DR. HOMER P. RAINEY SPOKE ON COURTHOUSE LAWN SAT.

Homer P. Rainey, leading candidate for governor, answered his opponent-critics in a campaign-for-governor speech on the west side of the courthouse lawn in Gatesville Saturday morning, declaring that vicious rumor mongers are attempting to undermine his character and reputation.

"Highly paid hirelings of the corporations are going up and down the state spreading poison against Homer Rainey," the former University of Texas president declared. "They learned at the University of Texas that Homer Rainey will stand up and fight, stand up and fight for the people. They know that Homer Rainey will be a people's governor, and not an office boy of the special and powerful groups which have a stranglehold on the political, economic and educational life of this state."

Rainey recalled how Jim Hogg broke the monopolistic hold on the state a generation ago.

"This year the people of Texas will rise up behind Homer Rainey and throw off the shackles of the moneyed groups," he predicted.

In answering cries of Communism, Rainey pointed out that Hogg was called a Communist that Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt were called Communists by their critics.

"Every time a candidate for public office become the champion of the people, the big boys cry 'Communist'" Rainey said. "Homer Rainey knows that the people of Texas will not believe the paid propaganda which is being spread against him."

Rainey called for an increase in taxes on natural resources to provide funds necessary for his program.

He advocated more and better farm-to-market roads, farm and home ownership, promotion of soil conservatin measures and a rural health plan including traveling dental and medical clinics.

Rainey called for the lifting of the $35,000,000 a year ceiling on the state's general welfare program.

"Need, not age, should govern check," he said. "Homer Rainey has not forgotten that we pledged to pay the old folks a maximum of $40 a month."

Rainey continued to Hamilton. He came to Gatesville from McGregor.

BRACK G. CURRY WASHINGTON AP REPRESENTATIVE HERE

Brack G. Curry, one of the staff of The Associated Press in Washington, D. C., and formerly columnist on the Coryell County News is here on his vacation.

Brack is assigned to 12 different government agencies to "cover" the field for The Associated Press and one of his favorites, naturally is that of Attorney General Tom Clark's Department. He knew Mr. Clark in Dallas, and, naturally, being a Texan himself, they have a lot in common.

Brack began writing for the News when he was about 14, using a pen name, on account of his age. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Curry of Gatesville.

NEWSMEN FROM THE "BIG PRESS" VISIT GATESVILLE RECENTLY

Last week, Jim Carroll of The Houston Press was here "canvassing" the governor's race. With him was Ray Humbert, photographer from The Temple Daily Telegram, of Temple.

Saturday morning, the 6th, during Dr. Homer P. Rainey's appearance here, W. T. Rives, one of the Staff Correspondents of The Dallas Morning News, who along with Allen Duckworth, Robert M. Hayes, Dawson Duncan, Wick Fowler and David Botter are covering the "political situation" and the "leading ladies of the campaigns" was here covering Dr. Rainey's speech.

Also, Alfred Rosenthal, news photographer for "The Texas Week" was here at that time, covering the situation for this now, or soon to be Texas magazine.

In Dr. Rainey's entourage, was a former "desk man" from The San Angelo Standard-Times. The name slipped us.

Elmo King, who recently received his Veterinary Surgeon degree from A&M is now at Longview where he is associated with another veterinary. He was a visitor in Gatesville this week end.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. (Toogood) Cone of La Porte were visitors in Gatesville last week.

Wage Wisdom

Wages rose and prices fell during the ten years just before World War II when working men were able, through collective bargaining, to influence the operations of private enterprise without political interference. Workers earned more dollars per working day and each dollar took on more buying power as time went on. It was a two-way improvement.

"The actual buying power of one hour's work (straight time) rose at the rate of more than 4% each year, or over 40% for the entire ten-year period," says Labor's Monthly Survey, issued in May by the American Federation of Labor. "This was possible because production per man-hour increased steadily, creating the wealth to pay higher wages."

War Changed Things

So long as men, money and machinery were busy making things to eat, wear and use for better living, it turned out as planned; better living resulted. But when capital, labor and tools, by necessity, had to swing into the manufacture of munitions and instruments of destruction, better living ceased. Wages increased, to be sure. So did profits. But what could we buy?

Once more let the AFL survey answer: "Every hard-won nickel of wage gain was offset by a price rise which cancelled it and the workers' actual buying power per hour of work, as measured by real wage rates, did not increase at all." These statements are supported by government figures made available through the department of Labor. Moreover the AFL analyst's logic is perfectly sound.

Holding Prices Down

The labor bulletin contained no carping criticism of government, nor against the artificial restraints set up to keep a fictitious economy from getting out of control. On the other hand it says plainly that under wholesome business conditions "wage increases are paid for by rising productivity." Thus with mass production and volume sales "the wage rises are all clear gain."

