Gatesville Public Schools To Open September 9

HERE and THERE
By Joe Quinn

TO SAY that an economic crisis is at hand is repeating words that have been said time and again, but we cannot overlook the truth within those words, hence repetition is essentially important. We must constantly remind ourselves of the seriousness of the present situation.

I wonder if I do not speak for many fellow citizens when I say that oftentimes I realize the positive sin of my own negligence in overlooking of the important factors that affect commercial interests of Gatesville and Coryell County. We all need, at some time or another, to have out intelligence literally jarred by someone who is cognizant of present conditions and problems.

A day or so ago it was my good fortune to talk to a local merchant of Gatesville, who brought to my attention pertinent facts that I had never seen before, and for the benefit of my readers I shall attempt to convey his message in a few words.

Local merchants are abreast of the times, which is indicative of the recent change in prices of their merchandise. At the same time they are competing with mail-order houses, who are able to use their widely read catalogues, published prior to the advance in prices, in competition with current newspaper advertisements. Here is the situation: When the newspaper and the mail-order catalogue are delivered in the same mail to Mr. Consumer, he immediately makes price comparisons on each particular article that he contemplates buying. The mail-order price is lower, and as a consequence that particular house makes the sale, the local merchant is left holding the proverbial sack. As a means of insurance printed on each page of the catalogue may be found these words: "Price subject to change without notice," which is many times overlooked by Mr. Consumer.

My reader, you can easily see through the situation which now prevails, and may I remind you of its seriousness? We must feel that it is our duty as citizens to protect our local institutions, and the ast word is, BUY AT HOME.

SUPT WILLIAMS OUTLINES WORK FOR STUDENTS

In order that high school students and those who are entering the Gatesville High School for the first time, may better understand the program of studies offered and proceed to map out their work before the opening of school we give below the suggested courses for each grade. There are 27½ affiliated courses offered in the high school curriculum and band work which is not affiliated at present. Of this total sixteen units must be earned for graduation, with an additional unit in student activities or outside work.

The requirements for graduation include four units in English, two units in history which must include American History, one unit in science with two units recommended, one unit in algebra, one unit in plane geometry, and two units in the same foreign language for those students who plan to enter a literary college. The foreign language is not compulsory and the one

R. B. Curry Is County Correspondent of Farm Credit Administration

R. B. Curry of Gatesville has recently been appointed county correspondent under the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act which passed Congress early last May, authorizing an appropriation of $200,000,000 to be loaned to farmers to aid them in their refinancing problems. This fund is being administered by the new Farm Credit Administration of which Henry Morgenthau Jr. is Governor. Immediately in charge of this work is Albert S. Goss, Land Bank Commissioner. Mr. Andrew Graves is his agent in Texas. These refinancing loans are made through agents stationed in the Federal Land Banks and they in turn have their representatives, so-called local correspondents, in practically every county throughout the United States. In most instances these are the secretary-treasurers of national farm loan associations located in the county seat. In some instances they are other people who are also well versed in farm mortgage credit and they are equipped to help farmers make out their applications for loans.

OFFICIAL COUNTY ELECTION COUNT

The following is a summary of the official count on the August 26, election, in which Coryell County voted against repeal of the 18th Amendment, 3.2 per cent beer and the local sale of beer. This county voted for the Homestead exemption, $20,000-600 Bond issue, and Home Rule. Repeal- For, 801; against, 1392 Home Rule- For, 927, against, 740.

Bonds- For, 1214, against, 914 Beer- For, 791; against, 1392 Home Exempt- For, 1334; against, 542.

MRS. KATE BROWN

The funeral of the late Mrs. Kate Brown, who has a host of friends in this vicinity, was held at 10 a. m. Thursday of last week at the Christian Church of Monrovia, the Rev. Shaul, pastor of the church, officiating. Mrs. Howard Givins sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," to harp accompaniment. The pallbearers were nephews and grandsons, and interment was in the Morovania cemetery.

Mrs. Brown, a native of Tennessee, would have celebrated her 76 birthday in December. She first came to Holtville in 1913 and since then divided her time here and on the Coast. She died Wednesday following about three weeks' illness, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. M. Dotson in Pasadena. Mrs. Dotson formerly lived in Holtville.

Mrs. Brown is survived by two children, Mrs. Dotson and Councilman P. B. Brown of Holtville. —Holtville Tribune, Holtville California.

FOUND FATALLY WOUNDED NEAR STEPHENVILLE

George Carlton, 28, Stephenville, brother of Frank Carlton, a former resident of Gatesville, was found Wednesday morning fatally wounded at the side of his car near that city. A 22 caliber rifle was found near the dead man's body. It is supposed that Carlton was killed by accident.

When last seen, Carlton left his home on a hunting trip, with the intention of picking up a friend on his way. He failed to reach the friend's home.

AID FOR HOME OWNERS MAY BE OBTAINED NOW

Announcement is made by H. C. Stinnett, local attorney, for the Home Owner's Loan Corporation, and R. L. Saunders, local appraiser for said corporation, that their respective offices are now open to aid any home owner in any of the several towns in Coryell County, who is in distress and in danger of losing their home, and who desires to refinance indebtedness on their home that existed on June 13, 1933, or prior thereto.

Some weeks ago, upon recommendation of Congressman O. H. Cross, the above two representatives were selected by James Shaw, State Manager of the Corporation, to handle this work in so far as it pertained to the homes in the several towns in Coryell County; and these men have been acquainted themselves with this law and its procedure since their appointment. These men state that they will give to the press from time to time any new rulings that come to their attention that may in any way relieve distressed home owners in these towns.

Since this law began to function it has been generally observed that it is a relief measure. (Continued on last page)

PAINTER & LEE BUYERS RETURN FROM MARKET

Mr. George Painter, co-proprietor of the firm, Painter & Lee, together with Mrs. Arthur Matthews, of the ladies ready-to-wear department returned to Gatesville the early part of this week after a trip to the Dallas wholesale market.

Mr. Painter reports a very successful trip, which was the third of this kind this season in the interest of fall marketing for the local business institution.

YUM! YUM!

With a new chef who is capable of putting the finishing touches on a T-bone broiled in butter, or a vegetarian lunch, the popularity of the Cozy Cafe has been increased by the satisfactory "Yum-Yums" of old and new customers alike.

Prompted by the many interrogatives put to Kay and Bill Ament, concerning their food, they have made public the announcement that Louis Campbell, formerly of Hamilton, has recently become the new chef for the Cozy. Mr. Campbell has been in the cafe business for a number of years, and is an experienced chef and food expert.

Mrs. Henry Sadler and her daughter, Betty Joe, left last Tuesday for their home in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Her mother, Mrs. J. R. McClellan, accompanied her home for an extended visit.

Woodland Meador, who has been attending N. T. S. T. C. at Denton, has returned to resume his work as teacher at the State Juvenile Training School.

Barefoot 10-Mile Hikes and Pointed Gats Hold No Allure For Boy Who Experienced Both

Did you ever have a "young cannon" pointed at your head with serious intent? If you have, you know how A. K. Young felt on the night of August 18.

A. K. was driving home from a late show in a new Plymouth coupe which belonged to his brother-in-law, Van Hall. A. K. paused at a stop light. A pedestrian hailed him, asking a direction. He hesitated to answer and when he did the questioner walked to the car, pointed a gun

MESSAGE TO RURAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

By Frank L. Williams, Supt.

It is expected that there will be a large number of students from nearby rural high schools enter the Gatesville High School at the opening of the approaching session. All students from these schools who have not attended the Gatesville schools should secure from the home school teacher or from the county superintendent a record of work done in the rural school and should have this record for presentation at the time of enrollment. All such students should enroll at the Gatesville high school on Wednesday or Thursday, September 6-7, in order to get all irregularities straight before the regular opening on Saturday, September 9.

Students who expect the state to pay the high school tuition should also secure from the County Superintendent or from the office of the city superintendent, a Rural High School Tuition Certificate and have it properly signed by the rural school trustees for presentation at the time of enrollment. This certificate should be signed in duplicate and both copies presented to the Gatesville High School, or first presented to the County Superintendent for approval and then one copy given to the high school office. This item should be seen to before the opening of school.

