"JUAREZ SPECIAL" IS DERAILED HERE

Two Men Are Arrested, Charged With Night In Addition to Cadillac Car Which Was Nabbed Yesterday

HAD MORE THAN 100 PINTS 'KICK'

Two Men Arrested And Charged With Violating Prohibition Laws By Transporting Liquor.

A big National touring car, two men and a large quantity of alleged whiskey were added to the Cadillac car captured yesterday and another "Juarez Ft. Worth" rum special was side tracked at Sweetwater.

The National was captured just outside of Roscoe Wednesday night by Roscoe officers Graham and Hemphill who also etao etao etao etao give his name. There was a large bullet hole in the windshield of the National, right alongside the steering wheel and a companion hole through the rear curtain. This bullet passing so uncomfortably close to the driver probably taught him that discretion was the better part of valor.

The big vault of the sheriff's office had an odor strongly reminiscent of certain establishments in pre-Volstead days when swinging doors were all that separated the public from nice cool soda water. Nearly one hundred pints of a fluid labeled "Old Sunnybrook" each bottle carefully wrapped in newspaper to prevent breakage on the floor, together with six syrup cans containing one gallon of alcohol per each and then there was a large package of labels bearing the name "Old Sunnybrook" together with forged government revenue seals to go over the corks. In spite of the newspaper wrappings there were several broken bottles in the lot.

It is the theory of the officers that both cars left El Paso laden with the cargo of the Cadillac was disposed of in the Colorado oil fields. Roscoe officers spotted the cars and tipped off city officials and county officials here in Sweetwater. And the net result of the close so-operation of these men, the two men captured will be examined by Justice Brashear and if the evidence presented warrants, will be held for the Grand Jury. The one was captured by Roscoe officials and the other by local authorities following the abandonment of the Cadillac.

RANGER HAS BUMS.

T. & P. Depot Is Headquarters—Chase Them Out.

Special to The Reporter. RANGER, Mar. 1.—"We are having a hard time keeping hoboes out of the station," J. W. Kinghiltner, division superintendent of the T. & P. railroad told Mayor Gholson. He said that he had chased a hobo out of the station this week.

Difficulty in keeping the waiting room free of hoboes was expressed by S. A. White, Rangr passenger agent for the T. & P. railroad. Mr. White said he now locks the station up after the eastbound train departs. "The officers chase them out but when they are out of sight, the bums come right on back," White said.

According to Mayor Gholson, extra precaution will be taken immediately to keep the station free of loafers and hoboes.

MANY COMING IN SPECIAL TRAIN

Fair Weather Assures Many, Many Automobile Loads for the Jubilee To Celebrate The College.

The weatherman says "Fair" and everything seems to be all set for the Jubilee to be held here Friday to celebrate the establishment of the new Texas Technological College.

With fair weather, one of the largest gatherings ever held in Sweetwater, if not in West Texas is confidently expected.

No less than four special trains will be operated into the town that morning.

The Texas & Pacific gives out the information that the special from the West will arrive here at 10:15 o'clock, bringing both the Colorado and Big Springs delegations. The Colorado special was originally scheduled to arrive here at 1:30 in the afternoon.

The Orient is operating a special from San Angelo, leaving there at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning and is due to arrive in Sweetwater at 10:15.

There will be two special trains from the north, both scheduled to arrive at 10 o'clock, one from Lubbock and the other from Snyder.

There is also a special Pullman bringing the Plainview delegation, accompanied by their Boy Scout Band, according to the Plainview Chamber of Commerce. Whether this will be operated on one of the specials or the regular morning train is not known.

From the south, there will be another special Pullman chartered by the Coleman Chamber of Commerce. This will probably arrive here at 1 a. m. and will be parked in the morning. Cisco has also chartered a special slastic Cicottes are expected to arrive with the additional traffic expected from Abilene and other points east, will probably necessitate the operation of No. 15 in two sections.

