By the Secretary

From all accounts the Challis trip was a very enjoyable one and was attended by more Brownfield people than any previous one and it is hoped that as many will arrange to go to Sawyer this week. The secretary did not get to make the Challis visit as he was in attendance at a State meeting of Commercial Executives.

In all previous visits that have been made the people of the communities were there in full force but it has sometimes been a job to get enough of our own people to transport the band and it is hoped that results achieved on some recent trips have opened their eyes and that cars will be more numerous in the future. Refreshments in the way of ice cream and cake were served at Challis and from all accounts enormous amounts of cream were needed to fill the aching void of our bunch.

The monthly luncheon which was had at the King Hotel last night was a result getter and more lines of business were represented than at any since the first one. It was decided to exhibit at the Lubbock and Dallas Fairs and every person present was appointed on the committee to search for and procure the choicest stuff for that purpose and we will go into these fairs with the first complete score board exhibit ever placed by the county. Also it was decided to make an extensive booster trip into New Mexico and the matter of dates was left up to the secretary and after figuring from every standpoint it has been decided that August 23, 24, and 25 will be better suited to every circumstance.

The following is the itinerary planned. Leaving Brownfield at seven A. M. Monday, August 23, playing concert at Tatum and Caprock and arriving in Roswell in afternoon for about a two hour stay with concert. Leaving Roswell for Carlsbad staying the night and next day, seeing the caverns, taking in the bathing beach and other attractions at Carlsbad and leaving Carlsbad early Wednesday morning, playing concert at Lovington and concert late afternoon at Seagraves and arriving home Wednesday night. This will be a dandy trip and let our people see the caves where they might miss the attraction otherwise. Every person who hears of this trip is invited to make it, take your car and your wife, but for the Lord's sake save a seat in it for some member of the band.

One more word in regard to this trip. If any of you fellows who expect to make the trip have a desire to put on a "show," please save it until your return home, we are used to it here but don't want to advertise ourselves as a set of roughnecks in adjoining counties or States and 'shows' are one of the best ways of getting that kind of advertising. The trip if properly handled, will be worth a great deal in the way of the right kind of publicity for Brownfield. Let us all join in giving it just that kind. Take your cot with you preparing to sleep out, but most of us will expect to eat at the cafes, excepting first day luncheon which should be prepared at home.

The next luncheon will be held at the Hotel Brownfield at about 2 p. m. August 19th at which time we will have Hon. Arthur P. Duggan, President of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Homer D. Wade, Manager and E. H. Whitehead, Publicity Manager. After the luncheon speeches will be made by each of these gentlemen in line with the program of that organization which has been outlined for the year. We will appreciate it very much if farmers from different districts of the county would arrange to attend this meeting as matters of interest to them as well as citizens of Brownfield will be made public. It is hoped that the district court room will be available for the use of the speakers at that time, but this cannot be stated as a certainty.

Now a word for publicity. If any person in the town and county should come into possession of any news that would be of benefit to our section of the state, it would be appreciated if the attention of the secretary was called to it in order that the state papers might have it. It is not possible for any one person to hear of all of the news and publicity is one of the greatest things that any section of the country can secure.

Also any item of local news, such as a vacation planned or taken or a visit to our town or country of a friend or relative. This will be for the local paper, and will be appreciated by both it and the writer.

Remember Sawyer this week, and Happy next week, then comes New Mexico. If you make the New Mexico trip please let the Secretary know about it as we will have badges printed and the merchants will stock white hats for the use of the trippers both men and women.

For the attention of the Midway people we make the statement that the telephone company is having material shipped in and will soon be able to offer them connection with the switchboard at Brownfield, and that other communities will be served in a like manner. Anyone desiring more information may take the matter up with the secretary or the telephone company. If all of us will work together it will only be a short time until rural communities in our county will be thoroughly in touch with their county capitol.

MORE THAN HUNDRED HELP WORK THE SEARS CROP

It seems that misfortune never does come single handed, but usually he brings the whole family, and frequently seems never to know when to let go a man. Way back in June this year, word was received by Mr. Sears that one of his boys who lived in Milan county fell sick, and his mother went to him. He finally seemed to be convalescing. But while he was so dangerous, and indeed expected to die, Mr. Sears and another married son, Ollie, of Levelland, went to the bedside of their son and brother. After Ollie came home, Earl relapsed and died. Then his mother became stricken with typhoid which she no doubt contracted from her son, and after a long sojourn, is slowly recovering. About three weeks ago, Ollie also took typhoid after returning home and last Friday passed away at the sanitarium at Lubbock and was buried at Lamesa Saturday.

In the meantime the Sears crop two miles northwest of town had become rather fowl with weeds, and a working was planned Saturday and given out at all the churches here Sunday, as well as at Gomez, and some sixteen single row and about four double-row cultivators, together with 100 cotton choppers appeared at the Sears farm Tuesday morning, and by noon his 125 acres of cotton and a lot of his 75 acres of corn and feed were clean of weeds and plowed out. At noon the good ladies had prepared a fine meal as only Terry county ladies can, which was much enjoyed by the tired men and boys.

After the dinner hour, the hoe hands came to town, and formed a line of march near the depot, and headed by the Brownfield Band, marched to the court square, circled same, and after having a photo made, came to rest on the northwest corner of the park where they were addressed by Elder A. L. Burnett, District Attorney elect T. L. Price, and thanked by Mr. Sears who seemed so full of emotion that he could hardly talk.

Folks, it is great to live in a county try like old Terry county where a neighbor means more than just living close to you; where the word neighbor means "my brother's keeper." It has always been a community of this kind, and may God help us that we man never change.

TO THE VOTERS OF TERRY COUNTY

I take this means of thanking the voters of Terry county for their votes and influence in the primary held last Saturday, and want them to know I will try and give them the same service in the future that I have in the past, and that it is a pleasure to serve them.

Yours very truly,
H. R. Winston

BAPTIST REVIVAL STARTS NEXT SUNDAY MORNING

The annual revival of the Baptist church will start next Sunday at 11 o'clock under the City Tabernacle. The Sunday School will be held in the church and go from there to the Tabernacle where preaching service will be held.

Rev. John G. Winsett, of Abilene will do the preaching in the meeting. It will be remembered that Rev. Winsett was with us last year in one of the most gracious meetings that the local church for the town has ever had. However, the success of the meeting this year does not at all depend on the results last year. We must depend on the power of prayer, and the Holy Spirit for our success. Unless these two elements enter in we shall fail. It is our unqualified opinion that Rev. Winsett's success as an evangelist is due largely to the fact that he put large emphasis on the two above named elements—prayer and the Holy Spirit.

Mr. T. D. Carroll, of Seminary Hill, Fort Worth, is associated with Bro. Winsett this year as his singer. Bro. Carroll comes well recommended as a soloist and song leader.

The co-operation received last year from the other churches and christian people of the town was almost all that one could wish for. In closing this announcement of the meeting I should like to say a personal word. This will be the fifth meeting that we have engaged in as pastor of the Baptist church in Brownfield, and as we per these lines a deep sense of gratitude flows into our soul for the fine co-operation from our own church and from the other church people of town. So far as I know there has been the finest feeling of fellowship among the churches. And though my stay from henceforth may be long or short in Brownfield, God alone knows there shall ever remain with me an undying devotion for the best interest and welfare of this community. We invite you one and all to come and help make the meeting a great soul winning campaign.

C. E. Ball, Pastor

TO THE VOTERS OF TERRY COUNTY

I thank you very much. When you need the services of my office don't hesitate to command me. When we get in the New Court House, come to see me.

TO THE VOTERS OF COMMISSIONERS PRECINCT NO. 4

May I express to you my deep appreciation for the support accorded me in last Saturday's primary. Too, may I ask your earnest consideration in the August runoff.

CANDIDATE SPEAKING FRIDAY NIGHT DRAWS CROWD

There were perhaps 1,000 people here Friday night to attend the last stand of the county and district candidates, and some estimate the crowd at 1500. They were certainly there from every nook and corner of the county.

Everything passed off quietly and good humoredly, there being only one instance in which any of the candidates seemed to become riled in the least, and that amounted to little compared to the number of candidates on hand.

