WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Regardless of the outcome of the November balloting, the nation is assured of sane, conservative politics emanating from the capital for the tenure of the next administration whoever is inaugurated in January will find that no longer will Congress tolerate "emergency" or dictatorial powers by the chief executive.

The composition of the next Congress is pretty well determined in advance of the election. The Democrats will control the Senate by a large majority, generally speaking, this group but the Democrat majority will be split into two factions—those in undivided allegiance to President Roosevelt, and those demanding a return of normal government. The same situation is likely to prevail in the House.

Especially, if the election is close will many Democrats, some of whom are now administration leaders, assert their authority to check the radical policies which have generally marked Rooseveltian legislation for the past four years.

On the other hand, liberals who fear Roosevelt and yet who hesitate to vote for Landon because of his alleged conservatism must remember that a progressive bloc of Senators and representatives will probably hold the balance between the Democrats and Republicans in Congress next year. While opposed to the radicalism of the Gerald Smith-Dr. Townsend type, in spite of the fact that the favors progressive legislation. In this category do we particularly call to mind the Brothers La Follette of Wisconsin and Gerald Nye of North Dakota.

One peculiar aspect of the presidential campaign is the fact that President Roosevelt refuses to issue a declaration of intentions for the next four years should he be reelected.

In spite of the fact that the emergency is over with the resulting conclusion that the New Deal had something to do with recovery, the chief executive should not demand a "carte blanche" for the next four years on the basis of his accomplishments since 1932.

There is a multitude of Democrats—term them conservative if you will—who would unhesitatingly cast their ballot for the Democratic chieftain should he emphatically disclaim any intention of disclaiming the emergency measures for a longer time or for retaining the extraordinary powers granted to him by the people during the emergency.

Sections of the country conceded early in the campaign to either the Republicans or the

Add the contents of one No. 2 can peas and half the contents (one cup) of a No. 2 can red kidney beans. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and heat thoroughly. Serve on toast and lay crisp curls of bacon on top. Serves eight.

Goblin Salad: Make a dressing by shaking together three tablespoons olive oil, six tablespoons canned pear syrup, four teaspoons lemon juice, one teaspoon sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cloves, one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon, and one-eighth teaspoon allspice. Pour this over the drained pears from a No. 2 can, and let stand in the ice box for several hours. Make a nest of shredded cabbage, well crisped in water, or of shredded lettuce on each salad plate. In the center pile one cup cubed apple with the red skin left on. Invert a pear half over the apples and on it make a goblin face, using cloves for eyes and nose and a bit of cherry or pimiento for the mouth. Pour over more dressing. Serves eight.

World Comment—

Democrats are now being hotly contested by the party formerly classed as the loser.

California, Republican in 1928 and Democratic in 1932 by a 47,625 plurality, is the scene of Governor Landon's campaign efforts. Regarded until recently as "sure" territory by the Democrats, the general rise is Republican stock coupled with Dr. Francis Townsend's announcement that he would ballot for the G. O. P. nominee has encouraged the Republican high command.

California is the stronghold of Townsendism, where there are over 600 clubs identified with the $200 a month pension plan. It is not inconceivable that the good doctor might swing the state for Landon. However, all is not said to be in harmony in the state Republican leader, Governor Frank Merriam, is extreme the Republican ranks there and weak politically even with his own constituents.

President Roosevelt is currently speaking in New England Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut are scheduled for several appearances each by the chief executive.

The three states have a total of twenty-nine electoral votes. Of the three, Connecticut was the only one to stay with Hoover in 1932. But it is in Connecticut today that the Democrats have their strongest organization and their best chance of putting a New England state in the Democratic column.

Connecticut and Rhode Island sent majority Democratic delegations to Congress in 1934 and the three states have five senators in the upper house, Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island being the only Republican. Democratic governors occupy the executive mansions of the three states.

Cooking Top
at Each End

Here is a Gas Range designed in the mode of tomorrow, offering the utmost in cooking convenience.

Smartly styled, with rounded corners and graceful enameling, it is finished in a gleaming porcelain throughout.

The unusually large oven, fully insulated with rock wool, has porcelain linings that are rust-proof and easily kept clean. A safety pilot light burns while oven burner is on. Heavy steel wire oven racks, of non-sagging construction, slide out on porcelain rails to safety stop without tipping.

An automatic electric lamp illuminates the oven when door is opened. Combination thermostat control and oven burner gas cock are conveniently located on the backguard together with an electric clock and accurate timer. Oven thermostat is of the extra-sensitive liquid bulb type, extremely accurate.

