Jumper, Scott file for council

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

The race for Big Spring City Council District 5 has drawn a pair of contestants, as local election officials prepare for the May 12 election.

Former Big Spring City Council member Woody Jumper, who previously served in District 2, recently filed his candidacy for the District 5 seat. Jumper is a patients rights advocate with the Big Spring State Hospital.

Also filing for the District 5 seat is local resident David Scott, who is the manager of Smith's Transmissions in Big Spring.

Incumbent Joann Knox has announced she will not run for re-election.

While Knox — who was recently targeted by a recall petition spurred by the councils approval of a city ordinance that effectively banned smoking in public places — has decided not to run for re-election, Big Spring Mayor Russ McEwen stayed true to his word to run for the office once again, filing his candidacy Tuesday.

McEwen will have at least on challenger in the May election, as local resident Shannon Thomason filed his candidacy last week.

Thomason was one of the driving forces behind the recall petition — and subsequent recall election — which will give the mayor the distinction of having his name on the ballot twice, as voters will be asked to vote for or against a recall that was triggered by the petition in addition to the regular election.

Deadline approaches to reserve spot on Big Spring Day charter

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Time is running out for area residents planning to ride the chartered bus to the state capitol for Big Spring Day in Austin, with the deadline to reserve a seat just around the corner.

Debbye ValVerde, executive director of the local Chamber, said there are still plenty of seats ready for eager residents wanting to show their support.

"Sign up for the bus has been slower this year than in the past," said ValVerde. "We have a lot more people taking their own vehicles this year, so there are still plenty of seats available."

ValVerde said the deadline to reserve a seat and pay for the bus trip is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

ValVerde

"The Chamber will be chartering a bus for the trip, and a special $40 trip rate includes round-trip transportation and lunch at the capitol," said ValVerde. "This is a great way to go because it alleviates the worry of driving. Everyone going on the bus will need to bring their own breakfast, and any food on the bus must be in closed containers. All drinks must have a twist-on top. On the trip back to Big Spring, we will stop for dinner at Cooper's BBQ in Llano, which will be Dutch treat."

The bus is expected to

By STEVE REAGAN

The students will participate in the St. Jude's Math-A-Thon, solving mathematics problems to raise money for the world famous children's research hospital.

Vision tests proposed for senior drivers

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate transportation committee has approved a bill establishing increased scrutiny of older drivers, including a vision test at age 79 and the possibility of driving tests starting at age 85.

The bill filed by Sen. John Carona, R-Dallas, would also require drivers to renew their licenses every two years after they turn 85. The fee would be $10, and officers would have the discretion to order a driving test as well.

Carona said statistical evidence supports the need for the bill, which the committee passed unanimously on Wednesday.

"Older drivers, per mile driven, have far more accidents than any other classification of driver," said Carona, chairman of the transportation committee. "While there will be senior citizens who have reservations about

BILLION-DOLLAR TYPO

WEATHERFORD (AP) — Perhaps his $24 billion electric bill will teach Richard Redden to turn down the thermostat a bit. Redden and more than 1,300

Weatherford utility customers this week received billion-dollar electric bills marked as late notices. The mega-charges were attributed to a printing error.

Irving-based DataProse, which prints customer bills for Weatherford Electric, said the company was embarrassed by the error.

"Obviously, this is not something we are pleased about," said Curtis Nelson, DataProse vice president and general manager.

this bill, all we're doing is making them come in and have a vision test at 79. And that will be good for six years."

The bill was placed on the Senate's uncontested calendar, which means the full Senate will vote on it without a debate unless a senator objects.

Also Wednesday, the House Law Enforcement Committee passed a similar companion bill. The House version sets a required vision test for drivers renewing their licenses at age 90.

If both bills pass, a compromise would be forged between the House and Senate versions.

The proposal has faced little opposition, but AARP-Texas spokesman Rafael Ayuso cautioned against rules that discriminate against older people. The group did not testify against the bill.

"Research shows that younger drivers have much higher accident rates than older drivers, and to some extent, these efforts (to pass legislation) can be seen as using older people as an easy target," Ayuso said.

Ayuso also questioned Carona's proposal that a DPS officer could require a driving test for an 85-year-old based on the officer's observations.

"This is particularly a concern given the importance of driving to the independence of many older Texans," he said.

The House and Senate bills have been dubbed "Katie's Law" for 17-year-old Katherine "Katie" Bolka. The Dallas teenager died last spring, five days after her car was struck by a 90-year-old driver who was speeding and ran a stoplight that had been red for almost 30 seconds.

"My daughter's death touched the entire community," said her mother, Johna Bolka, during testimony in favor of the new rules. "It was about recognizing that this could have happened to anyone."

The city of Stanton has had a single filing since Feb. 12, as council member Tommy Haislip filed to run for re-election. Stanton will also offer a second seat during the election, currently held by Steven Villa, who has not yet filed his candidacy.

While Big Spring and Stanton have both seen lone filings, the city of Coahoma has yet to have a candidate — incumbent or otherwise — step forward. Seats held by David Elmore, Ricky Stone and Mayor Bill Read are all expected to be on the May ballot.

The deadline to file for the May ballot is March 12.

Soldier gets 10 months for desertion

FORT HOOD (AP) — An Army soldier faces less than a year in a military prison for fleeing before his second deployment to Iraq.

In a plea deal that caps his punishment at 10 months, Spc. Mark Wilkerson pleaded guilty to desertion and missing troop movement after the military decided last month that he would be court-martialed. He is to be sentenced by a judge Thursday.