'round the square

By The Snooper

Frank Battle is so blue lately he has almost turned "Red." If you get my meaning. He said if someone didn't offer him a job pretty soon he intended turning Bolshevik. Dahlia Mae Murray and Penelope Hardin, pointing with pride to the new signs on their desks at the city offices, I had been looking for Rev. McLean every day, and when I did find him I realized he had been "vacationing." R. T. Moore started working for Davidson Bros. just in time to weigh up the cotton goods for the processing tax. Jno. T. Morgan taking home one of those old-fashioned waffle irons, remarking that he intended enjoying real eating now. Mat Jones must be going somewhere for the week-end; I saw him getting a haircut before Saturday. Mrs. Dan McClellan looks so tidy one could hardly believe that she recently trod the paths of the World's Fair. Mrs. Morris Roberts and her attractive sister, Katherine Gordon, enjoying each other's company.

A pleasant week end outing was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chestnut, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Panckake, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Davidson, Mr. Ralph Stelzer and Miss Nell Pollard of McKinney. They camped on the Leon River. Fish and squirrel were bountiful.

Miss Emma Lee Carlile is home from a visit in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton of Roscoe visited with Supt. and Mrs. Frank Williams.

Mrs. A. C. Schloeman and daughter, Miss Mary Ella, were Waco visitors last Friday.

Elwood Young returned Monday from Wichita Falls where he has been visiting his sisters, Mrs. W. C. Fowler and Mrs. Van Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Tucker and Bobby Wood of Elkhart were here for a few days visiting Mrs. W. W. Hammack and other relatives.

Miss Eva Spence and her friend Miss Rosalie Janda of La Grange left Tuesday for a two weeks visit to Chicago where they will be guests in the John M. Hilsher home. The Hilshers are relatives of Miss Janda.

Mrs. Turk Brown was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Caruth to Killen Monday evening for a visit with Mrs. Brown's mother, who has been ill. Mrs. Brown remained over.

FARMERS URGED TO WORK ONLY RELIEF HANDS

"No person can get on the relief rolls while there is still cotton in the fields and cotton-pickers needed", is the sentiment recently expressed by Director Lawrence Westbrook through Fred G. Prewitt, local administrator of the Texas Rehabilitation and Relief Commission. In other words, all of the unemployed of Coryell County will be placed on the list of cotton pickers, and no direct relief will be administered during the picking season.

The farmers are urged to lend their close cooperation to the program. Those in need of pickers are asked to notify the local office. There are some 400 families on the roll who are able to pick cotton. These employees will be furnished the farmers as rapidly as possible and the farmers are urged not to become impatient since it takes some time to arrange for the families to move into the cotton fields. It may be necessary that the farmers furnish transportation for pickers. Farmers are particularly urged to employ only those on the relief rolls. This will help the county cause, and put Coryell County in a good light with the Texas Commission.

THE FIDDLE FIXER

Williams, the repair man, from Brady, is now located in the old post-office building on the south side of the square. He's a fixer from 'way back, and knows everything from fiddles to phonographs, when it comes to fixin'. Williams has made several musical instruments, which he has on display, and while you are looking them over he will pick a cord for you on his "git-tar".

Miss Emma Lee Carlile is home from a visit in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton of Roscoe visited with Supt. and Mrs. Frank Williams.

Mrs. A. C. Schloeman and daughter, Miss Mary Ella, were Waco visitors last Friday.

Elwood Young returned Monday from Wichita Falls where he has been visiting his sisters, Mrs. W. C. Fowler and Mrs. Van Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Tucker and Bobby Wood of Elkhart were here for a few days visiting Mrs. W. W. Hammack and other relatives.

Mrs. Turk Brown was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Caruth to Killen Monday evening for a visit with Mrs. Brown's mother, who has been ill. Mrs. Brown remained over.

Enrollment, Issuing Text-Books, And General Organization Will Constitute First Day Of School

Andrew Graves Named Land Bank Agent for Texas Under Farm Act

The people of Coryell County are to be congratulated that Andrew P. Graves, formerly of this county, has been appointed Agent of the Land Bank Commissioner in Texas. Mr. Graves began as a local appraiser for the Federal Land Bank of Houston. His advancement was very rapid so that he was transferred from Coryell County to the Houston office where he was for some time connected with the general appraisal office in Houston. He resigned this position to become an officer of a Joint Stock Bank in San Antonio and upon the passage of the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933, he was appointed by the Land Bank Commissioner with offices in Houston.

Although many of our land owners refer to the fact that under Mr. Graves as local appraiser they were accorded far more liberal terms than has been extended under recent appraisals and loans of the land bank, it is a fact that not one of the loans made by Mr. Graves has resulted in a foreclosure, showing that, although inclined to be liberal in appraising real estate, he was sufficiently conservative to make safe loans.

The Emergency Farm Mortgage Act is one of several laws passed by the last Congress for the benefit of land owners. Briefly stated, Mr. Graves as a land bank commissioner can make a second lien loan on land already encumbered by a first lien, provided both liens do not exceed 75 per cent of the value of the land.

The law specifies that the basis of appraisal in all cases is the normal value of the land for agricultural purposes and its earning power for such purposes is a principal factor.

Mrs. Ora E. Sadler Gregory Becomes Real Silk Representative

Friends of Mrs. Ora E. Sadler Gregory will be interested to learn that she has recently been appointed exclusive local representative for the Real Silk Company in Gatesville and surrounding territory.

Mrs. Gregory was formerly associated with Alvis-Garner Co. of this city in the Ladies Ready-to-wear department. She served the public in that position for fifteen years.

As a representative of the Real Silk Company, Mrs. Gregory carries a complete line of both men's and women's hosiery and underwear, including dress shirts for men. Mrs. Gregory would like to have her friends and former customers call her at any time for appointments either in their home or in her own.

Following authorization by the Board of Trustees, the official opening of the Gatesville Public Schools is announced for Saturday, September 9. All pupils are expected to appear at the respective school buildings on Saturday morning for enrollment, the issuing of books, the organization of the school and for whatever procedure might be deemed wise. Regular class work will begin on Monday morning following at the first bell and will run continuously from that time.

At 9 o'clock on Saturday all high school pupils will assemble in the auditorium for a brief program during which time all necessary explanation and opening of the school will be given. At 9:30 o'clock on the same morning the assembly for the elementary school will be held in the auditorium of that building. All school patrons and citizens of the town are invited to be present at each of the assemblies. The High School band will furnish music for both of the programs.

All seniors of the high school and all pupils who expect to enter high school for the first time, exclusive of the incoming freshman class from the Gatesville elementary school, are asked to come to the high school office for enrollment on Wednesday or Thursday before the formal opening of the school on Saturday. Conflicts will be straightened out and programs mapped before the major rush of enrollment comes on. Regular freshmen, sophomores and juniors will enroll on Saturday. The negro school will open on the same basis as the above program, the Negro pupils meeting at the school at 9 o'clock on Saturday, September 9.

Further information will be furnished next week concerning the student activity program.

FEDERATION TO LAY PLANS FOR ANOTHER YEAR

When the Morris Federation holds its first business session of the new study year, that organization will begin another year's work following its adjournment during the summer months. The business session will meet with Mrs. E. G. Beerwinkle. All of the thirty-six members are expected to be present for this important meeting.

It has been the ideal of the Morris Federation to pursue the study of music, art and literature, focusing its study on one particular locality, and this year the program will concern Canada. Due to the cosmopolitan nature of the country, a very unusual and interesting course of study is anticipated, in view of the varied form of literature, music and art.

Besides the regular course of study, the Federation has planned several added attractions. In September, the club will act as host to Walter Adams, one of Texas' poets. In October, Miss Mary Novak, of Waco, will lecture before the club on china and glassware. In the month of December, Miss Doris Jones, formerly of this city, will provide the program at the customary holiday "Open House" meeting.

The citizenry of Gatesville should be highly indebted to the Morris Federation for the work that has been done in the interest of civic promotion.

Some Things the Buying Public Needs to Know

THERE HAS BEEN SO MUCH TALK about advancing prices that the buying public have become alarmed at what they may be asked to pay for the Fall and Winter wearables. Each day we have people come in our store almost afraid to price merchandise because of what they have heard over the radio and have read through the press about prices being so high on drygoods. When they price them they seem to be stunned that they have permitted themselves to be misled even to the point of fear that they would be unable to buy their needs.

YES, there have been some minor advances on some items in the more staple lines of drygoods in our stock, however, they are negligible compared with the thousands of DOLLARS worth of dependable merchandise that is being priced as low as it has sold for in years. We are asked how it can be done; the answer is simple. We combined the purchasing power of our several stores in the early part of the season and placed orders direct with the manufacturers on a very low price basis. We felt that advances were sure to come. Thousands and thousands of Dollars worth of this merchandise has already been received, shipment after shipment now in transit. We admit that because of an anticipated advance we purchased heavier than in years. Every department was closely safeguarded against material advances in prices.

