The party came from Amarillo, stopping at Canyon, and then they went from Plainview to Lockney and Floydada, thence southward, spending the night at Lubbock.

This is a question in which Arthur J. Callahan of San Francisco and a company of California capitalists are interesting themselves. Mr. Callahan is at the Hotel Edwards, on the way to Oklahoma, Texas and other cotton-producing states to look over the field.

BULGARIANS WIN; ON TO ADRIANOPLE

TROOPS OF SULTAN RETREAT FROM BLOODY FIELD AFTER TWO DAYS' STRUGGLE.

200,000 MEN ENGAGED

Heavy Losses to Victors May Delay Storming of Strategic Point.

After two days of fighting, the Bulgarian army gained a complete victory over the principal Turkish forces from the East. It is suggested that the battle, which occurred east of the railroad from Adrianople to Constantinople and around Adrianople, itself may prove the decisive fight of the war.

It is believed that the Turks, led by Nasim Pasha, commander in chief and Minister of War, are cut off from retreat to Constantinople.

Nearly 200,000 men were engaged on both sides. The Bulgarians fought reckless of life, and many hand to hand encounters ensued. The Turks were swept by artillery and trod under foot by cavalry charges.

The heavy losses of the victors may delay the storming of Adrianople until re-enforcements can arrive. Meanwhile, the Greeks occupied the Turkish town of Verrfia without resistance, and, cutting railroad communication with Monastir, are now within fifty miles of Salonika, and an attack on that city is imminent.

The Turkish troops defeated by the Servians and Montenegrins in the district of Novipalzar are arriving by hundreds in Bosnia.

JOHN BEAL SNEED IS GRANTED BAIL

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS THINKS JUDGE BROWNING ERRED; BOND AT $20,000.

JUDGE PRENDERGAST DISSENTS

Sheriff of Potter County Notified to Release Prisoner When Bond Is Made.

Austin, Texas, Oct. 30.—The Court of Criminal Appeals today reversed the judgment of District Judge J. N. Browning, of Potter County, and granted John Beal Sneed bail in the sum of $20,000.

The action was taken by a majority of the court, Judge Prendergast dissenting. The majority of the court held that the district judge erred in refusing bail to Sneed, and that the relator is entitled to bail.

Judge Prendergast, in his dissent, declares that he agrees with the judgment of the court below in refusing the relator bail, but that if the majority of the court decides to grant bail, the amount should be fixed at $35,000.

The sheriff of Potter County was notified to give Sneed his liberty upon making the necessary bail.

"AS-YOU-LIKE-IT" CLUB HOLDS MEETING WITH MRS. TANDY.

One among the most enjoyable social affairs of the week was the meeting of the "As-You-Like-It" Club last Friday afternoon, with Mrs. C. W. Tandy, 305 Archer Street. This might well be termed a "busy meeting. The ladies carried their fancy work. While the fingers were busy with the needle the mind was reveling in the beauties of Shakespeare.

Mrs. Bromley, the president, presided with charm and ease. The response to roll call—current events—proved both entertaining and informing. Mrs. Bromley gave a graphic sketch of the life of Shakespeare.

Mrs. Tandy took the ladies on "A Trip Around Stratford" that was full of beautiful thoughts, memories and description of this historic place. Mrs. Brahan followed with a synopsis of "As You Like It." "The wonder of all," as one member expressed it, "is how can one head hold so much." Mrs. Brahan had the happy faculty of being full in the essential and brief in detail.

Miss Lena Williams gave a reading. Mrs. Tandy, assisted by Mrs. W. Cook, of El Paso, and Miss Alice Harrel, served refreshments, consisting of "Mrs. Tandy's Virginia pound cake," marshmallow pudding, hot chocolate and bon-bons.

WANTS COMMITTEE TO SEE PLAINVIEW

LOCAL LODGE OFFERS TO PAY EXPENSES FOR INSPECTION OF SITE OFFERED.

PLAINVIEW'S OFFER BEST

Committee to Locate I. O. O. F. Home Will Not Consider West Texas.

The committee appointed to locate the new I. O. O. F. Orphans' and Widows' Home met in Corsicana last week for the purpose of receiving bids and inspecting sites offered by various towns. The committee at once eliminated all towns except Brownwood, Comanche, Bowie and Bonham, and propose not to visit any other towns.

Sam E. Bateman of Celina was a member of this committee, and, according to the Celina Record, Mr. Bateman thinks that Plainview offers the best location. The committee outvoted Mr. Bateman. Notwithstanding the fact that Plainview made the best offer from a financial standpoint, the offer was not considered because Plainview is "too far west."

When asked yesterday what action the local lodge would take, Judge H. C. Randolph, in charge of the matter for the local I. O. O. F. lodge, said: "We will take the fight onto the floor of the Grand Lodge. If they offer the Lodge a better situation than Plainview offers we have nothing to say. But to be eliminated by men who have never seen what we have to offer, particularly when they admit that our offer was best from a financial standpoint, is not fair to us, nor is it fair to the Grand Lodge of Texas."

Judge Randolph said that the local lodge offered to pay the expenses of the committee to Plainview. The Home at Corsicana is in North Texas, Judge Randolph says, and it isn't in that part of the State that another is needed. Health conditions of the South Plains and the rapid development of this section make it seem fair that a least consideration should be given to the offer.

Plainview offered 200 acres of ground, a big well for irrigation, equipped with centrifugal pump and all accessories necessary for irrigating.

Isn't it too bad that love is so seldom at high tide after the full of the honeymoon.

It isn't so much the high cost of living as the cost of high living that is worrying the world.

Don't worry too much because you are hedged about with limitations. Did you ever notice how electricity and steam do not work until they are harnessed?

TO BETTER PLAINVIEW—HOW?

Vote for the bond issue November 9. Twelve thousand dollars spent in street crossings for cement sidewalks will increase the value of your property not less than twenty-five percent. It means free mail delivery, too.

INCREASING THE LIFE RATE.

Governor Colquitt has said that more than 6,000 persons die in Texas each year of tuberculosis. Physicians have proved that tuberculosis is not hereditary; it is very contagious. In early stages it is curable. It is easily preventable.

