese peop' do to heem? Dey tak 'off hees leg! On hees face ees a beeg scar! My fader!" And the chest of the son of Pierre Lecroix rose in a deep sob.

That night, at their hiding place back in the timber, three men sat long in a council of war.

CHAPTER XIV

The Vengeance of Gaspard Lecroix

The night following, in the blackness of the scrub behind the cabin of "Red" Macbeth, two men waited beside a dog team. That the dogs might not betray their masters, each was gagged with hide. A half-hour before, a third man had left the two who now waited impatiently for his coming, as they watched the yellow glow of the windows of the cabin. At last, the absent one returned.

"Any trouble, Gaspard?" asked Brock. "You've been away hours."

"Ah-hah! Little trouble; all right now!"

"What was it?"

"I meet some one."

"Too bad! What shall we do?"

"He weel not tell—now."

The grim significance of the answer closed Brock's mouth. He understood. Then, leaving Brock with the dogs, Gaspard and the Cree disappeared in the murk. With Flash's collar in his mittened hand, while he soothed the dog who resented the strapping of his jaws with rawhide, Brock strained anxious eyes toward the river shore. At last he saw it.

Gradually, beyond the cabin, the blackness of the night paled. Then, through the murk burst a yellow glow.

"The Boat Go—the Shack Go!" Rapped the Frenchman in Cree. "Where Are Your Dogs?"

throwing into relief the dark bulk of the schooner, as red flames licked up over its bilges. The free-traders' boat was afire!

Shortly there rose a cry in the night, outside the cabin. "Iskutew! Fire!" And Joe Nipissing burst wild-eyed into the shack.

"Iskutew! De boat burn!" he cried to the startled Macbeth and the gray-faced men who reached for coats and moccasins.

Running to the door, the red-bearded leader stared in dismay at his blazing schooner. Then the three rushed out to the shore.

Turning at a sound, the excited Joe Nipissing saw a tall figure slide down the ladder, open the door of the great box stove, and seizing a half-burned stick, throw it on the bedding of a bunk, clanging like a flash on the speechless boy, the steel fingers of Pierre Lecroix closed on his throat.

"The boat go—the shack go!" rapped the Frenchman in Cree. "Where are your dogs?"

But the choking Cree could not explain.

"You understand?" fiercely demanded the other. "We'll load your sled with grub and blankets and make for Hungry House! Quick!" And Lecroix pushed the protesting Nipissing through the door, then turned back into the already burning room for blankets and food. Then to his startled ears came a familiar voice from the door.

"Fader!" And Gaspard had the man he loved in his arms.

For a space, oblivious of the flicking flames slowly filling the room with smoke, father and son gripped each other in a fierce embrace. Then, recovering his senses, Gaspard turned with: "The dogs; call Brock! Quick!"

"Brock and I are here with the team," Gaspard explained to the puzzled man who stared at his son in wonderment.

Then the Cree burst into the room, followed by Brock, who wrung the hand of the lost Lecroix. The shack, now, was burning in earnest. Slipping on capote and mittens, and carrying his rifle and some blankets, Pierre Lecroix followed his rescuers to the waiting sled.

"Marche! Flash!" called Brock to the lead-dog, and they headed up the river shore.

Changeable

Most of us live in fear of being thought changeable. We act as though we were baseball umpires and didn't dare to change our minds even after a bad decision. The sensible program is to change your mind as often as you get new facts enough to justify it.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

When musing on companions gone we doubly feel ourselves alone.—Scott

A Few Little Smiles

QUESTION

A manufacturer of motor-car accessories was engaged in a factory superintendent.

"There's just one thing more," he said to the applicant, who appeared to be satisfied. "Would you run a house organ in connection with your other work?"

"House organ?" said the man, with a puzzled expression. "What's the need of music in a factory?"

SAD THOUGHT

Kite (to balloon)—You needn't be so uppish. Just think what would happen if some one were to stick a pin in you!

