Howard County benefits from transportation department plans

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

SWEETWATER — Howard County figures prominently in next year's plans for the Texas Department of Transportation's Abilene District.

One of the first projects will be the extension of FM 700 from Texas 350 to U.S. 87.

The extension was originally put on the list of projects to be addressed at a later date but, because of the commitment of the Howard County Commissioners Court in securing right-of-way, district officials decided to go ahead with the funding of the project in September, said Bob Lindley, acting district engineer for the Abilene District.

The department held a public hearing Monday in Sweetwater to gain input about planning projects. About 50 people attended the hearing, including Howard County Commissioners Bill Crocker and John Stanley.

The Abilene District is comprised of 13 counties including Howard, Borden and Mitchell at the far western edge of the district.

Crocker offered for future consideration an engineering study of a way to link U.S. 87 north of Big Spring to its exit south of the city, bringing the highway one step closer to interstate specifications. This could be important if a decision is made to extend Interstate Highway 27 south from Lubbock, said Bill Jackson, design manager for the Abilene District.

The expansion of U.S. 87 south into four-lane, divided status is scheduled

A sign at the intersection of North FM 700 and the Snyder Highway marks where FM 700 will be extended to Highway 87. Though there was some question as to when the project would begin, Department of Transportation officials will begin funding the project in September.

tion plan for a highway from FM 700 to the city of Coahoma. There have been two deaths in the last two years on roads in the area, Crocker said.

Sections of U.S. 87 north of Big Spring are to receive maintenance and repair work during the 1993 fiscal year.

to begin in two segments in the district's 1993 fiscal year, which begins in October, Jackson said.

The expansion will take place from Texas Highway 33 to the Glasscock County line.

Crocker also presented a construction

Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, said more maintenance was needed along farm-to-market roads in the district and asked if the district could not address this problem.

"There are just not enough dollars to do the things we need to do," Counts said. "Rural Texas towns are in a desperate struggle with the major cities."

"They have the traffic count, so we have to make our dollars go farther," Counts said.

Counts specifically noted the need for maintenance in some roads north of Roby into the Knox County line.

Counts mentioned Howard County or Nolan County as possible routes for the future extension of Interstate Highway 27. This was his only mention of Howard County or Big Spring at the meeting, although Counts has officially gone on record as supporting a Lubbock-Snyder-Sweetwater route.

The district is undergoing a transition in planning strategy, Johnson said. Although the district is developing a 10-year plan, new projects can and will be added each year as the plan is developed, Lindley said.

Other projects in Howard and Mitchell counties include overpass restoration along Interstate 20 and resurfacing of some areas of existing highways. Borden County is currently scheduled to receive maintenance work only, Lindley said.

The new format is expected to give the district a better tool for managing funds from 12 or more sources, he explained.

Migrant workers find it difficult to better life

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Very few migrant farm workers are able to lift themselves out of poverty and the wretched working conditions that exist across the United States, farm labor officials say.

The migrant workers won't be able to improve their lives until they obtain the right to form unions, said Carlos Marentes, director of the Union of Border Farmworkers, based in El Paso.

"The situation in which the agricultural workers find themselves is an embarrassment and moral disgrace to this country," Marentes said Monday.

"Without the right to collective bargaining, agricultural workers will continue living in poverty and will continue suffering injustices."

Marentes testified during a briefing organized by the Helsinki Commission, which monitors compliance of the so-called Helsinki Accords in all 48 member countries of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The Helsinki Commission is focusing on migrant farm workers' problems in the United States before extending its scope to Europe and other regions. Monday's briefing was one of four the commission will hold before compiling a report on U.S. conditions. Commission staffers in the last six months journeyed to Florida, Texas and California to observe working and living conditions for the migrant farm workers, most of whom are originally from Mexico and Central America.

Panelists chronicled grim statistics. "Very few farm worker families are able to emerge from poverty," said Ed Kissam, a farm labor policy consultant.

Nationwide, seasonal agricultural services workers earned on average $6,500 a year for 141 days of farm work, according to the National Agricultural Worker Survey. In the Texas-New Mexico area, that average dropped to $5,300 last year, Marentes said.

"In the Chile fields of New Mexico, as in many places, they pay by piece rate... and this pay has not changed for the past 10 years," he said.

Another problem, Kissam said, is that migrant workers are chronically underemployed. In South Texas, farm workers average only 6.6 months of farm work a year, he said, and have difficulty finding other jobs in the off-season.

Workers are often crowded 15 or more to a two-room shack, and sent unprotected to fields freshly sprayed with pesticides without access to drinking water or portable toilets, Marentes and Kissam said. Children also are forced to work as adults, and the

BSSH in no danger of being closed by a state task force

By GARY SHANKS

The Big Spring State Hospital is in no danger of being closed, according to Robert Von Rosenberg, superintendent of the institution.

Monday, Roberto Soto of the governor's task force researching state institutions, inspected all of the Big Spring hospital's facilities, including the community outpatient center in the downtown area, Von Rosenberg said.

Von Rosenberg said Soto was impressed with the improvements BSSH has made since his last visit in 1981. The 23-county, community program with 15 outreach offices in various cities, has grown considerably in that time, according to officials at the center.

"As far as I know, it went real well," Von Rosenberg said of the inspection. "Mr. Soto did make a comment that the committee would not be looking at closure."

After being "educated" on the BSSH system, which treats 1,800 people a year in its 56-county catchment area, Soto will discuss his findings with other members of the task force, Von Rosenberg said.

The task force will then decide what changes are to be made in the state hospital system.

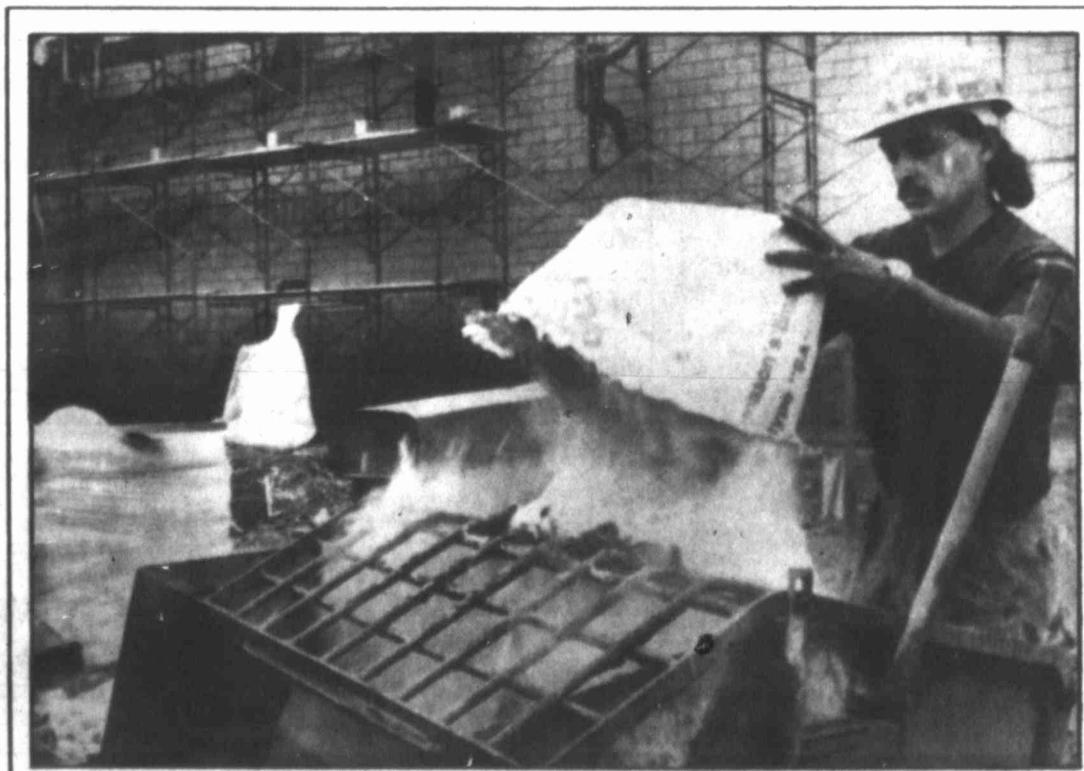

"As far as I know, it went real well. Mr. Soto did make a comment that the committee would not be looking at closure."

Robert Von Rosenberg
BSSH superintendent

This is the second phase of a three phase plan, Von Rosenberg said. In the first phase, the task force inspected the state schools and recommended closing schools in Fort Worth and Travis County.

In the third phase, the task force will examine state mental health facilities serving a specific city, such as those in El Paso and Laredo.

Although BSSH is not a candidate for closure, the scope of changes in the state hospital system will not be known until the task force's findings are released. The task force can make recommendations, not only on closure or consolidation of state institutions, but can make recommendations to strengthen areas of the system as well, he said.

Deputy guns down ex-wife

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
BEAUMONT — A Jefferson County sheriff's deputy was being held in the shooting death of his ex-wife, killed outside the county courthouse where she was going to complain that the deputy was harassing her, authorities said.

Kathy Lee Rideau Smith, who would have turned 34 today, was shot four to six times as she walked toward the courthouse's main entrance shortly before 4 p.m. Monday, Beaumont police officer Billy Blankenship said.

Justice of the Peace Vi McGinnis said that Ms. Smith was on her way to a courthouse appointment with sheriff's department internal affairs investigators, where she was going to complain that the deputy — her ex-husband — had been harassing her.

Ms. Smith, an optician dispenser, encountered the uniformed deputy about 30 feet from the entrance of the courthouse, as she walked with her mother, her 16-year-old sister and a 7-year-old niece, Ms. McGinnis said.

 The two began arguing, then the deputy shot Ms. Smith in the head, mouth, abdomen and hand with a 9mm automatic pistol, Ms. McGinnis said.

The woman was rushed to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she died just after 4:30 p.m., Blankenship said.

Horrified witnesses told the Beaumont Enterprise that the deputy reloaded his weapon, placed the gun in his holster and calmly walked into the courthouse, where Blankenship said he surrendered to sheriff's deputies.

The deputy was arraigned on an attempted murder charge and ordered held at the Jefferson County Jail on $50,000 bond. He was expected to be formally charged today, Blankenship said.

Ms. Smith's brother, J.R. Rideau, said his sister intended to complain that the deputy Sunday had gone her mother's house, where Ms. Smith was living.

Ms. Smith's ex-husband had sought the divorce, but after the marriage ended, "he would never leave her alone," Rideau said. "He'd lately been harassing her," he said.

Police said it was unclear whether the deputy was off-duty at the time of the shooting. The couple had no children, sheriff's department spokeswoman Cindy Price said.