EDW. G. ROBINSON COMING TO REGAL IN SMASHING PLAY

Edward G. Robinson returns to the screen in "Bullets of Ballots," which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Regal Theatre beginning Saturday night at 10:30 and showing Sunday and Monday.

Robinson's new role affords him all the opportunities for characterization that made him famous in beginning but in this picture he is not a gangster. He is a hard-boiled detective determined to put the boldest and best organized band of criminals known to history out of business.

To do this he renounces both love and honor, at least temporarily, for he breaks with the police and, ostensibly becomes a criminal himself, in order to gather the evidence to break up a band of crooks so powerful that no one had ever been able to put the finger on them.

The picture is the story of racketeers who are supposed to be respectable society leaders, business men of wealth, politicians of high position and bankers, men so well known that no one suspects them. They never are seen with any of the crooks who carry out their orders, but contact just one man in the working organization, who carries out their orders and delivers the proceeds of their ill gotten gains.

The story is by Martin Moon-ey, the New York newspaperman who exposed racketeering in the newspapers, and was sent to jail for thirty days for contempt of court because he refused to divulge the source of his information. He claimed it was his moral right not to divulge the names of persons who gave him information confidentially. Seton I. Miller collaborated with Moon-ey on the story and also wrote the screen play.

There is an usually talented cast in the picture with Joan Blondell playing the feminine lead opposite Robinson.

Barton MacLane has the role of the chief of the gangsters, the only contact with the "high-cups", but who still has a terrific time in keeping his gang of killers in line. In the end one of them double-crosses him and shoots him down in cold blood.

The latter part, the toughest of all tough men, is played by Humphrey Bogart, the killer of "The Petrified Forest."

Frank McHugh furnishes the comedy element as the personal agent of Miss Blondell, who runs a Harlem Numbers racket. Joseph King is the commissioner who breaks Robinson.

Others in the cast include Richard Purcell, George E. Stone, Joseph Crehan, Henry O'Neill, Henry Kolker, William Pawley, as well as hundreds who appear roles. William Keighly directed the picture.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THEY'VE made so many new records flying lately that it's awful hard to think up any new re-

ords to work for. There's hardly any place left to fly to for a record, and for staying up in the air and staying on the ground and everything like that, they've got all the records sewed up.

So there was a guy started out in a little plane not very long ago, and he hinted around the field that he was going after a record. I'll come back with a record that'll surprise you," he says.

So the papers printed rumors that he was going to fly straight up and not come back for a year, or he was going to dive deeper into the ocean and back again than anybody else ever did, or something like that.

Well, sir, that night he crashed into the top of a tall fir tree and stuck there. When he climbed down the reporters says to him, "Say, it's tough that you didn't get to make a record, aint it?"

"Oh, didn't I?" he says. "Who else ever came down on the top of a fir tree without ever climbing up there; can you answer me that?"

STAGE BEAUTY WEARS DACHÉ'S NOVEL "CIGARETTE-HAT"

Nancy McCord, glamorous singing star of the recent Broadway hit "May Wine," and former prima donna of the American Opera Company, wears a hat designed by Lily Daché, famous New York designer, and christened the "Viceroy." This stunning model heralds a run of so-called "diplomatic" fashions, and is a particularly flattering adaptation of the new trend toward high crowns and deep backs. The trimming—of black and white ciré satin rolls made in imitation of cigarettes—emphasizes the daring peaked crown.

When an inquisitive lad asked Fuzzy Voss if he went to the "Streets of Paris" while he was at the Centennial, Fuzzy retorted, "Why do you think I went to the Centennial?" Silly simile: As cold as a coolie. Miss Durham says she wants Joe Satterfield to shave off his goatee—it hasn't been bothering you, has it dear teacher? "With a hey and a ho, and a hey nonino."—Shakespeare; now we know where Cab Calloway got his start. Every lass' response to Gooch McDonald's line is "I bet you tell that to all the girls", and he doesn't deny it. Turkey Straw has his sky blue orbs on Anita Lowrey. Piccoke's contribution to G. H. S. is Estell Lovejoy. Martha Jean Patillo is all swelled up—well, at least in one jaw. George Donaldson rates with Doris Polk. Wonder if Florine Simpson and Kodak Mayes have had the knot tied. One line in the poem runs: "The gift with out the giver is bare," but it seems to us that the giver without the gift is bare. Oh, well the reason Clifton was penalized for too much time out was because the backs were drawing straws to see who was going to make the fourth touchdown, or was it the fifth? The loyalty of the pep squad was noticeable. The Cubs must have thought the Hornet goal line was their den by the way they stayed in it.

