NEW WATERWORKS SYSTEM PLANNED

H. T. Roberts of St. Paul, Minn. Offers To Take Fifty-Five Per Cent Stock

EXPENDITURE OF $750,000 INVOLVED

Idea is to Form Local Company and Pipe Water From Spring Creek, Using Two-Foot Pipe—Capacity 7,000,000 Gallons a Day

If present plans do not fall a stock company is to be organized in San Angelo within the next thirty days for the purpose of providing this city with a water system that will not be out-clasped by anything in the state. A meeting of those behind the movement was held Thursday and it was decided to make overtures to the owners of some property on Spring creek with the view of making a purchase immediately. In fact, the deal largely hinges on whether or not the property can be secured at a reasonable sum.

H. T. Roberts of St. Paul, Minn., is the main backer of the proposition. Mr. Roberts is the representative of a company that is engaged exclusively in this kind of work, and one that has water systems all over the world. In some instances, Mr. Roberts states, the company has piped water for 300 miles.

Mr. Roberts spent about a week in San Angelo and left only a few days ago. He went over the situation thoroughly, and declares that there is absolutely no reason why San Angelo should not have the best water system of any city in the state. He made a careful examination of the Spring creek water and pronounced it of the very finest sort. Some people have claimed that it contains too much mineral to be good for drinking purposes, but Mr. Roberts says such is not the case.

While here Mr. Roberts submitted the following proposition: If the citizens of San Angelo will form a stock company, the more in it the better; he will put up 55 per cent of the money and therefore own the controlling interest. The contract will read, however, that the citizens will have the right to take over all stock, the conditions, of course, being gone into at length.

"We have figured that it will cost between $500,000 and $750,000 to give this city the system it demands," said one of the interested parties, who requested that his name be withheld for the present. This amount does not include the purchase price of the source from where the water is to be obtained, but it does cover the cost of piping it and laying the water mains throughout the city.

"According to estimates we have received, a town of 60,000 people will use 4,000,000 gallons of water daily, these figures making allowance for fourteen manufacturing plants employing thirty men each, one railroad and the average number of similar industries.

"Although San Angelo has only about 16,000 people now, we figure that this town is to do some tall growing within the next ten years, and with this idea in view we will build a system that will be large enough to supply a town say about four times as large as San Angelo is today.

"Mains will be extended to all parts of the city, taking in every section, but under no circumstances will water be supplied to those who live beyond the limits. This, then, will be an inducement to have those who are on the outside of the municipal fence to climb over, and in this manner the population of San Angelo will be materially increased.

"Spring creek, at the point where we expect to pipe our water, is about twenty-seven miles from San Angelo, making a short cut. We figure that a two-foot pipe will be capable of supplying this city with 7,000,000 gallons of water every twenty-four hours. Of course we will have no use for such an immense quantity of water at present, but it won't be long before we will.

"As everyone in this section knows, the water from Spring creek is the very best in the world. It is all spring water, and there is absolutely nothing to contaminate it."

Being 300 hundred feet higher than San Angelo, Spring creek is so situated that the water may be easily shot through the mains without any extra pressure. Although a reservoir will not be absolutely necessary, one is to be constructed as a mere matter of protection in case of fire, etc.

Since the recent floods San Angelo has been placed at a great deal of inconvenience on account of the muddy water, but with the city drawing its supply by pipe direct from Spring creek all this would be eliminated for ever and ever.

It is believed that there will be absolutely no trouble in organizing a local company to accept Mr. Roberts' proposition. As soon as the organization has been perfected a charter will be secured, and in the meanwhile a petition will be filed with the city council, asking for a franchise. Of course the company will want a long life franchise, as a vast amount of money is to be involved.

There will be no trouble in securing a franchise, however, for everybody in the city will greet the proposition with open arms. Things are expected to develop rapidly, now that the matter has gotten a start.

A rather interesting feature presents itself in connection with the ownership of the bed of Spring creek near the stream's head, and it may be that the company will be in a position to get its water without paying a cent. It will be recalled that about two years ago a rousing mass meeting was held at Sherwood of the land owners along the creek, to discuss the question of forming an irrigation district under a state law enacted within recent years. During the meeting it was suggested that in all surveys bordering on the creek the deeds called for the water's edge. Then the question that presented itself was, "Who owns the bed of the creek?"

County Judge W. F. Fokes wrote to the attorney general with reference to the matter, and the reply was to the effect that the bed belonged to the state.

That being the case, the proposed local company will doubtless be permitted to use all of the state's water it pleases.

Code Seeks Habeas Corpus Writ!

Habeas corpus proceedings will be taken in the case of Tom Code Friday morning before District Judge Timmins, when the defendant will plead for a complete discharge.