Wilkerson, 23, surrendered at Fort Hood in August, about a year and a half after failing to return from an approved two-week leave.

He said he was tired of running and wanted to face the consequences to move forward with his life, published reports state.

Convicted killer of couple set to die Thursday evening

LIVINGSTON (AP) — Frank and Bertha Cobb had lived in their rural East Texas home for more than 20 years without a break-in, their daughter, Carolyn Sanders, recalled.

On March 4, 1999, they came home to find a burglar, Newton Anderson, in their house.

"Then it just got crazy," Anderson said, describing a frenzy that ended with the couple tortured and killed. Anderson, 30, faced lethal injection Thursday evening for their deaths.

"I'm guilty," he told The Associated Press from death row. "I just can't explain why all this took place."

The bodies of Cobb, 71, and his wife, 61, were found in the rubble of their burned home, which authorities said he torched.

Rehabilitated green sea turtles returned to Gulf

HARLINGEN (AP) — About 90 green sea turtles that nearly died from a sudden cold snap last month have been rehabilitated and returned to the waters near South Padre Island.

Scores of volunteers carried the comatose turtles from the beaches and surf during the dramatic rescue. Temperatures in the Laguna Madre bay had dropped 30 degrees in 48 hours during a January weekend, and at least 130 turtles stunned from the cold were rescued the following week. Seven were found dead.

Jeff George, curator at Sea Turtle Inc., said 42 were released Tuesday and 46 were released Wednesday.

Perry's staff discussed vaccine on day Merck donated to campaign

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Rick Perry's chief of staff met with key aides about the human papillomavirus vaccine the same day its manufacturer donated money to his campaign, documents obtained by The Associated Press show.

Chief of staff Deirdre Delisi's calendar shows she met with the governor's budget director and three members of his office for an "HPV Vaccine for Children Briefing" on Oct. 16.

That day, New Jersey-based Merck & Co.'s political action committee donated $5,000 to Perry and $5,000 total to eight state lawmakers.

The calendar and other documents obtained by the AP show Perry's office began meeting with Merck lobbyists about the vaccine as early as mid-August, months before social conservatives — who are now those most outraged by the order — helped re-elect him in November.

Perry spokesman Robert Black said Wednesday afternoon that the timing of the meeting and the donation was a coincidence. He said Delisi had asked budget director Mike Morrissey to update her on the cost of providing the newly FDA-approved HPV vaccine free to young women on Medicaid.

"There was no discussion of any kind of mandates," Black said.

On Wednesday night, Black issued the following statement: "The Associated Press has tried to create a conspiracy where none exists, and they have offered not one shred of evidence to their baseless accusations that the governor's office has done anything wrong."

The order the governor issued earlier this month directed the Texas Health and Human Services to adopt rules requiring the shots for girls entering sixth grade as of September 2008. The vaccine protects girls and women against the HPV strains that cause most cases of cervical cancer.

The mandate inflamed conservatives, who say it contradicts Texas' abstinence-only sexual education policies and intrudes too far into families' lives. They also say the shots are too new and too costly to force on young girls.

On Wednesday, the House public health committee voted 6-to-3 in favor of a bill that would override Perry's mandate by barring state officials from requiring the vaccine for school attendance. Ninety-one state representatives — or nearly two-thirds of the House — are co-sponsoring the bill, which now can be considered by the full House.

Perry has repeatedly said the vaccine's lifesaving potential far outweighs opponents' concerns. He has declined to say whether he would veto the bill but has said he is open to changes.

The documents obtained Wednesday by The AP under Texas' open records law provide new detail about the relationship between the governor's office and Merck, which makes the only HPV vaccine on the market.

Critics had previously questioned Perry's ties to the company. Mike Toomey, Perry's former chief of staff and Delisi's predecessor, lobbied for the drug company. And the governor accepted a total of $6,000 from Merck during his re-election campaign.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD
By Eddy Pitchford

Failure to properly maintain a car can prove expensive and inconvenient. The same principle is true of life for you and me. Failure to care for priorities, attitudes and relationships can result in frustration, heartache and grief. Just as an owners manual gives information about car care, so the bible gives direction for life. "My little children, these things I write to you, so that you may not sin. And if anyone sins, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." (1 John 2:1).

College Goal Sunday worth consideration

Interested in a college education? Are you graduating from high school this May or this summer? Perhaps you went straight into the workforce after high school and have decided to pursue your education. Maybe you started college years ago but stopped for some reason. Maybe that reason was financial.

Well, whatever the reason, if you are interested in obtaining a college education, then you'll want to take advantage of College Goal Sunday, a program actually set Saturday — this Saturday, in fact — at Howard College.

It runs from noon until 4 p.m., though you can expect to spend just a couple of hours or so there, not four.

College Goal Sunday is a free financial aid workshop. Volunteers, who are professionals in the field of financial assistance will help potential students complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

FAFSA is used to determine an applicant's eligibility for state and financial programs such as grants, loans and work study.

There is no age requirement, so don't let it deter you if you are older than most college students. You do have to have a high school diploma or a General Education Development (GED) certificate. To be eligible you must also have a Social Security number.

Felons need not apply.

You'll need to bring that aforementioned Social Security card along with other forms of identification such as a driver's license to the college Saturday. You'll need financial information such as W-2 forms for 2006, bank statements, business and investment mortgage information, farm records.

Parents are encouraged to attend, both to help provide financial information and to learn about the program.

