POOR OF FRANCE AND ENGLAND LOOK TO U. S. AS HOME

Large Numbers Would Come Here But Find It Hard to Raise Money.

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Great numbers of the laboring class in England and France went to emigrate to the United States but find it difficult to do so because of their inability to save enough money and because of adverse money exchange rates. This information was brought back to this country by Roland Mahany, who was sent to Europe by the Wilson administration to attend sessions of the International Commission of Immigration. The report stated that there is a strong note of optimism for better times in England, but a lack of optimism with the poorer class in France.

NEFF VEToes THREE BILLS

(Associated Press)
AUSTIN, March 28.—The governor today vetoed three bills passed by the last legislature. The bills which came under the governor's axe were first, the measure appropriating $125,000 to match the federal appropriation for the purpose of building a federal vocational training school in Texas authorized by the Smith-Hughes act. The governor stated that the bill as passed would not meet the requirements of such an institution and that in that respect was defective. He stated that he would submit a new bill at the next session of the legislature. The second bill to be vetoed was the one providing that defendants should have thirty days after the motion for a new trial before compelled to satisfy punishment in the nature of a fine. The third bill proposed to authorize county auditors to audit district school books.

NO SERIOUS INJURY TO FRUIT CROP HERE RESULT OF COLD WAVE

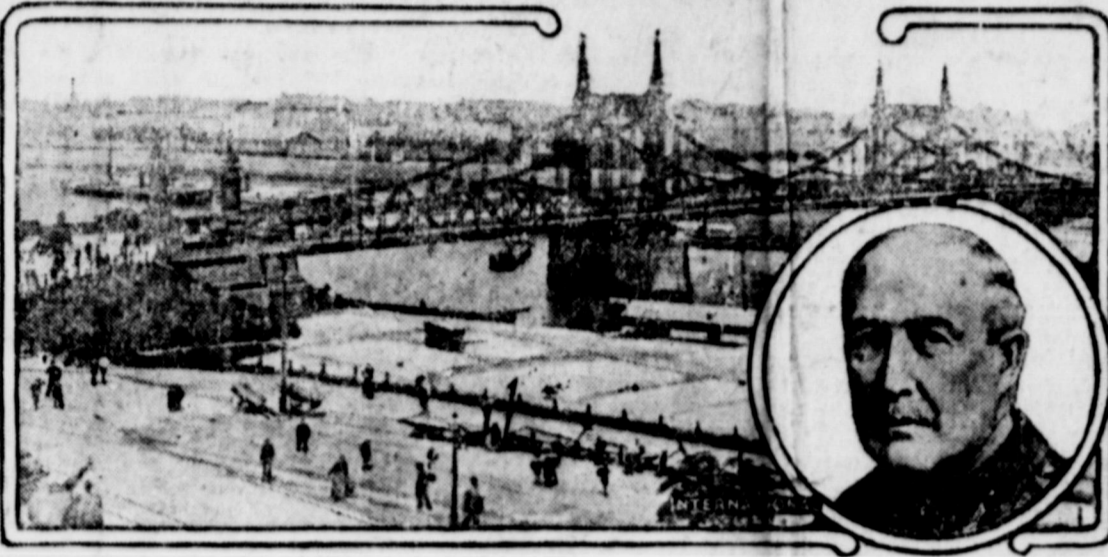

Notwithstanding the low temperature of Sunday and Monday it is not generally believed that fruit crops have been damaged seriously, according to reports reaching the Reporter from over the county. Freezing temperature obtained until late Monday when it began to get warmer. The weather report indicates that Tuesday will be considerably warmer with steadily rising temperature. Fruit crops north and northwest of Sweetwater, in the Panhandle country, is damaged heavily, press dispatches say.