In Justice of the Peace M. O. Davis' court Thursday Code was bound over to the next grand jury in the sum of $500.

Tom Code is the former member of the Concho Mill and Grain company, who was arrested Wednesday on a charge of swindling the firm out of $523, by collecting a bill for the firm and not turning in the money, afterwards selling out and leaving town with the collected money.

R. E. Scott and family and brother, Will Scott, left Thursday for a week's fishing trip on Spring creek near Mertzon. While there R. E. Scott will see about the new school building going up at Mertzon, of which he is the architect.

W. D. Jennings, a prominent attorney of Miles, who has been attending this session of the county court, went home Thursday.

W. T. Owsley and family departed Thursday for a several weeks' business trip to Duncan, Okla.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD BOY WHO ODDLY FALLS HEIR TO $6,000,000.

William Nelson McClintock of Chicago, who is five years old, became heir to $6,000,000 in an odd way upon the death of his mother recently. His father, William McClintock, inherited a fortune from his first wife, who in turn had inherited it from her first husband. McClintock then married Esther Catherine Nelson, to whom the fortune fell at his death. Now, upon the second Mrs. McClintock's death, her child, who is not in any way related to the original builder of the estate, becomes its possessor.

THIRTY AUTOS FOR TRADES EXCURSION

E. H. Labadie, Automobile Man, Says Merchants Are Taking Great Deal of Interest in Matter.

The trades excursion idea is booming. Many prominent business men are getting in line, and chances for its final culmination are bright.

"It's a splendid scheme," said E. H. Labadie, the prominent automobile man. "Other towns and cities have met with marvelous success through this means of advertising. Only the other day I saw where 100 leading business men of Weatherford started out on a trades excursion in 25 big autos. They will tour their tributaries and no doubt much good will be derived.

"Many prominent business have been asking me of late about this, and some of them got down to asking just what it would cost. I think good terms can be made and the trip carried through on a very reasonable expenditure.

"San Angelo ought to muster up enough boosters who are anxious to go to fill up at least 25 or 30 autos. It will be well for them to look to their tributaries and get on the best terms with them, for they won't have to depend on San Angelo to any great extent before long, and unless good treatment is extended some trade may drift away."

SAN ANGELO CLUB GIVES BIG DANCE

Mirth Reigns Supreme While Lighting and Thunder on Outside Lends Splendor to the Scene.

A delightful dance was given at the San Angelo club rooms Thursday evening between the hours of 9 and 12. Music was furnished by Springer's orchestra and mirth reigned supreme, while the lightning and thunder outside lent an air of awesome splendor to the scene. However, light hearts do not worry on account of the strange doing of the elements.

Those present and assisting to make the hours one long procession of convivial delight were:

Messrs. and Mesdames J. B. Ely and Jerry Y. Rust, Misses Stella and Verna Ricketts, Lucile March, Adele Steiner, Gladys Nall, Mary Henderson, Kate Conger, Jeannette Chamberlain, Ethel Timmins, Mona Utterback, Adelle Bishop, Joe Carruthers, Fouts, Lula B. Adams, Anne May Hendricks, Margaret Ralston, Erin Andrew, and Messrs. St. Hodges, Rube Neeley, Furrost Meador, J. H. Evans, Miles O'Daniels, C. E. Miller, C. T. Dalton, Frank Farr, Phil C. Lee, Theodore Bell, H. W. Newman, Tom Patterson, Wilbur Williams, Carl Von Metz Radt, B. C. Alexander, Gilmore Gwin, J. D. Proctor, John Abe March, Jr., C. A. Dalley, Lawson O. Dalley, V. P. Woodward, C. A. Lewis and M. L. McCain, Jr.

HEAVY RAIN FALLS NORTH AND EAST; STERLING IN CENTER

Coming down from Big Springs on the north, and extending east to Bal-linger and Brownwood, San Angelo was visited by one of the hardest rains of the year Thursday night. But it did not last long, the fall continuing for only 20 or 25 minutes.

According to reports, the country between Big Springs and Sterling City received the greatest benefit. At Sterling City the fall was in the shape of a regular downpour. Carlsbad and Water Valley came in for attention and the rain continued south until it reached San Angelo. Then its course changed, for Eldorado, Sonora and Ozona reported nothing doing. Miles, Rowena and Hallinger had a good shower, but it played out by the time it had reached Brownwood.

At 11 o'clock Thursday night the North Concho was on a two-foot rise and the roaring of the water could be heard a block away. This signifies that Sterling county was in the center of the path, while Coke, Glascock and Howard counties were partially covered.

Such a hard rain, however, could not have soaked into the ground to any great extent, for it did not continue long enough. But it will do a wonderful amount of good at that.

