

At a recent meeting people were shown some of the specimens of the same home-laboratory were discussed, but the final story, we think, takes the prize. The story preceding it was as follows:

"The latest man I ever knew," said one young fellow, was Bill Sheehan. He was so lazy that when he started into a building he would get within the revolving door and wait for somebody to come along and revolve it."

"That man was as busy as a bee compared to Hank Perkins, down in Arkansas," said another young man. "Hank was given up to be the laziest man in the United States. He was so lazy he wouldn't get out of the sun when it was hot, or out of the rain when it was wet. One day Hank was sitting on the porch with his wife. As it happened, his back was to the road. A prominent farmer had just died, and the funeral procession passed Hank's house. The deceased was a man of considerable influence, and the procession was a long one. After it had passed the wife said, 'That was a mighty fine procession, Hank.' 'Yes, I guess it must 'a been,' said Hank. 'I would 'a liked to 'a seed it, but I was sittin' wrong!'"—Dallas (Ga.) New Era.

GET 5-MINUTE ROPE ON ELECTION RETURNS

Progressive ranchmen in West Texas are reaping, this year, splendid returns from diversified grazing. This means that they have learned, in the words of a Sutton county ranchman, that "sheep make grass."

Sheep men have known for a long time, that sheep eat weeds, thus preventing the stifling of the grass growth by rank growths of weeds. West Texas ranchmen have long experience with the broom weed which springs up during and following wet years and stifles the growth of the rich grass of that section. But in recent years many progressive cattle men have buried their prejudices against sheep and are now pasturing considerable numbers of sheep and goats along with their cattle. The sheep eat the weeds and the goats eat the brush, both operations favoring the growth of grass. The rancher agrees that the sheep and goats eat some grass but prefer the weeds and shrubs and that the pasturage for sheep and goats is even more than clear gain. Some declare that more cattle can be pastured on a section with a few sheep and goats than without them.

Dr. A. B. Cox, Farm and Ranch Economist of the Texas Experiment Station, while engaged in making a ranch economic survey in Sutton county, reports the finest growth of grass on ranches practicing diversified grazing. He has photographs showing pastures devoted exclusively to cattle and they invariably show a rank growth of broom weed and leave, of course, a sparser growth of rich grass.

At the sheep feeding station at Spur, a twenty acre plot on which sheep have been grazing is free from broom weed, while the adjacent cattle pastures are heavily infested.

ENTHUSIASM'S EXAGGERATION

During the past season a rather pretentious summer hotel was built in near Creek Canyon, Colorado, called "Troudale-in-the-Pines." Upon its completion motor parties from Denver began seeking it out for a twilight dinner, away from "the maddening throng." The hostelry naturally aroused considerable pride among the mountaineers and ranchers of the neighborhood, and one of them happened to be along the road when a motorcar slowed down and he was asked:

"Can you tell us where the new hotel is?"

"About two miles right up this road; and I tell you she is a big one."

A big one, is she? About how big?"

"Well, in the dining room they have four hundred waiters on roller skates. And the orchestra? Say! It keeps three men busy shoveling rosin to the fiddlers!"—Ex.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

and other citizens of that state have subscribed nearly one million dollars in stock.

"When the corporation was first proposed in South Carolina the tentative plan of organization was submitted to William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury. Mr. McAdoo at once recognized the great merit of the proposition and immediately gave it his absolute approval. He was so impressed with the plan that he offered his services free in the organization of the corporation. At the present time Mr. McAdoo is busy with field speaking for the National Committee. As soon as he returns to New York he will be asked to come south and take the leadership in this great economic movement. Mr. McAdoo will be asked by the Export Corporation to make at least four speeches in the south to arouse the farmers and business men to the necessity of an export corporation to meet the present situation. He will probably speak in Columbia, Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas."

"The chief purpose", said Mr. Sparks, "of the corporation is to create a direct market from the producer to the consumer. There was never a time in the history of the world for laying the foundation for a corporation of this nature so opportune. A large portion of the spinners of Europe are idle because they have not the funds with which to purchase cotton. Therefore, Europe, one of the largest consumers of low grade cotton is now and has been for several years out of the market. A representative of one of the European governments has stated that it was the desire of his government to trade directly with the producer and if the cotton producer would furnish the opportunity whereby they might secure the needed cotton at this time his country would never forget the kindness and he was positive it would mean the beginning of a permanent arrangement whereby cotton could be sold direct from the producer to his mills."

"There is at the present time a large amount of low grade cotton held and unsold in the cotton belt and there is an unprecedented difference in prices for the respective grades. This difference or slack in the prices should materially reduce as soon as the low grade cotton begins to move to Europe. The American Cotton Export Corporation should be the medium for moving this cotton."

"The capital stock of the South Carolina Corporation is to be divided into shares of ten dollars each in value. This par value of ten dollars was arrived at so as to prevent subscribers in cotton and liberty bonds from having to pay any great sum of money into the treasury, in order to make up an even multiple of stock. The subscriptions and stock are payable in cash, liberty bonds at market value or cotton at its market value. No stock will be offered for sale, of course, in any state until all requirements of law have been complied with. Strong appeal will be made to all business men, all farmers, all professional men and all bankers. The prosperity of the entire population is dependent upon the financial condition of the cotton farmers of the south."

