Cossacks to celebrate 10th-year anniversary in Big Spring Saturday

By ROGER CLINE Staff Writer

Looking for something to do this weekend? Do you like motorcycles, local bands and good food? Or do you maybe want to support a local organization that pulls together to help folks in need from all walks of life throughout the community? Why not come out for the Big Spring Chapter of the Cossacks Motorcycle Club's 10-year anniversary blow-out, scheduled to start at noon Saturday at the Cossacks Clubhouse, 1610 N. Birdwell Lane?

"Basically it's celebrating our 10-year anniversary here in Big Spring," said club spokesman Greg Bodin. "We've been around since 1969, but we've only been in Big Spring since

The celebration will include the club's traditional poker run and -50/50 drawings; food, leather and jewelry vendors:

OUR VIEWS

We salute:

Each week, the Herald salutes individuals and groups from our community and area who have been recognized for special achievements or accomplishments.

We recognize these special people for working to help make our region a better place to live, work and play

This week we salute:

- Top Coahoma High School students JAMES AUSTIN BARTON, valedictorian, and NATALIE RODGERS, salutatorian.
- Top Forsan High-School students RACHEL KAELIN, valedictorian, and JENNIFER DIANE LOPEZ, salutatorian.
- The many MEN AND WOMEN WHO SERVED SO VALIANTLY in the armed forces, ensuring we became and remain a free nation.
- Retiring Big Spring Independent School District employees MURRAY MURPHY, superintendent; PAULA COLE, technology director; and CLAUDIA STABENO, administrative assistant.
- The 64 STUDENTS who graduated from COAHOMA HIGH SCHOOL on Thursday evening. Congratulations!.

Is there an individual or organization in our community that you feel should be saluted? If so, piease send us their name and why you think they should be recognized. We must have your name and telephone number and you must provide it in writing.

TO THE EDITOR:

It has been my observation over the last 10 years that Big Spring businesses have fallen short in the customer service department. Customers respond to courtesy. When we are come back.

I am not exactly sure where the problem lies. It could be that new (and old) employees aren't trained in this area. It could be that the clerks, bank tellers, business owners, doctors, nurses, receptionists, etc. really do not care if we become a returning customer.

Greetings, thankful goodbyes, helpfulness, professional appearance and the words "ma'am" and "sir" are not out of style.

Of course, this isn't the case of all the businesses becoming more and more common to go into a place and be treated unprofessionally. Wouldn't it be wonderful to know that customers in Big Spring are No. 1? If that became the case, we wouldn't dream of shopping anywhere else.

TO THE EDITOR:

We have been property owners in the same location for more than 30 vears. The last three years we have not voted in the same location twice. Casting our ballots treated with respect, we for our congressman was quite a chore since we had no clue where to do so. Finally, we found the right spot, a site miles from our home, and a poling place where we had never been prior.

As a senior citizen who places much importance on freedom to vote and express my view, this problem of finding where to do so greatly concerns me. A neighboring community newspaper printed on their front page a concise list of precincts in their city and where voting would take place. I could only find the places I patronize, but it is to vote in our paper with no mention of precincts.

Perhaps we need to consolidate in a convenient central location so that there is no question to anyone as to where one can vote. Let's try to make this aspect of the American democracy as accessible as possible, Christy Alton and just maybe more bal-

have this pair of slacks that has been making life miserable for me. It's this faulty zipper, see — well, I didn't mean for you to actually look. Anyway, this zipper just, uh, opens whenever it feels like it.

It doesn't unzip, exactly. It opens from bottom the up. Fortunately, it hasn't gotten stuck that way yet. So far, I've been able to zip it down, then back up, and everything is fine. This has occurred on at least three occasions, and each time I think, "OK, these are the blue ones. I'll either get them fixed or toss them." Then I get home in the evening, take 'em off, and forget about it. Until the next time.