College Goal Sunday — remember, it is actually Saturday — is a great tool to help you afford a higher education and something you as a student or parent will want to consider.

Remembering U.S. in Iwo Jima

Clint Eastwood is "growing" as a movie director. And we know what that means — he is going to the politically correct left. And that has led him to some strange conclusions, which are worth addressing.

The onetime archetypal tough guy — his "Dirty Harry" cop character took wrathful justice into his own hands decades before Jack "24" Bauer — has been sliding over to liberalism for the past 15 years. And, of course, equally predictably, he has been showered with Academy Awards ever since.

His "growth" was notable in 1992, when "Unforgiven," his nihilistic deconstruction of the western, won a bunch of Oscars, including best picture and best director. In 2003, his "Mystic River" gave audiences a curiously sympathetic portrait of a child-murderer, gaining Oscars for liberal lions Sean Penn and Tim Robbins. And, in 2004, Eastwood's tribute to euthanasia, "Million Dollar Baby," swept the top awards offered by the Motion Picture Academy.

So it's not surprising that Eastwood now has his own revisionist take on a famous World War II battle in "Letters From Iwo Jima," told from the Japanese point of view. Last year, he released an English-language movie about Iwo Jima, "Flags of Our Fathers," but it's the Japanese-language "Letters" that has grabbed Hollywood's attention. "Letters" has been nominated for four Academy Awards, including best picture, best director and best screenplay. By contrast, "Flags" has been shunted aside, nominated for only two minor awards, sound editing and sound mixing.

JAMES P. PINKERTON

For his part, Eastwood has been eager to document the "evolution" of his thinking. As he told Agence-France Presse earlier this month, "I grew up in the war pictures in the 1940s where everything was propagandized. In all the movies, we were the good guys and everybody else were bad guys." So Eastwood is now determined to counteract such "propaganda" by creating propaganda of a different kind.

Reporting on the rapturous reception given to "Letters" at the Berlin Film Festival, The Financial Times was clear-eyed enough to call the film "gaga with political correctness," depicting the Japanese as "vulnerable, misunderstood victims of history." But, in addition to improving the image of imperial Japan, Eastwood had another mission for "Letters." As he told the same French press agency, "Every war has a certain parallel in the futility of it, and that's one of the reasons for telling these stories — they are not pro-war stories." That last point is worth pausing over, because it's popular in some circles to emphasize the "futility" of war. Yet, in fact, wars frequently resolve vital issues — that is, international ambition, aggression and conquest. Japan, for example, began dreaming of dominating Asia in the late 19th century. First, it took over Taiwan and Korea; then, it defeated Russia. Starting in 1931, it attempted to conquer all of China. And in 1941, of course, came Pearl Harbor. Had America not defeated Japan, all of Asia and the Pacific might still be bowing down to the Rising Sun.

But today, many Americans, thinking about Afghanistan and Iraq, are prone to see war as futile. But the better conclusion is this: Wars fought incompetently are futile. As The Washington Post reported last week, after nearly four years of fighting in Iraq, fewer than half of the U.S. Humvees have the latest "up armoring." Indeed, for a war not to be futile, it must be fought competently — which, in this case, means being backed up by top-to-bottom economic and industrial mobilization. That's how wars are won.

In the meantime, on Feb. 23, we might pause to reflect on the 62nd anniversary of the iconic flag-raising at Mount Suribachi. Nearly 7,000 U.S. Marines died on Iwo Jima during that month of fighting, and they gave us, through their sacrifice, an object lesson in accomplishing a mission. No amount of retroactive Hollywood political correctness can ever detract from what was done there. By Americans — also known, in that battle, as the good guys.

Coins or bills?

How Americans feel about coins and bills, as a new dollar coin honoring U.S. presidents goes into circulation:

Most oppose replacing the dollar bill with the new coin ...

Most think the penny should stay...

Presidential dollars to be released in 2007

Coins not shown actual size

... But are evenly split on the idea of having a dollar bill and a dollar coin

... And are just about evenly split in saving or spending loose change like a cheese-ball country trying to make a cheap buck off souvenirs. Plus, because the Constitution specifies that only dead people can be on money, I worry that these coins will lead to a very lame 15th season of "24," in which the secretary of the Treasury plots to assassinate President Jack Bauer "to save the seigniorage of the country I love."

But, I will embrace the Millard Fillmore coin because I'm disgusted that such a simple piece of public policy has been stymied by our political system. That's right, there are lobbies fighting to keep our dollar bill around. Lobbies that, undoubtedly, get beaten up at lunchtime by other lobbies.

The Coin Coalition, which supports killing both the dollar bill and the penny (which costs more than a penny to produce and is reused so infrequently we have to mint 8 billion new ones a year), is funded by the vending-machine and soft-drink industries, which are even more frustrated by trying to slip dollars into soda machines than you are.

The are battled by Save the Greenback, paid for by the paper and ink suppliers. Save the Greenback ultimately prevented a phaseout of the dollar bill thanks in part to Trent Lott (Mississippi's cotton industry makes the dollar's fabric) and Ted Kennedy (Massachusetts' Crane Paper Co. produces the dollar's paper). If dollar bill lobbies can bring Lott and Kennedy together, I'll bet we can get them to make out for a mid-sized military contract.

Sure, these are just coins and, yes, by the time the Gerald Ford dollar comes out, we'll be using our cellphones to pay for everything anyway. But if we can't pass legislation this obvious, I worry about all the decisions Congress makes when we aren't paying incredibly close attention: doling out sugar subsidies that impoverish African farmers, outlawing online poker, invading Iraq.

