Sanderson State Bank Opened Doors 30 Years Ago, July 7th

The President Has Served Through The Years

At the opening of the doors of the Sanderson State Bank on Friday, July 7, for business, not different than on any day, it had an added interest that it was exactly 30 years that the bank first opened its doors to serve the citizens of Sanderson and Terrell county.

The instrument of incorporation was dated July 1, 1907, and the 7th day of July before the preliminary to the formal opening was completed, and the bank ready for business.

The organizers of the bank were Chas. Downie, N. H. Kerr, J. C. Stansell and S. B. Brown, who also were the first officers of the institution. There were twenty-four stockholders at the time of the bank's opening, the capital stock of $25,000, divided into 250 shares of a par value of $100.

In 1924 the capital was increased to $50,000. The bank has been outstanding for 30 years, in that time it has weathered many financial storms, opening just prior to the year of 1907, and has withstood depressions since and held its own as a strong financial institution in that it has had one president since its organization, Joe Kerr, who has been largely responsible for its success—its guiding hand—one who has given his best to the bank; third, in that it had but four cashiers, J. P. Keller, who served with the bank but a few years; T. R. Kuykendall, who served as cashier from December 1907, 1922; H. R. Laurence, who served as cashier until 1932, and L. M. Lemons, who served as cashier since August 9, 1932.

L. H. Lemons, who was an assistant cashier on July 23, started work in the bank as a bookkeeper in the early part of 1929, and is the oldest employee of the bank. The bank has had three vice presidents, these are Chas. Downie, Alexander H. Harrell and Frank K. Harrell.

The first officers of the bank were Joe Kerr, president; Chas. Downie, vice president, and J. P. Keller, cashier. In 1925 Alexander H. Harrell was elected second vice president and upon the death of Chas. Downie in 1928, he was elected first vice president. At Mitchell's death last fall, K. Harrell succeeded to the office of vice president.

Officers at the present time are Joe Kerr, president; Frank K. Harrell, vice president; L. M. Lemons, cashier; Board of directors present time are C. H. Arvin, A. E. Creigh, Jr., W. J. Ferguson, Frank K. Harrell, James Joe Kerr, and N. M. Mitchell.

Northcut Niece Drowns in Water Trough at Rankin

Rankin, July 4.—Drowned in a cattle water trough here yesterday, little Johnnie Pearlina Northcut, 14-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Northcut, was buried in Hext today. Harris-Luckett Co. was in charge.

Apparently no one saw the tiny girl when she fell in the trough, which is near the Northcut home. Her mother, growing concerned over the girl's disappearance, began a search. She found her daughter drowned yesterday evening. The father is an oil field worker.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Northcut left here early Sunday morning for Hext, Texas, where they attended the funeral, the little girl was their niece. They returned home Monday.

Business Block in McCamey Damaged By Fire—Grand Theatre Total Loss

McCamey, July 4.—Recovering from the destructive visit of a recent tornado this city tonight saw its whole business district menaced by a giant blaze which gutted the entire Grand Theatre block on Burleson avenue.

At 10:30 fire was still smouldering, but volunteer fighters said they believed it was under control. For an hour or so it appeared that the blaze would be carried to the McCamey hotel and other big structures on Fifth street, as a stiff south wind began blowing. Two men, one a fire fighter, were injured.

Six businesses were damaged by the fire, which originated between the ceiling and the roof of the Grand Theatre. No one affected would venture an estimate of the loss.

Theatre Total Loss

The Grand Theatre, with a seating capacity of 1,000, was declared a total loss. The show is owned by a Dallas circuit. H. P. Priddy, manager, said the structure would be cleared away and a new one built in its place.

He said the building, tile and stucco was fully covered by insurance. Amount not disclosed.

Equipment of five other places which adjoined the theatre edifice was saved, but all the quarters were badly damaged by fire, smoke and water. The store were Coney Island, Electric Service Co., Towler Radio Shop, Vogue Beauty Shop, West Texas Auto Parts Distributors.

