Tornado rampage continues

MANNFORD, Okla. (AP) — Residents of two northeastern Oklahoma towns awoke this morning to sift through the wreckage of another devastating tornado, this one claiming one life and injuring scores of people.

The twister, product of a storm system that also may be responsible for the deaths of two people in an airplane crash, slammed through Mannford and nearby Prue at mid-morning Sunday, showering debris on worshippers at four churches.

It resembled "a big, black basketball," said Orin White, the Mannford police chief who drove from the south side of the town back to his house just in time to see the twister smash into it.

"It took everything I've got," White said, surveying his ravaged home. "I've got a uniform hanging in a tree over there, blowing in the wind. How we helped from having more killed, I don't know."

Officials estimated 50 people suffered substantial injuries in the communities, which are located about 15 miles apart some 25 miles west of Tulsa. Mannford has a population of about 1,600, while 550 people live in Prue.

The man who was killed, Virgil Loren Athens, apparently had rushed to the Mannford Assembly of God Church to pick up his wife because of the severe weather.

Athens, about 70, was in his pickup truck in the church parking lot when the storm struck the town. The truck was hurled 75 yards into the Mannford Elementary School, where it was crushed and covered with debris.

KILLER TORNADO — A tornado that touched down in Wisconsin's Waukesha County Friday and killed a woman was photographed by 13-year-old Carston Buehler from his backyard. The tornado was one of several touching down in the state. Such tornadoes are not always visible to the naked eye. Tornadoes only become visible when they pick up the dust and debris found on the ground.

GOP primary may set record

Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle had a very different reason.

"I think it's fine for them to be fighting themselves for a change," Slagle said. Intra-party campaigning before the primaries has hurt Democrats in general elections, Slagle said, and he thinks the Democrats will benefit as Republicans begin to do the same thing more often.

In 1980, the last presidential election year, Democratic primary turnout was 2½ times greater than that in the Republican primary. This year, more people appear likely to vote in the GOP primary for three reasons:

• Republicans are running for more offices than ever before. Almost 600 Republicans are on the ballot in 451 races this year.

• An influx of new residents and a change in party identification of some longtime residents means that more Texans now consider themselves Republicans. In 1964, for example, a similar statewide poll conducted by Belden Associates of Dallas found that 8 percent of the respondents considered themselves Republicans. The Texas Poll's figure this year is 26 percent.

As would be expected, that increase has hurt the Democratic Party's strength. In 1964, 65 percent of the respondents told pollsters that they were Democrats. This year, 37 percent gave the same answer.

• Presidential candidates are not included on the Democratic primary ballot this year. More people vote when presidential candidates are on the ballot.

Democrats will express their presidential preferences in precinct caucuses the night of May 5. The Texas Poll found that fewer than one-fifth of those who plan to vote in the Democratic primary say they will attend precinct caucuses.

Democratic Party spokesmen expect the caucuses to be poorly attended, as usual. They expect a caucus turnout of 30,000 people, or fewer than one-half of 1 percent of the state's registered voters. In fact, they suspect that caucuses will not be held in perhaps 1,000 of the state's about 6,000 precincts.

Those who do attend the caucuses will be more liberal than those Democrats who stay home, the poll found. One-third of respondents planning to attend the caucuses call themselves liberal, while only one-fourth of all Democrat respondents classify themselves that way.

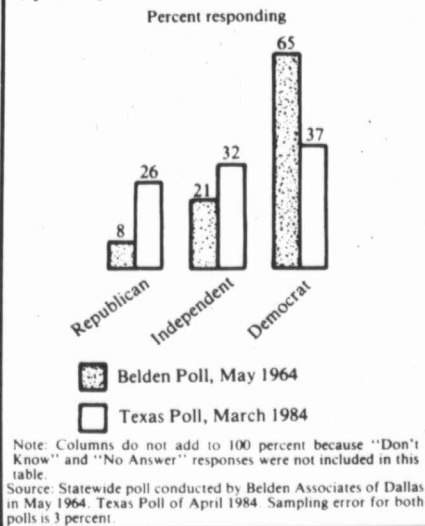

The proportion of moderates who plan to attend the caucuses is about the same as among all Democrats, and the higher rate of participation among liberals is almost exactly matched by a lower rate of participation among conservatives.

The poll's results suggest that primary voters are similar to non-voters of the same party, while caucus

Bell wants higher local phone rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorneys for Southwestern Bell and AT&T Communications asked the Public Utility Commission today to raise local telephone bills more than the 36-cent-per-month increase recommended by hearing examiners.

The three-member commission today began what might be two days of final arguments before ruling on Southwestern Bell's $1.3 billion rate hike request.

That proposal would double local service bills, but Southwestern Bell said it needs the money in the wake of the AT&T divestiture.

Jon Dee Lawrence, representing Southwestern Bell, argued that the examiners' $854.3 million rate hike proposal does not raise local rates enough.

The examiners had recommended that almost all of the increase come through charges to long-distance companies that depend on the Bell network.

Lawrence said the examiners were right in trying to limit local service increases to protect the concept of "universal service." But the lawyer said their "zeal" to limit local service increases could have the opposite effect in the long run.

"My great fear is that we are sowing the seeds of rate increases tomorrow that are going to be much higher," he said.

Joyce Beasley, representing AT&T Communications, said the large increase recommended for long-distance companies such as AT&T would leave Texas with the nation's highest long distance rate.

She told the commission local rates should rise to keep long distance rates down.

Top grads are Allen, Johnson

Valedictorian for Big Spring High School's Class of 1984 will be Bronwyn Jaye Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Allen, high school principal Bill McQueary announced today.

Salutatorian will be Brian Clark Johnson, son of Ms. Clovie Shirey and Mr. Bill P. Johnson, McQueary said. Maintaining an overall grade point average of 97.95, Miss Allen has been an active member of the Big Spring Area Student Involvement Council since her sophomore year. She was class treasurer of her freshman and sophomore classes as well as a Student Council representative during her sophomore and senior years. She was a member of last year's Who's Who in Big Spring High School.

Also as a junior, she won the 1983 Quaternon First Place French Vocabulary Award and the U.S. Achievement Academy Award in Leadership and Service, after having been selected for the U.S. Achievement Academy Award in French as a sophomore. During her senior year, Miss Allen was a regional qualifier in the Ready Writing Competition and placed third in the district meet.

She is one of four finalists from Big Spring High School in the 1984 Youth Achievement Awards, sponsored by Zale's, the Big Spring Herald and the Big Spring Rotary.

Upon graduation, Miss Allen plans to attend the University of Washington and major in business administration/pre-law.

Johnson has maintained a 97.60 grade point average over the past four years. He serves a vice-president of the Big Spring High School chapter of the National Honor Society. He is president and former vice-president of the high school Forensic Club and currently ranks fourth in the state in forensics. He is ranked forty-third nationwide by the National Forensic League.

Johnson is the trombone section-leader in the Steer Band as well as a member of the Theater and Spanish Clubs.

Upon graduation, he plans to attend Texas Tech University and major in political science and computer science with law school as his ultimate goal.

Winds strip topsoil

PLAINVIEW (AP) — West Texas topsoil, dried by two years of drought and unprotected by ground cover, is blowing away at an alarming rate, according to farmers and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Last week, spring winds gusting up to 70 mph kicked up dust and sand that darkened the sky — and the mood of farmers who say this is their "boom or bust" year.

For most of West Texas, the last significant rainfall was last October, and most points have recorded less than an inch of rain this year.

Federal officials say the dry conditions combined with poor land management are stripping about 20 counties of valuable topsoil that it could take centuries to replace.

Conservation service officials say farmers want to get maximum production and so are reluctant to employ anti-erosion measures such as rotating crops and terracing their fields.

Grasslands converted into cotton fields in the last 30 to 50 years are now turning into sand dunes.

"Some of our best topsoil is in Dallas by now," said Jimmy Lewis of the Soil Conservation Service's Plainview office.

"There's nothing to stop it from blowing away, but I don't think we'll see another Dust Bowl unless the economy gets so bad that enough people walk off and leave their land," he said.

"If we continue down the road we're going here, we won't have the rich topsoil needed for producing and it could take 400 or 500 years to replace," Lewis said.

"It's boom or bust for a lot of farmers this year," said Paul Robertson, who cultivates several crops on four square miles in Hale and Lamb Counties. "I diversified or I wouldn't be here."

He said farmers have such large debts, squeezing production from their acres has become a bigger and bigger priority and conservation of the soil is taking a back seat.

"The solution is ground cover, terracing," said Dennis Neffendorf of the conservation service. "We've shown that it works, but some of these farmers are only concerned about keeping it in cotton."

Conservation service expert Marty Rawlings strolled through a Lynn County farm that looked like South Padre Island.

"This is the worst you'll see," he said. "The soil has no nutritive value. It should never have been planted in cotton. It should have been left as grazing land."

Neffendorf said anti-erosion measures implemented with limited federal funding have cut erosion dramatically, from 25 tons a year per acre to one ton a year per acre in some places.

Said Mittie Muse, also of the conservation service: "Cotton is king around here and it's hard to get people to change their ways."

City, fishermen battle over famous Oregon rapids

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — Several miles north of the California border, the Klamath River has cut a deep gorge through the rock laid down by ancient volcanoes that created the Cascade Range.

The Salt Caves section of the river, named for a group of caves marked by white mineral deposits, is one of the best places in Oregon to fish for wild trout. Klamath Falls officials think the deep canyon also is a good place to build a hydroelectric dam.