The first signs of rain made their appearance in San Angelo Thursday evening about 8 o'clock. A hard wind storm, the regular West Texas kind, made life on the streets a burden. The temperature cooled off rapidly, and by 9:15 o'clock the rain was here. Occasionally the sound of hailstones was heard. By 9:40 it had passed on, and the storm was over.

BIG SPRINGS SURE OF SECURING LANIN LINE

W. F. Cushing Here From Konohasset To Talk With R. R. Promoter

SOASH PURCHASE TELLS THE STORY

Is Great Friend of Lanin And Has Been Associated With Him in Many Deals—Local Committee is Very Hard at Work

J. J. Lanin's road will in all probability be extended to Big Springs almost immediately after completion between San Angelo and Sterling City.

This information was gleaned from a talk with W. F. Cushing, a prominent citizen of Konohasset, who was here Thursday to see Mr. Lanin.

"We have just a small town at present," said he, "but we expect to have a big railroad before many months have elapsed. Now that Mr. Lanin's road between San Angelo and Sterling City is practically assured, Big Springs will come forward with her $50,000 offer for an extension of the main line to that city. It is only forty miles between Sterling City and Big Springs and the road could be built for a comparatively small expenditure.

"We are all the more confident that the road will be built, because Mr. Soash, the purchaser of the Slaughter ranch, consisting of 500 sections, and also the promoter of the proposed line between Big Springs and Lamesa, came from the same section of Iowa as Mr. Lanin and is interested with him in many transactions. It is believed that Mr. Soash wants the road built and will throw his influence in that direction."

This information is simply another link in the chain to prove J. J. Lanin's road will eventually be a great trunk line. Mr. Lanin has told San Angelo that he is not building her a short tap road, but will eventually make extensions of great merit. He is ready to go to work as soon as the bonus is up, and then the promises so fairly made will be fulfilled.

With $6000 of the necessary $50,000 lacking, the Sterling City railroad committee is now putting in its hardest efforts, and the ticks are going to count. It is a settled fact that J. J. Lanin leaves Sunday for Iowa. If San Angelo's bonus is not up by that time, the whole deal will be called off.

But that bonus will be raised. The citizens of this town are not going to fall down at the critical moment, when they are within the very reach of the goal.

A meeting of the soliciting committee was held Thursday morning and an actual count showed that about $44,000 has been subscribed. It was thought that the amount would run over that, but the loss is attributed to the fact that several who offered to double their subscriptions were overlooked during the excitement at the rally. Chairman Webb requests that all who subscribed and whose names did not appear in the list published by The Press-News kindly advise him.

"We will have to work awfully hard," said Chairman Webb Thursday, "if we complete this bonus. In order that we may become even more thoroughly organized for our work tomorrow, I wish you would announce that I would like to meet all the committeemen Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the directors' room of the First National bank."

Mr. Webb also requests that if there are any old lists out, they be returned to him Friday morning.

Real Estate Transfers.

SAM CROWTHER HAS RETURNED

DEVELOPMENTS IN STREET CAR SITUATION SHOULD BE FAST AND FURIOUS NOW.

"JUST WATCH SMOKE"

Street Railway Official Refuses to Talk of Plans, but Says "Actions Speak Louder Than Words"—Glad to Be Back.

Sam Crowther is back in town after an extended trip through the north.

This announcement will set the people of San Angelo agog, as his return means immediate developments in the street car situation, but he left a vast amount of food for the imagination.

"Great Scott! but I am glad to be back in San Angelo," he said with a happy, contented smile. "I am glad to be back in a country where a man won't die away with the heat. I hear that the thermometer has registered over 106 several times here this summer, but that's all O. K. Up where I have been it has never been over 92, but prostrations are the order of the day. If it ever got to 100 there all the people would die off. Down here it's a dry heat and one never hears of a prostration.

"No, I haven't anything to say about the street cars at present, as I have not looked over what the boys have done since I have been away. But the time is not far away when there will be something doing. Actions speak louder than words, anyway."

Porter McKinney, a prominent young business man of Temple, who came to San Angelo a few days ago to spend a part of his summer vacation, left for Coleman Thursday.

Ask the Man to Rush the Can Please!

Two whole big barrels of beer smashed and completely ruined!

Such was the deplorable accident that occurred Thursday afternoon when one of Bob Holland's big floats, loaded fore and aft with barrels of beer bound for the cellar of the Bismarck saloon, was backing up to the door. The horses became excited, twisted the wagon around in such a way that the aforementioned barrels of beer were ignominiously and unceremoniously deposited in the street, broken and injured almost beyond recognition, except for the delicious odor.

A crowd gathered immediately and 'twas a sad hearted crowd, too, there being hardly a dry eye in the whole bunch. But throats were parched and the owners muchly indignant, for the thought arose of the number of men whose thirsts could have been so effectively quenched by those two barrels fresh from the brewery. But what's the use of crying over spilled beer?

