Grim Stenholm, farmers meeting

BANDING TOGETHR — More than 200 O.I.L. welders banded together in a funeral procession yesterday in honor of their fellow worker and friend, Sam Kerby, who died last Saturday. Approximately 85 welding rigs joined in the procession, seen here heading down Highway 87 to a graveside ceremony.

Talk centers on crop loss assistance

A grim U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of the 17th District faced a roomful of angry and frustrated farmers and others during a stop in Big Spring yesterday.

The gathering in the Howard County Courthouse was part of Stenholm's "Chat with Charlie" sessions that he is conducting in his district to gauge his constituents' feelings on subjects ranging from farming to social security issues.

The mood of both Stenholm and the crowd could best be described as disappointed and tinged with a feeling of helplessness. Several times Stenholm said he was at the point of asking "where do we go from here?"

Several farmers were concerned about relief they might receive from federal crop insurance to cover recent losses cause by wind and hail. One farmer said it had been 10 days since he filed a claim with the ASCS office and he was worried no action was going to be taken on his claim.

Stenholm assured the man that crop damage survey crews were out assessing losses; however, he told the farmer he had a right to be mad if claims were not adjusted quickly and properly.

"All I can say to you at this moment is that I was talking to an ASCS administrator this morning, and told him whatever we do let's do it quickly, whether it's going to be good or bad," Stenholm said.

Stenholm called the federal crop insurance program "a disaster," saying the program is a failure from both the taxpayer's and farmer's standpoint. He said the farmer does not benefit from the insurance because of increased costs and decreased advantages of the program.

Stenholm also addressed the problem of high interest rates, saying, "There's no way we're going to survive with interest rates at the level they are."

He said the U.S. must "bite the bullet" and make some changes so that government can move forward.

"The Federal Reserve has its foot on the brake and the federal government has its foot on the accelerator. We need to press the brake on the fiscal side and make a few more cuts across the board and open up the monetary side and see if that would help interest rates come down without inflation taking off," Stenholm said. He said if government fails to control its spending habits then inflation "will go through the roof."

Stenholm hopes the new tax cut starting Thursday will get the economy back on its feet. "For the first time in a long time when we need a tax cut it's there and I pray it works," he said.

Stenholm encouraged his constituents, especially farmers, to fight for what they believe in. He urged farmers to attend various agricultural organization meetings and try to establish ideas and guidelines that can be made into legislative proposals.

"You can't solve the problems of the world by gathering at a cafe and talking about it. It's not a fair criticism of farm organizations to say they are not representing you unless you have made the best effort to see they are representing what you stand for — and let's face it, you and I haven't done that," Stenholm said.

Israel warns Palestinians

A senior Israeli official today accused the Palestine Liberation Organization of stalling and lying about leaving west Beirut, and warned this could bring "grave results."

They described it as the "last respects we could give" to an "almost perfect man."

Eighty-five welding rigs carrying close to 200 O.I.L. welders rumbled down Highway 87 to Trinity Memorial Park yesterday to honor Sam Kerby, a man described by both relatives and fellow workers as a man "loved by everybody" and one who never spoke ill of his fellow man.

Kerby died Saturday at the age of 38, only three days after being told a cancer had spread to his brain. Friends, family and more than 200 O.I.L. employees gathered at Trinity Memorial Funeral Home Chapel of Memories at 3 p.m. yesterday in remembrance of him.

Phyllis Kerby said her husband's life "was a light and his death was a light, too ... bringing people close together."

The welders and other O.I.L. employees paid for Kerby's funeral expenses and will "keep taking up money to help" Mrs. Kerby and her five children, welder supervisor J.R. (Jack) Howard said. A fund also has been established at Coahoma State Bank.

"I've known him all my life and he's one of the finest fellows I've ever known ... Sam was a person everyone loved. Those who would say different don't know what they're talking about," Howard said.

Kerby, a contract welder for O.I.L., was unaware of his illness until two weeks ago when he began having severe headaches, Mrs. Kerby said.

Kerby belonged to several softball and bowling leagues and a gospel singing group. He "play anything ... there wasn't nothing he couldn't do," Mrs. Kerby said.

Donations from O.I.L. began to come in for medical costs about a week ago, and when Kerby told his wife of the donations from O.I.L. employees, "I told him I hated to take this money from them but he said we're a family out there, we take care of our own. They'd do it for us and we'd do it for them," she said.

"He's probably lighting up heaven right now," she added.

Howard College VP resigns

Dr. Bobby Wright, vice president of Howard College, has resigned to accept a position as president of Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College, Howard College officials announced this morning.

Wright, who came to Big Spring and Howard College in 1976, will assume his new job in mid-July, college officials said.

Wright said he "enjoyed working with Howard College and being a part of the community."

He began at Howard College as dean of occupational education and became vice president in 1980.

He is credited with helping develop the Del Rio nursing program, LVN programs in Lamesa and San Angelo, and the dental hygiene and medical lab technology programs at Howard College.

Wright also is a deacon at Midway Baptist Church and was involved in several civic organizations.

He and his wife Patricia have three children.

Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College is a two-year community college in Miami, Okla.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, was unavailable this morning to comment on the resignation or any time frame for replacing Dr. Wright.

Denies he 'beat the rap'

Hinckley shocked by verdict

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr. denies that he "beat the rap" last week when a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity in the shooting of President Reagan, according to a published report.

In a copyright story in The Washington Post today, Hinckley said he believes he was insane when he shot Reagan and three others and emphatically denied that he "beat the rap," as one newspaper headline had said.

"I'm not walking out on the street. I'm in a hospital with bars on it ... They act like I'm out free ... It's not that way at all," Hinckley said.

Hinckley said he was shocked by the jury's verdict — that he was so sure he would be convicted that he had prepared a four-page speech to read in court the day he thought he would be sentenced, the Post reported.

"I respect them (the jurors) now a lot for just saying, 'To hell with what the public said, we think he's not guilty,'" Hinckley said during three telephone interviews Saturday and Sunday from St. Elizabeths Hospital for the mentally ill, where he is confined.

Post reporter Laura A. Kjerian obtained the interview because Hinckley called her at the newspaper from the hospital. Hinckley's chief defense lawyer, Vincent J. Fuller, said Monday that the calls were made without the knowledge of Hinckley's attorneys.

In what were his first comments to the news media since his arrest immediately after the shooting March 30, 1981, Hinckley also said he likes the hospital.

"I like it here so far. Nobody bothers me ... They call me Mr. Hinckley," he said. He said that when he arrived at the hospital last Tuesday people began asking for his autograph.

Hinckley was found innocent of the shootings by reason of insanity June 21. Doctors at St. Elizabeths must submit a report on his mental condition to the court by Aug. 2 and U.S. District Judge Barrington

D. Parker has scheduled a hearing Aug. 9 to determine whether Hinckley is entitled to release from the hospital because he is no longer a danger to himself or others.

Asked if he thought he was ready to be released from the hospital, Hinckley, hesitated, then said: "That's a hard question ... I certainly would not be a danger to myself and I don't honestly think I've been a danger to society ... I certainly would not be a danger to the president, I'll say that for sure."

He said he thought there might be a problem with one person.

"I don't know if you've ever heard of her," he said, naming actress Jodie Foster. "I don't think there would be a problem. I don't think I would go stalking after her ... If we were in the same room, there might be some problem," he said.

He said that he has in his hospital room a picture of her taken from a magazine.

Lenders, realtors respond to high court action

Mortgage ruling shouldn't pose problems

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling yesterday that home owners with mortgages at federally chartered savings and loan associations can be forced to pay off their loans should have little adverse effect locally, according to a check with area lenders and realtors.

The ruling was in response to a case in California that challenged a "due on sale" clause established in 1976 by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which requires homeowners to repay mortgages when they sell their homes.

First Federal Savings President Charles Beil said

his institution already had been implementing the "due on sale" clause, which allows lenders to adjust rates to a current level when a house is sold.

Beil said the ruling simply "enforces the legality" of the 1976 bank board ruling.

He said the ruling allows savings and loans to "upgrade loans as quickly as possible to current rates to continue as leading mortgage lenders."

Several area real estate brokers were in agreement that the ruling would create few problems.

Janelle Davis of Sun Country Realty said, "The savings and loans need to get a better rate of conventional loans. They are our lifeblood and we can't afford to kill them off. I don't know that the ruling will be any problem."

Jeff Brown of Home Realtors said the ruling was "what I expected. Savings and loans had to have that right to have money working at current rates or else they would have to go the short term loans at higher rates. It's not going to affect us."

Laverne Gary of Area One Realty dissented by saying, "I think it will have a bad effect. The only homes selling now are mostly on (assumed mortgages). It's going to hurt and we'll be struggling. I know it was done in the favor of savings and loans, but I don't see how it'll help the housing industry."

Q. Why isn't there any wrestling in Big Spring anymore?
A. Probably because no one is willing to promote the sport anymore. According to former Herald editor and historian Joe Pickle, wrestling peaked and waned in popularity in the '20s, '30s and died out for the last time in the mid-'50s. He said occasional stabs at promoting events had taken place but nothing steady developed.

SHEEP WATCHER — A large Pyrenee dog keeps a close watch of a near-by flock of sheep. The pyrenees are being used in an Archer County sheep operation to protect the sheep from predators. Not to be confused with the "sheep dog," that are used to herd sheep, these dogs live among the sheep, acting as protectors.

Guard dogs vs. coyotes

Unlikely breed of dog protects sheep, ranchers say

By JOE BROWN
Wichita Falls Times

WINDHORST, Texas (AP) — They're big, clumsy and could never catch a coyote in a foot race, but a pair of Great Pyrenees guard dogs has changed the Berend Brothers sheep operation in Archer County.

Predators, mainly coyotes, had become so great a problem for the Berends' sheep operation that the flock had to be penned each night and lambs still were being lost to prowling coyotes.

The new practice of using guard dogs has changed this. The dogs run year round with the sheep. They live with the sheep day and night.

"These guard dogs should not be confused with the 'sheep dog' such as a Border Collie. The sheep dogs are used to move or handle sheep; the guard dogs are used to protect them."

Lawrence Berend said the Pyrenees are typical of the guard dogs that have been developed in Asia and Europe such as the Komondors of Hungary.

"They all look strikingly alike in spite of their geographic separation," he said.