Thirty days has September, April June and so has my uncle for speeding.

Editorial

By the Editor

Last Friday night on the green turf of the new stadium, the Gatesville Hornets took their worst beating in years. Maybe Hornet teams of former years have suffered defeat by a much larger score, but the loss of the Clifton game was the worse because the Hornets were due to beat the Cubs by at least two touchdowns and because the largest crowd to ever witness a game in Coryell county was there. They saw a dazed and bewildered Hornet team wither under the heavy barrage of the husky Clifton eleven. They weakened because they had expected a brather and, got exactly the opposite.

We lost to Clifton, but that was last Friday night. Tonight brings a different team, and we believe a new Hornet group who are going to fight their hearts out. Hornets, dedicate this game to your two excellent coaches, Worley and Schwarz. That district crown hasn't been won by anyone yet and we're still in the race.

Clifton Roms Over Hornets

Last Friday night the Clifton Cubs went to town in a big way by humiliating the highly touted Hornets 32-0. The Gatesville lads trotted out on the field with their chests protruding two inches above normal. Even the water boy was cocky. The same Hornets limped off the same field with a 32-0 shellacking pasted on them.

The Cubs trotted around end, sauntered through the center and brushed the Hornet line aside as if it were last year's cobweb. After the third touchdown, the spectators who had not gone home were examining the lights or looking over the pep squads.

The first half was football. Soon after the Cubs scored, the Hornets began a drive up the field that was ended when an end dropped a pass over the goal line. The Hornets knocked at the touchdown door two more times in the first half but was never able to put the oval over for the coveted touchdown. After the Cubs made their second touchdown in the third quarter, the game became a riot.

The Hornets can erase this slaughter by winning from the Mart aggregation here tonight. Come out and see a renovated Hornet eleven.

F. F. A. Sponsors Party

At 7:30 o'clock last Tuesday evening the Gatesville Chapter of the Future Farmers sponsored a party held in the High School gymnasium. They had as their guests the Home Economics club and the faculty.

Approximately 150 students were present. Games of 84 and "cootie" furnished the diversion for the evening. At the conclusion a delicious plate consisting of punch, cakes, and sandwiches were served.

Former Superintendent Visits School

Last week Gatesville High School was honored with a short visit from Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Williams. Mr. Williams, a former Superintendent here, now holds the position of Superintendent of the Mexia schools.

Mrs. Williams, who some years ago organized the first pep squad of Gatesville High School, arrived in Gatesville about the middle of the week, and Mr. Williams arrived Friday in time to attend a picnic in he and his wife's honor, and then attend the Gatesville-Clifton football game.

The Bonfire

The bonfire that was so carefully planned and worked for was not had last Friday night. The intention of the pep squad was to have it after the game on the old football field and invite all of Gatesville. But since the game was lost the matter has been dropped entirely.

New books for reference in Economics have been ordered. For use in English classes a large number of fiction, biographies and other books have been ordered.

Books are all being repaired, which adds to the general appearance of the library.

Dramatic Club

The third meeting of the High School Dramatic Club was Wednesday, October 14, 1936.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read, a short business session was held, in which it was decided that Ruth Hamilton and her group would have charge of the program next week.

This week M. H. Shepherd and his group had charge of the reading of a short prologue, with Pauline Turner and Henry McDonald taking part, and a playlet, entitled, "The Lunatic or the Professor," which was read by the sponsor, Miss Durham.

High School Annual

Definite action is in progress for the high school annual which the senior class is going to promote. The annual committee, which is composed of class officers and Belta McCoy, are working hard and with the backing of the entire student body, the faculty, and our Superintendent, there should be little trouble. There is, however, lack of money and enthusiasm. Our school should furnish the enthusiasm and anyone that is interested may finance it. Mrs. Crist, a member of the elementary school faculty, is helping by putting on a negro minstrel soon. The proceeds will go for the annual. Much more will have to be done but by complete cooperation, the first annual in several years will soon be underway.