Jay Montague and wife, formerly Miss Nell Ede of this city, returned Thursday from a wedding trip to Pawhuska, Okla.

The Press-News

THE NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY
Incorporated.

Entered as second-class matter December 17, 1907, at the postoffice at San Angelo, Texas, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Friday Morning, July 16, 1909.

NAY, WE PRITHEE!

It is quite evident from the dispatches that are being sent out from Austin that the governor is seeking an excuse to call an extra session. God forbid that Texas at this time should be afflicted by such a calamity.

When the legislature is in session, no matter how excellent the material that composes it, Texas is sitting upon a barrel of glycerine, from an economic standpoint anyway. Industrial Texas today stands more in need of the rest cure than in the need of everything else put together.

Of all sections of Texas, West Texas can less afford an extra session of the legislature at this time. Thanks to the sanity displayed at the regular and special sessions of the Thirty-first, despite the bullying, brow-beating, machinations and pussy-footing of the chief executive and his gum-soled cohorts, West Texas is to be blessed with additional transportation facilities. The Press-News refers to the Santa Fe cut-off. The Press-News believes that the Santa Fe made a grievous error in not building that cut-off to this city, but as long as San Angelo couldn't get it, the Press-News is glad indeed that it is being built in San Angelo territory, and all West Texas is San Angelo territory.

And now listen, please, to what the president of the Santa Fe has to say about the building of this line and one of the propelling reasons for this work now being under way. In a letter President Ripley uses the following words:

"The failure of the last Texas legislature to pass any radical legislation, although strongly urged to do so by the governor, encouraged us to go on with our plans."

This declaration may be wormwood and gall to the chief executive and those of the ilk of which he is composed. But to the sturdy people of the west who see in the construction of this line the dawning of the day of bright things and the realization of the hopes of the just, the cut-off will mean peace and prosperity, and plenty will predominate in the land.

The Press-News is of the opinion that the reasons thus far advanced for the calling of another special session of the legislature are flimsy subterfuges freighted with an expressed purpose to mislead and deceive the people. The Press-News knows that Gov. Campbell bears a contempt seasoned with a despicable malice toward Western Texas, and cites in substantiation of this allegation that he vetoed more measures having for their object the good of western Texas than were embraced in all his other vetoes put together. The Press-News could call no better witness to corroborate this statement than Senator Claude B. Hudspeth, who so ably represents this district in the upper hours of the Texas legislature.

The Press-News believes that Gov. Campbell is seeking to find an excuse to convene the legislature in extra session for no other reason than an attempt to satisfy a pique that resulted from failure on his part to inflict dire injury upon the state, or to so stack the political cards that east Texas politicians can cloud the living issues and fool the people into causing a majority of the democrats of Texas to imagine that the only requirement necessary to constitute one a political Moses in this day and time is to live east of the black waxey belt.

Texas needs no extra session of the legislature at this time. To convene the legislature in extra session now would be like giving a patient rapidly convalescent from a serious illness an extra large dose of physic merely to see if the patient could survive. The Thirty-first legislature has made an excellent record, viewed as a whole. In parts the Press-News believes that pique, peevishness and parsimony characterized some of the results, but taken as a whole the good outweighs the evil. And when this can be said of a legislature the praise is great, indeed.

What Texas needs today is a rest from the office-seeker; surcease from the agitator who would demagogical-ly array class against class that he could lick his chops with greater glee and could line his political stomach with richer foods; from the man in office who doesn't know that when well enough prevails it's good policy to let it alone, and from the man who has a grouch and wants to load down the state with woe in the hope that his viciousness will become satiated. Let Texas Alone. Let Texas Grow. On to Sterling City!

On to Sterling City! Notice how nicely that rings since the grand rally Wednesday. On to Sterling City!

Yes, but this is surely the Cool Concho Country. If you don't believe it, read the temperature column of the daily weather report. Then make a comparison.

Now comes the report that the new depot at Brownwood is to have a tile roof. Tile is made of the same sort of stuff that jugs are made of. What a natural selection!

There are some things that salt can't save, and it is looking as if a certain west Texas place is willing to extra session a great enterprise out of business merely because the place wasn't located in the right spot in the first instance. Let us have peace!

Col. Ike M. Stadler of Houston is being mentioned as a probable candidate for attorney general. He would be an ornament to the office and his administration would reflect great credit and grandeur upon Texas. Col. Stadler belongs to the old school in thought; to the progressive school in action, and to the everlasting school in honor. He comes nearer being the man of the hour than anyone yet mentioned for that high and responsible office.