A defective exhaust motor, a part of the cooling system, was believed responsible for the blaze. The fire started at 7:35 near the motor in the ceiling and spread rapidly under the roof before it was noticed.

Occupants evacuated quickly. Only a tiny girl refused to leave. She was snatched up by a man and carried out, unharmed.

The fire departments of Crane and Fort Stockton came to the assistance of local volunteers.

Several thousand people from here and nearby towns gathered around to watch. Crane firemen sprayed water on the rear of 5th street structures to prevent the spread.

Bob McKinney, volunteer fireman, fell from an awning as he held a hose. He suffered painful bruises, but his injuries were not regarded as serious.

Priddy suffered burns about the face and head in an early attempt to control the fire. The hurts were said to be minor.

Small Blaze in Northcut Barn Damage is Light

A small blaze Sunday afternoon in the barn at the Milam Northcut residence, might have proven disastrous if it had not been discovered by Jeff Sessoms about as quickly as it started. The fire was quickly extinguished, but not before several bales of hay stored in the barn were destroyed. A sack of wool stored in the barn, owned by Tom Holmes, was not damaged.

It is thought that the fire was started from firecrackers which were being shot by children who were playing in the back yard of the Northcut home.

Tale of the Ozarks is Next O K Road Show With Bob Burns, Martha Raye

Braddock-Louis Fight Coming to Princess Theatre

The Jimmy Braddock and Joe Louis fight for the heavyweight championship will be shown at the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, July 14 and 15. The pictures are the best ever taken of a fight, and not the usual flickering kind, hard on the eyes. Every moment of action from the first to the fatal eighth round is shown in clear detail. Highlights of the picture are two slow motion scenes—one of the first round when Braddock floored Louis, the other in the eighth when Jimmy went down for the count and a new champion was born.

Two of radio's favorite entertainers, Bob Burns and Martha Raye, will be in town Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17, when "Mountain Music," a gay comedy of life, love and laughter among the hillbillies, plays at the Princess Theatre.

Long acclaimed for his stories of the down home folks on the air, in the newspapers and films, Burns, together with Martha Raye, who shares stellar honors with him in this comedy, return to the land of the squirrel rifle, 'coon houn' dawg, bearded giants, and stone jugs for a homespun yarn of feudin' and shotgun weddings of the type that has made Burns America's best-loved recontour.

"Mountain Music is a comedy, a musical—just about everything you want in a picture. It's colossal! it's tremendous! it's de-lovely! it's swell! it's the nuts! (and so am I!)"

Several Contracts To Drill Have Been Signed

Oil activity in Terrell county has picked up considerably in the past few days and several leases for drilling have been made and within the next week or so several test wells will be put down in this county, it has been reliably stated.

Tuesday of this week equipment to be used in drilling a test well on the Sam Bell ranch in the eastern part of the county passed through here. The D & K. Drilling Co. of Tulsa, Oklahoma, moved the equipment here and will put down a test well in Survey 68. A new rig and drilling machinery of the latest type will be used to drill the well.

Ben Gilbert, ranching in the north part of this county closed a leasing contract the first of the week for a test well on his place. Bob Adams, who has been operating in New Mexico, obtained this lease and stated that within thirty days he will have equipment on the location, ready to spud in. The contracts provides for a test to a depth of 4,000 feet.

Reports reaching this office were that Briggs, who has long been interested in this county, and Mrs. McPhee Briggs would put down another test well on land they had leased south of Dryden. Mr. and Mrs. Briggs who recently returned here have reopened the test well on the ranch formerly owned by Jess Haley. They have secured other acreage in the county and plan to put down other test wells.

Another lease of importance made this week was that of Charlie Gregory and wife, who have leased both their ranches, one a few miles west of here, the other just east of Dryden, to Bob Adams, New Mexican oil operator. The contract calls for a well on both places, to a depth of 4,000 feet, and specifies a certain time in which to begin drilling.