Three weeks ago, I was at work. Down to deadline. I was running late, trying to hurry. I stood up to head to the composing area when I felt the front of my pants separating. Lucky timing. I was able to make it a short distance to the men's room. Nobody had a chance to see. I could even laugh about it.

business establishment, making some random notes for a story. Someone came in the front door and I felt a breeze in a place I know I'm not supposed to feel a breeze, vou know?

So there I was trying to act nonchalant, but fumbling all over the place, trying to cover myself with my notepad. I made it out to the car and I'm reasonably sure no one noticed.

But this past week. This past week was the worst of all. I was putting together a page on one of the composing room computers when my hand brushed the front of my slacks. And I knew. I knew.

There I was, Mr. News Editor, trying to act somewhat authoritative, people all around me and my pants were unzipped. And I don't even know how long they had been that way.

Is there a worse feeling in the world?

Well, let me ask you this. Have you ever tried to work your way around a counter, turn a corner and get through a breakroom — all the time hugging the wall — while making conversation? It's hard to look natural doing that.

GORE WINS!!!

Conservatives embrace Clinton

As I made my way along the wall

Then, last week I was at a local and into the men's room I remember thinking, "It probably doesn't look that bad. Probably, no one could tell it was open. And then I looked in the mirror, and I realized that, no, anyone would have to have been blind not to have noticed.

Now today - you guessed it - I've got those same slacks on again. And because I know that the zipper will eventually do its thing, I keep checking. Just reaching down and making sure. And I'm starting to get some strange looks from my coworkers.

They don't know if I'm turning into a pervert, becoming senile, or if I've been watching way too much baseball.

And I would try to explain my situation, but I'm afraid all that would do is rule out baseball.

So I keep quiet, and keep check-

PETE LANEY

The trivialization of compassion

hirty years ago, bioethicist Peter Singer wrote for the New York Review of Books a piece titled "Animal Liberation." With it, the animalrights movement was born.

Singer wrote in the Guardian last week about his struggle against the prejudice of "species-ism," in calling for animal liberation he wanted to say that "just as we needed to overcome prejudices against black people, women and gays, so too we should strive to overcome our prejudices against nonhuman animals.

A new Gallup Poll suggests that the animal rights movement is gaining popularity: percent polled Americans agreed with the statement that "animals deserve the exact same rights as people SAUNDERS to be free from harm and exploitation,' while 35 percent strongly or somewhat support a ban on medical research on laboratory animals.

OK. Just figure most of the "yes" respondents aren't the smartest pigs on the farm. They apparently hadn't figured out that if animals can claim the same rights as people, there would be no ranching and no meat on the table. (A Time/CNN poll found that 4 percent of Americans call themselves vegetarians, but 37 percent of those "vegetarians" had eaten red meat within the previous 24 hours.)

Frankie Trull, president of the Foundation for Biomedical Research, has a kinder take on the poll results. When people say that they support equal rights for animals, she said, "they really mean that they want animals to be treated humanely" — not equally.

Fair enough. This is a country that boasts countless cat books and legions of dog lovers. Most people don't believe in the gratuitous mistreatment of animals, because it's cruel. It's that simple.

The PR-geniuses at the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. a radical animal rights organization in Norfolk, Va., have harnessed Americans' laudable love of animals, however, to advance a philosophy that is hazardous to human health: the equal treatment of ani-

The allure is obvious — there's a strong sense of purity in the animal-rights movement. As PETA styles it, the battle is between good people — those who are sensitive to the pain of meek animals — and bad people — those who would defend using animals for food and research. At first blush, the animal lover seems more humane.

But listen more carefully, and the humanity fades. "When it comes to feelings like hunger, pain and thirst," PETA top dog Ingrid Newkirk told The New Yorker when asked about using animals for medical research, "a rat is a pig is a dog is a boy.

It's odd how the PETA-philes defend animals, but oppose allowing humans to eat meat like the omnivores we are. Then again, there is a strong element of peoplehating in the animal-rights' move-

You can see it in Newkirk's ratequals-boy statement. She also told The New Yorker that the world would be a better place without people.

