COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of JODOK

As I heard one of my good friends say recently, the government of civilized countries today are striving for the rights and the privileges of the individual rather than that of the multitude.

Each individual has his own individual rights to life and the comforts thereof and the legitimate pursuit of happiness.

A good pastor recently told me that no preacher can deliver a sermon in thirty minutes. I told him that the minister may as well stop when he is half through if that be the case, for very few of the congregation will follow him for a longer period.

This being true, it is up to the people to educate themselves to a concentration of more than thirty minutes at a time.

Friona's main street when bordered with a good concrete curb, will be not only a place of beauty but of convenience and service as well.

Some newspapers of the larger and self-important type take a delight in cajoling the small town papers for printing stories of purely local interest, such as the stories of boys and girls who have made good at their chosen work, whether at home or abroad.

In my opinion that is some of the choicest news such papers can print, and if I were an editor of a small town paper I would take a delight in carrying as many of such articles as I could gather, so far as space would permit.

I remarked last week that I am no agronomist, but expressed a theory that the reason why nature puts a large cob in the corn in this country might be for the storage of more of the elements necessary to the complete development of the grains during years when moisture was slack.

One of the same farmers whom I heard discussing this fact showed me three ears of corn grown on his farm this season which seem to me to emphasize that theory.

Talking of advertising, there is lots of interest to me in reading the advertisements of a local paper since they often contain some very pertinent suggestions, and they are great boosters for the town and community.

MY PLANS FOR 1929.