Gatesville-Mart Game

Here comes the Mart bunch with a bang-bang, and Sandig the main threat of the main offense, is pointing the gun. Too bad the spectators won't get to see much of Sandig. The explanation is this; after Sandig makes three touchdowns, the coach takes him out. This will probably be in the first quarter because he is hoped to run loose in the game tonight. The team is much stronger than the Hornets. The proof of this is their crushing defeat over Valley Mills 25-0. If Mart lives up to the dope bucket, it ought to be a great track meet with one team entered. By the way, the Mt. Calm team took McGregor last week by the score of 7-6, and Mt. Calm is supposed to be a brather.

There is only one thing wrong with the billing of the game last Friday night. It should have been announced as a track meet. (It certainly looked like one). It's too bad the first downs didn't count, because if they had, we might have won the game. The Hornets must have thought that it was too hot for a bonfire. (From the looks of things it was too hot on the field for them). We might have had a touchdown if Zack Fore hadn't stumbled over his shadow. Our prediction is: Mart 101, Gatesville 0.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club met Monday, October 9 and had a business meeting. The club voted to change the name of the Home Economics Club from Vocational Home Economics to Future Home Makers. The club also elected a historian, Theo Basham. The aims of the club were read by Beth Powell and approved by the club. Pauline Turner read the constitution and with a few changes it was adopted by the club.

The social committee served punch and cookies and the meeting adjourned.

October 13, the Home Economics Club served the District Lions Club at a banquet in the high school gym.

Personals

The Choral Club

The High School students were entertained in the chapel period Tuesday morning by the High School Choral Club under the capable direction of Miss Halbrook. They sang "Rounded Up in Glory" by Oscar J. Fox. The program was thoroughly enjoyed and we hope that they will soon entertain us again.

The Choral Club meets on Wednesdays and Mondays at eleven thirty. There are fifty-

GRANDMA FORD PASSES ON

Monday evening, Mrs. J. A. Ford passed away at the A. O. Welch home of this city. Services were conducted by her pastor, the Rev. C. A. Morton, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Gatesville, at Coryell city, Tuesday at 3:30. Burial followed in Miller Cemetery.

Mrs. Ford was born in Alabama, May 3, 1842. She came with her parents to Texas when 9 months old, settling in Leon county. Later she lived in Jonesboro and for the last number of years in Gatesville.

Mrs. Ford is survived by one daughter, Mrs. S. A. Goff of Coryell City, and a number of grand children, one of whom she reared, Miss Dola Boykin, now State Nurse at Sanatorium, Texas. Despite her accumulated years Grandma Ford was very active and faithful to the services of the church until recent illness overtook her, which resulted in her death.

Many friends from over the county assembled in memory of her life, and deeply regretted the home-going of this aged woman.

BEING a "regular guy" he comes home from school full of pep and energy. You want him that way always. But are you protecting his health during the winter evenings he must spend indoors?

A "stuffy" feeling . . . dullness . . . lowered vitality . . . headache are some of nature's ways of complaining against improper heating and insufficient ventilation. They are warning signals that America's Public Health Enemy, the common cold germ, has found another fertile field. For the sake of your family's health—guard against this. Keep the air in your home constantly purified with fresh oxygen through adequate ventilation in every room.

A simple method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is to open a window in each room a few inches from the top and bottom. The entire house should be heated and connecting doors between adjoining rooms left open for a natural circulation of pure warm air from one room to another. Incidentally, fresh, pure air is easier and more economical to heat than "stale" air.

Remember a headache is a warning signal. Guard your family against colds with proper heat and ventilation throughout the house!

Mart Panthers vs. Gatesville Hornets Tonight

Defeat of Mart Is Gatesville's Only Hope to Re-enter Dist. Race

Today's question for debate; will Gatesville stage an upset and defeat Mart, the favorites?

Whether they can do so is highly problematical. They possess a psychological advantage in that of being the underdogs, and any team picked to lose usually will fight the hardest to up-set the dope bucket and emerge victo-

ius. Mart has been virtually conceded the district championship in a view of their impressive string of victories, but such a record may make them over-confident, as was the sad case of the Hornets last Friday night. However, they have been conceded championships before and gone ahead and won them. The Panthers have a strong team and win games on their own merits and not their record.

No statements are being retracted from Tuesday's paper, the appropriate adjective for such an exhibition as the Clifton game is "Lousy" but the Hornets are still a good ball club. They possess the wealth of good material and could become a great ball club, if they learn to fight for sixty minutes of football. It is the supreme test of a team if losing, they still keep trying to win.

Sandig, halfback, and Brady, guard are Mart's bids for all state honors. This team is built around these boys and from all reports they are worthy of the honor.

