J. C. Harrell, formerly of Dallas, but who has recently been employed by the Shepherd Motor Co. of this city, has just recently leased the filling station from Mr. Shepherd and is having his opening Friday and Saturday, with special inducements to auto owners and drivers.

Mr. Harrell is one of the young business men of Gatesville, having come here only a short time ago from Dallas where he was employed in the automotive industry in that metropolis.

PUBLIC LIBRARY TO OPEN SATURDAY, APRIL 3

Gatesville Public Library will open for the general public Saturday, April 3rd. Work on this project was begun March 1, but the intervening time has been spent in collecting and cataloging the books, building shelves and getting the reading room repaired. This room will be open to anyone who wishes to come in and use it. Daily papers will always be available as will the current magazines. The books, with the exception of about three hundred which were bought by the city about two years ago, are obtained solely by donations, and at this time are somewhat limited. But the library is expected to grow and the cooperation of the public is its greatest aid. It will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. every day except Sunday. Books will be checked out to any resident free of charge.

$196,948.28 PAID FARMERS ON FARM PROGRAM

This dope comes from the County Agent's office, that on the 1936 farm program $196,948.28 has been paid so far to Coryell County farmers, tenants, and owners.

There are less than 75 more checks to producers which have not come thru, and these will be completed in a short time, according to Mr. Powell.

Expense of handling this farm program, according to Mr. Powell, is approximately 3 per cent, or a little more, which amounts to about $6,893.00 at 3 1/2%.

1936 STATISTICS SHOW AN INCREASE OF COTTON GINNED IN COUNTY

The 1936 cotton census, as compiled by W. R. Goodson, collector of cotton statistics for Coryell County, shows a marked increase in bales of cotton ginned in the county for 1936, over the amount ginned in 1935. From the crop of 1935, 16,980 bales were ginned, but the crop of 1936 has ginned 19,348 a n increase of 2,368 bales.

PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND OPEN HOUSE AT LOCAL CAMP SUNDAY

Henry commanding officer of the local CCC Camp, open house will be held Sunday, April 4, at which time he cordially invites everyone in this vicinity to visit the Camp and get acquainted with the camp personnel and enrollees and to see how and where they live, the work accomplished and other camp activities. A program will be presented beginning at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, will conduct services a the camp Sunday morning, April 4, at 9 o'clock.

THREE-LEGGED COLT NEAR TURNERSVILLE IS A "RIPLEY"

We saw the picture of another of Coryell County's oddities a day or so ago. It's a three-legged colt! Only a little hair similar to a tail hangs in the place occupied by the normal right front leg. The hair is about 2 1/2 or 3 inches long.

This mysterious monstrosity belongs to Wayne Williams of Turnersville, who was showing pictures of the colt here last week. Its mother had three other normal colts before this one and her new colt, as strange as it may seem, is in the best of health, and perfectly normal otherwise. The colt was born March 25.

RADIO WILL FEATURE CCC ORCHESTRA AT LOCAL CAMP SAT. NIGHT

An orchestra composed of Harry Stephens, S. P. Warren, J. C. Turner, Herman Johnson, A. J. Jones and Mike Ochoa of the local camp will be one of the features of a radio broadcast over WACO Saturday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Capt. E. A. Olson of Waco, commanding sub-district No. 2 of the Fort Worth District CCC, will give a brief talk on the future and past of the CCC, inviting the public to visit the ten camps in his sub-district at open house Sunday afternoon, April 4, to participate in activities commemorating the fourth anniversary of the CCC.

Commanding officers of the four camps in this district will further extend the invitation issued by Capt. Olson and will make a brief talk in connection with the broadcast. These officers are Capt. Herman K. Henry of Gatesville; Capt. John W. Oliver of McGregor; Capt. Z. D. Phillips of Mexia, and Lt. Rudolph Winkler of Waco.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Waldrop spent Easter with relatives in Comanche.

Guests of Mrs. H. S. Sadler over Easter were Mr. and Mrs. Van Sadler of San Saba, Miss Louise Sadler of Waco and Miss Vera Sadler of Belton.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson. (Mrs. Wilson being the former Miss Dottie McCarver) are now living in San Antonio, at 206 West Hollywood street.

TRACK, FIELD, TENNIS AND PLAYGROUND AND BASKETBALL

That's the lineup for this week end's continuance of the Coryell County Meet, which is due to finish up with the week end's activities.

All track events will be run off Saturday, beginning at 9 a. m., and the tennis and playground and basketball finals will also finish up on that day.

So far, no points as to schools could be given, because the events were not finished, and any publicity on the events before completion would have been misleading.

Tuesday's News will carry a full account of the final results as can be secured at that time.

"DOC" RUTHERFORD SLINGS HAT INTO CITY RACE MUDDLE

"Doc" Rutherford has been announced by his friends for action of the city's voters in the coming city election for Alderman of Ward two., which has already the present office holder, J. O. Brown, and another contestant, R. W. (Candy) Ward.

This really stirs the porrage, and the voters don't know what it's all about since "nobody has said nothing." We suppose it's going to simmer down to a merely personal matter, since no platform boards or other information have been received.

"Doc," by the way, is a graduate of Gatesville high school and is well known in the city and county alike. He is proprietor of Doc's Sandwich Shop.

On the other side of the "Main Drag" we have as candidates the present incumbent, Bob Saunders, and Trop Jones.

The lucky City Treasurer candidate, so far, has no opponent, but there is still time, and anything can happen.

