Blackford Grange was a quiet house enough, as far as company went; but, as Margaret soon found, the visitors, if few in number, were constant in their attachment, and they consisted chiefly of Louis Baldwin and John Mallabarr. Both these young men were bound to the lady of the house by no ordinary bonds of gratitude and kindness. Both We have always on hand first-class revered in her that motherhood which If Repairing in that line, all we ask is a though they came often to the house trial, satisfaction or no pay, can be found they were seldom there together, though they did occasionally meet, and when that happened, Margaret noticed that neither of them was so perfectly free and unconstrained as when they were there alone. Owing to their respective hours of duty and recreation, and to the distance of their respective homes from the Grange, it generally happened that John Mallabarr's visits were paid in the day-time and those of Louis Baldwin in the evening. Mallabarr never failed, while he was in the county, to present himself three or four times a week at the Grange, while it was a rare thing for Louis to pass a day without calling It was not unnatural-indeed it was the reverse which would have been un-

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS. Men who Want to be Governor of the Empire State Hill, Cooper, Flower . How they all Stand.

The race for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in New York shows Gov. Hill, ex-Mayor Cooper and Hon. Roswell P. Flower all well to the front. Gov. Hill's strength with the democratic masses lies in the fact that he is abhorred of the mugwumps. Ex-Mayor Cooper's weakness lies in the fact that Tammany hall will have none of him, and, in the event of his nomination, would fatally cut him. Mr. Flower's strength is purely negative. He stands reasonably well with all classes and factions, but there is no enthusiasm for him anywhere. He is rich, and, if nominated, will spend a great deal of money. His only recent political expression was to condemn the way in which Tammany was being treated. He believes that such a policy, if persisted in, will prove ruinous to Labor and capital are allies not enemies.

Our columns are open for the discussion of principles but not for personal or mere fault finding matters. Our paper will be devoted to the interests of the people in all the labor and business relations of life.

We solicit news and agricultural contributions from all parts of the state. Farmers and Stock Raisers are specially requested to give our readers the benefit of their experience and methods in successful production of crops and Stock-raising.