Joe Boothe in charge of the Santa Fe reception committee, D. A. Clark in charge of the T. & P. committee and J. D. Tidwell in charge of the Orient are expected to keep these specials in mind. P. H. Doscher was unintentionally omitted from Mr. Clark's committee list. Mr. Tidwell's committee members include F. J. Neal, John Millsap, Mr. and Mrs. Ledford, and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson. Mr. Tidwell asks that the members of his committee to be at the Orient depot at 7:15 o'clock sharp, Friday morning.

Free lunch will be served in the basement of the Court House Friday to the visiting school children. Ivan Iabell is in charge of this part of the program.

The ladies of Sweetwater will hold a reception to the visiting ladies in the Elks' Club rooms immediately after the governor concludes his address. All ladies of the city as well as visiting ladies are invited. Mrs. Poffenbach is in charge of this feature.

The Elks will keep open house to everyone the balance of the day with a dance that evening.

COMING STRONG.

Special to The Reporter. COLORADO, Mar. 1.—Plans for sending a strong delegation to the West Texas Jubilee at Sweetwater Friday afternoon are all complete. The Colorado delegation will go on a special train to be made up here and is scheduled to leave at 12:12 o'clock Friday afternoon. A. B. Banks, chairman of the transportation committee, named by the Chamber of Commerce, estimates that from 500 to 750 citizens of Colorado and Mitchell County will accompany the delegation.

The entire membership of the Boy Scouts at Colorado, together with some 300 school children, will accompany the delegation.

Lorraine, 10 miles east of Colorado, will also send a large delegation and the schools there are to be closed in order that the children may have a part in the Jubilee celebration.

Every store and office, the banks, schools and postoffice at Colorado will close at 11:30 Friday morning. The Colorado Booster Band has been consolidated with the Sweetwater Band to furnish music during the Jubilee celebration, will leave here tonight for Sweetwater. The Colorado Special train will leave Sweetwater on the return trip at 5:45 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Honor guests from Colorado to attend the Jubilee banquet at Sweetwater Friday evening are Dr. P. C. Coleman, president of the Colorado Chamber of Commerce, Colonel C. M. Adams, president of the Lions Club, and W. S. Cooper, secretary of the Colorado Chamber of Commerce.

BIG QUESTION UPPERMOST IN MINDS OF HEMPHILL PEOPLE IS WHETHER MRS. KNOX WILL BE INDICTED.

MURDER OF KNOX IS A MYSTERY

Body of Knox Found With Bullet Wound in Head—Defense Claims Suicide—Evidence Contrary.

HEMPHILL, Tex., March 1.—"Will they indict Lady Bountiful?"

This question being discussed as the Sabine County jury was called to convene here in March to consider the case of Mrs. Lillian Knox, bound to the jury on a charge of murder in connection with the death of her husband Hiram Knox, wealthy East Texas lumberman.

Knox was found dying from a bullet wound in the back of his head. Near by was a pistol.

In the preliminary hearing, the defense contended that Knox took his own life. Letters, addressed to his wife and mother and purporting to have been written by him, were found in pockets of the lumberman's clothing after his death. He had been drinking heavily. It was testified presumably in an effort to forget his financial troubles. Other testimony was introduced to the effect that Knox had made the statement that unless conditions improved, he was "going to end it all."

The prosecution however, branded the letters forgery. They were typewritten.

The defense introduced but few witnesses in the preliminary hearing while the prosecution presented a great deal of evidence.

No Powder Burns. Dr. W. T. Arnold, the family physician, who viewed the body soon after the shooting occurred, testified that there were no powder burns on the State held that it produced a hole of six inches.

An empty vial was produced. The vial was similar, according to the testimony of a druggist to one containing a quantity of powerful sleeping potion, which was sold to E. T. Carson, Mrs. Knox's secretary, the day prior to the tragedy. That Knox was drugged and then shot while in the "at" attitude of sleep, was one of the theories held by the state. This is the belief of the mother of Knox.

Other testimony which the state announced it would trace, was that a large automobile was seen speeding toward San Augustine about the time of Knox's death. Details regarding this car and the driver are expected to be brought out at the grand jury hearing.