Tuberculosis is most often contracted by breathing in the germs which have been sprayed into the air by the coughing, spitting and sneezing of a tuberculous person. Patients in many of the State sanitariums have eliminated all danger to attendants and visitors by the use of paper napkins. They cough, spit or sneeze into a napkin which carefully covers the mouth and nose, roll up the napkin and it is burned. Out in the sunshine this is not necessary.

With this precaution in our schools and homes, Dr. D. F. Luckey, who has made extensive investigations, says that the death rate from tuberculosis may be reduced in five years from 6,000 to 1,000 victims a year.

The five thousand deaths in Texas each year from tuberculosis which might be prevented, is murder. The prevention is simple and inexpensive.

HEROES OF PEACE.

The opponents of world peace who express the fear that the race might lose its rugged courage and physical bravery if men should learn war no more, see acts of heroism belying them every day.

The records of war have written down no finer heroism than that of the Mother Superior and her five Sisters who gave their lives trying to save children in their care when the St. John's Orphanage burned in San Antonio Wednesday morning.

It was the same last winter in the Equitable Building in New York City. A conflagration threatened; the cold was intense; ice-covered streets hindered them. The fire did not spread from the Equitable Building; and Chief Walsh died in the fight.

No less courageous were the bell boys in a recent Pasadena, California, hotel fire, who fought their way through blinding smoke and rescued the child of a guest.

In every blaze (and they are hourly), in every walk of life, we have new evidence of unselfish courage. And the most sublime heroes are those who fight the battles of life without the sound of arms, who dare to do right when they are the only witnesses.

The battles of peace require no less physical bravery and moral courage than those of war.

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS TO AWARD $10,000 IN PRIZES.

One Hundred and Forty-three Prizes Have Been Competed for By 4,000 Texas Boys and Girls.

The fourth annual convention of the Texas Industrial Congress will be held in Dallas, in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday, December 12, 1912. The principal feature will be the awarding of the $10,000 in gold prizes offered by the Congress for best yields of corn, cotton, kaffir corn and milo maize produced in the State this year.

The prizes offered are divided into four classes. Five thousand dollars in cash goes to twenty-nine contestants in Class A who produce the largest combined yields of cowpeas, kaffir corn or milo maize, cotton and corn on ten acres. The first prize in this class is $1,000; second, $750; third, $500; fourth, $250; and twenty-five prizes of $100 each.

In Class B, $1,500 is offered to the boys and girls of the State who make the best yields from one acre of corn. This prize money is divided as follows: $250 to the first; $125 to the second; $75 to the third; $50 to the fourth; and $25 each to the next forty winning contestants. Fifteen hundred dollars will be awarded to the boys and girls in Class C who produce the largest yields of cotton on one acre, and the prizes are the same as those offered for corn.

Twelve prizes, aggregating $1,000, yields of kaffir corn or milo maize grown on two acres without irrigation, and similar awards will be made in Class E for the same crops grown by irrigation.

There are, altogether, 143 prizes, and these have been competed for by more than four thousand contestants, from 205 counties in the State. The prize-winning contestants will have an exhibit of samples of their crops. All the railroads of the State will grant reduced round trip rates to Dallas on account of the convention.

SOUTH TEXAS BOY PICKS TWO POUNDS COTTON A MINUTE.

Fred Betts Averages 605 Pounds of Fleece Staple a Day During Three Weeks.

Waco, Texas.—It is believed that Fred Betts, aged about 22 years, and who lives at Rosenthal, near here, is the champion cotton picker of Texas. Young Betts exhibited affidavits from prominent farmers to the effect that he had averaged 594 pounds daily for this season. For three weeks' picking he averaged 605 pounds per day, and claims to have picked over 700 pounds per day on more than one occasion this season. A companion timed him recently and Betts picked 51 pounds in 25 minutes.

CIVIL SERVICE ORDER TO REACH 36,000 POSTMASTERS.

Postmaster General Announces Plans for Placing Fourth-Class Offices on Classified List.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—Plans for the administration of the executive order of President Taft placing all fourth-class postmasters under civil service were announced today.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has divided the 36,326 offices affected into two classes, A and B. Class A will embrace all postoffices at which the compensation of postmasters is $500 a year or more, while Class B will include offices at which the compensation is less than $500.

Appointment to all Class A offices will be made from three names certified by the Civil Service Commission after competitive examination of the applicants. Vacancies in all Class B offices will be filled on the recommendation of the postoffice inspectors after personal investigation. This method has been followed in several states with success.

The order is now in effect and the Civil Service Commission is ready to hold examinations to create lists of eligibles. Hereafter all vacancies in the postmasterhips of fourth-class offices will be filled without regard to the political affiliations of the applicant.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has recommended that all postmasters, irrespective of class, be placed under civil service.

The missionary meeting of the Calvary Baptist ladies on Monday of this week proved instructive as well as intensely interesting. The leader, Mrs. F. W. Foley, had the subject, "The World Field," well in hand, head and heart. She gave the ladies helpful talks on the missionary activities of the different fields. An offering of $15.00 was made to State Missions. At this meeting the ladies discussed plans for supporting a native worker in China.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the name of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which has no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest products. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrap. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

This is what Mrs. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer, for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 125. "I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good. "I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Address by Dr. Sutton. An address on the attitude of the State of Texas toward religious education in the public schools was made by Dr. W. S. Sutton, followed by discussion among the members. Dr. Henry F. Cope, general secretary of the Religious Education Association of Chicago, led the discussion of the topic, "Bible in the Public Schools."

One of the articles of membership in the new constitution declares that members shall comprise workers, leaders in their chosen fields, parents and all interested in religious ideas. All citizens of Texas, members of the National Religious Education Association, shall be ex officio members of the organization.

PASTOR QUOTES CAMPBELL.

Rev. L. L. Gladney Says Scriptures Promise Revelation of Holy Spirit.

Last Sunday morning Pastor L. L. Gladney, of the First Christian Church, in answering a criticism that he had not been preaching the New Testament gospel, read a treatise on the "Holy Spirit" by Alexander Campbell.