Singer, the bioethicist, is even more cold-blooded. He advocates infanticide. "Killing a defective infant is not morally equivalent to killing a person. Sometimes it is not wrong at all," Singer wrote.

What's a "defective" infant? Let the parent decide.

Singer later explained to Reason magazine how his philosophy related to hemophiliac children or other disabled children who can be helped with medical technology: "If the consequences of keeping the baby alive are that you have to go to enormous trouble and spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to keep it alive, then that's a morally different choice from if all you have to do is spend $20 a week, or whatever."

This is Singer's view of advanced morality: Thousands of human lives aren't worth hundreds of thousands of lab animals' lives, but one sick child isn't inherently worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Stanford University Medical Center neurobiologist William Newsome was not happy to hear about the Gallup Poll answers. "If such a ban on research with animals had been put in place, for example, in the year 1903, rather than 2003, everyone that any American knows with Type 1 diabetes would be dead now, every one that any American knows who has had open-heart surgery would not have had open-heart surgery, that many kinds of cancer, many common infections that are treated with antibiotics, would be deadly now."

Indeed, Trull's group has been under such fire for supporting research that saves human lives that it has launched a campaign to advertise how animal research is saving animals' lives.

Why? Because when Trull's association conducted research, it found that more people supported animal research to help animals than supported animal research to help humans.

It has come to this.

"I have the experience," Neugebauer said following the forum. "I have been working on a lot of the issues that were discussed here tonight. I have said from the very beginning that I am not asking the people of West Texas to allow me to start working on their behalf, I'm asking the people of West Texas to allow me to continue working on their behalf as I have been doing.'

Conaway said that he's the man for the job, for similar reasons.

"I've got the qualifications, clearly, to do this,' he said. "I've got the oil and gas background; I've got the understanding of farming issues that are important to defend that farm bill; I've got some interpersonal skills, some intangibles that I believe make me the proper candidate for District 19."

The candidates were among 17 who participated in the May 3 election. Each candidate got slightly more than 20 percent of the vote, with a spread of about 1.5 percent between them.

Neugebauer took Howard County with about 33 percent of the ballots, while Conaway got about 7 percent locally.

The candidates were quizzed by a panel made up of one representative from each of the four sponsoring cities. The were Rene Henderson-Earls Odessa, Steve Castle of Midland, Moore Development Director Kent Sharp Verett of Lubbock. Among the questions (answers given are excerpts from the candidates' responses):

of Big Spring and Steve

• What is your plan to help cure the healthcare problem?

Conaway — "We're going to have to reconcile the fact that we have the greatest, most efficient and best healthcare system in the world, but we can't afford it. That process of reconciliation is going to be very difficult. What we don't want to do as part of this fix is to kill the golden goose, kill that free enterprise model that has given us the most incredible healthcare system in the world."

- Neugebauer — "I am confident that the private sector can work through this problem, assisted by and maybe with some coalition-building by the federal government, but what the federal government does not need to do business."

 Where do you stand on energy policy and what would you push for, especially with this region being so heavily dependent on oil and gas?

- Neugebauer — "I really believe that until we get a comprehensive energy plan that also talks about alternative fuels, renewable sources of energy and also stimulates domestic production of oil and gas in our country, we're not going to have a good energy program."

- Conaway — "We need specific incentives that would incent our oil and gas producers to put the high prices that they're currently getting back in the ground. Every time we put a drilling rig to work in West Texas, about 20 jobs plus are created and communities like Monahans and Crane benefit from that."

· How can you assure the voters of the 19th District that you will support their interests regardless of party wishes and regardless of who is the sitting president at the time?

Neugebauer — "While I was on the city council (of Lubbock), we had some controversial issues come up. One of those was, we had a group that wanted to put community birth control in there and give counseling on abortion. I opposed that. I was on the short end of that vote, but I firmly believe that that was not in the best interests of Lubbock. I understand who I am going to be working for and I have a proven record of taking a stand and sticking to it.

