Future of the Women's Clubhouse

By Sharon White

Communities that care about the past are the ones that thrive in the present and future. Visitors to the Parmer County Museum can testify that Parmer County communities are proud of their heritage.

Reading the latest Parmer County History Book assures that the Parmer County Historical Commission does a thorough job of seeing that county historical sites are preserved by having historical marker dedications such as the dedication at Black this past Sunday.

One of the sites proudly displaying a historical marker is the Women's Clubhouse. A group has been formed to make sure the building itself can be remodeled and maintained for future generations. The building was originally erected and paid for through efforts of the Friona Woman's Club and the Modern Study Club in 1939.

The non-profit group operating as Parmer County Women's Foundation, Inc. has been offered some "seed" money by the United Way board to get the remodeling project going. Plans are to enlarge the entryway and kitchen and make the restroom handicap accessible.

New windows and a roof are needed. Some of the rock wall has fallen off. Plans are to remove the rock and save it for a back patio. The outside would then have a stucco exterior.

Members of the non-profit group are Carolyn Stowers, president; Wendy Carthel, vice-president; Dianna Wright, secretary; Sharon White, treasurer; and Britny Pope, board member. Anyone interested in donating time or money for the project can contact any of these ladies. Watch for future announcements of fundraising events.

Historical marker dedicated at Black

A historical marker just east of Black was formally dedicated Sunday October 2. About a dozen folks attended the brief c'eremony.

The project was coordinated by the Parmer County Historical Commission.

Gladys Spring, commission chairman, and her husband Don Spring welcomed the guests. Rev. Kurt Borden of the Friona Methodist Church gave the invocation.

Ricky Barnett, whose family has long farmed in the Black community, gave a brief history of the area, which once had a school, grocery store, a church, and post office among other businesses. Current Friona Mayor J.B. Douglas recalled being a student at the Black school which was consolidated with Friona schools in 1950.

The community is named for E.B. Black, a land speculator of the time. In 1898 the railroad came through the community and associated buildings were constructed to form what is still known as the Black community.

Week 4 winner is Mason Loflin By Ron Carr

We are one-third of the way through the 2011 football contest. Week 4 was difficult for many but not for Mason Loflin ; of Friona as he picked 15 of 18 correct to win the weekly $25. He picked So. Carolina, the Cowboys, and the Buffalo Bills for his only three misses. Mason is a freshman at FHS, the son of Brent and Annette Loflin.

Close behind with 14 of 18 correct were Martin Brito and Greg O'Brian, both of Friona, and John Seright of Lubbock. Another 10 players were in at 13 correct and 18 more picked 12 correct so the overall point total race tightened a bit this week.

Ron Smiley has a slim lead of 53 total points, followed by Frank Gonzalez (52) and Chris Shufelberger (51). The standings are inside. Keep playing and good luck.

Chieftain video Doubleheader

FHS-TV and the Chieftain/Squaw Boosters will present video replays of the Lubbock Roosevelt and Bushland games Saturday October 8 beginning at 10 a.m. on WT Services channel 76.

the american dream

I did not attend the Take Back the American Dream conference.

Page Two

I did wonder exactly what "Take Back the American Dream" means. When you take something back it means you had it at one time but someone took it and now you want it back?

It would be interesting to know what people mean by the American dream. That is one of those phrases, like "save the children", that people like to throw around without actually knowing what it is they want.

employed Americans have been staging what is called "The Occupy Wall Street" movement. They are camping out in a park in New York in protest of the evil rich stockbrokers and bankers. From what I can tell their American dream is to get their hands on some of other people's dough. My suspicion is that most of the protesters are uniformed

hands who think it is cool to join a protest. It was reported that similar protests are being planned in other cities including Washington D.C. What is it they want? I've not heard a definite explanation except that Wall Street has a lot of money and they think they are entitled to some of it. Ouch, there is that word 'entitled' again. Lot of discussion in politics about entitlement programs. How about you? Do you think someone you do not know is entitled to a percentage of your income?