Practical Demonstration

Machinery is what we prize. It's not much use to theorize. In stories mistakes will lurk. Machinery has Got to Work.

Amen

A group of pilots were buzzing about something or another as the flight commander approached, and several times he caught the expression, "the last word in airplanes."

"Well," he said as he reached the group, "what is the last word in airplanes?"

The group chorused: "Jump!"—Exchange.

Interview Never Printed

"Do you attribute your success to your hard work and devotion to your job?" asked the reporter.

"No," replied the great man; "anybody I ever worked for will tell you I was the laziest and most no-account boob on the pay roll, and if I hadn't been a fool for luck I'd now be on the county."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Lost Opportunity

Mrs. Scraps—If you want to know it, I married you only for your money.

Her Husband—Why didn't you tell me that before the wedding? I'd have compromised with you to the extent of all I had.

Dumb, but No Mute

Blinks—She's as pretty as a picture.

Jinks—But she's spoiled like some other pictures by being a talkie.

PITCHED THEIR TENTS

Soldier—When we halted we pitched our tents.

The Idiot—You do that to make 'em waterproof, don't you?

Eyes

Eyes are the index to the mind. Say sages with delight; But truly, I am sure they err. For my girl's eyes are bright.

Kept Tab on Her

Mrs. Knagg—You can't fool me. I know you through and through. I haven't been your wife 12 years for nothing.

Her Husband—I should say you have not. Your monthly allowance checks will prove that.

Her Chance

"What is this?"

"A butter and egg depot."

"I may meet my fate here," whispered the chorus girl.

An English-Speaking Rooster

First Englishman (somewhere in France)—There he goes /again—a rooster crowing.

Second Englishman—Thank Gawd! That's the first English I have heard since I have been in the blooming country.

Modern Version

"How does that saying go, 'United'?" began Brown.

"United in marriage and divided in Reno, I guess," butted in Black.

DRIVE AGAINST DOPE PEDDLERS PLANNED

Justice Department Seeks to Halt Traffic.

Washington, D. C.—A more determined drive against dope peddlers and smugglers is planned by the Treasury department when the burden of prohibition enforcement has been shifted to the Justice department.

Administration of the Harrison anti-narcotic act is now lodged in a small enforcement bureau which is part of the prohibition bureau, but the Williamson bill, now before the senate, excludes it from the proposed shift of the dry unit. The treasury, therefore, will retain both narcotics and the industrial alcohol permissive system.

"With prohibition removed from our care and placed in the Justice department, a stepping up in the narcotic enforcement is being considered," Assistant Treasury Secretary Seymour Lowman said recently.

He made it plain, however, that any material increase in enforcement work is dependent on larger appropriations.

More Funds Expected.

Congress is expected to grant more funds for narcotic enforcement activity coincident with passage of the Porter bill, now in the house, providing for a separate narcotic bureau within the treasury and co-operation from the public health service in limiting legitimate drug imports to the absolute medicinal minimum.

Lowman expressed the view that a constitutional amendment prohibiting the use, sale, manufacture or transportation of drugs, just as the Eighteenth amendment forbids intoxicating liquor, would be a desirable forward movement in suppressing the illicit narcotic traffic.

Seeks Broader Powers.

"We are handicapped now," Lowman explained, "because under the Harrison act, a revenue law, we are without authority to make arrests excepting for violation of the tax laws. We should be given the same police powers for drugs that the government exercises in the case of liquor law offenders."

Tailless Ape Is Found in Wilds of Venezuela

Mexico City.—The discovery of a tailless ape in the virgin jungles of Venezuela has been reported to the Museum of Archeology and History at Merida, Yucatan, by Dr. George Montandon, member of the International Society of Americanists in Paris.

Anthropoid apes, and tailless simians in general, are unknown in America, and if future finds bear out the present report, the prevailing theory of anthropoid evolution may undergo drastic changes.