Conaway - "George Bush is my friend. I worked for him for five years and I have a relationship with him that is very special to me. But I'll still represent District 19. I expect there will be a lot of instances where we agree, but there will be some instances where we disagree. I currently disagree with him on the prescription drug card plan for seniors. I don't like the HMO model that he has proposed, and I'm going to have to respectfully disagree with him when that comes up in Congress.'

· What will you do to make sure District 19 gets its share of transportation dollars and how will you handle; it if the Ports to Plains and La Entrada Del Pacifico trade corridors are competing for the same dollars?

Conaway: "It'll be my job as representative that both entities put their best foot forward, that is get in the healthcare clinics throughout our they have the information support their particular proposals, but not to wade would be unfair. It's not so much a competition as a timing issue, because the money will ultimately be there to develop both of those trade corridors. It's especially important to Big Spring, because they basically sit astride both of those corridors.

- Neugebauer: "Those are two very important corridors to the future of tion leaders.

city. They wanted to put they need to be able to West Texas, and they really are not competing corridors. Both of them are in on either side. That needed. They serve different parts of Mexico. I think one of the advantages of having me as your next U.S. congressman is that I have been working on these important transportation issues for the last seven or eight years. By Ken Childress - Associate Pastor

Math, English, History, Science, Fine Arts...whatever.

Nearly every school offers each of these subjects. What makes a Christian Education - and New Hope - so different?

Why I feel a Christian Education is so important.

The difference is clear: Public Education will academically prepare an individual to make a living in this world. A Christian Education will prepare an individual to infiltrate their world with a lifestyle of Christlikeness.

As Christians, we are called to offer ourselves to God, and in so doing, to be used in the service of reconciling people to Him. God as the author of creativity, uses people in myriad ways.

All of these subjects are offered in all public schools across our great nation. Indeed, most people would likely think that in an area such as English, our students would be learning the same thing in the public schools as they would in a Christian school. "After all," thinks the average person, "what do conjunctive adverbs and iambic pentameters have to do with God?"

Allow me to disagree. Each of the subjects listed has everything to do with God. The power of the written word, no matter how much you pick it apart...is very strong. Words are the vehicles that convey ideas...and the way English is taught will have an enormous impact on what ideas are diffused by the English language and how. Underlying worldviews affect the way that all things are taught. So since our students will consequently be learning not only how to write, but what to write, we want to make sure that the ideas we're taking in are in line with the Bible.

Going to a secular school would probably sharpen my thinking skills to a certain degree, and certainly my debate skills. However, why go to a school where the student would be constantly defending what they believe, rather than building on what they believe? The world will certainly give our students enough opportunities to defend their beliefs, but I want a school to be a place that nurtures my thinking and give nourishment to the Bible's standards.

While I have just listed the reasons for wanting a Christian Education, the education itself is not the sole aspect of New Hope Christian School and Preschool. I believe that attending a Christian school would provide our students with the chance to better himself or herself as a person. We want them to grow intellectually, yes, but we also want them to grow spiritually, socially and emotionally.

The classroom is certainly not the only place that will shape their minds. Friendships and relationships that will be formed, conversations they will have, books they will read, memories they will make, people they will meet even in passing - all these combined with various other experiences will profoundly impact their lives as a person, and therefore impact our community.

Thus, attending a Christian school is important to us personally and intellectually. We are looking forward to New Hope Christian School and Preschool opening in the fall because of the personal growth of each student enrolled, and we trust that New Hope will bring out the best in each student. Above all, we want the time your child spends at New Hope to bring them closer and closer to Jesus Christ, who is the very heartbeat of all that matters.

We believe you belong at New Hope. Contact us at 263-0203 for enrollment information.

ANOTHER SHOT AT THE TITLE

Bulldogettes post 2-0 win over Prosper

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

AUSTIN Coahoma head coach Robby Dickenson knew two things heading the opening round of the Class 2A state softball tournament. First, if his Bulldogettes wanted to survive they would have to put the ball into play.