It seems the American A bunch of apparently un- dream includes a job, a family, a home, and winning a free fountain drink playing the McDonald's Monopoly game. The American dream for many is simply being able to provide food, clothing, and shelter for their family.

the American dream. Every individual has a different idea about the American dream.

Politicians, starting with President Obama, like to say they are fighting to get America back on track. Not sure what that means either. Who is responsible for America getting off the track in the first place? How will we know when America is back on track?

There is a huge divide in this country. All you have to do is follow organizations like MoveOn.org on the one hand and the Tea Party ideology on the other. Much time is spent nity for a top notch education. bashing the other side and accomplishing nothing.

try and avoid driving across any bridges. They say we need to put people to work repairing America's bridges. That is their solution to the jobs problem. I didn't realize we had so many dangerous bridges and I will be careful when driving across.

We need roads and bridges to move people and products across America. I want Wal Mart to have the stuff I want when I want it. I want the police department and the firemen to come quick when I call. I want your kids and my grandkids to have the opportu-

I want the protesters to go find work and contribute their fair share to the economy.

During my lifetime I have accomplished several American dreams and also been involved in a few American nightmares. To me the American dream is living in a free country where it is possible to experience both.

Then live to dream another day.

From the October 11, 1935 Friona Star. Uncle John cogitates about what America is coming to and whether the young people of the day will have any means of retirement. Even in 1935 Friona the American dream was a goal and a concern. Much of this sounds familiar today. Wonder what Uncle John would think about America today.

I find myself cogitating sometimes as to what our American civilization is coming to. Is everything running into a "new deal" or is the "New Deal" running into everything, and all our long loved and cherished customs to be thrown to the wind and new and unheard of and unknown customs to take place. It has always been or at least for many generations, for young people of any degree of thrift and intelligence to make some effort to have and to own their home with as much added to it as faithful labor and frugal living could add under ordinary circumstances, and to at least have something for their for their support during their declining years.

are turning them back to their former owners and buying cars with the aim of making just enough to live on and have a good time by spending it in attending shows, theatres, parties, fairs, and other places of amusement.

He named a few of these young people who have avowed their intention of following this plan and I must confess I was surprised, for I know they are good and worthy young people and for this reason I am just wondering if this is a new and novel feature of the "New Deal" and that this will be the plan from henceforth. Well, why not?-Echo answers-Why? Just why should young people wear their lives away in an effort to provide a competence for old age, when it will require ordinarily the greater part of an average life to do so, and even should they succeed they are just about ready for the "bone-yard" by the time this has been accomplished. While, on the other hand, the government, both state and nation is even now wrestling with the problem of an "Old Age Pension" to take care of all people who have lived into their sixty-sixth year, so that their "old age" or, more politely speaking, "their declining years" may be spent in peace and comfort. So, why worry? Why not-"Go to it while you are young, for when you get old, you can't."

Other news from the front page of the October 11, 1935 Friona Star. HAVE CHANGED LOCATIONS During the early part of this week John A. Guyer moved his family from the James Wilson property in the McMillan-Fergus Addition to the Truitt Landrum property on 7th Street.

Mr. Wilson moved from the farm property at the east edge of town to his own property just vacated by Mr. Guyer; and H.G. White and Buford Hughes exchanged houses in the McMillan-Fergus Addition. The latter two houses mentioned are the property of Dr. A. P. McElroy, of Mountain Park, N. Mex. It has been reported that Earl Watkins, who has been the chief clerk in the B.T. Galloway hardware store for the past few years, has rented the Staley sisters' farm west of town and will take possession of it in the near future. W.H. Foster, who has been cultivating the farm the past several years will move to Tennessee sometime

But there seems to be a new deal for that coming into vogue now, for a good man told me on the street one day last week, that young people now are giving up this idea of trying to have a home of their own and those who have been trying for the past few years to pay for a home

Budgeting is a word many of us do not want to learn, but once mastered, it can save us many a headache and in the long run, money.

New sales tax exemption registration for agriculture and timber operators

Beginning January 1, 2012, farm, ranch and timber operators who produce agricultural and timber products for sale will need a special registration number to claim a sales tax exemption on taxable products used in those businesses. Texas Comptroller Susan Combs announced they can get a registration number through either a mail-in application or an online application that begins October 3.