"Our first task is to increase production of consumer goods so that supply will be enough to meet demand, and competition again will keep prices down, so that increasing productivity will create the income to pay further wage increases." Anything I might say about that doctrine would be simply guiding the lily. It is the plain truth and a credit to any philosophy.

Cut Restraints

At the present, conditions are far from wholesome. The government's new artificial wage controls, born of political expedience, create higher wages with one hand and snatch them away with the other in the form of higher prices. In a government-fouled economy, it is small wonder that farmers and business men alike line up for help at the door of Uncle Sam's "fix-it" department.

The Office of Price Administration is getting as much criticism as it deserves now perhaps. My comments are brief: Private enterprise needs freedom if it is to operate by the law of supply and demand, and in some fields, supply will meet demand much sooner if regulations are lifted. The O.P.A. has done some good work and well deserves a dignified funeral, soon.

miles (the horizon). They continue out into space and are not reflected back to earth by the ionosphere. They can be reflected however, by a solid object out in space, as radar transmission to the moon by the Signal Corps demonstrated. In this way the distance limitation of such noise-free waves on the earth's surface can be overcome.

Would Ease Traffic Jam

The reflected signal can be picked up anywhere on the earth's hemisphere which at any moment is facing the moon—an added advantage for some types of communication when widespread distribution is desired.

The new system, says Busignies, would also make it possible to ease the traffic jam in the presently use wavebands that are crowded by communication needs.

Busignies points out that transmission between New York and South America would be possible about 12 hours a day, with San Francisco eight hours, with Paris seven hours.

No Added Power Needed

The research director declares that the amount of power required for such transmission would a message via the moon to Paris, Rio or any other faroff point may sound like doing it the hard way but at least one research laboratory is looking forward to such experiments as a major advance in long distance radio transmission.

"If we were not limited by the fact the moon is visible only 12 hours at a time, such a system would be better probably than any other for continuous operation," says Henri Busignies director of Federal Telegraph and Radio Corporation research. "Emergency messages would have to be sent by a different method when the moon isn't in the sky, but there's a huge bulk of messages that could be sent via the moon."

WORLD DETOUR FADING

The expected advantages stem from the fact that radio waves aren't all alike. For example, waves used for radio communication and broadcasting today are affected greatly by atmospheric disturbances and variations in the ionosphere, an electrical blanket which surrounds the earth. Such things are fading and noisy receptions are the result, and Busignies points out, transoceanic communications are sometimes interrupted or several days at a time.

But as radio waves become shorter they are affected much less by such factors. Instead a new handicap crops up — the noise-free waves can be received only for a distance of about 50 be about the same as that now used for long distance radio work, and believes that types of radar an television tubes already developed can be adapted to "via the moon" transmission.

Talking via the moon in two-way conversations is unlikely, however, because there would be an awkward five second delay, caused by the signals traveling twice to the moon and back, from the time a person stopped talking in New York until the reply came back from overseas.

BROADWAY :

By Jack O' Brian

NEW YORK — It is very comfortable most times to be part of Broadway, looking at it through the rosy colorations of this job of Broadway columning without having to indulge in the various tawdry, shabby, uncomfortable and sometimes ridiculous occupations which keep it going.

I'd hate to be, for instance, a chef in any restaurant, however fashionable and however well paid . . . New York in the summer is sufficiently unbearable, but the heat in restaurant kitchens would be enough to discourage even Robert W. Service's famous Sam McGee . . .

I'd hate to be a waiter and have to take some of the abuse I've seen handed out, even in these days of traditional impudence . . . and I wouldn't want to be a night club owner for to be successful at it you have to stay on the job all night every night . . . that would mean no shows no concerts, no sitting around with friends.

I WOULDN'T want to be a treasurer in a legitimate theater box-office . . . If a show's a flop, they go crazy just passing the time until it folds. If a show's a hit, they go crazy trying to fill orders . . . particularly for friends . . . I wouldn't want to be an actor, for I've watched the painstaking and actual physical labor which goes into a show before it premieres. . . . And once a show had opened, I'd go daffy doing the same thing over and over . . .

O night club singer, to my mind, has a boring time . . . He or she sings the same stuff three times a night and rehearses after noons for the next show; meanwhile, if serious about a career, takes lessons between times . . .

Ticket broker? . . . To me, that's another grubby occupation, even if you are honest . . . and I'd go crazy being a policeman on 52nd Street . . . or any other street . . . but especially 52nd . . . My good friend Tommy Christian the cop on the swing street beat for years, finally is giving up and will retire . . . Just couldn't take it anymore, talking to drunks out of breaking windows, and noses.

WHEN'S your birthday? . . . I'll give you a bartender's job. . . . The necessary accomplishments must include the patience of Job, seven-league boots, plus a facility for quick arithmetic, enough whiskey diplomacy to qualify for a career in the State Department, sufficient stature physically to dissuade any amateur Jack Dempsey from coming over the bar after you when you have to refuse them a drink . . . and most of all, an extremely high boring point.