The dogs are large, placid and generally unresponsive, with domed heads and drooped ears.

The beautiful part is they do not chase sheep but relate to them.

Berend said the dogs were out with the sheep last June and have never been separated. The only handling they get is annual shots and when James Zotz, a Berend employee, feeds them once a day in the pasture.

The dogs lie in the shade with the sheep and walk to water with them. The Pyrenees have the same color, shape and about the same weight of a grown ewe. The resemblance is so close the dogs are difficult to locate in a flock, whether it is moving or grazing.

The dogs even interact with sheep, sniffing noses or tails and sharing a patch of shade.

Berend stressed that the dogs aren't treated as pets.

"They don't even have names, and their only contact with humans is when James comes out once a day to feed them," he said.

Berend tried to coax the dogs away from the sheep for a better photograph, but they moved off in the same direction as the sheep.

He said in all the years they have run sheep they always had to pen the flock at night or lose lambs by the dozen to predators. Now the sheep are penned only to work the lambs.

"We've lost almost no lambs, and when we did it was our fault," explained the Windhorst hog, chicken, cattle and lamb producer. "There are many traps and small fenced fields in this farm that a coyote can catch a few lambs in a trap and kill them before the hogs can find a way to get around the fences."

He said the dogs can't catch a coyote and are slow and clumsy, but if a predator attacks the sheep, they attack the predator.

Berend said a neighbor told him he saw the pair of guard dogs chase four coyotes out of the pasture, but once the varmints got to the barbed wire fence the dogs turned back to the flock.

Berend, who said his lambs and wool are always marketed in San Angelo, said he began hearing of the guard dogs about two years ago. Last June he decided to try a pair and began pricing them.

"I finally got with Vernon Hogg, a breeder of the guard dogs down at Brownwood, Texas, and he had six of them out in an 800-acre pasture with some sheep. I picked out these two. They were 15 months and 18 months at the time."

"He told me he just put the dogs as pups out with the sheep and let them grow up with the sheep," said Berend.

Berend said the advantage of not penning at night is more than the time and trouble saved.

"It spreads all that manure over the fields instead of letting it stack up in the pens, and James said the sheep are having a lot less mastitis and other diseases," he said.

Yankees big on Texas pawnshops

HOUSTON (AP) — Jobless Northerners needing quick cash and middle-income workers looking for a bargain are becoming regular pawnshop customers, pawnshop owners here say.

The owners say they have noticed more and more white-collar customers and jobless newcomers walking through the door as the economy has weakened.

Richard Bearden, who runs B&J Pawnshop in northwest Houston, estimated the new customers make up about 30 percent of his business and that four out of every five customers are looking for jobs.

"A lot of people from the North are coming in — a lot of them looking for a pot of gold and it's just not here," he said.

An oil field pump salesman who used to earn $50,000 a year is now driving a cab part time and one man pawned a diamond ring he bought just a few months ago to make ends meet, Bearden said.

"More people are coming in talking about how they lost their job and can't make payments," he said.

Statistics released recently showed unemployment in this boomtown at 5.6 percent, and analysts have predicted the level could climb as high as 7 percent soon.

But Keith Venatta, manager of The Grand in southwest Houston, said many white-collar customers are just looking for bargains.

"People are turning toward a pawnshop because they're trying to save money, and if they can get a good deal, they'll take it," Venatta said.

With the increased business, merchandise is starting to stack up on the shelves, owners said.

"I'm having a hard time moving items that have to be considered very, very reasonably priced. I have mechanic's tools that six months ago, somebody would have snapped up — bang, bang," Bearden said.

"Tools are generally a good item because there are a lot of machinists in the area, but I've got so many for sale, and so many in pawn that if they don't pick them up, I'm going to have to eat them," Bearden said.

Like father, like son

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Larry and Louis Franklin think father-son rivalries are a bunch of fiddlesticks.

Larry Franklin overcame some tough competition to win the 10th annual National Collegiate Fiddlers' Festival in Commerce — his father, a seven-time world fiddle championship winner.

Louis, 59, and Larry, 28, say they don't let the fact that they're related get in the way of a good battle when they're pitted against each other in contests like the festival in Commerce earlier this month.

"I always gave it my best shot," the younger Franklin said. "We don't give each other any slack. We're trying to play the best we can and entertain the crowd at the same time."

"I never gave him an inch," his father said. "I felt like if I gave over to him, he wouldn't have the incentive to improve. I did the best I could and so did he."

Larry played in his first fiddling contest when he was 8.

"I'm not walking out on the street. I'm in a hospital with bars on it ... They act like I'm out free ... It's not that way at all," Hinckley said.

Hinckley said he was shocked by the jury's verdict — that he was so sure he would be convicted that he had prepared a four-page speech to read in court the day he thought he would be sentenced, the Post reported.

"I respect them (the jurors) now a lot for just saying, 'To hell with what the public said, we think he's not guilty,'" Hinckley said during three telephone interviews Saturday and Sunday from St. Elizabeths Hospital for the mentally ill, where he is confined.

Post reporter Laura A. Kiernan obtained the interview because Hinckley called her at the newspaper from the hospital. Hinckley's chief defense lawyer, Vincent J. Fuller, said Monday that the calls were made without the knowledge of Hinckley's attorneys.

In what were his first comments to the news media since his arrest immediately after the shooting March 30, 1981, Hinckley also said he likes the hospital.

"I like it here so far. Nobody bothers me ... They call me Mr. Hinckley," he said. He said that when he arrived at the hospital last Tuesday people began asking for his autograph.

Hinckley was found innocent of the shootings by reason of insanity June 21. Doctors at St. Elizabeths must submit a report on his mental condition to the court by Aug. 2 and U.S. District Judge Barrington

D. Parker has scheduled a hearing Aug. 9 to determine whether Hinckley is entitled to release from the hospital because he is no longer a danger to himself or others.

Asked if he thought he was ready to be released from the hospital, Hinckley, hesitated, then said: "That's a hard question ... I certainly would not be a danger to myself and I don't honestly think I've been a danger to society ... I certainly would not be a danger to the president, I'll say that for sure."

He said he thought there might be a problem with one person.

"I don't know if you've ever heard of her," he said, naming actress Jodie Foster. "I don't think there would be a problem. I don't think I would go stalking after her ... If we were in the same room, there might be some problem," he said.

He said that he has in his hospital room a picture of her taken from a magazine.

Lenders, realtors respond to high court action

Mortgage ruling shouldn't pose problems

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling yesterday that home owners with mortgages at federally chartered savings and loan associations can be forced to pay off their loans should have little adverse effect locally, according to a check with area lenders and realtors.

The ruling was in response to a case in California that challenged a "due on sale" clause established in 1976 by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which requires homeowners to repay mortgages when they sell their homes.

First Federal Savings President Charles Beil said

his institution already had been implementing the "due on sale" clause, which allows lenders to adjust rates to a current level when a house is sold.

Beil said the ruling simply "enforces the legality" of the 1976 bank board ruling.

He said the ruling allows savings and loans to "upgrade loans as quickly as possible to current rates to continue as leading mortgage lenders."

Several area real estate brokers were in agreement that the ruling would create few problems.

Janelle Davis of Sun Country Realty said, "The savings and loans need to get a better rate of conventional loans. They are our lifeblood and we can't afford to kill them off. I don't know that the ruling will be any problem."

Jeff Brown of Home Realtors said the ruling was "what I expected. Savings and loans had to have that right to have money working at current rates or else they would have to go the short terms loans at higher rates. It's not going to affect us."

Laverne Gary of Area One Realty dissented by saying, "I think it will have a bad effect. The only homes selling now are mostly on (assumed mortgages). It's going to hurt and we'll be struggling. I know it was done in the favor of savings and loans, but I don't see how it'll help the housing industry."

Q. Why isn't there any wrestling in Big Spring anymore?
A. Probably because no one is willing to promote the sport anymore. According to former Herald editor and historian Joe Pickle, wrestling peaked and waned in popularity in the '20s, '30s and died out for the last time in the mid-'50s. He said occasional stabs at promoting events had taken place but nothing steady developed.

British rail strike off

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of Britain's National Union of Railwaymen called off a day-old national rail strike Monday after their stoppage brought transport chaos to London, already gripped by a week-old subway shutdown.

Delegates at the NUR's annual conference in Plymouth, a coastal resort in southwest England, voted 47-30 to suspend the strike after thousands of their 117,500 members defied the strike call and kept some trains running.

The rail workers are to return to the job at midnight Tuesday, and trains should be running again Wednesday. The union's conference referred the pay and productivity dispute that led to the stoppage to a national railways tribunal for arbitration.

However, the conference made no immediate decision on its members' strike against the London Underground subway system, brought on by a separate pay and productivity dispute between the NUR and the British capital's government-subsidized transit authority, London Transport.

The surprise vote against the rail strike, which paralyzed many sections of the 11,500-mile state-run network Monday, appeared to undercut a threatened campaign of disruption by labor union militants in state-owned industries against Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government.

Polish youths riot

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Helmeted riot police swinging long batons clashed briefly with youths shouting "Long Live Solidarity" during a tense standoff Monday at a memorial march commemorating bloody riots 26 years ago in Poznan, witnesses said.

About 300 youths fled from a crowd of about 4,000 workers who gathered at a huge memorial cross in central Poznan, erected by the now-suspended Solidarity union last year to commemorate scores of deaths and injuries during the 1956 rioting there.

The clashes ended quickly, however, as heavy trucks and water cannon surrounded the marchers, who had walked quietly about 1 1/2 miles to the cross from the Cegielski heavy equipment factory where the 1956 riots began.

Delegates from the factory placed wreaths at the foot of the cross and distributed small leaflets saying "Free Lech Walesa," the witnesses said.

The march came at the end of a two-day series of events marking the 1956 riots that left some 75 people, including soldiers and police, dead and at least 300 wounded in the worst violence since the communists came to power in Poland after World War II.

Nixon praises Shultz

PARIS (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon, whose advisers included both Alexander M. Haig Jr. and George Shultz, predicted today that Shultz's views on the Middle East would have "perhaps a shade of difference" from Haig's "but not as great as some have indicated."

He also said he had tried to talk Haig out of resigning and that he did not believe "we've heard the last" of Haig, who resigned as secretary of state on Friday and is being replaced by Shultz.

