SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1985

12 PAGES, PLUS SUPPLEMENT

By Bill Ellis

YOU'VE PROBABLY heard the expression: "It's as American as baseball, hot dogs and apple pie." This week we did a little research on the hot dog.

According to the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council, hot dogs are served in 95 per cent of American homes, with an average of 50 million being devoured in the United States every day, on the

This comes out to 80 hot dogs per person per year, if you want to figure out if you are eating your share of hot dogs, or if someone else is eating most or all of your share. That's more than one hot dog per person per week, if you're bad at math.

Surveys show that adults eat more hot dogs than children, and that women eat them more often than men do. They also are popular with everyone. President Franklin D. Roosevelt once served them to England's King George VI, and Queen Elizabeth served them at a royal banquet for the American Bar Association.

amusement parks, political rallies and picnics. They are especially those in charge of concessions say 60 per cent of the fans in olds. attendance end up eating hot dogs.

The basic hot dog is made of meat (all beef or combinations of beef, pork, chicken, turkey or veal), that is cured, seasoned, finely ground, stuffed into casings and seasonings used in guarded secrets by the various companies.

Hot dogs range in size from bite-National Hot Dog and Sausage day of school. Council, the longest hot dog on record was 165 feet long and was routes on September 3. made for the First Baptist Church of New Philadelphia, Ohio.

What makes the hot dog so popular? They are inexpensive, convenient and come ready to eat. A wiener in a bun provides as much protein as a container of yogurt or two slices of bacon. They are low enough in calories to be watchers program.

They can be boiled, broiled, barbecued, fondued, stuffed, simmered, stir-fried, battered, kabobed, or cooked in a casserole. Hot dog fans can either enjoy them plain or make them fancy.

The way to eat your hot dog appears to be a matter of geographical location. In New York, where vendors sell 100,000 of the dogs on a given weekend on Coney Island, they come smothered in a special chili sauce. Sidewalk vendors often top theirs with stewed onions, although the "official" New York hot dog is topped with cheddar cheese and bacon.

In the Kansas City area, the preference seems to be to serve the hot dog with sauerkraut and melted Swiss cheese on a sesameseed roll.

In Chicago, where over two million hot dogs are sold annually at the O'Hare International Airport alone, the style is to make them with mustard, dark green relish, tomato slices and a dash of celery salt.

Californians prefer to dip their hot dogs in a corn meal batter and deep fry them, while Bostonians like theirs mixed with either onions or sauerkraut and mustard.

The Hot Dog Council doesn't give an "official," hot dog for the state of Texas, and probably if you asked six people you might get six different answers as to their favorite method. (Note to grocers: better stock up on your hot dog buns, after my readers finish this piece.)

Chieftains To Face River Road Friday

Friona downed River Road on meetings. their home turf last September, to knot up the all-time series between the two schools in football 4-4. Coach Moss owns a personal 3-2 record, the Chiefs having topped Roadraces the Wildcats in 1982, 1983 and 1984. Moss' only losses to the 'Cats came in 1982, when they beat Friona once in regular season and again in the playoffs.

The Wildcats are led by 6-4 quarterback Jeremy Johnson, who may be one of the leading signalcallers in the Panhandle. Johnson passed for 300 yards last year against Dimmitt, and is a threat on the run-pass option.

"Anytime you return as many starters (nine offensive, eight defensive) as River Road has, you're going to be tough. We expect a good game," Moss says.

The Chieftain gridmaster thinks the 1985 Chieftains may be at least as good as his 1983 Friona team, which came within a dropped flag of making the playoffs. That team's heartbreaking losses to Muleshoe (13-6) and playoff veteran Littlefield (10-7) put a damper on a great season.

The Chieftains have a three-way battle for starting quarterback, between senior Jeff Brown and juniors Shy Burney and Patches Fleming. Clouding the issue somewhat was a leg injury to Fleming Thursday of last week, which caused him to miss the team's first scrimmage at Springlake-Earth.

Moss says the good depth enjoyed by the team should be a plus. "There isn't much difference between the players at many positions, so we'll be able to do a lot of swapping, and let the players rest," Moss says.

Last year, the Chieftains were 5-4-1, competing in one of the toughest class 3A districts in the

Mr. President:

The Farm Bill, which includes the needed Conservation Reserve Program, must be passed without funding reductions for the Conservation Reserve. Many of the existing farm programs do little to reduce production, and therefore will not solve the problem. If funding for the existing programs were decreased, these funds would be available for the Conservation Reserve and it could be implemented without increasing the Agriculture budget. The Conservation Reserve is the logical solution to the problem of overproduction.

THE DEATH OF A DOG

at the Amarillo Animal Shelter

"When the dog was placed in the chamber, he turned around and faced me. He was very confused and terrified, pawing at the door to get out. When the machine was turned on, sucking the air from the chamber, the dog began to turn in circles. His head jerked and his jaws snapped open and shut, and right there his eardrums burst. Now he was deaf. Still turning frantically in circles, the dog began to salivate profusely. At first, he tried to keep the saliva in, then it just became too much and his tongue hung out and the saliva ran down his neck and chest into the floor. He saw my face in the chamber window and frantically clawed at it. I believe he was begging for help, begging to be let out. Suddenly the dog went down on his side, his legs still kicking violently. He dragged himself in circles, lying on his side, kicking his legs, with his neck arched toward me. I could look right into his face. He was watching me and his eyes popped from their sockets until the eyeballs were almost entirely extruded. Still frantically kicking and clawing, he bit his tongue in half and his gnashing teeth ground the tongue to a pulp. He still kept struggling and trying to lurch to his feet. The movement of his mouth and throat showed that he was gasping and screaming. After about ten minutes in the chamber, the dog's mercifully followed several minutes later." THIS MACHINE IS BANNED IN DALLAS, BOSTON, WASHINGTON, D.C., MILWAUKEE, ALBUQUERQUE AND MANY OTHER CITIES AND STATES. WHY IS IT STILL BEING USED IN AMARILLO?

She's a native of Mangum, Oklahoma and a graduate of Southwestern State University, Weatherford, Oklahoma. She also did her student teaching at Mangum. As far as I know, Miss Hatton is the second Mangum High School graduate we've had teaching here.

Mrs. J.T. Gee, who taught here a number of years before retiring, is also a Mangum High graduate.

There's bound to be some confusion in our coaching circle when anyone starts talking about Vicki, Vickie and Vicky. Perhaps Vicki Hatton will be "Coach Hatton." But, then, what is going to be done about Vicky Moss, whose husband is the football coach, and Vickie Field, whose husband is the Junior High coach?