I used to think that such inefficiencies were a fair trade-off for not having to pay attention to our government. I was wrong. Sometimes, it takes currency redundancy to wake a nation from its stupor.

So now I have hope. So much so that I'm working on a solution to the only major problem with eliminating the dollar bill. Starting soon, get ready to experience the world's sexiest stripper fanny pack. You don't even want to know.

News in brief

Rice says U.S., Europe and Russia agree to encourage Iran back to bargaining table

BERLIN (AP) — Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice said Thursday the United States, European and Russian diplomats have a common goal to encourage Iran back to the bargaining table over its disputed nuclear program.

"We reconfirmed we will use available channels and the Security Council to try to achieve that goal," the top U.S. diplomat said. Rice spoke following a breakfast meeting with her counterparts from Germany, Russia and the European Union.

The group reviewed Iran's compliance with a U.N. Security Council demand that it stop enriching uranium, a key step toward producing either nuclear power or a nuclear weapon.

The U.N. nuclear watchdog finalized a report that is to be released Thursday and is expected to formally confirm the Islamic republic's refusal to freeze enrichment.

Officials at the International Atomic Energy Agency said the report would say that Iran has expanded enrichment efforts instead of freezing them.

Iran calls for talks with U.S. but continues defying U.N. Security Council on enrichment

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The United States and other world powers on Thursday worked on a response to Tehran's defiance of a U.N. Security Council ultimatum on mothballing its uranium enrichment program, while Iranian dissidents presented a list of alleged front companies they said were set up by the Islamic republic to evade U.N. sanctions.

With Tehran showing no signs it had met the council's Wednesday deadline on an enrichment freeze, the U.N. nuclear watchdog finalized a report to be released later in the day.

Officials at the International Atomic Energy Agency said the report by Mohamed ElBaradei, head of the Vienna-based agency, would say that Iran has expanded enrichment efforts instead of freezing them, a conclusion that could trigger tougher U.N. sanctions against Tehran.

Once released, the report will be sent to the agency's 35-nation board and to the U.N. Security Council, which — in setting the deadline — had said that any enrichment related activities past Wednesday could lead to sanctions in addition to those imposed last month.

The United States and its allies suspect Iran is using its nuclear program to produce an atomic weapon — charges Iran denies, saying its aim is to generate electricity. Enriched to a low level, uranium is used to produce nuclear fuel, but further enrichment makes it suitable for a bomb.

Indonesian passenger ferry fire kills at least 15, injures dozens

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A fire broke out on an Indonesian ferry carrying 300 passengers Thursday, killing at least 15 people and sending scores of passengers jumping into the sea, officials said.

Scores of survivors were plucked from the water and the ship's charred hull, but more than a dozen remained unaccounted for following the country's second major maritime disaster in as many months.

The fire started in a truck on the Levina 1's car deck, hours after the 2,000-ton vessel left the capital, Jakarta, for the northwestern island of Bangka, said port official Sato Bisri.

Aerial footage showed a raging fire and heavy black smoke pouring from the 27-year-old ferry. The cause was not immediately known.

"It was terrifying," said Yas Rijal, 33, who was with his wife and son on the upper deck when the fire broke out. "Suddenly flames burst from the lower deck. The crew ordered us to put on yellow life vests and we jumped."

Second case of rape allegations leveled against Iraqi forces this week

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Four Iraqi soldiers have been accused of raping a 50-year-old Sunni woman and the attempted rape of her two daughters in the second allegation of sexual assault leveled against Iraqi forces this week, an official said Thursday.

Brig. Gen. Nijm Abdullah said the attack allegedly occurred about 10 days ago in the northern city of Tal Afar during a search for weapons and insurgents.

A lieutenant and three enlisted men denied the charge but later confessed after they were confronted by the woman, a Turkoman. Abdullah said a fifth soldier suspected something was wrong, burst into the house and forced the others at gunpoint to stop the assault.

"They have been referred to the judicial authorities so they can receive their just punishment," said Abdullah, who effectively serves as mayor of the city.

Regardless of the truth, a second allegation within a single week is likely to undermine further the reputation of Iraq's security services, which the U.S. hopes can take over from coalition troops so the Americans and their allies can go home.

Protesters, prime minister to greet Cheney on rare visit to Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Vice President Dick Cheney arrives in Australia on Thursday to thank one of Washington's staunchest supporters of the increasingly unpopular Iraq war — an ally that has become a rarity by offering more, not fewer, troops for Iraq and Afghanistan.

Iraq and other security issues are expected to dominate Cheney's three-day visit and talks with Prime Minister John Howard, who is under increasing political pressure to set an exit strategy for Australia's 1,400 troops in and around Iraq.

The focus intensified Wednesday when the British government and other allies announced plans to start withdrawing forces from Iraq, leaving Howard to explain why he is not doing the same.

Opinion polls show the Iraq conflict is deeply unpopular among Australians, and anti-war demonstrations are planned outside venues in Sydney where Cheney is to speak or hold meetings.

Obama, Clinton camps trade accusations over Hollywood donor David Geffen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rival presidential campaigns of Hillary Rodham Clinton and Barack Obama traded accusations of nasty politics Wednesday over Hollywood donor David Geffen, who once backed Bill Clinton but now supports his wife's top rival.

The Clinton campaign demanded that Obama denounce comments made by the DreamWorks movie studio founder, who told New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd in Wednesday's editions that while "everybody in politics lies," the former president and his wife "do it with such ease, it's troubling."

