Give Sick, Bilious Child
"California Fig Syrup"

"California Syrup of Figs" is the best "laxative physics" to give to a sick, feverish child who is bilious or constipated. Directions for babies and children on bottle. They love its fruity taste. Beware! Say "California" or you may not get the genuine recommended by physicians for over thirty years. Don't risk injuring your child's tender stomach, liver and bowels by accepting an imitation fig syrup. Insist upon "California."

"CASCARETS" IF SICK,
BILIOUS, HEADACHY

Tonight sure! Let a pleasant, harmless Cascaret work while you sleep and have your liver active, head clear, stomach sweet and bowels moving regular by morning. No griping or inconvenience. 10, 25 or 50 cent boxes. Children love this candy cathartic too.

DANDRUFF GOES!
HAIR STOPS FALLING

Immediately after using "Danderrine" you can not find any dandruff or falling hair, but what pleases you most is that your hair seems twice as abundant; so thick, glossy and just radiant with life and beauty. Get a 35-cent bottle now. Have lots of long, heavy, beautiful hair.

DODSON'S LIVER TONE
KILLS CALOMEL SALE

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an iron clad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach and bowels better than calomel without making you sick—15 million bottles sold.

PRESS COMMENT

A theatrical producer has sued Henry Ford for five million dollars. As an advertising stunt for both of them it is a hummer. Henry sells tin lizzies, and the more they talk about Henry the more they buy his lizzies. And, too, it is quite as profitable at times to advertise a theatrical producer as it is his plays. What of the verdict? Who cares, so long as we publishers give them all of the free advertising they want? They're satisfied—so are we.—Paducah Post.

It seems that Congressman Blanton has brought down the consolidated wrath of his fellows, by his boasts to his Texas constituency. One thing is very noticeable in the matter—the greatest venom against him is shown by congressmen who hail from strong union labor centers. There is just one enemy more implacable than the time honored "octopus" of finance. That is unionism as taught and exemplified by old Sam Gompers. Give Blanton the benefit of the doubt—he may be right, even is he did commit an indiscretion.—Clarendon News.

Before determining to make someone else responsible for all of the woes through which we are called to pass, we should give ourselves the once over and see if we are not in measure to blame. This endless endeavoring to shift the blame to somebody other than ourselves, reflects a near fatal weakness. It is our business to work out the ends we desire, and this applies to communities as well as to individuals.—Amarillo News.

A few firstclass necktie parties are needed to show some of the criminal class that the people are not going to be bothered by their kind. It is getting to be a tough proposition when a man is killed because he will not open a safe or deliver over money that is not his own.—Childress Index.

Youthful criminals are the most incorrigible. They go into crime deliberately. They haven't the capacity for reformation because they haven't the power of resistance, with rare exceptions. The youth who successfully commits one robbery is never satisfied until he adds another to his account, another and another. The middle-aged man caught in his first crime may have sense enough to realize how unprofitable is the criminal's career. But the youthful criminal has no such sense. He hasn't much sense anyway. To weep over the erring is well enough, and to sympathize with those to whom he may be dear is natural. But to expect the youthful deperado to reform is about as intelligent as expecting the old one to sprout wings under his shoulder blades. The old crook may remain honest through the force of discretion if not the compulsion of grace, but the young one has no such discretion to draw upon.—State Press in Dallas News.

Senatorial redistricting is said to be in a comatose condition. This is little short of outrage. Twenty years ago the present thirty-one senatorial districts were carved out. More than a million people have been added to the population of West Texas since 1900. Fair redistricting would give the people of the West six additional senators. Gov. Neff is in favor of redistricting; he is a favor of justice for all sections of the state and he never hesitates to declare himself.—Fort Worth Record.