"I happen to be one of the few who knew both Haig and Shultz, perhaps better than anyone else," Nixon said. "I just wish both could be in the administration. But Secretary Shultz will carry on. He will have his differences from the Haig policies, perhaps a shade of difference in the Mideast, although not as great as some have indicated."

Shultz had strong business ties to Saudi Arabia through his work with the Bechtel Corp. As a result, there has been speculation that he will be more sympathetic to the Arab view than Haig, who is a strong supporter of Israel.

He's Prince William, not Willy, palace says

LONDON (AP) — Britain's littlest prince will be known as William — not as Billy or Willy or Bill. And that's official.

"The name Prince William will not be foreshortened in any way," Buckingham Palace advised Monday when it announced the names chosen for the blue-eyed son born to Prince Charles and Princess Diana on June 21.

The full name of their heir apparent is William Arthur Philip Louis. Second in line to the throne behind his father the Prince of Wales, he will be known as Prince William of Wales.

But the British tabloid The Sun succumbed to temptation today, running a story on the week-old prince under the headline "Billy the Kid."

"It's bound to get shortened, isn't it?" said Earl Spencer, Diana's father. "I don't know what I'll call him yet."

Other reaction to the choice of names varied widely.

"I think it's a very lovely name, very royal and aristocratic," said William "Willie" Hamilton, the Labor member of Parliament who has long campaigned to abolish the monarchy.

"I'm sure they had me in mind when they chose it," he quipped.

"Surely he will be known as King Willie."

Genealogist Patrick Montague-Smith, former editor of Debrett's, the blue-bloods, Who's Who, said William was "one of the greatest traditional names." The present editor, Charles Kidd, said the name had "a fine ring to it."

But Leslie Dunkling, author of the books "First Names First" and "Our Secret Names," said William came nowhere in a survey among London women on which men's names they considered sexiest.

The women Dunkling surveyed fancied David, Stephen, Paul, Mark, Adam, Robert, Richard, Michael, Christopher and Philip in that order.

"But William is not seen as sexy at all," he said.

Nevertheless, birth announcements appearing in the London Times show William comes second only to James in popularity.

William also sat well with Protestants in strife-torn Northern Ireland. "King Billy" — King William III — on his white horse is a powerful tribal totem, recalling the Dutch-born monarch who routed Catholic King James II in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

"Nothing would please the Northern Irish more than to see a King William on the throne because of the past great Williamite traditions," said the fiery Protestant leader the Rev. Ian Paisley.

Inmate's trial date set

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge has set Aug. 2 for the retrial of Eroy Edward Brown, a Texas prison inmate charged with capital murder in the drowning of a warden.

Brown, of Waco, is accused in the April 4, 1982, deaths of Ellis Unit Warden Wallace Pack and prison farm manager Billy Max Moore. Prosecutors have said they may seek to try Brown later in Moore's shooting death.

Brown has said he acted in self defense, believing the two prison officials were going to torture him.

Brown's first trial in Pack's slaying ended in a mistrial March 4 when jurors voted 11-1 in favor of acquittal.

Mrs. Alvear is July Nurse of Month

MAGDALENA ALVEAR
...nurse of month

As one of twelve children born near Matamoros, Mexico, little did Magdalena Alvear think that she would some day be named Hospital Nurse of the Month for July. As a matter of fact she probably did not even dream of ever becoming a nurse. She spent about ten years of her childhood in Mexico and her first taste of life in the United States came when she used to visit in Brownsville, Texas.

She apparently liked what she saw and came to the United States with her family in 1951, and settled in Brownsville where she became a naturalized citizen, and remained at the tip of Texas until 1971 when she came to Big Spring where she has since resided.

Her career with Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital started in April of 1976 at which time she became a member of the Housekeeping Staff. After a few years Mrs. Alvear decided that her ambitions to better herself should be reckoned with and she asked that she be transferred to the Nursing Staff as a Nurses Aide, a position which she holds today.

When asked by the hospital Administrator why she made this change Mrs. Alvear simply stated "I enjoy helping people who cannot help themselves, and I realized that as a maid my capabilities in that direction were very limited. To me the nursing profession was the means by which I could satisfy my desires and to this day I have never regretted my decision. I hope some day to attend the school for Vocational Nursing at Howard College."

Mrs. Alvear further added "I want to thank my co-workers for the honor they have bestowed on me and had it not been for their patience and help, I would not have gained this award."

Mrs. Alvear lives with her husband, Manuel, also a nurse, and their three children at 610 N.E. 9th Street. They are members of St. Thomas Catholic Church. Mrs. Alvear is very active in her church work as a member of the Ladies Altar Society, and she says when she is not nursing she enjoys cooking and providing a home for her family.

Dear Abby

Wife fears husband's flirting

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 70, and he's in a rest home and will never be able to come home because of an illness I can't handle. Sam (not his name) is attractive and well-read, but he gets confused now and then.

I don't drive, so a friend I'll call Emma drives me to see Sam two or three times a week. Emma often goes to visit Sam without me, which is fine because Sam appreciates the company.

Now the problem. Lately when I visit Sam with Emma, he pays more attention to her than he does to me. He never takes his eyes off her, and the last time we visited Sam, the hello and goodbye kisses between him and Emma were much warmer than you'd expect between casual friends. I laughingly told Emma on the way home that I thought Sam had a crush on her. She said, "Oh no, we're just good friends," but I noticed she turned beet-red.

Emma is my age, late 60s and she's never been married. I enjoy her company and don't want to break up the friendship. Should I be jealous?

SAM'S WIFE

Keep a cool head and a warm heart. Emma's not about to steal Sam out of the rest home.

DEAR ABBY: Please, I need help quick. I've been going with this guy, Harold, for three years. He's sweet and understanding, and it was no surprise when he gave me an engagement ring for Christmas three years ago. (I was 20 then and he was 22.) We discussed marriage but didn't make any definite plans for the wedding because Harold kept saying we shouldn't rush into anything.

A few weeks ago Harold said he thinks we should live together first because he doesn't want to get married until he knows what married life is like.

I am dead set against living with him or any other man. He says, "I'm old-fashioned, that everybody is doing it. I call myself "respectable," and I refuse to go along with his suggestion. I tried to give him his ring back, but he wouldn't take it.

What I want to know is this: Am I old-fashioned, and is everybody doing it? Or is Harold right?

RESPECTABLE IN MINNESOTA
DEAR RESPECTABLE: You are not old-fashioned, and everybody is not doing it! Hang in there, girl. If Harold doesn't want to marry you on your terms, somebody else will.

Stephanie Stephens attends Girls' State

Stephanie Stephens attended the 1982 session of Bluebonnet Girls' State which was held June 15-25 at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin.

Stephanie Stephens is the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stephens of O'Donnell and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.D. Cross of Colorado City Lake, formerly of Big Spring.

This year, 560 girls from across the state attended the activity. It was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary as a public service to the community, state and nation.

The purpose of Girls' State is to educate young women in the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship. It is a mythical state where the citizens organize their own and debate their own bills in the legislature. Law enforcement agencies and courts are also put into use by the citizens of Girls' State. The girls learn about government by participating in government.

It is a non-partisan program, but is divided into two political parties to be as near to a replica of the democratic form of United States and Texas government as possible. Each girl is assigned to a party and to either the House of Representatives or the Senate upon arrival at Girls' State. One day while there, they are taken to the capitol in Austin where each girl functions in the capacity of the office to which she was elected or in her respective legislative body. The girls who have been elected to state offices are inaugurated in the capitol's rotunda. Girl State is a program of citizenship and Americanism.

Girls attending must have just completed their junior year in high school. They are selected on merits of character and potential leadership and scholastic achievement.

Stephanie will be a senior at Borden County High School in Gail this fall, where she is feature twirler for the Coyote Band. She has held offices in her high school class, is a member of Future Homemakers of America and is a Borden County 4-H Gold Star Girl. She was a finalist in the Miss Northern Texas Teenager Pageant held at Clarendon College in May. She also is an active member of O'Donnell United Methodist Church.

Kelli Bearden competes for Miss Texas T.E.E.N.

Kelli Bearden, 18-year-old daughter of Mrs. Norma Bearden of Big Spring has been selected to compete in the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant to be held in Stemmons Auditorium, Loews Anatole, Dallas, Texas, July 3. This Pageant is the Official State-wide Finals for the Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant to be held in November.

Contestants from all over the state will be competing for the title. All contestants are between the ages of 14 and 18, and must have at least a "B" average in school. They are required to participate in the Volunteer Service Program of the Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant. Through this program, many young ladies are becoming involved in community activities by contributing at least 12 hours of time to some worthwhile charity or civic work.

Among the prizes, the winner of the Texas Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant will receive a $1,000 cash scholarship and an all expense paid trip to compete in the National Finals in Albuquerque, N.M., where prizes to be awarded will total more than $20,000.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic & volunteer service achievements, appearance, poise, personality, patriotic speech or talent and formal presentation. No swimsuit competition is required. Contestants have the choice of presenting a patriotic speech or performing a talent on stage.

Miss Bearden, is sponsored by Jean Junction Jrs. Morrison Super Save, Rita's Flowers, Neal's Pharmacy & Reister Photography. Her hobbies include dance, fashion, and drama. She also contributes time to volunteer service in church and at the Dora Roberts Rehab Center. Kelli has been selected to represent Howard College as a Presidential Classic for the '82-'83 school year.

Dr. Donohue

Allergies: test or not to test?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Are you familiar with a certain kind of blood testing to determine the kinds of foods you are allergic to? If you know of any special testing like this, please let me know because I have severe chronic skin allergy with lots of rashes — T.T.

My allergist friends tell me that one of the very best ways to determine food allergies is simply to see if eliminating that food from your diet does away with symptoms.

Now, there are many blood tests to prove food allergies. The usefulness of these tests is a little controversial, and they are expensive. In one test, the suspect food is added to a sample of your blood. Then a count is made of the number of white blood cells killed after the food was added. The theory is that the offending food triggers a reaction that leads to the cell death. This is called the cytotoxic test.

Another test measures the amount of histamine released by certain blood cells after the food has been added to the sample. We know that histamine is involved in the body's reaction to substances that are toxic to it. Still another test is available. In this one, a paper disc is coated with the suspect food. Then it is flooded with the patient's blood. Allergic antibodies attach to the disc and can be measured. If the number is high, then the person may be thought of as allergic to that food.