Efforts are now being made to get Bob Penick of Stamford to run for governor. But one objection can be cited to Penick, and that is he is qualified every way except politically. He knows nothing of the gum shoe wearers and he is not versed in the art of deception, nor has he enough meanness to vent at the expense of the state to be successful. Intellectually, patriotically and spiritually, however, he matches every need to fill the high office.

Mary Jane Cox, who for thirty years has been a perennial belle of the ball, is now in editor in chief, copy chaser, press turner and gasoline engine doctor of the Ozona Kicker. Peace to his ashes and praise to his face. He will give the people of Ozona a clean, new, readable and reliable paper. He has already washed the rollers and laved the type. Then again please note the healthy complexion owned by Mary Jane. That complexion was secured by living on a pie diet during the regular session of the Thirty-first legislature. Mrs. Cox had a job in the cool room just about the senate chamber. Congratulations to the whole bunch.

WOMEN IN THE SADDLE

Never before has horseback riding been as popular as this year.

Horses have become cheaper on account of the popularity of the automobile, and riding habits which used to cost in the vicinity of a hundred dollars may now be had for $35.

They are well made too. By the way, there's a big revolution in the cut of these habits. The coat is made very long and as near hipless as possible, and the skirt is nearly always of the safety variety.

The old fashioned closed skirt is a thing of the past, and indeed it is well this is so, for it was a direct invitation to a broken leg.

The new skirts fasten at the side with snap books, which immediately give way under strain, allowing the wearer absolute freedom.

Young girls may wear a jaunty box coat, such as the one in the illustration. This habit is of crash, the kind that does not wrinkle. It is worn with a rough straw, three cornered hat, tan gloves and tan high boots. The skirt is of the divided order, which permits the wearer to ride astride.

The number of women who ride astride is rapidly increasing. It is not an unbecoming mode, provided a woman is neither fat nor short waisted.

The riding crop like a man's is the proper thing now. Whips soon get out of shape and do not look smart. But these changes are mere fads. Tomorrow all the women may be carrying whips again.

Another fad just now is a single white flower worn in the lapel of the coat. A colored piping is frequently introduced around the edge of the collar of the coat and the bottom of the sleeves.

Gray linen is a novelty in summer habits, and this is stunning when worn with a white pique vest which has large pearl buttons.

Colored stocks are in fashion again, particularly in lavender, sage green and a new tone of raspberry red. The pocket handkerchief must have a border to match the stock.

The wrinkled riding boot is taking the place of the plain article this summer, and a pair of these made to order comes as high as $30.

Anything fluffy is entirely out of place on horseback. The well groomed woman fixes her hair quite snugly, allowing the merest suspicion of a roll.

The black derby is worn all summer by some equestriennes. It is hot, to be sure, but has the merit of clinging to the head. It looks at its best in conjunction with a checked habit.

Monograms on saddles are growing larger than ever. Some are being enclosed in a conventional figure, such as a circle or a diamond. We come as near a coronet as we dare in this land of the free.

A long coat is a necessity to cover the habit when going to and from the stables. In summer this should be of crash or pongee.

These may be in the shape of huge mounds and frogs, leather buttons or strappings of black and white silk or pique. These coats are on the hipless model.

MAUD ROBINSON.

Signs the President's Name.

Mrs. Margaret Wilson Young of Ohio holds the unique office of autograph substitute for the president of the United States. No attempt is made by Mrs. Wilson to copy the signature of the president in signing his name to public documents, and no resemblance exists between the original and the signature she writes. She held the same position in the last year of the Roosevelt administration, and in 1908 she signed his name 80,000 times to public documents. The work requires more patience than brain work, although Mrs. Wilson is quite competent to transact any ordinary business. Mrs. Wilson is the great-granddaughter of General Stokely, who was on Washington's staff during the Revolutionary war. He equipped at his own expense and commanded a regiment at Brandywine. Before her appointment to the position she now holds, in 1908, Mrs. Wilson held an important place in the postoffice department. The first woman to get this place was Miss Marcia McKean, who was a close friend of the wife of Mr. Arthur before he became president. She was succeeded by her sister. Mrs. Wilson is the third woman to hold the position.

EVANGELIST CATES.

monials, and they came thick and fast. Christians from all parts of the house related their experiences and prayed for those who had not been saved.

The whole evening was taken up in this manner, Evangelist Cates not ever announcing a text or reading a verse. In other words, the meeting carried itself along and was in the form of the original old-time revival.

Twelve people gave up to God and asked for prayer, making a total of twenty-five for the day, thirteen having been saved at the morning service.

The revival opened one week ago Thursday night, and that great good is being accomplished is attested by the fact that during that time at least fifty have confessed a salvation.

TO ADVERTISE TOWN.

Fair Park Addition Will Have Salesmen to Cover State.