The Clinton camp also called on Obama to give back Geffen's $2,300 contribution.

Campaigning in Iowa, Obama refused. "It's not clear to me why I'd be apologizing for someone else's remark," the Illinois senator said.

Jobless claims fall sharply last week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of laid-off workers filing for unemployment benefits dropped sharply last week after having been driven higher the previous week by storm-related layoffs.

The Labor Department reported that applications for jobless benefits totaled 332,000 last week, down by 27,000 from the previous week.

The prior week jobless claims had jumped by 46,000, the biggest one-week surge since September 2005 in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Part of that big increase occurred because of winter storms which boosted layoffs in such industries as construction.

The four-week moving average for claims edged up from 326,700 to 328,000, the highest level for this average since early December.

The nation's unemployment edged up to 4.6 percent in January, the highest level in four months, and economists believe that rate will rise further perhaps as high as 5 percent in coming months as a slowing economy increases layoffs. Already the slump in housing and weakness in auto manufacturing are triggering layoffs in those industries.

Nevertheless, a seasonally adjusted civilian jobless rate of 4 percent to 5 percent is low by historical standards.

The hope of the Federal Reserve is that a two-year campaign to raise interest rates will work to slow the economy enough to keep inflation under control.

While overall inflation has eased as energy prices have retreated from last year's highs, the government reported Wednesday that core inflation, which excludes volatile energy and food, jumped by 0.3 percent in January, a bigger-than-expected increase that was driven by a huge jump in medical costs.

If these inflation pressures persist, analysts said the Fed will be forced to resume raising interest rates.

The increase of 46,000 claims for the week ending Feb. 10 reflected the fact that 29 states and territories saw claims increase while 24 saw a decrease in claims.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

The night Sylvia played in her first duplicate tournament was a night to remember. She had been a member of the club only two or three weeks, but even in that short period of time the membership had become aware of her extraordinary exploits. We had never previously seen such a player. It wasn't that Sylvia was a poor player — we had lots of them at the club — it was just that her thought processes were so different from those of any other player. Her mistakes were so far removed from ordinary human error that it was clear that her approach to the game was totally unique. Despite this, Sylvia's frequent misadventures occasionally resulted in a sensational triumph, and it was these victories that made her the most-talked-about member of the club.

A few of the members were opposed to allowing Sylvia to play in the duplicate for fear she would spoil the game, but most were in favor of the idea. They were curious to see what would happen, and they didn't have long to wait. On the very first board, Sylvia became declarer at six spades on the hand shown, and West led the jack of spades.

It is hard to explain what happened now. I don't know whether it was the tension of the moment, or the excitement of playing in her first duplicate, or what the reason was that caused her to do what she did, but the fact is that Sylvia played the two from dummy!

This astonishing play was greeted by a strange and eerie silence on all sides. West then shifted to a club. Sylvia took the ace, cashed the ace of diamonds, played a spade to the queen, ruffed a diamond, played a spade to the king and ruffed another diamond, establishing dummy's last three diamonds. She then led a spade to the ace and discarded three clubs on the 10-7-6 of diamonds to make the contract.

Of course, if she had won the opening lead with one of dummy's honors, she would have gone down!

Volvo C30 ads invite buyers to choose

By KORTNEY STRINGER
Detroit Free Press

Mary Anne Housey viewed something this month that made her not want to buy the Volvo C30, which is to go on sale in the United States this summer.

Her source? Volvo's own commercials, including one called "Tomatoes," in which the C30 is pulled off the stage "Showtime at the Apollo" style after a seemingly angry audience throws tomatoes at the hatchback.

"I got the impression that you don't want to take a look at this car because people don't like it," said Housey, a Roseville, Mich., resident who drives a Buick LaCrosse.

Ford Motor Co.'s Volvo plans to launch its Product of Freewill campaign in the United States during the second or third quarter of this year, after it began running in Europe last year. The campaign, which will precede the launch of the 2008 Volvo C30 in the United States, features several ads that ask people to consider whether they like the vehicle, rather than just telling them why they should.

For instance, one ad, called "Love it/Hate it," flashes back and forth between a cuddly white rabbit sitting in the grass next to the C30 under sunny skies, and a dark, thundery day with a dirty, rat-like creature perched near the car.

Another spot, called "Hiss it/Kiss it" pans slowly from animated dark shadows of people firing axes, frogs and arrows at the C30 to a crowd on the other side of the car hurling hearts, butterflies and X's and O's. The ads can be viewed at www.volvocars.com/freewill.

John Maloney, a vice president at Volvo Cars of America, the marketing arm of Ford's Volvo brand in the United States and Canada, said the ads are indicative of consumers' reactions to the vehicle.

"The campaign is very tongue-and-cheek, love it or hate it, because the car is not a middle-ground car," he said. "We want people to make a frank assessment of the car. It's not for everyone, and we're not going to tell you how to feel about this car."

Volvo's campaign illustrates how eager advertisers are to stand out as consumers grow increasingly savvy and weary of traditional advertising. Volvo, which is targeting 25- to 34-year-olds with the campaign, is hoping the ads will attract consumers who want a car that stands out in a crowded parking lot, even if not everyone is crazy about it.

But taking the approach of "we'll show you our flaws and let you decide what you think about our product" can be risky, said Hugh Cannon, a Wayne State University advertising professor.

"You don't want to give people permission to think bad things," he said. "It can backfire. On the other hand, some people in America like quirky advertising and quirky products."