The discovery was made by Francois de Loys, doctor of sciences, delegated by the Venezuelan government to make a geological exploration of certain regions in the basins of the Santa Ana, Catatumbo and Zulia rivers, portions untrod by white men. The region is inhabited by the Mottion Indians, who are entirely untouched by modern civilization and have always repelled visitors.

Jap Women Bringing Thanks for Quake Aid

Washington, D. C.—Two Japanese women will arrive in the United States soon to express thanks for American contributions for relief of Japanese distress during the earthquake of 1923 and to report that the physical evidences of that catastrophe finally have been removed.

The State department has been advised by Ambassador Castle that the newspaper Jiji Shimpo is sponsoring the journey of the two women. They were selected by eminent Japanese including Prince Tokugawa, president of the house of peers; Viscount Shibusawa, Mayor Horikiri of Tokyo, Mayor Ariyoshi of Yokohama, and Marchioness Nabeshima, grandmother of Princess Chichibu. The princess was Miss Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the former Japanese ambassador to this country. She married the emperor's younger brother.

Jailed Burglar Is Sent Cigars by Rich Victim

New York.—Sherman Ewing, millionaire lawyer, remembered a nice gentlemanly burglar in an equally nice and gentlemanly fashion. He sent him $15 and a box of cigars to the Tombs prison.

The prisoner was Julius Johnstone, a six-foot negro, who was indicted recently for burglarizing the Ewing home on East Eighty-eighth street and carrying off $14,000 worth of jewelry.

When Johnstone entered the Ewing apartment on March 6 he told the lawyer and his wife not to be frightened, and left the room quietly after filling his pockets.

Indoor Pool in Berlin Is Largest in Europe

Berlin.—The new indoor swimming bath in the Gartenstrasse, Berlin, just completed, is the largest establishment of its kind in Europe. The hall is nearly 200 feet long and 72 feet wide, and the pool is 40 by 164 feet, with a greatest depth of 11 1/2 feet. There are two gymnastiums in an upper story, and two roof gardens, with dressing rooms, gymnastic apparatus and shower baths.

SANDERSON DEBATERS WIN

Achieving for themselves an unusual record by winning eight out of twelve scheduled debates, the Sanderson high school debatators under the personal supervision of Miss Margaret Martin, debate coach, ended their 853 mile tour through West Texas in a flourish of triumph
last week-end.
Sanderson was represented by two debating teams. The girls' team was composed of Rosa Lee Harper and Myriam Carpenter, and the boys' team was composed of H. D. Johnson and D. C.
Thrift. The girls won five debates and lost one, and the boys won three and lost three.

Earth's Ozone Blanket
Wise Ben Franklin
To Have Thin Ankles
The Postmaster's Fleet

Scientists of Smithsonian Institution hope to learn about magnetic disturbances and weather phenomena generally, by studying the earth's "ozone blanket."

That "blanket" is a thin layer of superior atmosphere, thirty miles above the earth's surface.

By measuring the thickness and contents of the earth's ozone blanket, it may be possible to tell what is happening on the sun, 93,000,000 miles away.

It might be possible also later to bring down some of that ozone, with its wonderful qualities for the improvement of the lungs and blood.

Future advertisements may read:
"Ozone fresh from the ozone blanket every day."

Going up thirty miles from the earth's surface seems a great achievement.

But a microbe living on the face of an ordinary apple would do as much if he rose from the surface of his apple as much as one-hundredth part of an inch.

Thirty miles is much less than one two-hundredth part of the earth's diameter.

Here is good advice for youth of old age:

"Do not love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."

More good advice is this:
"He that goes a-borrowing, goes a-sorrowing."

And for a notion in which ninety old men out of a hundred die worth less than $100, this is valuable:

"A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone."

Those wise things were said by Benjamin Franklin, born 224 years ago.
There is material for a thousand good sermons in Franklin's common sense talks.

