Truett of Dallas, Bap tist, Dr. John D. Burma, Dubuque Iowa, Presbyterian; Dr. Knickerbock er, El Paso, Methodist; and Dr. Atkinson also of El Paso Christian.

The outstanding feature of the meeting this year was the unveiling of a beautiful granite monument to the memory of Rev. W. B. Bloys D. D., the founder of the Campmeeting. The monument is of South Carolina granite, twenty-five feet high, resting upon a pedestal seven feet square. The main shaft is of solid granite eighteen feet long.

The unveiling ceremonies were conducted by Drs. Truett, Burma and R. L. Irving. Captain Gillett presented the monument to the people of the community in behalf of the Bloys Campmeeting Association, in a short address of well chosen words. CONCERNING FALL MERCHANDISE—

Our Mr. Mabry is now in the market filling in on our purchases of Fall and Winter Merchandise. Fortunately we made the bulk of our purchases some months ago when prices were the lowest-Shoes-Cotton Goods-Woolen Goods and Household Goods for various reasons are going skyward and getting scrace. You can count on high prices everywhere, but some stores who buy now must sell highest.

With our early and heavy buying we are in position to sell as low as anyone and propose to do our Fall and Winter on the lowest possible margin. Value—100 cents to the dollar—is what you want and what you will get from us every time. We stand back of every transaction and solicit your business on that basis.

He also realized the imperfection of the ordinary phonograph and the talking machine. He knew that a phonograph that could not be distinguished from the human voice could be designed—and he designed it.

Music critics cannot differentiate between the human voice and the world's most wonderful sound-reproducing instrument, The New Edison.

There are approximately 17 others in the United States whose insurance equals or exceeds $1,000,000.

Policies of $500,000 are common. There is scarcely a successful business man of the well-to-do class who does not carry upward of $100,000.

The list of heavy insurers, however, gives some strange contrasts in the matter of individual insurance holdings, taken in ratio to reputed wealth. John D. Rockefeller, for instance, is listed as holding $50,000 insurance, though it is probable that his policies exceed this amount.

SCOUTING AND AMERICANISM

"Speaking of America," says Chief Scout Executive James E. West, "one of the biggest movements afoot today is the Americanization movement. Being an American means something today, when the eyes of the world are turned to America as the hope and leader of mankind.

"Scouting goes hand in hand with Americanization. A scout who lives up to his oath, to do his duty to God and country, to keep his scout law, to be helpful to all people at all times, is making himself into an American of the best kind. It isn't necessary to have been born on American soil to be a good American.

"Some of our finest scouts, most loyal to our flag, most active in Liberty loan and other patriotic work, first saw light under foreign skies. But that doesn't matter. They are Americans just the same, because they stand for what America stands for and believe in America as the land of hope, opportunity and brotherhood. "Stop and ask yourself if you are being an American—the right sort of American, through and through. You want to serve your country. Every scout loves America. Maybe some of you envied your older brothers and friends who had a chance to fight for her, die for her. You need not envy anyone. You can live for America, and that is the greatest service you can offer her just now. She needs you. Be Americans!"

The forward-looking program of scouting cannot fail to appeal to patriotic Americans. The foundation

The Rotary club of Montgomery, Ala., at its weekly meeting saw a demonstration of the scout program. The boys showed bandaging, carrying, resuscitation, knot-tying, fire-making without matches and other bits of scoutcraft.

They were heartily applauded, and as a result of their exhibition the boys' work committee of the Itotary club unanimously voted to establish a firstclass scout council.

PREVENT HORNS ON CALVES

Either Caustic Soda or Caustic Potash Without Other Substances Is Satisfactory.