That there is much interest in the oil situation in this county is evidenced by the fact that operators are trying to get other ranches in the county under lease, especially in the eastern part and are offering good rental leases with options.

Assignments placed on record at the county clerk's office the past week were as follows:

Assignment of oil and gas lease, A. C. Smith to Barron G. Collier, 40 acres out of survey 41, block D-6 and 40 acres out of survey 37, block D-6.

Oil and gas assignment, Fred S. O'Neill to Dr. D. C. Munsford, 5 acres out of survey 43, blk. D-6.

Oil and gas lease, Marion Briggs to J. Clark Oldfield, 20 acres out of survey 17, blk. D-5.

COLUMN RIGHT

Far from us to make any disparaging remarks upon what appears at this writing another tragic ending to a popular idol. One of the real pleasures we've ever experienced was meeting Miss Earhart—not good looking as looks go, but her cheery disposition and unspoiled manner made one forget the face and its myriad freckles. She was without a peer in the air, yet all the fame that was rightly hers, had no effect on as sweet a disposition as we have ever seen. Reprobate that we are, we came near to prayer as we ever will in this life when the news flashed over the world that Amelia was down—that hope for her safety was in doubt. We admit that woman's place is in the home, but with what many of them have to put up "around the house," the wonder is that more of them have not taken to the air.

And now comes some wag who says that the dog racing law as passed by the Texas legislature, prohibits your dog from chasing your neighbor's cat.

Another "country girl" in the big city, pining for the old home. A card last week from "Mom" Clymer, who is summing in Camden, N. J., says: "East all right, but give me Sanderson any old time." That may be pining in reverse. Maybe it's "Pop" she wants. But "Pop,"—he's doing nicely, thank you.

The latest announcement from the White House is that the people are disgusted with the labor vs. C. I. O. mess. Wonder if it took the "brain trust" to figure that out?

Took a trip to Coleman the other day, to call on a little lady of whom we think a whole lot. Not expecting us we represented ourselves as a Fuller Brush man, and liked to get crowned. After giving the password and gaining admission to the house, we found she was in the middle of a house cleaning orgy, preparatory to acting as hostess at a party on the morrow. We're still dizzy from being chased from room to room—never saw such energy. What interested us a little more than any thing else was a vacuum carpet cleaner. Just turn on the juice and push the contraption back and forth—great warming-up exercise for one who might be contemplating buying a baby buggy. We were glad to make our getaway before the party started—we've never been to one. Crops are fine, but it's awfully hot up there, with plenty of bugs, mosquitoes and grasshoppers—at least we took them to be grasshoppers, but they could be mosquitoes. At McCamey we heard the bleat of a goat, and sat back contented, humming "There's no place like home."

"Hitler refuses to recognize Joe Louis as world champion," reads a headline. Well, if he thinks he has any claim to the title there's a good way of finding out.

Friend Bennett of the Alpine Avalanche, wants a name for his column. Even offers an inducement. But he insists that the words "Trans Pecos" are out, and we believe he means it. Recently he sent an SOS as to just what section of Texas embraced the Trans-Pecos area. We started to stick out our chin, but decided to use discretion, remembering what Mutt always advised Jeff to do. But the phrase is about as overworked as "The Best West of the Pecos," which in most cases, is just covering too much territory.

The lightning bug is a pretty bird But he hasn't any mind; For he goes through this world With his highlight on behind.

Two Cases Dread Fever Reported In S. E. Texas

Austin.—Appearance of the dread Rocky Mountain fever in Texas was evident this week when two cases of the disease reported in Southeast Texas were officially diagnosed as such by Dr. R. R. Spencer, spotted fever expert of the U. S. Public Health Service. Dr. Spencer, vacationing in San Antonio, was pressed into service by State Health Officer Dr. Geo. W. Cox, to diagnose the two cases, one of which proved fatal.