Despite dwindling demands for electricity in recent years, the City of Klamath Falls wants to put another dam on the river 30 miles outside of town. They say the dam could wipe out city property taxes with earnings estimated at $8 million per year and attract new industry that will lift Klamath Falls out of dependence on the recession-weary timber industry.

"There's a solid group in the city that thinks it's an opportunity that will never come along again and we should take advantage of it," said City Manager Harold Derrah. "Timber production will fall off as the major employer here in the 1990s. We have to look at generating new jobs."

But jobs don't interest Jim Garvey, a retired Marine Corps major who moved to southern Oregon to be closer to the wild trout he loves to catch on barbless flies.

"We consider it an invaluable recreational resource," said Garvey, a member of a group of river rafters and sport fishermen that calls itself Save Our Klamath River. "From the Boyle power house (at the J.C. Boyle Dam), there's 11 miles of river down to the Oregon-California border that we're trying to hold and keep as it is."

It is not unusual for a city to build a dam as a source of revenue. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has issued about 200 licenses to municipalities to build and operate hydroelectric dams, said spokeswoman Sharon Hyland.

Klamath Falls originally had gone into the project with the Pacific Power & Light Co., hoping to revive plans for a $140 million, 140,000 kilowatt dam first proposed 30 years ago by the now-defunct California and Oregon Power Co.

"In 1978 and 1979, the whole region was in a power deficit," said Bob McFaul, assistant district manager for PP&L. "But around 1981, everything turned around. Load growth stopped. The cost of money and environmental concerns were such that Pacific Power decided it was not in its best interest to continue with that plan."

On Feb. 8, 1982, the federal commission issued the city a preliminary permit to study the dam.

It ran into a snag last May when city voters turned down a bond issue for $2.5 million to finance environmental and engineering studies needed to license the dam.

But the city overcame that obstacle last month when the local Trendwest Development Co., a subsidiary of Jeld-Wen Inc., agreed to foot the bill for the studies in return for 12 percent of the dam's profits. If the license is granted, the dam could go on line by 1990.

City officials have yet to find a buyer for the power, however, and McFaul is wary about the prospects.

"I think any power plant construction in today's society is a gamble," he said. "The whole power-surplus picture flip-flopped overnight. There's nothing saying it won't flip back, but I think the recovery will be slower than the initial turnaround was."

"There is no question there is a risk involved," said Trendwest president Bob Kent. "But we think the benefits outweigh the risks."

"There is an underlying motive of ours," added Kent, who grew up in Klamath Falls. "Klamath Falls is a city of about 40,000 people that never has really been able to attract the kind of industry we want here. With this kind of backing, it would make it much easier for the city and the suburban area to attract industry and build jobs for the area."

A quarter of the jobs in Klamath Falls and a payroll of more than $100 million depend on the fortunes of lumber and plywood mills, said Dick Sexton, executive director of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce.

Economic recovery has been slow in coming to the Klamath Basin. Unemployment stood at about 15 percent a year ago, dipped to 8 percent in September and now stands at 12 percent, Sexton said.

State Department of Fish and Wildlife biologist John Fortune said damming the river would alter one of the best places in Oregon to fish for wild trout and make it more difficult for the fish to spawn.

"Just from the preliminary proposals on the project, approximately four miles of river would be changed from stream habitat to impoundment and another four miles downstream from the dam the flow level would be decreased to some extent," he said.

Derrah recognizes the environmental concerns, but points out, "This is not a virgin river. It's got dams on it already — two above and two below. After the last dam, there's 190 miles of free river."

ROLLING RIVER — The city of Klamath Falls, Ore., wants to dam the Klamath River to garner power sales. Local fishermen are upset with the proposal.

A fire Sunday evening in an assembly-line cart filled with a resin substance in a building at Fiber Glass Systems on the Lamesa Highway caused about $1,000 damage to the cart and filled the building with smoke, according to plant supervisor Jerry Gerritzen.

"We're running and in good shape," Gerritzen said this morning after the fire that caused no structural damage and was called in at 8:05 p.m. Sunday.

The 1,500-gallon unit of the Big Spring Fire Department was called to the scene to contain the fire and returned to quarters at about 9 p.m.

Poll

voters will be less representative of those who don't vote.

Many Texas Democrats favor scrapping the caucus system in favor of binding primaries. By a margin of 44 percent to 22 percent, Democrats who said they plan to vote in the primary would also like to choose their presidential convention delegates in a primary. The rest had no opinion.

Either party may choose its national convention delegates in a primary, although neither has done so since Texas' only such primary in 1976. Texans had non-binding presidential primaries, so-called "beauty contests," in 1980.

Texas Democrats aren't likely to get a presidential primary anytime soon, Chairman Slagle said. He said the state party doesn't choose its presidential nominating delegates in a primary for two reasons:

• Texas doesn't have a statute requiring people to register as party members. That means anyone is free to vote in either party's primary. "Why should Republicans and independents help pick Democratic presidential candidates?" Slagle asked.

• Many Democrats favor a mixed system of primaries and caucuses to choose presidential candidates, Slagle said, because the interested party members who participate in caucuses are more likely to pay more attention to the candidates than primary voters. "It needs to be partially popularity and partially deliberative," Slagle said.

Secretary of State John Fainter, the state's chief election officer, thinks that many of the poll's respondents exaggerated their tendency to vote Republican. Fainter, a Democrat, guessed that about 80 percent of the voters on May 5 will vote in the Democratic primary.

"People are just naturally drawn to the Democratic primary," Fainter said. That's because a large number of Democratic primary winners in local and legislative races traditionally have faced no Republican opponents, he said.

Other findings of the poll include:

- Republicans are about four times more likely to vote in the Democratic primary than Democrats in the GOP election. However, the 16 percent of Republicans who say they plan to cross over is probably lower this year than in the past, Strake said.
- Minorities are much more likely to vote in the Democratic primary than the Republican primary. Anglos are evenly split between the two parties' primaries.

The poll's sampling error is 3 percent, meaning that its findings may vary by 3 percentage points in either direction.

The Texas Poll is a quarterly statewide survey sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University.

Twisters

Families in church clothing made their way through about six square blocks of muddy rubble in Mannford, looking for cars that had been lifted up and deposited elsewhere and calling out to inquire about people unaccounted for.

A fierce south wind followed the tornado, cart-wheeling debris across the scene and pelting everyone with fine sand.

It was the second killer tornado to hit the area in three days. Three people were killed in Pawnee County about 10 miles west of Mannford in a Thursday night twister. Seven more died the same night when a tornado devastated the community of Morris about 50 miles south of Tulsa.

In Mannford, where the tornado hit about 10:45 a.m., church-goers were just finishing Sunday School services when the tornado sirens sounded.

Beverly Varnell said there were about 180 people in the First Baptist Church when the storm struck. She said members crowded into a closet or took shelter under church pews or in interior hallways.

"It was so dark in the church, then it got light and it was the roof coming off," she said. "The next thing we knew things were flying around us."

Assembly of God Pastor Don Couch said he considered sending the children home when weather alerts were sounded, but before the children could be taken out, the church bus was smashed among cars in the parking lot.

White coordinated dozens of relief and rescue workers and National Guard troops outside Mannford's ruined high school building. Among the schools, churches and ruined homes were dozens of demolished cars.

Escaped prisoner captured

BROWNWOOD (AP) — A 21-year-old man arrested following a burglary apparently crawled through a trap door and through an attic to escape from the city jail early Sunday, authorities said.

Arthur Zapata Ortega was discovered missing just before 8 a.m. Sunday and is still at large, according to Police Chief Joe Don Taylor.

Taylor said the cell door was still locked, but a trap door inside the cell was open. The police chief said Ortega is believed to have crawled up through duct work, into the attic and out a back door.

Police jailed Ortega early Saturday after five rifles were stolen from a pawn shop, but no charges had been filed against him in the case. He was put into a cell with four other men and found missing a few hours later. Police said Ortega is on probation on a 1982 burglary conviction in Lubbock.

Woman injured in two-car accident

An area woman was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital after a major two-vehicle accident Saturday afternoon near the intersection of 13th and Gregg streets, a hospital spokeswoman and police reports said.

Melissa Wilson of Sterling City Route was taken to the hospital by private vehicle after the accident that happened at 4:04 p.m. Saturday, reports said.

According to reports, Ms. Wilson, driving northbound in the 1200 block of Gregg in a 1976 Chevrolet pickup, was rear-ended by a 1981 Ford pickup driven by Michelle Polendo of Forsan.

Ms. Polendo, who was ticketed for failure to control speed to avoid an accident, told police she was looking over her shoulder to see if she could change lanes before she collided with Ms. Wilson, reports said.

• An unknown subject sometime Saturday or Sunday caused $205 in damages while entering Big John's Feed Lot restaurant at 802 W. Third, police reports said. Stolen in the incident were three penny rolls worth a total of $1.50, reports said.

• A Big Spring policeman filed a report of a man evading and resisting arrest at 11:41 p.m. Sunday after a subject in custody on suspicion of driving while intoxicated ran away, police reports said.

The officer stated in his report that the man resisted arrest by pulling away and striking the officer and

And he can sing, too

NEW YORK — Comedian Eddie Murphy, one of the hottest TV and movie performers of the last few years, is branching out into a new field — popular music.

Last week, Murphy, 23, saw his first pop single, "Party All the Time," issued by CBS Records.

"I'm wondering how the public is going to take this," Murphy said. "I think they're either going to love the fact that I'm singing or they'll hate it."

On the record, produced and written by Murphy friend Rick James, Murphy sings in a high tenor suggesting the influence of singer Al Green. If the single sells, he said, he plans to record an album and integrate his singing and comic talents in a stage show.

