TRADING POST

By UNCLE BOB

On invitation of Gatesville Fire Department's Rodeo Committee, the writer went to Dubin, Thursday, where the Committee, contacted Everett E. Colburn, Managing Director, Word's Championship Rodeo Corporation, with reference to furnishing the Stock and personally directing their 1947 Show.

Mr. Colburn received the Committee at his home, and after ushering them into his combined den and office, and I wish every rodeo fan could see this Den. The walls are literally lined with photographs of noted rodeo artists, noted bucking horses, scenes from the old west and shelf after shelf of miniature, horses, cattle, covered wagons and everything pertaining to the Rodeo Show business. Mr. Colburn has a wonderful collection of these souvenirs from Madison Square Garden, New York and Hollywood, California, and from Maine to Florida. Mr. Colburn is to the rodeo world, what P. T. Barnum and Buffalo Bill Cody were to the Tent Show Business. Everett E. Colburn is indeed a lovable character, his word is his bond, he is highly respected by his competitors and loved by every Rodeo Contestant in the rodeo world and with his lovely wife and two beautiful daughters, they are "TOPS" in any language. After a very pleasant visit, going over the two past Shows Mr. Colburn directed in Gatesville, he and the Committee settled down to talk business and in less than ten minutes they had agreed on everything for the 1947 Rodeo to be staged in Gatesville on June 14th, 12th 13th and 14th, Mr. Colburn agreeing to bring to Gatesville his TOP String of Stock and personally directing the show, which assures Central Texas Rodeo Fans of seeing the best show to be offered in 1947.

After concluding the business, Mr. Colburn took the Committee out to his stock barns, where he holds his stock until they are loaded on his special train for New York, to show them a part of the 350 bucking horses, 100 beautiful saddle horses, every color represented, 100 Brahma Roping Calves 150 Brahma Bulls and scores of wild Brahma Cow and Mexican bull dogging steers, all of them mud fat and as rough as they come. It certainly takes top cowboys to contend this stock, and only top hands follow Colburn's string of stock.

You can see them at their best on Sept. 12, 13, 14, and 15th, in the prevue show at the new $10,000.00, Colburn bowl at Dublin. After an invitation to visit the show from Mr. Colburn, we took

SYNOPSIS
Regi Allen, a manicurist in the barber shop of a swanky New York hotel, has ambitions to marry a millionaire. Although Allen Macklyn, a young millionaire paralyzed from the waist down, is intrigued by Regi's charm and honesty, Regi has eyes only for Theodore Drew III, society playboy, whom she met in the shop. On the way home after a dinner date, Drew, who had been drinking, tells Regi that he is leaving for Bermuda that night. After the trip, he plans to marry a wealthy society girl. When they reach Regi's home, Drew is too drunk to go to the boat. Regi puts him up on the living room couch. She is surprised to find him in the apartment when she returns home the next day. Drew then tells her that although he is classed as a millionaire, his family was wiped out by the crash and he hasn't a cent.

CHAPTER IV.
"WELL, here we are," said Regi through set lips as the cab stopped. "Thank you for a very lovely evening, Mr. Drew. There's no need of getting out."
The cab driver opened the door, which automatically lighted the interior. Ted was sound asleep in the corner. They did everything in their power to wake him but he slept blissfully on.
"Want me to help you get him upstairs?" asked the driver at last. "He doesn't live here," she walled.

"Who was it? What did you do?" he continued with the inquisitiveness of an invalid.
"Well, we..." She caught herself and added "... nothing much."
"Young woman," he teased. "You're pulling your punches. Out with it. Who was it?"
"Theodore Drew, the third."
"Whew!" His eyes opened. "Well, wasn't it fun? You don't look very happy about it."
"That's the trouble. It was so much fun. He's sort of crazy. I could like him... but... but he's going to be married."
"Yes, I saw it in the papers," nodded Allen. "He's marrying Miss... let's see... Snowden. Vivian Snowden. Her father's Amos Snowden... the one they call the pineapple king."
"I hate pineapples," said Regi viciously.
"Many people must like them. She's enormously rich."
"That's funny." Regi's tone proved how deeply the irony had struck her. "He's rich... and she's richer. So they're getting married."
"Well, why didn't you convince him he ought to marry a poor girl?"
"I tried to. I certainly tried to.