That San Angelo might be given her share of prominence in other cities in Texas, and that Fair Park addition's great advantages might be made known far and wide the company having in charge this splendid property announces that it has placed competent salesmen in the field. Slack & Dunn of Comanche have been appointed general sales agents, while R. C. Ledford, Walter Foreman and W. I. Wayland have been selected to make the different towns in Texas.

Fair Park addition is located between the fair grounds and Lakeview, and the street car line passes through it. George Hagelstein is president of the company; Chris Haezelstein vice president, and D. J. Burk, secretary.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Oh," said Deppy, as if that did not convey anything to him. Then, as an afterthought, "Glad to know you, I'm sure." Still he did not rise, nor did he extend his hand. For a moment young Brodney waited, a dull red growing in his temples.

"Don't you intend to present me to Lady Deppingham?" he demanded bluntly without taking his eyes from Deppy's face.

"Oh—er—is that neces—"

"Lady Deppingham," interrupted Brodney. "I am Robert Brodney, the man you are expected to marry. We are here for the same purpose, I suspect. We can't be married to each other. That's out of the question. But we can live together as if we—"

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy, coming to his feet in a towering rage. Brodney smiled apologetically and lifted his hand. "—as if we were serving out the prescribed period of courtship set down in the will. Believe me, I am very happily married, as I hope you are. The courtship, you will perceive, is neither here nor there. Our every issue is identical. Lady Deppingham. Doesn't it strike you that we will be very foolish if we stand alone and against each other?"

"My solicitor—" began Lady Deppingham and then stopped. She was smiling in spite of herself.

"Your solicitor and mine can get together and talk it over," said Brodney blandly. "We'll leave it to them. I am quite ready to be a friendly ally, not a foe."

"Let me understand you," began Deppingham, cooling off suddenly. "Do you mean to say that you are not going to fight us in this matter?"

"Not at all, your lordship," said Brodney coolly. "I am here to fight Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, deceased. I think both of us will run no risk if we smash the will. If we made a frightful mistake in choosing these rooms. It is cooler on that side of the house. I'm not too proud to be comfortable, don't you know."

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy in a towering rage.

The next day they moved into the west wing, and that evening they had the Brodenes to dine with them in the banquet hall. Deppingham awoke in the middle of the night with violent cramps in his stomach.

"Don't say a word to Lady Deppingham," he grunted, sitting up in bed and gazing wildly at his valet, "but I've been poisoned. The — servants—ouch!—don't you know! Might have known. Silly ass! See what I mean? Get something for me—quick!"

For two hours Antoine applied hot water bags and soothing strips, and his master, far from dying as he continually prophesied, dropped off into a peaceful sleep.

The next morning Deppingham, fully convinced that the native servants had tried to poison him, unconditionally discharged the entire force.

Of course there was a great upheaval. Lady Agnes came tearing down to the servants' hall, followed directly by the Brodenes and Mr. Britt.

"Stop!" she cried. "Deppy, what are you doing? Discharging them after we've had such a time getting them? Are you crazy?"

Lord Deppingham says the servants have struck."

The American lawyer, a chubby, red faced man of forty, with clear gray eyes and a stubby moustache, whistled soulfully.

"I'll see what I can do, Mr. Brodney. Got to have cooks, eh, Lord Deppingham?" Without waiting for an answer he dashed off. The native carriers were leaving the grounds when Britt's shrill whistle brought them to a standstill. The lawyer waved a triumphant hand to his friends and then climbed into one of the litters to be borne off in the direction of the town.

"He'll have the servants back at work before 2 o'clock," said Brodney calmly. Deppingham was transfixed with astonishment.

"How—how the devil do you—does he bring 'em to time like that?" he murmured. He afterward said that if he had had Saunders there at that humiliating moment he would have kicked him.

"They're afraid of the American battleship," said Brodney.

"But where is the American battleship?" demanded Deppingham, looking wildly to sea.

"They understand that there will be one here in a day or two if we need it," said Brodney, with a sly grin. "That's the bluff we've worked." He looked around for his wife and, finding that she had gone inside, politely waved his hand to the Englishman and followed.

At 3 o'clock Britt returned with the recalcitrant servants—or at least the "pick" of them, as he termed the score he had chosen from the hundred or more. He seemed to have an Aladdin-like effect over the horde.

Calmly taking Lord Deppingham and his following into his confidence, he said, in reply to their indignant remonstrances, later on in the day: "I know that an American man-of-war hasn't any right to fire upon British possessions, but you just keep quiet and let well enough alone. They just simply know that I can send wireless messages and that a cruiser would be out there tomorrow if necessary, pegging away at these green hills with cannon balls so big that there wouldn't be anything left but the horizon in an hour or two. You let me do the talking. I've got 'em bluffed, and I'll keep 'em that way."