Registration is required by House Bill 268 passed in the recent legislative session and supported by retailers and agriculture groups.

"Beginning January 1, anyone who wants to claim the agriculture or timber sales tax exemptions for qualifying products will need a registration number to show retailers, instead of simply signing an exemption certificate at the time of purchase," Combs said. "The new registration process takes the burden off retailers to verify whether a purchaser is eligible for exemption. And it narrows the pool of purchasers claiming the sales tax exemption to those actually involved in production of agriculture and timber products for sale."

The new legislation requires a registration number to claim tax exemptions when buying items such as machinery and equipment; fertilizers; insecticides; irrigation equipment; and off-road motor vehicles used for farming and timber production. Those entitled to make tax-free purchases of taxable qualifying products include groups such as: farmers and ranchers who raise agricultural products to sell to others; custom harvesters; crop dusters; and commercial nurseries engaged in fostering growth of plants for sale. Products such as feed for livestock and wildlife, seeds and annual plants are always tax-exempt and would not require a registration number.

BY JEFF PROCTER, Minister, Sixth St. Church of Christ Do you remember the "Beverly Hillbillies"? Old Jed, shot at a rabbit, struck "Black Gold, Texas T, oil that is". The story line is based in contrast. You see, "they loaded up the truck and moved to Beverly Hills that is, swimming pools and movie Landon and Amy Martin of Corpus Christi, Texas are the stars". They had plenty of money and Mr. Drysdale to watch over it. They lived in a mansion, yet drove the old worn out "Model Something".

> Granny was always on the look out for a thief. Elly Mae showed compassion for less fortunate critters. Jethro was always trying to fit in and getting in trouble. Uncle Jed, wise and stable, making hillbilly sense out of everything. We laughed and enjoyed the show because they didn't fit in, it was obvious. And yes, Mr. Drysdale's secretary, Jane Hathaway, who respected them for their differences and wanted to be part of the family if Jethro would only ask...

> Are you different? 1 Peter talks about us being strangers in our own land, are we? We are not to be of this world, nor live in the same manner as the world. We are called to be different. I am not suggesting that you put on your best hillbilly outfit; but I am suggesting that the Christian walk should have the same qualities as those folks above, case and point, should we not be on the look out for the thief (Satan) who comes to steal our souls? Should we not show compassion to those less fortunate? Don't we need to know that trying to fit into the world will get us in trouble?

And isn't it nice to know that there is a place to go to get good sound advice from a stable unchanging source, the Word of God? If we do these things, I need to realize that it will be attractive to some and they will want to join the family. Let people see Jesus and you will not look like this world.

Chiefs outlast Roosevelt 48-33 for first win

It was an interesting football game, played before a standing room only homecoming crowd, complete with 7 touchdowns and 6 extra points, and 453 Chieftain rushing yards. It was a long football game, finally ending around 10:30 p.m. as the Chiefs won their first game of the season 48-33 over the Lubbock Roosevelt Eagles.

We ran, they passed. The offenses of the two teams could not have been more opposite. The Chiefs gained 453 rushing yards and completed only one of five passes for 10 yards. On the other hand, the Roosevelt Eagles, operating out of the shotgun, attempted 40 passes for 302 yards and gained only 114 yards rushing. Friona ran 54 rushing plays to Roosevelt's 23.

Senior quarterback Caleb Monroe once again had a big night, gaining 218 yards on 17 carries and scored four touchdowns. One of his TDs came on defense as he stripped an Eagle runner of the ball and returned it for a score.

In the rushing column Diego Licerio carried 14 times for 85 yards and two touchdowns and kicked 3 of 4 extra points, Stephen Dominguez carried 9 times for 86 yards and one TD, Serafin Vazquez carried 5 times for 32 yards and kicked 3 of 3 extra points.

Rounding out the rush yards were Eduardo Rojas 4 carries for 10 yards, Richard Rodriguez 2 times for 15 yards, and Sawyer Osborn 2 times for 7 yards. On defense Gabriel Avalos, Brad Stowers, and Sebastian Santiago were each credited with 5 solo tackles.