So there are many tests. They may be of some help in a particular case. I am not putting them down, certainly, even though I cannot personally vouch for their reliability. I would certainly advise you to begin your search, at least, through the simple elimination method described at the outset of this response.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For years I have been plagued with headaches. Sometimes, I have to go in for shots. The doctors have never been able to determine what causes them. My doctor has now put me on Inderal, and this has completely stopped the headaches. What does this drug do and are there side effects? — D.S.L.

Inderal (propranolol) has a good track record for preventing migraine headaches, and from your letter (and parts of it not used here) it seems that is what you had been experiencing. How it works in preventing the headaches is not known for certain. But for many sufferers, it does. Yes, it has side effects. Every medicine holds this potential.

The side effects with propranolol are few, particularly when the dosage is kept low. The most important contraindication to use of this medicine is in a person who has asthma. You also ask about interference with sexual activity. I cannot find that listed among side effects of this drug. The booklet "How to Tame Headaches" discusses various forms and treatments. Other readers may order a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

Youth selected as delegate to Leadership Conference

Lisa Halfmann, 16, attended the Co-op Youth Leadership Conference at William Jewell College in Liberty, Missouri, June 21-26. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Halfmann of Garden City.

Miss Halfmann and Paul Allen Dunn from Dumas were the two delegates from Texas chosen by the State 4-H office at A & M College. The conference was sponsored by Farmland Industries through local Co-op.

At the conference the delegates learn the principles behind cooperatives, develop leadership skills, gain a better understanding of group interaction and improve communication skills.

Miss Halfmann is active in various 4-H projects. Her project for the past 8 years include Fashion

Revue, Foods and Nutrition, Safety, Beef, Swine, Family Life and Petroleum Power. She has been a junior leader in all of these projects for three years. She also works on the farm and is active in church, school and community activities. Miss Halfmann thinks she would possibly like to study to be a veterinarian.

Choosing men's fashions—pay attention to details

COLLEGE STATION — Attention to details is a man's secret to a well-dressed appearance, says Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist.

Men's fashions change in less obvious ways than women's fashions, but "knowhow" concerning the important details is still just as crucial, the specialist says.

Garment designs and how well each garment relates to the others are two of those details.

Regardless of individual preferences in styling, certain proportions are pleasing, while others make the body look odd, the specialist explains. For example, when jackets are more shaped and closer to the body, then be sure trouser legs also are narrow — to keep upper and lower portions of the body in balance. When lapels are narrow, the best choice in ties and pant legs are narrow, too. Moderate lapels look best with moderately wide pant legs and ties.

Another example of balance is that between the lapel gorge and jacket closure. Gorge is the line where collar and lapel meet. If the gorge is high on the jacket, the top button on the jacket usually will be high, too.

Suspended Tyler police chief may be fired

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Police Chief Willie Hardy says he will appeal his suspension with pay, but the man who pulled Hardy off the job said he will try to have the chief fired.

City Manager Ed Wagoner said he would present to the City Council his case against the man who directed the department through a series of controversies dating back to a bungled 1979 drug investigation.

"While I continue to have faith in Hardy's personal integrity and character, it is apparent to me he cannot effectively provide leadership and administrative ability that is necessary to continue as head of the police department at this time," Wagoner said.

"Within the next several days I will prepare and deliver to city council the reasons for my action as required by the city charter," said Wagoner, who declined to say if a specific incident prompted the suspension.

Hardy declined to comment on his suspension, but said he would be represented by his attorney, Rex Houston, before the City Council.

"I have regretfully taken this action after Hardy declined to accept another position within city government and declined to resign," Wagoner said during a Monday afternoon news conference.

He said it was not related to Hardy's suspension of two officers after an investigation into allegations they used excessive force when arresting a burglary suspect.

The city manager also denied the suspension was related to a petition calling for the city council to fire Wagoner because of his handling of the police department.

Ed Holley, a Tyler security officer and critic of Hardy, has said he hopes to get 2,000 signatures on the petition to fire Wagoner.

Mayor Norman Shtofman said Hardy had been asked to resign before Holley began circulating the petition, and Shtofman and Councilman Glenn Taylor both said they supported Wagoner's decision.

"I think it's something that's been brewing for 60 to 90 days ... we've had some trying times with the police department," said Taylor. The councilman said the suspension was caused by "discord and discontent" within the department.

"Basically we've got a lot of good men on that force. Maybe Mr. Hardy's effectiveness ran out and it was time for a change," he said.

Shtofman said he expected the council to discuss the suspension at a meeting Friday.

"To the best of my knowledge, Wagoner has the full support of the city council as city manager and overwhelming support of the council in the action he's taken today," Shtofman said.

"It Hardy's suspension was a matter of a lack of total community support, a lack of support of his officers, and also a lack of support from the people with whom he works other than the officers. That's no reflection in him individually," said Shtofman.

Wagoner said that assistant Chief Leo Britton had been named acting chief. Britton served as acting chief last December after Hardy was indicted on federal perjury and conspiracy charges stemming from a drug roundup in 1978 and 1979. Hardy was acquitted on all charges.

More than 100 drug charges were thrown out of court when it was revealed that two undercover agents had attempted to frame Tyler nightclubowner Kenneth Bora.

In the police department's most recent controversy, Hardy suspended officers Oren Hale and Dan Ross on June 16.

Grand jurors looking into the allegations of excessive force by arresting officers took no action against Hale, president of the Tyler Patrolmen's Association, and Ross, a member of the group's executive board.

Hale called for Hardy's suspension while he was under indictment for civil rights violations in the drug bust case.

Allegations of retaliation — which Hardy denied — surfaced this month against Hardy when he announced the indefinite suspensions.

NEARING THE END — Light standard painter Richard Constantino, who works for an Abilene firm, stretches to paint a light standard in downtown San Angelo early Monday morning. Keeping beer from Gilligan's Island

Couple opposes permit for business of Guadalupe River

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Flodines of Comal County hope to leave David Simon stranded on Gilligan's Island without a beer permit.

Simon wants the state to let him sell beer at his business on the Guadalupe River. Norris and Jean Flodine say there's already too much drinking and carousing on the river that flows by their home.

Mrs. Flodine, 66, said the drinking is out of hand on the river. Recently, about 10:30 at night, she heard someone yell from the river, — "If you want to see sex on the river, turn on the light."

Simon's application for a beer permit for his Gilligan's Island business came before an Alcoholic Beverage Commission hearing examiner on Monday. The hearing will be continued in coming weeks. Everyone involved in the battle says it's a friendly fight.

The Flodines say there already are about nine places to buy beer along the river. The tubers and canoeists who come downriver by the thousands have shown great thirst and little concern about litter, they said.

"I've seen all kinds of debris — broken ice chests, beer cans, beer bottles and those plastic things that six-packs come in," Mrs. Flodine testified. "I even picked up a man's swimming suit. I don't know where the man was."

Norris Flodine, 66, is a retired government architect. He said his Monday appearance at the ABC marked the first time he has played lawyer.

It did not go too well. Simon has hired an aggressive, young lawyer, Barbara Barron, who knew her timely objections could frustrate Flodine's attempts to get evidence and testimony on the record.

In questioning his wife, Flodine opened by trying to establish that she lives near the Guadalupe.

Judge selection called 'Russian Roulette'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With up to 80 candidates to choose from on some ballots, Texas voters are doing nothing more than playing "Russian roulette" when they choose judges, a special committee on the subject has been told.

But the Select Committee on Judicial Selection was also told Monday at its first public hearing that eliminating elections would closet judges away from their public.

Forrest Smith, a Dallas attorney and a member of the Committee for a Qualified Judiciary, said "embedded political leaders" are the only ones who favor keeping judges beholden to party politics.

"We are playing 'Russian roulette' with our judicial system," he said. "Qualifications are becoming secondary to how a candidate spells his name."

Smith did not advocate any particular system, but said virtually any change "would be better than the status quo," which was defined, with some qualifications, by Dallas attorney Otto Mullinax.

"We must insist that judges play their constitutional role to the full and account to us, not to a governor or a selection commission," Mullinax said. "We demand as a right that our judges account to us, the voters, by seeking our approval to office."

Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, chairs the 13-member panel which was appointed by House Speaker Bill Clayton. He said the committee will consider changes in the process ranging from simple "fine-tuning," like adding the notation "incumbent" by appropriate names on the ballot, to wholesale dissolution of judicial elections in favor of a merit system.

Currently, only 10 states, including Texas, choose judges through partisan elections. A dozen hold non-partisan elections to fill judicial slots, three give the choice to their governors and three more leave the choosing of judges to the state legislature.

Nigerian indicted on gun charge

HOUSTON (AP) — A Nigerian who allegedly tried to ship firearms to his homeland has been indicted and jailed in lieu of $200,000 bond, the U.S. attorney's office says.

Kristian Chima, who lives here, was arrested May 28 after U.S. Customs agents at Houston Intercontinental Airport found 35 handguns, more than a thousand rounds of ammunition and 18 cases of film in a container addressed to Chima in Lagos, Nigeria, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl Shamwell.

More indictments could be returned in Wichita, Kan., where the .22-caliber pistols apparently were purchased, Shamwell said.

The incitement, which was returned Monday, charges Chima failed to disclose that he was shipping firearms and gave a false statement to Customs officials on a shipper's declaration.

"He claimed on these forms that the box's contents were just household goods," Shamwell said.

David Benton, agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Wichita, said Chima is being investigated in a scheme involving more than 100 small-caliber handguns purchased in the Kansas town within the last year.

Shuttle science tests hit and miss targets

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — There was a big hit and a big miss in major science experiments during the space shuttle's second day in orbit.

A machine that experts believe may revolutionize production of some types of medical compounds worked exactly as planned during a high-flow experiment. The device, called the Continuous Flow Electrophoresis System, produced several batches of compounds without an apparent flaw, officials said.

Astronauts Ken Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield again were unable to turn on an experiment package that is housed in a 2-foot-high canister in the cargo bay. The experiments are activated through a single control module, which has failed to work for two days, threatening disappointment for nine Utah college students who designed the project.

Hartsfield operated the electrophoresis system for more than six hours Monday and reported that a stream of raw biological material was processed smoothly.