The question at issue was whether or not the Scriptures promise the witness of the Holy Spirit to every converted sinner whereby he may know he has been saved. The preacher agreed with Campbell that this is the case. The reasons given and the scripture quoted seemed to settle the question, and brought out the fact that the leader of what is termed the "Current Reformation" believed, with Calvin and Wesley, in entire sanctification, that Jesus can only be called the Christ through direct revelation.

The preacher said further that the ceasing of the preaching of the Holy Ghost religion is responsible for the fact that the church, as represented by all denominations, has steadily lost in power. In its present-day trucking and catering to the world, the church was likened to the little fice as he tries to please the big dog, abjectly begging for his life. He said the church is at a low ebb in spirituality and power because of trying to please the world. It is in the trough of the sea, and may remain there for another generation. There are signs, however, that she is now gathering herself for another mighty sweep forward, and in the end would surely triumph.

A. AND M. PROFESSOR WOULD LABEL FARM EXHIBITS.

Dr. Morgan Thinks Information Would Increase Educational Value of Display.

Suggestions that agricultural exhibits at the State Fair be so labeled as to show the variety of the products exhibited were made by Dr. J. O. Morgan, professor of agronomy at the Agricultural and Mechanical College, in a lecture at the A. and M. Building. Dr. Morgan said:

"From the standpoint of both quantity and quality, the exhibits of farm products at the Dallas State Fair merit the highest praise. However, in the matter of correctly labeling the different varieties of crops exhibited, most exhibitors are lacking."

"Some counties have on exhibition a sample of every variety of oats, wheat and barley grown in the county. Yet it is seldom that these are labeled, and often the exhibitor is ignorant of the name of the variety. In one exhibition there were specimens of more than one hundred kinds of grasses, not one of them bearing a label to show its identity."

"The same condition is true as regards the ten-ear exhibits from the Boys' Corn Club work. There are 235 ten-ear exhibits of corn shown by the corn club boys from different sections of the State, and not one of these exhibits bears any label to indicate the variety. In the majority of cases they boys themselves do not know what kind of corn they are growing."

"These exhibits are primarily educational, and if the boys were required to know (1) the name of the variety grown, and (2) to see that the corn was carefully labeled, the educational value of the exhibit would be increased 100 per cent; and this is just as true of the county exhibits as of the Boys' Corn Club work. Every variety of every crop exhibited should bear the correct name of that variety. Any one can identify corn as such, but few can distinguish between the different varieties of corn."

FOR PANHANDLE EXHIBIT AT TEXAS STATE FAIR.

Mrs. W. A. Warner Waits All-Panhandle Fair, to Boost Northwest Texas.

The Panhandle was represented at the State Fair by Wheeler, Hale, Hall and Floyd Counties. The Plains people should take off their hats to these loyal counties, that had nerve and spunk enough to bundle up their best products and take them to the Fair.

The Wheeler County display was one of the best all-round collections on the grounds, but arrived too late to compete for premiums. In quality and variety it was a credit, not only to Wheeler County, but to the Panhandle and the whole State.

Hale, as usual, was decorated with blue ribbons, proving her good qualities are not a hit and miss game, but a permanent reality.

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce did some first-class boosting, which was backed up by plenty of optical proof for every statement made, while Floyd County quadrupled all that the others stood for.

If every county in the Panhandle had been as loyal to themselves and the Panhandle as Hale, Hall, Floyd and Wheeler, the Panhandle would have carried away all the premiums in the agricultural field.

The State Fair of Texas will not be complete until there is one undivided Panhandle display on its grounds; an exhibit that will represent not only the possibilities of a single individual or county, but the Panhandle as a whole.

We must prove to the State of Texas that we not only can handle, but do handle, the Panhandle.

If the State Fair is the proper place to display churns and automobiles and threshing machines for the good of mankind, why not advertise the Palo Duro National park there. If the Panhandle would use the park idea for its scenic effect, and will build up an agricultural exhibit around it, we could have the most unique and attractive exhibition at the Fair and a half million people would get some definite idea of what and where the Palo Duro park is.

To reach this result, the county fair is the first step; the All-Panhandle Fair, the second; and the State Fair the third work. Time, brains, money, co-operation—these are the essentials. We have them all, if we will only use them!

Why not lay down our little county horns and all get a Panhandle bugle and blow it a few years, and watch the effect. At least, let us have a Panhandle badge for the 1913 State Fair. MRS. W. A. WARNER. Claude, Texas.

TEXAS SPENDS SEVEN AND ONE-HALF MILLION FOR BREAD.

Expenditure Increases from Four Millions in 1904; 2,000 Persons Supply "Staff of Life."

Washington, D. C.—According to a late report issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor, there are 385 establishments in Texas engaged in the manufacture of bread and other bakery products. The growth of this industry is indicated by an increase in the number of establishments from 244 in 1904 to 385 in 1909.

The value of products in 1909 amounted to $7,560,000, as compared with $4,346,000 in 1904, an increase of $3,214,000, or 73 per cent. There were 2,078 persons engaged in this industry in 1909, an increase of 888 persons, or 73 per cent, over 1904. The salaries and wages were $851,000 in 1909, and $461,000 in 1904, an increase of $390,000, or 84 per cent.

WEST TEXAS NORMAL SCHOOL ASKS FOR NEW BUILDING.

President Cousins Estimates Expenses for Biennium at $161,500; Wants Training School Building.

President R. B. Cousins of the West Texas State Normal School, at Canyon, asks the next legislature for an appropriation of $161,500 to cover maintenance for the next two years. This also includes $50,000 for a new training school and industrial building.

President Cousins itemizes his report as follows:

"Canyon, Texas, Oct. 11, 1912. Hon. W. P. Lane, Comptroller, Austin, Texas.

"Dear Sir: "Complying with your request, I beg leave to submit the estimated expenses for the West Texas State Normal College for the years 1913-14 and 1914-15:

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. 'First Year. Maintenance $ 40,000.00, Library, Improvements, Books and Repairs 5,000.00, Agriculture and Other Sciences 5,000.00, Complete Heating Plant 4,000.00, Training School and Industrial Buildings 50,000.00, Wiring, Plumbing and Equipping the Same 5,000.00, Total $109,000.00

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. 'Second Year. Maintenance $12,500.00, Library, Improvements and Repairs 5,000.00, Fencing and Improving the Grounds 5,000.00, Total $22,500.00

Mr. Cousins also suggests that in view of the fact that more than fifty per-cent of the students are self-supporting, wholly or in part, and that scores of young people are asking for means of helping themselves reduce expenses, the faculty will recommend to the Board of Regents that a request be made of the legislature for a dormitory in which young women may do "light housekeeping." He suggests that the State give them rent at nominal cost, thus reducing expenses to a minimum. This building, the president thinks, would cost about $60,000. It would be filled at once.