Mart has set more stars to the college gridiron than any class B team in central Texas. Their football season over there is a serious business, as one can learn by looking at their trophy case, filled to bursting with loving cups and plaques as mute evidence of their athletic prowess.

Gatesville has yet to capture the district crown. Many good teams have borne high hopes of winning such an honor but all have fallen by the wayside, usually knocked there by Mart or McGregor. This is Mart's year, it seems, to put the Hornets out of the running for good. Clifton has started the ancient procedure and the Panthers will probably finish it. If by some strange quirk of fate the Hornets should luck out on Mart and beat them, then Gatesville would be back in the title race once more, but such wild pipe dreams are far too hazy to count on.

In appreciation of their splendid showing against Clifton last Friday night, Coach Worley has been working his boys. They should be in a good condition for the go with the Panthers, if nothing else.

Mart should win tonight. Not by any large score, although they are a much better team than Clifton because the Hornets will be pointing for them and will at least be trying to stop them. If they do not try to stop them, the regulars will probably find themselves on the bench with the third string filling their places, as it should be.

Team Records

In comparing the records of Gatesville and Mart, the latter has by far the better standing.

All of Mart's opponents except Mt. Calm, have been fairly strong and yet all have been beaten by comparatively large scores. Gatesville took her two "breathers" in full stride, nosed out Valley Mills and went down under Clifton.

On paper, Mart is the better team and probably will be on the field too. Unless the Hornets show some inspired ball playing they will meet their second "Waterloo" tonight.

the policy of "I tagged you, you're it." Whoops, what a game when it has descended to this.

The Hornets pack a slight advantage in weight over the Panthers. The Mart line will average 145 pounds and their backfield 147. The Hornet line averages 159 pounds and the backfield, 147. There is not enough difference in the weight of the teams to make any great advantage and both seem to be well matched.

Mild Ravings

Mart will win by two touchdowns tonight. They aren't that much better than Gatesville in actual football strength but they seem to have that something that the Hornets lack. Call it lack of spirit, fight or experience, or anything you choose but it is one of the deciding factors in football.

Anger, though a bad habit, has won many football games. Anger causes aggression, and aggression moves the football forward. That seems to be the main reason why Baylor whipped Texas in the last quarter. The Bears finally got tired of the slugging tactics of the Longhorns and started running over them; result, Baylor 21—Texas 18.

Although the Hornets have played all clean opponents so far, perhaps it would do them some good to get slugged once in a while. Anything to wake them from their lethargy. Voss and Williams pack enough weight and power to enable them to whip any enemy line but so far they seem to have adopted

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
The year 1757. General Montcalm is besieging Fort William Henry, defended by Colonel Munro. The Colonel's two daughters, Cora and Alice, on their way to the fort, accompanied by Major Heyward, are captured by Hurons, but rescued by Hawkeye, a hunter. The Colonial Irregulars abandon the Fort to defend their homes against the Indians. For helping them leave, Hawkeye is put in irons and threatened with hanging. Alice visits him in prison and Hawkeye declares his love.

Chapter IX

THE MASSACRE

Alice appealed in vain to Heyward and her father for mercy. They were adamant. The crime was mutiny, and mutiny must be punished by hanging. That was army regulations. The fact that Hawkeye had performed what he thought was his duty, that he had remained behind to face the consequences, these weighed nothing against the clear letter of the law. "That's the army and that's