Dr. Olga Stastny of Omaha, "official physician to America's organized business women," says working girls should learn to "loaf like a man."
"Women, to be successful, must learn to sit as men do with their heels on a desk higher than their heads and relax."

Many men, including probably John D. Rockefeller and Herbert Hoover have succeeded without putting their heels higher than their heads during business hours. And a considerable number of "heels-higher-than-heads" young gentlemen are far from successful.

However, the learned Doctor Stastny says that putting their heels on the desk will "change girls' thick ankles into thin ankles." Girls will pay attention to that.

Mr. Brown, postmaster general, suggests a $75,000,000 program to build a fleet of North Atlantic superhips for American passengers and mail.

The postmaster demands "a service which could compete with any foreign flag service on the North Atlantic."

Americans will congratulate Postmaster Brown and President Hoover on that proposition, and hope that they will not only compete with but eclipse every foreign service on the North Atlantic and everywhere else.

Why should a country with the best engineers, from the President down, and with more money than anybody else, ever play second fiddle on the ocean or in the air?

Pity the poor parrot, now in the limelight because of his disease, psit-tacosis, which, when human beings contract it, usually kills them.

The number of deaths is small, compared with other death causes. But psittacosis is a long name, and to be killed by germs from your own parrot is humiliating.

Many husbands, seeing their opportunity, have turned pet parrots over to the authorities to be disposed of, mercifully, sacrificing many that never had psittacosis.

Sad for parrots, but no great loss.
After all, a parrot cannot say anything that you cannot say yourself better, and its shrieking annoys neighbors.

The only negro student at West Point is dismissed "honorably" for deficiency in mathematics.

Sixty-three white men failed in examinations with him and were also dismissed.

Prejudice had nothing to do with it, although Alonzo Souleigh Parham, the negro cadet dismissed, is the fourteenth to enter the academy, and the eleventh to be dismissed at the end of six months.

Another cut in the cost of travel by air. The Transcontinental Air Transports, on its "air-rail-water" trip
"around the Americas," cuts $100 off the price of a 16-day tour.

Air transportation is settling down to a business basis.

Dinner in a Diner

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

TO BEGIN with, Gregory Ives merely knew her as the girl with the blue hat. She commuted in a blue hat for months.

Gregory Ives read what he found worth while of the evening papers and got through a good many magazines besides, because from the time he left his office until he reached his house an hour and a quarter later he read whenever it was possible.

He reached the station a few minutes before train time and used the few minutes reading. Occasionally he would give a quick glance to see whether the blue hat was in sight. If he saw it moving toward the trainshed, then he knew that it was train time.

He would close his book or magazine and walk along thinking of what he had read, following the blue hat.

One evening when Gregory Ives was especially interested in an article in a scientific magazine he followed the blue hat without really thinking that it boarded the train on the right of the runway, whereas his train always made up on the left; and it was not until the train had drawn out of the great shed and was already going at a pretty good rate of speed that he noticed that except for the young woman in the seat opposite who wore the blue hat there were no familiar faces in the car.

Moreover, the conductor as he approached was none of those who usually punched his ticket.

"Guess I'm on the wrong train," said Gregory. "This doesn't stop at Arden, does it?"

"This is a through express," said the conductor. "We make a straight run without stop," and he mentioned a city that was three hours distant.

"Don't you stop at Arden even if there are passengers to get off there?" came a sharp query from across the aisle—the girl with the blue hat.

"No, we don't," said the conductor. "You used to stop there. You'll just have to get the engineer to stop tonight. I've got to get off there."

"Sorry, miss," said the conductor. "They may have stopped there on request once, but not for a year or two. And of course we can't make special stops."

"I think that's perfectly outrageous," said the girl as she fumbled in her purse to get the necessary fare demanded by the conductor. Then, having collected fare from Gregory also, the conductor moved on.