When circumstances are favorable, as in the case of farmers who build growing by a simple and practically A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs painless method, and the custom of ter its birth, preferably when it is from three to five days old. The agent to be used may be either caustic soda or caustic potash, both of which may be procured in the drug stores in the form of sticks about the thickness of an ordinary lead pencil and 5 inches long. These caustics must be handled with care, as they dissolve the cuticle and may make the hands or fingers sore. The preparation of the calf consists in first clipping the hair from the parts, washing clean with soap and warm water, and thoroughly drying with a cloth or towel. The stick of caustic should be wrapped in a piece or paper to protect the hands and fingers, leaving one end of the stick un-

25 per cent of kerosene, and 25 per cent of water. The caustic soda is dissolved in the water and heated to the boiling point, then removed from the fire, and the kerosene added gradually, while the mixture is vigorously stirred. This emulsion is applied in very much the same manner as the stick caustic, except that it is necessary to employ a short, stiff brush. Sometimes a meat skewer is used, the large end being mashed to form a stubby brush. Two or three applications should be made to each horn button, as in the case of the stick caustic, with intervals to allow it to

In the very young calf the horn button, or point that will ultimately develop into a horn, has scarcely any attachment to the skull, and may be felt as a small button embedded in the skin. In this early stage it may be easily removed with a sharp knife or a pair of curved scissors, but even then caustics should be applied to kill any remaining cell life belonging to this germ point; otherwise there may be some subsequent irregular horn growth, which is more or less of a disfigurement.

BALANCING THE MEAL.

We hear much about well-balanced meals these days and it is the desire of every home keeper to have her meals well balanced, appetizing as well as attractive. When we speak of balancing a meal we mean giving all the food principals in their proper proportion in each menu, or getting the amounts in during the day; if lacking in one meal, make it up in the next, so that the day's meals will give the proper balance.

The amount of food to be taken by individuals differs so greatly that there is no fixed rule that one may follow. Age, climate, physical condition as well as occupation are important factors in determining the amount to serve, but it is safe to say that in the average dietary we may cut out onethird of the food we daily consume, masticate the two-thirds twice as long as is the habit and great benefit will be noted in one's health. This advice is only given to the well padded individual; those who are thin are so because even if good enters, the food is not assimilated.

When serving a heavy main dish with the accompanying vegetable or two, the dessert should be light, one easy of digestion and with little bulk. If the main part of the meal is light. not preceded by a cream soup, let the dessert be a richer one.

The generous use of milk in desserts will give a better balance to the dinner in which only a small amount of meat is served, while at meatless meals more milk may be used as well as fish, cheese, beans and peas in order that there may be no lack of protein (the tissue building body), in the Coffee Custard .- Scald two cupfuls of milk with two tablespoonfuls of finely ground coffee, and strain. Beat three eggs lightly, add one-quarter cupful of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of vanilla. Strain into buttered molds and bake in a pan of hot water. Unmola and serve well chilled with whipped cream.

Grape Juice Cream .- Take one cupful of grape juice, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, sugar to sweeten and a pint of thin cream. Freeze by stirring in the ice cream freezer. When this is carefully made it is the most beautiful watermelon pink and tastes as good as Imitations Are Dangerous.

AN OHIO druggist writes to "The Practical Druggist," a prominent New York Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria All the Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria. All the formulas I have worked with are either ineffective or disagreeable to administer."

To this "The Practical Druggist" replies: "We do not supply formulas for proprietary articles. We couldn't if we wanted to. Your experience with imitative formulas is not surprising, but just what is to be expected. When Castoria is wanted, why not supply the genuine? If you make a substitute, it is not fair or right to label it Castoria. We can give you all sorts of laxative preparations for children, but not Castoria, and we think a mother who asks for Castoria would not feel kindly toward you if you gave her your own product under such a name."

No mother with a spark of affection for her child will overlook the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when buying Castoria.

Why do we so often call your attention to imitations of Fletcher's Castoria? Because it is a baby's medicine and imitations are always dangerous, particularly imitations of a remedy for infants.

Your druggist may not keep an imitation but they are to be found on drug-store shelves. Reliable druggists think only of the welfare of their customers. The other kind only of the greater profit to be

Your own judgment tells you that Fletcher's Castoria having for over thirty years at great expense held up its reputation, mast jealously guard it. Then, it follows that this company must use the very best of material. Must employ experts in the selection of the herbs. Must retain skilled chemists in its manufacture.

Your same good judgment must tell you that these irresponsible imitators are trading on your credulity and the reputation built up by Mr. Fletcher, during all these years, for his Castoria.