Courthouse receptionist Pat Gray said she was sitting at her desk near the entrance when she saw the deputy confront Ms. Smith and her family.

"He asked them, 'What are you going to do?'" Ms. Gray told the Enterprise. "She wouldn't talk, then her mother said, 'Tell him what you're going to do.' He grabbed her hand, and the next thing I know she's on the ground."

"Seemed like he would never stop shooting. After that first shot (to the head) forced her to the ground, he kept shooting. He just stood over her and kept shooting," Ms. Gray said. "Even after that, he wasn't panicked or nervous at all."

Record stay, no problem

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SPACE CENTER, Houston — The commander of the longest space shuttle flight says the mission was "two weeks in space well spent."

"I couldn't ask for anything more, out of a vehicle or my crew," Columbia's commander, Richard N. Richards, said during a news conference Monday.

The shuttle's seven astronauts conducted scientific research in a marathon Spacelab mission that launched June 25 and returned July 9 after a one-day landing delay due to bad weather.

Some had worried that Richards and pilot Kenneth Bowersox might have difficulties returning to Earth's gravity and landing the shuttle after 14 days in weightlessness.

But the astronauts said readjusting to Earth has been very similar to the adaptation after shorter flights.

"I kept waiting all throughout entry for some sign that this flight would be different from the previous two flights, but that turned out to be not the case, much to my good fortune," said Richards, who had made his third shuttle trip.

Crew member Ellen Baker, a physician, said her acclimatization has been rapid, although a little slower than after her first flight, which lasted nearly five days.

"I guess my experience was kind of similar to those that I had previously, though it seemed to be more prolonged. But nevertheless, certainly by the next day, I was feeling pretty close to normal," Baker said.

"I would say in the immediate post-flight period, I noticed my symptoms a little more with regard to getting my land legs back and things like that," she said.

The astronauts said preliminary results indicated their experiments in growing crystals for use in medical research had been highly successful. The also maintained they would have liked to stay in space even longer.

"I think we could have gone another week," payload commander Bonnie Dunbar said. "I felt very comfortable with our workdays."

"A month is what I'd like to have," said crystallographer Lawrence DeLucas.

Health director apologizes; city officials jump in verbal AIDS fray

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SAN ANTONIO — The director of the city's Metropolitan Health District has apologized for remarks about AIDS-related dementia, but City Councilman Weir Labatt jumped into the fray with a verbal attack on the AIDS community.

Labatt said Monday that no apology was due and blamed most AIDS sufferers for engaging in behavior that led to disease.

"I'm real tired of the AIDS community having this notion that there's something special that's due them," Labatt, the council representative to the city's AIDS Commission, told The San Antonio Light in response to a question about Dr. Fernando Guerra's apology Monday to AIDS activists.

"The reason they have AIDS is their lifestyle, the majority of them being drug IV (intravenous) users or having engaged in male-to-male intercourse," Labatt said. "The only people they should be upset at are themselves, not (Dr. Fernando) Guerra or the funding commission."

Last week, Guerra said that some members of a committee that voted to cut city AIDS funding may have been suffering from AIDS-related mental disability.

"I suggest they redirect their anger," Labatt said of the AIDS community. "If the local AIDS community is always making noise, I'd rather see the money go in some other area and not go to AIDS patients."

The councilman also said he does not believe people with acquired immune deficiency syndrome should be allowed to make funding decisions regarding AIDS, because patients in other health-care environments are not allotted the same opportunity.

Guerra had issued his public apology after about 30 protesters marched to his office from City Hall. They accepted his apology.

"I apologize if what I said in a different context was misinterpreted," said Guerra, caught off-guard by the afternoon arrival of the protesters. "You're picking on the wrong person. I have always championed the cause."

The Bexar County AIDS Consortium decided last week to slash the health department's state funding by $93,000.

LOS ANGELES — Sylvester Stallone cut his hand while doing stunts for the action film "Cliffhanger" but was quickly back at work after getting nine stitches at a hospital.

The star of "Rocky" and "Rambo" was hurt on a soundstage in Italy on Monday while climbing atop a helicopter.

"It was a very deep gash. But he was back at work in an hour and a half," publicist Peter Silbermann said by telephone from Rome. "He's fine."

"Cliffhanger" is to be released next spring.

Mayor Tom Bradley planned to proclaim today "Arsenio Hall Day" at a ceremony dedicating a new youth center in South Central Los Angeles.

The late-night talk show host bought the building, which was once frequented by drug dealers, and paid to have it refurbished as a youth center for the First A.M.E. Church of South Central Los Angeles.

Problems surfacing at community homes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
AUSTIN — Possible life-threatening problems have been found in community homes where mentally retarded people have been transferred as part of a court-ordered deal, a newspaper reports.

According to a secret court report and unidentified sources, problems ranging from the misapplication of medication to improper medical care have been reported to a federal court in Dallas, the Austin American Statesman said today.

The secret report is the first official evaluation of whether Texas is complying with the 1991 settlement agreement to end an 18-year-old lawsuit against the state's residential system for the retarded.

"We found some serious problems. We found some problems that could potentially be life-threatening," Linda O'Neill, the court-appointed monitor in the case, who wrote the emergency report.

Ms. O'Neill made an urgent trip to Dallas in late June to present her findings to U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders.

In addition to faulting the state for problems in community homes,

Ms. O'Neill said the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has hampered her investigation by failing to provide key documents.

The 1991 settlement agreement requires MHMR to give Ms. O'Neill certain documents about residents who will move out of Travis State School in Austin and Fort Worth State School.

The schools are to close by 1993 to comply with a pact between residents and the state to settle the 18-year-old suit. Residents in those two schools will be either relocated to the remaining 11 state schools or sent to live in smaller, community homes.

Ms. O'Neill said her staff could review only 14 residents in community homes because the state has withheld information on most of the people moving out of state institutions.

"We only had records on about 50," she said, so her staff chose a sample of community homes used by Fort Worth, Corpus Christi, San Antonio and Mexia state schools.

"My frustration is we are wasting (public) resources trying to straighten out just a gnarl of problems with these records," she said. "We went out without all the records for our reviews."

But the astronauts said readjusting to Earth has been very similar to the adaptation after shorter flights.

"I kept waiting all throughout entry for some sign that this flight would be different from the previous two flights, but that turned out to be not the case, much to my good fortune," said Richards, who had made his third shuttle trip.

Cocaine delivery smooth until payoff frenzy Italian drug trial ongoing in U.S. under extreme security precautions

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Mafia's first major shipment of Colombian cocaine to Europe was a smooth, precise operation until a greedy payoff frenzy broke, an Italian court proceeding in Washington was told.

"Everybody was taking money left and right" in a chaotic pay grab starting days after the undetected delivery of the cocaine from a trans-Atlantic cargo ship to a fishing boat off Sicily in January 1988, said Joseph Cuffaro, a defected drug trafficker now living in Florida.

Meticulous details of the ocean movement of nearly 600 kilograms (1,321 pounds) of cocaine were two years in planning, the Italian-born witness testified Monday to a visiting session of the criminal court of Palermo, Sicily.

After a 1989 plea bargain, Cuffaro is a star prosecution witness in the trial that began in Palermo last May and is meeting here under extreme security precautions.

Two Colombians who arranged delivery of the cocaine from the Medellin cartel to the Mediterranean were promised they would be paid first, "but it just didn't work out that way," said the bearded, 42-year-old Cuffaro.

Cuffaro said he had expected to carry $1 million to a Colombian identified as Valdo Aponte, "but the promise was never kept and there were all kinds of excuses that I had to relay to Aponte in New York."

About $8 million of the shipment's $50 million street value reached Milan, Italy, before payments to the Colombians, who were promised $21,000 a kilogram ($9,545 a pound), or about one-fourth the cocaine's street value, he testified.

Cuffaro said he was put off in mid-1988 with excuses about the operation's cost overrun when he tried to claim his own payoff for working closely as a Spanish translator and operative for mobster John Galatolo, who masterminded many details of the drug movement from Aruba, near Colombia's Caribbean coast, to the southern tip of Italy.

Cuffaro, Galatolo and others were arrested in a U.S. narcotics case in 1989. Cuffaro said he opted for a plea bargain and security for himself and his family, who had received death threats, under the U.S. program of protection for witness cooperation against organized crime.

Former policeman kills self and two others during trial

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A former police officer on trial for bank robbery slipped free of handcuffs in a courthouse garage, grabbed a gun from a guard and killed two other guards before fatally shooting himself, authorities said.

Jeffrey Erickson, who had been dubbed the "bearded bandit," was being taken from the courthouse Monday after the sixth day of his trial. His wife and sometime accomplice, Jill, had fatally shot herself in December during a high-speed chase after his arrest.

Prosecutors said the couple used more than $180,000 stolen from eight banks over a 2½-year period to open a bookstore and buy a home.

Erickson, 34, somehow got out of handcuffs as he was being led through the basement of the Dirksen Federal Building back to the Metropolitan Correctional Center with eight other prisoners, said FBI special agent Ross Rice. He wrestled a revolver away from a deputy U.S. marshal, then shot and killed another deputy marshal, Rice said.

A building security guard shot Erickson in the back as he fled. Erickson shot and killed the guard, then raced halfway up a ramp before he put the gun to his chin and killed himself, said Chicago chief of detectives John Stibich.

Harry Belluomini, 58, and Roy Frakes, 30, both of Chicago, were dead on arrival at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, spokeswoman Shirley Jackson said. Frakes was the deputy marshal, Belluomini was the guard.

Prosecutors said Erickson had earned the "bearded bandit" nickname by wearing a false beard during robberies. He also donned layered clothing to disguise his weight, wore gloves to avoid leaving fingerprints and carried a police scanner, prosecutors said.

He was on his way to rob a bank when he was arrested last December, authorities said.

Erickson was on trial for robbing eight banks, most in the suburbs. He also faced state charges in the wounding of a suburban Palatine police officer who tried to stop him for a traffic violation in November 1991.

Daughters cheer father's sentence

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — A man convicted of repeatedly raping three of his daughters was sentenced to at least 36 years in prison after spending nine years on the run.

Garrett Stone's wife, Elizabeth, was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to stop the abuse.

"As far as I'm concerned, it never would have been enough, because the abuse that we endured was horrific," Sharon Sullivan, 26, said of her father's sentence Monday. "No child should ever have to go through that."

California police arrested the couple in June on a tip from a viewer who saw their story on Fox Broadcasting's "America's Most Wanted." They were brought back to Massachusetts on July 10.

The victims said they had been beaten, forced to live in an unfinished attic and repeatedly raped during their childhood and teen-age years.

"Now he's going to know what it feels like to be in prison," said another daughter, Eve Stone, 22. "We were in prison — a mental prison — and couldn't get away."