The writer cannot but feel real proud of our candidates for the nice gentlemanly way they conducted their campaign, and the good humor and good will in which it was finished. We also wish to state that they have really developed some oratory as well in their two months speaking engagements, and most of them could put it off like veterans.

The campaign is now over, and everyone seems to be satisfied and nothing to say about their rivals, and we are happy.

Besides the county candidates Emmett L. Whitaker, candidate for representative and T. L. Price, candidate for district attorney also spoke and received fine attention.

TO THE CITIZENS OF TERRY COUNTY

From the returns to date of the primary election, it seems certain that I have been nominated as District Attorney of the 10th Judicial District by an overwhelming majority, therefore I take this method of expressing my gratitude to the good people of Terry county for your great vote of confidence in me.

You have certainly done your part and it will be my ambition to do my part without fear or favor, and it will not only be my duty to devote my life to your service, but will be pleasure for me to line myself solidly with the best men and women of this county in an effort to enforce all the laws of the people to the end that we may make this district a dreaded place for criminals to try to live.

I shall re-dedicate my life and all my energies to the service of my people when I shall have assumed the duties of this important office, and I sincerely ask for the co-operation of all good, law abiding citizens in the work I shall undertake.

Sincerely yours,
T. L. Price

SCOTT THANKS VOTERS FOR THEIR SUPPORT

Gomez, Texas, July 26, 1926

To my friends, neighbors and fellow citizens of Pre. No. 3 of Terry county: Since I am defeated, allow me to express my sincere thanks for the support given me in the recent primary, and for your kind attitude toward me throughout the campaign. I feel that I have made many friends and lost none, although I am greatly defeated by my worthy opponents.

I trust you voted your own sentiments, and I will be glad to see any of you at any time. Although you voted against me, I am as ever your friend, and at any time that I can be of service to any of you, I am at your command.

Respectfully,
Jno. E. Scott

TO THE VOTERS AND FRIENDS IN TERRY COUNTY

Tokio, Texas, July 27, 1926

I take this method of expressing my thanks and appreciation to the people in Brownfield and all over the county for your vote and influence and encouragement, that you extended during the first race for County Treasurer.

As I am now in the runoff, which comes off Aug. 28, I ask you to kindly stand by me and help me go over the top.

Your friend,
Wilburn Pippin

TO THE VOTERS OF TERRY COUNTY

I wish to express my deepest appreciation to you for the support given me in the recent primary.

I also wish to congratulate my opponent upon his success, and offer him and you my whole-souled cooperation and support toward the very best administration possible.

Respectfully,
A. L. Burnett

BUILDING AND IMPROVEMENTS IN BROWNFIELD

We are glad to see our business men turn out as they did Monday night at the monthly luncheon, and discuss matters in the straight forward manner they did on that occasion. That is but right. If they approve of a matter, let them say so, and if they object, they should likewise tell why. In that way all of us understand each other. The secretary gave a full report of the meeting printed elsewhere.

The Gulf Refining Company are occupying their splendid new home in the north portion of the business section this week, and seem to be real proud to get into real up-to-date quarters.

The big boiler for the Farmers Gin arrived last week and workmen are installing it this week. They are changing from combustion engine to a steam engine.

The petition between the Palace Drug and the former location of the Sanitary Barber Shop is being removed this week, giving the Palace a third more floor space. They are installing new fixtures in that section, and will have two front entrances.

The machinist sent here from Dallas will almost finish installing the 240 horse power engine for the light and power plant, this week.

Earl Hill is wrecking the old wooden building standing in the rear of the Quality Filling Station, and with the addition of some new lumber will construct a neat cottage.

New furniture for the splendid new court house continues to arrive, but on account of a strike of marble workers, work has been held up on the court house work for the present. The strike however, is not here, but where the marble is finished, at Dallas we believe.

The Moore building will be finished this week, according to contractor Thompson, and turned over to the owners.

The old mercantile building, belonging to Dock Powell, on the southwest corner of the square, is being stuccoed and otherwise modernized. A. C. Whisenant has the contract.

DAGO TRAMP PICKED UP AT MEADOW SATURDAY

A tramp perhaps 30 years old, who had been scaring some ladies in and around Meadow, was picked up by local officers and brought here and lodged in jail Saturday night, charged with vagrancy.

He seemed to be a foreigner of some kind, probably Italian, and gave his home as Pennsylvania, which proved true as his parents wired him $25 this week. He was given a portion of the money and told to hike.

His bundle was searched and almost every conceivable bit of junk was found in it, including spurs, buckles, bits of leather, etc., which led local officers to believe him somewhat demented.

OLLIE SEARS DIED AT LUBBOCK FRIDAY

Ollie Sears, 26, prominent young lumberman of Levelland, and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Sears of this place, died at a Lubbock sanitarium last Friday of typhoid fever, which he contracted in Milan county, while visiting his sick brother there, who also died July 3rd.

Ollie was a fine fellow and had lots of close friends all over this section. He leaves a wife and two or three small children. The remains were laid to rest in the Lamesa cemetery.

Their mother also has the disease in Milan county, but it is thought she will soon be able to come home.

TOBACCO GROWS WELL ON THE SOUTH PLAINS

C. V. Callahan who is farming a few miles south of Midway, in the southeast part of Dawson county has the first crop of tobacco to ever be raised in the county. He has about twenty tobacco plants in his field and they are about waist high and growing as good as ever in Louisiana. Mr. Callahan says:

The plants were shipped here from Louisiana and transplanted by Mr. Callahan. The tobacco is cigar stock and the leaves on the plants are extremely large.

Mr. Callahan thinks tobacco can be successfully grown here, and expects to have a large acreage in that crop next year. Business Journal.

Square Receptacle for Goldfish Always Best

According to a bureau of fisheries bulletin, because of its narrow neck, the so-called fish globe is not adapted to keeping goldfish in a comfortable and healthy state. Its small amount of water surface not permitting the process of absorption of air on a scale sufficient for the well-being of the fish. Another objectionable feature of the globe lies in its reflection and refraction of light rays, which tends to make the fish nervous and uneasy. An aquarium with straight sides is the most suitable for goldfish. It should be of rectangular shape and of equal width at the top and bottom. The rectangular battery jar, which may be purchased in the 5-gallon size, will give good results. The depth of water should be about the same as the width of the aquarium, and the bottom should be covered with clean sand and gravel to the depth of one and one-half inches. Ordinary washed sand and pebbles are best for this purpose, as the more desirable aquarial plants draw most of their nourishment from the water and require merely an anchorage. In order to insure an abundant air supply, plants of high oxygenating powers should be selected for the aquarium. Cleanliness, good light, plants well distributed over the bottom, proper food in moderate quantity, prompt removal of sick fish, and avoidance of overstocking are the essential factors for the maintenance of a successful aquarium.

Smoke Proved There Was Food in Homes

Smoking chimneys may be an awful nuisance in large cities, but there was a time in Japan when the sight of effusive chimneys so pleased a monarch of the country that he wrote a poem about it. It was during a famine in the reign of Emperor Nintoku, according to "Peter Simple," in the London Post, and there was great suffering. Nintoku climbed to the balcony of his palace and saw a little smoke rising from the chimneys of the city. He at once exempted the people from taxation for three years. Later he climbed to his roof again and saw smoke rising from almost all the chimneys. Whereupon he committed these lines:

On my roof
Climbing, when I look out
I see smoke rising.
The people's kitchens
Are in a flourishing condition.

Many London Bridges

London bridge has never actually fallen down. Old London bridge, begun in 1170, was completed in 1209. It carried a row of timber houses, which were frequently burned down, but the main structure existed until the beginning of the Nineteenth century. The old bridge was the center for booksellers and other tradesmen. On it stood the chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, and a tower on which the heads of traitors were exposed to view. The present London bridge was begun in 1824 and completed in 1831. It is borne on five granite arches, is 922 feet high, 65 feet wide and 56 feet above the river.

An Intelligent Interest

The rector of a country parish was showing one of his parishioners round his garden. He paused in front of the garden wall, into which had been built a huge boulder of granite, differing obviously from the red sandstone blocks that composed the rest of the wall. "That," he said, indicating the granite boulder, "came down in a glacier." The visitor considered the object with much attention and then said thoughtfully: "Would that be before the war?"--Manchester Guardian.