EDITOR EXPOSES PRINTING RACKET TO PURMELA SCHOOL CLASSES

Rushing thru the doorway, they came, faces aglow and bursting with questions, the 6th and 7th grades of the Purmela school. Pleasant callers they were, too, for they appreciated our stumbling attempts to explain the workings of a newspaper office and listened attentively. When presented with a slug, from the Linotype, with his name on it, each grinned and said "Thanks," politely. They were personally conducted thru the shop and given explanation of the several pieces of machinery used in getting out a newspaper.

The occasion for the visit was naively stated by one roly-poly red-headed chap who said, "They brought us to town to keep us from running off on April Fool Day." Smart people, these modern teachers.

BAPTIST REVIVAL IS SET TO OPEN APRIL 10

Among the many interesting events scheduled for the First Baptist Church of this city is the coming revival announced by the pastor, Rev. Calance A. Morton, to begin on Sunday, April 11, continuing for two weeks.

The Evangelistic party will be composed of Joe Trussell, Gospel Singer of Brownwood, and Dr. C. Y. Dossey, Evangelistic preacher of note from Dallas.

"ONE-EYED CONNALLYS"

We see a good many of them in Gatesville,—at night. They really don't crash gates like the world renowned gate crusher, Connally. So far they haven't crashed anything, but they don't look so good when you come over a hill at about sixty, or happen to turn a corner and see one of them coming your way, just as if he or she owned the street or highway. They don't even seem to be trying to avoid the traffic, or stay away where they won't be hit.

We refer to cars without one, two, three or any lights. One night last week, we saw four of them in about 10 minutes driving on the streets.

If they just don't give a hoot for anyone else, they might think of themselves, because if someone hits them going about sixty on a highway, or less on some street, neither party will think. Not then or ever more.

For the safety of the individual, regardless of who, of the community, and in order to prevent a miniature New London tragedy of another sort, GET YOUR LIGHTS FIXED!

CLEAN-UP

April 4 to 11, has been designated by your Governor and your Mayor as Clean-Up Week in the State and Gatesville. We got the jump on the gun, because we did a little moving on the side, and really found we had SOME TRASH. Its gone now, and we feel about 100 per cent better. We were keeping things that would never do us or anyone else, for that matter, any good, but we kept them. They were real nice fire hazards—a lot of old papers, envelopes, cardboard, and worn out junk.

You have this or something similiar in your closets in your home, your garage, shed, stacked in the corner of the fence or somewhere. During this Clean-Up Week, it's a good idea in furthering public health, fire prevention and safety campaign to clean YOUR premises, and if YOU do it, we're going to have a clean city. Let's try it, and CLEAN-UP, CLEAN-UP WEEK, APRIL 4 to 11.

The hen lays just one, but she tells the world about that one while it's fresh. And fresh eggs sold quickly in the right market command a premium price. To find out when and where to get the best prices for eggs, or any other farm produce, the farmer needs a telephone. No matter if the output of his farm is small, it will pay him to let the rest of the world know what he has to sell . . . by telephone. Not only can he locate markets but he can close the deal by telephone . . . at very little cost. The telephone is truly the farm's star salesman, and it works for small pay. Order one today.

WITH Congressman
W. R. (BOB)
POAGE

March 29, 1937 I did not return to Washington from my visit home until the latter part of the week. I am sure that it is needless for me to say that I enjoyed the opportunity to be in Texas for a few days and to meet the people of our district. I feel that both Waco and Temple arranged receptions of which everyone could well be proud and which were thoroughly enjoyed by Mr. Farley and all of his party. In his behalf as well as my own I want to thank everyone who had a hand in the entertainment.

While I find that Congress has done very little work this last week, there has been no let up in my mail and I find such an accumulation of matters on my desk that I wonder when I will ever work out. I find that they are still devoting most of their time here to talking about the Court and the "sit-down" strikes with the strikes getting the larger share of the talk. In this connection the most encouraging item seems to me to be the fair and courageous attitude assumed by Mr. William Green, the President of the American Federation of labor, when he stated this morning that he did not approve of any unlawful practice on the part of labor.

We can all agree that labor has the right to strike but we cannot agree that either labor or capital has a right to take the property by force. Mr. Green's fine attitude will go a long way toward maintaining public friendship for organized labor.

The House last week passed the regular appropriation bill for the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments amounting to $123,099,00. The only substantial increase over the committee estimates was an increased half million for canalization of the Rio Grande. This appropriation is the smallest of all the departmental bills to come before us and yet it carries more money than was spent for all purposes

by the State of Texas last year. It seems to me inevitable that the federal government should increase its taxes in the near future. We are spending more money than we are taking in and we cannot go on borrowing forever. We should reduce some of the activities of government and I had sincerely hoped to see us do so but I do not see any immediate prospects of doing this. On the other hand it seems probable that the government will embark on a number of new programs all of which cost money, and all of which must ultimately be paid through taxation. Certainly we cannot abandon our program of Public Works nor can we reduce our Federal contribution to old age pensions. Although they account for a great share of our federal expenditures, these programs are both inadequate at present and surely they cannot be reduced. So too, with our national defense. We cannot neglect it. Nor would any of our people willingly give up the benefits paid our farmers under the agricultural program, and there are few indeed who will not agree that the government should put in effect some rather large scale program of aid to would-be home owners. If these things are to be done we must pay the bill. So it seems to me that we might as well make up our minds that Federal taxes are going to continue to climb. Every dollar of so-called 'Federal Aid' that our states have received for roads, schools, pensions, or what not, must someday be paid back with interest and expenses in form of Federal taxes. I, personally, think we should face the issue now and bring our income tax rates to a point where we could balance our budget and at the same time wipe out the hundred and one nuisance taxes of the federal government, restore the postage rate to two cents per ounce and abandon the federal gasoline tax which is but an added burden in a taxing field already occupied by the States.