Then, to change the unpleasant subject pointed to the packages. "I hope that's not a hat in there. I'm hungry. Please say it's food!"
He sniffed audibly, then whirled as a knock came on the door.
"Oh!" wailed Regi. "It's a man! He's taking me out. I forgot!"
"Do you know him very well? Do you want him in here?"
As Regi shook her head he took her by the arm and steered her into the bedroom. Then he came back to the ironing board and called: "Come in."
The door opened and a nattily clad chap of the salesman type entered. "Sit down, buddy," said Ted, puffing his pipe. What are you selling?"
"I'm not selling anything." Natty was considerably startled. "I'm waiting for Miss Regi Allen. Doesn't she live here?"
"Miss?" roared Ted, addressing the direction of the bedroom. "Palm- ing herself off as single! Didn't think I'd be back so soon, eh?"
He strode toward the bedroom and slammed the door.
"So I caught you!" he shouted, bringing his hands together with a slap. "How do you like that" (Slap) "And that" (Slap).

"Besides he has to get out of town. And I don't know what train he's taking."

They tried again, awaking the whole neighborhood with their pleas. Finally they surrendered and carried him upstairs.

The next morning Ted was still dead to the world on the couch in Regi's living room. She tried to wake him but had no success. He buried his head under the pillows and refused to budge. She left him there as she hurried away to work.

That day her heart was not in her manuring. A great hope had flourished and died. It was even worse than when there was no hope. He was to be married... and she could have loved him so much...

Absent-mindedly she made a date with a customer for that evening and promptly forgot all about it. She even forgot that she had an appointment to give another manicure to Allen Macklyn until Laura reminded her sharply.

"Good morning, Miss Regi," beamed Peter when he opened the door to her knock. Then, as she smiled listlessly, he asked, "You're all right, aren't you?"

"Does it show as much as that?" she asked with half a smile. Then, taking a deep breath, she put on an attitude of cheerfulness and marched into the living room.

"What did you do last night?" asked Allen wistfully after she had begun work on his hands. "Or is that getting too personal?"

"I had a date... sort of," she sighed.

Until I found out that he was engaged." She thought of that, then added wryly: "I think I even tried a little after that."

"Why?" He was half-teasing, half in earnest. "Because he was Theodore Drew the third, or because you liked him pretty well?"

"Because he's..." Suddenly she smiled as she realized what he was driving at. "No, I haven't changed. I still say money's the most important thing. But there I go, telling you the story of my life again. I bet you can hardly wait for the next installment."

Regi unlocked her apartment door that night and let an armload of groceries fall to the floor when she beheld Ted in shirt and shorts, standing in the living room calmly pressing his trousers.

"Come in. Come in," he said casually, not taking the pipe from his mouth. "This is Liberty Hall. Make yourself at home. Have a chair... Have two chairs."

As Regi picked up her package and came toward him he looked up from his ironing and continued: "It took me all afternoon to learn you have to dampen the trousers."

"I didn't think you'd still be here."

"I couldn't leave. I didn't have the fare."

"What do you mean?" She stared at him in wonderment.

"No fare!" He shook his head owlishly. "No FARE!"

"Why didn't you wire home for it?"

"Ha! Ha!" he laughed hollowly.

"Ow, ow, ow," screamed Regi, catching the idea.

When they opened the door Natty had departed, leaving behind him a box of mints.

"If I'd known he brought mints, I'd have taken a crack at him too," groaned Ted, as he took a handful of the confection. "They're awful!"

"What'd you mean a while ago about not having railroad fare?"

"Railroad fare! I haven't even got bus fare," he grinned. "Spent it all last night. Have a mint!"

"You are Ted Drew, aren't you?" she puzzled. "Well, if you are," she continued as he nodded, "why are you here, pressing your pants?"

"I slept in them. They're wrinkled... and I've missed my boat. All my clothes are now on their way to Bermuda for a vacation."

"Why don't you get some more money and take another boat?"