GEORGE WYTHE, SIGNER

"He might truly be called the Cato of his country, without the avarice of the Roman, for a more disinterested person never lived."

Thomas Jefferson wrote thus of George Wythe, one of the Virginia signers of the Declaration of Independence. The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the famous document, to which fifty-six men affixed their signatures, is now being celebrated at the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia. Wythe was the son of a wealthy planter and an exceptionally intelligent mother under whose instruction he learned Greek and Latin and gained some knowledge of mathematics and the sciences. He received further training at William and Mary College.

Before he attained his majority both parents died and he was left in possession of a large fortune. From this time until he was thirty years of age he lived a life of dissipation and extravagance. The course of his life was changed when he began to study law under John Lewis, an eminent practitioner, and he rose to the front rank of the Virginia Bar.

George Wythe was a leader in the House of Burgesses until the Revolution. He was a member of the committee which drew up the remonstrance to the House of Commons on the proposed Stamp Act. Wythe was responsible for framing the last-named paper but it so far exceeded the demands of his colleagues in boldness and truth that it viewed as bordering on treason and accepted only after much modification.

The Virginian was appointed a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1775 where he signed the Declaration of Independence.

He lost almost all of his property during the Revolution, and he helped out his fortunes by accepting a professorship of law in William and Mary College which he held from 1779-89. Among his pupils were two presidents of the United States, a Chief Justice and a number of other eminent Americans.

On the reorganization of the Court of Equity, Wythe was made sole Chancellor and held the office for more than twenty years. Later he emancipated his slaves and gave them means of subsistence. He died in Richmond, Virginia, in June 1806.

GEORGE READ, SIGNER

The persuasive eloquence of some of the immortal fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence, together with the convincing arguments presented, was such that even the members of the body who hesitated with regard to affixing their signatures to the document were finally convinced of its merit.

The fact is aptly presented by the biographer of George Read of Delaware, who relates that Read at first voted against the adoption and later not only signed the Declaration, but was instrumental in having many others do so.

The action of these men in framing of what has been conceded as the greatest document ever written, was lauded by President Coolidge upon the occasion of the official opening of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia, June 1st, who emphasized their efforts as guided by spiritual rather than material impulses.

Read was born in Cecil county Md., September 18, 1733. His father, John Read, came from Ireland early in the 18th century, where with six others he founded the town of Charlestown. He studied law with John Molland, of Philadelphia, was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1774-77. He was elected United States Senator from Delaware in 1789, but resigned in 1793 to take his seat as Chief Justice of the State of Delaware having been appointed by Governor Clayton. He died in Newcastle, Del., in 1798.

It will be a repetition of the celebration held here last year, only on a larger and more elaborate scale.

Various committees have already been appointed by the Levelland C. of C. and are busy making preparations for this big annual event which will be bigger and better than last year.

Beginning with the night of August 5th a big West Texas Dance will be the beginning of the entertainment.

Then at 9:00 o'clock Friday morning August 6th the day's program will be opened by a concert by the Levelland band and from that time on during the entire day you will be entertained with addresses by prominent men such as Hon. Great Voices Called Accidents of Nature

Great voices are rare and undoubtedly owe their wonderful purity of tone to an accidental combination of those physical characteristics which lead to the production of song. The human musical instrument, though built of living tissues, resembles in structure the reed organ pipe fitted with a vox humana stop. In both cases the note depends on the vibrations of a column of air produced in the organ by a reed and in the voice by the vocal cords. The human air chamber corresponding to the organ pipe is composed of the larynx and the bronchial system beneath it.

The throat, mouth and nasal cavities form the resonators which, by alternation in shape and size, are able to pick out and emphasize certain component parts of the fundamental tones produced in the larynx. The lungs form the bellows which produce the upward blast of air, and upon their quality depends the loudness of the voice.—London Daily Mail.

Famous Eastern Conqueror

One of the most delightful spots in the vicinity of Kabul is the high-walled garden known as the Baber Bagh, in the corner of which is the grave of one of the greatest men that ever lived, Baber, "The Tiger," who founded the dynasty of the magnificent Moguls. This shrine is a place of pilgrimage not for Afghans alone but for people from all parts of central Asia. It was in this garden or just such another, says Mr. Lowell Thomas, that Baber made his plans to lead his Tartar horsemen and burly nomads down to the rich plains of Panipat, near Delhi, where he fought one of the most decisive battles of Asia in 1526. Such colossal booty fell into his hands that he was able to give $10,000 to each of his chief officers, and corresponding rewards in silver and rare silks to everyone not only in his army but in his kingdom.

Significant Nickname

Professor von Valentini, who was chief of the kaiser's civil cabinet of Germany and who was credited with exerting a powerful political influence over the kaiser, died in Hamelin, Prussia at the age of seventy-one. He was known as the "Angel of Political Death," and it was said that he was responsible for the downfall of Count von Bethmann-Hollweg, and for the appointment of Dr. Georg Michaelis as chancellor. The professor's resignation in January, 1918, was hailed by the Pan-German newspapers as a triumph for their cause, and it was stated later that he had been forced out by the militarists because he predicted catastrophe for the German arms.—The Argonaut.

Journalist Scored

Anatole France said that actors have the vanity and brains of peacocks. From which it follows that they are not adept at repartee. A journalist and an actor become involved in an argument as to the intelligence of the stage craft. To support his case, the journalist quoted the statement by France. The discussion was long and heated, the actor finally accusing the journalist of lack of intelligence because the latter dealed possession of brains to actors. He said: "Now I know what it means to have a peacock brain." To this the journalist retorted, "Then you must have learned through introspection."

Finest Ivory Taken

From Male Elephant

Strictly speaking, ivory is a tusk, confined to material represented by the tusk of the elephant, and for commercial purposes almost entirely to that of the male elephant. Both male and female African elephants produce good-sized tusks. In the Indian variety the female is much less bountifully provided, while less than 1 per cent of the elephants of Ceylon have tusks of any value. Ivory is a very dense substance; the pores are close and compact and filled with a gelatinous solution, which contributes to the beautiful polish that can be given to ivory. The tusk of the elephant, from which alone true ivory is obtained, may be placed between bone and horn. It is more fibrous than bone and, therefore, less easily torn or splintered.

The tusks of the walrus correspond to the canine teeth of other mammals and they are not true ivory although so called. They are inferior in quality to the ivory of the elephant.

Milk Products Old

Butter was known for at least 2,000 years before the Christian era. It was not used as food, however, but mostly as a medicine and ointment, and in some parts was employed as an illuminant for lamps. The butter was churned crudely in skin bags or pouches, and was a very inferior article. Cheese has been known since the earliest times, the oldest mention of it occurring in 1490 B. C. It was used as an article of food before butter.

Difference in Law Terms

The Pathfinder Magazine thus defines the difference between adjective and substantive law: Substantive law consists of the general and fundamental principles of law. Adjective law consists of certain rules and regulations governing court procedure and the administration of the substantive law. In other words, adjective law is a set of rules by which the substantive law is executed.

YELLOW HOUSE WELL
SPUDED IN WEDNESDAY

The drilling crew for Yellow House well No. 1, located about 14 miles southwest of Littlefield, spudded in Wednesday afternoon, starting a 20-inch hole, in which will be set a 15-inch casing for the first 200 feet. A standard rig will then be set over the hole and same reduced to to a 5-inch casing for 1800 feet, after that the gradual reduction taking place for the remainder of the 3,500, according to contract.

experienced in getting ready for this oil test well, the drillers being able to spud in on exactly the date of contract. It is noted by those interested in the well that they are very optimistic regarding the outcome. While it is anticipated that oil will be discovered, it is also noted that they would not be surprised that more valuable minerals than oil would be found.

The drillers have not yet set any date as to when they expect to complete the well, since the territory is entirely uncharted and the under-ground formations are unknown.—Littlefield lead.

Little delay of any kind has been reported.

The O'Donnell Index has purchased a new newspaper press, and have enlarged from a five to six column paper, giving that journal a much better appearance. Congratulations, neighbors.

No, all of us did not get all the men in office we wanted, but we have not noticed anyone tearing their shirts about the matter. In fact, the people of Terry county are not only Democrats, but are also democratic, and all seemed to be reasonably pleased.