To Judy

Dear Judy:

You should have been in Gatesville for Easter! All of the college students were home for the holidays and several gay parties were had. Among them was an old fashioned candy-pulling given at the home of Mrs. Ethel Goodall at the State Training School. Miss Frances Goodall, who is attending college in Brownwood was home for Easter and had as her guest Miss Lucy Mae Brown of that place. Miss Billy Jo Hawkins of Breckenridge was another attractive visitor in the Goodall home. Mrs. Goodall being her aunt.

Troup Banner, which spells W-O-R-K to me.

Had you heard about the two weddings scheduled for April 8? It seems that old Dan Cupid is making quite a raid on the Franks' families of this city, and stealing the hearts of Misses Ruth Raby and Verona Franks, daughters of Messrs and Mesdame Edgar and Ira Franks respectively. Many courtesies have been extended them this week and others are on the Social Calendar for next week. Miss Ruth Raby Franks will become the bride of Johnnie Bradford at 8 o'clock on the morning of the appointed day and Miss Verona Franks will become the bride of Pat O'Neal at 8 o'clock, the evening of the same day with both ceremonies being read in the First Baptist church of this city.

County Baseball League Will Soon Be Organized If Managers Report

Attention all baseball fans of Coryell County. (All other readers of the News may turn the page, this does not concern you). At this season of the year certain marvels of nature begin to assert themselves. The sap begins to rise in the trees, the flowers begin to bloom, beer makes its appearance on the fronts of beer "jernts" and young men lightly turn their fancies to thoughts of love and baseball. Setting aside the trees and flowers, and filling the beer for future reference, we find left only love and baseball. And as your bedraggled correspondent is no Dorothy Dix, we have only baseball left. Which is what I started to talk about anyway. Several callers have caught me here in my office in the City room of the News and fixing me with a penetrating stare asked what I intended to do about the baseball season in Coryell County, to which I have replied, "Anything you want me to," (they were all big, tough looking men.) The season for inter-county competition is due to start sometime in May, but now is the time to begin work organizing an active league. With this thought in mind I started preparations, but now I find myself stymied. When the incumbent took over this nerve-racking job from Truman Blanton and his predecessor, Theodore Harris, the sports situation was in a terrible snarled-up mess. Blanton and Harris had spent most of their time in hunting for cigars, cheaper than "two-for-a-nickel-ones" and confining their sports reporting duties to nothing more strenuous than Spitting-At-Crack contests.

While trying to clean up my desk when the News finally got wise and hired me I found left from my predecessor's occupation two broken bottle openers, a half sack of Bull Durham, one startling detective stories magazine and an address book with such notations in it as "Call 34758W and if a man answers ask for the Star Laundry," two calendars for the year 1935 with pictures of shapely but scantily clothed young ladies on them, and many wadded and crumpled papers with all sorts of strange hieroglyphics scrawled on them.

After spending weeks of research on them, they were finally deciphered into actual meaning. Most of these papers concerned formulas and recipes for making home brew, but a few of them gave particulars of the Coryell County Baseball League, and I felt rewarded for the time and trouble they had taken. (The recipes will come in handy too.)

The by-laws of the league are intact and open to inspection of any interested parties here at the news office. Also, there is a partial schedule of last year games, so all that is needed now is to call a meeting of team managers and arrange a schedule for 1937.

Now is where I send out the clarion call for help. I have no list of team managers to consult and must rely on the public.

Will the managers of last year's teams please drop me a postal card, or call here at the office, and tell me whether their community is interested in entering a team in this year's pennant race.

From the wreckage of Harris' records I have salvaged the following list of teams that have participated before: Ireland Jonesboro, State Training School, Plainview, Flat, Seattle, Gatesville CCC, Neff Park CCC, Mound, Omege, Hubbard, Purmela, Liberty, Turnersville, Pearl, Pidcoke and Levita. No managers were listed so this means is taken to get in touch with them and to try and start the ball rolling.

Simply address your card; James Read Saunders, Coryell County News, Gatesville, and say whether or not your community will enter a team.

Maple Club News

On Thursday March 25 the Maple Club met with Mrs. W. W. Carroll. The afternoon was spent quilting and embroidering. Refreshments of peaches topped with whipped cream, pineapple cake and hot chocolate were served to seven members and two visitors, Mrs. Joe Calhoun and Mrs. B. A. Bay. Mrs. Brookshire will be hostess to the club on Thursday, April 8. Visitors are always welcome.

BUSTER CHURCH ACTIVITIES

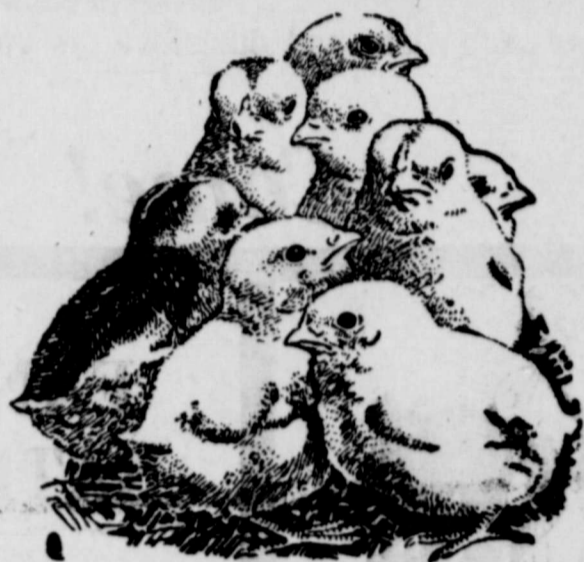

Rev. John Rhoades and Ernest Turner of Levita were here for church services Sunday afternoon and Mrs. Edna Sheppard and Jim Nichols of White Hall were among the out of town persons attending. During the song service the beautiful hymn, "When The Lord Shall Come Again," was dedicated to a faithful Christian soldier, Uncle Jim Cook of near White Hall.