TO BE SURE, when this large stock will have been depleted we will be forced back into the market to replace at much higher prices. When this is done our price must, of necessity, advance. However, with the largest stock that we have ever carried at this season of the year and much more yet in transit, we will be able to go far into the season on present price basis, which in almost every instance is below replacement cost.

A BALE OF COTTON will purchase materially more at this store today than in many years, and will continue to do so for some time to come; in other words a Dollar cotton value today will purchase at least $1.25 in merchandise as compared with the last fall.

PROCESS TAX. Yes, the Process Tax is being levied; that together with the NRA programme or labor program have added some to the more staple items in drygoods, such as overalls, work shirts, domestics, shirtings, etc. However, the advance is very small on the selling price our present stock is marked to sell for.

WILL COTTON GO HIGHER? This seems to be the thought or question uppermost in the minds of the producer today. We, of course, could not and would not advise anyone to hold cotton. However, we can give our frank opinion in the matter. Personally, we would hold a short while at least. This decision is not based on a speculative foundation, but as we see it, THE VERY PROGRAM of the President will demand it. Within a few days the cotton control program for the next five years will be announced. This should have immediate effect on the present price of cotton. Too, the President has accepted the codes of the various manufacturers, giving them the right to put prices on their finished product that will enable them to employ more people and pay higher wages, which in turn of course raises the price of the finished product.

WE ARE FOR THE NRA, (National Recovery Act) We believe it is a medium of re-distribution of wealth that is essential to the on-going of our Nation. THERE HAS NEVER BEEN A WAR, but some one suffered; there will be some to suffer in this great ECONOMIC WAR, but we believe the plan will win. ONE HUNDRED TWENTY-FIVE MILLION PEOPLE banded together as one mighty army under the leadership of President Roosevelt, a Friend of the People, cannot lose.

WE WISH IT WERE POSSIBLE to sit down in every home and explain to you how much cheaper we are selling, item for item throughout this large store, than it can be bought back for. You immediately say that can't be done. We are frank, we don't know what the outcome will be, but THE PRESIDENT HAS ASKED that we launch out on FAITH, stating clearly that this was no time to make money, but a time to pull back together the fragments of a disturbed national confidence and prosperity which rightfully belongs to America, the greatest nation of the world.

WHAT WILL IT COST? The question would immediately present itself to the consumer as to what this or that will cost. For instance, ladies', misses and children's coats; men's, young men's and boys suits; men's, women's and children's shoes; men's and boys' hats; ladies', misses' and children's dresses; underwear for the family, hose for the grown-ups and the kiddies; blankets, cotton or wool; dress goods, cotton, silk or wool; sheeting, domestics, prints, shirting, etc. The store is crowded with all of the very type of merchandise, purchased on the lowest price we have known. With few exceptions, where the tax and labor cost have unavoidably entered in, the price will be as low as you have known. We want you to prove these assertions.

MORE STAPLE ITEMS, such as work shirts, overalls, sheeting and domestic are the principal items that show the advance of the program outlined.

WHEN WILL WE HAVE TO PAY the advances? The replacement advances will not be added until this large stock is depleted, and bear in mind that OUR PURCHASES had in mind these advances when they were made. We believe we will be able to go far into the season's needs before having to pay the advances in most lines.

OUR SALES PEOPLE WILL APPRECIATE THE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW AND PRICE OUR MERCHANDISE—MAY WE ASK THIS OPPORTUNITY?

By W. H. Darrow

A. & M. College

Poisoning grasshoppers by Extension service methods has meant the difference between a crop and no crop at all to E. M. Hall, Young County farmer, who says he uses from 300 to 1500 pounds of poison bran mash each year.

By bringing in competitive buyers for the tomato crop the Nacadoches County Truck Growers' Association raised prices last season from 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents per pound, the county agent reports, and the maintained market price throughout the season was the same.

Overcoming natural difficulties caused by having a sharply sloping gravel yard in which nothing would grow because water could not be had for irrigation, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Teas, Childress county have developed one of the prettiest farm yards in that section. Water was pumped into a concrete tank and then pumped across the road into another concrete tank, and from there piped back to the house. The yard was levelled and held in place by a stone retaining wall and Bermuda grass was sowed in. Shade trees and foundation planting around the house completed the job of making a real yard demonstration.

The price of wool has more than doubled in Hardin County this season by the newly organized wool grower's association which the county agent says pooled 10,500 pounds of wool that brought 31 cents per pound sold in cooperation with the Southwest Louisiana Wool Grower's Association.

A $150,000 farmer's market is planned for El Paso to serve the farmers of El Paso, Hudspeth and Dona Ana (New Mexico) counties

For the sale of 8 friers, 5 hens, a few dozen eggs and some maize, Mrs. Emel Kester, bedroom demonstration for Red Valley Home Demonstration Club in Wilbarger County, received $6.57 with which she purchased all the materials used in transforming her back bedroom into an attractive and comfortable room.

Goliad.—During the month of June Willie Weise of Melrose Community sold $82.05 worth of poultry and eggs from his flock which averaged 287 hens, according to K. J. Edwards, Goliad County farm demonstration agent. Mr. Weise believes in close culling to make poultry profits and culled out 68 poor layers this month. These along with friers brought in $52.99 while egg receipts were $29.06. Feed cost on the laying hens was $16.99. In spite of mounting feed costs Mr. Weise still shows a comfortable profit from his hens and has put in some of the very best baby chicks obtainable and will have 300 fine spring raised pullets to go in his laying house this fall. Mr. Weise reports that by getting his chicks early, he has less disease, they grow off better and he is able to dispose of the friers early when the price is much better than with late friers. Mr. Weise has a flock which is always happy and healthy looking and keeps them free from intestinal worms by periodic use of gasoline

San Saba.—At the beginning of the year eleven 4-pound packages of the new grain sorghum developed at Chillicothe named Ajax was secured by N. E. Scudder, the San Saba county farm demonstration agent, and distributed to 11 farmers living in different parts of the county. Mr. Scudder reports that inspection of these demonstrations indicates that the Ajax variety withstands drought better than any other grain sorghum in the county. One field planted adjacent to a field of maize appeared to be suffering very little while the maize was practically burned up.

Marlin.—Ninety six bales of alfalfa on the first cutting, 53 on the second, and the field is nearly ready for a third cutting this year, states H. R. Welting, Falls County agent D. D. Clinton in describing his acre and a half of alfalfa. Mr. Welting is one of the number of farmers in Falls county who did not know that alfalfa could be grown on their Livingston.—Twenty two community canning centers were established in Polk county and carried on through the months of June and July by the Polk county home demonstration council and the home demonstration agent, Miss Ruth Causey, working in cooperation with the RFC which furnished the equipment and cans. Twelve of the 22 centers were in communities where home demonstration clubs had not been previously organized, and of the 480 people who used the 70,000 cans bought by the RFC 414 of them had not had home demonstration training and most of them had done no canning before.

Each center was placed under the immediate supervision of some experienced person who could supervise the canning and train the newcomers in the use of the equipment. In this way many cans of fruit and vegetables were saved for winter use which might otherwise have gone to waste.

Sweetwater.—Eleven demonstrators who carried on wardrobe demonstrations in Nolan county under the coaching of Miss Fontilla Johnson, home demonstration agent, found that they could dress well for an average of $17.83 each. Reports of these demonstrators indicate that they have learned during the demonstration to dress more appropriately for a smaller expenditure of money because they all use individually fitted patterns which make it easy to construct dresses that have good fit and line. They have also learned to select materials that give the best value for the money spent. All of these demonstrators have provided adequate storage space because they have learned that to look well groomed their dresses must be kept pressed and hung on hangers; their shoes last longer and look better when kept on stretchers and their hats preserve their shape longer if kept on racks.

WILL I GET A POSITION?

The very best evidence we can offer a prospective student that there are positions being filled by our Employment Department is the list below, giving the names and home addresses, as well as the firms with whom they are working. We have placed these young people since the NRA has been getting in its effective work. Should conditions continue to improve, there will be other positions open.