The third abused daughter has remained anonymous.

Hampden Superior Court Judge William Simons sentenced Stone to state prison for 36 to 54 years.

Sarajevo relief flights halted again

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Relief flights into this embattled capital were resumed today following a daylight halt, but the United Nations reported they were again suspended within hours after the airport was pounded by mortar fire.

Only six of the planned 14 flights got into Sarajevo this morning before renewed shelling prompted the U.N. commander to call a halt to the airlift of food and medicine, said Ron Redmond of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Geneva.

It was not immediately known what time the flights were suspended.

The United Nations had stopped the flights Monday because of shelling but resumed the airlift today because the shooting had ended by dawn, the UNHCR's chief spokeswoman, Sylvana Foa, said earlier in Geneva.

Only flights from France, Britain, Germany, Belgium, Canada and Spain were confirmed to have arrived before the airport was closed again today, Redmond said.

The relief flights had to be stopped Monday in part because shelling has damaged so many U.N. vehicles that officials cannot quickly move emergency supplies faster to war victims, Foa said.

"We have no way to get the stuff off the planes and into town, so we're trying to reduce the number of flights today," she said.

U.N. peacekeepers first took over the airport June 29, opening a crucial supply line to the besieged Bosnian capital. Today's closure follows a night of heavy shelling by Serb forces.

Bosnian Serbs, who want to retain links with Serb-dominated Yugoslavia, have overrun about two-thirds of Bosnia-Herzegovina's territory since Croats and Muslims voted in February to secede. Bosnia puts the number of dead in the civil war at 7,500, but unofficial estimates run as high as 40,000.

More than 1.3 million refugees have fled the bloodshed, the largest number of displaced Europeans since World War II.

Overnight, Croatian radio reported that Sarajevo was bombarded from Serb positions until midnight, with shells falling mostly in the suburbs of Alipasino, Polje and Dobrinja, near the airport.

An attack on the airport around 11 p.m. Monday forced U.N. personnel to seek shelter in bunkers for about 1½ hours, U.N. spokesman Mik Magnusson said in Sarajevo.

A hangar that U.N. personnel use as living quarters was hit twice by mortar fire, Magnusson said. Seven vehicles were damaged, including five trucks.

The violence shattered the latest in a series of short-lived truces less than two hours after it took hold Sunday night.

California's air cleaner but not up to snuff yet

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Southern California's air has gotten cleaner in the past decade thanks to strict anti-pollution laws, but it still isn't up to health standards, a state board said.

"While we have a ways to go before we meet health standards in Southern California, this ... shows we are on the right track toward (cleaning up) the nation's biggest urban smog problem," said James Boyd, executive director of the state Air Resources Board.

The air quality has improved largely because California has adopted the world's toughest pollution standards for cars and fuels, and because local emission controls for industry are the nation's strictest, he said Monday.

The average worst readings for ozone, a major component of smog, dropped from 0.33 parts per million in 1981 to 0.25 parts per million in 1991, the board said. The state health standard is 0.09 parts per million.

Area hearings welcome news

State officials are in West Texas today to ease the fears regarding state regulation of underground water.

The meetings in Sterling City, Garden City and Stanton stemmed from concern generated after the Texas Water Commission declared the Edwards Aquifer, which supplies water in six Hill Country counties, an underground river.

By so doing, the state placed the aquifer under governmental control.

Area officials have already expressed their concerns regarding the ruling, and state officials say the Edwards decision was a unique situation and should not effect any other part of the state — or aquifer.

The Edwards decision was made necessary in part because of the inability of the city of San Antonio and other users of Edwards water to agree on pumping limits. Given the opportunity, San Antonio would have pumped the Edwards dry.

We find it interesting that government agencies in a six-county region were unable to do what a number of states have done over the years with the Ogalalla Aquifer — share, manage and agree to use the water supply as judiciously as possible.

Still, we hate to see state control entering into still one more area of our lives. And despite the best assurances of members of the commission, once a ruling is made, there is always the possibility that it will have some degree of influence on our life.

Despite our concerns, we are pleased that water commissioners Peggy Garner and John Hall are in our part of the state to address our concerns. Certainly, the fact that Commissioner Garner was County Judge Garner of Upton County helps her understand the fears of West Texans when it comes to governmental control of their water.

God judges sin and indifference

To the editor: I really liked the title which you gave to my letter to the editor. I surely do not want to be judged by God for my indifference and be "settled on the less."

I agree with Carol Smith when she says that a woman has the right to protest her own body and I'm sorry that women down through the years have been counted as chattel or worse. But when it comes to abortion, that is speaking of the woman's right to kill another person. She is only providing the housing for this other person and like it or not, she must accept responsibility for the nine months until that person is ready to leave.

The title that was given to my letter is very true that God still judges sin and also indifference to it.

Let's recommend our own hospital

To the editor: The other day in Letters to the Editor, I noticed an out-of-towner writing a complimentary note on our local doctors and Scenic Mountain Hospital and it occurred to me that we ought not to have to depend on out-of-towners to recommend our hospital.

Recently I underwent surgery in the Texas Surgery and found the nurses and attendants to be very professional and accommodating. When the surgery was completed, it was decided that it would be necessary for me to be hospitalized and I spent six days in Scenic Mountain Hospital. To my surprise, I found everyone that was in contact with me to be very attentive, prompt and cheerful in their duties and this included from the supervisors down to the maid that emptied the wastebasket. To my surprise, I found the hospital food to be attractively presented and the food was actually appetizing; therefore, I have to add my vote of thanks to the efficiency and good treatment I received while I was hospitalized.

Of course, I consider doctors Cowan and Haddad to be absolutely tops in their fields and I just had to sound off.

Cowboy Poets was enjoyable time

To the editor: I want to let you know what a perfectly enjoyable day I spent downtown at the cowboy poetry gathering. I haven't had that much fun in ages. I got "hooked" on cowboy poets and musicians last year out at the fairgrounds, and thought this year's gathering was even better. The quality of performers was outstanding. The master of ceremonies was especially good. I really liked the idea of going downtown for the rodeo parade and then having other neat things to do while I was there. Even barbecue and cold drinks were available — you folks thought of everything!

My most sincere thanks go to all the hard working people who put this on for Big Spring. Having these extra activities really enhances rodeo week for me. I'm already looking forward for next year's gathering.

VA employees appreciate support

To the editor: On behalf of the staff of the VA Medical Center I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the staff of the Big Spring Herald and the Chamber of Commerce for the luncheon held June 9, 1992, recognizing employees of the VA Medical Center, State Hospital, Federal Correctional Institute, and the U.S. Postal Service. To be recognized, in such a special way, by members of your community is quite an honor and truly appreciated. It is an honor to serve the veterans of Big Spring and surrounding communities. A sincere "thank you" to all.

Success rules similar to God's rules

It was 1964 and a store was opening in Harrison, Ark. David Glass, manager of Crank Drugs in Springfield, Mo., came to check out the new store, because word was out that the owner had some interesting ideas.

Glass must have thought "interesting" when he found a grand opening complete with stacks of watermelons on the sidewalk and donkey rides on the parking lot. Here is his assessment of the situation:

"It was 115 degrees, and the watermelons began to pop, and the donkeys began to do what donkeys do, and it all mixed together and ran all over the parking lot. And when you went inside the store, the mess just continued, having been tracked in all over the floor. He (the owner) was a nice fellow, but I wrote him off. It was just terrible."

That nice fellow, of course, was Sam Walton, founder of Wal-Mart, and Glass, later a Wal-Mart executive, was not the last to write Sam Walton off.

Nevertheless, by 1985, Forbes magazine decided Walton was the "richest man in America." And on March 17 of this year President Bush awarded him the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Walton died several weeks later and, thereafter, I heard "Sam's Rules for Building a Business." I was struck by the fact that his success rules are amazingly similar to the way God runs His kingdom.

Here are the rules:

Betty Johansen

1. "COMMIT to your business. Believe in it more than anybody else." Walton used the word "passion" three times in explaining this rule, and I was reminded of the term "passion play," referring to plays about the crucifixion of Jesus. God was so committed to building His Kingdom that He allowed His Son, whom He valued above all else, to die a horrible death.

2. "SHARE your profits." Of course, Walton's profits were only money. But in God's Kingdom, some of the profits are righteousness, peace and joy, "goods" that are not available from any other source in the universe, but are abundantly available in God's economy.

3. "MOTIVATE your partners." Don't become too predictable. "The Lord is forever doing a new thing. His problem is that He's too gracious to drag us along, and church people are some of the world's worst for wanting to stay in their ruts. I heard a speaker say recently that the 1990s church is trying to relate to people today through 1950s methods. It's not working; we need to do a new thing, along with our leader."

4. "COMMUNICATE everything you possibly can... Information is power." The most incredible book in the world is the Bible. It explains where man came from and where we're going. It demonstrates how we should live. Everything we need to know about life and the universe is contained in that one book. It's one reason I'm so firmly entrenched in my faith — no other book, no other religion answers my questions.

5. "APPRECIATE everything your associates (employees) do for the business." One of the most wonderful feelings in the world comes from doing good for someone else. To me, there's no better way the Lord could speak His appreciation than to pour out those feelings of fulfillment and accomplishment and good will when we obey Him by serving each other.

6. "CELEBRATE your success." Some of the best-loved holidays in the Western world have grown out of Christians celebrating their successes: the birth of Jesus (Christmas), Jesus' victory over death (Easter), the Pilgrims' gratitude to God for a bountiful harvest (Thanksgiving).

7. "LISTEN to everyone in your company." People need to be listened to; it's one way they know they're valued. Knowing that the Creator of the world is waiting to listen to me is one reason I don't have to fall apart in hard times. I know God can handle any situation; all I have to do is tell Him about it.

8. "EXCEED your customers' expectations." The richness of God's Kingdom does exceed every expectation of man. We literally cannot imagine the wealth of His love and power and goodness that are available to us. To quote the verse Bill Clinton butchered, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

9. "CONTROL your expenses." God is an expert in this area; He never wastes anything. He never speaks an idle word and never allows any experience to be wasted in our lives, but takes each one and works it together for good if we are loving and obeying Him.

10. "SWIM upstream." God always calls His people not to take the easy way, not to enter through the wide gate and follow the crowd on the broad path. There's a better way to go. Fewer people take the narrow gate, but it is the way that leads to life.

Sam Walton doesn't suggest that he took his rules from the Bible. Rather, he was forever visiting stores, taking notes or tape recording his observations. I suspect he accidentally stumbled upon the keys to success through diligence and hard work. The fact that his keys to success match God's own keys is, however, no accident.

Was Perot Demos' secret weapon?