Rev. Mr. Rhoades took for his subject, "God Rules." Rev. Mr.

Rhoades announced that he would be back the second Sunday in April.

DID THE SPRING RAINS WRECK YOUR ROADS?

THIS spring, as every spring, newspapers in many states report the break-up of roads.

As the rainy season gets in its ruinous work many roads are made almost impassable with mud, wash-outs, washboards, ruts, bumps, and chuck-holes. Highway departments are forced to post load restrictions, warnings and detours until the repair crews can do their work.

But there is no spring break-up on concrete roads. Continuity of service is one of their major advantages. They are reliable, trustworthy every month of the year. Maintenance costs are reduced to a minimum.

Yet first cost of concrete is less than that of any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity. Swift but safe—visible at night—smooth but non-skid—saving in gas, tires and car repairs, concrete is indeed the standard by which all roads are judged.

Spring, a cardinal's call; a lark's song, rebuds blooming in the bushy knells, bluebonnets blooming; the call of the little streams and open roads. For many suns and a few moons, too, the club has been trying to find whether Mr. Roosevelt, or the nine old men are bossing the show. Looks like one or the other will have to go. We are not sold on the idea of mass lynching so we believe it a good idea for the nine old men to accept the challenge of spring and go fishing and give progressive democracy a chance to develop something.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD PRINT "DODGING"

Pictures may be improved during enlarging by controlling tones with a "shadow brush."

WHEN an advanced amateur or professional photographer shows some of his beautiful salon pictures to a group of interested but uninitiated people, some of them are sure to ask questions such as these:

"How in the world do you get those lovely tones? How did you make this picture so dark in this part and light in that? How did you get the soft effect in this one? How did you get the light to shine so brightly on the principal object and scarcely at all on the rest of the picture? How do you make these objects in the shadowy parts dim yet visible; and objects in the light parts to stand out so distinctly? My camera won't take pictures like that."

And the cryptic answer is likely to be, "Neither will mine, exactly."

"Then, how do you get all these different gradations in shadow tones? These pictures are like paintings. Do you touch up the negative with something?"

And the answer will be, "No, I do not touch up the negative; I dodge the print."

"Dodge the print? What do you mean—dodge?"

Then comes an explanation of a method whereby a very ordinary picture, as recorded on the negative, may often be transformed into a work of art in the process of making an enlarged print of it. "Dodging," in the slang of photography, means interrupting some of the light passing through the negative by the sensitized paper during the printing of the picture. "Dodging" may be done in contact printing, but more effectively in making enlargements. It is done by holding something opaque between the light source and the paper, such as a piece of cardboard, in such a way as to keep the light from striking a certain area for a certain portion of the time. Thus, that part which continues to receive the full light will print darker than the part from which the light is held back. In other words, the light is caused to "dodge" a certain area.

Virtually, the shadow from the cardboard in the hands of the photographer is used as a paint brush. It serves to light the dark parts. In another way, a print is "dodged" by using a piece of cardboard with a hole in it. The hole lets through a pencil of light, which is manipulated over the surface of the paper and serves to darken the light parts. The intelligent use of a "shadow brush" or "light brush" in this fashion requires a preliminary study of the negative or a contact print as it would ordinarily register in order to discover where "dodging" would improve the picture. Often it means a number of trials before the result is satisfactory.

Amateurs who do not enlarge their own negatives may suggest to their photo finisher how they think a print may be improved by "dodging," and ask him for a special job on it. Of course, the greater satisfaction comes from doing this work yourself. But that is the way many of the lovely effects we see in salon photographs are obtained.

Do You Want a Trailer Vacation?

ENGULFED in a wave of trailer popularity, the American public finds an answer to its wishes in the 25 complete trailer outfits offered as prizes by the current Camay contest. Each award consists not only of a new Covered Wagon trailer, but also of a 1937 Ford V-8 to pull it, and 1,000 gallons of Sinclair H-C Gasoline to solve the fueling problem for about a year.

Completely equipped and ready for use, the trailer outfits consist of a 1937 Ford V-8 Tudor sedan, 85 horsepower, to provide the motive power for the 19-foot 1937 De Luxe Model Covered Wagon, a well furnished interior supplied with nationally advertised accessories, including silverware, towels, bed linen, blankets, cooking utensils, china and electric bulbs. The 25 prizes of complete trailer outfits are supplemented by 300 cash awards.

Simple and clear, the requirements of the contest ask only that each entrant write 25 words on "Why I Like Camay Better Than Any Other Beauty Soap" and mail with three Camay wrappers, or facsimiles to Camay, Box 668, Cincinnati, Ohio. The 25 major prize winners will be announced on the Camay Radio Program, "Pepper Young's Family," the week of June 21st. The contest ends May 1st.

Russia has announced that 150,000 military flyers are to be trained there.