Previn composed for move

PITTSBURGH — Andre Previn, leaving the Pittsburgh Symphony to take over as conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, says he's "terribly sorry" to move away from his friends but is happy about the new post.

Previn, 55, said he will assume the Los Angeles job in 1986 after his contract as music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony expires. He will succeed Carlo Mario Giulini, who resigned from the Los Angeles Philharmonic because of ill health.

On Sunday during a KDKA-TV telethon to benefit the Pittsburgh symphony, Previn said he was "looking forward" to the move.

"On the other hand," he said, "is the fact that I'm terribly sorry to leave my friends in the orchestra because we all are not just playing colleagues but I really think that in the past eight years we've become a kind of huge family."

Previn told the symphony about his departure Saturday night.

"He said he was sorry he had to do this, that it was the hardest thing he'd ever had to do in his life," said Victor Romanul, the associate concertmaster.

Previn and Marshall Turkin, managing director and vice president of the Pittsburgh Symphony, have been at odds for some time, according to some orchestra members who asked not to be identified. Turkin said he was not aware of that.

"I have heard many rumors recently about Andre being unhappy with relationships. He has never stated so to me. What the truth is, I don't know," said Turkin.

The part-time professor

ATLANTA — Former President Jimmy Carter has "found a place that appreciates him," says an official at Emory University, where the president-turned-professor lectures twice a month and rubs tweedy elbows with academicians.

Carter, who accepted a professorship in 1982, spends those two days giving forth on subjects such as history and business, and his presence has been a boon to university officials, who say he adds prestige to the school.

"It's important to me to stay abreast of current events, to reassess my own administration in public service, and also to share my background and knowledge and experience with as many other people as possible," Carter said recently. "Emory has provided me with an unrestricted forum."

Tom Bertrand, secretary of the university, puts it simply: "What Carter has found here is place that appreciates him."

Frazier KO's gun arrest

WOODBURY — Former world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who took it on the chin for carrying a gun without a New Jersey permit, has a clean record after participating in a special program for first-time offenders.

Superior Court Judge Milton L. Silver dismissed the charge of possession of a handgun without a permit Friday, three months after Frazier's arrest, said Assistant Gloucester County Prosecutor Lawrence Magid.

The 40-year-old ex-boxer had been admitted to a Pretrial Intervention program that allows first-time offenders to have their charges dropped if they complete the program.

JOE FRAZIER

Soviet boss keeps up image

MOSCOW — Konstantin U. Chernenko has moved frequently into the public eye this month, following the example of his patron Leonid I. Brezhnev in stamping his image on the minds of Soviets.

KONSTANTIN CHERNENKO

His picture has been featured nine times in 18 days on the front page of the Communist Party daily Pravda.

Meetings with visitors from Poland, Finland, Greece and India have been covered prominently by the news media. His writings are well-displayed in bookstores and he often is pictured on Soviet television.

On Sunday, for instance, the main television evening news devoted 50 minutes to a ceremonial sortie from the Kremlin to the capital's Hammer and Sickle Metal Works.

Chernenko, 72, was seen surrounded by smiling workers, feted with bouquets and applause before a newscaster read a 40-minute speech the leader was said to have made.

His predecessor, Yuri V. Andropov, paid a similar visit to the workers of a Moscow machine tool plant in January 1983. But the only pictures ever released of Andropov's visit were paraded across Red Square last May Day.

And unlike Chernenko, Andropov gave stern warnings to the workers that they must perform better if living standards were to rise. The workers voiced relatively frank and critical answers to Andropov's questions about conditions.

Although Chernenko's visit was the focus of lavish media attention, there was no film showing him exchanging more than platitudes with workers.

Quakes injure 100 in Italy

PERUGIA — Mild tremors rolled through parts of central Italy today, a day after a sharp earthquake injured about 100 people and left 3,000 people temporarily homeless, officials said.

No deaths resulted from the quake that jolted 30 towns Sunday morning and was felt in Rome, Florence and Naples.

Civil defense officials rushed tents and campers to the stricken area, about 90 miles north of Rome, and authorities said no one went without shelter.

Electricity and telephone lines were knocked out in the hardest-hit areas and "there was great panic," said a police officer in Gubbio who declined to be identified.

In Foligno, 25 miles from the epicenter, 30-year-old policeman Moreno Tugni broke both legs when he jumped from a third floor window in fright, police said.

The quake was centered in Monte Urbino and there were reports of partially collapsed buildings and cracked walls in the nearby towns of Gubbio, Perugia and Assisi. The area is a cradle of art treasures and officials were inspecting churches and historic buildings for possible damage.

Authorities temporarily closed the Palazzo dei Consoli in Gubbio, which contains paintings by 14th century masters, because of cracks and falling plaster.

The Basilica of St. Francesco in Assisi was shaken by the quake but officials said the famed Giotto frescoes were undamaged.

The Swiss Geophysical Center said the quake registered 5.9 on the Richter scale, which measures ground motion. An increase of each full number indicates a 10-fold increase in ground motion.

Sudan goes on the alert

KHARTOUM — Sudan's president has placed the east African nation under a state of emergency, citing a growing threat from enemies "both inside the country and abroad."

The action, announced Sunday night, comes at a time of labor unrest and increasing attacks from rebel guerrillas who President Gafaar Nimeiri says are backed by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

In an address on national radio and television, Nimeiri said the move was necessary "to enable the government to achieve a maximum level of security and stability."

He did not say what restrictions would be applied under the emergency rule but said other decisions he had made would be announced soon.

Sudan, Africa's largest nation in area with 967,500 square miles, has a population estimated at 22 million and has been ruled by Nimeiri since he seized power in a coup in May 1969.

Attacks by rebel guerrillas in southern Sudan increased after Nimeiri imposed Islamic law throughout the country earlier this year. Most of the residents of the south are animists, while the north is predominantly Moslem.

Rebel attacks shut down the U.S. oil company Chevron's project to export oil from the south by 1986 and the French-run Jonglei plan that would provide irrigation water by diverting the White Nile around the south's swamps.

The Sudan news agency SUNA quoted Nimeiri as saying the south had been affected by sabotage.

The underlying complaint of the south is that its economic development has lagged behind the north, but both regions are poor.

Nimeiri also spoke of a "series of strikes" by some government employees as one reason for declaring the state of emergency.

Israel marks Holocaust Day

TEL AVIV — The wail of air-raid sirens stopped traffic and business as drivers got out of their cars and people stood up in buses to observe a nationwide minute of silence on a day of mourning for the Holocaust victims.

Holocaust Day was marked Sunday by exhibitions throughout the country commemorating the six million Jews who were killed by Nazis. News commentators debated whether more Jews could have actively resisted the Nazis and whether Israel was established as result of, or in spite of, the holocaust.

"There is no doubt if the leaders of the Allied powers had determined that saving the Jews of Europe was one of their strategic aims, they would have found a way to save hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of Jews," Defense Minister Moshe Arens said in a ceremony in Jerusalem.

Some of the commentators also focused on the attempted bombing of five Arab buses and the arrests of 15 Israelis as suspects in the terrorist plan. The bombs were found and dismantled Friday on parked buses in east Jerusalem and the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

"The heart refuses to believe it," said an editorial in the conservative newspaper Maariv. "To cause mass killing is a madness that is entirely against the spirit of Judaism."

Weather

Winds die, dust settles

The howling winds were quiet and most of the dust had settled by early today and cooler temperatures were reported statewide.

Surface winds of 30-40 mph with higher gusts Sunday had blown dust over a wide area of North Texas. But the winds began dying down about sunset Sunday and had dropped to light, northerly breeze of 5-15 mph by early today, the National Weather Service reported.

A nearly stationary cold front was located at dawn today along a line from the Beaumont-Port Arthur to the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The front brought cooler, drier air to most of the state.

Some light drizzle was reported early today along the coast and a few high clouds were reported over Central Texas. The rest of the state had clear skies.

Early morning temperatures were cooler than those recorded in the past several days. Readings were in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the mountains of Southwest Texas, the 40s and 50s over much of North Texas and in the 60s and 70s in South Texas. Extremes ranged from a chilly 32 at Marfa to 77 at Brownsville.

Wichita Falls set a record low for the date at 5 a.m. when the mercury dipped to 38.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies along the coast today and clear skies elsewhere. Highs were to range from the upper 60s in the Panhandle to the low 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. Most areas were to have readings in the 70s and 80s.

West Texas - Fair at night and sunny days through Tuesday. A slow warming trend through Tuesday. Lows tonight mid 40s Panhandle to mid 50s Big Bend. Highs Tuesday low 70s Panhandle to mid 80s Coahuila Valley and mid 90s Big Bend.

Gas price hike seen for this summer

LOS ANGELES — American motorists could be paying a record average of $1.35 a gallon for gasoline by July 4 if current trends and historical patterns prevail, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

Gasoline prices are up more than 2 cents since the first of the year, with the latest survey showing the average price for all grades at $1.21.1 per gallon, Lundberg said in a telephone interview Sunday.

The year began with the average price of gas at $1.18.97, he said.

Lundberg, publisher of a weekly newsletter that tracks industry trends, surveys prices at 18,000 gas stations in 50 states.

Lundberg said that if the average price reaches $1.35, it would surpass the previous record of $1.34.3 set in July 1981. Gas prices were decontrolled that year, starting a steady drop. In July 1982, the average price was $1.29.7.

"Recovery has visited the petroleum industry after a long absence," Lundberg said, noting that gas prices previously had

"Consumption continues to increase in almost all states," he said, adding that closure of gas stations in recent years has boosted demand at remaining stations.