"You thought we stopped at Arden, didn't you?" said the girl. "Well, I think if two persons could be mistaken like this, then the railroad company must be to blame."

"I got on because you did," said Gregory quite calmly.

"You followed me!" said the girl with low-voiced rage.

"I always do. It's convenient—not you, but your hat. Then I can go on reading or thinking."

"I should think you were excessively rude, if not a little crazy, to talk the way you have been talking," said the girl. "If it were not that I know who you are, you're Mr. Gregory Ives and I met you at a country club dance with my brother. He introduced you, but you have quite forgotten."

"Not at all," assured Gregory, leaning across the aisle. "Now that I see you I remember. You're Miss Ferguson, Max Ferguson's sister—Marcelia, I believe. I merely knew your hat. Charming hat. You always wear something nice."

"Now I've told you why I got on this train. You haven't told me why you led me astray. I'm really rather curious."

"I was hungry," said Marcelia simply. "It's corned beef and cabbage night at home and I hate it, and I had a very skinny lunch. And—as I was coming along and looked into the dining car on this train I just was so hungry that I decided to hop on and have dinner on the diner and then get off at Arden."

"Well, are you hungry now? If you are, let's dine," said Gregory.

"You mean together?"

"I'm asking you to be my guest. Will your people be worried?"

"Haven't any 'people,'" said Marcelia. "Brother and I live at the boarding house and he's away. They won't worry—they may talk, at the boarding house."

At one o'clock the next morning Marcelia Ferguson rang the night bell of the boarding house where she and her brother boarded. She was let in by the owner of the establishment, to whom she offered no explanation.

Forthwith, Mrs. Prunes began to speculate and her speculation took an interesting turn when she learned from one of her boarders that she had seen a young man who looked like "that very brilliant and rather eccentric Gregory Ives" leaving Marcelia at the front door. The boarder had seen him through her front window.

And so the gossiping began. Arden became interested. Gregory Ives had been following Marcelia Ferguson and she, the little mix, led him into the wrong train. Well, said Mrs. Prunes, when the engagement was announced, girls these days have to be pretty smart to get husbands.

Little Men Do Learn

Mexico Experiments

The big ill wind that blew in Wall Street did somebody good.

New York's savings banks report more than eighteen thousand new accounts within a few days after the slump. The "little" man seems to have learned a lesson.

At the royal wedding in Rome five foreign sovereigns, five rulers who had recently lost their jobs, and fifty-four other royalties looked on. Queens, princes and princesses crowded the chapel.

The interesting moment came when Mussolini, Italy's dictator, entered and was saluted by all the royalties with the Fascist salute, the outstretched right arm.

Mussolini did not march with the royalty. But when they saw him and gave him that salute, angels, looking down, could easily identify the real ruler of Italy.

Doctor Heyl, physicist of the United States bureau of standards, says science will produce life artificially. "It is chemical, not supernatural," and there is "nothing occult in the processes of life."

Nothing occult, perhaps, but Professor Heyl will not produce life, nor will any other physicist by chemical means. Things may be made to wiggle, but that will not be life.

This universe is a great trinity—matter, force and spirit or consciousness. No scientist will produce consciousness, possessing the potential ability to think. Chemicals can't do that.

A Mr. Morgan of California is returning from England with "overwhelming proof" that Bacon wrote the plays credited to Shakespeare.

On the way Mr. Morgan might read the critical study of Shakespeare by the Danish author, Brandes.

He says truly that whoever asserts that Bacon wrote Shakespeare simply proves that he, himself, has never intelligently read either Bacon or Shakespeare.

END OF DEATHS FROM CONTAGION FORESEEN

Future Generations to Be Immune From Germs.

Paris.—The day may be approaching when mankind can be immunized from all contagious maladies, and causes of death can be reduced to old age, the wearing out of organs or accidents.

Science already has means of preventing four of the gravest diseases which have caused serious ravages throughout history and in France alone hundreds of scientists are continuing their studies to provide vaccines to immunize mankind against all the other ills to which we have been heir.