We don't know whether 13 is lucky or unlucky, the argument on the question has always refused to stay settled. Anyway the Terry county Republicans cast 13 votes in the primary, and maintain they will do better next time. We'll see if 13 is lucky to them.

The first primary is passed and gone, and some of the races have been eliminated. This was one of the cleanest races ever pulled off in the county, without its usual mudslinging tactics, abuse, and campaign lies. We heard no talk of backbiting or vote trading, very little. It is indeed great to live in a county as tranquil as Terry is now. How different from two years ago.

The annual march of the tourist has started, in fact is now well under way and one only has to stand on a corner but a few minutes until some little car or some big car comes by with the packings tied on the side, and they are from everywhere. Most of them stop and spend something too. This goes to show how much a highway is worth to a town. For each that comes in by train, a hundred pass through by car.

THE WEEKLY PAPER

There are a few business men in Canyon who believe that if the News were a daily newspaper, they would be big advertisers. They are mistaken. The business house which will not cultivate its field in advertising according to its size and according to the medium offered would be no better advertiser were there two or three daily newspapers here. Moreover, the business man who is afraid of the small advertising rate of the News as a weekly would be scared stiff at the advertising rate if this paper became a daily publication. Further recognition of the fact that every word is read in a weekly publication, where as half of the papers printed by the daily are merely scanned for the front page, is the greatest inducement for advertisers in weekly. The weekly newspaper lives for several days until every member of the family has had a chance to read it, whereas the daily newspaper lives for but one day and the front page and funny page has the greatest appeal to a larger part of the family. All in all the weekly publication is the greatest and cheapest advertising medium, and every business house should use it regularly.—Canyon News.

B. Franciscus, of the Old Guard State Fencibles, of the Sesqui city, is presenting the invitation to Major Snyder. At Major Snyder's left stand the commanding officers of the Philadelphia organizations, while the members of the two famous commands are grouped about their leaders in their striking dress uniforms.

Bilious dull feeling

"MY old stand-by is Thedford's Black-Draught—I have used it off and on for about 20 years," says Mr. W. S. Reynolds, of R. F. D. 2, Arcadia, La.
 "I get bilious and have a bad taste in my mouth. My head feels dull. I don't just feel like getting around and doing my work. I know it isn't laziness, but biliousness."
 "So I take a few doses of Black-Draught and when it acts well, I get up feeling like new—'full of pep' and ready for any kind of work."
 "I can certainly recommend it." In case of biliousness and other disagreeable conditions due to an inactive liver, Black-Draught helps to drive the poisonous impurities out of the system and tends to leave the organs in a state of normal, healthy activity. Black-Draught is made entirely of pure medicinal roots and herbs and contains no dangerous or harmful mineral drugs. It can be safely taken by everyone. Sold everywhere. Price 25c.

THE SECOND OLDEST TOWN IN THE STATE

Henderson is the second oldest city in the state, Ysleta being the oldest, is the childhood home of Mrs. L. E. Slate. It is 23 years old, founded in 1843, and normally enjoys the tranquillity that goes with old age. It is a first rate town, with 3,200 residences, hundreds of them of the second and third generations of the native born. It is splendidly paved and has up-to-date municipal and electric plants. Noble old mansions, sitting on high terraced grassy lawns adorn its winding streets, many of them beautiful colonial relics of the 50's and 60's, with tall and venerable oak and pine trees with brilliant splashes of red from drooping crepe myrtles. It lies in the heart of the East Texas pine woods where nature is prolific and kind and where it is easy to make a living.

The Henderson man loves his town. He wouldn't live anywhere else. The well kept lawns and carefully preserved mansions proves it. The business houses, though now run by young men, are family heirlooms, dating back 30, 40 and 50 years. Of the newspapers, the Times and the News, the former is 60 years old and the latter 48. Henderson was named for J. Pinkney Henderson, and uniquely, during his life time. The commonly accepted story is that, on a day in 1843, when the founding of the town was celebrated by a crowd, Henderson came riding in on a mule. He asked if the new town had been named and was told that it had not. Whereupon he said: "Why in the hell don't you name it for me?" And the founders did it. The oldest citizen, Gen. Webb Flannigan came to Henderson in 1848 and found it a thriving town. He died last year past 90.—Sudan News.

WHO HIT BILLY PATTERSON?

Last Saturday, I met two friends down on the street. We began at once the Political Horizon to sweep. I said to them, "I voted for Dan, think he's best man on the bill." One said to the other, "You go at once be careful his vote to kill." The other said, "Don't you worry or fret; while his vote is still on the wing I've taken the necessary precaution—you bet—to do that very thing." I thought from the way these men talked I had committed a horrible crime. I promised them in a penitent way, to do better the very next time. I don't know how THEY voted, whether for Ma or for Lynch. But it looks pretty certain that Dan is a cinch. What I would like to know, if someone would define, is, whether I killed their vote, or they killed mine.—Contributed.

The Herald was not a little surprised to walk one of his California subscribers here in on our one day last week in the person of Mrs. Emma L. Goodman, of Volcano, that state. Mrs. Goodman owns a splendid section of land in the Meadow vicinity of which she is very proud. She has been almost a constant reader of the Herald since it has been under the present management more than 17 years, and we had the pleasure of her acquaintance first in 1909. She remarked the Herald looked quite different from the little dingy office in a shack of those pioneer days. In fact, she said, I can hardly realize the development that has taken place here in that time. She was especially carried away with our new courthouse and appreciated it as much as a resident. She left Friday for Dallas.

C. J. Hargis, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. R. B. Haynes, left Tuesday morning for St. Louis, Mo., in response to a message stating their son and brother, Dwight L. Hargis, was seriously injured in an automobile wreck and was at the point of death. A letter from a sister in St. Louis stated that the wreck was a head-on collision, occurring about 12:30 o'clock at night, pinning the injured man underneath the machine. Another brother in the car escaped with only slight injuries.—Seagraves Signal.

W. H. Gist and wife and F. B. Gist and family, came in last week from Pomona and Anaheim, Calif., on a visit with old friends and relatives in Terry county. Mrs. F. B.'s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Bell of the Needmore community, being general headquarters. The Gists were among the early settlers of more than 20 years ago in Terry county, and were considered to be the very best of our citizenship, and all of them were here Saturday shaking hands with old friends and meeting new ones. It was noticeable that they still have the slow speech of the Southland, despite some twelve years mixing with the northerners of California.

Method of "Starting at Bottom" Given Up

For many generations the only way one could learn to be a business man was through apprenticeship. We called it "starting at the bottom." Most of us were reared with a conception of a business career derived from the Alger books—"from train boy to president," writes Richard J. Walsh in Century Magazine.

That this idea still persists is apparent when we look at the stories of success in some of the popular magazines. Steadily, however, formal methods of education have gained ground, replacing the apprenticeship or "watch me, my boy," system.

Commercial education first appeared in our public schools about 1895. It grew naturally out of the multiplication of industrial occupations. At least one-fourth of the jobs today are utterly unlike any that our grandparents had to do, and many of them, such that the boss could not teach them, because he never mastered them himself. F. V. Thompson says:

"Commercial education was perhaps the first subject to be adopted by the high school as a concession to the public desire that the school should furnish preparation for vocations."

By 1915 we were spending more for the commercial course than for any other in our city high schools, and at least one-third of all pupils in the high schools of large cities were enrolling in commercial courses, while business training for adults was being offered in evening and continuation classes.

Mason County, Michigan, bankers are pushing hard to replace scrub stock with pure-bred cattle. The plan as outlined by the county agent is to purchase young pure-bred sires and place them wherever a farmer is found who is willing to co-operate in the proposition. The bankers will advance the purchase price and take a note for one year without interest. The idea is to make it as easy as possible for the farmers to procure thoroughbreds.

SEE TWO CENTENNALES ON BUT ONE TRIP

By A. N. Eshman, Winchester, Tenn.

That's what you can do when you come to Philadelphia in 1926. My hat is off to congratulate the man or woman who came here fifty years ago to revel in the wonder and beauty and glory of what America could then display, in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of its Independence, and then after a half century has passed, can come again for a like purpose and privilege on our nation's 150th birthday.