A television station, mainly for experimental work, is to be established in Warsaw, Poland.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD SUNDAY FOR CORYELL COUNTY PIONEER

Joe S. Welch, 85, pioneer of Coryell County passed away at his residence here, in Gatesville, Saturday, March 27, at 9:45 p. m. Funeral services were held from the residence Sunday afternoon with Elders Mr. Childers and Jasper Chambers officiating. Burial followed in the City Cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, and the following: Ola Clary, Addie Bramblett, Kitty Welch of this city; Nora Fisher of Beeville; Lora Wiggins of Fort Worth; Lillie Weat, Abilene; Henry C. Welch, Houston; Arta Nix Waco. Cleo Parker of Tuxcola and 28 grandchildren and 15 great grand children. An older son, Willis M. Welch preceded him in death having passed away on July 14, 1914.

Mr. Welch was married to Miss Martha Ann Bates on July 26, 1879. He had been a citizen of Coryell County for 80 years at the time of his demise, having moved here with his parents, from Livingston County. He had a great host of friends not only in Coryell County but throughout Central Texas.

In early manhood he drove cattle up the trails and had many experiences with the Indians. His great disposition and his many good deeds rendered his fellowman distinguished him as a good man. He enjoyed the fellowship of all Christians but particularly those of his own church. He had been a member of the Primitive Baptist church for 26 years.

His parents, W. M. and Elizabeth Welch were among the early settlers of Texas. Mr. Welch's mother came to Texas from Illinois with her pastor, Elder John Park with other members of his church and they established the first Primitive Baptist church in Texas. His father was a soldier at the same time of Sam Houston and fought in the Battle of San Jacinto. One time while on scout duty he contacted a Hueco (Waco) Indian chief, of whom he was a friend, and learned that the Indians of two other tribes were planning on taking Fort Parker at an early date. Mr. Welch's father obtained a furlough and moved his wife from the Fort just before the massacre 101 year ago.

Mr. Welch lacked just a few months being the age of the State of Texas. He had often expressed his readiness and willingness to go when God should call him home.

Dearest Loved one, thou hast left us,

And thy loss we deeply feel. But 'tis God that has bereft us He can all our sorrows heal. But in Heaven with joy to greet thee

John E. Rankin Weds Conroe Girl Easter Morn

Miss Jane V. Buckner of Conroe became the bride of John E. Rankin of Houston, son of C. E. Rankin of this city, at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning in an impressive ceremony read in the Christian Church of Houston with Rev. Mr. Nowles, pastor, officiating in the presence of immediate families and close friends. The altar space was decorated with Easter lilies and palms.

The bride was lovely in a beige suit with which she wore accessories of British tan and a lovely shoulder corsage of pink sweetheart rosebuds. She was unattended.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a short honeymoon trip to San Antonio and Austin.

The groom is an employee of the Humble Oil Company in Houston in which place the couple will make their home.

Linen Shower Tendered Bride-Elect

A gracious courtesy in the series being extended Miss Ruth Raby Frank, bride-elect, was the bridge party and linen shower Wednesday night, given by Miss Marjorie Wollard at her home on College street. The chosen color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations, refreshments and plate favors.

In games of bridge Mrs. R. E. West Jr. was awarded high score prize and the honoree was presented a lovely Madera luncheon cloth.

Lemon sherbet and angel food squares with favors of miniature bouquets of pastel shades of sweet peas tied with yellow and white ribbon were given the following guests: Mesdames Fred P. Mika, E. W. Jones Jr., Charles Powell, Peyton Morgan, Jim J. Brown, C. E. Alvis Jr., R. E. West Jr., V. C. Morris Federation Has Annual Luncheon Saturday

As a fitting climax to a year's study of Mexico and its people, the Morris Federation entertained Saturday with a Mexican luncheon at the home of Mrs. J. O. Brown on East Main st. Guests were received at the door with characteristic Mexican salutations by Mesdames C. E. Alvis, W. C. Guggolz, W. C. Bradley and C. A. Morton, who were picturesquely attired in Spanish costumes.

The house was gaily decorated with colorful flowers, zarapes, cactus, Mexican glass and pottery, and dolls dressed as señoritas while a pair of love birds cooing in one corner lent a typical Mexican touch.

Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Bradley presided in the dining room where the table was laid with an elaborate drawn cloth and centered with a bowl of vivid flowers in shades of red and blue. They were assisted in serving by Mesdames W. C. Guggolz, P. D. Holt, E. D. Shelton, J. J. O. Brown, Ed Schloeman, and Miss Katherine Gordon.

Cards adorned with brilliantly plumed birds contrived of feathers marked places for the guests at small tables in the living rooms where the motif was further carried out by Mexican blue glass dishes and plate favors of tiny cactus plants set in diminutive pieces of pottery. The menu consisted of tomato juice cocktail, hot tamales, timbales of rice filled with Mexican beans, salad molded in the form of a sombrero, tomato slices, spiced pickles, tortillas, lime ice and coffee.

The program feature of the afternoon was Sir James Barrie's delightful play, "Half an Hour," read from manuscript by Miss Ethel Routh, after which the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. W. C. Guggolz; vice president, Mrs. C. H. Wallace; Secretary, Mrs. H. T. Chapman; treasurer, Miss Miriam Raby; parliamentarian, Miss Edna Murray.

which Mr. and Mrs. Scott left for a short wedding trip to Monterey, Mexico.