Indeed, advertisers in the past have tried to capitalize on their flaws, quirks and peculiarities in ads — with mixed results. In the late 1960s, when Dr. Pepper Co.'s "the most misunderstood soft drink" highlighted the product's oddities, consumers embraced the brand.

Conversely, last year when General Motors Corp.'s Chevy tried to set itself apart by offering consumers the opportunity to make their own Web video commercials about the Tahoe SUV, some consumers dished the truck openly in ads.

It took the Garden City Lady Kats almost four minutes to score a point, but it took them less than two quarters to turn the basketball game around and blow-out Westbrook, 72-39.

The Lady Kats (30-3) are heading to Fort Worth Friday behind a team effort that started on the defensive end of the court. According to coach Brent Kirland, facing Westbrook means facing one of the toughest players in the state — Allison Bray.

Bray is a 5-foot-10 senior that has led the Wildcats for four years. She scored over 35-points the last time she laced up her sneakers and she managed to lead her team in scoring against Garden City (23-points).

The contest started with Westbrook scoring the first six points and pulling out to a 14-7 lead halfway through the first quarter.

That's when the Lady Kats began applying full court pressure and turned Dorothy Garrett Coliseum into their personal playground.

"We were worried when the game started, but we knew we just needed to slow down and be patient," senior guard Marissa Schwartz said.

"Coach told us this was a great opportunity and that this should be an exciting time for us. I mean, we have wanted this since we were freshman. That really helped to hear that we were supposed to enjoy everything."

With the game tied at 14-14, Garden City went on an 18-0 run and never looked back.

By halftime there was little doubt as to which school had the best basketball team, as GC led 35-18.

"We were just excited about being here," explained Kirland, when asked about the first quarter. "We knew we would have a lot of adrenaline and we talked about that before the game. Once the second quarter began we calmed down and played much better, of course it sure helped that Bray was in foul trouble. That was big and really helped us make our big run."

In the second half the Garden City lead was never challenged and ballooned to 29 points by the end of the third quarter.

Erin Hirt led the Lady Kats by scoring 17-points and K'Lann Niehues added 16 more.

"We knew we needed to play for all four quarters no matter the score was," Niehues said, as the rest of her team celebrated court-side. "Westbrook

Hawks sweep two from Weatherford

MIKE GRIMES

Sports Editor

The Howard Hawks baseball team welcomed Weatherford College to Jack Barber Field Wednesday by sweeping the double-header 9-4 and 14-6.

In game one the Hawks sent Ryan Robinson out to the mound and the lefty continued to give the Hawks solid pitching. He is now 4-0 on the season and went another 6-innings for the win on Wednesday.

In the bottom of the first inning, Matt Curry continued to swing a hot bat and blasted one out of the park for an early Hawk lead. Curry finished the game by going 2-for-3 and had 2 RBI.

Tyler Ladendorf continued to impress Hawk fans. He leads the nation in steals with 23 and has yet to be thrown out.

Despite Weatherford holding him down on the bases, the short-stop went 4-for-4 at the plate — missing the cycle by only a home run. He had two singles, a double and a triple in game one.

"We're just taking it one bat at a time right now," Ladendorf explained. "One bat and one game. That's how its done on this team. The chemistry on the team is great and we're always loose. That helps. We're still a young team, but all we can do is grow-up in a hurry and that's what we've done."

Josh Riley went 2-for-4 at the plate with two singles. He had 2 RBI and Nathan Brian was 2-for-3 and he picked up 1 RBI.

The Hawks are now 12-2 on the season.

The next time Howard hits the diamond they will face Lubbock Christian College at Jack Barber Field, Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Howard baseball team won the first game 9-4 and the second game 14-6. The Hawks are now 12-2 on the season.

Howard softball team loses two conference games to Midland

Chaparrals sweep Hawks 8-0 and 3-2

MIKE GRIMES

Sports Editor

The Howard College softball team opened Western Junior College Athletic Conference play by getting swept 8-0 and 3-2, by arch rival Midland.

The Hawks had a 13-2-1 record on Wednesday morning, but the Lady Chaparrals (15-1-1) rolled into Big Spring and hung four runs on the scoreboard in the first inning and then held the Hawks to only three hits and zero runs for an easy game-one route.

Starting pitcher Jennifer Osso was tagged with the loss, as the young pitcher failed to get out of the first inning.

Kayla Hitchcock was 2-for-3 with three RBI in the game and Mindy Scott pitched all five scoreless innings to garner the win for Midland.

In the third inning the Hawks threatened as Alisha Rams and Osso each had singles and reached safely, but the offense could do no more damage.

After the fifth inning the game was called due to the 8-run rule.

"We really didn't deserve to win either game we played today," Hawks head coach Kelly Raines said after the double header was over. "Midland deserved to win and that's about all I can say. We made way too many mistakes to win."

In game two the Hawks were able to stay within striking distance of the Lady Chaparrals.

Down 3-0, the Hawks continued to battle and after being held scoreless for 10 consecutive innings, the Howard women were finally able to post a run — make that two runs — in the bottom of the sixth inning.

With Hawk base-runners on first and second, Alejandra Rodriguez

Alejandra Rodriguez fouls off a pitch in the early innings of the second game of the Hawks doubleheader Wednesday afternoon. The Hawks are now 13-4-1 and 0-2 in conference.

Forsan rips Iraan; playoffs continue

MIKE GRIMES

Sports Editor

Adam Bailey and Blake Grantham led Forsan past Iraan 63-44, Wednesday night to advance to the next round of the basketball playoffs.