Dr. Spencer's diagnosis is the first official recognition of the presence in Texas of spotted fever, a disease transmittable to men by the bite of infected ticks. Although many wood and dog ticks are not infected with the fever, the disease in men is serious enough to warrant the practice of precautionary measures. A person with spotted fever will develop the disease with 2 to 12 days after receiving the infection. When the ticks appear they are unfed and are seeking some animal to attach themselves to and suck blood. When the tick drops on an animal, including man, it does not start feeding at once, but usually spends some time searching for a suitable place. Experiments have shown that a previously unfed tick will attach itself to the body and feed for a few hours before transmitting the infection, but it then becomes highly infectious.

Three measures may be used to prevent spotted fever: avoid the ticks, remove ticks from the person as soon as possible, or be vaccinated. Vaccine to prevent spotted fever is not readily available, so precaution should be used to void or eliminate ticks from the person immediately.

Know Texas
(T. S. C. W. Feature Service)

Denton.—Most cosmopolitan of all Texas cities is San Antonio, with its rich blend of the old and the new, and its mixed populations of Spanish, German and other nationalities. Numerous fiestas and celebrations have helped to win for it the name, "Playground of Texas."

North of the city are the cluster of German towns that have always been a delight to tourists. Freshly scrubbed New Braunfels the famous old town founded by an immigrant German prince is situated on the banks of the Comal river. Camping spots around these springs can hardly be surpassed in beauty and comfort.

Kerrville is also a favorite retreat for those who crave the out door life and many kinds of commercial camps are located near there. After passing through another old German town, Fredericksburg, the traveler is ready to enter Austin.

High spots of Austin which the tourist cannot afford to miss are the State Capitol, the great university, various historical points, and the ice-cold springs. Turning north again, one finds a good highway to Waco where fishermen head for Lake Waco, picnickers take in Cameron Park, and scholars go to Baylor University.

From this central section the way is clear to Dallas and Fort Worth, which are embarking on their second year as summer entertainment centers. At Dallas Panamanian hold forth in the form of the Greater Texas and Pan-American Exposition, and at Ft. Worth Billy Rose is managing a "bigger and better" Frontier Fiesta.

Mrs. M. G. Northcut and children, Mrs. Manley Holmes and son, Tom, attended the barbecue and celebration that was held at Fort Pena near Marathon last Saturday. They report that a wonderful time was shown them and that true western hospitality prevailed at the gathering.

Miss Pearle Howell and sister, Miss Nacona, left last Thursday for San Antonio where Miss Nacona, who is ill, will be placed in a hospital. Miss Howell plans to be in San Antonio for several weeks, and will not return to her duties as clerk in the Kerr Mercantile Company until her sister is better.

Beery Scores Hit In Lead Role of "Good Old Soak"

On the screen at the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, July 14 and 15, will be shown that unforgettable and loveable old character, "The Old Soak," immortalized by Don Marquis in his original novel of the same name, and Wallace Beery, in the leading role, finds his greatest character role.

Boy Meets Two Girl; All Three of 'Em Meet a Horse

"Breezing Home," a swiftly paced, brightly humored movie story about modern night clubs and streamlined race horses at the Santa Anita track was written by Peter Finley Dunne, Jr. and Philip Dunne, who get their writing ability from their notable forebear, Finley Peter Dunne, the newspaper humorist famous for his "Mr. Dooley" series.

The picture "Good Old Soak," from M-G-M, draws a cross section of the America that was—the almost United States in the era of prohibition.

Then the beat of the drama raises its tempo, when a crooked bookmaker enacted by Alan Baxter, gives Wendy a race horse. He cannot race the animal under his own name, since he is a "bookie" taking bets.

Beery portrays the character of a small town philosopher, who retires from business in order to locate the local speakeasies. The complications of the plot revolve around a family nestegg that is stolen.