Several cotton expert corporations are being formed at various points in the south. It is the purpose of Mr. Sparks to co-ordinate all of these corporations under one head and to ask Mr. McAdoo to take the lead in the creation of one great all-southern cotton export corporation. Citizens of Texas desiring full detailed information concerning the plans of this corporation should address the home office of the corporation at Columbia, South Carolina.

President Wilson has had the hardest task of any president of these United States and has directed the affairs of state as could no other living man. There has not been a time in the history of the country when the common people had so much money as now and very few times that a man could earn as much money as he can now save, yet our people showed conclusively by their vote that they were not satisfied. Of course money will loosen up some in a short time—it would have done so the matter who was elected—but the people will know, ere the next four years have passed what the republican party has done for them, and The Enterprise will venture to say, this far ahead, that the general public will be poorer and as little satisfied as they now are.

Those who were disgruntled over President Wilson's "watchful waiting" program with reference to Mexico now see the wisdom of his way. Ten years time and the thousands upon thousands of lives lost in "taking" Mexico would not put things in as fine shape as they now are and these who have fought Wilson know it.

After a trip of nearly three hundred miles over Reeves county in a splendid Dodge truck with Hardin as driver, the editor has never seen the cattle and horses fatter or the range finer during his fourteen years residence of the county.

Enterprise advertisers—everyone of them—will this week have the advantage of a circulation of 5,200 copies, for that is the number of full eight page papers printed of this issue. You get your money's worth when you advertise in The Enterprise.

Get ready to attend the Armistice Day celebration next week and be on time the first day. There will be plenty to eat and plenty of amusement.

The agony is over and the election is a thing of the past. While this editor believes the people made a mistake in electing Harding for president, he is firm in the belief that he will have as good a president as anyone else.

OUR FLAG

We hail our country's flag today,
 Well may it be a nation's pride.
 As it floats in grand array,
 Its glory is known far and wide.
 Standing in dignity all its own,
 Emblem of the brave and true,
 Whose prestige in all lands is known
 While we pay thee homage that is due.

Reminder of freedom blood-bought,
 Inspiration to great and noble deeds,
 Speaking of all our heroes have wrought,
 As on to new triumphs it leads.
 Telling of those who fought and died
 Leaving their homes, their all
 Whose bravery was tested and tried,
 With their country to triumph or fall.

May naught e'er its beauty mar;
 May it ever proudly wave,
 Glorious whether in peace or in war,
 Banner of the staunch and brave.
 Floating grandeur, God-given,
 Inspired from the great above,
 Its clustering stars pointing to heaven
 Our own flag we will ever love.

May the God who securely holds
 The destinies of nations within his hand

Forever guard thy sacred folds
 And keep our glorious land.
 Float on, O Flag! and may thy fame
 Always endure, while in language sublime

Thy streaming folds will ever proclaim
 The name of Columbia as eternal as time.

"Dear May," wrote the young man who had been turned down the night before and craved vengeance. "Last night I proposed to you, but really have forgotten whether you said yes or no. These little things slip one's mind so."

"Dear Will," she wrote back. "I was so glad to get your letter. I remember having said no to some one last night, but had forgotten to whom. These little things certainly do."—American Legion Weekly.

MARKETING ASSOCIATION SUGGESTED

Marketing associations similar to the fruit growers' association of California offers the ultimate solution of the Texas truck growers' difficulties thinks Walton Peteet, Manager of Agricultural Department of the Texas Chamber of Commerce, who has just returned from the Rio Grande where he spent two weeks helping to organize producers of that section of the state into a marketing association. Mr. Peteet went to the valley in company with Aaron Sapiro, organizer of the California associations.

All interests in the valley, agricultural, banking, commercial and professional, are backing the organization of market associations in the belief that helping the farmer market his products at a profitable price will bring prosperity to all classes.

Mr. Peteet tells how the fruit growers of California have borrowed millions of dollars of bankers of the United States for the purpose of gradually marketing their crops and avoiding the "seasonal dip" of prices which always develops in a commodity market when the years produce is annually dumped upon the market at one time.

The new plan of organization which has proved successful in California, says Mr. Peteet, is founded upon sound business principles and depends upon sound business principles the success with which it has met on the Pacific Coast.

Dr. J. A. Daniel is on the sick list, suffering from a fall while attempting to get out of his car which broke his major toe and bruised his shoulder. The Enterprise is glad to state he is improving and would like to find out just where he got the stuff which caused him to wobble. If there is anything left of it.

Authoritative estimates on Texas crops for the year 1918 valued at $845,648,000 indicate the appalling loss of $75,345,712, due to ravages of plant diseases. The years 1919 and 1920 having been more seasonable, will doubtless show even greater losses. Heads of departments and members of the staffs of the Texas Experiment Station, the extension service and professors in the school of agriculture at A. & M. College, charging themselves with the commission to find remedies for just such glaring difficulties, passed vigorous resolutions looking to the alleviation of these losses, at the recent meeting of the Plant Industry Council, through which organization these scientists cooperate in the launching and disposition of the various projects coming before them.