SWATTERS GOING THROUGH PROCESS OF ELIMINATION

(By Humpty)
Saturday afternoon a small gathering of the faithful saw what was probably the fastest workout of the present season. With ideal weather on tap "Smitty" put the boys through their paces in whiplike fashion. Pipkin and Alred alternated at first. Ernschaw and Dickson cavorted around the middle station and Williams divided the work at short with Dixoa. Mason worked alone in the far corner and Tom Johnson handled the big mitt and kept the boys hot. The pitchers were taken care of by Fleebarty, who spent the better part of an hour teaching them the art of fielding their position and Popboy devoted his time to giving instructions at the bunting game. During batting practice it was noted that Manager Smith ordered his hurtes to "put something on 'em" for the first time since the training period started. Fleebarty and Cauldridge worked like beavers and cut loose with several "hooks" while Wayland experimented with the "screw ball." The entire crowd is showing much improvement under the watchful eye of Skipper Smith and two or three weeks from now will look like a different ball team.

It is rumored that local officials are dicker for two or more new players who have been highly recommended. Both President Neal and Manager Smith are leaving no stone unturned in their effort to get together a winning team and it would not be surprising to see several new faces appear on the scene of action in the near future. It will mean renewed interest and make the competition for regular berths very keen. Boss Smith now has but twenty-two players on his roster which proves that he has used the axe with telling effect since the training season opened. It will of course be necessary to reduce his squad to the required limit—fourteen men—within one week after the playing season. The process of elimination is now under way and "Smitty" certainly has his work cut out in making his final selections. With the opening of the regular season but three weeks away it behooves the aspiring rookies to don their hustling togs and show the boss something. Popboy has repeatedly stated that not a man on his team has his job clinched; every man must fairly earn his place by superior work on the diamond. Work at the old orchard is rapidly nearing completion and only a few minor details need attention. The club house for the locals is located under the north wing of the grandstand and is equipped with a shower and several lockers. Under the West wing will be found a tidy room arranged for soft drinks and cigars while an added feature is a "coop" erected on top of the grandstand for the convenience of the Scorer and visiting newspaper men. Several exhibition games will be booked for the near future, official announcement of which will appear in these columns.

CARPENTER AND DECORATORS BUSY ON EXPOSITION

Carpenters, decorators and exhibitors began moving out to the Armstrong Tractor building today, preparatory to getting ready for the opening of the big fair Thursday afternoon. They plan to have the stage entirely set for the opening and will lose no time from now until the curtain is drawn and Sweetwater bids her guests enter and be at home to her business industries. Decorative materials have been ordered by the Palace Drug Company and what they have not they will obtain by hook or crook from other points. It is the plan and desire of the decorative committee to make the hall a scene of beauty and to set each exhibitor in his proper and becoming setting. The hall will lend itself admirably to the whole scheme and it goes without saying that this is going to be a red letter attempt for the beginning of an annual affair. There will be guards placed in the building for the protection of the exhibitors. They will sleep there at night and render all protection necessary for the safety of the booths and goods stored therein. The building is fire proof and offers every comfort provided for the out of town visitor. Saturday is to be Fisher and Nolan county day and the management invites everybody to come in and spend the day. It is also to be cotton day and everybody is asked to wear some kind of cotton garment. All of the ladies of the city will wear cotton dresses. The committee of hostesses for the day will wear cotton dresses and the management would appreciate it if every lady in Sweetwater would wear a cotton dress in honor of the occasion. It is to be queen cotton day not in the thought of production, but consumption. There will be milk tests and the farmers are invited to bring their milk to town and get a free test and a report as to its richness. Maybe they will go back and dispose of Bossy that can't do better on a butter fat grade and get a cow that can measure up to a standard of richness.

Cold Wave Damages Fruit In Northeastern District

CHICAGO, March 28.—The cold wave which is today moving eastward over the Mississippi and Ohio valleys caused widespread damage to the fruit raising section of the middle west.