I thought that the Democratic Convention had ended last week, so I was surprised on Monday to see a lone delegate sitting in Madison Square Garden. He was holding a balloon and shouting "Perot, Perot."

Sensing a story, I asked, "What on earth are you doing?" "I'm waiting for Perot."

"Perot quit last Thursday." "He couldn't quit. He's the 'White Hope' of the Democratic Party."

"In what way?" "Perot is in a position to siphon off enough votes from Bush to make it possible for Clinton to win. His name is on every Democrat's lips. He wouldn't do that to us just when we could smell victory."

"Democrats are known for backing the wrong horse."

"Perot was our secret weapon. The Republicans have spent so much time figuring out what to do about Ross that they have given our boy a free ride. We've prayed every night that the little fellow wouldn't get derailed or flame out before election day."

"I guess he decided that politics wasn't his game."

"But Perot's not a quitter. That's why the Democrats respect and love him. He's done all our Bush-bashing for us. We've been trying to figure out ways of helping Ross in his campaign. I am President of Democrats for Perot."

"But you're the only person in the Garden."

"Maybe now, but when the networks find out that there is still a Perot delegate left their camera crews will return. They'll put anything about Perot on the air."

"What will you say?" "We will ask Perot to reconsider and we'll do anything to keep him in the race. We'll get Mario Cuomo to make Perot's nominating speech."

"That's heavy. Will Cuomo do it?" "It's no big deal for the governor. All he has to do is change the name. Instead of Clinton he inserts Perot."

"Will the Democrats give Perot money to revive his campaign?" "It's there for the asking. But we don't want to hurt his feelings. Perot is a proud man and if he thought that money was the key to his success he would turn off on politics."

"Well, he's not coming back. Did you ever think just a year ago that your fortunes would be so closely aligned with that of a Texas billionaire?"

"I didn't, but my brother Larry did. He said, 'There is a cute guy in Texas who happens to have a few bucks and he is worth 10 Jerry Browns. The people are sick and tired of the Republican and Democratic parties and Perot is willing to put up his own money to take on both parties. He's everything the Republicans are afraid of — pro-family, rich and conservative, and a big fan of Murphy Brown.'"

"It really doesn't look as if he's going to show up."

"He has to soon because all the helium is escaping from my balloon."

U.S. hoopsters having fun

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — It's back to the basketball court for Team USA tonight following two days of light workouts and heavy leisure time.

The U.S. Olympic team meets France, which failed to qualify for the Olympics, in an exhibition game at Stade Louis II arena, which has just 3,500 seats.

In contrast to the partisan crowds the U.S. team saw in the Tournament of the Americas at Portland, most of the fans probably will favor the French team.

But Team USA, the honored guests at a dinner given by Prince Rainier of Monaco on Monday night, is feeling right at home at this swanky vacation spot.

Michael Jordan was back on the golf course Monday, and Christian Laettner and his father rented a jet ski to ride on the Mediterranean.

Clyde Drexler walked to the beach with his wife and two toddler children. They were joined on the beach sidewalk by Magic Johnson and John Stockton, still recovering from his broken right leg.

"All the guys have different levels of balancing vacation and playing," Johnson said. "Michael plays 36 holes or 18 holes of golf and it doesn't affect his game. I couldn't do that and still play."

"Whatever it takes for you to get ready, that's what you do. But we all need to understand that it's not just a vacation, it's work. It's business."

Johnson said he got angry with some of his U.S. teammates during the squad's first week of workouts in California.

"I got mad a little once in La Jolla," Johnson said. "Sometimes guys have to be reminded what we're here for. But I'm having fun, too. I went out yesterday. This is one of the world's most beautiful places."

Jordan said he doubts that NBA players, who are permitted on the Olympic team for the first time, would accept a rigorous pre-Olympic training regimen from coach Chuck Daly.

"When it was first suggested that pro players could play in the Olympics, I started reminiscing back to 1984 when I was on the team coming out of college," Jordan said. "It was grueling with two or three practices a day. If that were the case this year, there's no way I would do it. But coach Daly assured me it wouldn't be that way. This year has been a lot more relaxing. The players are more mature and everyone's more comfortable."

"We're serious about what we're here for, but we want to have fun. This is our offseason, but the opportunity to represent our country is very exciting."

Charles Barkley, meanwhile, has his own unique outlook of Monte Carlo.

"I'm quitting this team for the swim team," Barkley said. "I'm going to the pool as long as there are babes with no tops. You'll think I'm Mark Spitz before this week is over."

Barkley said he needed some lessons in royal protocol before he met the prince.

"They say you have to stop eating when he does," Barkley said. "But what if he's having a snack and you're starving? Do you have to eat fast?"

Barkley also said he was told "you can't touch him and you have to call him 'your majesty.' I haven't called anyone 'your majesty' since Harold Katz."

IOC president starts ceremony with a bang

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch has fired back at his critics, accusing them of trying to destroy the Olympic movement out of "envy and hypocrisy."

Samaranch used a high-profile public forum — Monday's opening ceremony of the International Olympic Committee's 99th session — to respond to recent attacks against himself and other Olympic leaders.

"In recent times the Olympic movement has been on the receiving end of many criticisms and attacks," Samaranch said. "We must and indeed do take a respectful view of the wide variety of opinions which are expressed concerning us."

"But we do not accept and we shall always defend ourselves against the envy and hypocrisy which prompt some people to try to destroy what they themselves were unable to create."

Samaranch was not specific, but he was clearly referring to the criticism in "The Lords of the Rings," a book by two British journalists which was recently published in Europe. The IOC has filed libel proceedings against the book in Switzerland.

The book accuses Samaranch, a Spaniard, of being a loyal fascist under Gen. Francisco Franco and of running the IOC like the late dictator. It describes the Olympic movement in general as consumed by money, greed and drugs.

Samaranch has suggested the authors were manipulated by people who want to oust him as IOC president. He has indicated he believes the move was initiated by sports circles in Britain, possibly Princess Anne.

Others have alleged that IOC members are open to bribes from cities bidding to play host to the Olympics.

Samaranch quoted an unidentified member as saying the IOC "has to bear the brunt of the winds of incomprehension which blow from different points of the compass."

"I can assure you," Samaranch concluded, "that our tree has very solid roots. Not only will it withstand these winds, but it will continue to grow."

Samaranch gave his speech at the Palau de la Musica Catalana, a modernistic concert hall decorated with stained glass windows, mosaics and sculptures.

His response to the critics came at the end of his speech, delivered to a crowd just half capacity. The passage was not included in an advance copy provided to journalists, although it was part of the official text distributed at the ceremony.

Critics have accused the IOC of selling out to sponsors, but Samaranch said the Olympics have avoided the "pitfalls of excessive commercialization."

"No aggressive advertising is allowed in or around the stadia," he said. "Sport is managed by the people of sport."

Samaranch touched on the problem of doping, saying the IOC's suspension of Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson in 1988 was a turning point in the fight against performance-enhancing substances.

"It was the IOC that took the initiative and, sadly, we remained alone for many years," he said. "Today, thanks to the efforts of all of us, I am sure that this battle will finally be won."

Samaranch said one of the goals of the IOC session, whose working sessions run from Tuesday through Thursday, is to strengthen cooperation with international federations and national Olympic committees.

Rangers lose fourth straight

ARLINGTON (AP) — B.J. Surhoff singled to start a three-run rally in the eighth inning that tied it, then won the game for Milwaukee in the bottom of the ninth with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly, beating the Rangers 5-4.

The Brewers have won four in a row and the Rangers have lost four straight.

Greg Vaughn hit his 13th homer in the fifth inning for Milwaukee's first run. He drew a leadoff walk in the ninth from Edwin Nunez (1-3), and Robin Yount's 2,965th career hit and Daryl Hamilton's walk loaded the bases with no outs.

With one out, Surhoff flied out to medium center and Vaughn beat a wide throw by Juan Gonzalez. In the eighth, Gonzalez dropped a fly ball for a two-run error.

Darren Holmes (3-3) pitched one inning for the victory. Jeff Huson, who began the game with 10 RBIs this season, homered and drove in three runs for Texas.

Astros outslug Pirates, 11-8

HOUSTON (AP) — At the Astrodome, rookie Eddie Taubensee hit his first major league homer, doubled, singled, drove in two runs and scored twice, leading Houston past Pittsburgh. In its previous four games against Atlanta at home, Houston scored only four runs.

Ken Caminiti also homered, singled and drove in three runs as the Astros snapped a four-game losing streak.

Willie Blair (2-4) worked one inning for the victory and Doug Jones pitched 1 2-3 innings for his 20th save.

There were six homers in the game, including three in one inning by Pittsburgh's Jeff King, Andy Van Slyke and Barry Bonds.

Trailing 7-6, Houston scored two sixth-inning runs off Roger Mason (2-5). Pete Inavaglia led off with his ninth homer and Eric Anthony's RBI fielder's choice grounder put the Astros ahead to stay.

East wins All-Star game

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Shreveport's Adel Davenport hit a three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth and won the Eastern Division in a seven-run rally and gave the Eastern Division an 8-6 victory over the Western Division in the Texas League All-Star game Monday.

Davenport's hit came off Wichita's Mark Ettles, who was charged with the loss after giving up seven runs in the ninth.

Only two of the runs were earned.

Davenport, who has 16 home runs and 69 RBIs, was named the game's most valuable player. Davenport edged out San Antonio's Matt Howard, who had three hits and three runs for the Western.

The Eastern got its first run in the eighth on Jose Oliva's RBI single. The Tulsa fielder had three hits in the game, including a RBI single in the ninth before Davenport's home run.

Tulsa's Kevin Belcher drew a walk to open the Eastern's ninth and scored when Jackson's Scott Makarewicz singled. Orlando Miller of Jackson later drove in a run with a fielder's choice and Shreveport's Pete Weber had a RBI single.

Jackson pitcher Todd Jones posted the victory after pitching one inning with a strikeout. Jones was the sixth pitcher overall and the third from Jackson to throw for the Eastern.

The Western took a 1-0 lead in the first when Midland's Jeff Kipila hit a RBI single, the third straight hit for the Western.

Kipila had three hits in the game.

In the second inning, Midland's J.R. Phillips opened with a solo home run to left.

Local Division II All-Stars repeat

MIDLAND — Big Spring's United Girls Softball Association Division II All-Stars made it two-in-a-row by winning the All-Star tournament. Last year the Division II Stars also won the tournament.

Big Spring won the championship by defeating San Angelo Black, a team which had beaten Big Spring earlier in the tournament. Big Spring won the championship game 10-4.