"BELOVED ENEMY" ROMANCE OF LOVE UNDER FIRE

The pulsating romance of a man and woman from two warring worlds who risked their lives for love amid intrigue and bloodshed provides the theme of "Beloved Enemy," Samuel Goldwyn's thrilling new screen drama which stars Merle Oberon and Brian Aherne at the Regal Theatre for two days beginning Saturday night at 10:30.

The story is from the pens of John Balderson, Rose Franken and William Brown Meloney with additional dialogue by David Hertz.

Merle Oberon has her greatest role to date as Lady Helen Drummond, the lovely English girl who accompanies her father Lord Athleigh, an emissary of Parliament.

Aherne is seen as Dennis Riordan, the daring, dashing young Irishman who is the secret leader of the revolt and whom all the strategy of the British has failed to trap.

The two fall madly in love and the story depicts how the girl is torn between her duty to her country and her devotion to this handsome, hunted fellow and how she risks her life to intercede for the man she loves and the cause she is sworn to oppose.

An imposing cast, featuring Karen Morley, Henry Stephenson, Jerome Cowan and other well known starring casts.

WORLD COMMENT

AMERICAN NEUTRALITY

Among the several vitally important measures pigeon-holed in congress because of the earth rocking court proposal of the President is the Pittman Neutrality bill. It would be idle to assume that Americans are not interested in neutrality, nor that neutrality legislation is not one of the most important problems before congress and the people today.

Yet a study of the controversy in congress over effective neutrality legislation leads to the conclusion that some American at least are not in favor of complete U. S. abstinence from further European intervention, nor that the political idealism of Woodrow Wilson has been forsaken.

This conclusion grows out of the legislation which the President and his State Department favor. Their preference is for a law which would bar the exportation of arms to any power at war, or the floating of a war loan in this country, but would give the president discretionary authority to embargo any other commodities which might be used as war materials.

It is the last provision, which is embodied in the Pittman measure, around which debate is raging. For, it is said, such power given to the chief executive would permit him to enforce sanctions against any power he saw fit, that is, depriving a warring nation of such essentials as petroleum, cotton, wheat, corn, and copper. If this were done it could easily be interpreted as an act of war and lead at least to attacks upon U. S. shipping and citizens abroad.

Opponents to such a provision, of which Borah and Johnson are leaders maintain that war-time embargoes must apply equally to all belligerents. Such a viewpoint is undoubtedly much sounder than that advocated by the State Department.

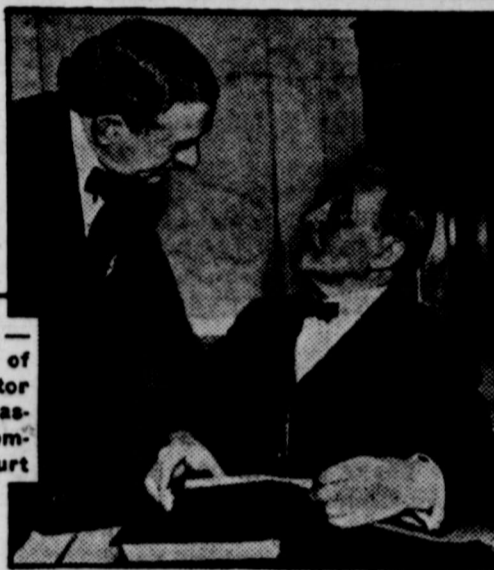

The insistence of the President and of Secretary of State Hull upon the discretionary rather than the mandatory provisions certainly indicates against an aggressor nation in Europe, that is, should their neutrality measure be enacted. Their insistence also means that there is another president in the White House who does not believe that world peace is an Utopian dream in spite of the reverses which peace has received in the nineteen years which mark the post-war era.

Several aspects of the situation may serve to point out the dangers of the president's policy. In the first place, as Senator Nye of North Dakota has already pointed out the neutrality policy of the United States from 1914 to 1917 failed when left to the discretion of one man, and that man a strong man. Then why again adopt a course which failed twenty years ago?

DEMONSTRATION CLUB OF PECAN GROVE MEET

The Ladies Home Demonstration Club met with Miss Sidney Gale Gibson Thursday, March 25, at the home of Miss Mildred Melton. They met to learn to make cheese and organize the club for the coming year.

Miss Gibson made process cheese and Neufchatel Cheese. The women judged four kinds of butter by a butter scoring card. All four kinds of butter were found to be of a very high class.

In the business meeting, Miss Gibson gave each member a recipe for making each kind of cheese and a card for judging butter. Officers could not be elected because there were only a few members present due to bad weather. However, Mrs. O. M. Davidson was elected Pantry Demonstrator, and Miss Mildred Melton, Clothing Demonstrator. It was decided that the club would meet every three weeks instead of every two weeks as formerly. Those present were: Mrs. A. Davidson, Mrs. J. T. Davidson, Mrs. J. P. Walters, Mrs. Nora Melton, Mrs. Red Marshall, Mrs. O. M. Davidson, and Miss Mildred Melton.

Before the business meeting a period of recreation was held. Everyone enjoyed the various games immensely. Coconut cake was served as refreshment and the meeting was adjourned with everyone feeling much wiser for the day.

Winner of $1,000 A Year for Life

MISS PETCOLAS LEE, of Williamsburg, Virginia, winner of the grand prize of $1,000 a year for life in the nationwide Camay soap contest. Miss Lee, a native of Williamsburg and a descendant of prominent Virginians, is one of the hostesses who conducts visitors through the exhibition buildings of Virginia's restored colonial capital. She broadcast to a nationwide audience what she is going to do with her prize money.