"That pushes prices upward," he said, and has resulted in people lining up at self-serve stations to pay for their gas.

The new survey found the following average prices at self-service stations: regular leaded $1.10.2, up 0.58 cents from two weeks ago; regular unleaded $1.17.6, up 0.68 cents; premium leaded $1.35, up 1.12 cents; and premium unleaded $1.29.5, up 0.56 cents.

Texas as the new economic frontier

Texans, who are prone to "talk up" this state, are putting their money where their collective mouth is. The University of Texas has created 32 new professorial chairs in science and engineering, each backed by an endowment of $1 million from individual and corporate donors. Columnist Joseph Kraft sees Texas emerging as "an American Japan" because of such partnerships of private and public education aimed at promoting high tech industries.

When Texans talk about goals for this university, the standard often used is the University of California. Yet educational factors are said to have weighed heavily last year in the decision by a consortium of electronics firms to pick Austin as the site for a computer development center that California and other states were vying for.

Is Texas the new economic frontier? Alexander Grant & Co. just released its annual report on the relative desirability of various states in the eyes of manufacturers looking for places to locate plants. California has slipped from 26th to 30th in this ranking. Texas ranks 6th. The Lone Star State ranks above California in 13 categories significant to manufacturing industries — state and local taxes as a percentage of personal income; the growth of state and local government expenditures compared to growth in tax revenue; the level of welfare, unemployment and worker compensation benefits and costs to employers; wages in manufacturing industries and the rate they are increasing; the unionization of workers, time lost in strikes, and worker productivity; the costs of energy, and the level of state environmental regulation. Most of the comparisons in the Grant study are based on statistics for 1982.

Some of the differences are dramatic. California ranks 33rd in the appeal of its tax structure; Texas stands 10th. California uses the unpopular unitary tax approach to assess manufacturing subsidiaries; Texas does not. High utility rates in California put it near the bottom, ranking 42nd, in attractiveness for energy costs; Texas ranks 8th. California ranks 35th for environmental regulation; Texas 7th.

Education is going to be of growing importance to economics growth in a high technology era. The infusion of new resources into the University of Texas simply shows the University of California and other universities and colleges that the competition is getting keener, and Texas is looking greener.

Around The Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Flashbulb duds

Sometimes I worry about the national media's news judgment — especially when it comes to photographs and film footage of presidents and presidential candidates.

Reagan's trip to China has made me wish for a worldwide shortage of Kodak film. We would have at least been spared the thrill of seeing the president and Mrs. Reagan cavorting in their bathing suits in the ocean off Hawaii. (The Houston Post ran that photo in full color on its front page). We also would have missed such newsy gems as the Reagans draped in Hawaiian leis (complete with descriptions of what flowers were in the leis), the Reagans waving from the plane, Nancy feeding a Chinese panda, etc.

The media is objective, however, and does its best to cover the Democratic presidential hopefuls. We have had pictures of such momentous events as Walter Mondale eating a doughnut and Gary Hart trying on a pair of those new tennis-shoe boots.

Think about presidential press conferences for a moment. I'll admit Reagan's spry for an old guy, but how many photographers and cameramen does it take to keep up with a 73-year-old man? One can hear a legion of cameras going off as the president walks to the podium, and they go off repeatedly as he gestures and talks. How newsworthy is his index finger as he points?

And those helicopter flights to Camp David are enough to make one want to fling himself in a rotor blade. Every time Ron and Nancy go to Camp David the Associated Press sends out three or four pictures of them waving just before they board the helicopter — and all the networks have the same shot. Now how much difference is there in Ron's wave this time from his wave the last time? One file photo would be enough, but still the media persists in its dogged coverage.

It's time the media realized we don't care about seeing Reagan's flaccid pectorals or Nancy's varicose veins, and the Reagans probably don't particularly want us seeing them either.

Now I know the media has a responsibility to keep an eye on someone like the president. He might get shot, or he might even wander off and push the button and drop the big one. Now those things are news, but if he doesn't do anything I don't want to see pictures of him being boringly normal.

I mean I strike a pretty mean pose at my desk, but a photo of that is not going to end up on page one and neither should one of Reagan doing the backstroke in the Pacific. Every picture doesn't tell a story.

CIA rushes to fill the voodoo gap

WASHINGTON — In past columns, I have reported on secret projects to adapt psychic phenomena to military purposes. For example, in laboratory experiments, psychics have been used to spy on the Soviets by projecting their minds outside their bodies.

One psychic was able to describe a secret Soviet base — in astonishing detail that was later confirmed by satellite photographs. Another located a Soviet Tu-95 "Backfire" bomber that had crashed in Africa.

U.S. Navy and Air Force chiefs are skeptical about these experiments, which they describe scornfully as "witchcraft" and "black magic." But the Army's intelligence chief, Maj. Gen. William Odom, has been impressed with some of the results.

Odom is worried about intelligence reports that the Soviets are far ahead in psychic research. Inside the Pentagon, he has raised the question of whether the Soviets could use psychics to penetrate our secret vaults. This has led to talk in the backrooms about raising a "psychic shield" to block this sort of remote spying.

The CIA is also taking psychic research seriously. Former CIA Director Stansfield Turner told critics that their skepticism about the CIA's psychic projects was healthy — but the research should keep pace with their skepticism.

The most impressive research in this area has been conducted by Harold Puthoff and Russell Targ, both respected academics with the Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif. Puthoff is still with the institute; Targ left two years ago to form his own company, Delphi Associates. They began their experiments in the early 1970s, using psychics to describe scenes at specific coordinates on the globe. The project, partly funded by the Pentagon and the CIA, was called "Scanate" for "scan by coordinate."

Their latest project, code-named "Grill Flame," produced some amazing results. Psychics described the contents of locked filing cabinets; they mentally breached the security of secret military installations.

Earlier, they had discovered the rings around Jupiter years before their existence was scientifically established by satellite photographs.

Despite these impressive achievements, sources told my associates Dale Van Atta and Joseph Spear that the psychics' success rate is only about 70 percent. For example, psychics who were asked by the Pentagon to pinpoint the place where Italian Red Brigade terrorists were holding Gen. James Dozier prisoner in January 1982 never came close.

But the occasional successes encourage intelligence officials to keep trying in hopes of giving remote spying more respectability. They are also concerned about the Soviets who are known to have spent many more years and far more money on parapsychological research.

At the risk of being ridiculed over a "voodoo gap," advocates like Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., support continued research into the more promising areas of this mysterious field. After all, the atomic bomb was once thought to be a harebrained idea. It's safe to say that many things considered utterly fantastic today will be accepted as commonplace by the end of the century.

CITIZENS WATCH: When Ted and Francoise Gianoutsos of Arlington, Va., decided to donate some of their savings to the Fish and Wildlife Service for long-term conservation programs, they were surprised to learn that the agency had no authority to accept money to be used over a period of several years. The law required donations to be spent within the same fiscal year.

The Gianoutsos started the ball rolling with a $5,000 donation, and plan to give money each year. They have also set up a trust fund that should make available several million dollars to the fund when they die.

Reagan's showboat to China

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's trip to China is chiefly important as the end of a chapter in American domestic politics. It closes a period of bitter partisan strife about the right relation between this country and the giant of the Asian mainland.

Recognizing that fact is crucial to the success of the Reagan visit. For the American future in Asia lies with the Pacific Rim countries, and that set of ties depends on avoiding exalted visions of the importance of China.

Party politics in this country became infected with the China virus during World War II. The isolationist wing of the Republican Party wanted to avoid the conflict in Europe. That option was closed when the Germans declared war on the U.S. after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. But while Roosevelt and the Democrats stressed the battle for Europe, Republicans, with Gen. Douglas MacArthur as hero, laid emphasis on China and the Pacific connection.

The Communist takeover of China in 1949, and the wars in Korea and Vietnam, deepened and embittered the partisan battle. Republicans charged that the Democrats had lost China and fought limply in Korea and Vietnam because of an inner softness on Communism. The Democrats responded with pleas about the importance of avoiding World War III and holding Europe. The pleas rang false politically, and Democratic presidents found themselves more deeply mired in Korea and Vietnam than they ever intended.

Even the dramatic opening to China in 1972 did not end the agony. President Nixon entertained the illusion that China was a strategic card playable in ways that trumped Soviet ambitions. When events — like the fall of Vietnam — exploded that conceit, the right-wing sense of an Asian sellout came back with a vengeance. Ronald Reagan himself used the issue in campaigning for the presidency in 1976, and in winning it in 1980. Thus China has figured as a divisive subject in every presidential election since 1944.

In the White House, Reagan has followed the lead of Nixon and Jimmy Carter in accepting the communist regime on the mainland as the legitimate government of China. His administration has maintained joint communication — dated August 17, 1982 — with the government of Peking. There solution of the quarrel between the mainland and Taiwan is left open to the parties, and the U.S. has acquiesced itself honorably with each one. So except for a tiny fringe of extremists, the China debate in American politics is finally dead.

Getting rid of that awful albatross provides reason enough for the Reagan trip to China. Unfortunately, this is an election year, and the Reagan foreign policy has not achieved the desired results in Lebanon, or Central America, or in producing the elements of an accord with Russia. So there is a push in the White House to inflate the China visit into a great success, the Reagan equivalent of moves by Nixon and Carter, and the dawn of a new era in Sino-American cooperation.

A huge press contingent is going with the Reagans. Already glowing tales of future strategic and economic gains are being told. Reagan himself declared to a group in Tacoma that China was this country's third-largest trading partner, when in fact it stands 20th. Other high administration officials have asserted that under Deng Xiaoping, China was heading toward a market economy with rich prospects for joint ventures with American companies in "enterprise zones" along the coast.