Team members are: Amanda Alvarez, Honey Belew, Sherry Burdette, Jessica Canales, Jessica Cobos, Sarah Fannin, Kelly Hinojos, Melissa Martinez, Monica Rubio, Juanita Valdez, Nicole Yanez and Hollie Zant. Manager is Elouise Cobos and her coaching staff consisted of Gilbert Cobos and Dianna Valdez.

Big Spring started the tourney with a 20-5 win over Andrews, collecting 19 hits. Martinez got the win, pitching four innings and a four-hitter.

Martinez hit two doubles and a triple in the fifth and scored twice. Fannin pitched the last two innings.

Big Spring took a 1-0 lead on an inside-the-park homer by Fannin.

San Angelo tied the game at 1-1 in the top of the fourth inning. Big Spring then took control of the game by scoring six runs on four hits. The big blow was a three-run scoring single by Cobos. Cobos also scored on an overthrow. Fannin had a run-scoring single in the inning and Zant singled, and scored on a base hit by Yanez. Big Spring led 7-1 and had the game well in control.

Making the all-tournament team were shortstop Cobos and pitcher-first baseman Martinez. The MVP award went to pitcher-third baseman Martinez, her second year in a row to win the MVP. Cobos also made the all-tournament team last year.

Topping things off was the presentation of the Sportsmanship Award to the champions.

handed Big Spring its only loss of the tournament with a 6-5 decision.

Fannin and Alvarez pitched for Big Spring, striking out 10 and allowing six hits. Big Spring managed four hits — a triple by Zant, a double by Martinez and singles by Burdette and Hinojos.

Big Spring bounced back with a 11-9 win over San Angelo Green. Martinez, Alvarez and Fannin pitched. Alvarez and Hinojos hit two singles each. Top defense was played by Cobos, Martinez, Alvarez and Hinojos.

Big Spring improved its record to 5-1 by defeating Snyder 11-9. Alvarez and Fannin combined for the win, pitching a six-hitter. Cobos, Zant and Alvarez each hit two singles. Belew played a strong defensive game.

That win put Big Spring in the finals against San Angelo Black.

In the 10-4 championship win over San Angelo Black, Alvarez was the winning pitcher, going five innings, striking out seven and allowing four hits. Fannin and Martinez pitched the last two innings.

Big Spring took a 1-0 lead on an inside-the-park homer by Fannin.

San Angelo tied the game at 1-1 in the top of the fourth inning. Big Spring then took control of the game by scoring six runs on four hits. The big blow was a three-run scoring single by Cobos. # Crash inopportune for funding fight

All seven die when Osprey crashes into Potomac

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

QUANTICO, Va. — The second crash in 13 months of the experimental V-22 tilt-rotor aircraft provides new ammunition to critics just as Congress is taking a hard look at the expensive helicopter-airplane hybrid.

All seven people aboard a prototype V-22 died Monday when the aircraft plunged into the Potomac River while trying to land at the Quantico Marine Air Facility.

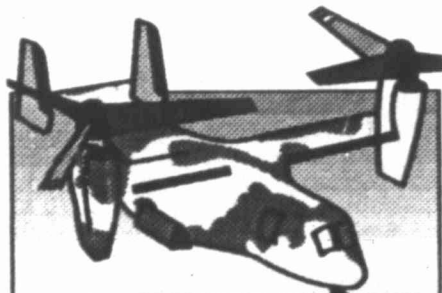

In June of last year a V-22 crashed at the New Castle County Airport in Delaware about three minutes into its first flight while it hovered about 15 feet off the ground. No one was hurt.

The Marine Corps hopes to use the V-22 to replace an aging fleet of helicopters.

"It couldn't have come at a more inopportune time," said Brian Keeter, a spokesman for Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., a staunch supporter of the program.

The Marine Corps was mum on the cause of the crash, which occurred at the end of a flight from Eglin Air Force Base in Florida. In a statement, the corps said only that the plane had experienced "unknown technical problems."

"It seemed to be having no problem when it basically dropped right into the Potomac River," said Maj. Barry Moore, base public affairs officer. He said there were seven people on board — some military and some employees of the contractors, Bell Helicopters Textron and Boeing Helicopters — and there were no known survivors.

Rescue personnel work at the scene of a crash of an experimental V-22 "Osprey" tilt-rotor aircraft in the Potomac River just off the Quantico Marine Air station Monday. The aircraft was making a routine final approach after flying from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., when the crash occurred.

"If it's a technology defect, it could have a major impact," conceded Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa., whose district includes the Boeing division that builds the plane's fuselage. "It could cause us to go back and look at the aircraft and look at technology."

The House Appropriations Committee and Senate Armed Services Committee were due this week to take up a plan that would free some $1.5 billion for continued development of the aircraft, breaking a four-year stalemate with the Pentagon over funding for the project.

"It stunned us right off," said Bell Helicopter Textron spokesman Terry Arnold. "It's just going to take a while to see what impact this will have on the overall program."

The aircraft, known as the Osprey, is considered an improvement over conventional helicopters because its twin rotors can tilt forward on stubby wings, allowing it to fly like an airplane for 350 miles at speeds of 300 miles per hour, then land without a runway like a helicopter.

The makers were building six prototypes of the aircraft, designed to ferry about 40 passengers from ship to shore or 20 troops equipped for combat.

Moore said the plane had made two or three passes over the airfield Monday and was believed to be making the transition from airplane to helicopter when the crash occurred over the river about half a mile from the runway.

"The final approach seemed to be error-free," Moore said. "Something happened at the last second."

Helicopters and boats were called in for a recovery operation, which was suspended after nightfall with no bodies having been recovered, base officials said. The river is about two miles wide at the air station, and orange buoys marked the location where the plane went down in 27 feet of water. Fishing guide Bill Kramer said he had watched the craft for about five minutes before it crashed. "It headed north about two miles and stalled out and hit the water," said Kramer.

Kramer, fishing with two clients, said the Osprey "disintegrated when it hit the water. By the time we got to the wreckage, what was left of the main fuselage had already sank."

Moore said the prototype had been flown to Quantico for tests of its lifting ability, both carrying loads and lifting suspended loads. He said several dozen officials, from both the Marine Corps and the contractors, were watching when the craft approached.

For four years Defense Secretary Dick Cheney refused to approve money for the aircraft, which he believed was too expensive. But on July 2 Cheney agreed to release the $1.5 billion.

AIDS victim wants to address GOP convention

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A member of a highly influential Republican family who has tested positive for the HIV virus wants to speak about AIDS during next month's GOP convention, a spokesman for a non-profit organization says.

Mary D. Fisher, 43, daughter of Max Fisher, honorary chairman of the Bush-Quayle 1992 National Finance Committee, has had formal discussion with GOP officials about speaking, according to spokesman A. James Heynen of the Greystone Group Inc.

The group is helping set up Ms. Fisher's non-profit organization, the Family AIDS Network.

Two HIV-positive speakers were featured last week at the Democratic National Convention.

Ms. Fisher was unavailable for comment Monday, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

"I don't think any decision has been made," Heynen said. "Probably everything's a little up for grabs right now."

Sources told the newspaper that President Bush is reviewing a list of speakers and will be the final decision within two weeks.

RNC spokesman Joe Fleming said chances are good that Ms. Fisher will be selected.

"I do know that everybody familiar with her story and with her personally is greatly moved," he said.

Heynen said Ms. Fisher, a mother of two, contracted the virus from her ex-husband. Neither of her two young children are HIV-positive, he said.

Elizabeth Glaser, one of two HIV-positive speakers at last week's Democratic National Convention, said she hopes that Ms. Fisher will be able to speak at the Aug. 17-20 GOP convention.

"Mary Fisher is an important voice and is definitely a testament to the fact that this (AIDS) is all of America's problem," Ms. Glaser told the Houston newspaper. "It is important she not let the Republican Party off the hook, because they have not done what they need to do."

Ms. Fisher was the first female "advance man" for the White House, working with former President Gerald R. Ford.

She founded the Family AIDS Network about two months ago to provide a national support group for friends and family of those infected by the HIV virus, said Heynen.

Coahoma school board focus on storm repairs

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Hail storm damage, employment issues and bid considerations were the focus of the Coahoma Independent School District regular meeting Monday.

Complete storm damage repairs are estimated at more than one million dollars, said Superintendent L.D. Monroe. "Gym damage was declared as emergency status. We hope to begin repairs on the gym as soon as possible. It is about an eight week project," he said.

The air conditioning system and the roof also suffered extensive damage. Repairs on the roof are expected to go through the summer of 1993.

Other agenda items approved were the resignation and hiring of school personnel. Charlynda Dehnel, high school English teacher, submitted her resignation. Stacey Hancock, Barry Trahan, Virginia Brewton, Debbie Churchwell and Debbie Phillips were hired.

The board also awarded six bids rejecting one bid and will rebid. School will begin August 17. The next board meeting will be July 27.

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot, who was widely criticized for lacking specifics on issues, was readying an economic plan so specific and austere that top aides say he would have had trouble running on it.

Among the proposals sure to have generated the most heat: a 50-cent-a-gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes and cuts in Social Security payments.

It's all a moot issue, since the Dallas billionaire last week abruptly ended his never-declared independent presidential challenge.

A five-year, $800 billion deficit-reduction plan was the centerpiece.

On foreign policy, Perot was ready to call for a complete overhaul of the State Department to make trade promotion the main mission of U.S. embassies around the world. And his campaign was putting the finishing touches on a tough "zero tolerance" anti-drug policy.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands — Keeping people free of gonorrhea, syphilis and other sexually transmitted diseases appears to dramatically slow the spread of AIDS, several new studies suggest.

Many contagious genital diseases cause open sores, and experts believe this allows the AIDS virus to get into the bloodstream, even when the sores are too small to be seen.

New evidence of the role of these diseases in spreading AIDS was presented Monday at the Eighth International Conference on AIDS in Amsterdam.

The meeting has drawn more than 10,000 researchers, doctors and people with AIDS to the Dutch capital for a week of discussions on how to fight the global epidemic.

HONG KONG — A highly decorated Chinese police lieutenant who recently fled his homeland has provided an inside look at police corruption in Communist China, accusing police of running smuggling, prostitution and auto theft rings.

workers are denied access to health programs, workers compensation or unemployment benefits.

"If this were not enough, their human and civil rights are constantly violated by the various authorities that operate along the border region and especially by the Border Patrol," Marentes said.

He blamed conditions in part on lack of enforcement of existing regulations by the Labor Department, and violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Migrant and Seasonal Workers Protection Act by labor contractors.

But John Fraser, a Labor Department deputy administrator, said his agency was doing its job.

"I think the DOL at least is working very hard ... to make sure the laws are enforced," Fraser said.

Gao Peiqi, who worked in Shenzhen in southern China, said, "The police in China are like a criminal syndicate. Corruption is widespread and the government can't control it."