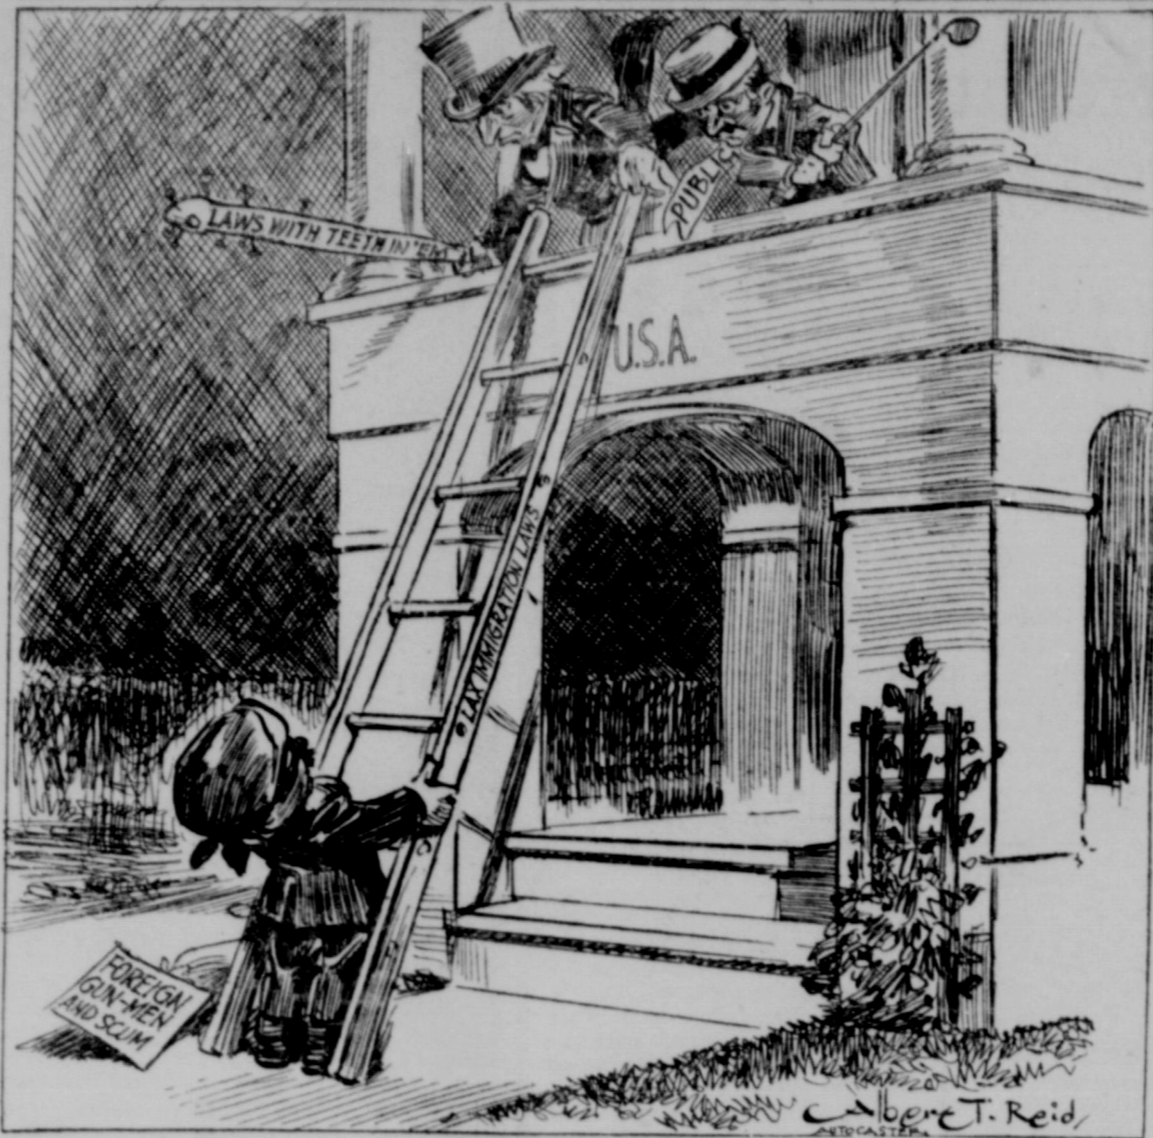

I have planned to do several things during 1929. Among the most important are: Read more widely, strive to make friends among people of all ages, make grades in school that I am not ashamed of, take part in all athletic sports, make advancement in music and visit Carlsbad Canyon.

I enjoy reading and I am going to try to enlarge my vocabulary. I shall try to read more world news and articles that will enable me to talk on many of today's world problems.

Not only do I intend to strengthen my mind, but also my body by good wholesome athletics, such as football, basketball and tennis. I hope I shall become a fairly good athlete so as to make a real ath-

Sunday School Lesson

CHRIST THE SAVIOUR.

International Sunday School Lesson for January 20.

Luke 15:37; Romans 5:6-10.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

More relates to this theme and Person that any other subject in the world. The world is indeed Christ-centric. While President Coolidge's Thanksgiving proclamation did not mention Christ, it was dated Anno Domini—in the year of the Lord. Only New Testament Scripture portions are indicated for research but many could have pertinently been given from the Old Testament. There are many prophecies which refer to Him and one of the strongest evidences of the authority of the Bible is the record of prophecy and its fulfillment in later history.

Search on the facts and teachings in the Scripture portions: Luke 2:11, 30-32; 15:3-7; John 3:14-17; 10:9-11, 14-16, 27, 28; Acts 2: 1-8; Romans 5:1-11, Philippians 2:5-11; 1 Timothy 1:9-10. The Golden Text is a definition of the word "Jesus": "And thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." Matt. 1:21. Let it be noted that the historicity of Jesus, the Man of Nazareth, is accepted by individuals and races who do not acknowledge Him as the Christ, meaning the Messiah, the Anointed One. Those who doubt or question may well be referred to both literature and art which finds its glorious basis in Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Saul of Tarsus beheld his Lord as he approached Damascus and evidence thereof is to be seen in the changed life that followed. The letters of Paul are mature conclusions after most careful research and divine revelations. Last month, at the birthday celebration the very air was ringing with the echoing of the angel's song, which was first heard by the shepherds of Judah. The angel explained to them "There is born to you this day in the city of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." Luke 2: 11.