Experimenting in Soil Building Profitable For Comal Farmers

New Braunfels—Soil building has occupied the attention of several demonstrators who are working with the Comal county agent, George E. Ehlinger, for the improvement of their own land and show the public what effect various types of soil treatment have on the crops planted on the land. One of these demonstrations, that of Dr. R. Wright, lies along the Seguin road and consists of terraced land with the rows running with the terraces planted in hegari and Brabham peas. These crops are doing so well in spite of dry weather that most people think they are under irrigation. They are planted in alternating two rows of hegari and three rows of the terracing well. The task now, Mr. Ehlinger says, is to convince people that no more water has gone on this field than on the next one. Before planting an oat crop was taken off, the land was flat broken, harrowed and planted and then cultivation was started as soon as the peas and grain came up.

E. A. Eiband, a dairy farmer of Comal County, tried out the value of commercial fertilizer on a ten acre worn out river sand field. He put 200 pounds of cottonseed meal and 100 pounds of super-phosphate per acre on the land and planted it to hegari. As a result he secured between 8 and 9 tons of silage per acre. The stalks did not grow very high but they were strong, stocky and had an abundance of leaves, and the heads were very good.

Comal county farmers are thrifty in saving and using all barnyard manure. Mr. Ehlinger states, but the use of commercial fertilizer is little practiced in the county, so Mr. Eiband's demonstration was watched with considerable interest. With the rise in price of feeds the success of the demonstration is even more obvious.

Pitched Gun Battle On Prison Farm Ends With Death of Guard

Central Texas Prison Farm, Sugarland, Aug. 27.—Guns flamed in the barracks of the prison farm early today, claiming the life of a guard and resulting in the critical wounding of a convict in a pitched gun battle in the dormitory.

Guard J. J. McCall, 44, was shot through the chest with a revolver in the hands of Beaumont King, 26, Wilbarger county convict, who in turn was shot twice by guard McCall. A break of 15 convicts was frustrated by the guard's gunfire.

McCall died in the Sugarland hospital at 1:45 p. m. Sunday. King was being treated in the prison hospital here and he stands a chance to recover, doctors said. McCall was shot once in the chest.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coward and family of Ames spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Davis.

Electric Refrigerator Company Patterns Its Instruments After Auto

Just as the instrument panel on the automobile of today has evolved from a hit or miss grouping of instruments into a compact and pleasing ensemble, so the controlling instruments used on the modern electric refrigerator has been grouped together into an attractive and convenient instrument panel, according to I. O. Scott, local representative of Frigidaire.

"The housewife today," said Mr. Scott, "insists that her kitchen equipment be made as simple to control as the automobile in which she drives to market. With that view in mind, Frigidaire engineers have succeeded in arranging the control instruments of the super Frigidaire into an attractive group. Conveniently mounted on an attractive metal shield directly over the door may be found the cold control, master switch and defrosting switch. The cold control has nine points, ranging from normal up to a fast operation for freezing salads and desserts. Two stages are set for use in case the family wishes to be away for a few days. By turning the control to the designated points, the mechanism operates at a minimum rate and saves current, a feature for economy that is greatly appreciated by the housewife.

"The defrosting control is automatic in that when it has been thrown to the defrosting position operation is resumed as soon as the defrosting has been accomplished, thus insuring the food in the box against spoilage."

Quoting figures showing a marked increase in business this spring, with the May volume of business in household equipment showing 42 per cent greater dollar volume than that of the same month a year ago, Mr. Scott also revealed that more than 10,000 workers are now employed in the great Frigidaire factories in Dayton, Ohio.

Highway Commission Lets Road Contracts On Thirteen Counties

Austin, Aug. 28.—Contracts for emergency construction in 15 counties aggregating $1,345,345.78 were tentatively awarded today by the Texas Highway Commission. Formal awards will be made when the bids have been approved by the Federal Government.

Fifteen of the jobs were awarded as a part of the federal government's emergency employment relief program and will be paid for with federal funds. Two of the projects, in Calhoun and Culberson Counties will be carried out with state funds. The contracts specified that skilled labor must be paid a minimum of 45 cents an hour and common labor not less than 35 cents per hour.

Contractors will be required to use local laborers and materials and must use hand labor in preference to machinery where practicable. No contracts for highway construction in Bell County or the central Texas region were included in Monday's lettings by the commission.

SPARE TIME FOR EMPLOYEES

With the N. R. A. showing the anticipated progress and its ultimate purpose coming into view, the question has been raised, "What will we do with our spare time?"

It is worth repeating that the purpose of the Blue Eagle fraternity is to provide more employment by process of shorter working hours and increased wages; the result being, naturally, that those who have been working full time will now have time on their hands with nothing particular on their minds to occupy themselves. In great cities and industrial centers this question is rapidly growing into a grave problem. In our own locality, however, it will not be of so vital consequence. In the cities, the problem will be determining some form of recreation, or pastime for those employees now living under the working-time plan. Such a problem will involve a great expense possibly on the part of the city.

In Coryell County employees will, for a while, be content to spend their leisure time doing first one thing and then another. A little later however, those same individuals will be seeking new forms of recreation and although their possible discontent will not assume a serious nature it is a duty of each employer to assist in whatever way he can to contribute to the employment and education of his employees during this spare time. It is not necessary that he contribute financially, but he should be willing to lend his cooperation to the organization of clubs, societies and study groups for the benefit of the employees. Salesmanship clubs, Literary Societies, and various study clubs, are only a few of the many organizations in which employees should feel free to participate. These suggestions are aside from the many inducements that employees might find attractive.

The time of opportunity is at hand both for the employer and the employee, when there is time to spare and when that time might be put into profitable use for both.

WE ARE ON THE WAY

Necessity makes strange bedfellows when civilization is under stress and strain. Doubtless Jeffersonian and Jacksonian Democrats in the nineteenth century in their wildest flights of oratory would never have charged their nationalist opponents with planning legislation such as that embodied in the new deal, meeting with the approval of a Democratic President and Congress and the acquiescence of practically the entire country.

NRA is the heart of the New Deal, which however, extends the powerful arm of the Federal Government over banks, railroads, public utilities, industries, agriculture and in fact over the entire economic life of the nation, disregarding state boundaries, and fearless of Supreme Court decisions. It trusts that the support of public opinion is a clear indication of what the constitution ought to say, if it doesn't. All this, of course, is not socialism, any more than tweedledum is the same as tweedledee. Perhaps the New Deal is a sort of fascism, or else a hybrid, having socialism for its dam and fascism for its sire.

It may be assumed that, after the national crisis is over, there will be a revulsion in public opinion and a turning away from any form of State socialist of fascist domination. Yet it is hardly likely that the pendulum will swing as far back as formerly. There will remain vigorous supervision of Federal control, perhaps over banks, transportation and utilities, and state rights will be definitely weakened. The individualism of Jeffersonian Democracy has passed into history. A definite social control over economic life takes its place and the task of democracy will be to see to it that governmental policies are really for the benefit of the many, not merely for the few.—Dallas News.

THAT CERTAIN SENSE OF PRIDE

Through a mixture of civic pride and curiosity, I had occasion to visit the newly erected city hall unit a few days prior to the time the offices were moved from the temporary location on main street into the new building. One of the local contractors, who had been spending the entire time for the past two months on the building, was kind enough to show me over the premises, describing to me as we went the work which had been done there. He had finished his contract but he could not help but reveal his own sense of pride in the part he had contributed, through his own labor, in making possible that community project which would do honor to any town larger than the size of Gatesville.

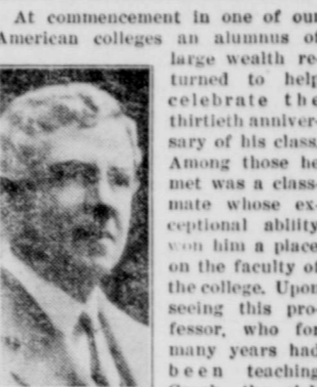

My recent experience called to my attention the fact that there are many of us who, even though we have not contributed materially to the building of the new city hall, are proud of the fact that we live in a community that can boast of such a civic asset.

The Machine Man

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

At commencement in one of our American colleges an alumnus of large wealth returned to help celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of his class. Among those who met was a classmate whose exceptional ability won him a place on the faculty of the college. Upon seeing this professor, who for many years had been teaching Greek, the rich alumnus remarked, "And are you still teaching Greek?" The implication being that the time devoted to that task, a rather impractical one at best, could have been otherwise devoted to a more successful career. The Greek professor thought for a moment, and then replied, "No, I have spent some time teaching young men and women, but I begin with Greek."