Young people's vespers meeting at 7 o'clock, p. m. Circle Two will meet Monday at 3:30 p. m. with Mrs. Charlton. Prayer service Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. The Bible study will be Ephesians 1:15-23.

Beery, in the leading role, utilizes all of his intimate knowledge of human nature and virtually lives the character conceived by Marquis during those confusing years of our dry era.

The Intermediate conference will be in session at Kerrville from July 12 to 17. Let us remember it in our prayers. Five of our young people will attend. JOHN V. McCALL, Pastor.

In the supporting cast Una Merkel contributes another of her delightfully funny portrayals as Nellie; Eric Linden gives a sensitive warmth to the role of Beery's son; Judith Barrett enlivens the drama with her singing of "You've Got a Certain Something," and Betty Furness scores as Beery's daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Casey left Tuesday afternoon for Santa Anna in response to a message stating that her father had been seriously injured and placed in a hospital in that city.

When the picture was finished it was Beery who saw to it that a print of the film was sent as his personal gift to Don Marquis, an invalid now recovering from a lingering illness.

Mrs. Max Harrell and son have returned to their home in Waelder after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Daniels.

Mrs. John Bell and children of Valentine are visiting relatives here this week.

Guests of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Lester over the week end were T. D. and Buck Burgess of Nacogdoches, and Graden Lester of San Antonio. Mrs. T. D. Burgess who had been visiting in the Lester home here for several weeks, returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Riley Dunman, who visited here for the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dawson, returned to their home in Del Rio Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Vaughan motored to Carlsbad, N. M., Sunday and on Monday visited the caverns. They report that approximately 2,000 people went through the caverns that day, as compared with more than 3,000 that went through on Sunday, the 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Whistler left last Saturday afternoon for Hebbronville and Freer where they spent the week end holiday with their sons, John and Clyde Whistler.

Mrs. Alexander Mitchell returned Monday from San Antonio where she went last Saturday, taking her daughter-in-law, Mrs. C. C. Mitchell and baby, and where the baby will be placed under a doctor's care. She reported that the baby was better, but would remain in that city for further treatment.

Mrs. Reuben Mussey and children were among the Sanderson folks who motored to Marathon last Saturday and attended the barbecue given at Fort Pena that day.

B. F. Dawson was a visitor in Del Rio the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weigand, and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lemons motored to Carlsbad, N. M., last Saturday evening. On Sunday they visited the caverns and returned home that evening.

M. P. Lester of Carrizo Springs spent the week end holidays here visiting relatives. Mrs. Lester and son, Preston, who had been visiting relatives here for several weeks, accompanied him home.

"TWO WANTED MEN"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

YOU know, boys and girls, in some of these adventure yarns I've been telling you, everything seems to happen all in a split second. Just one—two—three—and it's all over, with action every doggone minute.

Then there are other yarns in which there's darned little action, and the suspense of the story lies in the fact that some poor devil has to stand still while death comes creeping up on him. That sort of adventure drags out for a long time. But the yarn I'm going to tell you today is like both of those above-mentioned type of adventures. It went on for a long time, and every doggone minute of that time was packed with danger and suspense. And at the same time it was so full of action that you'd have a hard time packing another single moment into it.

It's one of the most thrilling tales I've come across in quite a while, and the honors today go to a Chicago policeman—Albert Rickert.

Wild Chase After Automobile Thieves

It was a cool September afternoon in 1927. Al was off duty and with time on his hands he went over to the home of his pal, Emmett Hartnett, for a visit. After he'd been there awhile, they decided it would be a good idea to go for a ride. Emmett got a car and they drove around for about two hours.

They were on their way to a restaurant at Archer and Western avenues when things began to happen. As they came to Rockwell street a small sedan passed them. There were two men in the car, and Al recognized them both as automobile thieves!