MODERN WOODMEN ASKED TO TEST PUBLICATION LAW.

Fraternity Publication May Challenge Constitutionality of Requirement for Publicity of Ownership.

A request has come to the Modern Woodmen of America that it go into the Federal court to challenge the constitutionality of the act of Congress, effective October 1, 1912, which requires newspaper publishers to make sworn statements to the post-office department regarding their circulation and the ownership of stock in their newspaper enterprises, and also to place the word "advertisement" over any reading matter that is published for pay, in the editorial columns or elsewhere in the publication.

As a reason why this beneficiary Society should undertake this task it is suggested that it has a very large membership among the publishers in the country, and especially the publishers of country weeklies, who, as individuals, could not bear the expense of an exhaustive legal contest. A further consideration offered that the Modern Woodmen Society above suspicion of stuffing its circulation statement, or publishing in its editorial columns any matter for pay since the entire publication, except the columns set apart for advertising is devoted to the affairs of the Society. It is suggested that the ordinary publisher could not resist the law without exposing himself to the suspicion of having made false statements of circulation, or of wishing to publish paid matter in the guise of voicing the opinions of the paper.

The suggestion has not been acted upon by the Society. Much as its officers might wish to serve the editorial brethren, the fact is that the Modern Woodmen Society has itself complied with the act, while the New York Journal of Commerce has gone into court to test its constitutionality.

When Well-Known Plainview People Tell It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Plainview, the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mrs. E. Valentine, 200 Jones Street, Plainview, Texas, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for some time in our family. A member of our family had suffered terribly from kidney trouble, and he tried all kinds of advertised remedies without benefit. He doctored steadily for a year, but became no better. As soon as he heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, he discontinued the doctor's medicines and used Doan's Kidney Pills according to directions. The first dose made him feel better, and after using several boxes he was cured. I also took Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and was cured. It gives me pleasure to endorse them."

HALE COUNTY AT THE DALLAS FAIR.

(By Z. E. Black, Director of Publicity, Pearson Syndicate.)

Mr. Meharg and myself relieved Mr. Dowden and Dr. Hanby at the end of the first week of the Fair—that is, we took charge of the Hale County exhibit. All we had to do was to answer questions and to offer some of the reasons why Hale County should be spelled with a large cap. H. For our predecessors had seen to it that the banner county of the Shallow Water Belt had got its deserts in the way of premiums. As is now generally known over the State, Hale County earned 36 blue ribbons and 16 reds, and if our booth had only been decorated with a few streamers of white also, it would have looked like a gigantic Fourth of July celebration.

It is well known that only irrigated lands that will grow the best varieties of truck, fruit and alfalfa can be hoped to return a reasonable rate of interest on a $500-per-acre basis. We had many ribbons for fruit, the blue for alfalfa, and practically all the premiums for high-class commercial truck, and were therefore in a position to prove to the numerous sightseers and questioners that land in the Plainview country would be the highest-priced and most productive in Texas, and would be unsurpassed by any in California.

The Fair was a record-breaker in every respect. And there was a more kindly feeling toward the Plains country than the writer has ever noticed heretofore. The interest throughout Texas and the Southwest in irrigation appeared to be general and intense. They have had drouths in the valuable black-land belts, and large numbers of their largest trees died this summer. No matter what the annual rainfall, people are going in for irrigation as insurance against drouths, and they had all heard of and were interested in the pumped irrigation section of the Plains.

One fellow was afraid, however, that this country would sink when water was being pumped from the subterranean strata in large quantities. Mr. Meharg and myself assured him that we already had in a large number of wells and that we couldn't feel ourselves slipping at all.

Some people would pass the booth and say to each other: "Hale County; oh, yes, that's where they irrigate," or "That's where Judge Joe Lancaster lives," or "That's where they are advertising for women." Ninety-five out of very hundred had heard of Plainview.

Hale, Hall, Wheeler, Floyd, Wilbarger and Terry Counties were the only ones in this portion of the State that had exhibits. They certainly upheld and advanced the reputation of the Plains as an agricultural section. If Hale County had had a little larger exhibit she could have entered the county sweepstakes, and she would certainly have defeated Hunt County for first place. As it was, we were not entitled to enter. Our citizens should make up their minds right now that Hale County shall have a sufficiently large exhibit at Dallas next year to enter this competition, in which even there is no doubt that we will win first place over all Texas.

Some of the counties that depend on rainfall alone were jealous of the honors we carried off, it seems, for a resolution was passed forbidding irrigated products to compete with rainfall products. The writer thought this was about the best compliment to irrigation he had ever heard. Dry farmers are realizing that irrigation means not only larger yields, but better quality crops. We have the utmost sympathy for the county that cannot irrigate, and we have no objection to them protecting themselves against the magical quantities and qualities of irrigated products.

The Hale County exhibit at the Dallas Fair was worth many times the expenditure on same. It was a backing up of the numerous statements that have been going out from Plainview into the papers of the State the past year. The premiums won make us prouder of our section, and thousands of sightseers are a few steps nearer Hale County than they were three weeks ago. Z. E. BLACK.

"THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES".

On next Monday night, November 4, the play of the above title will be presented to the people of Plainview at the Schick Opera House. Many have read the book from which this play was dramatized, and will be glad of the opportunity to witness this production.

Story of the Play.

A tale of love and mystery, enacted in the shadow of a great mansion of mystery on the shores of an Indiana lake. From this house old John Glenarm secretly departs, leaving the impression that he is dead, in order that he may the better learn what sort of men are Pickering, the executor of his estate, and John Glenarm, his grandson and possible heir; and hoping, also, to bring about a marriage between the young man and Marion Devereux, the alternate heir. The strange and unusual will which the old man leaves behind him convinces both Pickering and young Glenarm that a hidden treasure lies concealed somewhere in some mysterious passage of the mysterious house, and they both institute a search. The only one who is in old Glenarm's confidence is Bates, the butler, "who is too good a servant to be one."