In a charity hospital an examination took place in the presence of nurses and internes. The head physician addressed a young girl in a way which caused one of the internes who could stand the inhuman method of his superior no longer, to exclaim: "See here, are you talking to a dog or a human being?" The most interesting thing about this experience was not only the nerve of the young interne, but the absolute surprise of the chief of staff. It was a surprise to him that he had been violating any law of common ethics.

An official in a large corporation recently remarked to the writer: "We are looking for a machine in the form of a man to do a certain job of work."

Much has been written lately in criticism of the machine age. Among the arguments advanced was that the age of machinery has displaced manual labor. Today many a machine displaces from ten to twenty-five men. These men, thrown out of employment, must find work elsewhere, which greatly aggravates the labor problem. Another argument has been that the constant attendance upon a machine enhances the dangers incident to a monotonous and routine type of work, thus destroying all initiative.

One very little criticism which has received very little attention, is the effect upon the man who owns the machine. Is it not true that men are more and more becoming like the machines they control? An indifferent, almost callous attitude toward the human element is a factor which may seriously retard the development of our economic recovery. May this danger be overcome before it is too late. © 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

The Industrial Turnip

Industry is beginning to show operating profits again, after three long years of financial drought.

This will come as good news to investors, workers and the general public. But the road ahead isn't entirely strewn with roses. There is an obstacle in the way of dividends, jobs and progress. That obstacle is taxation.

Anyone who reads the annual reports of the larger American corporations cannot help being impressed by their tax payments. In various instances—such as utilities—tax increases and new special taxes have been sufficient to more than offset any rise in earning power. The investor—which means the individual who has saved a few dollars and put them into productive enterprise where they work for the benefit of the entire country—has never been so heavily penalized for his thrift. Management has never had so poor a chance to produce results from efficiency and far-sightedness.

At the moment the country is enthusiastically endorsing the NRA plan for putting men back to work. Business has responded gratefully. But it must be realized that the best of intentions are useless unless one has the means with which to carry them out. Employers want to raise pay and lower working hours—but they can't pick money from the air. And the tax collector is making it increasingly difficult to operate or make a profit.

High taxes, unemployment and industrial torpor go hand in hand. The old saying that you can't get blood out of a turnip was never truer than now.

In conjunction with other relief measures, why not inaugurate an actual reduction in the aggregate tax collected from citizens and industry?—Exchange.

thing possible to help.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute, in a recent bulletin, offers the interesting possibility that greatest stumbling block in the way of blanket code may be excessive taxation. High taxes, according to the Institute, are now causing the abnormal and dangerous spread between wages and prices. No matter how patriotic a business man is, he cannot raise wages and increase operating costs without sufficient additional revenue coming in. Hope of the government is that increased revenue will immediately follow the blanket code's operation.

Labor troubles likewise confront the NRA. Main center of disturbance is in Pennsylvania coal fields where state troops have been called out and many mines shut down. A. F. of L. is conducting one of the greatest organization drives in its history; many employers are trying to stick up with the open shop or company union plan. Strikes and lockouts, if they spread, will be a tremendous blow to NRA success; official pleas to labor to cooperate have been made by the government.

Business Farming vs. Politics

In a recent radio address, Senator Arthur Capper observed that the result of failure of farmers to cooperate, was to lower the price of their product to the lowest possible level, and said, "The only logical system in sight so far by which the farmer can bargain collectively—and efficiently—for the sale of his products, is in a highly organized society of buyers, is through cooperative marketing."

The word "only" should bear the accent in that quotation. The farmer like the rest of us, has searched for the royal and easy road to prosperity and contentment. He has listened to purveyors of this panacea and that one, and has occasionally tried the medicine. He has, at times, made the very human error of believing that the government can cure all his ills and ills.

The panaceas have failed. The government has helped a bit—but it hasn't solved anything in particular. And now the wise farmer is discovering that of which Senator Capper speaks—that the way to farm prosperity is through the farmer's own collective efforts, with a strong, loyally supported, aggressive cooperative as the instrument of progress.

It is noteworthy that the farmers who have won victories of one kind or another the past few years have been those centered their efforts around large, well-intrenched cooperatives. The milk producers of New York, the walnut growers of California, the cotton raisers of the south—these are good examples that other groups of farmers might observe with profit.—Exchange.

PRAYERS AND PREPARATION

WE CANNOT deny the fact that Life Insurance and Funerals are closely associated. Funerals call for Prayers. Prayers are often necessary due to the lack of Preparation, all of which leads us to believe that a man should have a 'voice' at his funeral.

Suppose a man should preach his own funeral service while living; and have his thoughts and ideas recorded on a phonograph record! No doubt he would mention his life insurance policy, for he would want his friends and neighbors to know that he was not being buried on borrowed money. He would probably tell his mourners not to be concerned about food and shelter for his loved ones for he had provided for them with insurance. He might remind his listeners that a good citizen should not only meet his obligations while living, but should provide for their payment after he was gone by means of insurance.

Finally, is it not reasonable to suppose that such a man, who was true to his loved ones and his fellow man, would also make preparation for the life to come, for Eternity; that he would leave this life with a clear conscience and enter the hereafter with a confident soul? Think it over!

SYNOPSIS

Chapter I.—A pretty young woman finds herself in a taxi cab in New York with a strange man who addresses her endearingly and speaks of "an awful shock." When he leaves her for a moment at the drug store she drives on, for she fears him. She stops at the Biltmore, still wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. From the evidence of her clothing and wedding ring, inscribed "H. L. V. to D. M., May 19, 1932," she concludes she is married to a wealthy man. At the Biltmore the nameless girl meets a young woman who speaks of her desire to go to Reno for a divorce, if she can get the money. The woman vanishes with the nameless girl's purse, and $300.

Chapter II.—An elderly woman, Mrs. Oscar Du Val, cordially greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris" wife of Mrs. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris, still bewildered, is taken to the home of Mrs. Oscar. Doris falls in love with Du Val and her sculptor husband, Rocky's photograph but cannot remember having married him.

Chapter III.—Doris, discovering a trademark in her clothing, visits a New York store, and is astounded when a saleswoman insists she hide from observation. She goes back to the Du Vals more mystified than ever. Rocky returns, to discover the deception.

Chapter IV.—He demands to know who she is and why his wife sent her to his home to masquerade in front of his innocent parents. She cannot tell him. He assumes she is some form of gold digger. They agree for the sake of the parents, to pretend for the time being, they are husband and wife.

Chapter V.—After much quarrelling, Rocky takes Doris to his New York apartment to confront his wife and have the strange mix-up straightened out. He is disgusted to find the flat empty, and not even a note left for him by his wife. Doris sees the real wife's photograph and recognizes her as the girl who stole her $300.

CHAPTER VI

It would be a relief to tell someone. Doris closed her eyes.

"You're worn out," said Rocky. "I'm a terribly self absorbed ape. You ought to eat something."

"I'm all right."

He pulled his chair closer to her. She drew a long breath, wondering, worrying. Half an hour earlier she would not have thought it possible that she could confide in Rocky. But his friendliness made her former attitude impossible. She looked at him wistfully.

"Listen, couldn't you eat something?"

She laughed faintly. "You're hungry yourself, you old fraud. I'll go out and have supper, though, if you like."

He grinned. "You read me like a book. But you honestly look fagged. I'm going to have something sent up from Reubens. They'll send anything anywhere any time it seems." He went to the telephone. She watched him as he gave the number. After all she could not go on this way forever. She would have to tell someone in order to find her home.

"Would you like roast chicken? Lobster?"

"I'd love chicken. Say, Rocky!"

"Yes, Baby!"

"All right. I will tell you!"

He raised his eyebrows, nodded. "O. K. Spill everything. Just a minute until I finish here."

But it was not until the food had come that she did find the courage to tell him. Meanwhile she had bathed and was feeling much better. Several openings for the confession had gone by but each time panic seized her. Meanwhile Rocky was hungry, and very friendly. He was trying to make up for his former unkindness. It seemed to Doris.

"From the way you talked while I was telephoning for this mess of vitamins I thought you had made up your mind to tell me all," he said.

"I have."

"Well, why don't you shoot?"

"I'm afraid you won't believe me."

"Well, have a shot at it."

She drew a long breath. "Beginning at the beginning," said

Rocky "and remember I don't bite and I don't sting. But aside from the fact that I'm probably dying of curiosity, don't tell me if you don't want to."