Wage Appeal Short Lines Thrown Out By Board

(Associated Press)
CHICAGO, March 28.—The United States Railroad Labor Board today dismissed all appeals for increased wages filed with it last fall by fifteen railway labor unions against 67 short lines throughout the country. Short lines which accepted for their men terms of the $600,000,000 wage award last July will not be privileged to return to the old scale under today's action, the Board announced. The announcement read: "This decision will not be considered as effecting any wage increase now in effect nor any agreement regarding wages between any carriers and employees."

E. F. Wright "Sails" His Last Ship

Edward F. Wright, general marine superintendent of the International Mercantile Marine company, "sailed" his last ship the other day, and formally retired from the service, ending 54 years of active work in the shipping industry. The photograph shows Mr. Wright shaking hands with Commander R. O. Jones of the Celtic on the liner's bridge just before it left New York for Liverpool.

DALLAS, March 28.—Early fruit and truck crops of Texas escaped damage on account of the sudden return of wintry weather Sunday and Monday morning with the possible exception of the extreme northern and northwestern sections of the state.

The thermometer reached the freezing point at Wichita Falls last night and apprehension was felt that tender vegetation might have suffered, but it was unofficially reported that fruit had advanced to such a stage that damage was improbable. Abilene, Sweetwater and other points in that section reported a temperature of 31 above. Arkansas and Louisiana escaped freezing weather last night, it is unofficially reported. Heavy winds damaged trees and hedges at Texarkana slightly.

AUSTIN, March 28.—Adjutant General Barton today announced that the rangers at Galveston would be withdrawn within the next day or two, following a conference with the governor. Barton stated that he would leave tonight to execute plans for the removal of the rangers.

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S ISLAND MAY BECOME PLEASURE RESORT

VALPARAISO, March 28—
Juan Fernandez Island, 450 miles west of Valparaiso, widely regarded as the spot around which the story of Robinson Crusoe was written, is to be turned into a health resort according to present plans of the Chilean government.
The island is 13 miles long and four miles wide. Vegetation is abundant. Many kinds of fruits thrive there and the sea in the vicinity swarms with a species of codfish and quantities of seals, according to a recent visitor.
The actual original of Defoe's story of Crusoe was said to have been Alexander Selkirk, one of the crew of buccaneers, who request on Juan Fernandez where he spent four lonely years. The grotto where Selkirk is supposed to have lived with his man Friday still is to be seen. A British warship visited the island in 1868 and members of the crew erected a tablet in memory of Selkirk.
Some years ago the Chilean government attempted to colonize the island and gave free passage to emigrants, but the scheme was a failure and the island now has only 200 inhabitants.

H. B. TERRELL
(Austin Statesman)

Henry Berryman Terrell, who died Thursday morning in San Antonio, was for many years an important figure in Texas politics. At the outset of his active career he was a business man. Then he became a newspaper publisher, a legislator and, finally, a high administrative official. He did not enter politics by the usual door, the law; yet, throughout his career he showed an intense devotion to the great principles of justice. His character combined the business man and the statesman—a rare combination, which explains, perhaps, his success. He was never defeated for public office, nor ever charged with inefficiency. His work as Comptroller of Public Accounts will long continue to influence the financial policy of the State, but his services as a member of the State Senate were of equal importance. He was an able maker of laws, an able administrator, a useful citizen and a loyal friend.

No man could better read the popular thought. His political forecasts almost invariably proved correct. He could even calculate the results of his own campaigns, a feat almost impossible for the average candidate. He had, too, a broad sympathy, a love for the common man and deep appreciation of his problems. His popularity was a natural consequence, yet he was never demagogic; never appealed to class against class. He might love the people without consenting to their errors.

In the bitterest campaign that Texas has known for many years, he retained the respect and friendship of both the opposing leaders. Governor Neff and Senator Bailey, will agree on one point at least: that both will mourn the passing of one dear to both. One may imagine their hands clasped across Mr. Terrell's casket.

Had not his health broken down, Mr. Terrell might, himself, have been Governor of Texas. There were not lacking friends who urged him to make the race three years ago. But he was then near the shadows. He had to leave the State and make a long fight for life. No one can say what the result would have been had he been able to enter the contest. But he had the respect of both sides in a bitter contest; his ability was widely recognized, and his conservatism was appealing.