The Pasteur institute, the Curie institute and the Academy of Medicine are all centering their efforts on finding vaccines, and at present the greatest attention is being paid the anti-tuberculosis vaccine of Calmette.

Smallpox Scare.

Already vaccination against smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, and paratyphoid fevers has proved successful. Science is divided over the merits of the tuberculosis vaccine, which is now being widely used in France, and it will be necessary to wait for the results of the next ten years before science can say definitely whether the Calmette vaccine is a preventive or a danger.

The recent smallpox scare in Europe which followed the transport of the disease from India to England by passengers and crews on liners caused a sudden increase in vaccinations which almost taxed to its limit the production capacity of the Pasteur institute.

Modern engineering has come to the aid of science, however, and by the use of most modern American refrigeration machinery and methods, it is now possible to make up serums in vast quantities and store them away to be ready for such an emergency as that created by the British smallpox scare.

World is Prepared.

Professor Lereboullet of the French Academy of Medicine, one of the outstanding authorities on vaccination in Europe, said that the world is today perfectly prepared to fight against epidemics and many contagious diseases could be forever eliminated if all nations would adopt the successfully proven methods.

"Smallpox has entirely disappeared as an epidemic in France, although there are rare scattered cases, especially in port towns," Professor Lereboullet said.

"Every year sees several hundred thousand persons vaccinated against smallpox in France, especially school children, soldiers and people living in cities who are most subject to contagion. Our vaccination work has been so successful and the public has accepted it so heartily that today it is safe to say France has no fears of smallpox."

"Similar campaigns to encourage vaccination against diphtheria have had good results. A half million children are vaccinated against this disease annually with the result that it has almost disappeared in our hospitals. We will continue until the entire French youth, about 8,000,000 children, is immune."

"The anti-typhoid vaccine has now been proven successful, and already hundreds of thousands of persons voluntarily seek immunization annually. The Calmette vaccine against tuberculosis can be said to be still in a stage of observation, but we have seen only good results so far and 200,000 children are vaccinated annually."

Dinner in a Diner
By JANE OSBORN
(Copyright.)

TO BEGIN with, Gregory Ives merely knew her as the girl with the blue hat. She commuted in a blue hat for months.

Gregory Ives read what he found worth while of the evening papers and got through a good many magazines besides, because from the time he left his office until he reached his house an hour and a quarter later he read whenever it was possible.

He reached the station a few minutes before train time and used the few minutes reading. Occasionally he would give a quick glance to see whether the blue hat was in sight. If he saw it moving toward the train shed, then he knew that it was train time.

He would close his book or magazine and walk along thinking of what he had read, following the blue hat.

One evening when Gregory Ives was especially interested in an article in a scientific magazine he followed the blue hat without really thinking that it boarded the train on the right of the runway, whereas his train always made up on the left; and it was not until the train had drawn out of the great shed and was already going at a pretty good rate of speed that he noticed that except for the young woman in the seat opposite who wore the blue hat there were no familiar faces in the car.

Moreover, the conductor as he approached was none of those who usually punched his ticket.

"Guess I'm on the wrong train," said Gregory. "This doesn't stop at Arden, does it?"

"This is a through express," said the conductor. "We make a straight run without stop," and he mentioned a city that was three hours distant. "Don't you stop at Arden even if there are passengers to get off there?" came a sharp query from across the aisle—the girl with the blue hat.

"No, we don't," said the conductor. "You used to stop there. You'll just have to get the engineer to stop tonight. I've got to get off there."

"Sorry, miss," said the conductor. "They may have stopped there on request once, but not for a year or two. And of course we can't make special stops."

GIVE NEW LINES TO PRINT FROCK; TWEED FROM HAT TO HEMLINE

WITH entirely new silhouettes, with soft feminizing bows, with graceful and novel peplums (see picture), with myriads of capelets, with sprightly prints galore, thus does fashion continue to vamp us. For a fact, never, at least not in the memory of most of us, have the wiles of the mode proved so irresistible.