"You are decent. I've got to tell someone, and you're the first person I've met who wouldn't think I was absolutely crazy if I told the truth." She cupped her chin in her hand and went on casually. "You see I've lost my memory. I lost it quite suddenly, and don't know where I came from. I don't know who I am, or even what my name is."

Rocky was looking at her with his jaw dropping slightly. "The h—! you say!"

She nodded, smiling a little at his astonishment.

"Then—my—Lord—maybe you didn't know whether you were married to me or not?"

Doris said ruefully. "I was reasonably certain as soon as I saw you—you didn't leave me much room for doubt."

"I guess I was pretty brutal." Then she told him everything, unable to evade his quick questioning. He found out how she had been riding in a cab with a man she hated, how she had left him, gone to the Biltmore, been robbed of her money and met the kind little woman who had said she was her mother-in-law. As she finished she took off her wedding ring and showed him the inscription on the inside.

"So you're married, too," he said thoughtfully.

"To somebody I hate—or at least I think so."

Rocky considered. "It ought to be easy enough to find out who you are. You look to me like a girl with a large devoted family. Probably all out looking for you? Don't you look in the papers to see if there is anything about a missing girl?"

"Your family doesn't take any papers."

"H—! that's right. One of the old eccentricities." His eyes were tender. "Say, this is a damn shame, I'll make inquiries at the police station, and we'll find out who you are in no time. Then you don't like your husband—you don't have to go back to him do you?"

Doris felt frightened. "I don't know. There was something dreadful—you know once I was listening to the radio, and something was said, in the news of the day I think it was, that brought it all back to me—but only for a second, then I fainted. It seems as if there is something so awful in my past that I just don't dare to remember it."

Rocky reassured her. "Oh that isn't likely, Doris. You've been badly shocked. Perhaps you were in an accident."

"I thought that if I could see the papers perhaps there would be something in them that would help me to remember."

"That's an idea. Supposing we go out now and buy some papers. It's much cooler now." He walked to the long windows and looked down into the street. "We can ride around or something." He looked at her over his shoulder.

"Would you like to go and see some girls waving their legs around in the theater? Please let's."

She laughed. "Of course; I'd love to."

"You're sure? You're positive we oughtn't to sit around and be tragic this evening?" He jumped up. "Then we're off. I won't be two shakes."

But it was later than they thought when they emerged finally on the street. They rode over to Broadway in a cab, buying the World-Telegram from a newsboy. In the lobby Doris had a moment to look it over but she found nothing that roused her memory.

"I can't get over the way you impressed Father," said Rocky during the intermission. "He was absolutely nuts about you!"

He looked down at her happily. "You didn't find anything in the paper?"

"Nothing seemed to rouse any echo. But I did see one comforting thing—an advertisement by a Reno divorce lawyer saying you can now get a divorce out there in six weeks!"

"Really? Yes, I remember they did pass a law like that last year. Well, that means you can get rid of the man in the cab if he should turn up to be your husband. And speaking of men, there are two men in the back of the theater that can't take their eyes off you."

"Where? Perhaps they know me?"

Doris screwed around hopefully, but the curtain was rising.

As they came out of the theater the street was filled with people in evening dress, the women holding their short gay jackets about them.

"You know, everybody is staring at you," said Rocky teasingly as they stood beside the curb. He took her arm as he spoke and she felt a warm protecting glow which seemed to come from his tall body.

She looked at him smiling. "Perhaps they know me?"

"No—they don't act like that. More as if they were pointing out a celebrity."

"Where are they?"

"Hey wait a minute, here's our cab, young lady," he scolded. "Hop in and don't jump away like that again. I'm a nervous fellow."

"But those women—"

"Hop in." He lifted her gently off her feet and set her in the cab. A minute later he was beside her, having told the driver to go to a certain speakeasy.

"But Rocky—if those people were pointing me out it must have been for some reason."

Rocky settled himself beside her and drew out a cigarette, like their looks, if they were "Well candidly, Baby I didn't friends of yours, you're better off without them, and while I don't want to be melodramatic—"

In the gayety of the evening she had forgotten her old conviction that something terrible lay in her past from which memory had mercifully shut her out.

Rocky laid his hand over hers. "Forgive me," he said, "I was foolish not to go up to those people, but I had a hunch—just a feeling—not to do it."

The cab stopped at a red light. A small boy was darting between the lined up cars holding out papers.

"Oh, Rocky, we forgot about the tabloids. Let's look in."

"O. K.," said Rocky, feeling in his pockets. "I've been away so long I don't know what the latest scandals are myself." The urchin jumped on the running board and sold his papers.

Doris' eyes dropped to the headlines:

KILLER BRIDE'S GUN FOUND
Diane Merrill's father identifies Gun Found on Ferry Boat.

The papers slid to the floor. For a moment she remembered. She knew everything, then she collapsed. She crumbled into a heap on the taxicab floor, moaning and clutching Rocky's knees.

When she came to her senses she was lying across the bed in Rocky's apartment while he leaned over her with anxious fear-stricken eyes.

"You fainted."

"Yes—it was. It was something—she could not go on. She could not remember what it was."

She closed her eyes, sighed. "How did I get here?"

"You were unconscious."

"You were kind." She was too exhausted to say more. Nor could she bring herself to mention the papers. Just as she had forgotten the words over the radio, she had again forgotten the headlines in the paper. Her mind seemed to refuse to go back toward them. She knew that something too horrible for contemplation had been revealed to her. She didn't have the strength to think about it.

Then she saw that he was very excited. He walked around the room picking up things, throwing them down. He seemed beside himself with some strange new emotion.

"What's wrong?"

He sat down in a chair, biting his lips. He hardly noticed her question. She repeated: "What's the matter?"

He rose and came to the bedside. Seating himself beside her he took her hand. But there was something odd and unconscious pretty eyes and go back to sleep."

Doris swung her feet over the side of the bed. "You're crazy if you think I'm going to let you spoil my bags like that."

"You spoke just too late, lady."

He began to apply black enamel over the outside. "Baby!"

"What?"

"If you're rested you'd better go in the next room and look over the clothes that Doris left here. Pack up in my brown suit case. You'll find it lying on the bed."

"This is the queerest thing that's happened to me yet. I must be dreaming." She put her finger out and touched the wet black paint. "What are you doing this for?"

"Just a precaution. I ought to destroy it, but I'm ingenious enough to think of a way at the moment. I want to get started in about an hour. Get well out of New York before dawn. I forgot to mention that I'm taking you for a motor trip to Canada. So pack up what you need from Doris' things. You're not to be showed anything of your own."

She looked at him speechlessly.

He put down his brush. "You are going to let me take care of you?" She said nothing. "Aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, then—"

"Can't I know anything?"

He stood close to her looking down. "Only that I'm doing it all for your welfare."

The silence between them was sweet. They did not look at each other, but it was as if he had offered her something precious and she had accepted when she said, "All right."

"Good girl. Now listen: pack up everything you need with what you can find of Doris' things. Take nothing of your own."

"Rocky?"

"What, Nuisance?"

"I can't help feeling you're being rather sweet."

He opened her bags and began smearing paint over the dainty brushes and mirrors inside. "Control your feelings then, darling and get to work."

"But Rocky, why must you—if you're going to leave it here anyway?"

"Doris might come back."

There'd be hell to pay if anyone found this luggage. Look here, how long do you intend to stand there and argue with me? You go pack. I've sent for a basket of food and the minute it comes—we beat it."

She was bewildered. Either she must trust him completely or—and he was being so nice, doing it all for her. She turned finally and went to look over Doris' things.

She sat on the bed for a minute her elbows on knees, fists jabbed into her cheeks. What could this mean? There must have been something more in the papers. Rocky didn't want her to know. It was sweet of him. He thought she was too ill. She got up suddenly and began to pack, wondering in a mist of romantic thoughts if she'd ever be able to stop thinking about him, now that she had

Questions, Answers, Submitted by County Sup't. as Informatory

Prompted by the fact that many school patrons of this county have expressed their desire for information concerning the recent regulations adopted by the State Board of Education concerning the new state aid law, R. W. Stephens, County Superintendent, has compiled a series of questions and answers which should serve as an explanation on this subject, as follows:

Q.—Will the superintendents of all accredited high schools be allowed $125 for 12 months without endangering the amount of state aid to be allowed?

A.—Yes, if the local trustees so desire.

Q.—In finding the maximum aid which can be allowed on teacher's salaries, must the total net scholastics be counted, or only the net white scholastics?