May not this same situation be projected upon the American people again? If Hitler and Mussolini decide to divide central and eastern Europe between themselves and are involved in a conflict with Britain, France and Russia as a result, will the United States go to the help of the latter nations if the two Fascist dictators threaten to gain the ascendancy. Will Americans stand by and witness a division of Europe between the Fascist states when they were unwilling to witness such an occurrence under little different circumstances twenty years ago?

Again, if in the next war it is left to the president's discretion to determine who shall receive American commodities, the same condition as existed from 1914 to 1917 will be repeated, with products flowing to Britain and France while Germany and its allies are deprived of the American market. For, as everyone recognizes, the aggressors in the next war are almost certain to be either Germany, Italy, or Japan or all of these. So again we would be faced with the dangers of German anger and possible German attack upon American shipping. However, if the embargo policy is enforced equally against all powers, there would be little chance of a concerted attack upon America by several powers at war.

In the last place, American neutrality legislation is not directed against an aggressor nation, or is it intended to help the democratic powers Britain and France win their next war. A neutrality law would be directed toward keeping the United States out of war. That is the conception of the neutrality legislation in the minds of the American people. And if the fundamental conception is twisted and turned by whatever Utopian ideas President Roosevelt and his foreign advisers may have about world peace or enforcing sanctions against an aggressor power, it is they who will awake with 130,000,000 other Americans to find this nation again fighting to make the world safe for Democracy.

The most fearsome thought engendered by a study of the neutrality problem law in effect. Even if American citizens are kept at home, even if the exportation of war implements is forbidden, even if the raising of here by warring nations is prohibited, there are steps to be taken before America can be pronounced immune to war.

One measure which must be taken—and few realize the role it played before in drawing us into the war—is to prevent warring powers from carrying on propaganda here. Allied nations spent millions in propaganda during the recent years preceding our entry into the war, and their actions were largely responsible for the feeling of hostility here against the Central Powers. Post-war revelations have revealed that three-fourths of the atrocity stories about the Germans and the Austrians were concoctions in the brains of wily Britshers anxious for Americans to help in their jolly war.

Another factor to be considered is possible and probable pressure from groups which will be affected by embargoes during war time. Prohibition against the exportation of war materials will affect not only the munitions manufacturers but steel, rubber, and associated industries as well as the mining industry. And if wheat, corn, and cotton are placed on the banned list, great pressure may be expected from the middle west and the South. Thus the question arises as to whether neutrality legislation will stand up under the pressure of groups financially hurt by the legislation.

Lastly, President Wilson's famous pronouncement that America would have entered the World War if not a single boat had been sunk by a German submarine must be recalled. Wilson pointed out that Americans were not willingly sit by idly by and witness the destruction of Britain and France at the hands of the German and Austrian autocracies.

CHAPTER I

THE limousine was as long as a bad night. Glittering with polished trimmings and manned by a driver and footman, it swept along the quay at Le Havre and came to a silken stop in front of the gang-plank of the S.S. Avignon.

"Your Highness!" exclaimed an official of the steamship company as he sprang forward to open the door of the car.

First to be revealed from within those luxurious depths was a regal blonde creature swathed in enough summer furs to have melted three men. Behind her came a distinguished, haughty grande dame of forty-odd years.

Porters rushed forward to take an extensive assortment of baggage from the car as the official headed

"I am the Lady Gertrude Allwyn, lady-in-waiting and companion to Her Highness," answered the latter austere as she turned toward them.

"Thank you," muttered the reporter. Then to Her Highness he called: "By the way, Princess, where are you going?"

"We go to Hollywood," Olga answered him with the pleasant disdain of a thoroughbred filly in a race track paddock.

"To see the stars?" kidded the reporter.

"No—to be the star," was the surprising answer. "We go to make a picture."

"You're going to act in a picture?" the newsband scribbled wildly.

"We have a contract," the Princess answered with simple dignity.

packing. "Tell that to your buck-toothed princess."

"Sir, if you insist upon staying here, I shall be forced to..." "Forced to do what?" King demanded harshly.

The Assistant Purser did not answer. Instead he drew himself up as stiffly as a ramrod and stared straight ahead. King and Benton also stared and beheld the Princess Olga, Lady Gertrude, the Chief Purser, and in the background, the menage of porters.

"We are rather crowded—not!" inquired Her Highness as Mandini and Benton stared at her in thunderstruck admiration.

"I'll attend to that, Princess," King answered quickly. Whirling on the defenseless Benton he hissed: "Get this straight, Benton. There's been a mistake—this suite belongs to the Princess. The more you object the tougher it'll be on you. Now—get out before I throw you out."

"Whaat?" quavered his friend. "Out!" thundered Mandini, forcing the other through the door.

Then to the Princess he explained: "I reserved this suite before I knew that Your Highness was to be aboard, and unfortunately my companion objected to leaving. I trust Your Highness isn't upset by the way things got screwed up."

"We are quite satisfied," responded the Princess coldly. "Now, if you will favor us with your departure..."

"Oh, sure," King was caught completely off-guard. He backed into the entry salon as the others moved into the bedroom. As the last of the army of porters followed them, he took the card from an envelope on a particularly elaborate flower piece addressed to the Princess and inserted one of his own. Then he stepped quickly back into the bedroom.

"Listen," he beamed. "I hope Your Highness has a pleasant trip and if any time I can be of service, just give me a buzz at my new suite. I'll—"

"Good day," the Princess interrupted quietly.

"Huh?" King forced a smile. Well... good day. He departed, crestfallen, but almost immediately was back, smiling as gaily as ever. "I forgot my razor," he explained, hurrying into the bathroom. A moment later the Princess and Lady Gertrude, alone in the cabin now heard the gurgling of water in the tub.