Secondly, he knew if they put it in play, the Prosper Lady Eagles defense, would eventually help them out.

He was right on both counts.

The Bulldogettes, despite recording just three hits, turned two Prosper errors and a dropped third strike into two runs in the seventh inning Thursday afternoon and rolled to a 2-0 victory over Prosper in front of a large crowd at McCombs Field. The win sends Coahoma to the state finals for the first time since

"We knew coming in they had a good pitcher and that their defense hadn't really been tested," said Dickenson. "I had been told if you can put the ball in play, sooner or later, their defense would help you out so we were just trying to make contact and make them field the ball."

The Prosper defense gave Coahoma more gifts than Santa Claus at Christmas in the seventh, making three crucial mistakes that enables the Bulldogettes to load the bases with one out.

The Lady Eagles' woes began early in the seventh. Prosper shortstop Melissa Norris bobble a slow roller to and enabled Andrea Amaro to reach base. Her throw to first, however, was low and bounced into foul territory. Victoria Walker took advantage of the Lady Eagles' defensive lapse seconds later by reaching base when third baseman Ashley Price's throw shorthopped first base and bounced into foul territory — allowing Amaro to streak to third.

The outlook became even grimmer for Prosper junior Kelly Ninemire from there. Coahoma freshman Ashle New benefited from the Lady Eagles' third straight miscue when Prosper catcher Melanie Norris dropped a third strike. New beat out the throw to load the bases. Megan Young, one of four Coahoma seniors to graduate at home plate prior to the game, didn't give Ninemire a break from there. After Ninemire had recorded a strike out of pitcher Sarah Dunn, the Bulldogette senior pounded the first pitch she saw into the dirt to short.

Freshman Sarah Dunn throwing ball to plate in third inning of the Bulldogettes' 2-0 win over Prosper Thursday afternoon in the semifinal round of the Class 2A state tournament. Coahoma will play for the state championship Saturday morning.

Norris' attempt to catch Amaro in a force at home failed when her throw to the plate sailed wide giving Coahoma a 1-0 lead with one out. The Prosper defense shot itself in the foot again from there. Lady Eagles' sophomore outfielder Casey Jarma dropped a fly ball to left by Garcia, allowing courtesy runner Kristi Hutchison to race home with the second run.

"I thought we were going to blow it open there," said Dickenson. "What's really nice about it was it was the bottom of the order that came through for us. At a time maybe they thought they could relax a little, the girls stepped it up."

Coahoma, which won the Class 2A state title in 1998, weathered a threat in the bottom of the seventh to nail down a trip to the finals in its record-tying sixth state appearance.

Prosper, which had managed just three hits in the first six innings off Dunn, picked up back-to-back singles in the bottom of the seventh, bringing the winning run to the plate before Walker and Dunn slammed the door.

With runners on first and second, Dunn enticed Elizabeth Stewart to pop up into foul territory to Walker at third. Minutes later, Dunn posted her fifth postseason win by fanning the final batter.

"We knew we would do it," said Young, who sat in the stands as an eighth grader the last time Coahoma advanced to the finals. "We never gave up on ourselves. We came into this game telling everyone that we were going to give 110 percent and leave everything on the field. We never felt out of this."

Ninemire, who had entered the tournament with a 23-1 record,

Rangers defeat Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Texas Rangers knew this wasn't going to be a pitcher's duel.

Facing a team that scored 26 runs in three games against them last week, the Rangers figured they'd need plenty of offense to beat the Baltimore Orioles.

Led by Hank Blalock, Texas got it done.

Blalock went 3-for-3, walked twice and scored two runs as the Rangers ended Baltimore's fourgame winning streak with an 8-4 victory Thursday night.

The Orioles denied a fifth straight win for the first time since May 2001, and their run of nine straight games reaching double figures in hits also came to an end.