In fact, China's importance as a partner for this country is going to be narrowly limited until at least the end of this century. The country is extremely backward and has decades of tough slogging before it begins to enter the modern world. Since Deng is 80, the political direction remains uncertain. Economic policy has been subject to chops and changes, and the moves toward a market economy have been jerky and open to contest. The flight of capital from Hong Kong suggests that people who know regard the talk of "enterprise zones" as nonsense.

American acknowledgment of these limits involves more than abstract fidelity to the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Important interests come into play. Strategically and commercially, the great opportunities and dangers for this country are with Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia. Those states along the Pacific Rim are unambiguously connected with the free market world. They do a thriving business with the U.S., and great possibilities for growth exist. Their security is vulnerable to both internal and external threats. So they are heavily dependent for defense upon this country.

The thickening of economic connections with the Pacific Rim states represents a truly rich possibility for the U.S. Supporting their security is feasible, and clearly in the American national interest. But the great chances in the Pacific Basin will be missed if the U.S. lumbers itself with the endless task of supporting the development and integrity of mainland China.

Can we afford loss of culture?

To the editor:
 On April 24, 1984, Big Spring Cable T.V. suddenly stopped airing The Arts & Entertainment Network. No doubt, many people had never even heard of this excellent little channel, as it was available only through the Showtime entertainment package, and aired only from 7:00 p.m.-3:00 a.m.

Tune-in to Arts & Entertainment, and one could find a haven from the often insipid "new" network programs, and summer reruns. This network offers originality and intelligence through a variety of Broadway plays, operas, ballets, dramas, comedies, music and dance, movies, documentaries, and discussions.

Big Spring Cable informed me that The Arts & Entertainment Network had increased its monthly rates, so cable T.V. management decided it could not afford to carry it. My question is: Can Big Spring afford to lose one of its few cultural contacts?

Never too young to learn religion

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our little girl is 3 years old. Do you think it is too early for us to try to talk with her about God and teach her to pray? — J.C.V.

DEAR J.C.V.: No, not at all. That does not mean she will understand everything you say to her — even if you make every effort to be as simple as possible — but sometimes we can be surprised at just how much young children can grasp. It is also important for another reason. We teach our children not only by what we say, but especially by what we do — and if she grows up realizing that God is important to you every day, it will make an important impact on her. The Bible says, concerning God's commandments to his people, "Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up" (Deuteronomy 6:7).

There are several things you can do to help your child. First, I hope you are active in a good church which has some type of program for children that age. She needs to know that the church is important, and she can learn much from an enjoyable program that also teaches her about Christ.

Clayton Hicks retires from VAMC

By RHONDA WOODALL
Lifestyle Writer

Clayton Hicks, chief of Chaplain Services at Veterans Administration Medical Center, retired today from VA Chaplain Service after 27 years. He has served the VAMC as chief of chaplain services for 15 years.

Hicks was honored at a farewell reception by VAMC employees and volunteers at the hospital Thursday. The VAMC chaplains honored Hicks at a luncheon at the Brandin' Iron, Wednesday. The VAMC service chiefs also honored Hicks during a luncheon at the Golden Corral, Thursday.

Hicks became interested in the chaplaincy when a part-time chaplain position became available at Sam Rayburn Medical Center in Bonham, while he was pastoring a church in Bells. "The director wrote me a letter telling me someone had recommended me for the position and wanted to know if I would be interested," he said.

"I really didn't know that much about the chaplaincy in the VA," he said. "I called the director and asked him if I could come and look around. I liked what I saw, so I told him I would try it for six months."

"After six months, I was ready for the job full-time because I liked it. One thing I liked about it was that all races and denominations meet together to worship."

Another reason, Hicks was interested in the chaplaincy "is that in the VAMC, there were patients who had no faith but were waiting for a pastor to come and talk to them about their spiritual life. They welcomed my presence, especially the critically ill and dying patients."

Following his chaplain position in Bonham, Hicks worked in the VAMC chaplain services in Albuquerque, N.M. While in Albuquerque, the chaplain services director told Hicks about the position at the Big Spring VAMC.

"I told the director, 'I'll pray about it, while my wife packs the bags.' I'm a Texan, and I wanted to get back to Texas," he said.

One thing that has helped Hicks serve VAMC patients better, "is the hitch I served in the Navy as a machinist mate instead of begin an officer or chaplain. That has been a plus for me. Since most of the patients in this hospital are enlisted men, I think they can relate to me as a chaplain because I served as an enlisted man."

Hicks served in the Navy during World War II for 2½ years. "I'm proud of that fact. I served during World War II on the USS Southard DMS-10, sweeping mines in the South Pacific, the East China Sea and the Pacific. We were a part of major invasions."

While in the Navy, "I organized a group to have Bible study every Sunday while the ship was at sea," Hicks said. "I was already a Christian a the time, but not an ordained minister.

"Herman Wouk, author of 'Winds of War,' was my executive officer. He made it (the Bible study) a part of the order of the day and gave time off to anyone who wanted to attend the Bible study."

The things Hicks will miss by retiring from the VAMC are "the ministry and personal involvement with patients as well as the daily contact with peers and co-workers. We are one big family out here."

Working at the VAMC has given Hicks some fond memories. "I think some of my fondest memories are of the many letters that I have received from patients after they were discharged and from their families. They were thanking me for being with them at a moment when they were really hurting and needing a minister, and I was there for them."

While chaplain at VAMC, Hicks has served on various committees including Mental Health Council, Suicide Prevention Committee, Administrative Accreditation Committee, Administrative Executive Accreditation Committee, Administrative Executive Board, CPR Committee and Cancer Committee.

While in Big Spring, Hicks has served as president of Big Spring Rotary Club; Lone Star District, Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America; and vice president of Howard County Ministerial Fellowship. He has been a member of United Way board. He also served as chairman for Howard County Council on Aging, Howard/Glasscock Chapter of American Red Cross, and Salvation Army.

Prior to becoming a chaplain, Hicks pastored churches in Dougherty, Ector, Bells and Fort Worth. He graduated from Wayland University in Plainview and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

Upon retiring, Hicks and wife Selma will continue to make their home in Big Spring. "We like Big Spring, and have more friends in Big Spring than anywhere else." The Hicks have two sons, John Hicks of New York and Joe Hicks, a junior at Baylor University in Waco.

Hicks will work part-time at College Baptist Church as Senior Adult minister. He has no other plans for the future, but he said "I'm open to the Lord's will. Whatever he wants me to do, and wherever he wants me to go, I will. I'm still a servant of the Lord."

Dr. Donohue

Burning feet

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have just finished reading your answer on burning feet. You talked of people who get this when their feet are overheated.

My father has been having this for years and had to retire early his feet were giving him so much pain. He has burning and aching on the bottoms, and once he sits down he's OK. This may be of no significance, but he broke his hip in his younger years. If you could only suggest some causes for the problem, we would appreciate it very much. He has also tried standing on cushioned floor mats, with really little relief. Do you have written material on this? — Mrs. A.S.

What I was talking about earlier was erythromelalgia. That's where a rise in surrounding temperature makes the feet red, warm and painful. Many people with it find they cannot sleep with their feet under covers, for example. Your dad's case sounds a little different. He appears to have a nerve or blood vessel problem.

A problem like this involving nerves of the feet is called sensory neuropathy. That means nerves carrying pain signals to the feet are misfiring, and the causes of that are many. It happens to people with diabetes, for example, and it can, indeed, be related to an old limb injury. If it is not nerve related, a problem within the vessels serving the feet might be suspected. If arteries are not supplying sufficient blood there, pain and burning may result.

A neuroma (scar tissue on nerves) or the entrapment of a nerve passing into the foot are other possibilities. That's akin to the wrist nerve entrapment I mentioned earlier in connection with finger pain. His regular doctor or a foot specialist will be able to sort out these various possibilities for him. I am sending the material you asked for, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," which may offer other hints. Other readers may obtain a copy by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00 to me care of this newspaper.

CONFIDENTIAL TO P.S. — So far as I can tell, your diet is fine. It might be a bit high in fats and dairy products, but in general it sounds healthful. And, importantly, you are getting some animal products, so the strange feelings you report in your fingers and toes are not likely to be from vitamin B-12 deficiency.

I think you have to look elsewhere than to your diet for an answer to that. Such feelings are not likely to be caused by circulation problems in one year age (30s), but a nerve problem is a possibility. For this reason, you should be seen by a doctor. A few blood tests will tell much about whether your diet, which looks good on paper to me, is as nutritious as it should be.

Dear Abby

Widow's looks don't confess her age

DEAR ABBY: I'm a widow, 80 years young. Nobody would take me for a day over 60 or 65 at the most. Not to boast, but I am considered a beautiful woman. I have always taken good care of myself. I'm tall and slim, keep myself blond, have very nice skin (I have never had a facelift), and I'm in excellent health. My doctor tells me I have the body of a 45-year-old woman.

A neighbor told me about her bachelor brother who lives in a foreign country. He's an engineer with an oil company. She sent him my picture and we have been corresponding. He's 65, but he doesn't know my age. (Neither does my neighbor.) I wrote and told him that I was "a little older" than he is. He wrote back and asked, "How much older?" I replied, "I'll tell you when we meet."

That's the way we left it, Abby. Now I'm getting nervous because he's coming here in June. If I tell him I'm 80, he will either not believe me or he'll faint dead away.

What is your advice? TO TELL OR NOT TO TELL

DEAR TO TELL: First, get to know each other. And if it starts to develop into something serious, tell him — but make sure he's sitting down. You can kid Mother Nature, but you can't fool Father Time.