"Good heavens," cried the astonished dowager. "The fellow's going to take a bath!" She bustled to the bathroom and swung the door open to reveal her enemy, foot on edge of tub, elbow on knee, chin cupped in hand, watching water gush into the tub. His air was grave—academic.

"What are you doing?" demanded Lady Gertrude.

"When I was in here a while back, the tub was sort of actin' up," he answered solemnly. "Now if..." "If you are a plumber, fix it. If not, please go away!" Olga waved a regal hand toward the door.

"Okay, your Majesty." Properly squelched at last, King backed away.

When he had gone, the Princess leaned against the door which she had closed in his face. She was very beautiful, very regal, very calm. "I'd like to smack that guy right in the kisser," she said at last.

"Listen," King beamed, "I hope Your Highness has a pleasant trip and if I can be of any service just give me a buzz at my new suite."

the impressive little parade to and up the gangway. In the rear, following the porters, was a crowd of reporters and photographers.

At the top of the gang plank Captain Nicholls, florid and fussy, stood pulling at his blouse and fidgeting as he went through a last-minute rehearsal of his welcoming speech.

Permit me, Your Highness," he began, as the golden-haired vision swept into view. "I am Captain Nicholls. It is with the deepest of pleasure..."

"Ve, too, feel great pleasure, Captain," replied the Princess, smiling serenely as she placed her hand to her chest.

"What—uh, thank you." The good captain was not to be thrown off the track. "My ship is honored, Your Highness, by the presence of Princess Olga of Sweden. It is with the deepest..." He broke off the reporters and cameramen gathered round and shouted: "Here, here! No pictures! No pictures!"

"Why no pictures?" inquired the Princess, mildly surprised. "I like my picture in the papers. People see. They say, 'Who is that?' They answer, 'Princess Olga of Sweden.' So, if they like me, they like Sweden." Slipping her hand through the Captain's arm and turning to the photographers she added with a charming smile: "We are ready."

"What about this?" one reporter whispered to another as he pointed to the Princess' dowager companion, whose back was toward them.

While this interview continued, an entirely different scene was being enacted in the Royal Suite of the S.S. Avignon. Actors in this drama were King Mandini, a dark, handsome young man cast in the role of villain; Benton, his aide, benchman and stooge, a well-fed individual who couldn't decide whether to be annoyed or not; an anxiously protesting Assistant Purser and a hovering cabin boy.

"You are making it very difficult, Mr. Mandini," pleaded the Purser. "The Princess will be here any moment."

"Then throw the Princess out," replied the King. "Tell her I reserved the royal suite first."

"But can't you understand, sir?" The Purser was frantic. "I will transfer you to a cabin every bit as good. There has been a mistake. There is royalty aboard—and this suite is for royalty!"

"Listen, cluck," snarled Mandini as he stepped unpacking his trunk. "In my own quiet way I'm royalty myself. There isn't a concertina player in the world can top me—King Mandini's concertina band is known all over Europe. I'm not bragging—I'm telling you. And I'm also telling you that for five years I've planned on spreading the flash with the royal suite—and now I'm in it." He turned back to his un-

Chapter 5

Waco started the building of the Waco & Northwestern (Texas Central) 1879; it reached Hico in 1880 and Cisco the following year. The Cotton Belt reached the ambitious city in 1881 and the Katy a year later which connected with Austin in 1883. Meantime the Santa Fe, a Galveston project, struck through the southwest, spawning new towns along its line of which Temple has become the most important. The International and Great Northern crossed the Brazos near the site of old Nashville, and gave birth to another string of towns, of which Taylor is now the largest. This was only sixty years ago, and little of the rich black prairie had been touched by the plow, the small farms of the time being mostly confined to the alluvial valleys and the sandy loams of the uplands. Today the fifteen counties of which Waco is the central distribution point have a quarter of a million homes, and a population of well over half a million, while the five "Hub" counties (Bell, Bosque, Coryell, Falls and McLennan) hold 253,232. All Texas had less (212,592) when the first census was taken in 1850.

Until railroads came, farming made slow progress beyond the production of what could be used at home. Corn and wheat were grown and ground on water mills along the free-flowing creeks and rivers. Cotton had to be hauled hundreds of miles to market but the yields were heavy and from the earliest times it became the principal source of cash income. It eventually crowded the herds of cattle and horses out of the black waxy prairies as it had from the Brazos river bottom plantations. But the livestock held their own in Bosque, Coryell and the more rugged portions of other counties, where we find today a more stable economic situation than in the best of the cotton areas. And on the wide valley plantations which were one devoted most exclusively to cotton production, today we see herds of highly-bred dairy cattle and whitefaces, indicating a return of a less speculative farming system.

As late as 1884, sheep and cattle men were fighting on the streets of Gatesville for control of the range, but the open range itself was passing with the speed of a summer cloud. Where only the cultivated fields could be enclosed so long as rails had to be cut in the cedar brakes and hauled to the prairies for fencing. Little of the land went into crops, and the greater part was left outside to be grazed in common. Braman, writing in 1858 (Information about Texas) says rails could be bought in the Cowhouse valley at $2 per hundred, but delivered on the prairie, cost $2.50 to $3 per hundred. Add the cost of laying the fence, it is readily seen that it would amount to more per mile or rod than a good woven wire field fence costs today. The same author says the Leon River kept Jones' Mill (Jonesboro) and Grant's Mill (Gatesville) turning nine months in the year.