"WHO THE DEVIL ARE YOU?"

Synopsis-Senor Antonio de la Guerra, a fine old Spaniard living on his ancestral estate on the American side of the Mexican border, is informed by his American lawyer, Dempton, that there is a technical error in his will. He thereupon signs a new will, without reading it. While this is going on his adorable granddaughter and heiress, Senorita Teresa, is out on her rose-covered balcony listening to American love-making from Billy Stanway, owner of the Painted Rock ranch. Teresa goes to join her grandfather and finds him gone, with the drawing room in disorder and blood on the floor. The American takes command of the situa-

"Twenty-five," replied

"Good," cried Stanway. "Take twenty men with you; send the other five to the house. Pronto, Gaucho." Gaucho turned and ran, calling to his vaqueros as he went. "Pedro," called Stanway to the chief of the house servants.

"Aqui, senor." "Have the doors and windows shut, the shutters locked. When Gaucho sends the five men, put one of them upon the senorita's balcony, the others at the windows, especially the south windows, Pedro. Then put out all the candles and be silent, all of

He spoke swiftly and turned to follow Gaucho out into the dark. Teresa, who had been watching him in silence, came to him and put her hand upon his arm.

"Senor Billy," she whispered. "You are going with Gaucho and the rest?" "Yes." he answered shortly. "You are safe here; they do not dare an open attack in United States territory.

"What have they done with him?" she was asking, trying to speak steadily. "What do you think-did they-" She broke off. He could see her Stanway strode back to her, taking her by the shoulders and commanding her to stop her noise and go help Pedro lock the doors and windows. But Teresa had heard; they had all heard. She stood very still then, looking tall and slender and white.

"Go to the doors and windows as the American senor commands," she said steadily. "Leave no light to show that anyone is awake. Do whatever Pedro tells you to do, in swiftness and in silence. I shall come to see what you are doing in a moment now. Go." They left as she commanded, in swiftness and silence. The doors closed behind them, and Teresa turned her great eyes, full of dread and suffering, upon Stanway.

"You saw it before?" He nodded.

"You think that they have-killed

"No," he cried, more assurance in his voice than in his heart. "It means nothing if there is a little blood after men have struggled as they must have fought here. And if they killed him, then why carry the body with them? He is alive; he must be."

"Yes," she answered, "I should feel it here." Her hands were pressed tight upon her breast. "Now go with them, Senor Billy. You are good to us."

under his breath. And then, riding into the heart of the excited group, reining in his sorrel close to a deepchested black animal, its hide glistening with sweat, he said shortly: "Well, Torre, what is it? We are in something of a hurry."

Torre laughed. "We? So you are one of us, senor?

Bueno. It is a pleasure to know." "He has met up with the raiders, Senor Stanway," Gaucho snarled. "He was riding this way from across the river. He is wounded, see?" Stanway saw that there was blood upon the young Spaniard's cheek, that there was a long cut which might have been made by a grazing bullet.

"Small reason we should loiter here," he said quickly. "What way Torre evenly. "Gaucho!" cried Stanway then. 'Scatter your men out as we ride so that we make a line a mile long when doors. we come to the hills just across the line. Let them keep a sharp lookout, and fire if they see the rebels. We must not get too far apart, or we shall not be able to do anything. How many of them were there, Torre?"

"I forgot to count, senor. I should say, fifty, perhaps." "We are twenty. That is enough.

You are not coming with us?" "I think not. Why, with so competent a leader as you, should I come also? No. I think," and he turned his horse toward the white walls of the hacienda, "that I shall remain here with my kinswoman. There may be a second attack upon the rancho.

Good hunting, senor." He turned his horse, and, sitting easily, gracefully in the deep Mexican saddle, rode away through the moonlight. Stanway, frowning after the retreating form, hesitated a moment.

Then, calling sharply to Gaucho Morales, he gave his horse the spur and turned southward.

"We may as well go back, Gaucho," Stanway said at last. "They will want ransom, I suppose. When they speak we'll know what to do."