Take it in the matter of the perfectly charming little print silk frocks which are gladdening the whole spring-time landscape with their presence, white or light backgrounds. The new printed taffetas are amazingly chic, and the dainty printed cotton nets are ever so lovely.

Tweed for Spring.
Add tweed to tweed, and what's the answer? According to that which leading stylists are telling us over and over again this season, the sum total is nothing less than outstanding chic for the costume. The models in the lower picture declare just that—the voguishness of really, now, who can think of any woman of her acquaintance who has not yielded to the lure of at least one, if not a half-dozen more or less of these adorable fantasies?

To milady who is thinking of adding yet another print to her collection, the winsome frock in the picture is sure to prove an inspiration. The print crop of which this dress is made intermingles the loveliest yellows and caprine shades and browns on a creamy beige background. Being thoroughly style-conscious, the young woman wears with this delightful frock brown kid pumps and a brown felt hat. To be correctly costumed, one's footwear and headwear simply must enter into the color scheme, which accounts for the conspicuous display of colorful kid shoes in all leading booteries this season. Likewise, the new straw take on the colors of the rainbow, as do the new felts, for the felts are still smart, that is if they are worn during the practical and sports hours of the day.

Returning to the subject of prints, it is interesting to note how certain the ensemble made of handsome tweed from hat to hemline. For that matter some of the very smartest tweed costumes go so far as to include shoes and handbag of matching tweed.

One reason that fashionists are inspired to work tweed for all it is worth this spring is that the light-weightness, the sheerness and the "sprinky" colors of the new tweeds, make these weaves eminently practical and wearable at the immediate moment; in fact the costume ideal for sports, motoring, town wear and country club during the coming months will be most often interpreted in lacy tweeds.

The swanky sports ensemble to the right in the picture (Laura La Plante, the pretty blond actress of cinema fame, posing) is fashioned of a gray and green tweed mixture. The one-piece dress is made with a square neck. In creating the hat, frock and jacket of the same, the designer of this costume multiplies the modishness of grayish-green tweed by three.

The other charming ensemble, which is of beige tweed, arrived just recently types are worn at certain hours of the day or for certain occasions. For instance, the little dark yet gay prints of the character in the picture are considered the correct thing for practical utilitarian wear. In this genre the new pin-dots should also be classed. By the way, if you possess not some one thing or another of pin-dotted material this season, say a coat, or a blouse, a frock suit or ensemble—well, then you are certainly losing out in the game of fashion.

Two Striking Modes for Spring.

When it comes to dressy and formal evening modes, prints make a sudden change, taking on patternings—big, bold and vivid, very frequently on from Paris. So it is not only the American woman who has become tweed-minded, for la Parisienne is wearing tweed this spring with equal enthusiasm. The designer, in this instance, carries the tweed idea through out the costume in that the hat is of the identical tweed of the jacket-suit, also the jersey blouse is tweed-trimmed.

Favor for black-and-white tweed is expressed to no little extent in smart circles. It is considered the height of fashion to wear with these black-and-white suits of tweed black and white kid footwear.

Lesson for May 4

PROMOTION IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:17-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Become Great.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Become Great.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Greatness Through Self-Denying Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ's Standard of Greatness.

I. The King Foretells His Death and Resurrection (vv. 17-19).

1. The King on His way to Jerusalem (v. 17).
This is His last journey to the beloved city. He took the twelve disciples aside from the traveling pilgrims to make known unto them what was before them. As they journeyed, he went ahead of the disciples. The courage thus shown by the Lord amazed the disciples who were following in fear (Mark 10:32).