Forsan, advancing deep into post season for the second year in a row, used a 18-9 spurt in the third quarter to open up a lead they would not surrender.

Bailey led the Buffaloes (18-7) in scoring with 17-points and led the team in rebounds with 10, but according to the coaching staff, Grantham's performance was the key.

"Blake really came to play tonight," Forsan head coach Terry McDonald said. "Adam Bailey played tough inside and had another great game, but Blake is the one who got us going early. He had 8-points in the first quarter and he played smart basketball for us tonight. That's what we need."

Grantham finished the game with 13-points and 9-rebounds.

In the fourth quarter the

Rockets cool off Heat

HOUSTON — Tracy McGrady scored 32 points Wednesday night to lead the Houston Rockets to a 112-102 victory over the Miami Heat, who had Pat Riley back on the bench but lost Dwyane Wade late in the game.

Wade injured his left shoulder in the fourth quarter and was in so much pain that he had to be taken off in a wheelchair.

The Heat were 13-17 when Riley stepped down nearly seven weeks ago for operations to replace his left hip and repair cartilage in his right knee. They had gotten back on track recently, winning seven of their last eight games, but trailed by as many as 18 Wednesday and dropped back below .500.

Wade, who left with 27 points, got tangled up with Shane Battier and grimaced in pain before going to the bench. A couple of minutes later he was helped into a wheelchair and taken off the bench. He was not moving his left arm and appeared to be in severe pain as he was wheeled away.

The Heat said Wade

would not accompany the team on their trip to Dallas for Thursday night's game, instead going to a Houston hospital to have his injury diagnosed.

A basket by Wade with 11:15 to go got Miami within 89-80 and Alonzo Mourning hit one free throw to cut the lead to eight.

The Rockets then added four 3-pointers, including two on consecutive possessions by McGrady to go ahead 103-88, and the Heat wouldn't threaten again.

Wade scored 13 points in the third quarter, including two straight three-point plays late in the period to cut Houston's lead to 82-74. Bonzi Wells stunned the crowd when he made a 70-foot, desperation heave at the end of the period to extend Houston's lead to 89-75. Wells, who was at the 3-point line on the opposite end of the court when he launched the shot, broke into a huge smile when he saw it fall.

Rafer Alston, who had six 3s and 20 points, got the crowd into it early in the second half when he put a move on Wade that left him standing at the free throw line while he breezed in for the easy layup.

McGrady tweaked a groin midway through the first quarter and left the game briefly to have it taped. He returned about three minutes later and said at halftime that he was fine.

The 40-year-old Dikembe Mutombo looked more spry than the younger O'Neal at times and provided a highlight of the first half when he finished a reverse layup despite being fouled hard by the Miami center. O'Neal, who finished with 20 points, has played just 14 games this season after missing two months early following knee surgery.

Late in the game, O'Neal got a bit of revenge when he had a one-handed dunk over Mutombo. But O'Neal taunted him with the trademark finger wag Mutombo does after getting a block and was given a technical foul.

The Rockets, spurred by nine quick points by McGrady, went on a 15-4 run in the first quarter that gave them a 18-8 lead. Houston outscored the Heat 9-2 late in the second quarter to push their lead to 63-48 at halftime.

Ginobili leads Spurs with 40

By GEORGE HENRY

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Manu Ginobili scored a season-high 40 points, including 24 straight for San Antonio in the first half, and Tim Duncan had 30 to help the Spurs beat the Atlanta Hawks 103-96 on Wednesday night.

The Spurs, who are 8 1/2 games behind Dallas in the Southwest Division, have won four straight after losing four of five.

Entering the game late in the first quarter, Ginobili missed two of his first four shots before hitting six straight from the field and all seven attempts on free throws. The Spurs led 39-23 at the end of his flurry, and Ginobili had 27 points on 9-of-13 shooting before halftime.

Joe Johnson scored 30 points for the Hawks, who have lost two straight.

Zaza Pachulia scored 15 of his 23 points in the third quarter. He went 6-for-7 from the field, twice helping Atlanta tie the game in the final minute of the period.

San Antonio never trailed after Tony Parker's layup made it 4-3. Parker missed eight straight shots before his 20-footer gave the Spurs a 91-82 lead with 3:51 remaining.

A flagrant foul by Johnson led to a five-point possession for the Spurs, as Brent Barry hit three foul shots and Duncan had two. Hawks coach Mike Woodson was hit with a technical foul during the possession, which came with 8:07 left and made it 92-73.

That did the Hawks in and all but secured another victory for San Antonio.

Ginobili never scored more than 29 points in all of last season before finishing with 32 points in a Spurs victory over the Sacramento Kings in the first round of the playoffs.

In his first nine games as San Antonio's sixth man, Ginobili averaged 17.4 points in 25 minutes to become the NBA's second-most productive reserve of all time.

Only the Chicago Bull's Ben Gordon, with 22.5 points in 31.1 minutes, had a better average than Ginobili.

Atlanta, which won three of four before the All-Star break, closed within five points on Josh Childress' putback dunk with 2:47 remaining in the game.

That was a close as the Hawks would get.

Josh Smith had 11 rebounds for the Hawks.

stepped to the plate and roped a line drive that sailed over the left fielders glove and rolled to the fence. The at bat was ruled as an error, but two runs came home and Rodriguez was in position to score the tying run.

"I think we came out cocky and overconfident because of our record today," Hawks catcher Vanessa Justin said after the two losses. "Looking back I think we just went through the motions and that's not how you win games in this conference."