Footprints were found under a window of the bathroom adjoining Knox's bedroom, it was disclosed.

At the preliminary hearing it was brought out that a few days before death, Knox had decided all of his estate to his wife. The defense held that it disproved a theory of the prosecution that Knox was killed by persons desiring his wealth.

The character of the attractive widow who earned the title of "Lady Bountiful" by her benevolence to the poor of the surrounding country, will have a bearing on the case, in the opinion of residents.

She is noted both for her kind deeds and her temper. Her servants loved and feared her.

During the last epidemic of influenza, she personally went to the homes of her employes and took care of the stricken members of their families. The poor were always cared for. A man wanting work could always get it by applying to her.

But once her displeasure was incurred she was relentless. The fits of temper, however, did not last long. Servants discharged one day were re-employed the next and in some instances at a much higher wage.

By The United Press. DALLAS, Mar. 1.—Charges of murder have been placed against Dr. H. B. Smith, E. B. Goodsell, formerly of Dallas, and Mrs. Grace Rhoden, rooming house proprietress, following the death of Miss Ruth Jeter, aged 19, from an alleged illegal operation, it was stated today.

Goodsell is out on a $7,000 bail. Mrs. Rhoden is held on a $5,000 bail. Dr. Smith, charged in a local court with performing the operation, is ill in another city, it was learned.

CHICAGO, Mar. 1.—More than 320,000 clerks on Class 1 railroads were benefited by a decision of the rail labor board which established an 8-hour day and time and one half for overtime on this class of work, effective today.

Heretofore the clerks received no compensation for overtime and their working hours were not fixed. The same decision granted two cents an hour increase in salary to 65,000 freight handlers and station employees.

WOLVES LIKE CALVES.

Kill 20 Out of Crop of 150 for Taylor Ranch Co. of Montana.

Wolves are the principal drawback to cattle growing in some sections of Montana, according to L. C. Taylor of the Taylor Ranch Co., Stanford, Mont., who bought several of the better bulls in the recent Polled Hereford Week sale at Des Moines, Ia.

"Last year we lost 20 out of 150 calves by wolves. The Forest Service has an man employed at $150 to trap wolves on our ranch.

"We have been raising Polled Herefords for a number of years. Our first polled bulls was of Mossom Boyd breeding and was purchased for us by T. F. B. Sotham in a sale held in Chicago.

"My polled bull took him out in the using and mated him with a number of cows. The results were so satisfactory that we decided to use only Polled Hereford bulls."

The Taylor Ranch Co. holding aggregate about 3,000 acres. This concern, which is a family corporation, has been breeding Herefords since 1886. Formerly they purchased English-bred Herefords in Canada. The herd now numbers about 250 head, all registered. Their leading herd bull at present is of Gemnation breeding.

CITIZENS OF SWEETWATER A SUMMONS TO DUTY.

Tomorrow Sweetwater will be host to Governor Neff, Ex-Governor W. P. Hobby, and thousands of other Texans and we must live up to the part that is ours for the day.

The Second Day of March ever since 1836 has been celebrated as Texas Independence Day.

Tomorrow it will be, in Sweetwater, celebrated to commemorate the West Texas Declaration of Independence from the thralldom of ignorance—the passage of the bill for the establishment of a first class college in West Texas.

It is fitting that this celebration should occur in Sweetwater because the movement for the college was inaugurated here seven years ago by Sweetwater people.

Citizens of Sweetwater: You will be expected to do your full duty as hosts to our guests for the day, overwhelming them with kindness, courtesy, and consideration for their comfort, pleasure, and welfare.

MAKE MONEY.
"If you wish to make money, make a little at a time, and make it often," was the motto in which Frank W. Woolworth, the originator of the great chain of Woolworth stores, believed. "Not many people wish to buy fifty-thousand dollar necklaces, but almost every person really wishes to get rid of five and ten cent pieces," is another motto to which Mr. Woolworth subscribes.