But this article would speak to you who were not so fortunate. You can see, in an important sense, two centennials now. That is, you can see the lovely Fairmont Park without an admission fee, of course, the two great buildings of fifty years ago, the Horticultural Building and Memorial Hall, both of which have been kept intact, the finest and best of our nation's celebratio n of its 100th birthday.

It is not only a matter of education and entertainment to see these splendid buildings and their rich treasures now; but beyond their material wealth, the spiritual element looms large, for who can tread such historic aisles without having deepened in his heart a feeling of reverence and a profounder patriotism for our land so full of sunshine and our flag so full of stars!

See the best of our Centennial of five decades past; and then see Sesqui and behold "what God has wrought" in man. Then, for good measure, see Independence Hall with its priceless mementos, and thank God for "The Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

GAINES COUNTY SHERIFF ILL IN LUBBOCK HOSPITAL

The many friends of Sheriff Frank L. Britton of Seminole, will regret to learn that he has been confined to his bed in a sanitarium at Lubbock during the past two weeks, but has improved sufficiently to leave the hospital and is expected to return home the last of the week. Mr. Britton is a candidate for re-election to the office he now holds, but owing to illness has not had the opportunity to canvas the county.—Seagraves Signal.

Did He Have Them?

Wife—Bridge! bridge! bridge! you'll die at the bridge table.
Husband—Well, bury me with simple honors.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Dean Smith, of Lubbock, were the guests of Mrs. J. T. Auburg, Tuesday.

Misses Vona Lee and Irene Ditto have returned home from a short visit with friends in Lubbock.

A card was received by our friend, A. W. Enderson one day recently. At that time he was enjoying a snow on Pike's Peak Cal. He also sent us a copy of the Pike's Peak News, which contained their names as visitors. It looks as if all our friends who are enjoying the cool resorts everywhere are just trying to punish the Herald by sending in snow scenes, fishing scenes, or anything about bar scenes in our sister Republic. We now fully realize what the old saying "it's hell to be poor," really means.

CHEVROLET GETS 25.71 MILES ON GALLON OF GASOLINE

With a gasoline average of 25.71 miles per gallon, H. L. Lawrence of Monterey Park, Los Angeles, driving his own Chevrolet coach, was an easy winner in the light car class at the annual Lake Arrowhead Conservation contest held recently in California.

Entries were restricted to amateur drivers and privately owned cars. Lawrence's gasoline average was the best turned in by any of the 13 drivers participating in the contest with promises to become one of the classics of the western motor car world.

Starting from the Automobile Club headquarters in Los Angeles, the run ended 90 miles away at Lake Arrowhead, a mile above sea-level, in the San Bernardino mountains.

Lawrence's car covered the distance on exactly 3.5 gallons of gasoline. No less remarkable was the car's demonstration of cooling ability. The day was the hottest of the present season and the climb over the steep Waterman Canyon switchback was made under a noon sun. Despite these facts, inspection at the finish revealed that the radiator had used only four pints of water, a record unsurpassed by any other water cooled car on the run.

SOUTHERN PEOPLE SPEAK PURE ENGLISH

Austin, July 26.—Students in Southern schools speak purer English than those in many Northern and Eastern universities, thinks Dr. George Sherburn, associate professor of English in the University of Chicago and a member of the faculty of the University of Texas summer school. He attributes this to the fact that Southern pupils are of purer stock than the students of these other schools. The cosmopolitan character of some of these larger institutions does not enable the students to handle the English language with the fluency of the Southerners.

"Distinguished professors in the field of English give the University of Texas the best English department in the South," declared Dr. Sherburn. "There is not another school in the South to compare with Texas. I could name many professors on the faculty here who have a recognized standing in their field among the larger schools of the East."

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Oehler and Miss Lela Duke spent last week end at Ruidoso Springs, N. M. Mr. and Mrs. Oehler are now also visiting at Breckenridge.

GET RID OF THE RATTLESNAKES

Let a wolf make its appearance in the sheep and goat country and destroy an animal or two, and the ranchmen will run it down and kill it. In some counties a liberal bounty is offered for the scalps of wolves and coyotes, but no special effort is made to rid the State of the deadly rattler, copperhead or moccasin. In 1925 these poisonous snakes were the cause of the death of twenty-five persons. Reports of the deaths of several children have appeared in the newspapers thus far this summer, and a number of other persons have been bitten but recovered, due to prompt measures. Why does Texas permit these deadly reptiles to live and multiply? Why not make war upon them? By concentrated effort their number could be materially reduced in one season.

It is the habit of rattlesnakes to seek shelter in caves and under rocks during the winter months. Oftentimes hundreds of these snakes have been found in a single cave. Their destruction would prevent the distribution of thousands of snakes during the following summer.

In every county where these poisonous reptiles are found, their extermination should be considered of the utmost importance. Organized drives should be made, their hibernating places found and the snakes destroyed. This should be kept up from season to season until this menace to life is reduced to a minimum.

Within Bounds

While making a visit to New York, a man was knocked down in the street by a motor car. A crowd instantly surrounded him with condolence and questions.

"Are you hurt, my friend?" kindly asked a man who was first among the rescuers as he helped the stranger to his feet and brushed the mud and dust from his clothes.

"Well," came the cautious reply of one evidently given to brevity of speech, "it ain't doing me any good."

George Bragg and family returned this week from El Paso, and report having a fine time. They intended to go on to Arizona and California, but he was afraid to carry his mother over the divide.

Earl Jones Jr. made his appearance in Brownfield Sunday morning, following the defeat of Ma.

Term "Jitney" Traced to Louisiana Negroes

The word "jitney," which has been used intermittently and in various sections of the United States for many years, and which suddenly sprang into general use at the time the 5-cent buses and flivvers were striving to settle the local traffic problems of many cities, had a curious origin.

A minstrel troupe was playing in Baton Rouge, La., in a theater where the highest gallery was reserved for negroes. No gallery tickets were sold, a member of the troupe being placed at the door to take cash. The door was in a poorly lighted space; and later the collector discovered two scores of plain metal disks the size of a 5-cent piece, that had been passed as nickels.

One of the minstrels showed the disks to a negro, who explained: "Dem's Jitneys."

They were jettons—the metal disks used as markers in a gambling house. A negro attendant had stolen the jettons and was passing them as money. The minstrel troupe seized upon the word, and thereafter a 5-cent piece was a jitney, and the word spread until it came into common use.—Liberty.

Singer Outspoken as to Masculine Faults

Miss Spinnely, popular Parisian music-hall star, has not a high opinion of masculinity. "Men," she declares, "do everything wrong. If they make money they lose it. They take the wrong wives, then divorce them and take others, also the wrong ones. Send a man to shop and he will buy absurd things. Ask him for some favor and he will blunder. Take the trouble to listen to his declarations and you will hear nothing but trivialities and stupidities. At home man is a devastating plague. He smokes, spits, coughs and sneezes. Noise enrages him, heat suffocates him, cold irritates him. In less than an hour he will find ten puerile things to complain about. But he will pour coffee on the tablecloth, burn the carpet with his cigar and slam doors. If an intelligent woman knows one man she knows them all. Men lie, but not well. To read their faces is easy for a woman. To be constantly with one man would be a sort of heroinism if we did not know that changing from one to another means only changing from one evil to another. So it is better to stick to one."

Marvelous Archery

There is on the caravan route to India, a trade that has gone on so long that the origin of the caravaners is unknown. They, too, though dark-eyed, are lighter than Chinese. A caravan consists of many carts and sometimes several hundred men, women and children. They carry spears and bows and also the latest firearms; these latter they use if attacked when they go into laager, from which nothing but artillery would shift them. To economize ammunition they use the primitive weapons for killing game. A friend of mine tried one of their bows and, although he could stretch it, could, much to their amusement, only send the arrow fifty yards or so. Two of the caravaners, having put up a mark, jumped on their ponies and, as they passed it at eighty yards going at a hard gallop, they each struck the center, the arrows sticking side by side deep in the wood. My friend said:

"I always thought the stories of Robin Hood and the old English archers all bunk, but since I saw that I can swallow them like a lamb."—J. S. Taylor, in Adventure Magazine.

Woman Invented "Cocktail"?