Of course it is a grand and glorious feeling to sit in an exhalted position in Washington two years after the war is over and point out the mistakes of the war and call to task those who made mistakes or mismanaged the affairs of the war. No American who was not actually connected with the army has but little conception of the difficulties confronting the men of the army during the war, especially that part of the army which was abroad and were hampered by the restrictions of being upon a foreign soil. No one realized more the absurdity of some of the things that were done more than the men who were doing it, and none realized more the extravagance of paying the prices asked by some of the foreign governments, and some of the American profiteers, than did the men who handled the financial affairs of the army. But America went into the war to save humanity from the onslaught of the Hun. It was no time for meditative and the slow going processes as is used in our legislative halls. It was a game of action, and the fastest actors were the winners. The committee which is smelling out the mistakes of the war is not doing it that these mistakes might be remedied but that they may punish their enemies in the administration. General Davenport told the committee where to head in. Pershing told the committee their work was nonsense. The American public is getting pretty much disgusted with the performance. The war was won; and was the quickest and safest way possible. The committee would serve America to better advantages were it to punish the slackers and food profiteers who run free rather than go into the affairs of military operations, of which they are absolutely ignorant.—Canyon News, whose editor saw Y. M. C. A. service in France.

An appraisal and inventory of the estate of the late Major George W. Littlefield of Austin, just completed, shows it is valued at $4,158,931, largely of bonds, stocks and cash.

MAY BE TRUTH IN LEGEND

Investigation of "Enchanted Table" In New Mexico Seems to Bear Out Story Long Believed.

An isolated butte rising out of a vast plain in the vast Southwest—a flat-topped hill 430 feet high and with sides so nearly vertical that for many centuries it was supposed to be hopelessly climb-proof, is one of the most interesting of the natural wonders of this part of the United States.

Many attempts to climb the "Enchanted Table" or "Mesa Encantada," as the first Spanish settlers called it, have been made, but Indian superstition has attributed their failure largely to a supernatural influence that balked the ascent. Hence the name "Enchanted."

According to the Indian legend, the mesa, which is three miles northeast of the well-known Acoma pueblo, in New Mexico, was very anciently the site of a prehistoric village. A frightful storm carried away part of the rock and with it the rocky staircase which offered the only path of access to the summit.

As a result, the people in the village were cut off from the plain below. They could not climb down; no help could reach them, and they starved to death. The only survivors were a few who by chance were absent from the mesa top at the time of the disaster. From them, it is explained, are sprung the present-day inhabitants of the pueblo of Acoma.

But science, while disposed to be incredulous of things unproved, is at the same time inclined to investigation. Hence an expedition, which the government bureau of ethnology sent out to climb the Mesa Encantada. The party, after almost incredible efforts, arrived upon the top.

What they expected to find was nothing. But, to their surprise, they discovered, on the summit of the mesa, plain and unmistakable evidences of ancient occupancy, such as ruined walls, and what they saw there afforded a measurable confirmation of the Indian legend.

Tasks for Disabled Fighters.

An outline of the efforts of the bureau of employment of the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry to find suitable industrial tasks in Pennsylvania for disabled soldiers and sailors is given in a bulletin just issued by the department. This bulletin, which may be obtained upon application to the department of labor and industry, at Harrisburg, analyzes by task and locality, the 50,000 employment opportunities offered by 900 employers in 50 counties, number of plants, kinds of firms and numbers of openings in each class of employment. One series of tables shows at what tasks several hundreds of disabled men are now employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company. Another chapter on "Placement of Disabled Soldiers and Sailors to Employment" gives a general review of the placement subject, outlining conditions that may be expected and methods to be employed in locating each disabled soldier and sailor at a specified task in Pennsylvania plants.—Scientific American.

Turned From Friend.