Over in the gorgeous west wing Lord Deppingham later on tried to convince his sulky little wife that the Americans were an amazing lot, after all. Brodney tapped at the door.

"Tea is served in the hanging garden, my lady," she announced. Her mistress looked up in surprise, red eyed and a bit disheveled.

"Ask some one to bring the tea things in here, Brodney," she said sternly. "Besides, I want to give some orders. We must have system here, not Americanisms."

The tea things did not come in. In their stead came pretty Mrs. Brodney. "Won't you please join Mr. Brodney and me in that dear little garden? It's so cool up there, and it must be dreadfully warm here. Really, you should move at once into Mr. Wyckholme's old apartments, across the court from ours. They are splendid. But now do come and have tea with us."

CHAPTER VIII.

THE MAN FROM BRODNEY'S. I T was quite forty-eight hours before the Deppinghams surrendered to the Brodenes. They were obliged to humbly admit in the seclusion of their own councils that it was to the obnoxious but energetic Britt that they owed their present and ever growing comfort.

Late in the afternoon of the day following the advent of the Brodenes, Lord and Lady Deppingham were laboriously fanning themselves in the midst of their stifling Marie Antoinette elegance.

"By Jove, ARKY, it's too beastly hot here for words," growled he for the hundredth time. "I think we'd better move into your grandfather's rooms."

"Now, Deppy, don't let the Brodenes talk you into everything they suggest," she complained, determined to be stubborn to the end. "They know entirely too much."

"That's all very good, my dear, but you know quite as well as I that we made a frightful mistake in choosing these rooms. It is cooler on that side of the house. I'm not too proud to be comfortable, don't you know."

The next day they moved into the west wing, and that evening they had the Brodenes to dine with them in the banquet hall. Deppingham awoke in the middle of the night with violent cramps in his stomach.

"Don't say a word to Lady Deppingham," he grunted, sitting up in bed and gazing wildly at his valet, "but I've been poisoned. The — servants—ouch!—don't you know! Might have known. Silly ass! See what I mean? Get something for me—quick!"

A cow owned by Z. J. Williams, fresh from grazing on grasses green, was escorted home Thursday full of new ideas imbibed from rural recreation. 'Twas her idea to furnish fowls as well as people with the luscious product of her bag. But onward.

Wilbur Williams, happening into the barnyard some time Thursday afternoon, was dumfounded to find Bossie standing in the lot doing the soda fountain stunt by shooting a fine stream from one of her teats, while beneath her was a bunch of chickens taking advantage of the opportunity and pecking at the stream. After this occurrence who dares to say that beasts can not think in a human way, so that they may gladden the hearts of their fellow roosters?

The contest for the prize for the envelope design for the San Angelo Fall Fair and Carnival will close and the prize be awarded Saturday. Within a few days thereafter the plates for the same will be in hand and business men are assured of something worth while—an opportunity to send abroad a message for San Angelo's annual fall show on every letter mailed and at practically no cost. Great improvements are being made at the fair grounds in preparation for the fall fair. Seven teams are at work on the track, scraping it and putting it in prime condition.

Carpenters are at work on plans to put up one of the finest exhibition halls in the state, and soon the sound of the hammer will be heard within the fair grounds limits. The fences are being put in shape and a general round of improvement is going on.

"No pains will be spared to make this the greatest and best fair that San Angelo and West Texas ever had," said A. D. West of the Fall Fair association Thursday. "San Angelo is growing daily and improving at a remarkable clip, and it is but meet that the fair should advance at the same rate. The different committees are at work hard and everything will be in tip-top shape on schedule time."

GREAT JOHN L. MORE TALK OF
A TRACTION RIVER BRIDGE

WORLD'S FORMER CHAMPION OF PRIZE RING SIGNIFIES INTENTION OF ATTENDING FAIR.

HAS DEAR FRIEND HERE HEAVY TRAVEL SURE

"Booger Red" Knows Sullivan Well and Will Show Him a Regular West Texas Time on the Occasion of His Visit.

John L. Sullivan and his sparring partner, Jake Kilrain, will in all probability be in San Angelo during the fall fair and give big free exhibitions at the carnival!

This information was secured through D. J. Burke, who is in charge of the business of George Hagelstein while the latter is attending the Yukon-Alaska exposition at Seattle.

Is it necessary to tell any red-blooded American who John L. Sullivan is and was? It is to be admitted that during recent years the prize ring has degenerated to a great extent since the good old fighting days when John L. Sullivan was the premier heavy-weight of the whole world. He has been called, and aptly, too, the "grand old man of the prize ring." In his day he met all comers who had the slightest pretensions to being a good scrapper, and only met his match in the great round when James J. Corbett defeated him in perhaps the greatest fight of all the history of the prize ring, and thus ascended the heavy-weight throne.