The discussion of this subject revealed that as against this crop loss of more than seventy-five million dollars, annually, there is at present, being supplied to the agricultural experiment station, by both the state and federal governments, only about $5,750 per annum which enables the maintenance of only a one man division directing its energies toward finding measures for prevention of losses from plant diseases. In this connection, it was observed that certain peculiar conditions in Texas call for direct research such as cannot be supplied by research workers in other states and regions; and the pressing need of the plant pathologist for additional workers was emphasized.

A principal function of the Extension Service is to disseminate among the farmers, information assisting in combatting crop losses and the resolutions of the Council suggest that a special course in plant pathology should be supplied the county agents during the farmers' short course held at the college each summer. A desire was also expressed, that students be urged to take strong courses at the college in plant pathology and physiology.

PROGRAM AT SARAGOSA

An interesting program encouraging voters to vote for the better school amendment was given by the Saragosa schools Monday night.

There were talks by Prof. Norman and Rev. Fulbright and by several of the men interested in the schools, and songs by the children. An attractive feature of the program was a poem written by Mrs. W. A. Fulbright especially for this occasion. It showed much talent, and was entitled "Better Schools for Texas", setting forth good sentiment in verse in a pleasing manner.

All showed enthusiasm over the Amendment and want to see it go through.

The idea who conceived the idea of burning cotton gins to raise the price of cotton seems to have started something that is widespread, as L. I. Keating, owner of the Keating cotton gin, in this city, received a letter through mail Tuesday in which he was ordered to quit ginning cotton until the price of cotton advanced or his gin would be destroyed. The letter was signed Western Division Night Riders Association of Texas. The letter was partly written and partly printed and was the work of one who was a good scribe.

We had hopes that our county was free of folks who are bent upon destruction, but it will be necessary to take precautionary measures to head off any such act as is threatened.

In order to prevent any wild eyed fanatic or fanatics from carrying out any such fool threat our citizens should form a vigilance committee and put these cranks where they belong. For some time yet there will always be a number of farmers at the gins waiting for their cotton to be ginned and they could be organized and each one take turns serving as guards to prevent any such act as is threatened. The sheriff's office could give the necessary authority, giving the guards the power of special deputies.

It would be a calamity indeed if our farmers were to be prevented from harvesting and preserving a crop they have worked a year to raise and every effort must be put forth to see that the gins here are guarded.

Just where the burning of a gin is going to help the Night Riders or the man who has raised cotton is hard to understand. Whether cotton sells for fifty cents or fifteen cents a pound the farmer is going to need to harvest all he raised. If the gins are put out of commission cotton is going to be left in the fields and the cotton farmers are going to suffer bankruptcy. If the cotton is ginned it is a remarkable commodity and can be marketed a year or several years hence. Like most fanatics the Night Riders are starting at the wrong end of the problem and are going to work injury to themselves and every other cotton raiser if their acts are going to prevent cotton from being ginned. Why don't they issue an edict that cotton shall be sold? —Big Spring Herald.

Yes, indeed

The Journal of Commerce, New York, reports that according to estimates of the International Institute of Agriculture, the combined wheat yield of the United States, Canada, Spain, Italy, Algeria, Tunis, Bulgaria, Finland, Switzerland, British India, and Guatemala will total about 48.4 million tons this year. This equals the yield of the 1919 crop, but is below the five-year average of 49.2 millions. These countries produce about 70 percent of the wheat grown in the Northern Hemisphere, exclusive of Russia.

Definite data from many countries are still unavailable, but the wheat crop is reported as above average in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Netherlands, and Sweden, average in Germany and Ireland and slightly under average in England and Scotland. The rye crop is good in Austria, Netherlands and Sweden, but below the average in Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Reports on the course of the Indian monsoon have been fairly favorable, generally speaking, for rice and other summer crops, but more rain is needed in the areas to be sown with wheat. Karachi wheat prices have advanced about 5 percent.

The preliminary estimate of area under wheat in Argentina is 6.5 million hectares, 7 percent larger than last year's, but 3 percent below the average. The aggregate in Argentina, South Africa and Australia, comprising 92 percent of the wheat-producing area in the Southern Hemisphere, is estimated at 11.5 million hectares, 28 percent more than in 1919 and 2 percent above the average. None but favorable accounts of the growing wheat crop came from Australia, while the official report from Argentina forecasts an average yield.

A bomb is carted into a public place and exploded. Hundreds of people are killed or maimed for life—innocent persons against whom the perpetrators could have no possible grievance. Everybody is horrified—the public becomes excited—newspapers dish up volumes of details—man hunters scour the country in frantic haste—everybody tells everybody else what should or should not be done—and in a week's time the whole thing is buried in forgetfulness in the face of a new situation. The arm of the law is long, but if those who wield it are short sighted it avails but little in the end. Forgetfulness induces short sightedness—short sightedness is the father of undue leniency and leniency to perpetrators invites repetitions of such diabolical acts. But it is only the way of the world.