The origin of the term "cocktail" is not known. The drink is supposed to have been invented by Elizabeth Flanagan, who was the widow of an Irish soldier, who fell in the service of his country. She appears, after his death, to have been a sutler and in that capacity to have followed a troop of Virginia horsemen under the command of Colonel Burr. She took up quarters in the winter of 1779 in a place called "Four Corners." Here she set up a hotel and it was in that hotel that the drink that is known as the cocktail was invented.

Disillusioned Barber

Sir Oliver Lodge, illustrating the light esteem in which scientists are held in some quarters, tells a story of an experience he had while visiting in this country. He arrived at a small town, where he was to address the members of a well-known scientific association. While the hotel barber was cutting his hair, he made several futile attempts to open a conversation with the great scientist. Finally he said, "What exactly is this association that's meeting here today?" The professor explained that it was a society of learned scientific men. "Oh," said the barber, in tones of evident disgust, "I thought it was a football team."

Is It a Fish or Not?

The olm or proteus is a curious, snake-like fish which is totally blind and its eyes would be of little value to it in the subterranean waters which it inhabits. The olm is both a lung and a gill breather, lying at the bottom of a stream at times and extracting oxygen through its gills and again rising to the surface and breathing through its lungs. If the olm lives in warm waters it brings forth its young alive, while transplanted to colder waters the same olm will lay eggs and hatch its young from them.

PIONEER OF LYNN COUNTY IS DEAD

TAHOCA, July 25.—J. R. Chambers, Lynn county pioneer, died here yesterday after a lingering illness of two years. Mr. Chambers was 80 years old. He lived in Lynn county for the past 23 years. He is the father-in-law of J. W. Elliott, former county judge of this county.

Miss Christine Owens, of Ennis, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. R. McDuffie. Local society has honored Miss Owens with several functions since she arrived.

Robert Welch and family, of Meadow, accompanied by his sister, Miss Dona of this city, left Monday for an extended visit in South Texas.

J. C. Whisenant and family, of Dattil, N. M., are here visiting their daughters, Mesdames Geo. Bragg and H. R. Winston.

BOBBED HAIR THEOLOGY

Bishop Chandler, in reply to Dr. Fosdick on "modernism" in Sunday's Atlanta Journal, makes the following pertinent observations:

"Jesus Christ was not a reformer. Our Lord never attempted to reconstruct society through civil law. Slavery, prevailed everywhere in His day, but he inspired and led no abolition or emancipation movement. Jesus never attempted what is now known as 'social salvation.' With him the renovation of society would inevitably follow the regeneration of individuals. Dr. Fosdick will not succeed in his attempt to over throw historic Christianity. Whether called 'modernism' or 'rationalism,' liberalism is a passing fad, a sort of bobbed-hair theology and bigger philosophy."—Liberty.

Mr. J. R. Massengill, of Poolar, are visiting her son and family.

ONE THRESHER FOR 100 FARMS IN STATE

A harvest of approximately 116,000,000 bushels of small grain will be Texas' contribution to the nation's store of agricultural products this year, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. An average of one thresher for every 180 farms in the state will be used in making this vast amount of small grain available for shipment and use.

"The hum of the thresher at work in our wheat fields should serve to remind each and every one of us of the enormous expense involved in gathering in the 182 pounds of bread that each of us consumes each year," says Samuel R. Guard, director of the Foundation. "We cannot eat our bread without counting the cost. This is the time that the thresherman has to be paid."

Iowa leads all states in the number of threshing outfits with 13,464, while Rhode Island stands at the bottom of the ladder with but 8, according to the Foundation. In North Dakota every seventh farmer has a machine, while in Florida there is a single outfit for every 1,909 farmers. Minnesota tops the list of states in the total grain threshed, with Iowa a close second. Where North Dakota farmers thresh on an average 3,224 bushels per farmer, Florida farmers thresh only 3 bushels per farmer.

The 140,000 threshing outfits in the United States represent an investment of half a billion dollars. The average carrying charge on these outfits is $560 a year. Each of these outfits last year threshed $13,833 worth of small grain or a total for all the outfits of nearly two billion dollars worth of grain. The payroll for the men running these outfits, averaging three to a machine, is nearly fifty million dollars. The average outfit runs approximately three weeks in the year.

Local Santa Fe agent R. L. Harris and wife have returned from their vacation, which they spent in Ft. Worth visiting his parents. They report several fishing excursions while there, and displayed several chigger and mosquito signs to prove it, though they report a fine time.

RADIO AN EXCEPTION TO THE GENERAL RULE

Radio is in its infancy; but it is the lustiest youngster of record. It has become a national institution for amusement, for education and for material application. Broadcasting from police stations and sheriffs' offices leads to apprehension of crooks who would otherwise make a clean getaway. Broadcasting weather conditions is of inestimable value to farmers. Radio has reduced enormously the hazard of ocean navigation, and has saved countless lives.

"Most remarkable of all," says the Los Angeles Times, "no serious abuse of the radio has yet developed. Science is unmoral. Its inventions are generally applicable alike to good and evil. Weapons protect life by destroying life. Most health-giving remedies can also be used as poisons. Chemistry alike is a blessing and a bane. To the present time, radio is a happy exception to the rule."

Mottos For Drivers

The chief of police of San Antonio, Texas, has a good motto for automobile drivers.

It is: "Believe that everybody in the street is a fool except yourself, and be careful accordingly."

Another motto of equal worth is: "Watch the driver in the car behind the car ahead of you."

BYPU NOTES

The Senior, Junior and Intermediate classes cordially invite all the young people of the town to meet with them in their services at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 7:30. The Baptist meeting will begin on this date, and we would like to have the cooperation of all other young people in getting behind the meeting.

Joy Registered When

Lost Goose Returned

The flock bore eastward high over the Columbia—save for a single bird that must have passed above the gunner ere he fired. This goose dove to the west above and along the river and at every wing stroke the distance between bird and flock widened.

They faded from sight. The call of the lost goose, the voice of the flock merged gradually into silence, shading away until one heard only the ceaseless whisper of the current.

Presently, far to the west, the call came faintly forth again and grew in volume. The lost goose was described as a frantic hurrying speck, tacking hither and thither. His cry was rapidly repeated, which is not the habit of Canadas, and beyond all misunderstanding it was not only plaintive but perturbed.

At a quarter mile in the air he dove past, seeking far to eastward, only to retrace his course, constantly calling, and to retrace it time and again.

He heard them a full minute before we did, for on the instant his cry was joyous and confident and his flight to the east took a determined and resolute direction.

And then, distant as a dream, faint and far, we caught the bugles of the returning flock. Were they, too, searching? But surely there was elation in their quickened clamor when the lost one literally hurtled himself among them, and took his rightful place. They rose to the flight lane. The V took shape, and southward they drifted, southward. Wild geese!

Has a Boiling Lake

The Grande Soufriere, of which the chief feature is the remarkable Boiling lake, in the West Indian island of Dominica, is but little known even to the islanders who are constantly reminded of its presence, says Nature Magazine. Clouds of steam indicate where it lies in the mountains, and to Roseau, the island's port, the detonations from its steam vents proclaim its close proximity. It is only six miles from the town as the crow flies, but until an air route is established, man must foot it over a difficult and even dangerous mountain trail.

Old Shop-Windows Gone

Paris shopkeepers still talk of "putting up the shutters" at closing time, but actually they pull them down. The quaint, many-paned shop windows familiar in the old illustrations to the "Songs" of Beranger and the Cruik shank and Philz drawings for Dickens' works, have disappeared to make way for great, solid iron "curtains," which are hauled down with a lever. The old windows, charming, cob-webbed and gaudy, remain in a few out-of-the-way parts of Paris.

Old Traditions Kept

Many of the old traditional English expenditures are still to be seen on the London city accounts for the year. The lord mayor draws his salary "in lieu of all ancient fees and emoluments." He has at the same time a "furniture allowance for the Mansion house," and a "robe allowance."

The official city swordbearer, the city trumpeter, the ancient ale conners and the vergers of St. Paul's cathedral are still on the list of salaried officials.

Another item of expense is labeled "open spaces," which being translated means the cost of parks and commons.

Another entry says "For cloth delivered, according to ancient custom to ministers of state and others," while there are expensive entries under the entertainment of foreign royalty "for the cost of writing and illuminating (the presentation) scrolls."