Al told Emmett to turn around and follow that car. They were catching up with it when the thieves spotted the auto behind them and recognized Al as a policeman. They stepped on the gas and the chase was on.

The car in front of them leaped ahead. Emmett stepped on it and followed. The faster they went, the faster the smaller car ahead traveled. Al pulled out his gun and fired one shot. But the car ahead didn't stop.

Both those gas buggies were tearing along down the street at close to top speed. The scenery was fairly whizzing past, and people along the way stopped to stare at a race they had never seen the like of outside of a race track.

Bullets Didn't Stop Them

Gun in hand Al opened the door and stepped out on the running board to get a better shot at his quarry. And Emmett drove and the car careened along the wide street and he fired again and again. Still the car ahead sped on!

Now, Al could see that they were gaining on the crooks. The small car didn't have enough speed to outdistance the big one in which they were riding. Al continued to fire until they reached Kedzie avenue, and then his revolver was empty.

The big car had almost caught up with the little one now. Bit by bit they gained until at last Al's car was nosing up beside the one in which the two thieves were riding. They were running almost hood to hood now, and Al could have reached out and touched the other auto, when suddenly the front car turned sharply.

They had just reached St. Louis avenue. Al saw the crooks' car swerving toward them, but before he had a chance to do anything about it, there was a crash. The crooks sideswiped them, knocking them over to the side of the street.

There was another crash as the car lurched into a telephone pole, but Al wasn't inside the car when it hit. As the two cars came together he was caught between them and knocked down on the running board.

Al Was Dragged By the Fleeing Car

Then, as the smaller car veered away again, his right leg was pinched between its rear fender and the bumper. He felt a tug at that leg—felt himself falling to the pavement—and then he was being dragged along behind the fleeing car.

The car was out of control now. The crook at the wheel was trying to keep it going straight, but it shot up over the curb on the other side of the street. It crossed the sidewalk and plunged on over a stretch of bare water-soaked prairie.

Dragged along behind it, Al felt a terrific bump at his body was pulled over the curb. There was a terrible pain in his imprisoned leg where the tire was scraping the flesh away. His back and side were being bruised and lacerated.

The car traveled a hundred feet through the prairie and by that time Al was numb from pain and shock. Then the car bogged down in the mud and came to a stop. Al's clothes had been literally torn from his body by then, but he still had his gun clutched tightly in his hand.

"There was no chance to use it," he says, "but as soon as the car came to a halt I began struggling to get my leg out of its trap. The driver jumped out and ran north across the prairie.

"At last I got my leg loose and crawled out from under the car. I raised my gun and pulled the trigger, but all I got was a click of the hammer. In the excitement I had forgotten that I emptied the gun during the chase.

As the gun clicked the second man leaped from the car and started to run. And then Al made the pinch of his life. Helpless and unable to walk, much less run after the fleeing crook, he got up on his feet and threw the empty gun after him.

That gun went straight to the mark. It caught the crook on the back of the head and he fell forward on his face—out cold. At that same moment Emmett extricated himself from his wrecked car and came running across the street. He grabbed the crook.

Emmett took them both to a restaurant a block away and there he called the station house. They took Al to the hospital, and he stayed there for three months, getting over the injury to his leg. The rear tire had ground a ridge right into his flesh as the car dragged him across the prairie.

The crook he caught drew a fourteen-year sentence. The other one was shot down by an Englewood policeman three days later—in another stolen car.

"HERE for a sob story," whispered Betty Bell, all eyes, to the man in charge of the "Helping Hand." "For the Church News."

The man in charge nodded. He knew Betty Bell's kind. Sweet young souls trying to be hard-boiled and learn newspaper writing by doing sob stories, about down and outers.

The dingy room with its rows of benches was unusually crowded tonight. The light was even more ghastly and green, and the derelicts even more derelict.

