WATCH OUT FOR LEAF WORMS

The cotton leaf worm has already made its appearance in the majority of the farms in the Presidio Valley, and if the showers continue there is likely to be a general infestation within the next ten days. Farmers should get a good supply of poison on hand in order to be prepared to fight them when the next brood hatches out, which will probably be within the next week or two. The leaf worm is very easily controlled and all squares put on by the tenth or fifteenth of September will have time to mature.

How to Poison

Use calcium arsenate in the dust form at the rate of 4 to 6 pounds per acre depending upon the size of the cotton. Best results will be obtained when the dew is on the cotton. The best way to dust it on is by putting the arsenate in a flour sack or make a sack out of cheese cloth. If Paris green is used apply at the rate of one and one-half to two pounds per acre and use three to five pounds of hydrated lime to each pound of Paris green in order to prevent burning the foliage. If Paris green is used as a spray then you should use from one to two pounds to fifty gallons of water and to this add about six pounds of hydrated lime. The calcium arsenate may be obtained from the Marfa Lumber Company. All farmers who do not have enough poison on hand should put in your order with the Marfa Lumber Company at once in order that they might have time to get it in plenty of time.

R. S. MILLER,
County Agent.

DOWN BY OJINAGA WAY

(By Marshal South, Poet and Story Writer)
(To his Friend E. W. King, of Presidio)

The address was kinda faded an, the card was worn an frayed
An, I can't just tell exactly where that wanderin' card had strayed.
But some final round-up caught it, for the mail blew in today.
With this card from Don Edmundo—down by Ojinaga way.

No it wasn't long and flowery, for he's not that sort of pard,
Just a line or two of greetin', scrawled across a postal card.
Just a cherry hearty invite to pull stakes, drift down and stay
For a spell beside the Grande—down by Ojinaga way.

Just a little bit o' pastboard, but it's like a magic key,
That unlocks the memory pictures that the years had hid from me,
An' across the city's skyline, where the smokestacks dim the day,
All my thoughts go wingin' southward—down by Ojinaga way.

Guant dim hills against the skyline and the plains all sere and brown,
An' the Rio Grande slippin' past the sun-washed 'dobe town.
Nights o' stars that blaze like diamonds, clean dry winds that fan by day
And old Don Edmundo watin'—down by Ojinaga way.

Ojinaga in Chihuahua, where the river thick and brown
Marks the windin' twistin' border where the Texas plains sweep down.
On one side Presidio sleepin' an' just south across the way,
All o' Mexico unrollin'—down by Ojinaga way.

Yes, its quiet in Ojinaga, but it wasn't always so,
When Mercado crossed the river, just a dozen years ago;
When the Villa guns were boomin' on that blazin' shell whipped day,
And the Federals fled to Texas—down by Ojinaga way.

Pancho Villa and Madero, both their stars have flamed and set,
With Orozco and Carranza and a score of other yet,
But the river still is slippin' and the same worm breezes play,
And the sun it still a shinin'—down by Ojinaga way.

Yes, I guess I'm gettin' restless, but I see it all once more,
With old Don Edmundo sittin' in the shade beside his door,
Where the dryin' o' chilies in the breeze stir and sway—
An' I'm headin' back tomorrow—back down Ojinaga way.

SKILLMAN GROVE LIGHT PLANT

The Coffield Electric Shop with headquarters at Marfa has installed which is now being used at the present session of the Bloys Campmeeting, a 110 volt plant with all old wiring changed and made permanent, together with 20 new street lights erected. The Coffield Electric Shop manufactured at Marfa most of the plant, using throughout its own designs.

W. T. Jones returned yesterday from El Paso, where his wife has been for several weeks under the care of physicians. Mr. Jones reports her condition very favorable for recovery in a short time.

14 years. These bulls go from his ranges as calves and are taken by ranchers and stockmen all over the country to head their herds.

Mr. Brite culls his cow herds twice each year and replaces them with heifers that must measure up to a certain standard. He allots each head twice as much range as most cowmen, furnishes them a sure supply of water by installing more than 100 miles of pipe line, with water tanks every mile.

Tragedy Shrouds Anticosti Island

Disasters of Sea in Early Days Gave Isle Gruesome Name.

Toronto, Ont.—Athwart the Gulf of St. Lawrence, like a mighty gunboat guarding the portals of Canada, lies the island of Anticosti, as large as Porto Rico, and four times as large as the province of Prince Edward island.

Thirty-one years ago the late Henri Menier, the "chocolate king" of France, bought the island empire for $100,000. The other day his brother, Senator Gaston Menier, sold it to the Wayagamac Pulp and Paper company for $6,000,000—180,000,000 francs—a substantial profit for the Menier estate but yet a trifling sum for a kingdom as big as the state of Connecticut.