DEAR ABBY: When Mummy tells her daughter the car won't start unless all the seat belts are buckled, then "proves" it by jiggling the ignition key, she may think she is teaching her to buckle up the seat belt. Wrong! She is teaching her child to lie.

There are better ways than lying to persuade a spoiled child to buckle up. Simply refusing to start the car is one way. Or maybe using a firm, loving voice. Persuasion, si! Lying to a child, no!

Walking stars

WALKING AMERICANS — More than 200 persons participated in Saturday's Walk-America for the March of Dimes Foundation. Pictured here, leading the walkers, are members of the Howard College Classics and the Hawk mascot. More than $18,000 was made through the walk.

Walkers earn $18,500 for MOD

Some 216 walkers took on a 10-mile course Saturday to earn more than $18,000 for the annual Walk-America, coordinated locally by the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes.

Linda Floyd, director of the chapter, said the original goal was $13,000. A tally this morning showed $18,535 had been raised, with money for the drive still coming in.

Forty percent of the money earned locally will be used by the Caprock Chapter, and 60 percent of the money is forwarded to the National March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation in New York for research.

The City of Big Spring won the award for the largest team this year. First Federal Savings and Loan won an award for raising the most money with $3,401.50. Carla Bauer won for the most money raised by an individual with $1,978.

The oldest walker in the event was B. Y. Butler of the State National Bank. Youngest walker was 10-month-old Josh Townsend, who was carried by his mother the full 10-miles of the route.

Becky Walker, poster child for the Caprock Chapter, finished the course. Other participants were given the option of stopping at a symbolic walk point. The Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home provided a limousine for walkers who stopped at this point.

Dick Hoolahan was chairman for this year's walk. Charles Johnson was co-chairman.

Registration for the event began at 8 a.m. at the Big Spring Mall with Pam Walker, Pam Welch, Mrs. Floyd and 10 other volunteers handling registration.

Mrs. Floyd said she and other volunteers "were nearly in tears because we felt there were about half the volunteers that we had in last year's group."

But the smaller numbers didn't hurt the final tallies. Last year, the Walk-America raised $11,000.

"When we started counting (this year's tally) we got so excited. It was really special," she said. Money will go toward fighting birth defects. "We're trying to stop birth defects," Mrs. Floyd said.

Money locally will be channeled into two new programs. One, spearheaded by Pam Walker, will be a support group for parents dealing with a child with a birth defect. This group will monitor births in the area.

Another program will be held in conjunction with the Chemical People program. Volunteers will discuss "Sexuality of Adolescents" and will warn about the dangers of teen-age pregnancies, a very-high risk group for birth defects.

Teams participating included the City of Big Spring, K-Mart Discount Center, Malone-Hogan Hospital, State National Bank, Hall Bennett Memorial Hospital, Security State Bank, Fiberflex, Little League, McCutcheon Oil and KKIK.

Also the First Federal Savings and Loan, Malone and Hogan Clinic, Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, First National Bank, NAACP, Citizens Federal Credit Union, BSHS Key Club, 7-Eleven, KBYG and KBST.

"Super stars" in the walk included Miss Bauer, Travis Brackeen who earned $428, Belinda Hughes with $228, Cheryl New with $755, Cyndi Lyons with $250, and Brenda Stephens with $205.

Members of the $100 club included Craig Jaderlinic, Maria Salazar, Rose Speaker, Ione Crane, Shirleen Brown, Raymond Stallings, Tom Starnes and Gary Fuqua.

Also Angela Kohl, Teddy Griffin, Brenda Claxton, Donna Bumgarner, Becky McCauley, Laverne Bacon, Bonnie Robinson and Debra Carroll.

Others were Joie Baugers, Carlon Baker, Bobby Waters, Angie Cole, Linda Park, Judy Jones, Jane Lusk, Rose Teeler, Glendene Kapp, Amelia Morales, Andrea Gee, Debbie Anderson, Dorothy Lusk and Julie Barefield.

School scrambles for help

AUSTIN (AP) — Officials trying to save the beleaguered Venus school district from dissolution will present a new plan today to Texas Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum. School board president Glenn White said Sunday that he and other representatives will travel to Austin armed with new, back-to-basics curriculum plans.

Bynum has already told the troubled school system in Johnson County that the state will yank its accreditation and eligibility for state money when classes end this spring.

A Texas Education Agency team reported finding management, curriculum and overcrowding problems in the district last year. The problems were compounded when an arsonist destroyed a third of Venus' classrooms in February.

The local chapter of the American Diabetes Association is sponsoring a bike-a-thon to be held May 6 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Howard College.

Taco Villa has donated a 10-speed bicycle for the person who collects the Local clowns will be at Howard College to encourage bike riders and entertain.

According to statistics released by the association's local chapter, 153 persons are being treated for diabetes, a disease in which the body does not produce or properly use insulin, at one local hospital.

These patients were in the hospital 1,030 days at an approximate cost of $412,000, the figures showed.

Information comes in handy

CLEVELAND (AP) — It's a good thing Daniel and Elizabeth Matko studied the Lamaze natural child birth method 2½ years ago. They needed the information.

A 25-minute ride from their Kirtland home to Euclid General Hospital east of Cleveland turned out to be 10 minutes too long Sunday.

Mrs. Matko, 32, gave birth to their second child on the Lakeland Freeway, with only her husband in attendance. The healthy infant, Anne Elizabeth, weighed in at 6 pounds, 6 ounces.

Mrs. Matko told her husband the contractions were severe when they were near the East 260th Street exit. The hospital is at East

185th. "At first, I thought maybe we should make a run for it," Matko said. "Then she said the baby was coming out. I didn't want it to fall out and have nobody there to catch it."

"A lot of stuff was coming back from watching the birth of our first daughter," he said.

Coahoma girls running at history

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

When Gina Hudson, Janna Griffin, Leslie Kirkpatrick and Tobie Henry step on the track Friday at Austin's Memorial Stadium at the running of the class AAA 1600 meter relay, Coahoma High School history will be made.

The foursome, under the guidance of coach Bill Dennis, will be the first relay team in CHS history to compete in a state meet. Though it is quite an accomplishment for this team who got a late start because of basketball playoffs, they are not in awe of the task in front of them.

All agree that the only thing for them to do now is go out and compete as best they can.

Especially Henry, a senior who is also entered in the 400 meters, making her third trip to Austin. Her sophomore year she reached state in the long jump and last season she finished sixth in the 400 — a race she would like to forget.

"I choked," she said. "I had run a 58.8 going into the meet and ran a 60 something in Austin, my worst time of the year."

Dennis said that his anchorwoman did not run a good tactical race last year in Austin. "Tobie went out way too fast, she ran as well as she could the first 200 just to stay with them. This year we have been working with her strength at the end of the race," said Dennis.

Evidently Dennis' workouts have been paying off since Henry has recorded a 57.71 in easily winning the regional meet. Henry also showed her worth at the regional meet on the final leg of the 1600 relay. The speedster got the baton in third place 15 yards behind second place Dalhart. She proceeded to run the Dalhart anchorwoman down, giving Coahoma second place, a trip to Austin and their best time of the year at 4:10.83, thus making school history.

Is the gold medal in the 400 meters Tobie Henry's goal? "No, I'm not really thinking about the gold medal," she replied. All I want to do is go out there and accomplish something. Last year I was satisfied with just making it to state, this year I want more, I want to improve my time and compete the very best I can."

Junior leadoff runner Hudson has been running on the 1600 relay since her freshman year. Last year the team of herself, Henry, Kirkpatrick and Julie Nairn qualified for regionals and never got a chance to run. The reason Hudson jumped the gun in the preliminary heat, thus disqualifying the relay.

"It was terrible," said Hudson. "I was in the sixth lane, and I could barely hear the starter. He was real irregular with his starts. Me and a girl in lane eight both jumped." Hudson said her teammates were her biggest comforters, and held no hard feelings.

Griffin, a senior, is a half-miler running the relay for the first time. She was inserted on to the relay one week before district, making the change smoothly.

"I like running on the relay," she said. "It doesn't hurt as much as running the 800. It's really a neat feeling running and having others depend on you, and you depending on them."

The tall, slender Kir-patrick is a sophomore and the youngest statewoman of the foursome. Her teammates agree that it was her strong third leg at regional that made the difference in the outcome.

Kirkpatrick says her older teammates have played a positive role in her workout habits. "They are good leaders," she said. They make me work that much harder."

Coach Dennis has nothing but praise for his relay team. "I'm as excited as the kids about going," he said. "All the credit goes to them, I can just guide and bring their potential to the top, but I can't put the want to in them, they are competitors and they want it."

So now the foursome will try their luck in Austin. Maybe awaiting is more space in the history books.

HEADED TO STATE — These members of the Coahoma High School girls' 1600 meter relay team will be vying for a gold medal at the State Track Meet in Austin Friday. They are (top to bottom), Leslie Kirkpatrick, Gina Hudson, Janna Griffin, Tobie Henry and alternate Stephanie Dobbs.

Celtics crush Knicks behind injured Bird

Larry Bird did everything right for the Boston Celtics except take himself out of the game.

Bird had 23 points, 12 assists, nine rebounds, three steals and two blocked shots as the Celtics opened their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series against the New York Knicks with an easy 110-92 victory Sunday.

But he was still in the game with less than four minutes left and Boston leading by 18 when he aggravated an ankle injury he sustained last week against Washington.

"Larry shouldn't have been in there at the end," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "I made a boo-boo. It could be very costly."