"Why do you persist in saying I can get money?" he protested, still chewing on the candy. "I have no money. (The man who made these mints ought to be shot.) Father is living abroad. He has no money either except what he can borrow. You've heard of the Crash, haven't you? My ticket to Bermuda was an engagement present... from my fiancée's father. HE has money, thank heaven."

Suddenly Regi began to laugh and laughed harder and harder.

"We're exactly alike," she gurgled at last. "We're both trying to do the same thing. Marry for money!"

"Bad Lands" Into Good Meat

Vision and resourcefulness in the rebuilding of various kinds of abandoned and unproductive lands may pay dividends. The return of such "bad lands" to profitable use is equally important to producers and to us at Swift & Company. Because "what helps agriculture helps all of us." Here is a story of such vision. Here is an example of one man's initiative.

Like a farm torn up by a giant's plow, 600 acres of Illinois strip mine land stood bare. It was apparently worthless. That was in 1938. Today those once-bare ridges are knee-deep in grass and clover. Each rugged acre makes more than enough grass for one steer. And it's getting better each year.

The year after the land was mined for coal, a few volunteer sweet clover plants took root. They flourished in the lime-rich soil. Byron Somers of Canton, Illinois, who farmed adjacent land, noticed them. He bought the "bad land" for $5 an acre. With a hand seeder, he walked the ridges and sowed sweet clover. The next year he had a good stand. This added some nitrogen and humus to soil already rich in phosphorus and potash. Further seeding of a grass legume mixture is done each year by airplane. Brome grass has got a start, and now his pastures will be even more productive. In addition to grass, plenty of drinking water for the cattle is held in the little valleys.

Since being returned to usefulness, this land has averaged a net profit of $7 an acre each year. Similar Illinois land has recently sold for $25 an acre.

This is only one example. Every state has unproductive lands. Many other men have returned them to use—and profited. Huge areas still offer a challenge and an opportunity to American producers everywhere. Your opportunity, too, may be indicated by such a little thing as sweet clover growing on abandoned land.

It's extra care that cuts shipping fever losses among feeder cattle. Vaccination also will produce a measure of immunity. After cattle reach the feed lots, provide them with shelter from cold winds and rain. Give them light, bulky feeds such as whole oats and roughage. Cattle fall easy prey to shipping fever when they are run down, due to fatigue, exposure, or irregular feeding. If animals do fall sick, isolate them promptly and call a veterinarian.

More Beef from Less Feed

Nevada Bulletin No. 162

Nevada experiments indicate it is particularly advantageous to ranch owners if calves are born at such a time and grazed in such a way that they develop into feeders of satisfactory selling weights at the youngest possible age. The bulletin advocates ranchers planning their breeding season so that calves are born during the months of March, April, and May. Calves born during these months usually are of sufficient age and maturity to wean before winter sets in. During the winter months it is suggested they be fed all of the good "tame" grass and clover hay they will clean up without waste. They should be placed on good range in the summer and on irrigated pasture during the fall. Then they will be ready to market as feeders at 17 months of age. Under these conditions, they are held on the ranch only one winter and may be expected to weigh from 700 to 750 pounds.

When calves are born in other than the spring months, a large percentage of them must be fed on the ranch throughout two winters before they make satisfactory selling weights. Records show that cattle carried on the ranch for two winters have reached an average of 27 months of age at selling time and weigh approximately 875 pounds. Even though these cattle are practically a year older than seasonally bred cattle, they average only 150 pounds heavier than the younger animals. This is because calves born late in the year make only a poor start when winter sets in.

The most rapid as well as the most economical gains are made by younger animals. Gains gradually decline as cattle approach mature ages unless they are placed on extensive feeding rations.

Geography of Meat Production and Consumption

The United States by rail is approximately 3,000 miles from East to West. It is about 2,000 miles from North to South. Not all of its 1,934,326,280 acres produce agricultural products. Neither do all of its square miles have the same number of people. The western part, including the Corn Belt, is the great food producing area. The East is the section in which most of the people live.

Approximately two-thirds of the livestock is produced west of the Mississippi River. Approximately two-thirds of the people live east of it. More specifically, about one-third of the people live in the area from Pennsylvania northeast into New England. Thus there is a great distance between the producers of livestock and the consumers of meats. This makes it necessary to have national concerns like Swift & Company in the slaughtering of livestock, processing, handling and selling of meats. The products handled by meat packers average to move more than one thousand miles from producer to consumer.