Betty Bell sat like a pretty flower in a rotting place and tried not to mind being stared at by all the wrecks—all, that is, but one, a brawny chap with the remnants of breeding and real good looks, just out of the state penitentiary, who sat all slumped down, scowling, and looking at nothing at all.

And time wore on and the room reeked and no preacher arrived. And Betty Bell, waiting to see the derelicts helped and get a sob story, drooped in her corner and nervously made futile little notes on a copious number of papers which didn't fool anybody.

Suddenly, the man in charge had a bright idea. He went to Betty Bell and sat down very close. And Betty Bell looked startled and embarrassed at first and then a little pleased, and then a little daring and shook her head and finally nodded it and said she would.

The upshot was that Betty Bell preached to the men that night, herself, with her heart and soul in her pleading young voice and her pretty face turned up to the greenish light and her sincerity and goodness in every simple word. She was a great hit. There were ten conversions. And the jailbird suddenly stopped scowling and listened to every word she said intently. He came with the others who crowded around her afterwards. He stood very close and opened his mouth several times as if he wanted to say something and somehow he just couldn't.

"Can I—can I take you home?" he blurted at last, his eyes intently on her pretty face. And the man in charge promptly shouldered in.

"I'm going to see you home, Miss Bell," he said brusquely, hastily. Never could tell about jailbirds just out. This one was evidently hard hit by Betty Bell—and daring to lift his eyes so high.

"Just to the—cars then," begged the jailbird, with that pathetic quiescence one learns in a prison, but persistently. And Betty Bell pitied him acutely with her eyes. Once more the jailbird came closer and opened his mouth—and said nothing.

And the upshot of that was that Betty Bell had a thrill as well as a sob story—for both men took her to the cars and both apparently admired her ardently.

Several strange days followed for Betty Bell. Days when she remembered that look in the jailbird's eyes and his little air of seedy breeding and those times he opened his mouth and said nothing. Strange days full of a little curiosity about what he would have said had he spoken.

Her sob story was a good one. It made a little stir and the man in charge of the Helping Hand came frequently to the office. He was more than uneasy. He was genuinely worried.

"That chap, you know, Miss Bell," he said many times, "the one who wanted to see you home. He comes back again and again and insists on your address and phone number. He knows your name, you see. I feel an awful responsibility—as if I'd let you in for something unpleasant. I should never forgive myself. Of course I've hidden where you are from him, but he's intelligent and I get worried for fear he'll annoy you. He seems determined to see you again."

And while Betty Bell would be saying he mustn't of course, she would see him again, stalwart, prison-pale, his eyes, strangely hungry, bent on her, his lips almost speaking, and her heart would ache with pity and regret. Finally, just as the man in charge was telling her one day that the chap was getting ugly and almost threatening about finding her, the telephone trilled at Betty Bell's elbow.

"Miss Bell?" She knew the breathless voice asking at once.

"Yes." "Miss Bell—do you know who—this is?"

"Oh, yes—I—I think so—" "I've been wanting to—to see you ever since the other night. They wouldn't let me. But I finally found out where you—Miss Bell—"

"Yes." "I—I want to—to see you awfully—"

"I'm sorry I—I—" "Well, maybe some time—" "No, now!" there was a sudden determination in his voice that somehow thrilled Betty Bell. It was a remnant of other days with him.

"But I'm at the office" she protested.

"Well, can't I see you there—just a few minutes—I won't keep you long—"

After a little silence while her eyes roved over the husky men present, and her thoughts over the nonsense of projecting fear into the situation, Betty Bell finally made up her mind.

"Well, yes," she said, and told the man in charge about it—who was devouring her with adoring eyes—and let him rave.

And somehow the news got around the office which had been pleased to titter at Betty Bell's "jailbird beau." And in an incredibly short time the jailbird himself stood before her, wearing his shabby ill-fitting clothes with somewhat of an air, his forlorn eyes again on her with that strange intentness.