But after soaking his ankle in ice for more than an hour after the game, Bird said it wasn't Jones' fault that he didn't come out of the game.

"K.C. asked me if I wanted to come out two or three times," Bird said, but I wanted to stay in. I thought the more I played, the stronger it'd get. It's easy to say after the game's over that I shouldn't have been playing. But during the game, you want to play."

Dr. Thomas Silva, the Celtics' team physician, said he expected Bird would play in Wednesday's second game, also in Boston.

In other second-round playoff openers, New Jersey defeated Milwaukee 106-100 and the offensive prowess of Knicks forward Bernard King.

Six-foot-10 Kevin McHale, who led Boston in scoring with 25 points, guarded the 6-7 King in the second period and held him to six points. King finished with 26 points, his regular-season average, but 16.6 below his norm of 42.6 in five playoff games against Detroit, which included four straight outings over sidelines, where he can be trapped more easily. Because the press requires more New York manpower in the backcourt, once it is broken, the Knicks are shorthanded on defense up front.

"Once you break the press at halfcourt, you have to make them pay," said Celtics' forward Cedric Maxwell.

Boston center Robert Parish, who had 19 points and 12 rebounds, sparked two Celtics surges that gave them big leads in the first half.

Parish had seven points during a 17-2 surge that turned a 12-10 New York lead into a 27-14 advantage. Parish then had six points and two assists in a 10-2 spurt that made it 49-32 midway through the second period.

NBA Playoffs

Utah stopped Phoenix 105-95. On Saturday, Los Angeles routed Dallas 134-91.

The Celtics used a new offense designed to break New York's pressure defense and also controlled the 40 mark.

On offense, McHale said, "We have a new system. We have spots on the floor designed for everybody to go to."

It involves the guard bringing the ball up the middle rather than the

Dodgers blank San Diego, 6-0

Alejandro Pena seems to have the San Diego Padres number this year ... and so far that number has been zero.

For the second time in 11 days, Pena threw a five-hit shutout against San Diego as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Padres 6-0 Sunday and climbed back into first place in their see-saw battle for the National League West lead.

"I'm glad to see that guy get out of town," said San Diego starter Ed Whitson, who was on the losing side of each of Pena's shutout wins over the Padres. "He's got to be doing something right. He reminds me of Fernando (Valenzuela) when he first broke in."

Pena, 4-1, was rarely in trouble, striking out six and walking none.

The Dodgers scored the only run they needed in the top of the second inning when Mike Marshall hit a home run off Whitson, 2-2. The Dodgers added a run in the fourth when Rick Monday came home on a passed ball, then scored four more in the ninth on a bases-loaded walk to Steve Sax and a three-base error by Carmelo Martinez in left field on Terry Whitfield's fly ball with the bases loaded.

CUBS 2, PIRATES 1

Steve Trout and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Gary Matthews drove in both Chicago runs as the Cubs edged Pittsburgh.

Trout, 3-1, worked the first six innings before giving way to Tim Stoddard.

Lee Smith came on in the ninth with a man on first and nobody out, and recorded his fifth save.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Matthews' RBI groundout and made it 2-0 in the fourth on Matthews' RBI single off John Candelaria, 3-2.

TIGERS 6, INDIANS 1

Only five days earlier, Detroit Tigers right-hander Dan Petry had been forced to take himself out of a game against Minnesota with a stiff elbow.

He made quite a recovery Sunday.

Petry came within four outs of joining teammate Jack Morris as a no-hit pitcher this season, hurling the Tigers to a 6-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians. Morris no-hit the Chicago White Sox on April 7.

"I felt like this was it — this was my day," said Petry, 3-1, who gave up his first hit, a double to George Vukovich, with two outs in the eighth inning. With the no-hitter gone, Petry watched from the dugout as Willie Hernandez pitched the ninth inning, giving up Cleveland's only run on a walk and a double by Julio Franco.

Petry walked two and struck out seven in his first winning decision since April 10.

Kirk Gibson had two doubles and a single in four at-bats, driving in three of Detroit's runs.

YANKEES 6, BREWERS 5

New York snapped a four-game losing streak with four runs in the bottom of the 13th inning — the final two coming on a two-out single by Tim Lincecum. Milwaukee had taken a 5-2 lead with three runs in the top of the inning.

The first of the Yankees' winning runs scored on singles by Steve Kemp, Don Baylor and Roy Smalley. A walk loaded the bases and brought on reliever Tom Tellmann, who promptly walked in another run, making it 5-4. Foli then singled off Tellmann to drive in the tying and winning runs.

TO THE HOOP — New York Knick Marvin Webster goes to the hoop as Boston Celtic Robert Parrish tries to defend during second period NBA playoff action at the Boston Garden, Sunday afternoon. Boston beat New York, 110-92, in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

USFL's raiding leaves NFL draft in quandry

NEW YORK (AP) — If you want to know what the United States Football League has meant to this year's National Football League draft, you only have to consider the pligh of Miami Dolphins' Coach Don Shula.

"We need linebackers, linebackers and more linebackers," says Shula, whose team picks 26th in the first round of Tuesday's draft.

"The good thing is the guys we're looking at are all there. The bad thing is that since the USFL has signed good players at other positions, teams that normally wouldn't have selected a linebacker may pick one now."

The NFL draft starts at 8 a.m. at the Omni Park Hotel here and will be a one-day affair, with 12 rounds continuing on into the early hours of Wednesday morning.

But a lot of the stars are gone — perhaps nine who would have been first-round draft choices in the 28-team NFL and another 30 or so of the 100 top-rated players in the class of 1984 have been signed by the USFL.

They include quarterback Steve Young of Brigham Young, Nebraska running back Mike Rozier, the Heisman Trophy winner, and defensive tackle Reggie White of Tennessee, all of whom might have been the NFL's first choice; plus offensive tackle Mark Adickes of Baylor and defensive end Robert Smith of Grambling, who might well have been in the top 10.

That has left Irving Fryar as the first selection, which will be made official at 8 sharp by the New England Patriots, who have already signed the Nebraska wide receiver. Then the Houston Oilers, with the second choice will pick Fryar's teammate, guard Dean Steinkuhler, with whom they have reached agreement.

That ripple effect will persist throughout the draft and it may have a bit of a reverse ripple on the USFL.

Pavin beats hometown favorite for Houston Open top position

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Veteran hometown favorite John Mahaffey had a two-stroke lead and the support of the gallery.

But rookie Corey Pavin had his wife Shannon and their dog Webster and that was enough.

"I had someone cheering for me, too," said Pavin.

Starting the day two strokes off the pace, Pavin fired a final round 68 Sunday to sweep past the fading Mahaffey and win his first PGA tournament by one shot in the $500,000 Houston Open golf tournament at The Woodlands Country Club.

Mahaffey blew to a final round 75 and finished in a tie for sixth place at 279, 5-under-par. Pavin surpassed his final challenger, Buddy Gardner, on the 14th hole, where Pavin birdied and Gardner bogeyed.

Pavin's birdie put him 11-under-par for the tournament but he bogeyed No. 17 and finished 10-under with a 274 total for 72 holes.

Gardner was second, his best career finish, with a 2-under par 69 for a 275 total and erratic Buddy Wadkins, the 36-hole leader, was third at 276 after a final round 70.

Pavin said his 25-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole was a turning point in the match and confirmed Shannon's premonition. "I had just talked to Shannon and she said she had that same feeling as last year at the German Open so I was confident," Pavin said.

Although it was Pavin's first PGA victory, he won three tournaments in Europe last year, including the German Open.

"She doesn't play golf at all," Pavin said. "But she can perceive when I am tense and she has excellent ideas how to cope with situations."

Gardner, Mahaffey and Pavin duelled through the first nine holes and made the turn in a three-way tie at 9-under.

But Gardner and Mahaffey bogeyed No. 10 while Pavin parred to take the lead for the first time. Gardner charged with birdies on 11 and 12 but lost out on the par 4, 455-yard, No. 14 hole.

Gardner's $54,000 payday and second place finish were the highest of his career. He tied for second in the 1979 Tucson Open.

Pavin, who finished second in the Phoenix Open in his second pro tournament in January, earned a $90,000 first prize that boosted his yearly earnings to $170,795.

As Jordan gets 186

Invaders set league rush mark

The Oakland Invaders have finally stopped retreating, thanks to a little-used running back named Eric Jordan.

The rookie from Purdue carried the ball 13 times for 186 yards and two touchdowns, including an 80-yard dash on Oakland's first play from scrimmage, as the Invaders beat Chicago 17-13 Sunday for their first victory of the season after nine losses.

Oakland rushing game, which needed used 32 carries to set its team record.

"What a great win when you have 300 yards rushing, tops in the USFL," he said. "I hope it's something for other teams to shoot for now. Maybe we'll shoot at it ourselves next week."

Jordan, who left the game with a hamstring pull in the third period, got Oakland off to a flying start when he dashed 80 yards up the right sideline with 9:50 left in the first quarter.

"I was waiting for this day as long as I can remember. I'm just glad it came today," Jordan said. "The coaches said that they'd give me the ball and let me do what I could with it, and I did. Look around the lockerroom. Everybody is fired up for this win. We've been waiting for it a long time."

Chicago tied the score with 12:47 left in the second quarter after a 90-yard drive, with Vagas Ferguson scoring from the 1. Then Kevin Seibel put the Blitz ahead 10-7 on a 24-yard field goal just before halftime.

Jordan's second touchdown, a 46-yard run late in the third quarter, put Oakland ahead 14-10. Jordan suffered a slight hamstring pull during the run.