NUTRITION IS OUR BUSINESS—AND YOURS
Right Eating Adds Life to Your Years—and Years to Your Life

You BET There's Competition!

Recently I spoke to a meeting of livestock producers. When I had finished talking, the chairman asked if any persons in the audience wanted to ask questions. Immediately one livestock man stood up. "Is there any competition in the buying of our livestock?" he asked. Naturally, my answer was, "Yes." I went on from there to an explanation...

One of the best evidences of competition is found in United States Government figures. They show that there are more than 3,500 meat packers in the United States. Also there are 22,500 other commercial slaughterers of livestock. Surely this means much competition. Of course, Swift & Company does not come in competition with every one of these 26,000 slaughterers at every point at which it buys livestock. However, there is no place in the United States but what Swift & Company does come in competition in the buying of livestock with one or more of the 26,000 slaughterers.

26,000 slaughterers compete for livestock

Here's another fact about competition. At practically all markets in the country there are order buyers. During a year they buy for up to hundreds of meat packers. No individual buys for several hundred on any one day. But when the meat packers whom they represent need livestock, these order buyers are out competing with Swift & Company and every other buyer in the market.

The foregoing are just two examples of the many to be found indicating the ever present competition in our business.

Announcement Is Made Of Robinson - Shannon Marriage In Tennessee

Of interest throughout this section of Texas is the announcement recently made of the marriage of Joe Reese Robinson to Miss Katherine Anne Shannon with the wedding ceremony solemnized at St. Luke's Methodist Church in Memphis, Tennessee, Thursday evening, August 29.

Gatesville is the native city of the groom, who is a son of the late Tom L. Robinson, widely known attorney and Mrs. Robinson of this city. He served his country for four years in the U. S. Army during World War II. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson who have been honeymooning in New Orleans, La., Galveston and Houston, and other points of interest on the Texas coast, will arrive in Gatesville for a week end visit with Mrs. Robinson at home, 1304 Waco street. Following their stay here the bridal couple will go to Austin, where they will reside. Mr. Robinson resumes his student work in the law department at the university of Texas.

The News is favored with a copy of the Memphis Commercial Appeal in which is printed August 30, a picture of the bride and groom and the following story:

Lighted by banks of candles,

St. Luke's Methodist Church was the scene Thursday evening, Aug. 29, of one of the most fashionable weddings of the season when Miss Katherine Anne Shannon descended the aisle on the arm of her father to become the bride of Joseph Reese Robinson of Gatesville, Texas. The Rev. James D. Jenkins officiated before an altar banked with deep greenery forming a background for baskets filled with white gladioli.

Mrs. Robinson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Egbert Shannon of 43 West End Drive, and Mr. Robinson is a son of Mrs. Thomas L. Robinson and the late Mr. Robinson of Gatesville.

The bride's dress was of exquisite ivory satin fashioned with a fitted bodice and full skirt forming a bustle in the back and cascading into a long train. Her tulle veil was bordered with rosepoint lace and fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids surrounded by stephanotis and interspersed with puffs of illusion.

The maid of honor was Miss E'Lane Kirkpatrick of Ripley, Tenn., and bridesmaids were Miss Elinor Weathersby, Miss Harriet Robinson of Gatesville, sister of the groom, Miss Scott Pharr and Miss Jacqueline Stanford. Their dresses were of pale blue faille with fitted bodices and full skirts with large pleats. They carried bouquets of American Beauty roses.

Jack Thomas Shannon, brother of the bride, was best man and groomsmen were James E. Shannon, another brother, Harry Null, Gordon Morris and Allan Fisher, Jr.

A reception followed the ceremony at the house of the bride's parents. The bride's table was draped with a lace cloth and centered by a tiered wedding cake surrounded by garlands of white flowers.

The couple left for a wedding trip after the reception. For traveling the bride chose a green gaberdine suit with alligator accessories.

Miss Leanna Morse Becomes Bride Of Henry C. Lengefeld

Miss Leanna Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morse of Turnersville was married to Henry C. Lengefeld, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lengefeld, of Arnett, in a double-ring ceremony at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Buenning in Waco at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, September 6, with the members of the immediate families present.