The Chiefs trailed 25-21 at the half but scored 27 second half points while holding the Eagles to only 8 points in the 4th quarter. Monroe's longest run of the night was 76 yards as he continues to lead the Chiefs in rushing yards and scoring. Friona is now 1-4 season, 1-1 in district.

The Chieftains travel to Bushland Friday night to take on the Falcons who lost big to Muleshoe last week. Kick off is at 7:30 p.m. A video replay doubleheader of the Roosevelt and Bushland games will be shown beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday October 8 on WT Services channel 76.

Squaws beat Littlefield in three

From Coach Bryan Masse:

It was two out of three as the Friona Squaws hosted the Littlefield Lady Wildcats Tuesday night.

The freshmen started out the night with a two game loss 23-25, 19-25. Serve receive hurt the ladies and eventually led to their downfall.

The JV team started off the wins with a 25-5, 25-16 victory. The junior varsity continued their wins in district play.

In the varsity match the Squaws used good passing from Bianca Romero, Yari Avilez, Rachel Dickson, Elda Castanon, and Tamra Stormes to win three games to zero. Kendall Kimbrough did a good job setting the ball up from the passes to the middle hitters and the outsides.

Maddie Murphree had a great game and Marissa Lozoya also played well in the middle. The outsides, Rachel, Tamra, and Ashli Smith added timely well placed spikes to keep the Lady Cats off balance. The Squwas defeated Littlefield 25-19, 25-19, 25-17. The Squaws are at home Saturday for a match with Denver City. The freshmen will play at 10 a.m. at the junior high gym. The JV plays at the high school at 10 a.m. followed by the varsity.

Project shows maximum irrigation and plant populations not necessary for corn BY KAY LEDBETTER

Corn research studies conducted at the North Plains Research Field near Etter are showing that maximum irrigation and high plant populations don't always produce the most economical or water-use efficient yields.

Dr. Brent Bean, Texas AgriLife Extension Service agronomist, along with Jake Becker, Texas AgriLife Research technician and graduate student, are studying new drought-tolerant corn hybrids under different seeding and irrigation rates.

The Texas High Plains Water District, along with Pioneer and Syngenta seed companies, are helping fund this study. The goal of the study is to determine how to best manage these new drought-tolerant corn hybrids under limited irrigation.

"All of the major seed companies are working on drought tolerance, and we are looking at what is considered the first generation of these new drought-tolerant hybrids," Bean said.

The study compares the new drought-tolerant hybrids to conventional hybrids. It is important that these new hybrids yield well under reduced irrigation, but also have the ability to not limit yield when favorable conditions are present, he said. "We have four hybrids from each of the companies, and will be comparing each company's drought-tolerant hybrids to their conventional hybrids," Bean said. "It is not our intention to compare the two company hybrids against each other; in fact, they are being conducted in separate trials." Becker said Pioneer's drought-tolerant hybrids are being sold under the brand AquaMax, while Syngenta's drought-tolerant hybrids are under the Artesian brand. In the study, the hybrids are being grown at irrigation levels ranging from 40 percent to 100 percent evapotranspiration levels, he said.

Evapotranspiration is the loss of water from the soil both by evaporation and by transpiration from the plants. The irrigation levels are adjusted to replace that water loss on a percentage basis, Bean said. "You can really see the effects of the different irrigation levels in ear length, number of rows of kernels and overall pollination," Becker said.

The amount of irrigation water applied to meet the various percentages of evapotranspiration were: 40 percent, 14.13 inches; 50 percent, 16.29 inches; 65 percent, 20.33 inches; 75 percent, 23 inches; and 100 percent, 29.71 inches.

levels, with the exception of 75 percent and 100 percent evapotranspiration, Becker said, and he didn't expect there to be a big yield difference between those two levels.

As for the other levels, he said so far all are producing ears with kernels. The 50 percent level has short plants, but it still pollinated and is producing ears. The 65 percent level showed better pollination, longer cob. length and more kernels, as expected.

"This research is just getting started, but this year's data should provide us with good information on the performance of these new drought-tolerant hybrids. under limited irrigation and the extreme weather con-There was a clear height difference between all the ditions experienced this summer," Becker said.