Altogether this Bates is a strong and forceful character, brilliantly played by Mr. Gilmor Brown. In the list of really remarkable actors of the younger generation no name ranks higher than that of this clever young man. He has risen in a very short time to an accredited position as one of the most popular stars on the road.

A large and specially selected company will support Mr. Brown in this splendid play. —Adv.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. ### Sweet and Nutritious With COTTOLENE to take Out the "Indigestion"

Croquettes are likely to be greasy—if made with lard. Cottolene croquettes are never greasy. Cottolene heats to about 100 degrees higher than butter or lard, without burning, and forms a crisp crust which prevents the absorption of fat.

Cottolene

is more healthful and economical than lard. It costs no more than lard. You use one-third less of Cottolene than of either butter or lard.

The use of Cottolene is indispensable to good cooking, good health and true economy. TRY THIS RECIPE:

Chop fine any kind of cooked meat or fish. Moisten light meats with thick white sauce, equal amount, and dark meats with tomato or brown sauce made quite thick. Season with salt and pepper and onion juice if liked. When very cold, shape mixture into balls or cones; roll first in sifted bread crumbs, then beaten egg diluted with one tablespoon milk, then crumb again. Fry one minute in deep Cottolene. Drain on paper, and be sure the fat is hot for each frying. Serve plain or with sauce like that in the mixture, only thinner.

FIELD SECRETARY SPEAKS ON EVILS OF INTEMPERANCE.

Edward A. Thomas Tells Plainview People How Rum Sellers Entrap Boys and Girls.

The Methodist Church was well filled Tuesday night to hear Edward A. Thomas, field secretary of the State Prohibition Association, speak on whiskey and its attendant evils. A large proportion of the crowd was young people from the schools and public school boys and girls. These young people seemed intent on getting the facts about this matter.

Mr. Thomas used a stereopticon to illustrate what he told. He confined himself to the "better" saloons, showing how the "bowery brothel" takes care of the product of the "high-class" saloon. Uncle Sam was shown as a partner of each saloon keeper.

The speaker called attention to the fact that the railroads, leading banks and other corporations will not employ young men who drink; he also pointed out the evils of the dance hall, the wine room and the card table as going hand in hand with the grog shop.

Mr. Thomas went to Lubbock Wednesday.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—The Judge receives an important letter.

"That's what Jackson remembers if he remembers anything!" he muttered, as with trembling fingers he broke the seal. Almost instantly a smile overspread his battered features. He hitched his chin higher and squared his ponderous shoulders. "I am not forgotten—no, damn it—no!" he exclaimed under his breath. "Recalls me with sincere esteem and considers my services to the country as well worthy of recognition—" the Judge breathed deep. What would Mahaffy find to say now! Certainly this was well calculated to disturb the sour cynicism of his friend. His bleared eyes brimmed. After all his groping he had touched hands with the realities at last! Even a federal judgeship though not an office of first repute in the south, had its dignity—it signified something! He would make Solomon his clerk! The judge reached for his hat. Mahaffy must know at once that fortune had mended for them. Why, at that moment he was actually in receipt of an income!

He sat down, the better to enjoy the unique sensation. Taxes were being levied and collected with no other end in view than his stipend—his ardent fancy saw the whole machinery of government in operation for his benefit. It was a singular feeling he experienced. Then promptly his spendthrift brain became active. He needed clothes—so did Mahaffy—so did his grandson; they must take a larger house; he would buy himself a man servant; these were pressing necessities as he now viewed them.

Once again he reached for his hat; the desire to rush off to Belle Plain was overmastering.

"I reckon I'd be justified in hiring a conveyance from Pegloe," he thought, but just here he had a saving memory of his unfinished task; that claimed precedence and he resumed his pen.

An hour later Pegloe's black boy presented himself to the judge. He came bearing a gift, and the gift appropriately enough was a square case bottle of respectable size. The judge was greatly touched by this attention, but he began by making a most temperate use of the tavern-keeper's offering; then as the formidable document he was preparing took shape under his hand he more and more lost that feeling of Spartan fortitude which had at first sustained him in the presence of temptation. He wrote and sipped in complete and quiet luxury, and when at last he had exhausted the contents of the bottle it occurred to him that it would be only proper personally to convey his thanks to Pegloe. Perhaps he was not un-inspired in this by ulterior hopes; if so, they were richly rewarded. The resources of the City Tavern were suddenly placed at his disposal. He attributed this to a variety of causes all good and sufficient, but the real reason never suggested itself; indeed it was of such a perfidious nature that the judge, open and generous-minded, could not have grasped it.

By six o'clock he was undeniably drunk; at eight he was sounding still deeper depths of inebriety, with only the most confused memory of impending events; at ten he collapsed and was borne upstairs by Pegloe and his black boy to a remote chamber in the kitchen wing. Here he was undressed and put to bed, and the tavern-keeper, making a bundle of his clothes, retired from the room, locking the door after him, and the judge was doubly a prisoner.

Rousing at last from a heavy, dreamless sleep the judge was aware of a faint impalpable light in his room, the ashen light of a dull October dawn. He was aware, too, of a feeling of profound depression. He knew this was the aftermath of indulgence and that he might look forward to forty-eight hours of utter misery of soul, and, groaning aloud, he closed his eyes. Sleep was the thing if he could compass it. Instead, his memory quickened. Something was to happen at sun-up—he could not recall what it was to be, though he distinctly remembered that Mahaffy had spoken of this very matter—Mahaffy, the austere and implacable, the disembodied conscience whose fealty to duty had somehow survived his own spiritual ruin, so that he had become a sort of moral sign-post, ever pointing the way yet never going it himself.

The judge lay still and thought deeply as the light intensified itself.

Pegloe's Black Boy Came Bearing a Gift.

What was it that Mahaffy had said he was to do at sun-up? The very hour accented his suspicions. Probably it was no more than some cheerless obligation to be met, or Mahaffy would not have been so concerned about it. Eventually he decided to refer everything to Mahaffy. He spoke his friend's name weakly and in a shaking voice, but received no answer.