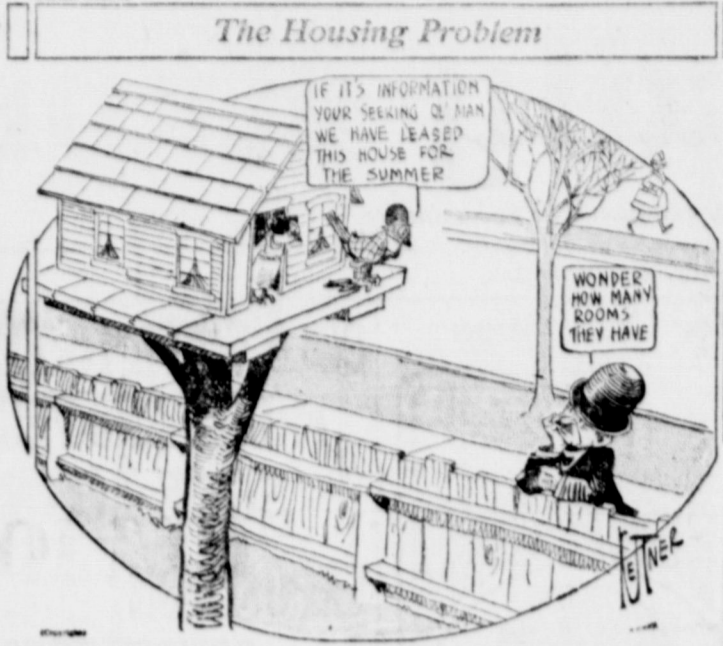

Let us pass that; forgetting what he might have been; considering only what he was. He was a student of the people's needs, a loyal warrior for the public good, a public servant who, through many years, retained the public's confidence. And we who knew him better than the public knew him; we who knew him unofficially, held an opinion of him even higher than any that the people's votes expressed. We knew him as one ever honorable, courageous, truthful and sagacious—a father to his friends—a sage in counsel and a man in action.

His greatest praise is this: that those who knew him best will mourn him most.

WHAT ARE YOU—PALEOZOIC OR MESOZOIC?

There has been so much discussion of progressive and non-progressive people in Sweetwater, that Bruce Barton's test is submitted herewith in order that all may readily find the class to which they belong.

Bruce, of course, did not have Sweetwater in mind when he wrote this, but the general average of humanity and cities of less than 10,000 population holds good, he says.

Read his discourse:
The other afternoon I met six pessimists in succession; and at the close of a rainy day I said to myself: "I better get away from here—a couple of hundred years away." So I picked up Pepys' Diary.

Before I had read half a dozen pages, I was startled. Except for the quaint English, and the mention of such antique curiosities as kings, queens, dukes and lords, Pepys might have been writing yesterday instead of more than two hundred years ago. He said that Parliament was about to investigate the department of the government where he worked and he was very worried. He said the nation was in a bad way, business depressed and men concerned about their taxes. And on November 26, 1666, he made his intensely human entry:

"Into the House of Parliament where....I met....with my cozen Roger Pepys, the first time I have spoke with him this Parliament. Roger bade me help him to some good rich widow; for he is resolved to go and retire wholly into the country, for he says he is confident we shall all be ruined very speedily by what he sees in the state."

"We shall all be ruined very speedily!" Pick up the history of any generation since the world began, and you find that half the members of that generation went through life expecting ruin to be visited upon them at any minute.

And the number of such folks today is larger than ever before, because there are more people.
H. G. Wells, in that remarkable "Outline of History" just published, tells of the Paleozoic period, when all life existed only in the warm water of swamps. He says that a visitor to the world in those days would have concluded that "life was absolutely confined to the water, and that it could never spread over the land."