Because he believes in such principles of business Frank Woolworth, the farmer's son, became a merchant prince. While his boyhood playfellows were happy in finding enough money to put new shingles on old barns, Frank Woolworth, who had no better opportunities than they, built the most princely of business buildings, a Broadway tower that rivals the celebrated towers of Europe.

The nimble penny is a better guide to fortune than is the elusive twenty-dollar gold piece.

In his boyhood days Frank Woolworth, but about haremageddon, took care of cows and horses, and knew what it was to put hay back into the dusty haymows. When the little district school was open he went to it and learned to add and to multiply. Then he went to a little commercial college and learned something about bookkeeping. With this background of information he looked for a job, and found one in a sort of general store where he tied neat bundles and was polite to nervous ladies. So far, he was quite an ordinary young man, but at the age of 26 he had an idea; he put together in one part of the store a lot of odds and ends, put a sign up saying that a customer could have any article there for five cents—and waited to see what would happen. That seeding idea grew into the great chain of Woolworth stores, into the palatial Woolworth building in New York, and into millions of dollars.

It is a good thing to plant real ideas. The people flocked so fast to that five-cent counter that the young man borrowed about three hundred dollars and started a five-cent store in Utica, N. Y. He made a little money, paid his debt, and opened another store in Pennsylvania. Then he simply kept on doing the same thing over and over that is, making money, building new stores, making more money and building more stores. At the same time he kept trying to sell better goods, and to make better bargains. Then he drew to himself a coterie of bright men and taught them how to sow ideas. When he died he was one of the richest men, and he had established a great business that is a public benefit.

contented. "Clarence" is a role that will linger long in one's memory. As Violet Pinney, the governess who appears to be the family's storm center, Agnes Ayres is charming and convincing. Considerable amusement is provided by May McAvoy, who should stop and with bated breath watch the progress of her first love.

The picture made a decided hit and the program as a whole brought to a conclusion an evening of splendid entertainment.

joy of the audience. To be sure there are situations aptly for Miss Barrymore, in "The Laughing Lady," and enough aggravating inconsistencies to make even an actress mauled by logic and tax-cabs as she was in "De classe" protest against fresh indignities.

However as Lady Majorie Colladine, a London divorcee, Ethel Barrymore is thoroughly "herself" in a Surtroque role. She is always delightful in these "upper class" mondaine parts, where "sang froid" and airy nonchalance," as it were, attend her as hand-maidens.

Noble But Unconvincing
Only it is so irritating to have her turn out one of those spineless weak sisters, who, after carrying an issue on to conviction, just naturally turns around and becomes noble, and Unconvincing. However, that is Sir Alfred Surtro's fault, not Miss Barrymore's.

In the new play in which Arthur Hopkins presents Miss Barrymore she is required to worry along through all these readjustments and reconstructions which follow great detaches—whether international or domestic.

She has been disgracefully divorced by Sir Hector and on the same day she has to sit next to Daniel Farr, the lawyer who tore her character to shreds. But Farr falls in love with her, though we can't for the life of us see why she reciprocates. Right away he kisses her and then—

Well, Mrs. Farr calls on Lady Marjorie and asks her to please live with him and not ruin his career by marrying him. Rather quaint idea that wifely solution.

Ends Unhappily
But Lady Marjorie, refuses! She becomes veral moral maxietaeftaat cides to go back to a husband she does not love. So the play ends unhappily for everyone.

Miss Barrymore is handsome and thoroughly true to type in the Lady

Marjorie role, which does not in any way tax her resources. Indeed, it is not the best role we have seen her in by any means.

Katherine Emmet is excellent as Mrs. Farr. So is Violet Kemble Cooper as a Surtro woman of the world.