After the technical review is complete the executive director will consider the comments and prepare a response to all relevant and material, or significant public comments. If only comments are received, the response to comments, along with the executive director's decision on the application, will then be mailed to everyone who submitted public comments or who is on the mailing list for this application, unless the application is directly referred to a contested case hearing.

OPPORTUNITY FOR A CONTESTED CASE HEARING You may request a contested case hearing. The applicant or the executive director may also request that the application be directly referred to a contested case hearing after technical review of the application. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in state district court. Unless a written request for a contested case hearing is filed within 15 days from this notice, the executive director may act on the application. If no hearing request is received within this 15 day period, no further opportunity for hearing will be provided. According to the Texas Clean Air Act § 382.056(o) a contested case hearing may only be granted if the applicant's compliance history is in the lowest classification under applicable compliance history requirements and if the hearing request is based on disputed issues of fact that are relevant and material to the Commission's decision on the application. Further, the Commission may only grant a hearing on those issues raised during the public comment period and not withdrawn.

A person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the facility is entitled to request a hearing. If requesting a contested case hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number, and fax number, if any; (2) applicant's name and permit number; (3) the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing;" (4) a specific description of how you would be adversely affected by the application and air emissions from the facility in a way not common to the general public; (5) the location and distance of your property relative to the facility; and (6) a description of how you use the property which may be impacted by the facility. If the request is made by a group or association, the one or more members who have standing to request a hearing and the interests the group or association seeks to protect must also be identified. You may also submit your proposed adjustments to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns. Requests for a contested case hearing must be submitted in writing within 15 days following this notice to the Office of the Chief Clerk at the address below.

If any requests for a contested case hearing are timely filed, the executive director will forward the application and any requests for a contested case hearing to the Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting. Unless the application is directly referred to a contested case hearing, the executive director will mail the response to comments along with notification of Commission meeting to everyone who submitted comments or is on the mailing list for this application. If a hearing is granted, the subject of a hearing will be limited to disputed issues of fact relating to relevant and material air quality concerns raised during the comment period. Issues such as property values, noise, traffic safety, and zoning are outside of the Commission's jurisdiction to address in this proceeding.

EPA regulation bad for Texas

By Texas Comptroller Susan Combs

The Texas economy has weathered some rough times in the last few years - and proven its durability. But we still face some serious challenges.

Some of them we can't do anything about, such as the drought and the wildfires it spurred. In a natural disaster, you can't do much more than move people to safety and help them start to heal.