Doubtless the tadpoles and reptiles of that swampy era were greatly concerned when they saw some of their number crawling out, and growing legs and learning to live in the air. Such fools would certainly come to some bad end. Far better to let well enough alone. Life could never be any better than it had been; indeed, the indications were that it was going to get steadily worse.

Nevertheless the hardy, hopeful ones crawled out, and laid the foundations of the Mesozoic period and off all progress since—while the Paleozoics stayed behind and stewed in their warm water and fears.

There are just two classes of us: the Paleozoics, who think we are going to be lucky if things don't get worse; and the Mesozoics, who push ahead, assuming that a better future lies beyond—the believers and the fearers, the Roger Pepyses who ask for nothing but a good warm cyclone-cellular to crawl into.

By birth or training, or the state of your liver, you are in one class or the other and probably cannot be changed. But if you're a Paleozoic, don't expect us Mesozoics to grow gray-haired listening to your prophecies of ruin. The world has been trembling on the verge of destruction ever since the very first day.

And up to the minute of going to press the crash was still coming, but had not arrived.

Two Convicted By Jury In District Court Here; Grand Jury Still Busy

C. L. Denton, a trainman, drew a five year suspended sentence and Earl Armstrong was sentenced to serve two years in the state penitentiary, for forgery, according to verdicts of juries in district court late Saturday.

The grand jury is still in session and will not make a report to Judge W. P. Leslie for several days, according to reports.

WOMEN IN MANY PARTS OF COUNTRY ARE NOT YET ON EQUAL BASIS WITH MEN

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 28.—Granting of woman suffrage has not yet given women full rights with men in a large part of the United States, it is indicated by a survey of the middle and southwest made by The Associated Press. In only a quarter of this territory, it appears, do women stand unmistakably on an even footing with men.

The discriminations where they exist are, however, for the most part small. The chief disability lies in the right to sit on juries.

The stumbling block in this case is generally a constitutional provision that jurymen must be males. Removal of the disqualification has been urged in a number of legislatures this winter.

Other exceptions women are under in various states include these:

In Iowa, they cannot sit in the legislature.

In Wisconsin, they cannot serve as a legislative employee.

In North Dakota, they do not pay poll tax.

In Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, and South Dakota women are regarded as barred from jury duty by constitutional provision or statute.

In Nebraska, although an Omaha woman recently sat on a jury, existing law makes this irregular. In Kentucky, a portion at least of the circuit judges believe that the use of the masculine in the statute does not bar women from jury duty, as women have served on a circuit court jury in Jassamine county and on both petit and grand juries in Laurel county. There has been no opinion by the Kentucky attorney general or the courts.

In Minnesota the attorney general has held that women cannot serve on juries, but several district court judges have held otherwise and admitted them to juries. In Illinois until the supreme court rules definitely, judges are permitted to determine for themselves whether women shall serve as jurors.

The North Dakota legislature recently passed a law permitting women to serve on juries but not requiring such service.

In Indiana the legislature has just received a discrimination by enacting that the father and mother jointly, if living shall be the natural guardians of their children, instead of the father alone.

Iowa women contemplate effort to have their inability to sit in the legislature removed through an approaching constitutional convention. Otherwise they enjoy full rights with men.

A NEW UNIVERSITY AT AUSTIN, TEXAS, OPENS THIS YEAR

Rev. Dr. Matthew Schumacher, C. S. C., President of St. Edward's College of Austin, a branch of Notre Dame announces that beginning next September, the standard of this institution will be raised to include actual college grades as well as the preparatory, and that a campaign will be put on, running through the year, for funds for new buildings and equipment.

Complete courses of instruction in both freshman and sophomore classes will be added in September, meeting the usual classical literary, scientific, pre-engineering, pre-legal, pre-medical and commercial requirements. As soon thereafter as practicable the junior, senior and post-graduate courses will follow, making St. Edward's a university of the first rank.

"A Greater St. Edward's," like St. Edward's, will be open to young men of good character, regardless of religious belief.