"Solomon!" he repeated, and shifting his position, looked in what should have been the direction of the shake-down bed his friend occupied. Neither the bed nor Mahaffy were there. The judge gasped—he wondered if this were not a premonition of certain hallucinations to which he was not a stranger. Then all in a flash he remembered Pentress and the meeting at Boggs', something of how the evening had been spent, and a spasm of regret shook him.

"I had other things to think of. This must never happen again!" he told himself remorsefully.

He was wide-awake now. Doubtless Pegloe had put him to bed. Well, that had been thoughtful of Pegloe—he would not forget him—the City Tavern should continue to enjoy his patronage. It would be something for Pegloe to boast of that Judge Slocum Price Turberville always made his place headquarters when in Raleigh. Feeling that he had already conferred wealth and distinction on the fortunate Pegloe the judge thrust his fat legs over the side of his bed and stood erect. Stopping he reached for his clothes. He confidently expected to find them on the floor, but his hand merely swept an uncarpeted waste. The judge was profoundly astonished.

"Maybe I've got 'em on. I don't recall taking them off!" he thought hopefully. He moved uncertainly in the direction of the window, where the light showed him his own bare extremities. He reverted to his original idea that his clothes were scattered about the floor.

He was beginning to experience a great sense of haste; it was two miles to Boggs' and Pentress would be there at sun-up. Finally he abandoned his quest of the missing garments and turned to the door. To say that he was amazed when he found it locked would have most inadequately described his emotions. Breathing deep, he fell back a step or two, and then with all the vigor he could muster launched himself at the door. But it resisted him.

"It's bolted on the other side!" he muttered, the full measure of Pegloe's perfidy revealing itself to his mind. He was aghast. It was a plot to discredit him. Pegloe's hospitality had been inspired by his enemy, for Pegloe was Pentress' tenant.

Again he attacked the door; he believed it might be possible to force it from its hinges, but Pegloe had done his work too well for that, and at last, spent and breathless, the judge dropped down on the edge of his bed to consider the situation. He was without clothes and he was a prisoner, yet his mind rose splendidly to meet the difficulties that beset him. His greatest activities were reserved for what appeared to be only a season of despair. He armed himself with a three-legged stool he had found and turned once more to the door, but the stout planks stood firm under his blows.

"Unless I get out of here in time I'm a ruined man!" thought the judge. "After this Pentress will refuse to meet me!"

The window next engaged his attention. That, too, Pegloe had taken the precaution to fasten, but a single savage blow of the stool shattered glass and sash and left an empty space that framed the dawn's red glow. The judge looked out and shook his head dubiously. It was twelve feet or more to the ground, a risky drop for a gentleman of his years and build. The judge considered making a rope of his bedding and lowering himself to the ground by means of it; he remembered to have read of captives in that interesting French prison, the Bastille, who did this. However, an equally ingenious but much more simple use for his bedding occurred to him; it would form a soft and yielding substance on which to alight. He gathered it up into his arms, feather-tick and all, and pushed it through the window, then he wriggled out across the ledge, feet first, and lowering himself to the full length of his arms, dropped.

He landed squarely on the rolled-up bed with a jar that shook him to his center. Almost gaily he snatched up a quilt, draping it about him after the manner of a Roman toga, and thus lightly habited, started across Mr. Pegloe's truck-patch, his one thought Boggs' and the sun. It would have served no purpose to have gone home, since his entire wardrobe, except for the shirt on his back, was in the tavern-keeper's possession, besides he had not a moment to lose, for the sun was peeping at him over the horizon.

Unobserved he gained the edge of the town and the highroad that led past Boggs' and stole a fearful glance over his shoulder. The sun was clear of the treetops, he could even feel the lifeless dust grow warm beneath his feet; and wrapping the quilt closer about him he broke into a labored run.

Some twenty minutes later Boggs' came in sight. He experienced a moment of doubt—doubtless Pentress had been there and gone! It was a hideous thought and the judge groaned. Then at the other end of the meadow near the woods he distinguished several men, Pentress and his friends beyond question. The judge laughed aloud. In spite of everything he was keeping his engagement, he was plucking his triumph out of the very dregs of failure. The judge threw himself over the fence, a corner of the quilt caught on one of the rails; he turned to release it, and in that instant two pistol shots rang out sharply in the morning air.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Solomon's Last Night.

It had been with no little reluctance that Solomon Mahaffy accompanied Yancy and Cavendish to Belle Plain; he would have preferred to remain in Raleigh in attendance upon Judge Price. Intimately acquainted with the judge's mental processes, he could follow all the devious workings of that magnificent mind; he could fathom the simply hellish ingenuity he was capable of putting forth to accomplish temporary benefits. Permitting his thoughts to dwell upon the mingled strength and weakness which was so curiously blended in Slocum Price's character, he had horrid visions of that great soul, freed from the trammels of restraint, confiding his melancholy history to Mr. Pegloe in the hope of bolstering his fallen credit at the City Tavern.

Always where the judge was concerned he fluctuated between extremes of doubt and confidence. He felt that under the urgent spur of occasion his friend could rise to any emergency, while a sustained activity made demands which he could not satisfy; then his efforts were discounted by his insane desire to realize at once on his opportunities; in his haste he was for ever plucking unripe fruit; and though he might keep one eye on the main chance the other was fixed just as resolutely on the nearest tavern.

With the great stake which fate had suddenly introduced into their losing game, he wished earnestly to believe that the judge would stay quietly in his office and complete the task he had set himself; that with this off his hands the promise of excitement at Belle Plain would compel his presence there, when he would pass somewhat under the restraining influence which he was determined to exert; in short, to Solomon, life embraced just the one vital consideration, which was to maintain the judge in a state of sobriety until after his meeting with Pentress.

The purple of twilight was stealing over the land when he and his two companions reached Belle Plain. They learned that Tom Ware had returned from Memphis, that the bayou had been dragged but without results, and that as yet nothing had been heard from Carrington or the dogs he had gone for.