The Hawks failed to deliver with Rodriguez in scoring position.

In the top of the seventh Howard set down the Lady Chaparrals and still had a chance to steal a win.

In the bottom of the inning the Hawks put the tying run on second.

Facing their final out of the game, the Hawks sent Osso to bat with two outs.

With Justin standing on second base and representing to the tying run, Osso appeared to have delivered the big hit the Hawks needed. It was a ground ball up the middle of the diamond and heading into centerfield when the Chaparral second baseman made a diving stop, wheeled around and fired a strike to the catcher.

Justin was rounding third and heading for home.

When the dust cleared, the umpire called Justin out as she tried to slide in for the tying run.

"We had two outs and I was running on any contact," Justin explained.

"When I was halfway home I realized there was going to be a play at the plate and I really thought I could beat the tag and get to the corner. In retrospect, I probably should have just made contact with their catcher."

"This was a big wake-up call for us. Nobody likes to go home a loser. I'm sure we'll bounce back, we're ready to start winning games again."

On Friday the Hawks will travel to face Frank Phillips College.

never gave up — not till the very end, but we wanted to finish this game our way — by playing tough basketball to the very end."

Birtney Chudej added 7-points from the post position and Lauren Plagens scored 6 for the Lady Kats. By the time the clock ran down, everyone on the Garden City bench was having a good time and looked ready to go cut down the nets. In fact, coach Kirkland had to remind his team to go accept the game winning trophy.

"This just feels great," Schwartz hollered. "I'm excited and we're all excited. We're going to Fort Worth."

FORSAN

Buffaloes continued to pull away, outscoring Iraan 14-11 over the final 8:00 for the 63-44 win.

Seth Johnson nailed three 3's in the game and finished the night with 15-points.

With the victory, the Buffaloes have earned another playoff game tomorrow night. Sundown High (18-8) and Forsan will meet in Andrews, with the tip-off scheduled for 7 p.m.

"We match-up well with Sundown," McDonald said Thursday morning. "We are both similar in size and they like to run man-to-man defense. We're going to need another good crowd behind us, but I feel like we have an excellent opportunity for success. We are going to have to make more free throws now that we're in the playoffs, especially down the stretch and we need to keep from turning the ball over. It should be a good game and I want to thank everyone for coming out and cheering for us.

"I hope to see everyone in Andrews, Friday night."

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

As the sun and Mercury shake hands, a feeling of mutual appreciation emanates. It's obvious what we're grateful for, whom we like and where we feel our best. This is communicated clearly, even by those who like to emotionally mumble about. Choosing the right words isn't so important. It's intention that really puts your message through.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Work is more of a challenge than you might care to take on, but that's just the way it goes. If not you, then who? The answer is no one. You're better off for taking responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The best way to avoid snags is maintenance. That means getting your car worked on before it completely breaks down and buying flowers for your girlfriend before she cries, "Neglect!"

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You love the prospect of building each "now" moment to the hilt, but you're a bit gun-shy when it comes to making plans. However, you could make an exception for Leo, Libra and Capricorn people.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It's easy to pass the blame (even when it's not your fault), but it takes too long. Handle what you have control over, and miraculous good luck sets in. Tonight, time away from a partner allows you to think.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You temporarily forgot about something on your to-do list, but it catches up to you. The cure for being overwhelmed is to add a new responsibility to your list -- it's a crazy idea, but it works.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You know what you're all about. But if you didn't know this, others would fill in the blank for you. When someone attempts to steal your freedom, remind yourself and the world what you stand for.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). What if there were a benevolent force supporting your every action? Well, there is. So dare to name the thing you've been wanting to do, but were previously afraid to even say it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). "Right as rain" is a farmer's saying from the Old South. The appearance of something unwanted often brings untold beauty and richness with its passing. Recognize the fertile ground an obstacle brings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Be careful not to negate the powerful forces at work. When those forces are on your side, it makes no sense to insult them. Be grateful for what's working, and give credit where it's due.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're in a romantic mood. Focus on intimacy and communication. Social tip: It isn't necessary to invite a large number of people for an upcoming party to be a success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's a terrific day to sit back and accept the good things that happen without feeling you must always pay people right back. People help you because they want to, not because they're getting something in return.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Opposites attract, but have a hard time working together. Would you rather have an agreeable "yes" person on your team, or turn out a higher quality of work because a stickler personality is examining your every move?

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "Will my boyfriend ever marry me? I was born Aug. 10, 1962. He's an Aries who keeps saying he needs more time."

You're a Leo, and an Aries/Leo combination starts off on the right foot. Notice I said "starts off." Both fire signs, you can keep up with each other's fast pace and need to be the catalyst that makes things happen. Unfortunately, Aries men have a tendency to mistrust their own judgment. I feel your guy's fears about marriage have to do with a not-so-distant ex. She's no rival for his love, but since she's always available, it gives him an escape hatch. You and many Leo and Libra women will be sought after by marriage-minded men in March. However, if you want this Aries man, create some distance between you. Spend more time with family and friends than you spend with him. Aries men respond to spectacle: They want to have their drama (your mutual relationship) played out on a large stage. When he makes the suggestion of marriage, don't start planning a lavish wedding. That will make him doubt again!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: One of the qualities Pisces people are well known for is precociousness. It's not that they try to be smarter, wiser and more talented than their years on the planet would normally dictate; it's that they can't help it. The golden-throated Charlotte Church is one such Pisces, with four luminaries in that gifted sign. A star at the age of 11, her following continues to grow in numbers along with her.