Parent of Languages

Sanskrit is the ancient classical tongue of the Hindus, and the oldest preserved form of Aryan, or Indo-European, language in existence. It ceased to be spoken about the Fourth century B. C., and is preserved only in the Hindu sacred writings. Sanskrit is the parent of all the modern Aryan languages of India, and the language most closely related to the original tongue of the ancient Aryans, from which have descended the Celtic, Graeco-Latin, Teutonic, Slavonic and Persian languages. Sanskrit literature, which begins with the Vedas, extends back as far as 2000 or 1500 B. C. Sanskrit is still cultivated as a classical language by the Hindus, and remains the sacred language of the Brahmans.—Kansas City Star.

Filial Devotion That

Dared Tyrant's Rage

Margaret More was the daughter of Sir Thomas More, lord chancellor of Henry VIII, the bigamous monarch. At the time of the Reformation and the king's divorce and subsequent marriage with Anna Boleyn, Henry demanded that More, an ardent Catholic, should give his assent to the marriage, which Sir Thomas refused on principle and law. He was committed to the Tower and beheaded and his head stuck upon a pike and exhibited on London bridge. Margaret, his beloved daughter, undaunted by fear or danger, had a trusty servant row her at nightfall to the bridge. She kept the boat steady in the current while the servant climbed to the pier, loosened the precious head of her father and dropped it into the lap of his devoted daughter. She buried the head in the garden of the house in Chelsea, and with no realization of the heroism of her act, she became the mainstay of the afflicted family.—Advertiser Magazine.

Curse Trademark Fakers

In the latter part of October each year the English city of Sheffield celebrates its Cutlers' feast, a civic function that has been held annually since 1648, when the first of the city's master cutlers was elected. The banquet is attended by captains of industry from all over the empire, and by at least one minister of the crown. Two toasts that are always drunk with enthusiasm are: "Eternal destruction to all false marks on Sheffield goods" and "success to the Hallamshire Whittells." This quaint wording is explained by the fact that the park of Yorkshire where Sheffield is situated was once known as Hallamshire, while "whittell" is an old name for a knife. There is no public office more highly esteemed than this. As head of the ancient Cutlers' guild the master takes precedence next to the lord mayor of Sheffield.

African Chief Gave

Name to Zulu Tribe

The name "Zulu," which means "sky," was, not further back than a hundred years, confined to a small and insignificant tribe, occupying that part of the White Umfolosi valley which falls between the Mahlabatina magistracy on the north and that of Melmoth on the south, according to Adventure Magazine. Zulu, son of a certain Malandela, flourished in Zululand probably during the sixteenth century.

This son is said to have quarreled with his elder brother Qwabe, who took exception to the former being presented by his mother with a certain white ox, with the result that Zulu left with his followers to occupy the White Umfolosi valley, while Qwabe went to live nearer the coast on the south side of the Umhlatuze river and in what is known as Eshowe district.

It was with the help of the chief of the Mfetswa tribe that Tshaka, who was not the proper heir, became chief of the Zulu tribe. No sooner did he become chief than he began to build up an extraordinary military organization, and to attempt what had never been attempted before, namely, to fuse the various tribes into a nation.

Lesson to Humanity

Found in Bee Hives

It is more than sweets and fruits—and many a lovely flower that would fall us, lacking bees. We would lack books—a few books. In fact, more books have been written about bees than about any other domestic animal. We should also lack something of sympathy and history. Beekeeping is the oldest craft in the world. As a beekeeper I am continuing an ancient line; joining the oldest of human guilds; speaking a language known of all lands; supporting and practicing an art beloved of all peoples; subscribing to a simple faith, wider than any creed or color or the folds of any flag. The bees are a good first step in an all-world brotherhood, and could well be included in any world-peace plans. The symbol of that plan might be the hive for its universality, its unbroken continuity as a peaceful occupation, no less than for its social significance—its practice of sacrifice for the common good.—Dallas Lore Sharp, in "The Spirit of the Hive."

Prodigious Memory

One of the sources of the late Ren. Viviani's eloquence was his profound knowledge of French literature. He knew by heart thousands of verses and could recite entire acts of the classic tragedies without an error.

He demonstrated this at the time of his baccalaureate, when he agreeably surprised the examiner by his accurate analysis of the Oid.

"Can you recite a few verses of it?" the examiner asked.

"Certainly," said Viviani, and he recited the whole of the first act before he was halted. On another occasion he recited the whole of Horatius and Phedre from beginning to end.—Vulgarie, Sofia.

An Expert

"Julia, do you know what love is?" The young man put the question in an intense voice.

"Yes," replied the girl, firmly. "But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love as ardent as the sun as all-pervading as the air, as wonderful as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?"

In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.

"Have I?" she murmured. "If you will come up into our bedroom, I can show you a trunk full of letters, and three albums full of photographs, and in my jewel-case are seven engagement rings!"

Transmitting Light Rays

The bureau of standards says that the transmission factor of smooth, clear glass is about 92 per cent in perpendicular incident light, the loss being that reflected at the two surfaces. The amount of light transmitted varies with the angle of incidence and the refractive index of the glass. The reflector will absorb from 10 to 40 per cent of the light incident upon it, depending upon its surface.

Victor in Life's Race

Life is a test of fitness. In running his race a man should be able to pass the winning post with head up, heart light, eye clear, and conscience at peace. If he can do so he is not "one who also ran," but the captain of his own destiny.—Grit.

MERITED TRIBUTE—

GUESS TO WHOM?

By S. A. Fishburn, Dallas.

Of all the men in all the world Deserving anything

That goes to make for happiness,

Of him I'd rather sing

Who does the most, but gets the least

For boasting of his town,

For pushing others on and up

While they oft push him down!

Who slaves and slaves both night and day

For everybody's good

While everybody uses him—

By no means as they should;

But ride him as an old free horse

Till he gets tired and sore

And his good legs all spavined up,

Refuse to serve him more.

So, reader, you no doubt divine,

By what you now have heard

Who this man is and what he does—

This meek and lowly "bird."

If you don't know and cannot guess—

But if you try you can—

That's right, you recognize the cuss—

The country paper man.

This Week's Favorite Story

A newspaper publisher in another state offered a prize for the best answer to the conundrum:

"Why is a newspaper like a woman?"

The prize was won by a woman who sent this answer:

"Because every man should have one of his own and not run after his neighbor's."

BEING A CANDIDATE'S WIFE By Jaunita Winston.

Among the many things I have said I would not do, is, I would not marry a bald headed man that chewed tobacco and but not least, be a candidate's wife.

Now that I was engaged at the time that I made these decided resolutions and my beloved intended was neither of these. We had decided to get married late in October. But we had no sooner made these plans till my husband amended that decision by saying "Let's be married sooner." Here he began painting alluring pictures of honeymooning while the flowers were blooming, going away to some beautiful Mountain Inn and before I knew I was convinced that this was the proper thing to do. I could not know as I believed I knew later, that he had other plans than merely an early marriage. But I fell for it and we were married.

It was over in a few days and we had no more than settled in our new home in the west when my husband boldly asked me this question, "How about running for office?" I don't know why, but I guess it was for the simple reason that I was an stenographer and knew office life from A to Z that I resented the idea. So I at once let him know that I didn't approve of the plan. Once more he attempted to convince me that I was wrong. I will have to admit that he is a pretty strong convincer. He began by saying, "The office will serve as a stepping stone, dear, to greater things in life." One had to begin at the bottom of the ladder, etc." Before I knew, way down in my heart there was a little bit of a thrill to the idea of being a candidate's wife.

It was early in the summer when we, (I say we, for it was I as well as he) started our campaigning. He gave me all the instructions and I can't for my life, say why I took them and tried to abide by them, unless it was for the simple reason that I was launching out in that wonderful career of being a candidate's wife.

The first day we started out on Sunday. I felt that we would have had better luck, had it been Monday or well any other day except Sunday. We were to visit and electioneer with a prominent old settler family in a certain community. They were prominent for the simple reason that they paid more taxes than anyone else and was a member of the School Board of Trustees. Yes and one of the Commissioners of that precinct. We started early and upon arriving at the old ranch house we were greeted by vicious warning barks of two bull dogs. My husband had just been bragging on the way out about his going over the top and meeting the Huns face to face and about diving off a two hundred foot embankment of the Rio Grande river, to bring out a huge cat fish, but as for meeting bull dogs, he resigned. So it was left for me to take the lead here. So trying to appear brave, I walked through their midst, my husband bringing up the rear.