Presently Cavendish and Yancy set off across the fields. They were going on to the raft, to Polly and the six little Cavendishes, whom they had not seen since early morning; but they promised to be back at Belle Plain within an hour.

By very nature an alien, Mahaffy sought out a dark corner on the wide porch that overlooked the river to await their return. The house had been thrown open, and supper was being served to whoever cared to stay and partake of it. The murmur of idle purposeless talk drifted out to him; he was irritated and offended by it. There was something garish in this indiscriminate hospitality in the very home of tragedy. As the moments slipped by his sense of displeasure increased, with mankind in general, with himself, and with the judge—principally with the judge—who was to make a foolish target of himself in the morning. He was going to give the man who had wrecked his life a chance to take it as well. Mahaffy's cold logic dealt cynically with the preposterous situation his friend had created.

In the midst of his angry meditations he heard a clock strike in the hall and counted the strokes. It was nine o'clock. Surely Yancy and Cavendish had been gone their hour! He quitted his seat and strolled restlessly about the house. He felt deeply indignant with everybody and everything. Human intelligence seemed but a pitiable advance on brute instinct. A whole day had passed and what had been accomplished? Carrington, the judge, Yancy, Cavendish—the four men who might have worked together to some purpose—had widely separated themselves; and here was the duel, the very climax of absurdity. He resumed his dark corner and waited another hour. Still no Carrington, and Yancy and Cavendish had not come up from the raft.

"Fools!" thought Mahaffy bitterly. "All of them fools!"

At last he decided to go back to the judge; and a moment later was hurrying down the lane in the direction of the highroad, but, jaded as he was by the effort he had already put for that day, the walk to Raleigh made tremendous demands on him, and it was midnight when he entered the little town.

It cannot be said that he was altogether surprised when he found their cottage dark and apparently deserted. He had half expected this. Entering, and not stopping to secure a candle, he groped his way upstairs to the room on the second floor which he and the judge shared.

"Price!" he called, but this gained him no response, and he cursed softly under his breath.

DEATH SUMMONS VICE PRESIDENT

JAMES SCHOOLCRAFT SHERMAN RESPONDS TO FINAL CALL AT HIS UTICA HOME.

RELATIVES AT BEDSIDE

Passing of Taft's Running Mate Confronts Republican Party with New Problems.

Vice President James Schoolcraft Sherman died at his home, in Utica, N. Y., at 9:42 o'clock Wednesday night, according to press dispatches. The Vice President had been ill for more than a year, of Bright's disease.

Sinking since early morning, he experienced slight relief after seven o'clock p. m., and there was an apparent improvement of the condition of his kidneys.

At nine o'clock his temperature rose to 106, and he began sinking. He was unconscious at the end, and had been for several hours.

All of the family were at his bedside, Mrs. Sherman, their three sons and their wives, R. M. and Sanford Sherman, brothers, and Mrs. L. B. Moore and Mrs. H. J. Cookingham, sisters.

Sketch of Career.

James Schoolcraft Sherman, twenty-seventh vice president of the United States, was born in Utica, N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855. He was the son of General Richard Updike Sherman and Mary Francis Sherman.

Mr. Sherman attended public schools in Utica and Whitestown Seminary. Afterward he entered Hamilton College, from which he graduated in 1878. Then he took up the study of law, and was admitted to the bar of New York State in 1880. He had excelled as an orator during his college days, and was often called upon to deliver addresses on public occasions. It was as orator that he finally drifted into politics. He entered the law firm of Cookingham & Gibson, which after a few months became Cookingham & Sherman.

The first political office Mr. Sherman ever held was that of Mayor of Utica. He was elected to that office in 1884, when he was but 29 years old. He was the youngest mayor in the history of the city. After the expiration of his term of office as mayor, Mr. Sherman was elected to Congress and, with the exception of one term, 1890 to 1892, when he was one of the many victims of the Democratic landslide, he served in the House continuously from 1887 to the time when he assumed the office of vice president.

He was a delegate to the Republican National convention of 1892, and chairman of the New York Republican State convention in 1895, and again in 1900.

When Mr. Sherman was boomed for the Vice Presidency in the summer of 1908, it was not the first time that he had been mentioned for that office. In 1900, when he was permanent chairman of the New York State convention, he was for a number of days a close rival of Theodore Roosevelt.

The abolition of hazing at the Naval Academy was largely due to Mr. Sherman, who introduced in Congress a resolution providing for a Congressional investigation into the affairs of the academy, particularly into the reports of brutal hazing by midshipmen. He went into the investigation himself with great energy and brought about the necessary reforms. He also was the father of the anti-scalpers' bill, an act to provide against the practice of ticket scalping.

In 1881, Mr. Sherman married Miss Carrie Babcock, daughter of Gen. Ellakim Babcock, of Oneida County, N. Y., with whom he had three sons, two of whom followed a business career, while the third became professor of mathematics at Hamilton College.

CHURCHES FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS One Hundred Thousand Ministers Are Asked to Preach Upon Study and Prevention.

People who are working for the study and prevention of tuberculosis express the belief that 100,000 ministers preached on the subject, either on Sunday, October 27, or will do so on some occasion near to that date. Consideration was had of many demands for special Sundays, and so pastors were asked to fit the call into their own plans. Last year about 50,000 made some mention of the day. President Taft, Cardinals Gibbons and Farley and many other distinguished people have approved this manner of calling the attention of the public to possible means of consumption prevention.

Achievements of these people to date are claimed to be: The forming of more than 600 local societies to combat the disease, the distribution of 80,000,000 pamphlets dealing with the subject, the establishing of 12,000 beds for advanced cases and 18,000 for curable ones, the founding of 500 hospitals, the opening of 400 dispensaries and the securing of laws in forty-five states intended to compel study and apply preventives of the ailment.

A chief purpose of the day this year is to give wide warning of the danger of relying upon, even of using, patent medicines and cure-alls claiming to have value. The scientists say there is no drug that will effect a cure, and that people waste both time and money. Along with the warning will be given exact instructions for the study and prevention of the disease, always to be done under some recognized physician. All of these points have been furnished by the National organizations to ministers everywhere.

SETH WARD COLLEGE NOTES.

Miss Betts visited at Hereford the first of the week.