Using confidential documents and details from cases he had broken himself, Gao, 42, described a police force riddled with malfeasance, lacking the ability and will to stop it. He said he saw the problem get worse during his seven years in the Justice Ministry.

Gao, who holds a physics degree from a Chinese university, won three medals at his last post — deputy leader of the serious crimes section in Shenzhen, a special economic zone of 2.5 million people bordering Hong Kong. He broke China's first case of computer hackers stealing from a bank.

FAIRMONT, W.Va. — Billy Joe Peyton was hungry as he huddled at the doors of a church, using a thin blanket and a garbage bag as his bed. He was also grateful that he would be back in his own bed tonight.

Family vital to mental illness treatment

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

Families are taking a new role in the treatment of loved ones with mental illness, local professionals said.

Kathy Salazar, director of social services at the Big Spring State Hospital, attended a three-day conference in Austin over the weekend. It was focused on encouraging more family involvement in the treatment of mental illnesses.

She said the ideas presented there were refreshing and much needed.

"This was an opportunity for the family to get more education about mental illness and ways to cope," Salazar said. She attended the conference along with other state hospital staff and two local families of people with mental illness.

"We looked at ways they could be more effective in helping in the treatment of their loved ones," she said. "And not necessarily only the treatment of the person, but the family themselves. They are often overlooked."

Families need ways to help themselves, Salazar said, such as support groups with other family members in similar situations. But mental health staffers also need to be reminded to include the family, she said.

"We were trying to take the two-pronged attack," Salazar said. "Families need to get involved, but staff needs to seek their input as well. They may not contact the family as much as they could."

One of the most interesting speakers, Salazar said, was psychiatrist Roberto Jimenez from San Antonio. He said a strong spiritual base made coping with illness — of any kind — easier.

"He said people who have religious beliefs and a spiritual base tend to cope better because they have a base of strength to draw from," Salazar said.

Too often families — and sometimes staff as well — get caught up in blame and don't concentrate on coping, she said.

Called "Families First," the conference drew about 200 family members. It included workshops in guardianship, alternative treatments, procedures and behavior management.

Meanwhile, at the local hospital, a number of family oriented programs are developing — and growing.

"We have a policy that families are a very integral part of our treatment," said hospital chaplain George Perrine. "Some of our patients only stay with us for a very short time and they go back to the family."

The chapel houses several family programs, including a central meeting place for family members and patients. It includes a place for children to play and information about mental illnesses for visiting family members.

"We're in the process of developing an overnight family center," Perrine said. "Some of our families travel from as far as El Paso and other cities, so having a place to stay would be a great benefit."

Family workshops continue each month, offering such topics as medications and behavior modification. A family day is planned this fall with a large picnic, educational programs and meetings with staff members.

"We try to do a lot of things because the family is a very high priority for us," Perrine said. "We need that strong family support."

Two local transplant patients among honored

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Big Spring kidney transplant recipients Diane Bernal and Kristina Smith will be honored at the second annual Renal Transplant Birthday Party at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock July 25.

Guests for the party include kidney transplant recipients, their living donors and relatives, transplant team physicians and nurses and Methodist Hospital administrators.

Doug Hodel, director of public relations for the hospital, said the party is designed as a kind of reunion for transplant recipients and their doctors and nurses.

"They really do develop a special bond," he said. Although the procedure hasn't changed much since it began, Hodel said medications have improved so that patients, "say their whole life is renewed."

"They're off dialysis and they say they get to do things they couldn't do before," he said.

But donors are still difficult to find.

"We desperately need people to donate their organs," Hodel said.

The hospital first performed a kidney transplant in July 1990. Since then, more than 40 have been performed on patients ranging in age from 11-68 from West Texas, the South Plains and Eastern New Mexico.

Marriage statistics show change of heart

WASHINGTON BUREAU

Remember that popular '60s tune where the female singer brags, "Goin' to the chapel and I'm gonna get married?"

If not, don't worry. It seems fewer Americans — including Hispanics — are humming that tune or any other wedding song these days.

"People seem to be waiting longer to marry," said Arlene Saluter, who prepared the U.S. Census Bureau's annual report on marriage and living standards.

Census Bureau statistics released today show that Hispanics are not too different from other Americans when it comes to marriage.

In 1991: —About 61 percent of Hispanics were currently married, a sharp dip from 72 percent in 1970. Those were the same percentages for all Americans.

—Slightly more than 27 percent of Hispanics had never been married, which was up from 19 percent two decades ago. For all Americans, 23 percent had never been married in 1991 compared to 16 percent in 1970.

—About 7 percent of Hispanics were divorced, nearly double from 1970. Nationwide, 8.6 percent were divorced, which is up from 3 percent in 1970.

The growing similarity between Hispanics and all Americans when it comes to marriage shows that Hispanics are becoming more rooted in American culture, said Sonia Perez, of the National Council of La Raza.

More Hispanics have lived in America longer, have gone through the American school system and have worked in American jobs, she said.

The Hispanic culture still distinguishes itself in some marriage statistics, however. Hispanics, who are deeply rooted in Roman Catholicism, are below the rest of America in its divorce rate.

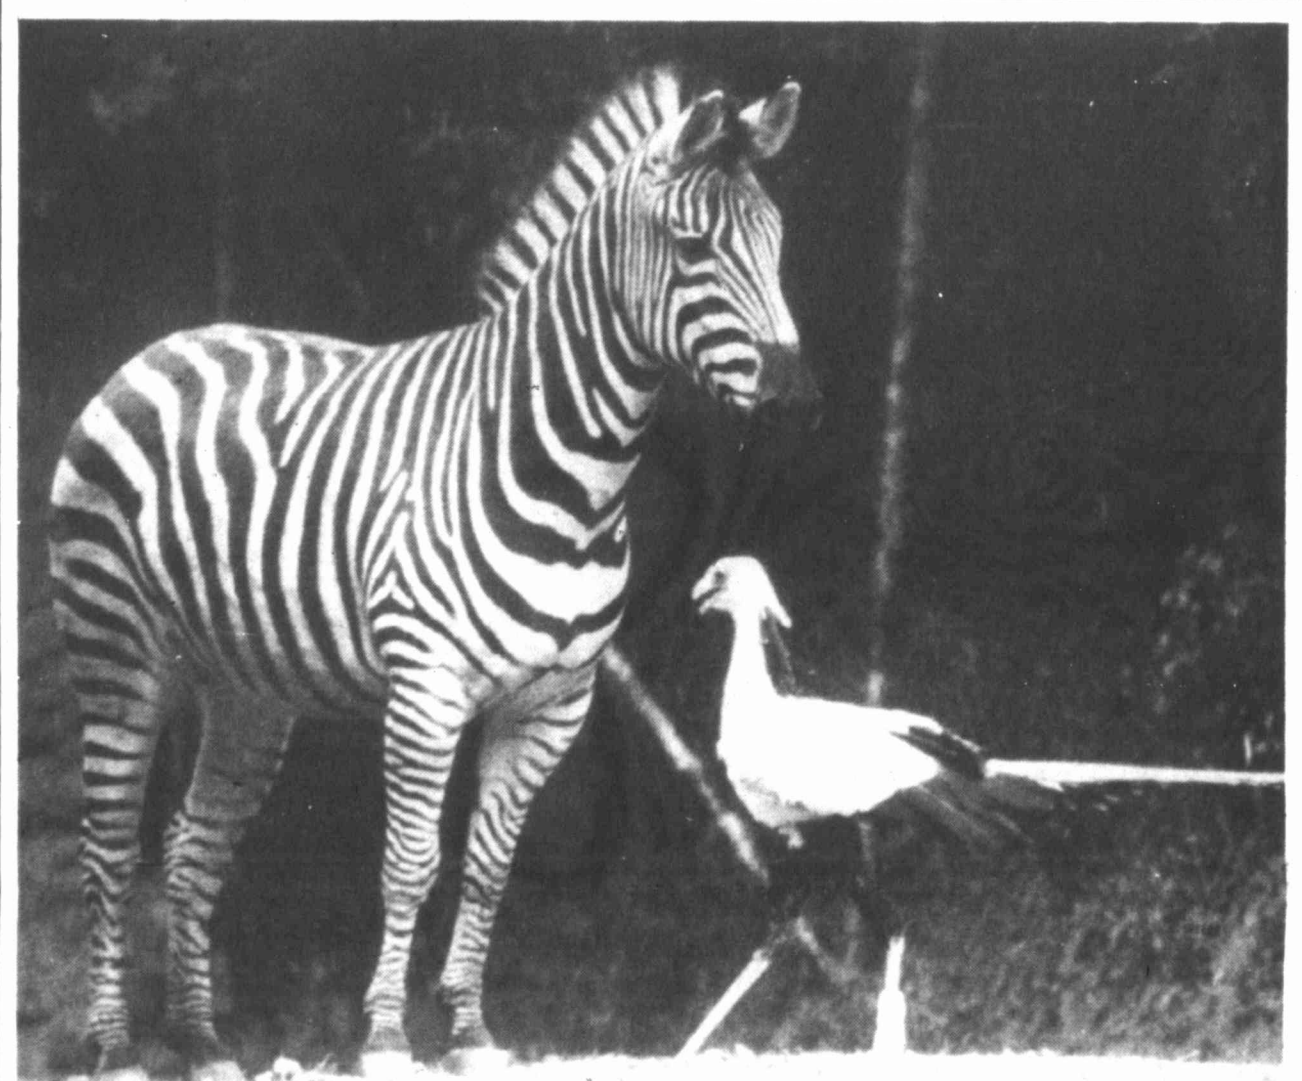

Another cultural distinction: 6 percent of Hispanic children live in the same home as their grandparents. Hispanics traditionally have large, multi-generational families living under the same roof, Perez said.

"There's more of a sense you have a responsibility to other family members," she said.

The leveling off of the marriage rate for Hispanics and all Americans is due in large part to the baby-boom generation.

Many baby boomers were of the marrying age in the 1970s, which is why the percentage of currently married adults was so high then, said Richard Stephens, sociology professor at The George Washington University.

Social factors do have some effect on marriage statistics, but "the tendency is to overstate the power of these factors," Stephens said.

New bird leg

Betty Bird Davis walks past a zebra at Zoo Atlanta last week. The bird is still able to walk — a tribute to medical technology normally associated with humans. Workers found the bird one morning with her foot almost severed from the leg. It was reattached, but later had to be replaced with an artificial one.

Confronting India's AIDS spread

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOMBAY, India — Ramesh Patel is dying slowly of AIDS in a government hospital, but he doesn't know it. Doctors say he's uneducated and will never understand.