The experiment uses electrical current to separate compounds, such as hormones or enzymes, from naturally occurring biological sources, such as urine. The process is used on Earth, but experts believe it will be several hundred times more efficient in the weightlessness of space.

James Rose, project manager for McDonnell Douglas, which cosponsors the test project, said he was "very, very pleased" with the test run.

"It ran for six hours and 51 minutes with high concentrations which can't be used on Earth. They were run and flowing nicely," said Rose.

McDonnell Douglas and its partner in the project, Ortho Pharmaceuticals, hope prove that electrophoresis can be used in space to create superpure hormones or enzymes that are valuable in treating disease.

20 ways to help hold down your electric bill.

A checklist to help you save energy and money at home.

Energy Conservation Practices

Electricity is costing more this summer mainly because the fuel to make it is costing more. The following low- or no-cost home conservation practices can help you save energy and money.

- Do not use air conditioner unless absolutely necessary.
- Keep your thermostat set no lower than 80° in the summer. Use ceiling or oscillating fans to circulate the air.
- Check your air conditioner filters each month to see if they need cleaning or changing. And make sure that the outside unit is free of grass, leaves and trash.
- When leaving home, turn off air conditioning. If away for two days or more, turn off water heater.
- If you have a dishwasher, set water heater to 140°; otherwise, set temperature to 120° or lower.
- Use scrap insulation to plug air leaks in attic, around fireplace dampers and window air conditioners.
- Repair water leaks in pipes and faucets, and seal air duct leaks.
- Use drapes, blinds, shades, awnings or plants to block sunlight.
- Try to minimize traffic through outside doors.
- Economize in the kitchen. Plan meals so several dishes can be cooked in the oven at the same time.
- Save when you do laundry. Wash and dry only full loads of clothes.