Seibel and Oakland's Kevin Shea exchanged field goals to complete the scoring although Chicago had a final chance to win on fourth down with five seconds remaining and the ball on Oakland's 2-yard-line. But Blitz quarterback Vince Evans, who completed 18 of 34 passes for 173 yards, was tackled for a 1-yard loss by Invaders cornerback Kenny Daniel as time ran out.

USFL

"I just wanted to play and show what I could do," said Jordan, who had carried only 17 times for 103 yards in Oakland's first nine games. "Being a rookie, you just have to wait. You can't expect to start right off the bat."

Jordan, who spearheaded an Invaders running attack that netted a single-game USFL record of 300 yards, doesn't have to worry anymore about getting some playing time.

"I think it's kind of hard, with 186 yards, to keep him off the field," interim head coach Chuck Hutchison said.

In other USFL games Sunday, Birmingham beat Denver 31-14 and New Jersey outscored Michigan 31-21. On Saturday, San Antonio edged Arizona 24-23 and Tampa Bay defeated Washington 37-19.

Hutchison was ecstatic with the success of the

Oilers dimming North Stars

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers are within a game of sweeping past Minnesota and into their second straight Stanley Cup finals.

Yet, for a time Saturday night, Oiler winger Dave Lumley wondered if his teammates would ever speak to him again.

"I wanted to go up and down the bench and kiss every guy," said Lumley, after the Oilers' five-goal, third-period rally buried Minnesota 8-5 in third game of the their best-of-seven Campbell Conference final.

The Edmonton comeback not only gave the Oilers a 3-0 series lead, it sent Lumley from the emotional gutter to Cloud 9.

"I was at the lowest of lows and went to the highest of highs," Lumley said.

With the Oilers ahead 2-1, Lumley speared Minnesota's Dino Ciccarelli in the stomach at 8:16 of the second period.

Lumley was banished for five minutes, and because of the severity of the penalty, he would remain in the penalty box even if Minnesota scored.

"You read the paper and see I got a five-minute penalty for spearing and I sound like a maniac," Lumley said. "But it was just a little tap to the stomach but he (Ciccarelli) acted like he needed major surgery."

But after the penalty, it looked like Lumley would need surgery — to save his face.

The North Stars notched four goals during Lumley's exile — two each by Neal Broten and Mark Napier — to take their first lead of the series 5-2.

"I thought I was going to be a goat," said Lumley.

After Lumley's return, Edmonton responded with a half-dozen unanswered goals. Jari Kurri started the run with his playoff-leading 12th goal and linemate Wayne Gretzky put on the finishing touches with a successful penalty shot.

"We just kept coming and coming," said Gretzky, who leads the National Hockey League playoffs with 27 points on nine goals and 18 assists.

Gretzky called the Edmonton comeback "maybe the biggest we've ever had as an organization."

The game will cause some revising of the NHL playoff record book.

—The seven power-play goals (four by Minnesota), were the most ever in a playoff game, eclipsing the record first set by Montreal and Detroit in 1939 and equaled five times.

—The five man-advantage goals in the second period were another first, topping the four scored by Toronto in 1936 and matched four times.

—Minnesota's four power-play goals in the second period marked the first time one team pulled off that feat since the '36 Maple Leafs.

—Gretzky's penalty shot, forced when Gordie Roberts pulled him down on a breakaway, was only the third successful shot in 10 tries in playoff history.

The North Stars were stunned by the turnabout.

"When most teams are down by three goals, they quit," Minnesota General Manager Lou Nanne said.

"But not these guys, they have such an arsenal."

"They are the most explosive team I've ever seen," Ciccarelli said. "If you let them go and they can make their passes and have room to skate, they're extremely hard to stop."

Minnesota will try to become the third team ever to rally from three games down in the NHL playoffs. Toronto did it in the 1942 against Detroit and the New York Islanders came back from 0-3 in the '75 quarter-finals with Pittsburgh.

I am County Attorney Bob Miller and I want to serve you as District Attorney. I want my children to grow up in a community free of drug traffic. It is time we take care of our own problems and not depend upon Federal Officials to fight our drug traffic. Your District Attorney must lead this fight and work closely with law enforcement officials. This has not been the case in the past. Too many grand jury indicted cases have been dismissed. And too many drug cases indicted have not even been prosecuted, but only held on file. As your District Attorney, I will lead that fight against the drug and other criminal element.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A dispute over money or other practical matters can cause a good deal of trouble that could last for some time and calls for a considerable amount of time and effort to fix. Keep cool.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to be careful that someone does not get the best of you in some monetary matter today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you get your health and appearance improved, you will find it easier to gain your personal desires.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You feel restricted in some way, but if you calm down, you can handle the matter logically. Show more kindness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Your friends may be too busy at this time, so don't try to pressure them in any way. Be happy tonight and feel contented.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be on your guard in the outside world so that you cannot be criticized in any way. Show your devotion to kin in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid going off on any tangents, and don't make any unnecessary changes. Don't confide in a stranger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use your own, mature judgment rather than consulting one who could not help you. Fix your wardrobe. Be charming.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could have a confrontation with one who is as stubborn as you are, so postpone meeting for awhile. Be very social later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get away from work if you can, but if not, be sure to do your fair share of it. Try to solve your private worries quickly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do not interfere if an argument starts between a friend and your erstwhile mate. Show that you are sensible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't indulge in an argument with one who lives with you over some worldly affair. You seek peace and solitude in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Most important you use care in motion of all kind, especially on the roads. Be careful in correspondence; make sure words are right.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to solve monetary affairs very well, if the right kind of education is given of a modern nature. Your progeny must learn to have an open mind, free of prejudices. Permit to participate in sports.

N-plant start-up marred by goof

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — After years of protests and construction delays, Diablo Canyon power plant operators started the nuclear reaction and immediately encountered what regulators call an "unusual event" — spillage of slightly radioactive water into the wrong tank.
Officials said there was no danger from Sunday morning's diversion of about 1,000 gallons of cooling water into a "hold up tank" inside the $4.9 billion plant.
Diablo Canyon can't start producing electricity until low-power testing is completed and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission grants Pacific Gas & Electric Co. a full-power operating license, company spokesman George Sarkisian said.

Five anti-nuclear protesters from a peaceful group of 100 demonstrators were jailed for trespassing at the plant's front gate Sunday, bringing to 537 the arrest total since daily protests began Jan. 13.
"There's more opposition to this plant than indicated by the number of people here today," said demonstrator Michal Schaffer, 27, of Santa Barbara. "There are thousands of people who are just tired of protesting. They've been fighting for 10 to 15 years."
One man watching the protest was Robert Thornberry, manager of the plant on central California's coast 160 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

"I'm responsible for the plant and I wanted to see how much of a demonstration there was," Thornberry said.
"There's no question Diablo is a safe plant," he said after its startup at 12:07 a.m. Sunday. He described the water spill as a minor problem and one to be expected during low-power testing of the 1,084-megawatt reactor.
He and James D. Shiffer, PG&E's nuclear plant operations manager, said a valve allowed slightly radioactive reactor coolant water to flow to a "hold up tank" instead of to a "volume control tank" where it was supposed to go.

Jesse Crews, the NRC's chief West Coast engineer, said about 1,000 gallons of the water flowed into the wrong tank at a rate of three gallons per minute "for about four or five hours."
The NRC must be told of any reduction of reactor coolant exceeding one gallon-per-minute, so the problem was classified as an "unusual event" under emergency procedures, Shiffer said.
"I really don't consider this serious," Crews said. The problem was recognized at 5:55 a.m. and corrected 10 minutes later, he noted.

Scientists find evidence of dense matter formation

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The world's most powerful heavy ion accelerator has produced evidence supporting the existence of a highly compressed form of matter believed to form collapsed stars, the University of California says.
The finding was the result of scientists' work with the school's Bevalac, a machine capable of propelling heavy ions — atomic nuclei stripped of electrons — around a magnetically confined circle at close to the speed of light, 186,000 miles per second.
The work was being reported today in the publication Physical Review Letters. "There is no practical application, just a better understanding of matter, exploring the nature of nuclei," said one of the team's leaders, Arthur Poskanzer of the university's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

Bevalac was used to propel a beam of nuclei of niobium, a metallic element, at a niobium target.
Poskanzer said that when the nuclei hit the target, something happened which had not been observed before.
"Instead of scattering off in many random directions, the protons, neutrons and other subatomic particles released by the collision hung together for a split second, and then bounced away like two tennis balls," he said.
The scientists said the behavior could only be explained "as a result of compression of the nuclear matter at the moment of impact and its re-expansion a split second later, forcing a chunk of matter into a sideways deflection."
The data has been checked out for the past year.

Jury selection begins for agent orange trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Jury selection got under way today for the Agent Orange trial, in which at least 15,000 Vietnam veterans are claiming damages for injuries they allegedly suffered from exposure to herbicides during the war.
The federal government and seven chemical companies are defendants in the class-action product liability suit.
The veterans and their families blame a wide variety of problems — including cancer, skin ailments, miscarriages and birth defects — on the fact that soldiers and airmen were exposed to Agent Orange throughout the 1960s in Vietnam.
The seven chemical companies assert that they were simply following government specifications in producing and labeling the compound, that it was safe if used properly and that under the Defense Production Act, passed during the Korean War, they would have been subject to penalties if they had defied orders to make Agent Orange.

Five hundred potential jurors converged on the U.S. District Court building in Brooklyn today. They were given questionnaires seeking to determine whether they would be impartial and whether they could serve on a trial estimated to take at least five months and possibly well over a year.
They will return in a week for interviews with U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein, who will select a panel of 12 jurors expected to hear opening arguments beginning May 14.