"We don't talk about AIDS to illiterate patients," said Dr. Shashi Kala of the Gokuldas Tejpal Hospital in Bombay. "Besides, his immunity is almost zero — it would kill him to know."

So, Patel, 48 and severely ill with a host of diseases, spends most of his time staring at the ceiling, trying to figure out just what is wrong with him.

"Doctors have told me I have tiny germs in my blood which will weaken me and make me dizzy," said Patel, a rickshaw puller who contracted AIDS from a prostitute in Bombay's seedy red-light district. "I'm sure I'll be all right."

This week in Amsterdam, 12,000 delegates will attend the eighth international conference on AIDS. For the first time, the conference, billed as the world's largest on the disease, will stress the social aspects of global anti-AIDS programs — a major obstacle in combating AIDS in developing countries.

"AIDS will continue to spread, no matter what we do," said Dr. Jai Narain, a World Health Organization official connected with India's AIDS program.

WHO and Harvard University researchers fear that India — where an estimated 400,000 to 1 million people are infected with HIV — and other Asian countries will be the world's worst affected area by the turn of the century, outpacing sub-Saharan Africa.

As in Africa, heterosexual transmission is India's greatest problem, compounded by the widespread belief that males aren't macho if they use condoms.

Manjit Singh, a truck driver from the northern Punjab state, said he's never worn a condom in his life.

"I've never worn socks or a tie so why should I wear a condom?" he said.

The government launched a campaign last year called "Protect Yourself Against AIDS Through Our Cultural Heritage and Wisdom," using messages from ancient Indian scriptures favoring moderation in sex and condemning prostitution, homosexuality and adultery.

VA patients enjoy some recreational activities

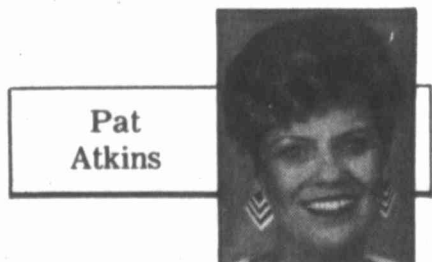

Medical Center patients took part in preparing and grilling hamburgers in the gazebo July 15, 1992. "Everyone enjoyed the good food and playing horseshoes," said Scott Willis, Recreation Therapist. July 12 patients enjoyed an evening of playing putt-putt golf. Everyone had such a good time they planned to do it again.

Any activity is good for your heart. It does not have to be strenuous; moderate activity can help you get fit and stay fit. "Keep moving," said Marcia Merrell, Administrative Dietician.

Forty-two years ago on July 17, 1950, the first patient was admitted to the medical center. Former U.S. Marine James A. Waters was admitted at 8:20 a.m. A total of 14 patients were admitted that first day. Since then there have been approximately 142, 442 admissions to the medical center.

Approval for Big Spring to be the site of the new VA Hospital was received July 9, 1945. Thirty one acres on the corner of FM 700 and Texas Highway 87 was selected as the site of the new hospital.

The Robert E. Kee Construction Company was awarded the contract on January 8, 1948 and ground was broken February 1, 1948. The hospital was designed and constructed under the supervision of the Corps of Engineers for the Veterans Administration. Construction of the six story facility started on February 2, 1948; and was completed on June 3, 1950. The official dedication date was Sunday, September 10, 1950. The hospital was erected at a cost in excess of $6 million, and was equipped with the most modern facilities of the time. Fifteen doctors headed up the professional staff and they were supported by 57 nurses. Additional clinical staff numbered about 108. The administrative staff consisted of approximately 125 members. To broaden the scope of the VA mission, during his first year in office, former VA Administrator, Max Clelland designated all VA Hospitals to be called VA Medical Centers.

We've seen many changes since the medical center first opened. We presently have a staff of approximately 410 employees with an annual budget of about $21 million. According to Steve Jones, Chief, Engineering Service the cost to erect the medical center today would be in excess of $70 million.

The medical center is equipped with modern facilities and services to provide quality medical care to veterans. Medical, surgical, psychiatric, substance abuse, rehabilitation medicine, and nursing home care services are available for eligible veteran. Veterans from 47 counties in Texas and one county in New Mexico receive care at the medical center.

Training in the fields of dental hygiene, laboratory technician, nursing, ophthalmology, physical therapy, radiology, and social work service is provided through affiliations with surrounding hospitals, colleges, and universities.

We are looking forward to the installation of new computer nurse call and medical gas systems and the beginning of construction of a new Surgical Service. Remodeling of the sixth floor Nursing Home Care Unit is underway and the staff and patients are looking forward to enjoying Christmas in the new unit.

We are very proud of the medical center and the staff supports the credo: "Our goal is to assure that veterans who walk through these doors know they are our number one concern."

Coping with phobias: common psychiatric disorder

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leah was so terrified of daddy longlegs that she couldn't walk across a lawn or enter her vacant apartment without panicking. One night she got so scared that she checked herself into a mental hospital.

With Clara, it was cockroaches. She kept no food in her kitchen and wouldn't let neighbors visit because she feared they would bring in roaches.

Gloria sold her house to get away from silverfish.

Before Ellen could carry her bridal bouquet down the aisle, she had to undergo therapy to overcome her fear of bees.

All four women were victims of either entomophobia, the fear of insects, or arachnophobia, the fear of spiders.

An estimated 11.6 million Americans suffer from phobias, the nation's No. 1 psychiatric disorder. Except for social phobias such as fear of crowds, with which men and women are equally afflicted, women are twice as liable as men to have a phobia, says Jerilyn Ross, a psychologist in Washington, D.C., who is president of the Anxiety Disorders Association of America.

Insect phobias are often instilled by parents, but not manifested until adulthood, Ross says. Ellen's mother, who was terrified of bees, shrieked, "Don't move!" when a few bees buzzed around her 10-year-old daughter. Ellen, who wasn't even stung, didn't become aware of her phobia until she was about to marry.

Most people don't waste much affection on the creepy-crawly world, but usually it's only a healthy dislike, not an incapacitating phobia.

Stephen R. Kellert, a professor at

Except for social phobias such as fear of crowds, with which men and women are equally afflicted, women are twice as liable as men to have a phobia.

the Yale University School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, cites a Connecticut study that found that people are overwhelmingly filled "with strong feelings of anxiety, antipathy and avoidance" toward the "spineless kingdom," especially arthropods, which include beetles, wasps, scorpions and ticks.

When strong feelings become phobias — involuntary, irrational fears so extreme that they interfere with daily living — specialists like Ross get into the act.

"With a phobia," says Ross, "it always comes down to the issue of control. People's greatest fear is a panic attack, losing control. It's such a horrible feeling that they'll do anything to escape from it."

Happily, sufferers of phobias of bugs can be quite easily treated. Leah, Clara, Gloria and Ellen were cured, Ross says, with treatment known as "contextual therapy," or "in vivo exposure." The treatment is gradual exposure to the cause of their panic until they challenged their own assumptions and shed their irrational fears.

Ellen shed hers in several therapy sessions amid the be-filled flower gardens of Lafayette Park across from the White House.

Kellert attributes the general dislike of bugs to several factors, including the sheer numbers of insects, their appearance, unpredictability and mystery.

"You could speculate that when people go around the house squashing bugs and spiders, part of it may be that they are just offended by this violation, this taking of autonomy from them," he says.

Not all societies are as queasy about bugs as are Western nations, the so-called civilized world.

Michael H. Robinson, director of the National Zoo in Washington, has traveled widely and studied numerous insects. The ancient Egyptians, he says, revered scarab beetles and made bees and flies part of their symbolism. "They were delighted by them rather than appalled by them," he relates.

Invertebrates compose more than 90 percent of all animal species. Stings and bites notwithstanding, only a tiny number are dangerous to humans.

Peaceful coexistence may never be possible. But better understanding is a goal experts strive for.

"First of all," says Kellert, "you have to make a better, more compelling case for the value of insects and what it is that's so important to us. We must understand the basis for people's negative feelings and in a sense attack them."

The National Zoo helps do this with its invertebrate house; the Cincinnati, Ohio, Zoo uses an insect exhibit. "We exhibit invertebrates as though they were exciting and stimulating and beautiful, and try to remove the negative response to them," says Robinson.

He emphasizes the profound ecological significance. "If it weren't for invertebrates," he says, "all the organic matter tied up in trees would never get back into the soil. All the animals that die would never recycle all their mineral salts back into the soil. The system would just collapse."

Health of collagen use questioned

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Smooth skin may be just a shot of collagen away — or, like silicone breast implants, the treatment could exact a hideous price.

In the decade since the Food and Drug Administration approved collagen for cosmetic use, figures from the Collagen Corp. in Palo Alto, Calif., indicate some 550,000 people in the United States have been injected with it to eliminate facial scars and wrinkles or make specific features such as lips more prominent. The corporation is the sole U.S. manufacturer of collagen.

Increasingly disturbing reports about collagen have come to light, however. Patients have related problems ranging from temporary allergic reactions to disease and permanent disfigurement. Many experts are now persuaded the injections could pose a serious health risk.

Dr. Sheri J. Lagin, section chief of dermatology at the Hospital for Joint Diseases in New York City, was a strong proponent of collagen as recently as last December. But by March she said she was no longer using it in her practice because there was "too much controversy and too many uncertainties about its safety."

The Collagen Corp. received FDA approval to market collagen for treatment of scars and wrinkles in 1981.

Linda Ramey, of Houston, filed suit against the company in 1989. She was the secretary and girl friend of Houston plastic surgeon Dr. Jean Cukier, who injected her forehead and smile wrinkles with collagen in 1983.

Ramey developed an alarming group of symptoms and allergies. She was diagnosed as having a rare and possibly life-threatening autoimmune disease of the connective tissues, polymyositis-dermatomyositis (RM-DM). Cukier said the collagen acted as a trigger to her immune system.

When Ramey sued the Collagen Corp., Cukier gained access to the company's records and discovered some 5,500 files of adverse reactions, only 55 of which had been reported to the FDA.

The company said most of the cases were minor, such as temporary allergic reactions, that did not need to be reported. An ongoing congressional subcommittee headed by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has found that allegations of under-reported adverse reactions persist.

Clinical research has shown that collagen can produce an autoimmune response, although not necessarily a dangerous one.

"In those who are genetically predisposed, it's highly likely that collagen can cause connective tissue disease," said Dr. Denny Tuffanelli, professor of clinical dermatology at the University of California at San Francisco. "While that proportion of patients is extremely small, for the patient to whom it may happen, it's a catastrophe."

The FDA has had the Collagen Corp. strengthen its labeling to inform patients that there is an increased incidence of and susceptibility to certain autoimmune responses in collagen-treated patients, said James S. Benson, director of the FDA's Center for Devices and Radiological Health.