From top to bottom of the Broadway professional scene, there isn't a job on the saloon beat which seems attractive . . . except this one of sitting in the midst of the whole darned mixed-up silliness and hopefully locking for something white might make interesting reading . . .

LIVESTOCK IN KANSAS

Despite the general opinion, livestock, and not wheat, is a chief source of income in Kansas. This state also has the largest broom corn market and is first among all states for flour milling, averaging more than 13,000,000 barrels each year. Such diversified production helps build the wealth of a great nation. The Bonds of that nation are the world's soundest investment.

leagues he thought the issue resolved itself down directly to the question of whether they wanted government or private ownership of power systems.

Many of the SPA supporters were senators from distant parts of the country, who consistently back the development of big government projects. Ordinarily the senators from an area which would receive money must lend their unanimous support to a project to get it an appropriation, and the opposition of one or more from the states involved usually deals it a fatal blow.

While the SPA item was pending in the Senate, the Senate Agriculture Committee was considering legislation which would authorize the government to continue the purchase of the domestic wool clip for the next four years.

Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) displayed keen interest in the testimony of witnesses who said they thought the government ought to get out of the business of handling and buying wool, and return it to private wool trading firms. When Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said he thought the government ought to get out of business—the Boston wool dealers almost unanimously opposed the pending wool bill—Thomas expressed agreement with Saltonstall's views. Saltonstall voted against the SPA. His colleague, Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), voted in favor of the appropriation.

The West Texas sheep and goat raisers are vitally concerned by the outcome of the pending wool measure. By and large, they support the pending bill for continuing the government purchase program. Senator Walsh proposes that the government get out of the wool buying business, and is sponsoring an amendment which would substitute a straight subsidy for wool producers.

Around the Capital:

A portrait is to be painted of Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air Forces, by Seymour W. Stone for the Texas Memorial Museum. Stone was commissioned to do the painting by Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth Star-Telegram publisher. It will be the sixth of a series of portraits of famous Texans—the others are General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Jesse Jones, Senator Connally and Speaker Rayburn. Arrangements for the Eaker portrait were made by former Lieut. Commander Herschel Schooley of Abilene, now publicity director for the Miami, Fla., Seahawks, professional football team.

Visitors around the capital recently included Miss Ollie Coon, veteran Greenville Banner staff writer, who went through the Capitol press and radio galleries; William Russell Denman of Nacogdoches, en route to Annapolis to take the Naval Academy entrance examinations, who lunched at the House restaurant with Rep. Tom Pickett of Palestine; J. E. Woods, Temple banker, who had lunch in the Capitol with Rep. Bob Poage of Waco; Mrs. Grover C. Woods of Breckenridge, here visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Major and Mrs. William H. Hotmann; Mr. and Mrs. McHenry Tichenor, here from Harlingen with their son, Mac, III;

WASHINGTON, June —(AP)—The Southwest Power Administration fight for funds precipitated an unusual division of votes in the Senate.

The reason was the old issue of public versus private ownership of electrical power systems. There was no state or sectional division of votes, and little of party cleavage, as marks most roll call votes where the appropriation of large amounts of money for one section of the country is involved.

Background facts are these: The SPA with a program affecting six states—Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas, drew up a comprehensive expansion program contemplating construction of dams, power lines and sand-by steam generating plants at an estimated total cost of $200,000,000.

The Budget Bureau recommended appropriation of $23,000,000 for the 1947 fiscal year beginning July 1. (The SPA activities would cover a 200,000 square mile area compared with $3,000 under the TVA's jurisdiction.) The House Appropriation Committee cut the budget figure to $3,000,000, but on the House floor an amendment by Speaker Sam Rayburn of Bonham was adopted increasing the sum to $7,500,000.

Then, the Senate Appropriations Committee decided to cut the whole thing out except for $100,000 administrative expense money. The Senate vote was whether to sustain the committee. By a six vote margin, 36 to 30, the $7,500,000 was left in the bill.

A study of the roll call vote showed that only three senators from the six states affected supported the SPA. They were Senators Ellender of Louisiana and Fulbright and McClellan of Arkansas, all Democrats. McClellan made it clear he wasn't in favor of the SPA's ambitious ideas, but only the $7,500,000 program because it would connect the Grand River dam, Okla., Norfolk dam, Ark., and Denison dam on the Red River with transmission power lines.

A group of friends took out from their farm work to relax with an outing on the Cowhouse last Wednesday. It was interesting to note their various reactions. Little Karl Calhoun was most interested in a huge snake that some of the boys had popped its head off. Grace Elam and Kate Parrish could not enjoy the scenery for the thickets of fine uncut stove wood that kept coming up before them. Hill Parrish fund the happy hunting ground of his early boyhood so cluttered up with stock pens, catch pens, loading chutes, etc., that he said would just term the whole affair "The picnic of the stockyards".