He rather clung to her generously proffered hand. He held it even much longer than he should. He looked at her as if a drowning man might.

"Can I—see you—alone," he finally asked, seeing so many faces and pretending not to see.

And once more Betty Bell's eyes roved around the office full of men and her thoughts over the silliness of thinking any harm could come to her even if—even if the boy did fancy he cared for her. Once more her mind made itself up.

"Yes," she said suddenly. "Come this way."

The man in charge now looked more than annoyed. The office looked a trifle dismayed. But Betty Bell took the jailbird into a little private den proudly—the her heart thumped strangely at what she might be letting herself in for.

And once inside, the jailbird abruptly shut the door. He came and stood close to Betty Bell, towering in his piteous young strength.

"Miss Bell, I—I know that I've probably made a nuisance of myself" he almost whispered. "But I—I had to see you to ask you if—if—" Suddenly he leaned closer, almost hovering over her, and Betty Bell's eyes grew big and frightened and she was repenting in her heart. "I know they've tried to hide you from me. I know why. They think I'm a jailbird and not fit to touch or speak to you. Maybe they're right," he said suddenly between his teeth.

"But, somehow, when you talked

Home Made Ice Cream Makes Any Day a Holiday

SAFE AND SANE, delightful and healthfully nourishing is a party for the children when you serve home made ice cream. Sunday evening, on sister's birthday, or just any afternoon, a home made ice cream party is very much in order. Here is an old reliable recipe for:

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

1 cup sugar	2 squares unsweetened chocolate (melted)
1 tablespoon cornstarch	2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon salt	1 cup whipping cream (shipped)
2 cups milk (scalded)
2 eggs (beaten)

Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add scalded milk slowly, stirring well, and place in saucepan or double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat, add beaten eggs, then cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in melted chocolate. Cool. Then add vanilla extract and fold in whipped cream. Place in freezing container of ice cream freezer.

Cover and surround with 3 parts chipped ice and 1 part rock salt (by volume). Freeze ice cream until turning becomes difficult (for about 5 to 15 minutes). Then carefully remove cover, lift out dasher and pack down ice cream with a spoon. Replace cover and replenish salt and ice mixture. Let stand at least 1 hour before serving.

BUYS FORD PICKUP

Sam Roberts, ranching north of Dryden, has purchased a new Ford V-8 pickup, delivery being made Tuesday by the Ferguson Motor Company, local dealer.

Mrs. Jennie Freeman left Sunday morning for Kerrville where she visited this week with her son, Jack, who is in the Veterans' hospital, recovering from injuries suffered in April when he fell and fractured both legs.

Mrs. Helen Downie and sons, Edward and Jack, and her mother, Mrs. Walter Gregory, arrived the first part of last week from San Antonio where they make their home during the school term and will spend the summer at the Downie ranch.

I—knew—I knew—I had to see you—you were the only one in all the world—please understand. I—I wanted to ask you—"

Suddenly his eyes, big and troubled and hungry and shamed, with infinite paths, were on her again, looking deep into her frightened ones. He moved closer yet and thrust his young, drawn tragic face close to hers.

"Miss Bell," he whispered earnestly, after a quick look over his shoulder, and Betty Bell closed her eyes suddenly against the pity of what she felt he was about to say and what she knew she must answer. "Miss Bell I—I wanted to ask you—to ask you—" he gulped all at once, and she opened her eyes again startled. "It's been so long," he whispered huskily. "I'm so—hungry—so hungry. Miss Bell," he said close to her ear, hurriedly, as if in haste to be done. "I was wondering if you could—lend me two dollars and a half?"

QUIET FOURTH
A very quiet 4th of July was spent in Sanderson with all business houses, the bank, post office and Western Union offices closing on Monday, as the independence holiday fell on Sunday. A large number of our citizens remained here, a few went on picnics, while other went to nearby towns—Pecos, Ozona, Marathon to attend the celebrations and rodeo those towns