In the days when Sullivan fought it was almost as much as a man's life was worth to enter the ring. Marvelous amounts of money were wagered and feeling ran high. Sixshooters and beer bottles played an important part of the evening's program, but through all this John L. rode serene and majestic on the tide of prosperity. He made immense amounts of money, but alas for big-hearted old John! he spent it all with his friends.

However, he is still making good money giving exhibitions for the people of America will give up their money more freely to see him than any other living fighter.

The championship belt that once encircled the broad waist of John L. Jeffries, Fitzsimmons and Corbett has now descended to a negro, but the American people are anxiously awaiting the coming of another Sullivan to bring back the heavy-weight title to the Caucasian race.

Jake Kilrain, John L.'s sparring partner, once fought him for the world's championship, but like others, he failed to do any good, although he put up one of the stiffest fights of any man that ever faced Sullivan.

Tom Privett, alias "Booger Red," is a strong personal friend of the great fighter, and many believe that John L. will come here partly on account of wanting to see Booger. Only about a year ago he sent Booger a fine dress suit and his son, little Roy Privett, received a fine fute.

Booger, while appreciating the gift to a great extent, wondered what in the "arnation he was going to do with the blamed thing."

At the Yale.

The Yale is featuring a film for Friday night showing Roosevelt's adventures in Africa. This picture is just out and the first time shown in this country. It takes Mr. Roosevelt from his start from home to the time he bags his first lion. It is an instructive as well as an amusing piece of work.

The LePearl sisters are drawing large houses every night. Friday night they have a complete change of vaudeville, new songs and good dancing.

Clay Autrey returned Thursday from a trip to Hallettsville.

EFFORT TO REVIVE INTEREST IN MOVEMENT, WHICH CAME NEAR BEING SUCCESSFUL BEFORE.

When Orient Trains Start to Running, Better Facilities Will Be Absolutely Necessary. Where Shall It Cross?

Now that the Orient depot is nearing completion and that trains will be running into San Angelo by October 1st, the matter of building a bridge across the North Concho river has again been revived, and is being pushed with considerable energy.

It is figured that a bridge, such as should be erected will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. It is proposed to let the city pay for half of it, and the county the remainder. In fact this sort of an arrangement was practically settled once before, but the people could not agree among themselves just where the bridge should span the river, and as a result the whole thing fell through.

Of course if the bridge is built it will span the river on Chadbourne or Irving street—that much is a settled fact. But the citizens are divided as to which one shall be selected. It is pointed out by those in favor of Irving street that the crossing at that point is only half as wide as on Chadbourne street, and that it will cost a great deal less to build there.

In either event the bridge will be within one block of the Orient depot and will afford a splendid outlet for the heavy travel that it is sure to result from the establishment of the depot on the other side of the river.

Those pushing the proposition say that the bridge should be the best in the city. It should be large enough to accommodate a street car line, heavy traffic of all kinds, and then have a foot passage way.

If the street car company is to build through Park Heights and to the depot, as it most undoubtedly will, it will defray a part of the expense of erecting a substantial bridge.

Carl Patten, who for several months has been employed by R. E. Scott, the architect, went to Houston Thursday to accept a position with a big firm of architects in that city. Mr. Patten has made many friends, both in a business and social way, who regret that he is leaving but realize that his judgment must be best.

Luke Robinson and Ollie Ogden went to Big Springs Thursday in one of Savell Bros' big autos. They are en route for El Paso to join the baseball team of that city. Both of them are home boys and local fandom will naturally keep an anxious eye on them to see how they get along with the border team.

S. L. Terry, who lives in Alabama and has been prospecting in Concho land for the last few days, went to San Antonio Thursday. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the country.

Mrs. W. M. Thomas, who has been visiting the family of A. M. Hicks for several days, returned Thursday to her home in Mineral Wells. She was accompanied by Miss Lula May Hicks, who will visit her for a few days.

Roy Staten, another member of the disbanded Blues, went to Uvalde Thursday to accept an offer to play second base for that team for the remainder of the season.

Henry McClendon left Thursday to see the Yukon-Alaska exposition at Seattle. He will also visit other points in the great northwest while away.

The finest watch in the world is made in America. It is the Howard.

It has been the finest watch since 1842. In those days the best Howard cost $500. The price is much less today—and the watch is finer. The Howard has been carried—is carried today—by more distinguished Americans than any other watch.

It is the only American watch certified by the International Observatory at Geneva.

Few men realize what watch-accuracy means until they carry a Howard, with its superb precision as a timekeeper, its adjustment to heat and cold, vibration and change of position.