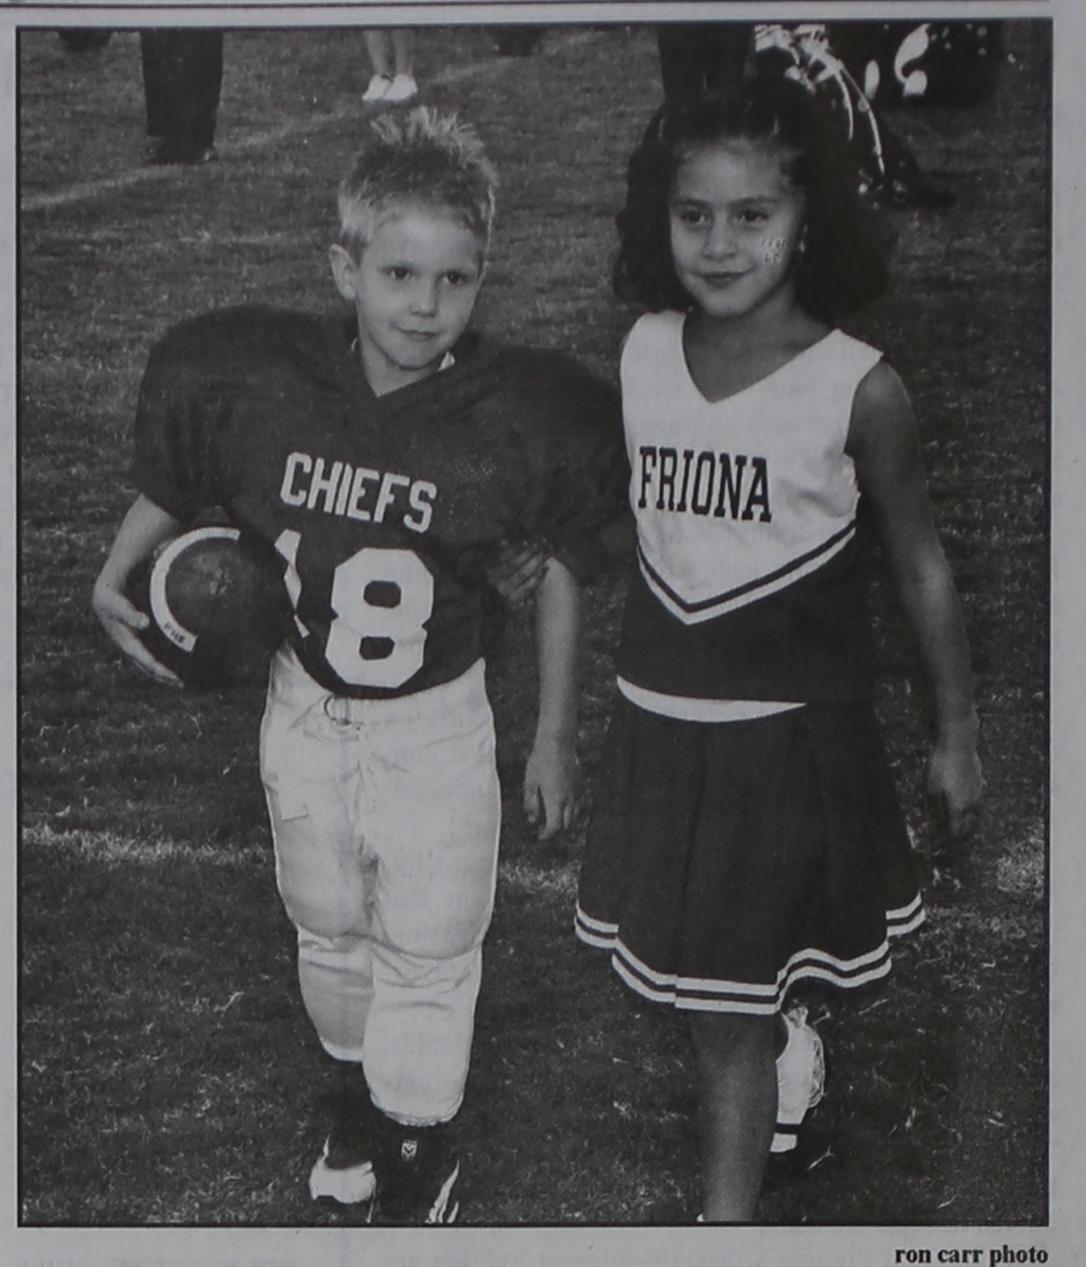

But there's another, slow-motion disaster rolling through Texas right now that we can and should fight. It's an avalanche of federal environmental regulations - a tangled web of requirements that threaten to put the brakes on our economy and trample on the rights of Texas property owners.

I hope I don't need to tell you that Texans care deeply for the health of our land and water. I'm a fourth-generation rancher myself, and I know that private landowners are the best stewards of their own property.

When I warn about federal regulation, it's not to oppose good-faith efforts to protect our environment. It's to highlight a regulatory process that often relies on flawed or nonexistent science, and sometimes seems intended to punish our state rather than to help it. Need some examples? Look at the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA's) new "cross-states" air pollution rule, which takes effect next January. It targets nitrogen oxides and sulfur dioxide that travel across state lines. It will slam our state disproportionately. Texas plants produce only 11 percent of the sulfur dioxide released by the states addressed by the rule, but Texas is being ordered to absorb 25 percent of the reductions. Luminant, the state's largest power generator, already has announced that the cross-state rule is forcing it to idle two generating units and halt operations at three lignite mines, for a loss of 500 Texas jobs. The rule also may raise electricity rates and compromise the reliability of an already overextended power grid. The Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT), which operates the state's power grid, recently estimated that compliance with the cross-state rule would reduce the state's generation capacity by 1,200 to 1,400 megawatts during the peak load months of June, July and August. And this is despite the fact that, according to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, EPA's own models indicate that our emissions don't significantly affect other states.