A.—Count the number of white scholastics unless the negro school is applying for aid also; that is, divide the valuation of the total net scholastics, but multiply the amount to be allowed to the individual pupil by the number of white scholastics.

Q.—How are we to determine whether a school district has 48 sq. miles of territory and can thus benefit by section 2 of the Rural Aid Law?

A.—Get the record from the County Tax Assessor's office.

Q.—If the district pays excess salaries, but does not ask for aid on salaries, can such district draw aid on tuition and transportation?

A.—Yes; if the amount to be allowed for tuition and transportation exceeds the excess salaries, to that amount will be allowed.

Q.—How shall the salaries of vocational teachers in accredited high schools be counted?

A.—According to salary schedule, or part paid by local district.

Q.—When does a school cease to be a rural school, and to share in rural aid?

A.—A school located in an incorporated town of 2,500 or more population within its city limits cannot be considered a rural school (federal definition).

Q.—May the salary of any teacher be cut below the salary schedule and the amount thus deducted be added to the salary of the principal, or of any other teacher in the system?

A.—Not more than $5 can be deducted from the salary of the inexperienced teacher. The amount thus deducted may be added to the salary of sup't. or to the salary of an experienced teacher, but in all cases the total must conform to salary schedule.

Q.—In a consolidated district in which grade schools of from the 4th to 7th grades, inclusive are maintained in the original districts, what salaries may be paid to the principal of such grade school without endangering state aid?

A.—$75 per month, or according to a question answered above.

Q.—In a system which has an affiliated high school, may the principal be paid more than $85?

A.—No; not unless he may be given $5 from the salary of some inexperienced teacher in the system.

Q.—May delinquent taxes which the local board is sure will be collected and which are not needed to pay debts already contracted, be used to pay excess salaries or buy busses or build buildings, or must such taxes be listed as "Resources" or "Balance" on September 1, 1933?

A.—These taxes must be listed under "Resources of the District."

Q.—If a school is asking for classification and affiliation, may its superintendent draw twelve months salary?

A.—He may be given $125 per month, with the understanding that his salary ceases at the end of 9 months unless the school is classified and partly affiliated during the year.

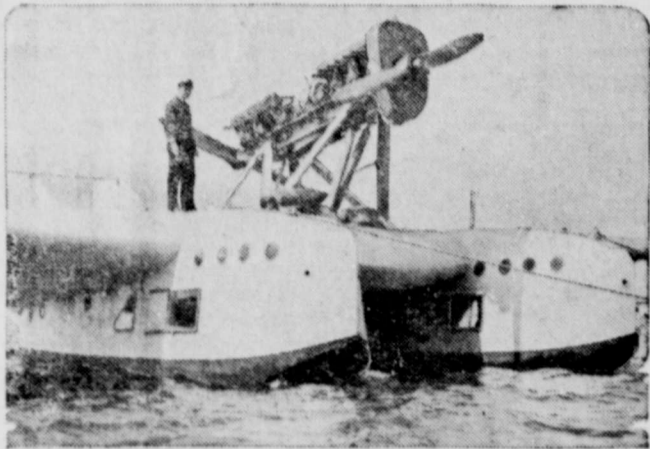

Q.—May a non-affiliated high school be allowed salary aid on 9 months basis?

A.—No; not unless it is classified and partly affiliated during the year. (This series will be continued next week on other lines of aid information.)

More than 26,000,000 words were spoken in debate during the special session of Congress.

About forty lines of Robert Burns' manuscript, "The Vision" were sold recently in London for $1,800.

Rum Runners' Plane Is Captured

This big seaplane, laden with liquor, was abandoned by rum runners near Peconic bay and was found by coast guards and towed to their base at New London, Conn. The seaplane was built in Italy but was registered under the name of a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y. It has two 600-horse power motors and can carry eight passengers.

LA SALLE'S MOST BEAUTIFUL DREAM

By Minnie Kollum Young

Ever the great La Salle was Murdered they say. He dreamed of Texas as she is Today.

"A free land beloved for her Beauty and worth And first in producing the fruits Of the earth".

Now to learn if this great man's vision is true, Dear Stranger; We send invitation to you, If you're planning for a vacation This year,

Then pack up your camp kit and Journey down here, Come in your aeroplane, auto, or By steam

And see Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

Come where the Leon is winding Its way, Between its green banks where Bright sunbeams play;

Where the elm trees wave their Branches on high And bluebonnets nod at the At the bright Summer sky.

Where walnuts, pecans and great Burr-oaks throw Their cool dense shade on the Asters below;

And wood violets bloom in the Shady dells 'Mid delicate ferns and dainty Bluebells,

Where reeds and rushes grow Rank by the stream In Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

Come see our mountains, the Records of time With their crowns of cedar, live-Oak and vine,

Bound 'round with redbud and Spotted-oak green Buckeye and shennahaw growing Between,

Grapevine and brier in tangled array And green moss swinging where High branches sway,

In fissures and caverns are Secrets held fast And fossils that point to an age That's past, Steep cliffs gashed with many a Seam In Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

See the West where flowers of Liveliest hue Would rival our flag in red, White and blue,

The land of sage grass, shinoak And mesquite, Tall shackwista and gay bitter-Sweet,

Cactus and catclaw and prickly-Pear spine, Red algeretta and blue muska-Dine,

Beargrass and chaparral on alkali Land Heat-waves shimmer o'er hot Desert sand;

Miles and miles without a Mountain or stream In Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

See our eastern forests of tall Yellow pine Where green grows the laurel And gay columbine,

There you'll find persimmon and Scarlet papaw By sweet scented thickets of Wild plum and haw.

There ripe luscious berries hang Thick on the vine And grapes grow in clusters, Purple with wine,

There nature brings forth from Her rich fertile soil A bounteous yield without culture Or toil

And a feast is spread without Hands, it would seem, In Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

See the South, a land that's Eternally fair Where the palm-trees wave in The warm tropic air, And magnolia blooms in sweet Scented bowers Invite you to rest through the Long Summer hours, While the rambling old missions Crumbling with age Will tell you a story from History's page; Of legend and romance, of Bloodshed and tears The colonies knew in the hard Bitter years, 'E'er the star of freedom in Beauty did gleam On Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

Go any direction your fancy may Lead In natural beauty and wonderful Homes

Our Texas will have anything That you need, And cities, and temples and Towers and domes

Sleek herds that graze in her Valleys and hills And smoke going up from her Thousands of mills;

Broad fertile fields where the White cotton grows And highways where traffic Continually flows,

Railways that end where the Sea-waters gleam In Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream

She has sea-ports and ships, Afloat on the waves And pearls concealed in her Dark ocean caves,

Shell-fish and sea-weed and Most curious things Are tossed on the beach which The gulf-water brings

From the great Atlantic which Reaches away 'Round Cape Horn and meets The Pacific they say,

Now if that vast gulf of salt-Water was land Our Texas would reach the Hawaiian strand

And a tropical moon in splendor Would beam On Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

She's the pride of the South, for Beauty and worth And larger than some of the Nations of earth, Broad enough to hold several States in her lap She's the greatest and grandest That graces the map.

Who can guess accurately the Grain in her bins, Or the number of cotton bales Hauled to her gins?

Her yearly output of lumber and Oil An unexplored wealth that's hid In her soil,

Now dear stranger, we leave the Matter to you, Come down here and see if this Story is true;

Come in your aeroplane, auto, or By steam And see Texas, La Salle's most Beautiful dream.

Employer at Father's Deathbed, Hired Hand Steals Cotton, Team

Killeen, Aug. 27—While Ed Thornton of the Reeves Creek community was at the deathbed of his father in Belton, Friday, a hired man disappeared with a bale of cotton, his team, and the trailer.

Mr. Thornton's father died and he knew nothing about the loss until he returned home Saturday. Officers were put on the trail of the man, but he had not been located. He was a stranger who had been hired off the streets a few days ago.

Start Toward Silver Solution

Government treasuries have been principally responsible for the depressed price of silver during the past few years. Some of the major silver countries have either eliminated new coinage of the metal altogether, or have reduced the silver content of each unit of money. In this way tremendous surpluses have been created, much of which has been thrown into the open market. Mined silver has been forced to compete with these surpluses, and the constant oversupply has made hope of price recovery all but futile.

The silver agreement signed at London should do away with this kind of competition. The silver holding countries, of which India and Spain are the most important, have agreed to rightly limit sales. The silver producing countries—Mexico, U. S., Peru, Canada and Australia, have agreed to withdraw 25,000,000 ounces a year from the market for four years.