QUEER THINGS IN NEW YORK FIGHT GAME

By The United Press.
NEW YORK, March 1.—On the same theory that a thing should not be called red because it looks red and because of the established unreliability of circumstantial evidence, it might be said that the New York boxing commission has nothing against Jack Dempsey.
The commission has not suspended, censured or gone officially on record as having it in for Dempsey, but the fact remains that the heavyweight champion cannot work in New York. Reasons comical and ridiculous were given by the commission for taking a stand against any bout in which Harry Wills, Jesse Willard, Tom Gibbons, Battling Siki, Harry Greb or Bill Brennan would appear against Dempsey. Georges Carpentier and Joe Beckett were not placed on the official embargo list, but when their names begin to be mentioned, the commission could rule that they are too top heavy.
When the commission went so far as to let Jess Willard step over the barriers that they had erected in front of him, it is hard to see any reason for refusing the champion of the class to do a little fighting.

Another act of injustice is the persistence of the commission in refusing to lift the suspension of Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion. If commission cannot see him as a worthy title holder, perhaps the best thing to do would be to let him fight and let someone whip him. He can't beat anyone if he is as poor as everyone thinks he is.

Battling Siki got a nine months suspension for doing more than Jack Johnson did when he was forced to flee from the United States. After three months, the French Boxing Federation lifted his suspension.

Johnny Wilson has done nothing but evade some of the contenders for the title and if that is an offense deserving suspension, no champion would be working but Dempsey.

New York has seen many sleek moves pulled off in ring circles, but the bell ringer came off when Floyd Johnson was eased out of his match with Tommy Gibbons. When the young Iowa heavy was matched with Gibbons, everyone in New York told his manager what a mistake had been made and when his manager saw the light, he slipped him out of it.

It was put up to Gibbons that Willard would draw more with Johnson. In an outdoor fight than Gibbons would and, as it was a "charity thing" Gibbons couldn't say a thing.

It would make an interesting story to tell why Gibbons and Willard, which would have been a fifty per cent better card, was not chosen.

Johnson promised to meet Gibbons thirty days after he beats Willard (if he does beat him) but it's a two to one shot that Gibbons will never be able to reach Johnson's crowd with a flock of messenger boys if Johnson does beat Willard.

Ever since Tommy Gibbons began to loom up as a prominent contender for the heavyweight title, a campaign has been waged among a certain element to discredit him.

It has been noted around that he wasn't game against a good man, that he was a schemer and that he was a set-up eater.

After missing the opportunity to show what Floyd Johnson really is and what he could do against a man that his defamers claim is a high class man, Gibbons had a rookie, Jack McAuliffe shoved on him.

The crowd back of Johnson is starting stories that McAuliffe is a wonder, but if Gibbons knocks him out they come back with a sneer and a "Another one."

UNCLE JOE WILL SOON BE MEMORY

Once Powerful Speaker Of House Who Ruled With An Iron Hand Will Retire On March Fourth.

RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN HOUSE

Dramatic Incident in Life Of James G. Blaine Is Recalled in Incident of Mulligan Letters.

By FRASEH EDWARDS (Copyrighted, 1923, by United Press.) By The United Press.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The most dramatic day in my career? "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the grand old man of the House, repeated the question and mused for a moment as if mentally reviewing his half-century career in Congress.

On March 4, "Uncle Joe" hands back the tattered ensign of the Eighteenth Illinois district which he has held aloft for 46 years—a record that probably will stand for all time.

For eight of those years he was Speaker and he ruled the House with an iron hand. Cannon himself helped Speaker Tom Reed, the first "Czar of the House," write the rules which made the Speaker an autocrat. "Cannon" died when the insurgents showed the Speaker of his powers in 1910 and Cannon was the last to reign supreme.

Today the mellowness of age has come with "Uncle Joe's" 87 years. Gone is the Cannon of the bitter tongue in debate. Gone is the Cannon of Ruthless rulings from the Speaker's throne.

Foes Now Friends. A kindly, philosophical old man has taken the place of the former "Czar" and his former foes have become his friends. One of the real regrets that comes with the date of the 67th Congress is the passing from public life of this picturesque character who linked the stirring events of two generations ago with today.