The man of the house met us with a bit of old fashioned homeliness and invited us in. We found chairs in the sitting room. Then the Boss of the house came in. I didn't notice anything peculiar about this old lady except the little metal snuff box that she clasped firmly between boney fingers. And as for the house, it was shabby, no conveniences, no furniture. Still the old couple seemed to be more or less happy. So I guess the snuff and tobacco made up for a lot. Then the old gentleman reached far underneath the side of the bed and drew out a large bucket. This was their comfort.

Soon the conversation was in full sway. My husband and the old gentleman talked of things I didn't care one thing about. But I was learning that a candidate is always posted on any subject. They can advise you on anything and be right. They make it their business. Then they got confidential. I heard my husband ask in low tones, "Suppose you mean to stay with me?" Now I didn't quite get the answer, I guess it was alright, for I saw a grin spread across my husband's face that reached from ear to ear. But I did see the old gentleman as he drew a large square of tobacco from his hip pocket and with as much ease I would have bid four in spades, had I held three aces and four honors, offered my husband a chew of tobacco.

My husband told me before we were married about how much tobacco the boys were forced to chew in the army, but it was over now and he had quit for good. Time changes, but I hardly think that if once a man that cultivates the taste for such a thing as tobacco, I don't see how they could possibly quit it. And what do you think my husband did about it? Well he took it with as much ease as it had been presented to him.

For the moment I wanted to pull all of his hair out, make him spit it out, right there before the old people. That, I knew would forever cook him. I wanted to call him ridiculous names, but I couldn't think of any at the time. How I detest the nasty stuff, cannot be put in words. And to think he was taking advantage of me just because he was in company. I was forced to calmly look on and appear pleased, while within me was raging madness. When the evening was well spent and the old couple had assured us time and again that they would lend us their support, I can't imagine why I did it, but I went so far as to kiss the old lady's wrinkle brow and shook the old man's hand heartily, unless it was for no other reason. I was a candidate's wife.

Thus our campaign began. I was dealing from the point of view that I could think of the things I wouldn't do, but the things I could do. And they were few. My husband said, "We're not living in the land of the free, any longer, dear." Slowly the truth was dawning upon me. Never had there been so many rages hit the town, such as, bobbed hair, short dresses, bridge, golf and tennis. I was forced to lay off.

Fourth of July came, picnics and speeches. This was picnicing for the candidates. And they expected their wives to play as big a part. I used to think that picnics were for the children and the crippled blind and lame to enjoy, but I have found out they are for the candidates. Our picnic was on. By accident we rode down in our new car. My husband insisted that we walk through the hot sun, but I put my foot down firmly that we would ride, so we rode. He threw it up to me about the farmers thinking we were high-toning them to ride down in a fine new car. Well most of the farmers had most as good cars as we. But my husband had his ideas, that we must park away from the crowd so we could walk arm in arm into the midst. By the time we were well into the jam, my head had begun to ache terribly. My new hat had been made for a bob, as all hats are now and I have an abundant lot of hair, doubling the misery. Somewhere close the town band was playing like sixty. Whistles were blowing, horns tooting, adding to the misery that was in my head. While my husband was determined to picnic to his fill, I was dreading the introduction; but he was determined that I should know every one he knew.

"Met my wife, Bill." This was the first one, but it was not the last by any means. No sooner had I met one till I was turned to another. If my husband didn't offer an introduction they would take it on themselves, "Hello there Old boy, and is this the wife?" My husband admitted that it was. Then the grin would spread from ear to ear once more as he showed me off. Finally I had stood about all I could and I shouted in his ear, I must go home, I told you this hat was made for a bob. Why can't I have bobbed hair like the rest and be comfortable?" I know the misery crept into the lines of my face. But somehow I wanted to be dainty and stylish like the rest of the young women.

"Now, cheer up dear, this is our big day," my husband attempted to soothe as we were shoved into the crowd. The next most exciting thing to happen was the speeches. And of course my husband was called out first. He was eager, as it seemed. From the way he took the stand you might have imagined him to be Socrates or Julius Caesar. The first part of his speech was made up of the things he would do for the people if elected, then I heard something about, "my wife has bobbed hair because, etc. Some joke about bobbed hair. The crowd roared and yelled. He drifted from one joke to another, all centered on, "my wife," it was disgusting. I blushed and reblushed. Soon it became serious. I felt that he was using me to get votes. It wasn't the least bit funny to me. Tears were in my eyes, but I brushed them quickly away as a lady came close to me.

"Do tell, and is this little woman his wife?" She clasped my hand and gave it a hearty shake. I tried to appear jolly.

"Yes," I stammered for an answer. "I do want to congratulate you, for you do have the dearest husband. He does make the most glorious speeches." This cheered things a little for me. If she thought he could tell good yarns I ought to think them alright. I smiled a thank you. She went further to say:

"Don't we have the loveliest picnics, so much fun and good old time get together?"

I wished that I might tell her that I hated the thoughts of a nasty, dirty picnic, dust, filth, everybody drinking from the same lemonade glass. But I smiled as sweetly as I could and answered, "They are unusual." This was forced. Why couldn't I say what I wanted to. I was a free woman. Then I came to my senses. No, I'm not free, I am a candidate's wife. When my husband joined me after the speeches, it was none too soon. I wanted to go home, snatch off my little hat, loosen my hair and rest, rest, rest. But we were detained, by some friend of my husband's.

MEADOW BRIEFS By Aesculapius.

"Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown." So proclaimed Jonah, some 28 centuries ago, but Nineveh continues to exist unto this day.

With equal vehemence and bluster, Jim Ferguson has walked up and down the state prophesying the complete annihilation of Moody and his mixed horde of Klansmen, Butte Republicans, corporation husslers and church people whom Jim had been foolish enough to insult.

The quiet good humored crowd marched to the polls Saturday and proceeded to bury Jim and Ma in a way that should make the memory linger the balance of this century. The blow was staggering, unexpected and so thorough that there will be no second battle of ballots to enforce the decision.

Will they resign? No, not by a jug full. Jim isn't going to surrender his sword to no captain or colonel; he will wait until the legislature meets in January. There are too many repentant criminals in the penitentiary that should be looked after. Their families need them at home and the Ferguson's will do their best to see that their wishes are fully met.

I do not like Dan Moody and many of his backers not a little bit, but perhaps the drubbing given Jim Ferguson and Ma through him will warn him to go slow in his favors to corporations. Therefore with much unprecedented endorsement it is hoped that he will make a good governor.

The new deck of the county and district officers chosen, are or should be satisfactory to all our people. Some of them I did not vote for, but they are in every way acceptable to me as the choice of the majority, and in November I will take pleasure in voting the ticket straight. So should all who took part in the primary.

The writer has been circulating a petition the past few days asking the Commissioners to appoint or employ a county demonstration agent. We have secured a large list of names and will get many more. Four persons so far have refused to add their names to the list.

It is the understanding that others are being circulated at Brownfield and perhaps other places in the county. The matter should be pushed and the petitions turned over as soon as practicable. I have found that all those who have been accustomed to an agent before coming here are anxious to have one.

Farmers pay a large proportion of taxes on the real valuation of property than obtains in industrial or other forms of property. Why should not they have equal chances in all those agencies that will better their condition or in learning to do their work in a more scientific and practical way.

The enclosed clipping from the Desdemona Gusher will be read by my here and at Brownfield with regret: "Lon A Bedford died Saturday afternoon at his home in Corpus Christi, the cause of his death being blood poison. For many years he was a merchant at Eastland but has been a cotton buyer for the past few years. He was a brother of C. E. (Bit) Bedford of Cisco, and a half brother to W. C. Bedford. Many friends in this county will regret to hear of his death."—Desdemona Gusher. Mr Bedford was a cotton buyer at Meadow for the past two seasons and was well liked by all. His death is a great shock to his many friends here.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Forbis a little girl. She arrived on the same day that Ferguson was knocked out in the first round. Something to be proud of.

The farms near Meadow have had a few showers the past twenty-four hours.