So the silver plan is essentially the same as the U. S. Government's present cotton plan—a balance production and consumption. Price strengthening is inevitable if the agreement it kept. How far such strengthening will go is still a question difficult of international problems.

Mexico is called the "Storehouse of the World" because of the fertility of its soil and its almost inexhaustible mineral and other natural resources.

TANGLED WIVES—

There was a rap on the door. It was a boy with the lunch basket.

Rocky came in ready to start. "Rocky!" she started, but there was earnestness and gravity in his face. He held something in his hand.

"Can you be ready in a few minutes?" he asked, his lips white.

She rose rather shakily. "I guess so." She would have to go with him.

"But why?" she insisted. "You said you'd take care of me and—"

"H—I, Doris," he said, exasperated, "can't you trust me? You've got to trust me. This is all for your good. I'm no slacker any more than you are. Let's give each other a break."

"Did you save those newspapers?" she asked suddenly.

He shook his head.

"But I'm well enough to read them now," she said urgently. "I know you've been afraid they'd shock me—but I'm all over that silly faintness now. Won't you get another for me?"

He shook his head again. "Not now. We ought to be going."

Doris looked at him ruefully. "Why won't you let me see a paper?"

"Doris, snap out of it. You are going. I've made all arrangements. It's the only way out. You'll see what I mean, later. Come on, get your things!" He stood up with a bright forced smile.

Doris rose too. She looked up at him, a steady glow in her eyes. "Rocky, you haven't given me any reason why we should go. You won't even answer my question about a paper. Is there something I ought not to see?"

He didn't answer. "Because if you think there's something there that will shock me, that's just what I need. If I can be shocked enough, I'll remember everything. Don't you understand?" She saw that he didn't, and put her hot palms lightly to her temples. "Please Rocky, get me a paper."

He looked down at her with a conviction that was beyond stubbornness. "It's no use for you to keep repeating that request," he said. "It's utterly impossible." He took out his watch. "You have five minutes in which to dress for the street. And oh yes, I nearly forgot," he held out a pair of dark horn-rimmed spectacles. "I found these for you."

Doris stared at them. "What for?" she asked.

"For you to wear—if you like," he said. "But I don't like." Doris was definite.

Rocky smiled pleasantly. "Take them anyway. We might be doing some fast driving—they'll protect you from the wind."

Doris tossed them into a chair. She was perfectly sure that Rocky would pick them up again and force her to take them, even wear them, if he chose. He was getting his way about a lot of things.

HUBBARD NEWS

August 28.

Well the election is over and we are glad. Thankful indeed to know that the people of good old Coryell County voted a majority dry. Glad also that we voted so large a vote for the twenty million dollar bond issue.

There are some things in life that we can not help so we have to make the best of them, but it does us good, sometimes, to let the world know how we feel about them and how better can we do this than by our vote.

While we would appreciate a very wet Coryell County just now, let it be from refreshing showers that come from an all wise God and not from booze. The water question is getting to be quite serious here now, wells, springs and water holes are fast drying up.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Biddy have been entertaining a new boy since the 18th.

Frank Galloway and family of near Robstown are here visiting his father, J. A. Galloway, and his father-in-law, Sam Powell. Other visitors in the J. A. ## J. D. Brown, Jr., Offers to Assist Home Owners and Land Owners in Making Application for Loans Under the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933.

Under the terms of the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933 the United States has created several agencies for making loans. City property owners can borrow through the home owners' loan bank of which James Shaw of Dallas is the manager in Texas. Farm and ranch owners can borrow through the Federal Land Bank of Houston up to 50 per cent of the value of their property and through the Land Bank Commissioner for an additional 75 per cent of its value. Livestock owners can borrow money through the Regional Agricultural Corporation of Fort Worth, Texas, and through their different agencies it would appear that any property owner who has a reasonable equity in his property could obtain relief from his interest, as interest rates range from 4 1/2 to 7 per cent according to the character of security.

I have been in the abstract business for twenty years and engaged in making loans on real estate for twenty-five years and am very familiar with what is necessary to be done in order to obtain a loan through any of the above government agencies.

I will be very glad to advise anyone concerning the desirability of making application and render any assistance necessary in making out applications or referring would-be applicants to the proper person to whom to give their applications.

Although I am very anxious to do your abstract work this does not mean that I would require you to give me the work should I assist you in making application for a loan and I want every land owner in Coryell County to feel perfectly free to call on me for any information or assistance that I can render as I believe it is the duty of every person having a special knowledge of these matters to render all assistance possible to those who do not possess such knowledge.

... 80 million years of priceless filtering under earth!

Nearly every geological age has produced crude oil—but by and large the oldest ages seem to have produced the best of it for lubricating purposes. For this reason Sinclair uses the oldest Mid-continent paraffin-base crudes in making Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil—crudes which have mellowed and filtered under earth for an average of 80 million years.

Furthermore, Sinclair Opaline contains no petroleum jelly—that non-lubricating element which makes motor oil thick and sluggish when cold—thin and watery when hot. Sinclair Opaline has a genuine full body that is all lubricant—no waste. Try a crankcaseful. Note how seldom you need to add oil.

"Kingfish" Long Is Object of Punching At Fashionable Spot

New York, Aug. 28—The New York Sun said today that United States Senator Huey Long, self-styled Louisiana Kingfish, was the object of a punching Saturday night in a fashionable Long Island spot near Port Washington.

The Sun did not name the purported assailant or give any details, except that to say that the man claimed to have been "gravely insulted" by Long.

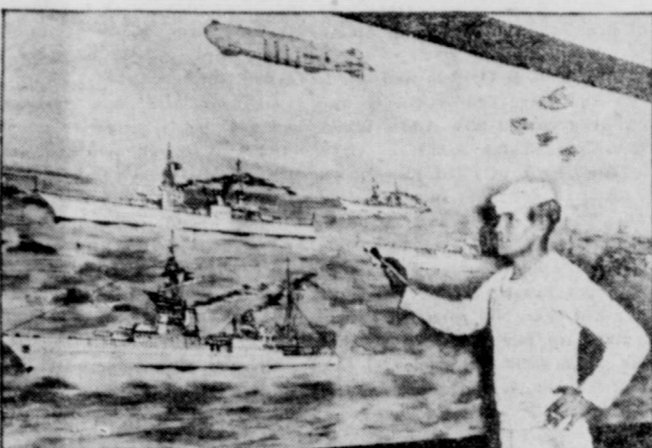

The Senator, the paper said, made no effort to resist the punching and attendants at the "fashionable spot" placed him in a car and sent him away.

A telephone call to Senator Long, who is in Milwaukee, the Sun said, resulted in a conversation "entirely unsatisfactory."

According to the Sun, the Senator's assailant was offended by one of Long's remarks and struck out with his fists.

Senator Long made no attempt to ward off the blows, the Sun said, and was saved from further pummeling by a club attendant who led the Senator to an automobile.

The affair at the club was a charity function.

The Sun communicated with Senator Long late today at a Milwaukee hotel and reported the following conversation:

"Who was the man who hit you, Senator?" the Sun asked.

"Who was the man?" the Senator replied.

"You know don't you?"

"I'm asking you."

ure of the Administration, and that at the present time it requires the co-operation of the holder of the indebtedness before the home owner can obtain its benefits, that is to say, that the holder of the indebtedness must exchange the notes he holds for the Bonds of the Corporation, and it is gratifying to note that many of the nations' great Life Insurance Companies and trust companies and loan companies are accepting these bonds as sound investments. They mature in not later than 18 years. In effect, this means that in a short time these bonds will be sold in the open market as all other valuable securities; they are tax free, and bear four per cent annual interest. The interest being guaranteed by the United States Government. And this means further that if the holder of the indebtedness cannot carry the indebtedness longer or at a rate of interest the borrower can pay over a reasonable period of ten or fifteen years, then it seems reasonable that the note holder would accept these bonds and either hold them at four per cent or have the faith that in the near future said bonds could be sold by their local bankers through the security exchanges of this country for cash and at or near their par value.

Blank forms for applications may be had at the office of R. L. Saunders, at R. E. Powell's implement company, or at the law office of Stinnett & Stinnett. Further information will appear in the News next week.

YEAR BOOKS
BUSINESS CARDS

SPECIAL PRINTING

SOME kinds of printing, like some kinds of salesmen, never get an audience. We plan and print ideas that get into the inner office and sell.