Energy Conservation Measures

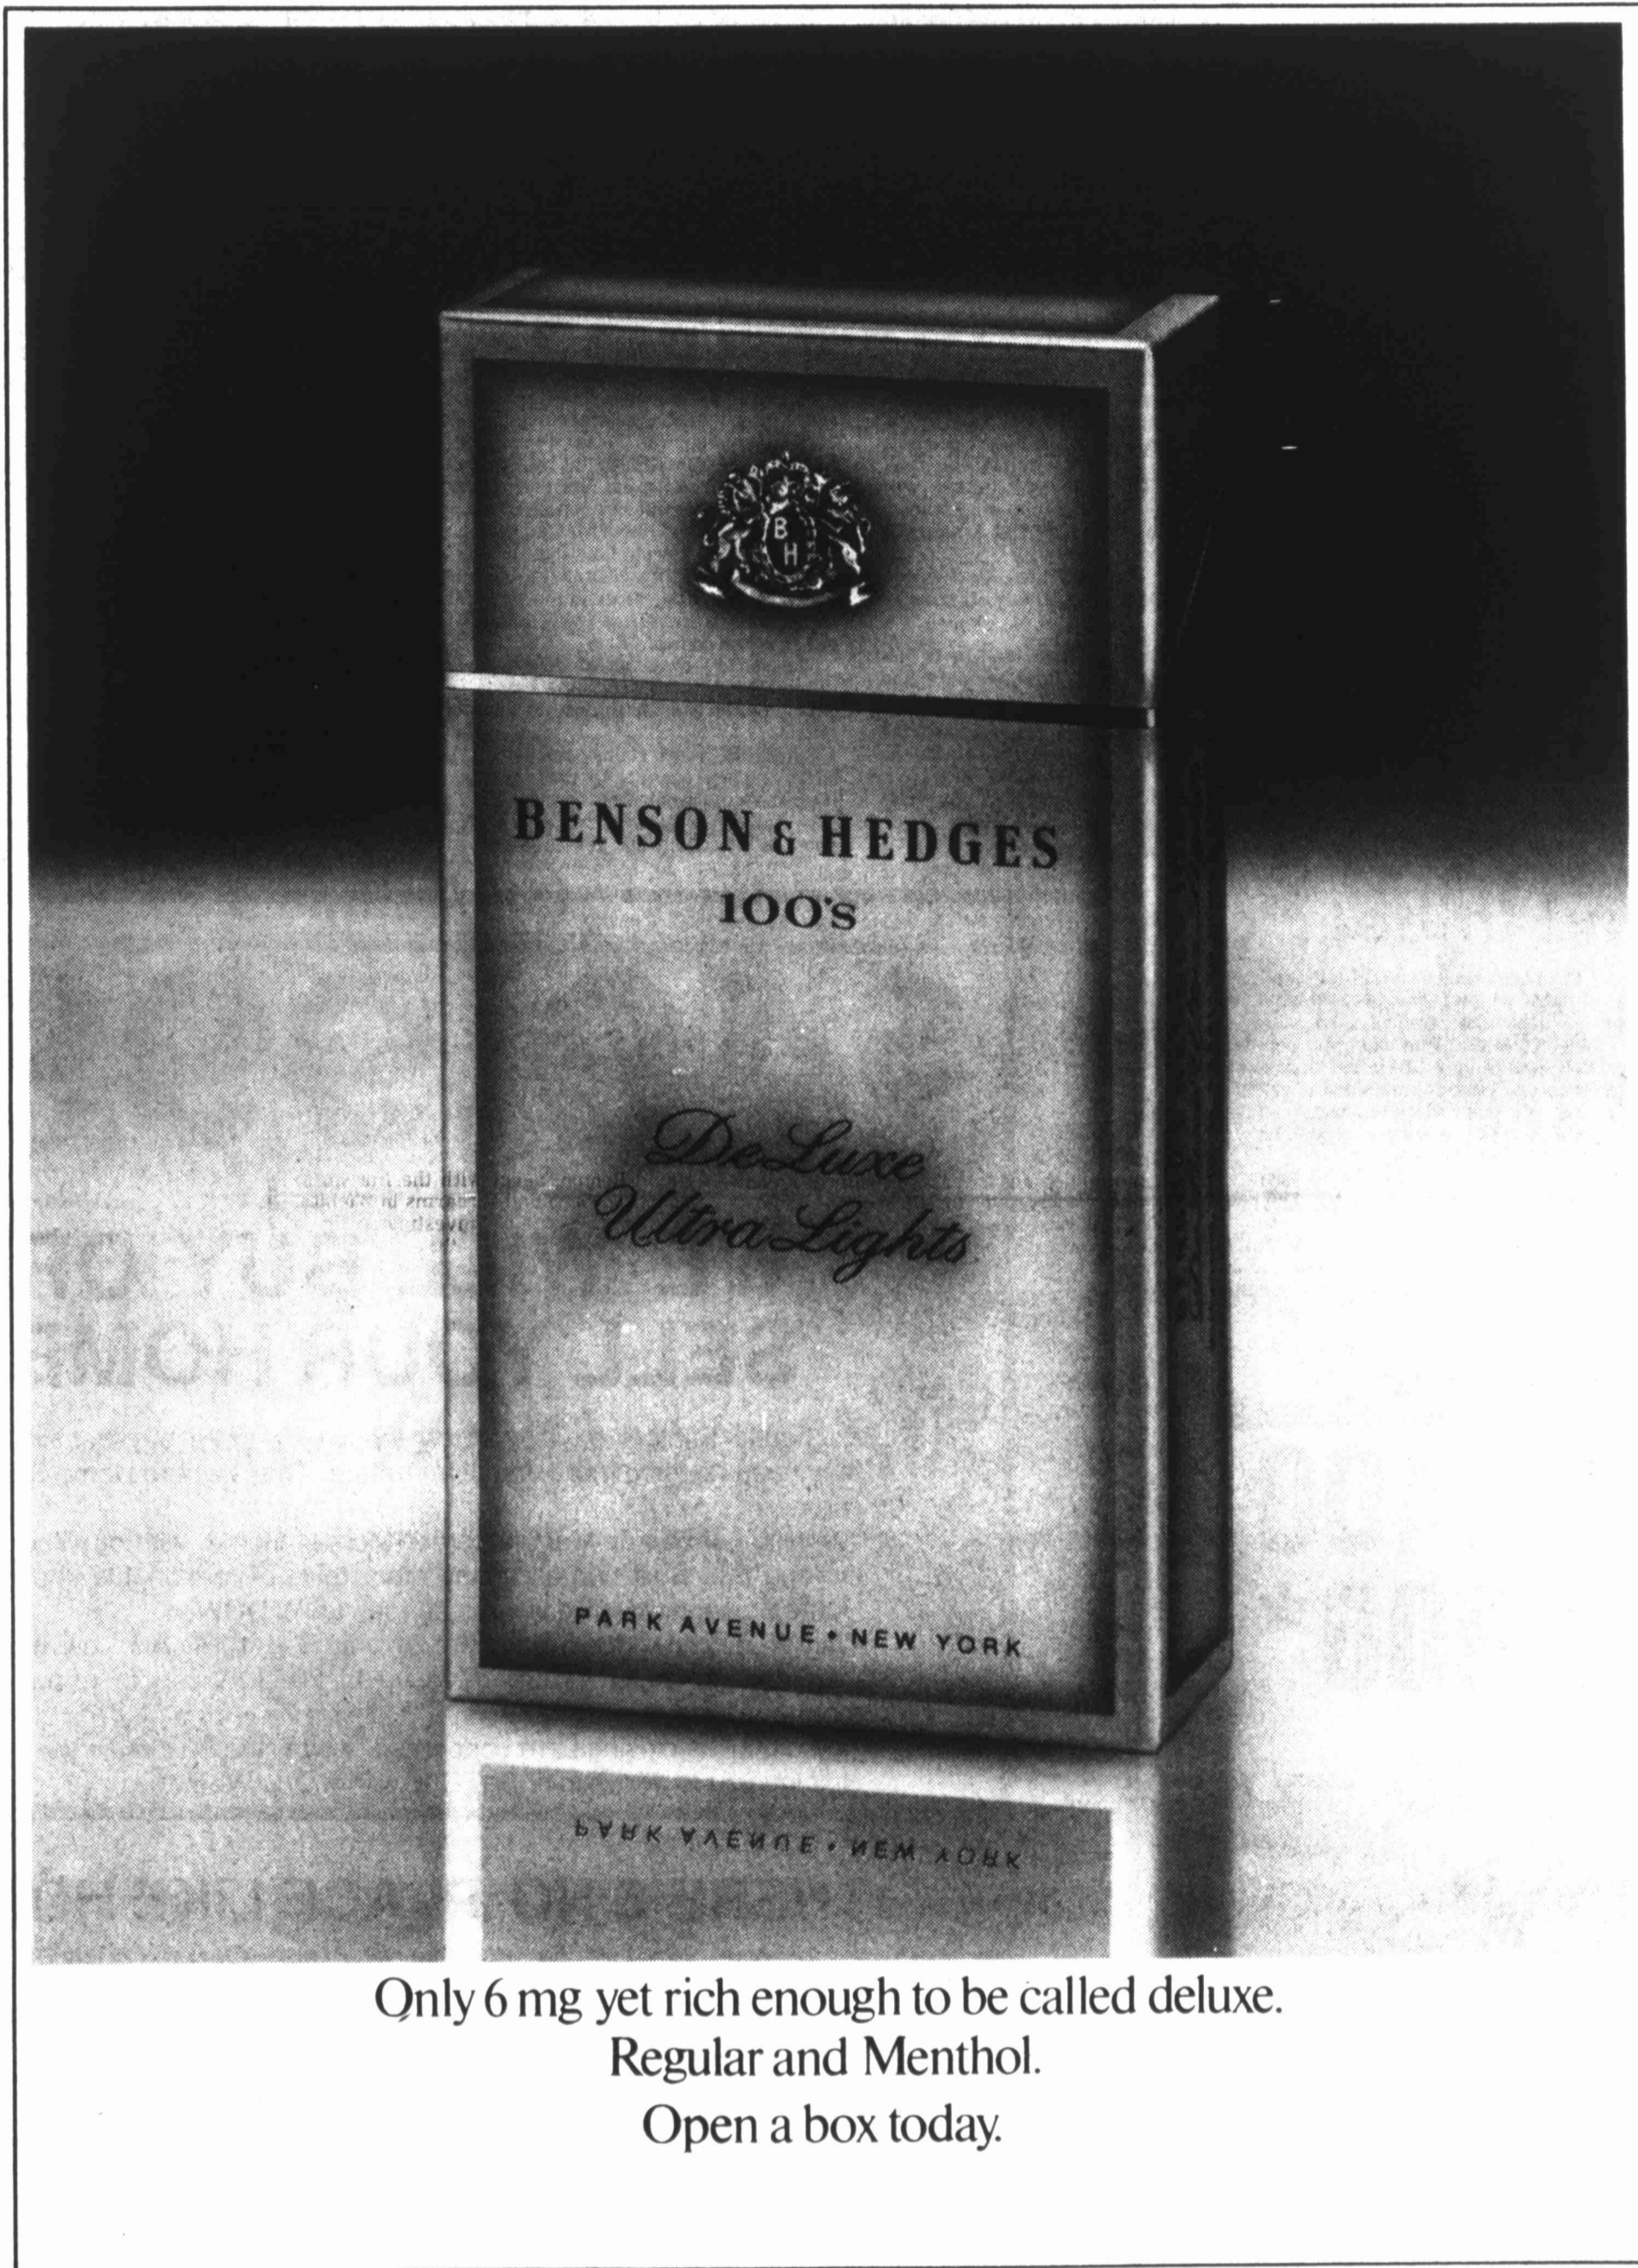

These home installations and modifications require an investment, but may return their cost to you in the form of savings on utility bills.

- Caulk and weatherstrip around doors and windows to reduce air leaks.
- Add insulation to ceilings, walls and floors.
- Insulate ducts, especially in the attic.
- Insulate hot water pipes in attic.
- Install insulation blankets on water heaters, especially in garage or basement.
- Investigate cost-effectiveness of storm doors and windows.
- Add solar-reflecting materials to doors and windows on east/west exposures.
- Install a clock thermostat to automatically set air conditioner and heating unit to desired temperature. Even when you're away from home, the clock thermostat can control your air conditioner for more economical operation.
- Investigate replacing your central air conditioner, especially if unit is more than five years old, with a new unit that has a Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating (SEER) of at least 8.5.

Preacher stumps for Clements

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Radio evangelist Lester Roloff of Corpus Christi is considered a persuasive preacher, especially among his many listeners around the state.

These days he's putting his persuasiveness to use for one of his favorite politicians — Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

"I helped put him in office," Roloff said. "I believe that it'll be my responsibility to help keep him there."

The 67-year-old evangelist said his role in the 1978 governor's race netted 250,000 votes for Clements.

"We were facing tremendous odds, but we still did our best and he became our governor," Roloff added.

His interest in politics peaking again, Roloff is targeting Democrat Attorney General Mark White, Clements' threat to re-election in November.

Though his dabbling in politics isn't something brand new, Roloff seems to feel he owes his people some explanation.

At a recent revival in San Angelo, reporters quoted him as telling the crowd, "You may say, 'Man, you're off in politics.' No. I'm off on righteousness."

In one rally after another, part of Roloff's political message is positive:

"If you want the largest homes in the world to remain open, you better do something about it when it comes time to vote for governor," he told the San Angelo crowd.

"Now, Gov. Clements — he's my friend. I call him Brother Bill," Roloff added.

The other part is negative: "Anybody who votes for Mark White is not a friend in our homes ... and not a true friend of mine," he said.

"I'm against Mark White because he filed an appeal to close our homes," Roloff said. "That means he would close our homes tomorrow if he could."

Roloff operates homes for delinquent youths, which White and the Department of Human Resources argue must be licensed by the state.

Though the evangelist won a district court battle last year over the licensing issue, White is appealing the case.

The attorney general, who denies any knowledge of Roloff's political stumping for Clements, said, "Well, all I've done is try to enforce the law and I'd hope that that would be honored in his community."

In the last few months, Roloff has visited with Clements in Austin and "at the close, we had a few words about it (the election)," the evangelist acknowledged.

"He's not asked me to do anything," Roloff said of Clements. "He knows where I stand and I know where he stands. We have a gentleman's agreement that we are for each other."

In other words, the evangelist said, his campaigning is not simply anti-White.

"He and I have never had a cross word, I respect him ... but I think he's wrong and violating the constitution" by insisting that Roloff's homes be licensed.

As for the present governor, Roloff added, "I'm for Bill Clements because he's done a good job for Texas."

Residents of Iowa town remember end of communal living

By MARGY McCAY
Associated Press Writer

AMANA, Iowa — Marie Leichsenring Trumpold brings out homemade cheese and fragrant honey cookies as she recalls her last days as a worker in one of Amana's 14 community kitchens.

"It was an abrupt stop," she says of the day the "The Great Change" from communism to capitalism came to the Amana Colonies.

On May 31, 1932, Marie Leichsenring and two other girls helped the older women serve supper as usual to 40 people assigned to their kitchen. When the diners left, they knew they would not return the next morning for coffee, fried potatoes and bread.

"We celebrated," says Mrs. Trumpold, who was 20 years old that summer. "Us three girls, I remember — Dad gave us a little piestengl rhubarb wine, and we had a good time saying goodbye after we got our dishes done."

"Yes, it was a great change."

It was a half-century ago that one of the longest American experiments in communal living came to an end.

After 78 years, the German settlers of the seven villages in Iowa County began to cook meals in their own kitchens, work for wages and own their own homes.

The Amana Colonies — Amana, West Amana, East Amana, South Amana, Middle Amana, High Amana and Homestead — are taking quiet note of the 50-year anniversary of "the change." Although no major celebrations are planned, the Amana Heritage Society is gathering an oral history of life in the communal colonies.

By interviewing Mrs. Trumpold and others who remember those days, the descendants of Amana's founders hope to capture the essence of Old Amana for future generations.

"We're trying to go for the personal life experience — the daily life experiences," says Lanny Haldy, director of the project.

"We're not going for places and dates and facts and such. We're going for impressions and feelings and motivations and things like that."

In the midst of the anniversary preparation, the colonies were hit with another big change. On Jan. 20, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled that the Amana Society, a private corporation which has controlled business development in the colonies for 50 years, no longer can do so.

There are fears that without some type of land-use control, the unique, Old-World flavor of the villages will be lost to commercialization. There is concern about protecting the colonies, but there is no panic — just recognition that change is necessary, once again.

"This change was bound to happen," says Haldy. "Ever since the change in 1932 there's been this contradiction of the Amana Society, a private corporation, carrying on government functions."

The Society was incorporated 50 years ago when the business and church functions of the original Amana Society were separated and the communal way of life ended. At that time, stock in the corporation was issued to the commune members, who, along with their descendants, retain control.

The society owns about 26,000 acres, including farmland, the villages and some businesses in the villages which produce such things as furniture, woolens and meats.

Before the court ruling, the society had the power to issue or deny permits to those who wanted to operate businesses in the colonies.

So Amana residents in 1982 have another reason to think about their heritage and how to preserve it.

But it is the ability to adapt, says Henry Schiff, 78, of Amana, that has long characterized the Amana people, who immigrated to the United States to avoid religious persecution in Europe.

The Community of True Inspiration was formed in Germany in 1714 and became a communal society when its members settled near Buffalo, N.Y., in 1842. They chose communism as a way of life that allowed them to focus their greatest attention on spiritual matters.

The "Inspirationists" moved west in 1854 and settled in east-central Iowa. They farmed the fertile prairie, hewed furniture from the hardwood timber, harnessed the Iowa River for flour and woolen mills and quarried limestone and made bricks for buildings.

The 1,500 people who lived in the seven villages were largely self-sufficient and isolated. Each village had its own kitchens and gardens, mills, factories and small shops to produce needed goods and services.

But as modes of communication and transportation improved, the outside world got closer and closer.

The changes — cars, "modern" clothes rather than traditional black garb, radios — came gradually, but the need for restructuring was clear.

Treasure found in beer can

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) — Alona Gilbert feared she would never find the $10,000 in jewelry hidden in a fake beer can and mistakenly left on a Gulf Coast beach.

Two 10-year-old Dallas boys never dreamed about the treasure they would find stuffed in the beer can they so casually tossed into the surf.

J.J. Huff and Matt Franklin found the tiny safe Saturday as they frolicked on the beach.

They tossed it around and threw it into the surf over and over again and watched it float back to shore. They threw it in the air and then saw it hit the beach, break open and reveal the concealed riches — about $10,000 in jewelry and three $20 bills.