2. The betrayal and death foretold (vv. 18, 19).

He went forward, fully conscious of the awful tragedy of the cross. He for the third time since the transfiguration tells the disciples of His approaching sufferings and death. But they are so filled with their ambitious schemes that they do not understand Him. The treachery of Judas, the fierce persecutions by the chief priests and scribes, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mockery, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross, the hanging between two malefactors, the nails, the spear—all were spread before His mind like a picture! Though He knew all this, He pressed on, not of necessity, but deliberately. The joyous outlook upon the victory which would be accomplished by the shedding of His blood led Him forward. He went courageously, for He knew the time had come for the accomplishment of His Father's will.

3. The resurrection foretold (v. 19).
Truly, this would have been a dark picture had the resurrection not been made known. The resurrection life beyond is always seen as the issue of the cross. The blessedness of the life beyond this "vale of tears" should induce us to press on. Christ is the grand example. (Heb. 12:2).

II. The Ambitious Request of James and John (vv. 20-23).

1. The request (vv. 20, 21).
This request was made by their mother. The request was for a place of prominence in the kingdom. It is not wrong for mothers to be ambitious for their boys, but they should know that life's pinnacles are exceedingly dangerous. It is desirable that parents should get places for their children near to Jesus, but the vain ambition of the world should not occupy their minds.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 22, 23).
He spoke directly to the men, not to their mother, declaring that they knew not what they were asking. He showed them that the way to this position of glory was through suffering. The cup which they were to drink was of great agony. The way to the places of glory in the kingdom of Christ is by the path of lowly and self-forgetting service.

III. How to Be Truly Exalted (vv. 24-28).

1. The angry disciples (v. 24).
When the ten heard of the request of James and John, they were filled with indignation against them. Their displeasure did not arise from the fact that they were free from the same selfish spirit, but that these two had thrust themselves to the front.

2. Greatness among the heathen (v. 25).
The rule of the world has always been by the strong hand. The standards have not been moral excellence, but worth, station, and power.

3. Greatness among Christ's disciples (vv. 26, 27).
The standard here is in sharp contrast. The way to the place of prominence in Christ's kingdom is the way of self-abasement. To give is greater than to receive. To be serving some one is much better than to be served. There will be degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom, but this rank will be character, not position, or authority. The spirit of Christ substitutes "the greatness of love for the love of greatness."

4. Christ is the supreme example of greatness (v. 28).
All who will be great should study and imitate Christ. Let them forget self and serve others, even to the giving of their lives.

Courage, Unspotted Life

Then said Mr. Holy-man, there are two things that they have need to possess who go on pilgrimage: courage and an unspotted life. If they have not courage, they can never hold on their way; and if their lives be loose, they will make the very name of a pilgrim stink.—John Bunyan.

Being Satisfied

To be satisfied with what you have, but never with what you are, means growth and joy.—Young People.

The normal, natural Regulator that tastes delicious!

No wonder millions prefer this bran cereal in fighting constipation!

Enjoy them yourself for the next two weeks, either as cereal or in delicious Post's Bran Muffins. See if you don't feel better for their gentle effectiveness!

POST'S BRAN FLAKES is the nation's choice among the bran cereals not only because thousands have found it the safeguard against constipation that's effective, but so normal and gentle in its action!

What's more, these toasted, delicate flakes—made more nourishing with other parts of wheat—are so deliciously flavored that people eat them every morning gladly!

Cases of recurrent constipation, due to insufficient bulk in the diet, should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. With Other Parts of Wheat. If your case is abnormal, consult a competent physician as once and follow his advice.

And No Beauty Parlor!

Three hundred white women in a city and no beauty parlor. That is the dismal picture drawn of Accra, the capital city of the Gold coast of Africa, just revealed by one of the 399, who are wives and daughters of the British government officials there. Every woman drives a car and a branch of the Women's Automobile association is to be established in Accra. But when it comes to hair-dressing all must wait for ships in order to patronize the ship barbers.

Girl at the Top in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West, are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Dana Allgire, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her ruddy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.