The bride was attired in a white wool dress with cherry-coke accessories and wore a single orchid shoulder corsage.

Mrs. Lengefeld was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Morse of Uvalde. Mr. Lengefeld was attended by his brother, Francis Lengefeld of Arnett.

Mrs. Lengefeld is a graduate of Gatesville high school and attended Temple Junior College and John Tarleton Agricultural College. She was a recent employee of the Texas Light & Power Co. of Temple.

Mr. Lengefeld is a graduate of Gatesville high school and attended Draughn's Business College, Dallas. He served three and a half years as a sergeant in the army Air Corps.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home in the Arnett Community.

From Hays Daily News, A Story 'bout Don Turner, Gatesville

Here's a story from the Hays Daily News, of Hays, Kansas, about 11-year old Don Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Turner of Gatesville, who recently attended a rodeo there.

"Eleven-year-old cowboy, Don Turner of Gatesville, Texas captivated the interest of rodeo on-lookers and walked off with their praises in the Saturday and Sunday rodeo performances.

"The audience was fascinated by his small stature, the fact that he was the youngest rider in the show, the way he rode a horse unfamiliar to him and almost too big for him to get on and off of, and the rapidity with which he lassoed and threw his calf.

They pitied him when he had trouble getting his horse to pull back once the calf was roped, and those who heard him laughed when he said, "That calf won't a calf; it was a yearling."

Turner fascinated them with a good performance, but the story behind it is even better. The day for entries to show to sign up, he walked up to the register and asked for a small calf with which to do some exhibition and roping. The owner of the cattle, not wanting to overrun his stock for which there were already too many cowboys, vetoed the idea and said there were no small calves and no classes which he could enter. Someone said to let him try, and Turner immediately reached into his pocket, pulled out his entry fee, and said, "I'll ride with the rest of them and enter competition with them."

He did, too, and the amazing thing is he roped his calf quicker than any of the boys, but he just wasn't quite big enough to throw it within the time limit.

When questioned by a fascinated watcher as to when he learned to ride and rope, Turner said, "I don't know. I've always been able to since I can remember".

The Alternative

Last year when forces in government encouraged a big increase in wage levels they started an inflationary spiral which the OPA and all other control agencies found themselves powerless to stop. Even inaccurate statistics indicating that living costs had not increased more than 5% or 6% did not fool anybody very long. The price line could not be held.

How far can inflation climb? Let me cite an extreme case. In 1925-36, while I was living in Canton, China, a Chinese dollar usually bought about 18 pounds of rice. Today that much rice commands a price of 2,300 Chinese dollars. By the way, an American dollar (worth 3 to 4 Chinese dollars when I was there) will buy about 2,300 Chinese dollars now. That is inflation!

What of America?

Hard-earned savings in China are not worth much today. Even in America the same trend is active. It keeps taking more and more dollars to provide food, clothing and housing here. How far will it go? What might it do to the American people? Can we keep it from getting much worse? Are we sure we can avert disaster? If so, what are the things that need to be done?

These were the questions on my mind when I was admitted to the office of John W. Snyder, Secretary of the United States Treasury, on the afternoon of July 11, in Washington. This was while the OPA was inoperative. Mr. Snyder's appearance and his words are vigorous, and his expressions are straightforward. In plain frankness, he said taxes ought to stay high while money is easy, and that interest rates are just what they should be.

Education Needed

About inflation, he was not positive. He said "I don't know. There are so many uncertain factors involved that it is very complicated. If OPA's not restored, I don't know what will happen."

Pointing out that OPA had been failing anyway, that it had been granting higher prices almost daily before its June 30 expiration, and seemed hopelessly lost, I asked for another opinion.

My question was: "Assuming the OPA to be gone for good, what do you think about inflation?" His reply was music to my ears. He said "There's only one alternative—education of the public. We can readily prevent inflation and attain sound prosperity if we will all do the right things." He is right! No republic can live long if the public is not well enough educated to do the right things.