And reluctantly, his face black with the wrath upon him, Gaucho Morales called to his men to turn back. The sunlight lay bright and warm upon the oranges and their blossoms when they rode back to the rancho, Stanway threw himself from the saddle, a bit stiff from long hours of hard riding.

Then, walking slowly now, loath to greet Teresa de la Guerra with news of their failure, he came into the patio. She was there waiting for him.

"Nothing," he blurted out. "We have found nothing." "I know," she said quietly. She came toward him, putting out her hands. "You have been good to us, Senor Billy." He laughed a bit awkwardly. "I don't know how," he retorted. "I

"You found nothing?" "Nothing that I could understand," she answered quietly. "Something I could not."

He looked up at her quickly, his eyes full of question. "This," she answered, not waiting for him to speak.

She placed a folded paper before him. He glanced at it, frowned, "You understand what we're doing, looked again, and turned once more

The oil well we are going to drill on the Rio Grande in Presidio County will benefit every resident of the county and conduce to the upbuilding of every enterprise in the county, even to the building of good roads.

> The landowner will be especially benefited by the extraordinary increase in bonus values for leases on his land. Mr. Landowner, today you cannot secure twenty five cents per acre bonus on your land for an oil lease. But, had you ever stopped to think of the fact that with a deep test well going down for oil on the Rio Grande in Presidio County where we know oil will be found, that not an acre of land in Presidio County will lease for LESS THAN $1.00 PER ACRE? Your investment in our company will bring you in ten fold profits. Even SEVENTY FIVE CENTS PER ACRE increase in value on your land means much, and you are doubly sure of many times your money back.

Mr. Merchant, you will prosper because you will divide the business with Mr. Landowner by exchanging some of your goods for some of Mr. Landowner's money derived from the high prices

Messrs. Carpenter and Builder will grow fat on more work that will be necssary to supply the increased demand for new buildings and their pockets will bulge with the ready cash.

And Mr. Hotel Man, you too ,will fill your coffers from the pockets of the ever increasing number of guests as they pass in to swell the fortunes of Mr. Landowner. You will need more rooms and larger accommodations.

And Mr. Abstractor will have an opportunity to even up on that old score on which he lost some of his hard earned cash.

AND IN FACT EVER MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD of Presidio County will participate in these benefits that will result from the drilling of this deep test well.

The country doctor who with others, organized the Hog Creek Oil Company and thereby opened up the Desdemona oil field, and his good wife were both dead before they knew all the good that he had done. Such as opening the way for the debt trodden man to pay his bills and shove mortgages aside—the bringing of his neighbor ont of debt. But the country doctor and his good wife left two little orphans to battle through the world and now Evalin and John Potter can point to their $300,000.00 as the result of their father's investment of $2,000.00 to drill a test well where oil had not before been produced. They are able to attain an education and get through the world.

Such opportunities as this presented to you for investment in a real oil well in your own county are not common-just once in a life-time. You need no leader to put your shoulders to the wheel. You are your own boss, and you want to see your county grow in wealth. You want to see your people prosper. Join us now and help make yourself, your family, and your neighbor some money. Make up your mind to go down the line with us in this effort for your good as well as ours. We want you to win with us and be one of us. Our plan is open to the fullest investigation. Every dollar for the Presidio County well Not a dollar elsewhere. See Mr. Hoggins today. Save the time by looking him up and showing your faith.

The fleas, cooties, water bugs and rats are with us. Man is a noble animal, but the chiggers and house flies respect not his grandeur.

You recall how the insect-minded flew at Admiral Dewey to pull him from his pedestal, how they swarmed bout Roosevelt, Grant and Lincoln. The heroic figures remain, the pests are forgeotten, but, at the time, their activities humiliated up all! We have won a splendid victory. When the crisis came we met it gloriously. Let us not spoil it!

Of course no such great thing could have been accomplished without friction, dissatisfaction, and imperfection. Some were bound not to be pleased. But why not forget all our slips and awkward gestures and remember only our greatness?

Shall we sneer at the heroism of Chateau-Thierry because some lieutenant was a martinet, or despise the achievements of the navy because we know a sailor who won't pay us that $5 he borrowed?