St. Edward's, in her forty years' history, has sent out nearly three thousand graduates and former students who are now representative citizens of Texas and the Southwest, including a number of men prominent in our own community.

Texas needs more colleges. The demand for higher education is greater than the present existing colleges and universities can supply. Some colleges have set a limit upon the number of students they will accept. Many are turning students away. All are overcrowded, and still the demand continues.

Texas and the Southwest, authorities say, are losing many fine young men because they cannot secure a college education here. They go east or north to college and many never return.

Higher education of course means greater earning capacity. The boys found this out in the late war when they saw that the commissioned officers in both army and navy were usually men of higher education, while those with little education invariably went into the ranks.

CAN DIVE 500 FEET WITH NEW DIVERS SUIT

(Associated Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 26.—That he can dive five hundred feet into the ocean and still work comfortably and easily is the contention of Frank Walters, diver and inventor of an aluminum diving suit. In a recent test he reached a depth of 296 feet, said here to be a world's record.

The suit is built of 5-8 and 1-2 inch metal and weighs over 300 pounds. In making his recent descent Mr. Walker added fifty pounds of lead to his shoes.

Owing to the rigidity of the suit, pressure at the depth attained was but forty pounds to the square inch inside the suit while it reached 170 pounds on the outside.

The suit has ball-bearing joints and artificial hands. It cost about $3,000 to build. Mr. Walters is a well known diver.

"Where The Price Is Right"

KEEPS EYE ON LATIN-AMERICA

PRESIDENT READY TO TAKE ANY MEANS TO STOP TROUBLE TO THE SOUTH OF US.

WHERE ARE MONITOR NATIONS

Seem to Have Fallen Down on the Job of Keeping Watch and Ward Over Their Smaller Brother Countries.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—Here is the way the Department of State put forth a most pregnant bit of information:

"The Department of State has requested the Navy department to send warships to both the Atlantic and the Pacific sides of the boundary line between the republics of Panama and Costa Rica to protect American lives and property in the event it is found that the local authorities are unable to afford the necessary protection."

Curious ones in Washington are asking what has become of the "monitor nations" of Central and South America which were to keep watch and ward over their smaller brother countries, exercise moral suasion first, and then force, if necessary, in order to keep them in the straight and narrow way of peace, the way which leadeth unto a nation's salvation.

Everybody knows the names of the monitor nations, where they are, and also knows that they are not up and doing. If they had been up and doing Panama and Costa Rica probably today would be in a condition of lambl-like quiet and Uncle Sam would not be flourishing the big stick that Theodore Roosevelt suggested to him as being serviceable in certain contingencies.

Before Mr. Harding came into office as President there were politicians in plenty who said that he had a dream of a greater United States which would extend from the Canadian line to the southernmost point of the isthmus of Panama. Men here say it is pretty hard to believe that the President had any such dream as this, and still less easy to believe that he ever will formulate a policy so all-embracing and fraught, as many men here, regardless of party say, with peril, but it is known that the President is ready to take instant notice of any trouble to the south of us, and ready to take instant means to put a stop to it.

Monitor Nation Plan.
Washington is curious to know if Mr. Hughes intends to revive the old monitor nation plan, put life and pressure into it, pressure on the greater Latin-American republics which will move them to stop minor rows on their own behalf, and thus relieve the United States of duties which it does not care to exercise because of the ill-feeling which our interference always generates.

Some men seem to have forgotten it, but Elihu Root as secretary of state went to Central and South America and pleaded for peace and good will, and seemingly succeeded in laying the foundation thereof. Memory has it also that Mr. Knox went to Mexico City. Mexico was to be one of the monitor nations. She has been a fine monitor. The United States has been busy admonishing her ever since the day of the friendly visits to her capital.

Mr. Colby, as secretary of state, went to South America. The salt tang of the sea voyage is not yet out of his nostrils. Peace, good will, and commerce were the motives of his mission, and yet here Panama and Costa Rica are at each other's throats.