The "Isle of Shipwrecks" they call Anticosti in memory of the disasters that piled up on its rockbound coasts before the days of range lights and wireless. Countless tales that are sinister are associated with the island but the sweetening influences of the Menier regime have banished most of them to the limbo of tradition.

When M. Menier, one of the wealthiest men in the world, bought the island in 1855 his purpose was to establish a shooting lodge that would be the talk of the Paris boulevards. He planned a game preserve that would be magnificent, as well it might be with an acreage of 3,750 square miles and two or three million acres of woods already naturally stocked with game.

But the commercial possibilities of the island which previous generations had left almost as an outcast of the sea soon forced themselves on his attention. Fishing industries were established. A pulp mill was erected. Fishing and hunting camps for American tourists were built and leased with salmon and trout rights. Silver fox ranching was established, producing 1,500 pelts in a season.

A thousand farm settlers were brought from France and the Canadian mainland and given land "on shares." Every department had its own manager. A lobster fisherman from Nova Scotia, taking refuge from a storm in an Anticosti cove, was promptly arrested for trespassing, but the next morning, when his trade had been discovered, he was invited to visit M. Menier in his palace in France and ultimately became manager of Anticosti's lobster fishing department.

And so it comes about that Anticosti, bought as a plaything, now adds substantially to the Menier millions and is helping the patriotic senator to make a handsome contribution to the "Save the franc" fund.

Deer Roam on Golf Course.

Anticosti remains a magnificent game preserve. Everywhere one turns in Anticosti it is to see, nibbling in the fields, by the roadside, deer—wild deer so tame that the approach of a human seems rather an event to interest than to fear. Fifty or sixty may be counted on the golf course. There are said to be 250,000 on the island. Not a single dog is allowed on Anticosti. Even the wild foxes are to be seen roaming unmolested along the village street.

Bears originally made Anticosti famous. "Natis-cotee," the "place of bear hunts," was the Indian name, and the best of the euphonious French-Canadian could do with the name was "Anticosti." Bears still abound. Bears in the New York and Paris zoological gardens boast Anticosti as their home.

The sea thereabouts teems with codfish, haddock, lobsters (which in the tradition of habitants thrived on the victims of shipwrecks) and halibut, some reaching a weight of 400 pounds. Scores of streams abound with salmon and trout. Wild duck, wild geese, gamuts, cormorants and sea pigeon fill the air.

Recently Senator Menier planned to bring musk oxen from the Arctic and wild ponies from Isle aux Sables, the lost island of the Atlantic, to Anticosti. Generations ago settlers and horses were landed on Sable. The settlers died and the horses survived in atavistic form. Menier wanted to see if they could be redeemed.

Though Senator Menier could spend only summers on Anticosti—the island is marooned through a long winter—he never lost interest in the great experiment initiated by his brother. But increasing age made the sea voyage more exacting.

Jacques Cartier in 1534 discovered the island, which in a mood of plety he called "Assumption," a name which, however, would not stick. Then King Louis IV presented it as a seignery to Sieur Louis Joliet, discoverer of the mouths of the Mississippi and the Illinois. Joliet didn't seem to appreciate Anticosti, and his name is perpetuated not by the St. Lawrence island, but in a penal institution at Joliet.

But in Joliet's family the little island kingdom remained until 1873, when an English company, having bought it, induced Newfoundland fishermen and their families to settle there by dreams of a new Beulah Land.

Canadian government supply boats saved the settlers' lives after their dream dissolved within a year, with the company's money. In 1886-7 F. W. Stockwell of Quebec bought the whole island for $100,000. Menier, in his turn, bought it outright in 1895 from the Island of Anticosti company, Limited, of London, an English company which had gone bankrupt.

The English fishermen and wreckers who were squatting on the island soon realized that Henri Menier had begun his reign; that he was French to the core, and that he did not appreciate their semicivilized mode of life. Ordered by Menier to leave the island and not to fish within three miles of the shore, the mutinous fishermen joined the wreckers, who had made the most accessible section of the south shore their profitable stronghold for many years. Determined to investigate the sudden disappearance of the fishermen, Menier set out to steam around the south shore in his yacht Velleda.

Menier Outwits Wreckers.

Out of the darkness that overtook them shone the lure-light of the wreckers. The captain was about to shape his course toward the fatal beacon when Menier had his suspicions roused and went shoreward with a dozen men in a launch. They were fired upon by the wreckers, who saw the yacht anchor and realized that their trick had failed. Next day at the head of an armed posse of his employees Menier discovered their hiding place. A battle ensued, in which two of the wreckers were wounded. Piling the fishermen and ship ghouls into his yacht, Menier landed them summarily on the coast of Quebec.

Here was a clash of sovereignty, and soldiers began drilling for a possible war between Canada and Menier and possibly France, but the affair blew over with mutual concessions.

and the Meniers have ever since been welcome visitors to Canada. Senator Gaston Menier a year or two ago officiated at the opening of Toronto exhibition.