The revolving floor in one of the dancing saloons mystified two young lieutenants just back from France and evidently strangers in New York. They were ushered to a table on the revolving floor. Shortly afterward one of the soldiers went to the telephone booth; emerging about ten minutes later, he looked around in dazed fashion, and made several starts for the spot where he had apparently left his companion, but couldn't seem to find him. "Say, there," he huskily remarked to the head waiter. "Lend me one of your boy scouts to help me find my chow table, will you?" "What's the trouble?" inquired the headwaiter solicitously. "I left my friend at a table over yonder by the post," answered the bewildered soldier, "and now he's disappeared." As there were a number of men in uniform present the head waiter suggested that the friend be paged. "That's the idea," eagerly responded the soldier. "His name's Kennedy." And in a short time the messmates were reunited. Then the existence of the revolving floor was briefly explained to them.—New York Sun.

Yep, It Takes Practice.

For the forty-fifth time in 12 months she stood at the bridal altar and repeated the solemn words that linked her soul forever with that of the handsome man by her side. As the minister held up his hand signaling for the slow traffic to come forward and kiss the bride, the handsome man leaned over to press the first kiss on her ruby ringed lips.

As he did so, his foot caught in her train and threw him off the track. "Whattell, ya big boob," came an encouraging voice from a megaphone on the side lines as the purring of the camera ceased. "Now we'll have to make that again. You've spoiled 500 feet of perfectly good film."

Individual Cups for Cows.

The Jersey herd of Ralph Ballou is now provided with individual drinking bowls. Each stall is connected with the water system and has an automatic bowl about ten inches in diameter and six inches deep. When the cow sticks her nose in the bowl to drink she turns the water on, and as the bowl fills she raises her head and cuts the water off. This method avoids having to fill the trough or breaking the bowls for the cows when it is broken. Monroe County, Ark.

Losses Paid In Field

We are expecting a letter from the Equitable, one of the large hail companies, stating that all claims will be paid at the time of adjustment.

This is one of the many large companies we received when we took over Mr. Harrel's business. We expect to handle the fire and hail business on the same splendid plan Mr. Harrel used.

The credit rate on Hail Insurance will be 10 per cent cheaper this year.

Interesting Happenings at Bellview

Mar. 3.—Bellview on a tare. In addition to being located in the best portion of the best county in the best state in the United States, Bellview has one of the best brick and tile three room school houses in the county, with a scholarship of 69 or 70 pupils, presided over by one of the most competent and proficient teachers in the county, Mrs. Stubbs, ably assisted by one of the angelic throng, Miss Angel.

Last week the community decided to make some improvements on the grounds, so on labor day, about 30 or 40 men, women and children met and each brought one to a half dozen nice locust trees and placed two rows on three sides of the campus, the ground having already been thoroughly prepared.

Then, they put up a new windmill on a 30 foot tower, and a nice substantial fence in front. The ladies had dinner on the ground and everybody was satisfied and happy.

Sunday about 100 of the friends and neighbors of that prince of good-fellow, and a pioneer settler, Mr. Geo. M. Schick, who helped drive back the Indians, exterminate the buffalo, banish the lobo and the coyote, annihilate the prairie dog and became the champion broncho buseter of the all, met and gave him a birthday shower. Yet notwithstanding all these brilliant achievements, he succeeded in convincing most of his guests that he was only fifty-nine years of age. Every one brought well filled baskets and while I am no last year's chicken I confess to you I have never seen such a bounteous and toothsome dinner spread. The tables literally groaned under the burden of the choicest viands and delicacies, and everybody went away happy and wishing that his birthday would come at least once a week.

To cap the climax little Tom Terrell, (he only weighs about 250 lbs.), discovered his "lost rib" and "snuggly tucked her in" and this was a source of another jubilation.

"THE PICTURE THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN"

What would I give for the smile of the babe
Who's outgrown its childhood today!
I remember its nose
Its little pink toes
Two sugarplum thumbs
And its mouth like a rose;
Oh! a good many dollars I'd say.

Intending to have some photographs made.
Jes put it off day after day.

Neglected to go and the kiddies grew so
Now I haven't a picture, b'gosh it's a flow
To think of me actin' that way.
How oft in the past have we heard the above
O, a similar story of woe;
A word to the wise will surely suffice
Regarding sweet memories and family ties,
Beginning today—let's go.