"We knew we were going to have to put some runs on the board since they've been swinging the bats very well," Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "It was a little frustrating we didn't score more runs."

Especially because Texas drew six walks, including five Orioles starter Hentgen (1-2).

"The team's been playing so well. I hate to stop that winning streak like that," Hentgen said. "You want to keep that train rolling, and I didn't do that tonight. I was wild. I walked five guys in four innings, and you can't do that."

Ismael Valdes (5-2) allowed two runs, four hits and a walk in 5 2-3 innings to earn his second win in seven days.

"Ishy pitched well, found the strike zone," Showalter said. "I thought the difference was their guy threw some walks and Ishy didn't.' Francisco Cordero, who entered in the seventh, earned his second save.

With two doubles and a single, Blalock boosted his batting average to .359 and regained the AL lead from Baltimore's Melvin Mora.

"I don't pay attention to that day-to-day," Blalock said. "I am curious about it though. I'll just keep doing what I'm doing and see how it turns out. It's not how you start, but how you finish."

It's been quite a start for the third baseman. He enjoyed his 19th multihit game of the season Thursday.

Prosper ace allowed Coahoma just one hit while striking out five of the first 10 batters she faced in the first three innings of play. The Bulldogettes' lone hit came via an infield single by senior Ashley Lang in the first.

Dunn looked like anything but a rookie in her state debut. Aided by a diving stop by New at second, she bettered Ninemire's effort in the first three innings by retiring all nine batters she faced.

Coahoma staged its first real threat of the contest in the fourth as Michele Walker led off the inning with a single to right.

Ninemire managed to work out of the jam, however. After striking out the next batter she faced, the Prosper defense erased Walker on the basepaths by turning a slow roller to third by Tawna Jacobs into a force at second.

Ninemire, who finished with nine strikeouts, didn't struggle in the fifth and sixth. Despite a twoout single by Dunn in the fifth and a throwing error by the shortstop, that allowed Garcia to reach base in the sixth, Ninemire kept the Coahoma offense offstride. Dunn's hit was the only ball that managed to leave the infield.

Prsper, which had entered the tournament as the No. 2 seed with a 24-1 record, staged its biggest threat in the fourth inning, putting runners on second and third with one out before Dunn and the Bulldogette defense stifled the effort.

With one out, Dunn fanned Melanie Norris and then got Price to fly out to Young in right.

'We played real well defensively," Dickenson. "We made the played, when we had to all day. We've played like this down the stretch and that's what has enabled us to be where we are."

Dunn went the distance for the CHS squad, allowing five hits while fanning four.

The Bulldogettes, who tied Hewitt Midway for the most appearances in the state tournament's history, will go gunning for their second state crown Saturday, beginning at 8 a.m., against defending state champion Weimar.

ing it 79-71. Ginobili added two free throws before Van Exel ended Dallas' drought with 2:51 left.

8:02, Over the Mavericks missed seven shots and committed six turnovers. It was a stunning meltdown for a team that has thrived on making other teams melt down, such as in Game 5, when they made San Antonio blow a 19-point lead.

"We were playing so well for so long and the bottom just dropped out," coach Don Nelson said. "We couldn't get a shot to go in. We went cold at the wrong time."

Nelson, only under contract as general manager next season, might've been on the sideline for the final time.

Kerr, the career leader in 3-point accuracy, took only four shots, but made them all, and all were behind the line. That made for 12 points in 13 minutes. He also had three assists and two rebounds.