"When you have a very very low incidence of a disease, it's difficult to determine whether the increase is really associated with use of the product," he said.

Another problem with collagen is the temporary nature of the treatments — all traces of collagen disappear in a few months and must be repeated two or three times a year, at nearly $375 a visit.

Alligator, crocodile not the same

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American crocodile is a shy, timid breed — but don't get overconfident unless you can tell the difference between crocodiles and alligators.

Crocodiles, alligators, caimans and 18 other species make up the order Crocodylia and they are the most dangerous of all living reptiles.

The American crocodile is an exception.

"American crocodiles are very timid," said Joe Wasilewski, the biologist who keeps track of the wild population at Florida Power & Light Co.'s Turkey Point nuclear power plant on Biscayne Bay. Crocs have made it their habitat.

Crocodiles differ in habitat from alligators, which live in fresh water; crocs in coastal brackish or salt water. The crocodile has a long snout with teeth that show when the mouth is closed, while the alligator has a broader snout, with no teeth showing when the mouth is shut.

The American crocodile is gray-green; the American alligator is darker.

The American croc is classified as an endangered species. Experts believe this tropical species was never common in the United States, and now its range has been reduced to three small but stable populations totaling 200 to 300 adults on the southern tip of the Florida peninsula.

Reclusive in the mangrove swamps, brackish inland ponds, creeks and covers, American crocodiles perform a quiet and gentle courtship each spring.

The habitats are Turkey Point, north Key Largo and Everglades National Park.

Wasilewski said there are 15 to 20 adults in the Turkey Point population and last year his staff found six nests that produced 107 young.

"One of the reasons the crocs are doing well at Turkey Point is that the 168-mile canal system that cools the plant's discharge is isolated from people. The man-made dikes between the canals are well drained and provide good nesting habitat," Wasilewski said. A similar number of crocodiles live just east of Turkey Point at the new Crocodile Lake National Wildlife Refuge. Established in 1980, it is closed to the public. The third and largest population of American crocodiles resides on Florida Bay in the Everglades.

Reclusive in the mangrove swamps, brackish inland ponds, creeks and covers, American crocodiles perform a quiet and gentle courtship each spring.

Males slap their heads on water to announce their presence, while females lift snouts and arch tails to signal their interest. The pair may then circle each other, touching and blowing bubbles before copulation.

Though the American crocodile is considered a saltwater animal, its hatchlings require some fresh water. They get it from rain that has accumulated in tiny pools on top of saltwater or in freshwater pools.

Hatchlings remain in the nursery habitat for a year or more, growing 16 to 20 inches.

Though the only enemy of an adult crocodile is man, hatchlings are prey to raccoons, birds and crabs. Less than half survive the first year, and half of those die before they are 2 years old.

Animation teaches medicine

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON (AP) — The idea came to Dr. Al Davies nearly 20 years ago.

Animated skeletons dancing across a computer screen would teach human anatomy. Animated human bodies, or hearts, or lungs, would help demonstrate medical procedures. They would help juries understand how something went awry in a patient's medical care.

The Texas Medical Center brought Davies, a physician who directs the critical care program at Baylor College of Medicine, together with three other talented people at the top of their fields — a neurologist, a computer scientist, and a physicist.

Last month, they formed a new Houston company — Biodyne — to develop custom-made animations and sell them to schools, medical schools, doctors and lawyers.

"When you have a center of excellence, you can cause people to come together, rub shoulders, and critical mass is going to form; broad ideas are going to be reduced to action and progress," said Davies.

What Davies is talking about is the economic ripple that often flows from huge industries, generating income and jobs far beyond those in that business alone.

In Houston, the biotech industry is among the obvious offspring of the Texas Medical Center. But there are many others that are less apparent. For every dollar the Texas Medical Center's 41 institutions take in, other Houston businesses collect $2.30, according to Mary Schiflett, director of special projects.

Davies said his interest in starting the company grew out of his academic leanings. "It was our feeling that education in biology and medicine isn't as well developed as it should be, given the techniques and technology that we now have."

One of the most difficult things to teach in critical-care medicine, said Davies, is how to place catheters — tubes used to carry liquid — into large veins of the chest and neck. His company is doing an animation that would help a medical student learn in three dimensions on a computer before attempting the procedure on a patient.

Houston's medical industry has kindled new ideas for many people.

It happened to Kathy Hathorn when she and her husband were hired by an architectural firm to do the art detail work for a hospital. After that initial job, Hathorn hooked up with the large hospital chain Hospital Corporation of America, which asked her to develop a cost-effective art master plan.

Hathorn and her husband, who own American Art Resources, decided to close the company's art gallery and focus exclusively on supplying art to health care institutions.

"With Houston's economy in 1982, it made a lot of sense to look at health care," Hathorn said.

Now they have 630 hospital clients and do about 80 art projects a year. In Houston, their clients include the city's HCA hospitals and Diagnostic Center Hospital, Heights Hospital, West Houston Medical Center, Katy Medical Center and Texas Sports Medicine Center, and Park Plaza Hospital.

Artwork for hospitals is not an investment, but a statement, an extension of the hospital's image, Hathorn said. It also has an undeniable effect on patients.

When Hathorn chose art for a wing in a psychiatric hospital that was used for adolescents, she was told to choose art for one treatment area that would energize the children. The artwork was very active, without borders.

In other treatment areas, the hospital wanted a feeling of control. So the artwork had an inward feeling and a border around the outside of each print or painting, Hathorn said.

In some cases, Hathorn has found an artist and commissioned a piece of art to be done for a hospital.

"There is a great deal of adding of new services by hospitals, in outpatient services, psychiatric units," said Hathorn. "There is a general awareness of how important artwork has become in the feeling it gives the hospital."

Doreen J. Wise, a registered nurse with a master's degree in mental health nursing and a doctorate in health administration, turned from her private practice as a psychiatric nurse in Houston to start Medical Research Consultants, after a Houston attorney consulted with her on a medical malpractice case.

Sleek is trend in newer video screens

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The trend in video is towards larger, wider television screens housed in sleeker, slimmer cabinets. Although larger and slimmer might seem like a difficult target to achieve new technologies are enabling designers to produce a picture in a far more compact package.

As larger screens increase in popularity, designers have been hard at work trying to decrease cabinet size so that these sets can still comfortably fit into the home environment.

Mitsubishi has introduced an entire Slim Profile line of rear-projection televisions. One of these, the 50-inch VS5017S has a chassis depth of only 22½ inches. Just a year ago, the same set would have required at least an additional 6 inches of chassis.

Sony has also helped narrow the gap between direct-view and rear-projection with its smaller, slimmer KPR-41EXR95 model. This 41-inch rear-projection set delivers a big screen picture in a very small package (it's as thin as a normal 20-inch direct-view set).

Predictions are that by the end of this century, television cabinets may disappear altogether as in-wall televisions — just a picture in a frame set flush within a wall — become the video trend.

Answering questions of nationality

DEAR ABBY: In reference to a problem you were asked to help with: I have a story that will make your correspondent feel much better about her inability to tell one Asian from another.

Chompoo, a sweet little Thai girl, lived in our apartment building while going to school in Washington, D.C. While shopping with her in one of the big department stores, we spied another Asian-looking girl, so we pointed her out and asked if that girl was also Thai.

Chompoo said she'd find out, so she went over to her and they exchanged a few pleasant words, introducing themselves. As it turned out, the other girl asked our Thai friend if she was Filipino.

Dear Abby

Chompoo said that many times THEY can't tell one nationality from the other themselves, so how could we be expected to? We had people of all nationalities in our home nearly all the time and we enjoyed them all, but like you said, Abby, "Ask them -- most of them are proud to tell you and will not take offense." -- M.B.B. (RETIRED IN FLORIDA)

DEAR M.B.B.: Most, but not all. One reader wrote to say that she (out of curiosity) approached a gentleman with Oriental features and said, "My friend and I have a bet on. Where are you from?" The gentleman replied, "Cincinnati."

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, I saw a vase that caught my eye at a flea market, so I bought it for $20. It never seemed to fit anywhere in my home, so it ended up in the back closet.

Recently, while I was cleaning out the back closet, a couple of old friends stopped by. The wife saw the vase on the floor and admired it, so I gave it to her. She was very pleased and took it home.

A few days later, she called me -- all excited. She said she had engaged a professional to come to her home to evaluate their possessions for insurance purposes, and the appraiser told her that the vase I had given her was worth several thousand dollars! She said that she and her husband had talked it over and decided that since I had given her the vase, they would leave it to me in their will -- and if I predeceased them, it would go to my children. (I could tell by her tone that she thought she was being very generous.)

I am aware that I have no legal claim on the vase. Also, they did not have to tell me about the appraisal, or remember me in their will. However, had the situation been reversed, I would have returned the vase as soon as I learned of the appraisal.

Now I no longer feel friendly toward this woman. How would you have handled this? -- JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST ASKING: I, too, would have returned the vase immediately upon learning its value.

FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The more direct you are now, the more successful you will be. A family member really does love and admire you. In September, you stand up to an employer or supervisor who is wrong.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Stephen Benet, actors Terence Stamp and Albert Brooks, singer Bobby Sherman.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Some things are so beautiful they are meant to be shared. The difference between looking good and feeling great is all in your state of mind. A makeover boosts your spirits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Professional tips will put cash in your pocket, so follow through. Make the most of an opportunity to earn more money. Seize a chance to meet members of the opposite sex.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Advance planning will improve your chances for a promotion. A lateful meeting opens new doors to both financial success and romance. Curb a strong urge to spend money on luxuries.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go slow and trust your intuition. Save forceful action for another day. A protective, nurturing role shows off your best qualities. Anyone who comes to you for help will receive good advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attend to basic business matters. Family members will be more understanding than usual. Romance takes on new luster when financial worries subside.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A new partnership could affect every facet of your life. Get all promises in writing to avoid future confrontations. Anyone with doubts should seek legal advice before signing a contract.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance is all important to you now. Say "yes" to a loved one. You must meet work deadlines to protect your reputation. Look at your efforts in a realistic light.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone displays an independent streak. Be firm but fair with small fry. You could find yourself attracted to a newcomer who shares your interests. Show more tenderness to a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your ability to communicate ideas is a tremendous asset. Exchanging views freely with your romantic partner lets loved one know exactly what is in your heart and on your mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be more receptive to the suggestions of someone who has your best interests at heart. New emotional rewards will stem from community or church involvement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your intuition helps you get back on track. Yes, your mate or partner is on your side! Explain exactly how things stand financially. Divide your time more evenly between business and pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Favorable trends enhance your image. The financial outlook is rosy. Shortcuts help you reduce expenses, but neglecting your domestic duties will cause dissension.