On the spot where the wreckers had established their lair, near the fine natural harbor of Ellis bay, at the western tip of the island, M. Menier built a magnificent mansion, a wilderness palace. Down to the smallest detail he drew the plans to suit himself. One oddity of the building upon which he insisted was that all parts of wood and iron must be screwed in place. Not a nail or rivet was used.

Objects of art, famous tapestries and rich and rare furniture were brought to the villa from all over the world. They were insured alone for $800,000. Even the late J. Pierpont Morgan was a bidder once for one of the priceless tapestries, but M. Menier declined to consider the request. In the memory of people still living remains the recollection of the lavish housewarming party given by the French chocolate king when the mansion was completed.

An Island of Wrecks.

Without the lure-lights of the wreckers Anticosti's rock-bound and often fog-enclosed coast—only four miles from the regular track of ocean-going steamers—was sufficiently dangerous.

In ten years of the early '80s, it was established by a Canadian official that 106 vessels, including seven steamships, sixty-seven sailing vessels, fourteen brigantines and eighteen schooners, with 3,000 souls and a loss of almost $7,000,000, were tossed upon its sunken reefs.

Sable island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, also famous for its shipwrecks, pales into insignificance before the gruesome details of some of the shipwrecks of this great island in the mouth of the St. Lawrence.

Troopships in almost every early English attempt to take Quebec were tossed upon Anticosti sands. One bleak day in November, 1827, the stout brig Granicus stranded on one of the island's shore reefs. Next spring a Canadian government vessel found the awful record of its crew. Human skeletons littered the inside of a rude hut near the shore, and in a pot over the fireplace were found the preparations for a meal whose like one would hardly expect to find outside Fiji or Tahiti in the premissionary days.

Out of the sixty-five men who found refuge on the island from the French sloop of war, Renommee, in 1737, only three men survived to welcome the rescuing party. Out of the woods came the three men of the Renommee looking more like wild beasts than men, with suppliant hands stretched out toward the French-Canadian fishermen who had come to aid them. For the three weeks previous to the rescue they had lived on their boots and fur breeches boiled in snow water. One of them died of joy. One became insane.

Today Anticosti enters a new era. The days of sinister disaster, and of romance, alike have faded. Modern commercialism with its reign of efficiency has at last enveloped this lonely sentinel of the deep.—Chicago News.

MEXICO TAMING SAVAGE INDIANS BY KIND USAGE

After Years of Bloodshed Yaquis in the State of Sonora Settle Down to Be Farmers.

Nogales, Ariz.—A problem confronting Mexico for the last twenty years, growing out of the central government's treatment of the Yaqui Indians in the state of Sonora, is in the process of being solved. In effect, the government is seeking to pay a debt owed the Indians through confiscation of lands.

Many years ago the Yaquis, an ordinarily peaceful and industrious tribe, but as capable of unmitigated cruelty, lost their rich lands. Some of their acreage was given to large land concerns by concession. Other land was taken over by the government because the Indians were allowing it to lie idle. The vast domain dwindled until it was only a tiny parcel.

Then the tribe went on the warpath, withdrawing far into the Bacate mountains, the strongholds of their fathers. They became treacherous, ferocious and merciless in the torture of their victims. Diaz, then president, excited many, killed off others and scattered their bands. This increased their hatred of the Mexican government.

With the passing of Diaz came a calm in many sections of the Indian country, but not until General Oregon became president did the Indians become pacified. They returned to their lands and worked them with the financial assistance of the government.

Since then the Yaqui has been peaceful. He has been sowing and caring for his lands and developing into a first-class citizen.

Now Mexico is turning its attention to the problem of compensation, but this time not in a spirit of conquest. The government, through the secretary of the treasury, is to help the Yaqui acquire the acreages settled upon by both Mexican and foreigner.

The central government's plan calls for an order of payment on lands unlawfully acquired or their return. In either case, the Yaqui will be recompensated. Lands taken by the government would be returned to the tribe with only one provision—that they be worked.

A Drastic Reduction in Frigidaire Prices!

Today, we announce a sweeping reduction in the prices of Frigidaire Electric Refrigerators.

The tremendous volume of Frigidaire sales (greater than all other electric refrigerators combined), and a vastly increased production capacity, have resulted in economies that now put electric refrigeration within the reach of every home and store.

No other electric refrigerator could offer such value. No other offers you the guarantee of General Motors, the endorsement of 200,000 users, the proven dependability, long life and economical operation of Frigidaire, nor the easy payment plan of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Price reductions are as much as $90, including both the complete metal cabinet Frigidaire and Frigidaire units for ordinary ice-boxes. Come in today, or mail the coupon.

These drastic price reductions affect both household and commercial models of Frigidaire. Whether you want Frigidaire for your home or place of business—whether you want one of the complete metal cabinet models or a mechanical unit for installation in your present ice-box—you can take advantage of new low prices that offer greater values than ever before.