In this day of the attempt to get the world to settle down after the biggest war it ever witnessed, it is known to be rather disturbing to the equanimity of the incoming administration to have two republics, for whose good conduct this republic has assumed responsibility in the eyes of the world, tackling each other in a finger-nail match. It is nothing more than a scratching match, but it has in it the possibilities of a real fight.

America for Americans.
Neither the President nor the secretary of state wants any of these nations to the south of us to appeal to the league as it exists. The whole policy of the present order of things is America for the Americans, rows or no rows, and the America in this case extends from the Great lakes to the Strait of Magellan.

There never was an administration which believed that the Central and South American countries bear any love to the United States. There have been evidences time and again of modern day resentment against the Monroe doctrine, although it was formulated to protect peoples who now resent the protection which it affords. The trouble is, as men fairly steeped in South American lore have told us, that all the Spanish-American countries think that they are able to take care of themselves, and their resentment arises from the fact that any big country thinks it is necessary to promulgate a doctrine of protection for countries that believe they can look after their own interests.

It is certain from what has happened within the few days of the Harding administration that we are to have an American policy in Central and South America, and that no appeal to the old world, nor an appeal to the League of Nations will be countenanced by the present order.

FUNERAL HELD FOR TINY DOT DAVIS AT ROBY

The funeral services for little Tiny Dot Davis who died yesterday was held at the family residence this morning at 9:30 to be concluded at the graveside at the Roby cemetery where the little one will be laid to rest beside her father, Alex Davis, who preceded her about five years ago.

Rev. R. A. Stewart conducted the funeral services here and will be joined by the Methodist minister at the Roby cemetery for the concluding exercises.

Tiny Dot Davis was the little daughter of Mrs. Sam Visor and was born Dec. 15, 1910 and died Mar. 27, 1921. The little one was only ill a week with pneumonia and was considered recovering until Friday when she became quite ill again. Everything that medical skill could suggest or loving hands could do, was done to thwart the hand of Death, to no avail.

Tiny Dot's home niche will be hard

Girl Gets $30,000.00 In Breach of Promise Suit Against Fort Worth Man

FT. WORTH, March 28—Miss Mildred Alexander, 24, of Monroe, La., late Thursday in the Forty-eighth District Court was given a verdict for $30,000 against W. A. Sheffield of Fort Worth, whom she alleged broke his promise to marry her.

She entered the courtroom carrying her 6-month-old baby. She swore that Sheffield was the father of the child and that her relations with him began after he had promised to marry her. However, it was admitted by the attorneys for her that Sheffield had never been charged with seduction or with any other offense growing out of his alleged relations with Miss Alexander.

With tears in her eyes Miss Alexander, attractively and neatly dressed, told her story to the jury. Her attorneys asked that the baby be presented to the jurors. Sheffield's attorneys objected and the objection was sustained by Judge Young. However, Judge Young told her that she could bring the baby into the courtroom, the same as any other mother could, but that the child legally could not be admitted as evidence. Then Miss Alexander later entered the courtroom she was carrying the six-month-old baby.

In returning the verdict the jury, of which Thomas Carroll was foreman, gave Miss Alexander $20,000 actual damages and $10,000 exemplary damages.

FRENCH COST OF LIVING IS STILL QUADRUPLED

PARIS, March 28—The French householders are still paying more than four times the pre war prices for the necessities of life, although there has been a big decline in the cost of living.

The French government has made public figures concerning the cost of living in France with those in the United States as those given by Bradstreet's and for Great Britain, as given by the Statist. These show that the peak in the cost of living in all three countries was attained in April, 1920. Taking the prices of 1913 as normal, or 100 per cent, the prices of necessities in April last year are given as 587.5 per cent in France; 225.1 in the United States and 313.1 in Great Britain.

According to the government figures these percentages had declined in December last to 434 per cent in France and 243.5 in Great Britain. The figure for the United States in November last was given as 147.5 per cent. The December figures were not given.