Mrs. Gilbert and her husband, Grover, thought the camouflaged safe was a defective beer can when the pop top broke off Friday night. She didn't know her husband had inadvertently included it with the beer he took from the refrigerator — the place she thought a clever repository for her jewelry.

By the time she discovered the mistake at her Austin home Monday, she was convinced it was too late.

However, by then the boys had turned the treasure over to their parents, who in turn, gave it to police, said detective Sgt. Charles Titus.

J.R.'S BACK — J.R. Richard bears down in the first inning as he tries to make his come back after being struck down by a stroke during the 1980 season. The former Houston star played in his first game today for the Daytona Beach Astros, class A affiliate of the Houston Astros.

J. R. makes first comeback

Former Astros star throws four innings in Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — J.R. Richard wasn't the pitcher he was two years ago before a near-fatal stroke felled him at the peak of his major league career.

The velocity that made his fastball one of the most awesome in baseball was not there. And, as doctors had feared, he was slow in responding to situations requiring him to field his position.

But still, Richard's long-awaited return to the mound — a trip many felt he would never be able to make — drew rave reviews Monday night from Houston Astros General Manager Al Rosen and opposing players who said they admired the 32-year-old pitcher's courage.

Richard, hoping to regain the form that helped him fashion a 107-71 career record with Houston, hurled four innings for the Daytona Beach Astros of the Florida State League in his first start since suffering the stroke July 30, 1980.

He threw 64 pitches, four more than team officials had determined he should, and said he felt strong enough to go another two innings. He left the game trailing the St. Petersburg Cardinals 3-1 and took the loss in an 8-4 decision.

The towering right-hander, nicked for three runs in the first inning, although he didn't yield a solid hit, gave up five hits, struck out one and walked two before a sellout crowd of 4,500 at City Island Park.

"I felt fine," Richard said, adding that he was not concerned that he hadn't overpowered the Class A opposition. "I'm not here to get strikeouts. I'm here to learn how to pitch."

"He's got to have fire in his heart to come back like he has," said St. Petersburg's Frank Garcia, who faced Richard twice and drew one of the two base on balls the right-hander issued.

"That really wasn't him out there. He struggled a little bit but threw me some good pitches," Garcia added. "I think he had a real good idea of what he wanted to do. But to get it done is going to take time."

Throughout his rehabilitation, doctors monitoring Richard's progress have expressed concern about how he would respond to batted balls in a game. Their concern proved well founded, although both Rosen and Richard played down the right-hander's handling of three plays which required him to utilize fielding skills.

Richard was slow covering first base on two grounders to the right side of the infield and was slow responding to a weak line drive hit back to the mound in the third inning. He did, however, manage to knock down the soft liner and throw the runner out at first.

Richard told a news conference after the outing that he feels his fielding will improve with time and that he was more concerned with the positive aspects of the appearance.

Rosen, meanwhile, said it was unfair to expect Richard's fielding to be up to par at this early stage in his recovery.

"His ability to field the position, I thought, took a giant step tonight," said Rosen. "The ball was hit through the middle. He knocked it down, pounced on it and threw it to first base."

"He kept the runners close after the first inning. The two balls that were hit — swinging bunts — I've seen major league pitchers mess those up. I didn't find any fault with that."

Rosen said he felt Richard's velocity had increased since spring training and the movement on his fastball was good.

"Overall, I was very delighted about the way he threw the ball," said Rosen.

St. Petersburg's Bob Meachum, who opened the game by beating out an infield single, said Richard's 6-foot-8 frame was as imposing as he had anticipated, but that he was not as nervous about facing the fireballer as he thought he would be.

"I thought about his reputation as being a little wild before the game. But once we started I didn't think about it anymore," said Meachum.

"His fastball didn't have the overpowering velocity, but I didn't expect it to."

"I wasn't in awe of him because I know he's still in rehabilitation," said Steve Turco, Richard's only strikeout victim. "But he threw the ball well. I was really happy for him."

Richard, who has a lifetime 3.15 earned run average with 1,493 strikeouts, and Rosen said no target date has been established for the pitcher's possible return to the major leagues.

"It took a lot of hard work to get here," said Richard, who spent the past month in a special extended spring training program at Sarasota. "And it will take a lot of hard work to get back (to the major leagues)."

Rosen said Richard will move up to the Astros' Tuscon Class AAA team "when the time is right," but stressed the right hander won't be rushed.

Jaeger, Shriver upset today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova and sentimental favorite Billie Jean King cruised to straight-set victories today, but fourth-seeded Andrea Jaeger was ambushed by Anne Smith and No. 7 Pam Shriver was stunned by Barbara Potter in the All-England Tennis Championships at Wimbledon.

Navratilova overcame some strong early play to subdue 18-year-old Zina Garrison 6-3, 6-2, while King, playing in her 102nd singles match at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, tripped sixth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia.

Smith, the No. 13 seed, upended Jaeger 6-4, 6-2, while the 10th-seeded Potter ousted Shriver with surprising ease, 6-2, 6-4.

Third-seeded Tracy Austin had little trouble ousting West Germany's Claudia Kohde 6-3, 6-3.

All five women advanced into the quarterfinals of the rain-disrupted tournament.

On the men's side, No. 16 Steve Denton completed a match begun Monday by outlasting

Wimbledon 82

Schalk van der Merwe of South Africa 6-7, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 13-11.

The match was suspended at two sets each and 10-10 in the final set Monday because of darkness. The fifth set went to 24 games because Wimbledon, like the French Open, does not use the tiebreaker to decide the final set.

In the final game, van der Merwe was serving to save the match at 30-40 and hit what appeared to be an ace. But when the umpire announced deuce point, Denton refused to change courts, maintaining the service had skimmed the net and should be called a let.

Because the match was played on one of the outer courts and there was no net judge, the umpire yielded to Denton and ordered the point replayed.

Denton finished the match on the next point and, as an angry van der Merwe left the court, the American remained to play his next match against New Zealander Chris Lewis, which followed immediately.

Navratilova, heading towards an expected final match against defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd, nearly overlooked Garrison, last year's Wimbledon and U.S. Open junior girls' champion and a surprise quarterfinalist at the French Open.

"She's fast, so you really have to pick your spots," Navratilova said. "I got rattled in the first set, then tried to slow the pace."

The young American broke service in the third game to take a 3-1 advantage. But Navratilova ripped off the next five games, including breaks in the sixth and eighth games, to capture the set.

Navratilova closed out the final game with two of her three aces, the final one coming at match point.

Lakers make Worthy choice

Mavericks trade for Portland's Ransey

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks traded center Wayne Cooper and a 1985 first-round draft choice to the Portland Trail Blazers Monday in exchange for guard Kelvin Ransey.

The trade fanned speculation that the Mavericks may take Texas center LaSalle Thompson in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft.

The Mavericks select fourth Tuesday and Dominique Wilkins, Terry Cummings and James Worthy are expected to be gone. The 6-10 Thompson was the nation's No. 1 rebounder last season.

Cooper averaged nine points and seven rebounds per game but became a free agent after the 1981-1982 season.

The Mavericks had the right to keep Cooper by signed with the Trail Blazers. Dallas matched Portland's offer then made the trade.

Ransey averaged 16 points and 7 assists last season. He averaged 15.6 points and 7 assists in his two-year career at Ohio State.

In addition to holding their own 1985 first-round choice, the Mavericks own the Denver and Cleveland first-round picks as the result of previous trades.

The Mavs will notify Portland which choice the Blazers will receive five days prior to the 1985 draft.

Dailas picks Wyoming's Garnett

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers added to their treasure chest of stars Tuesday by drafting James Worthy of North Carolina as the first pick in the opening round of the National Basketball Association draft.

Worthy, a 6-foot-9 junior forward who helped the Tar Heels win the NCAA championship last season, was the first of as many as nine underclassmen expected to be chosen in the first round.

The Lakers, champions of the NBA in the 1981-82 season, had acquired the No. 1 pick via a trade with the Cleveland Cavaliers, the team that finished in last place in the Eastern Conference last season, and by winning a coin flip with the San Diego Clippers, who finished last in the Western Conference.

The Lakers wasted no time in selecting Worthy, who averaged 15.6 points per game for North Carolina last season and scored a game-high 28 points in his team's NCAA championship game victory over Georgetown last March.

The Clippers, however, took half of their allotted five minutes before making Terry Cummings of DePaul, another junior forward, the second choice in the draft. The 6-10 All-American averaged 22.3 points and 11.9 rebounds for the Blue Demons last season.

The third choice, by the Utah Jazz, was 6-7 junior forward Dominique Wilkins of Georgia. Wilkins, compared by some scouts to Philadelphia star Julius Erving in his potential for generating excitement in the pros, averaged 21.6 points per game during his career with the Bulldogs and was called the "Top Dawg of Dunk."

The Dallas Mavericks, choosing fourth, became the first team to select a senior in the draft, 6-9½ Bill Garnett of Wyoming. He averaged 18.1 points per game last season.

The pick was somewhat of a surprise because it was believed the Mavericks would take 6-10 center LaSalle Thompson of Texas after they had traded their starting center at the end of last season, Wayne Cooper, to Portland for guard Kelvin Ransey Monday.

However, the Mavericks had acquired center-forward Pat Cummings late Monday from Milwaukee in exchange for Dallas' 1982 second-round draft choice.

The Kansas City Kings immediately snapped up Thompson, the fourth junior selected, with the No. 5 pick. Thompson averaged 18.6 points and led the nation with a 13.9 rebound average.

The New York Knicks then selected 6-5 senior guard Trent Tucker of Minnesota, which brought boos from the large gallery of fans at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum. The fans had chanted for the Knicks to pick Ohio State's Clark Kellogg.

Tucker averaged 14.8 points per game for the Gophers last season.

Quintin Dailey, a 6-3 guard from the University of San Francisco who recently was placed on three years' probation for sexual assault, was chosen by the Chicago Bulls as the No. 7 pick in the draft. Dailey, an All-American, averaged 25.2 points per game for the Dons during the 1981-82 season.

Kellogg, a 6-7 forward, became the fifth junior taken in the draft, when he was picked by the Indiana Pacers. Kellogg scored 16.1 points per game for the Buckeyes last season and was named the most valuable player in the Big Ten Conference.