His life was fully in accord with the claims made concerning Him. He did not fall short in any respect. He outlined his method of working in the parable recorded by Luke. He is ever the great Shepherd vitally concerned for each lamb and sheep in the entire flock. His mission in leaving the throne place in heaven, where He had been from all time with the Father, was to shepherd His sheep; and at any cost to Himself. During the 33 years on earth He revealed how intimately He would enter into the life problem of each soul.

Mankind was not saved by His exemplary life but only by His supreme sacrifice on the cross at Calvary. Paul presents the matter very clearly in the selected portions in Romans. Man could never make himself righteous in the sight of holy God. We are justified not by a lifetime of our acts, but solely as our sins are given to Jesus and His righteousness is imputed to us. He made full atonement for our sins in His sacrificial death on the cross. John also in parabolic form, pictures the pathway of salvation.

FASHION NOW HIGHLIGHTS LACE; QUAINT FROCKS FOR EVENING

THE rage for lace continues. The costume in which a distinguished guest chose to attend a recent smart wedding was a frock of lace and tulle—mostly lace. The bodice was entirely of exquisite lace, also lace tiers embellished the skirt. The significant style note is that with this costume the modish guest wore a caplike hat of matching lace. Which goes to show the extent to which the lace vogue is being carried.

There are innumerable angles from which the theme of lace may be dising interpreted means that dotted point d'esprit net is, after an absence of many seasons, again listed among popular media for evening frocks. In fact, the flair is for all sorts of nets, especially beaded and spangled types. The vogue for the fanciful little transparent evening jacket particularly brings spangled and sequin embroidered nets into the modern picture.

The colors of the new-fashioned old-fashioned point d'esprit nets are very interesting, for they express that latest whim of the mode which adopts street ussed. One of them is the important part lace is playing in the way of accessory touches on fashionable afternoon frocks of silks, satins and velvets.

Another viewpoint of the lace mode has to do with color. Whatever your most becoming color, it is possible to find an all-over lace in the wanted shade. If one can sew and is accustomed to making one's own dresses, a lovely lace frock can be had at comparatively little outlay.

Then there are the new metal laces, which are gorgeous. More formal, of course, than the naive colorful laces are they, but then the mode trends to formality when it comes to evening apparel.

One of the very gratifying things about many of the beautiful laces which lending American designers are fashioning into lovely gowns and wraps is that they are manufactured in our "ain country." Which means more than we realize at first thought, for it has not been long since we looked to foreign countries for our best laces, but now the whole proceeding is changed and some of the most beautiful laces which we admire are American made.

The exquisite hostess or tea gown in the picture is fashioned of American-made metal lace which adopts both an shades for evening wear. Ultra smartness calls for such unusual tones, unusual at least for party frocks, as brown, burgundy, independence or midnight blue, and even deep greens are in favor.

A very sprightly silhouette is given to these colorful nets, in that they consume yards and yards and yards, styled in many flaring tiers which stress a crisp bouffancy from waistline to hemline, accomplishing the uneven effects about the ankles through means of trailing streamers, panels and similar details.

The bodices for these net gowns vary. Some are that simple they trend to severity. In which event corsage flowers and costume jewelry are depended upon to play a leading part. Extremely low décolletage also gives distinction to these simply-styled bodices. Quite often, the bodice takes on the glitter of spangles or is elaborately beaded, or is of some contrasting material such as velvet, brocade, satin or metal cloth.

In regard to the gown in the picture, it is a matter of pride with the designer that the point d'esprit net used is American made.

Another style feature accented in this model is the lavishness of detail

POINT D'ESPRI NET IN DARK TONES

antique tonality and an antique design. The clever touch about this gown is the sleeve drapes of gold lace which enfold the shoulders. The manner in which the long-at-the-back flounce is shirred on to the blouse is also quite thrilling.

That which was in the long ago, in matter of dainty material for the party frock, is again. Which be-displayed at the back of the frock. Back views are a highly exploited theme in dress design this season. Not infrequently the front of a frock is of almost tailored simplicity while to the back is shifted skirt fullness under the guise of "bustle" bows and drapes.

Young Lady's Elbows No Longer A Hat Rack

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medicine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. Doctors have given me bowel medicine and I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of. They didn't do me any good whatever.

"Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regular. I have taken so much medicine that I thought it was all alike.

"I had a sallow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune. I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the results I have obtained.

"I am 19 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Have gained 5 pounds since taking your medicine and am still gaining. My face is round and my arms are getting round. Before, people used to hang their hats on my elbows, thinking they were hatracks. Now I am going to keep on with Milks Emulsion until I weigh 125 pounds.

"I mentioned your Emulsion to two doctors. They both admitted it was good, and no one knows better than I that it is not only good, but wonderful.

"You may publish this letter if you wish and anyone that wants to ask me about your medicine may do so. I promise to answer every letter. In fact, I couldn't do enough for Milks Emulsion to repay them for what their medicine has done for me. I remain, very respectfully yours, ROSEMOND BOWER, Frontenac, Kan."

Roads From Rubbish
Salt Lake City has splendid roads that have been built of rubbish. The material is leveled by means of a drag—stoves, baby carriages, bedsteads, etc., being placed by hand.

The dump is then rolled with a 15-ton steel roller, which so smashes everything that it packs even more easily than dirt as a foundation for a screened gravel surface.

Filipinos Fear Visit of Headless Spooks

Many Filipino homes are today marked with a white cross as a precaution against a visit from three alleged, black-robed, headless sisters.

The story of the headless sisters, who are called the Tatlong Marias or Three Marys, began to circulate during the early autumn. It spread rapidly, and fully 75 per cent of the homes were marked with crosses.

Those who marked their doors said that the sisters made nightly calls, and that the person who answered their knock at the door was stricken with a fatal illness. But if a white cross were upon the doors there was no visitation.

Most of the crosses were drawn with white chalk, but some were painted and a few made with flowers. The story of the three sisters has curbed neighborly visits in the evening.

City Holds Tercentenary

In celebration of its 300 years of existence as a royal burgh, the ancient city of Dornoch, Scotland, recently held a descriptive pageant and other festivities. A reproduction of the blessing of the fishermen's nets by an abbot of the Sixth century, a re-enacting of the Battle of Embo in the Eleventh century, and a repulse of the pillaging Danes by William, earl of Sutherland, were among the many tableaux. In the last of these the role of the Danish leader was played by the duchess of Sutherland. Other notables who took part included Lady Londonderry, Lady Ednam, Lord Chaplin, and Miss Elizabeth Leveson-Gower, who is the daughter of the present heir to the dukedom of Sutherland.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

How to Avoid INFLUENZA
Colds Nothing you can do will so effectively protect you against Colds, Influenza or Grippe as keeping your organs of digestion and elimination active and your system free from poisonous accumulations. Nature's Kennedy (Dr. Caldwell's) does more than merely cause pleasant and easy bowel action. It tones and strengthens the system, increasing resistance against disease and infections.

THE LAST OF THE DUANES

by Zane Grey

"Met Jasper as I rode in," said Bland presently. "Duane I want you to stop quarreling with my men. If you were one of us—that'd be different. I can't keep my men from fighting. But I'm not called on to let an outsider hand around my camp and plub my rustlers."

"I guess I'll have to be hitting the trail for somehwere," said Duane.

"Why not join my band? You've got a bad start already. Duane, and if I know this border yet you will never be a respectable citizen again. You're a born killer. I know every bad man on this frontier."

"More than one of them have told me that something exploded in their brain and when sense came back there lay another dead man. It's not so with me. I've done a little shooting, too; but I never wanted to kill another man just to rid myself of the last one."

"My dead men don't sit on my chest at night. That's the gun fighters' trouble. He's crazy. He has to kill a new man—he's driven to it to forget the last one."

"But I'm no gun-fighter," protested Duane. "Circumstances made me—"

"No doubt," interrupted Bland with a laugh. "Circumstances made me a rustler. You don't know yourself. You're young; you have a temper; your father was one of the most dangerous men Texas ever had. I don't see any other career for you. Instead of going it alone—a lone wolf, as the Texans say—why not make friends with other outlaws. You'll live a while longer."