Most of the French newspapers find the joy in the reduction in the cost of living tempered by knowledge that it is still more than four times higher than in 1913 and that it is accentuated by much unemployment.

BOSTON DICKENS CLUB OBSERVES 109TH BIRTHDAY OF ENGLISH AUTHOR

LONDON, March 28—A wreath presented by the All-Round Dickens Club, of Boston, was among the dozen floral pieces laid on the tomb of Charles Dickens in Westminster Abbey this month when exercises were held here in commemoration of the 109th anniversary of the author's birth.

The exercises were conducted by Edwin Drew, a Dickens devotee, and there was a sprinkling of Americans among the score of persons gathered in the poets' corner of the Abbey during the ceremony.

The presentation of the wreath by the Boston Club was a resumption of its custom for many years before the world war.

Following services at the tomb there was a pilgrimage of those interested to the "Cheshire Cheese" and to the Cock Tavern on Fleet Street, spots once frequented by Dickens.

The Dickens anniversary was celebrated by several other gatherings in various parts of the city.

BUDDHIST PRIESTS WANT VOTE

TOKIO, March 28—Rejection of universal suffrage by the Japanese Diet has been followed by a meeting of the Buddhist priests of Japan to protest their exclusion from the vote. They objected vigorously when a government member of the Diet told them it was a great mistake to meddle in politics.

Tucking up their robes, some of the priests rushed to the platform demanding the expulsion of the speaker, Representative Matsuo, in reporting the incident several Japanese newspapers declared that Mr. Matsuo was not only dragged from the rostrum but was "beaten up" as well.

The 120,000 priests of Japan are awakening politically and the nation should listen to their cry for political freedom, Naohiko Seki, a member of the Kokuminto opposition in the Diet, declared.

The meeting adopted resolutions that the priests desired to fulfill their responsibility as teachers of the people and actively to serve society but that to accomplish their work in life the offensive election law should be amended to give the right of voting to them.

PRESS CONGRESS REMINISCENT OF OLD TIMES IN HONOLULU

(Associated Press)
HONOLULU, H. I., March 28—The Press Congress of the World, which will open in Honolulu in October of this year, will hold its sessions a stone's throw from the spot where the first printing was done west of the Missouri river, almost one hundred years ago. The old coral building where the Kamehameha press, brought from Boston by Elisha Loomis, turned out its first work on Jan. 1, 1822, still stands on King street, Honolulu's main thoroughfare. It is but a few steps from the Iolani palace of monarchy days, now the capitol, where the press congress will convene.

Entries in the diary of Elisha Loomis, which is preserved here, show that he and his precious printing apparatus left Boston on the brig Thaddeus which carried the first Christian Missionaries to Hawaii, and landed in the islands April 9, 1820.

Loomis was born in Middlesex, Yates county, New York, in December, 1799, says in his diary that he started setting up his press in Honolulu in December 1821, and on January 1822, this entry appears: "This day commenced the first printing that was ever done at these islands, Governor Cox was present and printed the first sheet."

The governor referred to was the Hawaiian governor of the island of Oahu on which Honolulu is situated. He had been a warrior chief in the armies of King Kamehameha the Great, who united all the islands under one crown.

The Loomis press was used principally for instruction of the Hawaiians by the missionaries, but an entry in his diary in March 1822, shows that at an early date the king had realized its value and had sent him two royal decrees to be printed for promulgation.

The first newspapers turned out in Hawaii were printed in the Hawaiian tongue adapted to the English letters, one at Lahaina, Maui, called "Ka Lama Hawaii," or the Foundation of Hawaii.

Both of these papers appeared in 1834. From that day the press of both islands has grown until it embraces papers in Hawaiian, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, Korean and Filipino.

The press that made history and laid the foundation of educational work in Hawaii is in the Oregon historical museum at Portland.

New Ruling By Supreme Court On Income Taxes

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 28—The supreme court today ruled that profits from sales of assets of trust funds were taxable under the new income tax law. The court also held that the increase in the value of capital investments were taxable as incomes.