Horoscope

BY JOYCE JILLSON Life is a little like a children's pop-up book today as you turn the page, you're not quite sure what's going to spring out at you, and the surprise is sensational. The new moon in Gemini promises it will be obvious when you're given a fresh start,

Joyce Jillson

as new projects look nothing like the old ones. It's more fun to work together than it is to go solo.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Your ideas about what's glamorous or sexy are changing. Entertaining your friends and colleagues puts you in the best light. Just let someone else handle the food. What you pay for this afternoon is well worth the cost.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Heed a hunch that makes down-to-earth sense. Look at tests, interviews and auditions as a learning experience. You've got an aura of mystery around you when you're working hard. It's no big surprise someone has a crush on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your view of the world is sunnier than most people's today, so you see those fresh opportunities that jaded eyes miss. Regarding new policies and changing rules at work — follow instructions carefully because slip-ups are costly. CANCER (June 22-July 22). Lines that should remain clear get blurred Caution: Divide business and friendship. A pal really wants to help you out, but you mustn't accept too much from this person, as it will jeopardize the relationship. LEO (July '23-Aug. 22). Speak with confidence about the future, even if you don't feel that way yet. Critical forces should be simply turned off. An idea you have been toying with will work — follow it through. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 30). You have a knack for practical inventions and understanding new technology, and new projects undertaken over the next six weeks are profitable. An office romance that knocks your socks off crops up in August. November weddings give you something for which to be truly thankful. A lot of personal restructuring takes place in January. Let it happen. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 20, 18, 45 and 51.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Unmotivated in your personal life? Give yourself some private deadlines. People love your communication style; the more articulate you are, the more money you can ask for. Financial dealings require a second look.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Steps you took toward becoming an expert in your field may not have turned out exactly the way you wanted. There is nothing wrong with making a mistake as long as you get back on the horse. Heed lessons.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You've already got a lot going for you socially, but there's a chance to add another layer of class to your personality. Take up an interest that happens to be shared by prominent members of your communi-

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Aesthetics matter, and domestic harmony is a worthy way to spend your time. Putting up shelves, recovering the couch or painting will turn your living space into a masterpiece without spending a bundle, either

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A crazy leap might be just the thing to get your dream romance going. One bold move could explosively broaden your horizons. Stretch your mind — in fact, higher education might fill the void for some ambitious Cappys.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18 A new lease on life involves opening the doors and windows and getting some air flowing through. Fresh energy helps you get a practical handle on things it only takes a day to file away (or throw away!) that pile of clutter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Choose a theme, and stick to it. This helps you dial out the unnecessary distractions and stay on purpose. You are quite entertaining to your friends and family — they depend on you to contribute to the conversation.

ANGELES-How many roads must a man walk down before Martin Scorsese makes a movie about him?

The answer, my friend, is in the tentatively titled "Bob Dylan Anthology Project," a biography about the iconic folk singer directed by the "Gangs of New York" filmmaker.

The film, planned for release in 2005, will chronicle Dylan's 1963 breakthrough and the cultural and political influence of his music, Scorsese and his producing partners said Luesday

"I've admired and enjoyed his many musical transformations," Scorsese said in a statement. "For me, there is no other musical artist who weaves his influences so densely to create something so personal and unique.'

In addition to playing in some theaters, the movie will also be broadcast on PBS in the United States and the BBC in the United Kingdom. The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame has described Dylan, 62, as "the pre-eminent poet/lyricist and songwriter of his time" for composing such songs as "Like a Rolling Stone," "Blowin' in the Wind" and "Mr. Tambourine Man.'

Dylan also acts and sings in the upcoming fictional drama "Masked and Anonymous," set to debut July 25.

CANNES, France (AP) When your last movie starred eight of France's most beloved actresses, what do you do next?

You recover from the experience. After Women," a murder mystery set in a snowed-in chateau, director Francois Ozon came to the Cannes Film Festival with "Swimming Pool." The new film has just two leading ladies - a welcome change of pace after working with eight stars.

"It was my fault that I had landed myself with all these actresses, and there were a lot of egos involved," Ozon said Monday.

"8 Women" starred Catherine Deneuve, Fanny Ardant, Isabelle Huppert, Emmanuelle Beart. Danielle Darrieux, Virginie Ledoyen, Ludivine Sagnier and Firmine Richard.

Sagnier, 23, the youngest member of the "8 Women" cast, also appears in the new film, a thriller set in Provence, along with British actress Charlotte Rampling.