Enchre squirmed in his seat.

"Boss, I've been given the boy exactly the same line of talk. That is, why I took him in to bunk with me. If he makes pards among us there won't be any more trouble."

And he'd be a grand feller for the gang. Slickest of all the gun-throws I ever seen. And I've rustled around over the Southwest."

Accounting for the short cut across grove and field, it was about five minutes' walk up to Bland's house. To Duane it seemed long in time and distance, and he had difficulty in restraining his pace.

As he walked there came a gradual and subtle change in his feelings. Again he was going out to meet in conflict. He could have avoided this meeting. But despite the fact of his courting the encounter, he had got as yet feet that hot, inexplicable explosion of blood. The motive of this deadly action was not personal and somehow that made a difference.

No outlaws were in sight. He saw several Mexican herdsmen with cattle. Blue columns of smoke curled up over some of the cabins. The fragrant smell of it reminded Duane of his home—that he used to cut the wood for the stove. He noted a cloud of creamy mist rising out above the river, dissolving in the sunlight.

Then he entered Bland's home. While yet some distance from the cabin he heard loud angry voices of man and woman. Bland and Kate still quarrelling. He took a quick survey of the surroundings. There was now not even a Mexican in sight. Then he hurried a little.

Half way down the lane he turned his head to peer through the cottonwoods. This time he saw Enchre coming with the horses. There was no indication that the old outlaw might lose his nerve at the end. Duane had feared this.

Duane now changed his walk to a leisurely saunter. He reached the porch and then distinguished what was said inside the cabin.

"If you do, Bland—by heave, I'll fix you and her!" That was panted out in Kate Bland's full voice.

"Let me lose! I'm going in there, I tell you!" replied Bland hoarsely.

"What for?"

"I want to make a little love to her. Ha-ha! It'll be fun to have the laugh on her new lover."

"You lie!" cried Kate Bland.

"Let me go!" His voice grew hoarser with passion.

"No, no! I won't let you go! You'll choke the—truth out of her! You'll kill her!"

"The truth!" cried Bland.

"Yes, I lied, Jen lied. But she lied to save you. You needn't murder her—for that."

Bland cursed horribly. Then followed a wrestling sound of bodies in violent straining contact—the scrape of feet—the jangle of spurs—a crash of sliding table or chair and then the cry of a woman in pain.

Duane stepped into the open door—inside the room Kate Bland lay half across a table where she had been flung, and she was trying to get to her feet. Bland's back was turned. He had opened the door into Jennie's room and had one foot across the threshold. Duane caught the girl's low, shuddering cry.

"Good morning!" he called, loud and clear.

With catlike swiftness Bland wheeled—then froze on the threshold. His slight, quick as his action, caught Duane's menacing, unmistakable position.

Bland's big frame filled the door. He was in a bad place to reach for his gun. But he would not have time to step. Duane read in his eyes the desperate calculation of chances. For a fleeting instant Bland shifted his gaze to his wife. Then his whole body seemed to vibrate with the swing of his arm.

Duane shot him. He fell forward, his gun exploding as it dug into the floor, and it dropped loose from stretching fingers. Duane stood over him, stooped to turn him on his back. Bland looked up with clouded gaze, then gasped his last.

"Duane, you've killed him!" cried Kate Bland, huskily. "I knew you'd have to!"

She staggered against the wall, her eyes dilating, her strong sure hands clutched, her face half stunned, but showed no grief.

"Jennie!" called Duane sharply.

"Oh—it is you—Duane?" came a halting reply.

"Yes. Come out. Hurry."

She came with uneven steps, seeing only him, and she stumbled over Bland's body. Duane caught her arm, swung her behind him. He realized how she had been duped. His action was protective, and his movement toward the door equally significant.

"Duane!" cried Mrs. Bland.

It was no time for talk. Duane edged on, keeping Jennie behind him. At that moment there was a pounding of iron-shod hoofs out in the lane. Kate Bland bounded to the door. When she turned back her amazement was changing to realization.