Munro shook his head. "It's Webb's signature." He spoke feebly. All of his strength and initiative appeared to leave him. "You have no alternative," Montcalm said gently. "Your own general advises surrender." Heyward spoke up, his jaw set firmly. "I know the temper of our men, Colonel Munro. Rather than spend the rest of the war in a French prison-hulk, they'll fight to the end." The speech seemed to revive Munro. He stood erect and faced Montcalm. "You have heard your answer, Monsieur le Marquis." He saluted. "Good day, sir." "Wait," cried Montcalm. "I beg you not to sign the death warrant of your brave men until you have heard my terms." Munro nodded. "The fort must be destroyed. Your men must give up their arms and return to England. For the rest, ask what you will." Munro stared at him incredulously. "The honors of war?" "Granted," said Montcalm with a bow. "My colors?" "Carry them to England and show them to your king." Tears came to the old man's eyes at this unexpected generosity on the part of his gallant oppo-justice," Heyward said firmly. "Justice," Alice said bitterly. "If that's your idea of justice, then the sooner French guns blow the British army out of America, the better it will be for the Colonies." Heyward was horrified. "Alice, you don't know what you're saying!" "Yes, I do," she answered. "For the first time in my life I'm speaking from my heart and not out of a Book of Regulations. And if it's sedition, I'm proud of it." From the distance came the roll of drums. Colonel Munro went to the window. In front of the earthworks stood a French officer, white flag in hand, seeking a parley. The parley was arranged. From the French lines came Montcalm himself, attended by a group of officers, and stopped halfway to the Fort. A similar group, headed by Heyward and Munro, advanced from the Fort to meet them. From a distance the Hurons watched the proceedings sullenly. Montcalm was the first to talk. "Colonel Munro," he said, "I have known you as a gallant antagonist. I am happy to make your acquaintance as a friend." "I have long realized," Montcalm continued, "that even outnumbered as you are, it would merely be a waste of breath to invite you to surrender." "You are correct in your assumption, sir," Colonel Munro answered grimly. Montcalm smiled. "As a soldier, I know that an officer of your proven courage does not surrender until his cause is proved without a doubt hopeless." Munro and Heyward exchanged puzzled glances. They were not to be kept long in suspense. "Colonel," said Montcalm, "my scouts intercepted this dispatch intended for you. Read it." Colonel Munro began to read, and was unable to finish. His voice broke. Silently he handed the message to Heyward. The dispatch read: "Colonel Munro—Fort William Henry. No reinforcements available—impossible to send provisions without escort—advise surrender of fort." It was signed "Webb." "It's a trick," said Heyward tensely.

ent. "I accept your terms, sir," he said. "The fort is yours." The French and Hurons were in possession of the fort. The English, stripped of their arms, but still proudly bearing their colors, prepared to line up in military formation for their departure. Within the houses of the stockade the women were packing their meagre possessions. The Hurons had broken into the rum stores, and their whoops, their threatening gestures, their hostile attitudes caused some concern. None was prepared, however, for the mad scene that was to ensue. Only Hawkeye and his Mohican friends, still imprisoned in the cell, and watching the scene somberly through the grated windows, realized the danger to the vanquished defenders. Chingachgook drew his finger around the top of his head, in a scalping gesture. Hawkeye nodded. An Ottawa chieftain wandered past the prison. Hawkeye decided hastily upon a plan. He called to the Indian in the Ottawa tongue. "Come here, great chief." As the Indian approached, Hawkeye's arm suddenly shot through the grilled window, grasping the Indian by the windpipe. Uncas reached out and seized the knife and tomahawk. The Ottawa chieftain dropped to the ground, strangled by Hawkeye's powerful grip. With the aid of the tomahawk, the prisoners bent the bars, and made their escape. Magua, meanwhile had driven his warriors into a fury. Scores of drink-crazed Indians were wandering around the stockade, brandishing their knives, making threatening gestures in the direction of the unarmed British. "The French tell us there is peace," Magua shouted. "They tell us to put away our hatchets. But your squaws will laugh with scorn if you return without honor." He pointed to the stockade. "There are Yankee scalps. We go get them!" He raised his tomahawk. The Hurons whooped approval, and in mad haste started for the barracks in the direction of the unprotected women. The massacre had begun!

REPUBLICANS OF TEXAS DETERMINED TO SEE TEXAS GO LONDON

Gatesville, Texas, Oct. 22—Determined that Texas shall be listed among the doubtful states politically, the Young Republicans of this state with a stronger organization than ever, are making a concerted last minute fight for Alf M. Landon for president, says, Tom V. Freeman, Gatesville, chairman of the eighth District of the organization.

"Young Republicans realize every where," says Mr. Freeman, "that Texas has not in the past received proper consideration of the national government because it has always been solid in politics.

"We base our present fight, of course, on clear cut issues of the campaign as well as in our hopes for the state. But there is also a personal element for us in our anxiety to elect Landon. We like the man. We think he is not a sly politician and will keep his word. We hope from him to return to the old fashion American honesty in government and we are tired of beautiful explanations on ugly facts."

Of the five local clubs in this district, officers are: Bosque county, Billy Dardons, president; Hal Gill, vice-president; T. L. Darden Jr. secretary; all of Meridian.

Coryell county: Tom V. Freeman, president; C. W. Ford secretary, Gatesville.

Lampasas county: Max Har-ison, president; Rufus McKinney, secretary, Goldthwaite.

McLellan county: C. H. Dickens, president; E. C. Robinson, secretary, Waco.