Boost the Program

When our people must be regimented into doing the right things, our country will be a republic no longer. Thousands will want to compliment the Secretary upon being ready with something better than an alternative for OPA far better than price-fixing by law. If other leaders will join in this sound program of education, we can make progress on the only possible road to success.

There are two main things that Secretary Snyder wants to teach the American public: (1) Government, labor, and industry must work together for maximum production, promptly. This is job insurance. This is a fender against inflation. (2) While driving for production, educate people to buy prudently and spend for essentials only. The world's one remaining powerful republic can be preserved this way.

Texans In Washington

By L. T. (TEX) EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON, Aug.—(AP)—Biographical sketches in the new Congressional Directory which came out at the end of the 79th Congress are filled with interesting little insights on the gentlemen concerned.

The senators and representatives each personally write or at least stamp their approval on the thumbnail descriptions.

Sketches of the Texas members are no exception to the general rule. Besides the usual data such as age, marital status, length of service, they often include comments calculated to be of interest to a wide range of people. For instance, a congressman hailing from a city but having rural areas in his district seldom fails to mention it if he has a farm background. The same situation holds regarding military service.

Senator Tom Connally of Marlin, Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana and Rep. J. J. Mansfield of Columbus all have 23 lines each in the directory to tie for the most lengthy biographies. Rep. Milton West of Brownsville still has the shortest, a distinction he has held for years. He gives only his name, address and party affiliation—Democrat.

Excerpts from some of the sketches: Senator W. Lee O'Daniel—"Engaged in flour milling and grain business, 1909 to 1938; Although never before a candidate for public office, was petitioned to run for Governor of Texas by 54,499 Texas Citizens and was elected in the 1938 first primary with 573,166 votes, a clear majority over 12 opponents, the first victory of this nature in the history of the State." OBITUARY ceremonies. Burial in the Turnersville cemetery followed, the Morton Scott and Son Funeral directors in charge. Active pallbearers included Earl Blankenship, Allan Gannaway, Clay Cheatum, Fred Moore, Johnnie Latham, Martin Clary, Peck Thorp and Cleo Carroll.

Christopher T. Brim, a resident for 30 years of the Turnersville community, died at his home there at 11:30 P. M. September 4, aged 77 years.

A native of Tennessee Christopher Thomas Brim was born Oct. 1, 1869. He chose farming as his life's vocation. He was married to Miss Martha Elizabeth Brown, July 2, 1893. Mrs. Brim with two sons and eight daughters survive.

Mrs. Charlie Brineger. Mrs. Sam Lee and Mrs. Ernest Pratt spent last Sunday in Okalla visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lee. M. W. Corbin of Ada, Okla., spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fowler.

First game on foreign soil Friday night.

It's KILLEEN! Just as big as it looks. The Hornets are going to have trouble, and Coach Mitchell knows it.

Bone, Flentge, Davidson and one other were in the backfield and Davis, Franks, Whitt, and a lot of the rest of them were in the line on the "blues", who garnered 4 touchdowns during the hour show.

Got just enough confidence in Coach Mitchell and his assistant Coach Tatum to know they'll have a heads-up ball club on the field Friday night of this week at Killeen.

It's Friday the 13th, an awful day to open a season, and an awful day to play Killeen, but, if you look at it from the other side, it's a good day.

Killeen's Coach Leo Buckley has continually been singing the blues, and what coach don't, but he has a squad sparked with lettermen and you know how they worked in a Regional Game on our own field last year.

There's no official line-up from Coach Mitchell, yet (12:30 Monday), but it'll more than likely include Davis, Featherstone, Franks, Flentge, Painter, Gilmer, Davidson, Bone, Whitt, Daniels, etc. In fact, Mitch is liable to make it one of those "go in and coming" games, since it's non-conference and the best chance in the world to do some experimenting to find out who's who, whether they be lettermen or benchwarmers.

And in that dying sport of the season, baseball, Gatesville-McGregor is supposed to meet Meridian tonight in one of the final games.

Don't forget Humble Oil and Refining Co's., broadcasts of Southwestern Conference Football Games this Fall, and the announcers will be Kern Tips, Ves Box, Charlie Jordan and Bill Michaels, all veterans.

There's a big season ahead! Follow it with The NEWS, twice weekly.