"Well," said "Uncle Joe" finally, as he gave the signal for a real reminiscence—filling the charred pipe that has taken the place of his famous cigar—and settled back in his chair, "I'll have to go pretty far back for that."

"The most dramatic scene I ever witnessed in the House was when James G. Blaine in the eloquent words of Robert G. Ingersoll, 'tore from the throat of treason the tongue of slander' by exploding the mythical and malicious scandal concerning himself and the then famous Mulligan letters.

"To appreciate the importance of the event, it must be remembered that Blaine was the 'best loved and most hated man' in public life. At the time he was the popular candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination and the convention was just ten days off.

The Mulligan Letters
"The democrats were in power for the first time since the Civil War and they were trying to pillory Blaine. Letters Blaine had written to a friend had been stolen by a man named Mulligan and the scandal mongers had woven a dirty tale about them to connect Blaine with the crookedness of the Pacific railroads. Those letters played a leading part in an investigation of the railroads, which was in fact an investigation in Blaine's private affairs.

"In some way Blaine regained possession of the letters and defied the power of the Judiciary committee and the House to force him to produce them. Proctor Knott of Kentucky, the chairman, threatened all sorts of drastic action to force Blaine to produce them. Driven to the wall, Blaine announced on Saturday that on Monday, June 5, 1876, he would rise to a question of personal privilege. It had the effect of a full page advertisement in the papers.

Blaine the Storm Center
"Blaine was the storm center of politics. Everybody who could crowd in came to see the fur fly. Galleries were packed and Senators, Justices of the Supreme Court and Cabinet members jostled the House members for a place on the floor. Sunset Cox of New York, the "House Jester," was in the chair. On one side of the Speaker's rostrum was the almost mummified form of Alexander Stephens, former vice-president of the Confederacy, in a wheel-chair. On the other, Gen. Nathaniel Banks of Mass., the first Republican speaker of the House, who distinguished himself as a Union soldier.

"To the utter astonishment of everyone, Blaine calmly announced he would read the Mulligan letters to the House the letters that were supposed to destroy him politically. It came like a bombshell explosion. The galleries and floor were instantly wild with excitement. Dignified men dashed about like schoolboys. Efforts of the sergeant at arms were fruitless, but the House became still as a tomb when Blaine lifted his hand for silence.

Only Private Matters
"Then as an anti-climax, the letters proved to relate simply to private business affairs. They told of Blaine's disappointments in business ventures and his inability to meet maturing notes and the embarrassment of other who had been guided by his judgment in investing their life's savings.

"As he finished reading the last letter, Blaine strode to the well of the House and demanded of Proctor Knott if he had received a cable from a man in London who had been sought as a witness by the committee. Knott advanced to meet him. It was a tense moment as the two men stood like gladiators within striking distance. "Blaine hid a slip of yellow paper in his hand. It was a copy of the cable and Knott knew he was trapped. Then Blaine forced Knott to admit that he had received five days before the cable which vindicated Blaine.

Blaine's triumph was complete and the House was a bedlam. I have never seen anything like it before nor since.

MOVING PICTURE OF CROWDS.
Although nothing definite has been announced concerning the matter, it is believed that either the Pathe Weekly or the Fox News camera men will be in Sweetwater tomorrow to make a few scenes of the mammoth crowds that are expected. This occasion is an especially attractive one for such films, and it will be in keeping pace with these well-known news gatherers for the moving picture screen.

MANY NEW LAWS PASS CONGRESS

Over 500 Bills Enacted By 67th Congress Which Is Soon To Pass Into History—One a Day.

MANY MORE BILLS PRESENTED

Nearly 15,000 Bills Introduced Into House And Over 5,000 In Senate—Also Many Resolutions.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN (United Press Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, March 1.—Nearly 500 new laws have been loaded on the public records by the 67th Congress, which will expire at midnight Saturday or on Sunday.

This is at the rate of approximately 250 new laws a year, for this congress has functioned almost continuously for two solid years. That is a record of more than 20 new laws a month—perilously near the one per working day.