Detroit, which selected top 1981-82 rookies Isiah Thomas and Kelly Tripucka in the first round last year, chose 6-8 forward Cliff Levingston of Wichita State. Levingston, also a junior, averaged 16.2 points per game during his three-year career.

Bulls name Westhead coach

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Westhead returned to coaching in the National Basketball Association quoting Carl Sandburg and Henry David Thoreau, neither of whom had much to say about a fast-break offense.

Westhead, who achieved a .691 winning percentage — 112-50 — with the Los Angeles Lakers before being dismissed early last season amid a dispute with one of his star players, Earvin "Magic" Johnson, was named Monday as coach of the Chicago Bulls.

Referring to his record with the Lakers, Westhead said, "What's done well is done well forever" — a Thoreau quotation.

Then, trying to define his objective with the Bulls, Westhead turned to Sandburg for inspiration.

"Chicago, as Carl Sandburg so aptly put it, is a city of broad shoulders. We would like to be a team with broad shoulders. Today is the start of building some strong shoulders for the Bulls."

Westhead could be shouldering a formidable task — trying to make a playoff contender of a club that finished fifth in the National Basketball Association's Central Division with a 34-48 record.

Ryan fans 10 in Astros win

ATLANTA (AP) — Nolan Ryan says he never sets any "number goals," but the hard-throwing right-hander of the Houston Astros is putting together some impressive ones.

Ryan weathered a two-hour, seven-minute rain delay to go eight innings Monday night, fanning 10 batters and yielding only four hits as the Astros downed the Atlanta Braves 6-2.

It was the 139th time Ryan, 7-8, has fanned 10 or more batters in a game and also his 196th career triumph. It lifted his career strikeout total to 3,353, third best in baseball history.

"I'm not really number conscious and I've never set any number goals," Ryan said. "If you pitch long enough, you'll get those numbers."

Ryan went through seven innings without giving up a walk, then tired in the eighth and issued three free passes to load the bases before fanning Bob Horner to end the threat.

He has never had a complete game without issuing a walk.

"I'm aware of that, but I just don't think about it," he said. "I just lost my rhythm in the eighth."

The Astros jumped on Rick Mahler, 7-6, for two runs in the first and collected three more in the second with Jose Cruz accounting for an RBI in each inning with a sacrifice fly and a single.

Both Atlanta runs came on leadoff solo homers — by Biff Pocoroba in the third and Rufino Linares in the fifth. It was the second of the year for each.

After a heavy downpour lasted more than an hour, few expected the game to be played.

"I never thought we'd try to play it," said Ryan.

"I had 28 passes here, but I sent my family home," said Ray Knight, the Astros infielder. "I'm from Georgia and I know how it can rain here. I didn't think we'd play, especially after they couldn't get the tarp on."

Manager Bill Virdon of the Astros said Umpire Doug Harvey was about to call the game when the rain suddenly stopped.

"Harvey said he was going to make every effort to play it," Virdon said. "There was a time I figured they'd call it, but they (umpires) always try to get a game in."

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre said he thought the field was unplayable, "but nobody asked my opinion."

"We thought it was ridiculous," said Braves first baseman Chris Chambliss. "The outfield was soaked. I've been playing 12 years and I'm sure I've played in something like this, but I can't remember it."

Phillies 1, Cardinals 0

For Philadelphia first baseman Pete Rose, long hitting streaks were nothing new. But being in first place was something his Phillie teammates had not experienced in 1982.

Rose knew which was more important. "I'll get another one," Rose said. "The important thing is we got first place."

After once trailing the leaders by as many as nine games, the Phillies moved to the head of the National League East for the first time Monday as Steve Carlton blanked the St. Louis Cardinals on six hits, 1-0. The Phils, owners of an eight-game winning streak, took a lead of .005 over St. Louis and a half game over idle Montreal.

The night belonged to the Phillies and Carlton, who became the NL's first 10-game winner, although he would be joined later in the evening by Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela. Carlton,

Giants 7, Reds 1

Renie Martin, 3-4, hurled a four-hitter and struck out seven for his first complete game since June 4, 1980, and only the third route-going performance of his major-league career.

Martin got all the support he needed when the Giants erupted for six runs in the first inning off Cincinnati starter Charlie Leibrandt, 3-2, and reliever Greg Harris. Joe Morgan triggered the rally with a leadoff homer and capped it with a sacrifice fly.

Cubs 6, Pirates 4

Chicago's Leon Durham, who has seven hits in his last eight times up, blasted two home runs and a triple and drove in four runs to lead the Cubs to a come-from-behind victory.

Dick Tidrow, 3-1, who hurled three scoreless innings in relief, got the victory for the Cubs.

American League

Rich Gedman agreed.

"This was one of those knock-down, drag-out affairs," said Gedman, who drove in one run and scored two. "The Brewers are playing well, but we stayed with them. We finally got some balls to drop in for us. It's a good way to start an important road trip."

Remy also drove in a run with a double in the fourth inning and set up the tying tally with a

A's 8, Royals 4

Rickey Henderson drove in four runs and Dwayne Murphy clubbed a three-run homer as Oakland handed Kansas City its third consecutive setback. Henderson, who has stolen 71 bases, tagged loser Larry Gura for a bases-loaded single that gave the A's a 2-0 lead in the second inning and doubled home two more runs in the sixth off Grant Jackson.

"Nothing Rickey does surprises me," said winning pitcher Rick Langford, who allowed 10 single in the sixth after Roy Howell's two-run homer had given the Brewers a 4-3 lead in the top of the sixth. Gorman Thomas also homered for the Brewers, his 18th.

hits in 7-3 innings and was chased in Kansas City's three-run eighth. "He's one of the really great players. He can beat you in so many different ways."

White Sox 8, Twins 7

Rudy Law hit a three-run double and Steve Kemp rapped a two-run homer as the Chicago White Sox pounded Al Williams and Paul Boris for seven runs in the fourth inning. Dennis Lamp was the winner, although he was knocked out by Gary Ward's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth. The Twins added a fourth run. Ron Washington's grounder and Kent Hrbek hit his 16th home in the bottom of the ninth before Salome Barojas recorded his 13th save. The victory lifted the White Sox into a second-place tie with Kansas City in the AL West, three games behind idle California.

Any beer can get stale as it sits in your store. In spite of this fact, other leading beers can sit in the store for up to 120 days. By our standards, that's not fresh beer.

And that's not Coors. Because freshness means better-tasting beer, Coors takes absolutely no chances when it comes to fresh

Interest rates, debt limit climb higher

By The Associated Press
For the fifth straight week, investors have demanded a higher interest rate for money they loan the government, driving U.S. Treasury short-term borrowing costs to the highest levels since mid-February.

The Treasury borrowed $9 billion in the sale of three- and six-month bills Monday, and by week's end will have raised $17 billion.

Financial economists expect the Treasury will go on borrowing binge in the second half of the year, seeking an estimated $90 billion to $100 billion over the next six months and as much as $50 billion more in the first three months of next year.

In light of the huge cash needs, President Reagan signed legislation Monday raising the federal debt ceiling $64 billion to a record $1.143 trillion until Sept. 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

The average discount rate on the six-month Treasury bills auctioned Monday was 13.419 percent, up from 13.031 percent a week earlier and the highest since the Feb. 16 level of 14.36 percent. Three-month bills were auctioned at an average discount rate of 13.269 percent, up from 12.88 percent in the previous week and the highest since the March 29 level of 13.399 percent.

While the tab is a burden for taxpayers, there are benefits to investors. Senate taxwriters were to begin work today under a mandate to find $21 billion in new revenue for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and $98 billion over the next three years under a spending plan projecting a $103.9 billion deficit in the coming fiscal year.

Bob Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Monday his panel has reached general agreement on about 75 percent of the three-year tax increase. Dole declined to be more specific. While taxwriters try to come up with more money for the government, a 10 percent cut in personal income tax rates and a 7.4 percent increase in Social Security benefit payments take effect Thursday, pouring nearly 1 billion a week into the economy. Meanwhile, a Supreme Court ruling may make it harder for home buyers to obtain an assumable mortgage.

In its 6-2 ruling Monday, the high court upheld a federal regulation allowing federally chartered savings and loan associations to supersede state laws and require immediate repayment of a mortgage loan when a home is sold.

In other economic developments Monday: —The stock market rallied, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials up

8.85 points to 811.93 after dipping 7.33 points on Friday. Analysts said the boost is explained partly by the surprising decline reported Friday in the money supply and by anticipation of good news Wednesday in the index of leading economic indicators. —High U.S. interest rates pushed the dollar to an all-time high against the French franc in Paris: 6.9085 francs for $1. The price of gold also was up, rising about $3 an ounce in New York to sell at $310.

Strike disrupts London

LONDON AP — Rush-hour traffic began rumbling into London as early as 4 a.m. today, the second day of a combined rail and subway strike that caused the worst traffic jams in the city's history.

Delegates at the annual conference of the National Union of Railwaymen voted 47-30 to call off the train strike tonight at midnight. But they resolved to continue indefinitely a shutdown on the London subway that has snarled the British capital for a week.

Gold Mine: Great food at budget price

The Gold Mine Restaurant in College Park Center is offering a special budget price daily for some item on their menu. That's a deal that doesn't come around often.

IT'S ESPECIALLY appetizing when you consider the food served by the Gold Mine. Now, in addition to their sandwiches, the Gold Mine can serve up delicious fried foods. Fried chicken, fried shrimp and crisp french fries to go with your meal make the Gold Mine an even better place to eat. Owners Steve and Amy Lewis, who also own the Rainbarrel Gifts and Candies Shop in College Park, have provided Big Spring with an eating place that offers more than just good food. The Lewises have found a host of unusual furnishings and have given the Gold Mine an old-fashioned atmosphere.

AS FAR AS food goes, The Gold Mine offers plenty of it, as many Big Springers have discovered. Sandwiches on the menu include hamburgers, cheeseburgers, roast beef, pastrami, corned beef, grilled cheese, hot dogs, barbecue and mouth-watering reubens.

The Gold Mine also has a well supplied salad bar to add to your meal. If an afternoon snack is what you're interested in, check out the Gold Mine for hand-dipped ice cream, banana splits, and a variety of soft drinks. Whatever your tastes, The Gold Mine has something for you. They're open Monday thru Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., and are located in the College Park Shopping Center. And don't forget the weekly special.