Miss Ellen Morgan, former student in Southwestern University, whose home is at Lorene, Texas, has come to take charge of the Intermediate Department in the school.

Miss Williams and the students of the Expression Department gave a candy sale last week, the proceeds to be used in furnishing Miss Williams' studio. Students of the Art Department, together with Miss Betts, have papered and furnished the Art studio.

The organization of the Young Ladies' Tennis Association has added a feature of interest to the girls' out-of-door sports. Mr. Schuhmann has perfected this organization, and has put the courts in good condition. The Girls' Basket Ball Team has also been organized, and hopes to be practicing soon.

The football team has been practicing hard this week. They hope to meet the Lowery-Phillips team, on the Amarillo gridiron, Saturday.

Students in the Music Department, under the direction of Mr. Herrmann and Miss Daniel, gave a pleasing entertainment on last Monday evening, in the college auditorium. The program consisted of both piano and vocal selections, followed by a humorous play, "A Love of a Bonnet." A candy sale followed the program, the proceeds being used to furnish the music studio.

Seth Ward College choir furnished the music at the Methodist Church last Sunday evening. That the choir is doing god work is evidenced by the many expressions of appreciation of the music last Sunday evening. The choir furnishes music for chapel services every morning.

The boys and girls at the dormitories enjoyed a Halloween party, given at the girls' dormitory, on last evening. Spooks, witches and hobgoblins were much in evidence, and in the weird lights of the Jack-o-lanterns hideous masks and robes provoked much curiosity.

The second number of the Seth Ward Lyceum Course, The Ernest Gamble Concert Company, will come on November 23rd. The date formerly announced their number to be given on November 30. No concert company in America has a wider reputation than this company, and a most pleasant and profitable evening with Mr. Gamble, bass soloist; Mr. Edwin M. Shonert, pianist, and Miss Verna Leone Page, violinist, is assured to all who hear them.

GOODYEAR CO. GIVES $300,000 TO TRANSCONTINENTAL ROAD.

One-Tenth of $10,000,000 Necessary to Build National Highway in Sight.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—Impetus to the tune of $300,000 has been given the proposed Ocean-to-Ocean National Highway by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, of Akron, Ohio. Over one million dollars has already been pledged, and some of the largest makers of automobiles and accessories have yet to be heard from.

The plans, as originally outlined by Carl G. Fisher, of Indianapolis, and his associates, provides for the purchase of materials for the building of a highway from New York to San Francisco, to be completed in time for general use to the Panama Exposition in 1915. It will take $10,000,000 to provide $5,000 worth of material for each mile, but one-tenth of the amount has already been sighted and the surface has not been scratched.

F. A. Sieberling, president of the Goodyear Company, voices the attitude of manufacturers toward the project. "The need of a National highway from coast to coast," said Mr. Sieberling, "has been so obvious that its possibility, in fact its almost definite assurance, seems to be the most natural thing in the world. The plan proposed by C. G. Fisher, of Indianapolis, is the first practical plan, to my knowledge, that has been advanced.

"In pledging its pro rata of approximately $300,000, the Goodyear Tire &

Rubber Co. feels that it has done nothing remarkable or unselfish. We look upon the pledge as a movement on which we will expect to realize dividends. The fact that the industry is supporting this move argues, to my mind, that the manufacturers look upon the project in the same light. "In my opinion, the move will succeed. It deserves to succeed. The men behind it are calculated to see that anything they back gets its deserts. In other words, they are business men—and it takes business men, not politicians, to do all of the really big things of today."

DON'T POISON YOURSELF WITH MERCURY.

That's What You May Do If You Take Calomel, Because Calomel Is a Form of Mercury.

If you ask a druggist for bi-chloride of mercury, he will give it to you in a red-label bottle marked POISON. Calomel is also a chloride of mercury, as your doctor will tell you, and, as everybody knows, mercury is a poison.

When you think you need a dose of calomel, instead of whipping your liver up with the mercury it contains, go to R. A. Long Drug Co.'s drug store and pay fifty cents for a bottle of Dodson's Liver-Tone, a pure vegetable liquid that starts the liver to action just as surely as calomel does, and is perfectly mild and harmless, with no bad after-effects. No restriction of habit or diet is necessary.

Dodson's Liver-Tone gives such perfect satisfaction in curing constipation and torpid liver that R. A. Long Drug Company will give the money back to any person who tries it and does not find it a perfect substitute for calomel. —Adv. 44

STABLE FLY CARRIES INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Contention of Harvard Professor confirmed; Infected Monkeys Communicate Disease through Flies.

A Washington dispatch to the Dallas News states that Surgeon John F. Anderson and Past Assistant Surgeon Wade H. Forest, of the National Public Health Service, have completed experiments confirming the contention of Dr. Milton J. Rosenau of Harvard Medical School that infantile paralysis is communicated by the stable fly.

At the international Congress of Hygiene and Demography in Washington last month Dr. Rosenau described his experiments. He infected several monkeys with infantile paralysis and exposed them daily from the time of inoculation until death to the bites of several hundred stable flies.

Twelve other monkeys were then exposed to the bites of these flies. At the time that Dr. Rosenau made his announcement six of the twelve had developed symptoms characteristic of infantile paralysis. Of the six, two died, three were paralyzed and one recovered. In the cord of one of the monkeys were found the characteristic lesions of infantile paralysis. The cord of the other dead monkey showed changes less characteristic of the disease. At the time of the announcement a sufficient interval had not elapsed to determine the result of the attempt to transmit the infection to other monkeys by inoculation with the cord of one of the two that died.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE ON MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4.

As a play, "The House of a Thousand Candles" has met with wonderful success, not only during the long New York run, but in all the larger cities of the East where it has appeared for from two to four engagements. It has to an eminent degree the essential elements of popular success—excitement, humor, and a delightful love story.

There is one inviolable rule in witnessing a drama such as this, and that is that one must absolutely refrain from thinking. When once this condition is complied with, the play becomes absorbingly interesting. And how many law-abiding citizens there are in this particular direction. The play contains nothing that is not included in the book, and when that appeared some time ago it was voraciously devoured by an intelligent, reading public. It still maintains its position as one of the most popular and best-selling novels of the day. —Adv.