The new laws enacted in the name of the common weal by this congress would, if bound in one volume, make a mighty tome. They have taken two years to make—two years filled with weary hours for the legislators, many many of whom would rather have been fishing or playing golf. Most of the American people will never know a thing about one-half of one per cent of new laws thus enacted by the 67th Congress. The next congress will repeal some of them, amend others, and substitute new ones for still others. And the public will, for the most part, know nothing about it, and care less.

If it were otherwise, the passage of 500 new laws by a single congress would be appalling. If a citizen had to know all about these new statutes, or was in constant danger of running afoul of one of them, it is probable congress would quickly be abolished, or its powers of legislation greatly curtailed. But most of the laws have little or nothing to do with the everyday man; or at least if they do, somebody takes care of them and the everyday man is not bothered.

Big Crop Sown
And in spite of the amazing crop of laws which congress has enacted, it is nothing to the crop that was sown, but never came to harvest. In two years of its life the House got nearly 15,000 bills and the Senate about 5,000. Out of all these the two houses put through fewer than 500.

This does not include a large number of resolutions, and so-called private laws, which relate to claims against the government and similar matters not affecting the country as a whole.

The present congress, though it held four sessions, was not exceptional, either in the number of bills introduced or the number of laws enacted. If the record is figured on the basis of the time the congress was in session. Today, with final adjournment so short a time off, administration leaders were beset by legislators begging for a few minutes of the few precious hours remaining.

The Last Minute Rush
"Just give me time to get the bill of mine through!" was the plea in most cases, the bill concerning which the legislation was so earnest was a comparatively trivial measure—affecting his particular locality usually, and hence important to him because of the direct interest of some of his constituents.

But the leaders, who have seen other congresses amid a mad flurry and have heard the pleas of legislators rise up to the very last hour, continued to put off the importunate ones wearily, but firmly, and stuck to the job of keeping the rank and file in line to complete the mass of necessary business.

The leaders know that most of the thousands of bills that after Saturday will be just waste paper, will be dusted off and resurrected in the next congress.

GASOLINE BURNS MAN.

Fluid Ignites While Car Is In Filling Station—(Red) Terrell Gets Burns.

A near serious accident took place in front of the filling station of the Wilson Motor Co. Wednesday afternoon when S. D. (Red) Terrell was filling Bert Pribble's car. By some means the gas ignited and Mr. Terrell was painfully and seriously burned on the hands, back and hips. Mr. Pribble had a narrow escape and was only slightly burned. The quick use of Mr. Pribble's overcoat probably saved a fatal burn.

Without warning the gas hose in the hands of Mr. Terrell flashed into a stream of fire. He threw it aside and it straightened out over next to the Adkins Grocery. By this time Mr. Terrell's clothing were ignited and he made a wild dash for the door. He entered with the blaze going up his back. Mrs. Wilson tried to get out of the office to catch him as he passed the office gate, but failed. The screams of Mrs. Wilson and the cry of the burning man attracted the men in the repair department of the filling station. They grabbed the man as he was making an effort to get out the back door. They at once tore his clothing off.—Hamlin Herald.

BERLIN, March 1.—Berlin's dog population has no fears or race suicide. Tax authorities who made a census announce that the number of dogs increased from 135,647 to 170,745 during the last year.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Isham are the proud parents of a fine baby girl. Mrs. Isham was formerly Miss Myrtis Dugan of Sweetwater.

The new uniforms ordered for the Boy Scouts have arrived and they are making the recipients thereof very proud. The Boy Scouts will be very much in evidence on Jubilee Day.

Josef Stransky has resigned from the conductorship of the New York Philharmonic and here's one too good to keep from the "Musical Courier." "Josef Stransky, suffering from a cold, conducted his closing concert with a fever of 101. After the last number, his doctor rushed to the dressing room and asked 'What can I do for you?' Stransky replied 'Here's your chance doctor, if you make me well, I'll give you $100; if you kill me, my colleagues will give you $20,000!' Mebbe walls have ears.