of the rule's requirements until it adopted the final version, thus denying us the opportunity to provide comments on its impact. Now EPA has issued a supplemental proposal to include six more states in the rule - and they're receiving the proper notice Texas was denied. Another cause for concern is EPA's proposed expansion of its jurisdiction through the Clean Water Act. Right now, the act covers navigable waterways and permanent, adjacent tributaries and wetlands. Congress failed to pass the Clean Water Restoration Act to remove "navigable" from this definition, so in May 2011 EPA came up with an end run around the law, proposing "guidance" that could extend its authority to intermittent streams, isolated wetlands - anything from a ditch on up, basically.

And EPA did this without presenting a single scientific argument as to why its current authority over our surface waters is inadequate. Extended clean-water authority could make many more Texas construction projects subject to permitting by EPA and the U.S. Corps of Engineers, with all the uncertainty, project delays and mitigation costs that implies. Perhaps the most egregious example of federal overreach, however, is the full-tilt expansion of the Endangered Species Act (ESA) in Texas. Right now, more than 100 species found here are under review for ESA listing or habitat changes over the next five years.

The agency didn't include Texas in many your voice is heard.

And it's become clear that many listing decisions made by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) are being driven by litigation by various pressure groups rather than by sound science. Time and again, we've found that the science is incomplete at best.

More recently, FWS has proposed the dunes sagebrush lizard for protection under the ESA, despite a near-total lack of scientific data on the animal's range or numbers. ESA protection can severely limit economic activity in species habitat - which, in this case, includes the Permian Basin, source of 20 percent of the nation's oil and gas and tens of thousands of high-paying Texas jobs. In the face of exponentially rising federal regulation, it's important for all Texans to remain aware of events in this contentious arena.

I urge all Texans to visit our new website, Keeping Texas First (KeepingTexasFirst. org) to learn more about the potential impact of federal environmental regulation on our state — and what you can do to ensure that

Time for harvest aids

As we approach the fall and the cotton crop across the county is beginning to open up and face maturity it is time that we begin looking at harvest aids for cotton. Harvest-aid chemicals are generally applied to hasten harvest of a mature crop, and to reduce potential preharvest losses of lint yield and fiber quality. Proper use of harvest aids can result in earlier harvest, preservation of fiber quality, and fewer seed quality reductions due to field exposure. Weathering losses in the High Plains can result in considerable reduction in dollar value of the crop, unless measures are undertaken to protect yield and quality potential. This is especially true for open boll picker-type varieties and lesser storm-proof stripper types.

Timing of harvest-aid chemical applications is critical and different methods and considerations for determining the correct tank mix partners and rates vary with environmental and crop conditions. What works best in one year is not necessarily the best for the next season. Efficacy of harvestaid chemicals is always a concern. There are several factors that affect the performance or lack of performance of harvest-aid chemicals. Some factors that increase the performance of harvest-aid chemicals include the following:

· Warm, calm, sunny weather

- · Soil moisture relatively low but sufficient to maintain cotton plant in active growth condition without moisture stress
- · Soil nitrogen levels relatively low
- · Leaves active and uniformly expanded on plants
- · Little or no secondary growth evident on plants
- · Plants with a high percentage of open bolls that have shed some mature leaves

Parmer Medical Center and

Some of the factors which negatively affect harvest-aid chemical performance include: · Applications made under cool (below 60 degrees F), cloudy conditions · Prolonged periods of wet weather following > treatment · Plants in vegetative growth state with low fruit set

> · Plants severely moisture stressed withtough, leathery leaves at time of treatment

- High soil moisture and nitrogen levels, which contribute to rank, dense foliageand delayed maturity
- Plants exhibiting secondary growth (regrowth) following a "cutout" period · Improper calibration of application ratesand poor spray coverage
