Sold Cotton Here Monday

Earl Calhoun, a prominent farmer in this section, ginned cotton here Monday, and sold his bale for 38 cents. Mr. Calhoun has just started gathering his cotton crop and estimates that he will get some six bales. He did not state whether or not he sold his seed, nor the price seed is bringing. Some of the farmers and stockmen say, "The seed is of more value to us than the lint. Feed and food products from cotton seed are so short."

Texans in Washington

By L. T. (TEX) EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service

Thirty-four years is a long time to accumulate things. That's why retiring Dallas Congressman Hutton W. Sumners has a big job on his hands as he prepares to move out by Next Jan. 3 when the 80th Congress convenes.

In the attic of the Old House Office building he has a large section of the floor space filled with files, documents, letters and miscellaneous items, things stored there over the years.

The miscellanea include an 8-foot long picture of Dallas' 1915 skyline, and a muzzle-loading army Springfield rifle of Civil War vintage.

Besides several thousands of pounds of documents in this store room, there are rows of filing cabinets and bookcases standing in Judge Sumner's three-room office and adjoining Judiciary committee room.

Hailed affectionately as Judge by virtually everyone here the Texan has presided over the Judiciary committee for 16 years, and much of the material has to do with the activities of that body under his leadership.

Sumners does not know just what he will do with the papers and documents not discarded. Many letters and speeches will be kept for their personal value. They depict the history of the times—Events and moods leading up to two world wars, boom times and depression, and the role the Texan played. Some of the material, such as bound volumes of the Congressional Record for decades past, may be presented to schools or colleges, where students can read for themselves the actual debates in the House or of such momentous acts as declarations of war.

NEEDS MOTHER'S PERMISSION

Mrs. R. E. Lee signs papers at the Marine recruiting office in Fort Worth, Texas, giving her consent for the re-enlistment of her son, Pfc. William H. Lee (looking on), who is 17. He was 15 years old when he joined the marines; has seen duty on Guam, fought at Okinawa, and patrolled the streets of Tsingtao, China, yet he had to have his mother's permission to re-enlist. (AP Photo).

DIVER RECOVERS GUN

Diver Lewis Rogers pulls himself from the waters of Buffalo Bayou near Houston, Texas, after recovering a .22 caliber rifle, held by inspector, C. V. Kern. A search for the gun was started after the body of Frank Anthony, 20, navy veteran, was found near the Bayou. A .22 caliber bullet was lodged in Anthony's skull. Homicide Detective W. C. Doss filed a charge of murder against Valotomir (Lala) Markovitch, 19, a friend of the dead youth. Looking on are Homicide Lt. George Seber (behind Kern), and Diver A. B. Capdedon (background). (AP Photo).

A crusader against centralization of power in the federal government, Sumners has no specific plans for the future, he says, except to fill speaking engagements throughout the country. Thus he plans to take to the people his message of states rights and responsibilities, a mission to which he dedicated himself when he announced his plans to retire from Congress.

He says he hopes during the remaining months of his last term to be able to write some sort of book or pamphlet, in plain but convincing language, which will arouse the interest of the average man in the Democratic processes and instill in him a keener desire to exercise his duties and privileges as an American citizen.

While this retiring lawmaker may be serving his last term as a public servant, there has been some talk here that he might possibly enter the political picture again two years from now as a candidate for the Texas state legislature. Such action would not be inconsistent with his views. He will have two years to lecture over the country. Then, when he will be dropping out of the public mind if his experience is the same as with most former congressmen, he can take a fresh start. There in the seat of state government he can fight for the very same principles which he espoused from the other end of the line.

The presence of a former member of Congress in the state legislature would lend prestige and counsel to that body, and would not be without precedent. Among the new faces when the next regular session of the Texas

House is called will be former Congressman Charles A. South of Coleman, who represented the San Angelo District here from 1935 to 1943.

Information About Return of Bodies Of U. S. Servicemen

The war department has designated fifteen (15) distribution points in the United States through which the remains of World War II dead will be sent to the city or town designated by the next of kin. The distribution points of particular interest to this section of the country are as follows:

Fort Worth Quartermaster Depot: Distribution for the area of Northern Texas.

San Antonio General Depot: Distribution for Southern Texas.

The exact date when the first homecoming of remains will arrive at the ports of New York and San Francisco will be announced as soon as it can be determined. In the near future letters will be sent to the relatives concerned which will give them the opportunity to exercise one of four options for the final disposition of the remains. With this letter a brochure will be inclosed which will contain answers to many of the more frequently asked questions. There will also be inclosed a booklet showing photographs of National cemeteries in the United States and permanent U. S. military cemeteries overseas.

The options afforded the legal next of kin for disposition of remains are:

First: The remains may be interred or reinterred in a permanent American military cemetery overseas. The establishment of permanent American Military Cemeteries in overseas theaters is contemplated, should the number of requests justify their establishment.

Second: The remains may be returned to the United States for final interment in a National Cemetery is restricted to members of the armed forces only. When this option is desired, the remains will be transported to the Continental United States and interred in the National Cemetery selected by the next of kin.

Third: The remains may be returned to the United States, or any possession or territory thereof, for interment in a private cemetery. Shipment will be made to the city or town designated by the next of kin.

STOP AND SAVE

Fourth: The remains may be reinterred in the country in which now interred or be returned to a foreign country, the homeland of the deceased or the homeland of the next of kin, for interment by next of kin in a private cemetery. Shipment to a foreign country is dependent upon the ability of the United States Government to obtain entry therein. If entry can be obtained, shipment will be made to the city or town designated by the next of kin.

These letters will not be sent to all survivors simultaneously but will be mailed in accordance with the progress made in verifying records in each of the two hundred eight (208) temporary cemeteries. On the 20th of May 1946 eight cemeteries had been fully checked - seven in Hawaii and one in Belgium.

The war department estimates that twenty-five percent of the next of kin have moved from the addresses at which they were residing when notices of death were sent. It is essential that they notify immediately the appropriate military service of their present addresses. Offices to be notified are:

For The Army: Office of the Quartermaster General, Memorial Division, Washington 25, D. C.

For The Navy: Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (EDC), Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C.

For The Marine Corps: Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps, (Casualty Section), Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C.

For The Coast Guard: Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard (Casualty Section), Washington, 25, D. C.

In carrying out this program the War Department desires to emphasize that no distinction or difference will be shown because of rank, race, creed or color. The remains will travel under escort at all times. They will come to this country in ships similar to hospital ships. From the distribution points to the final resting places designated by next of kin, the remains will be under military escort. Flags will be displayed on the caskets at all times, and all handling will be with dignity and reverence.

CIRCUS VEXED BY HIGH COST OF ELEPHANTS

DURBAN, South Africa—One of South Africa's leading showmen William Pagel is complaining that the cost of elephants has gone up with the cost of living.

Before the war, the circus man says, young elephants, about 4 feet 6 inches tall could be bought for $300 each; now they cost that much for each foot in height.

"I searched far and wide throughout India for a good elephant but those I could have bought would have cost me a fortune," he says.

In east Africa he found elephant prices more reasonable and bought seven of them together with two hippos and two pink pelicans.

MELBOURNE — AP—Hundreds of combat aircraft released by the RAAF to the Commonwealth Disposal Commission likely will be destroyed. They include Spitfires, Hurricanes, Beaufighters, Beauforts, Oxforbs, Boomerangs, Fairy Battles and Gannets, all of which have been declared surplus. They will be stripped of all saleable parts and the metal will be sold as scrap.

The Civil Aviation Department will not license the aircraft because they are below civilian standards in strength of materials and safety.

Coal-to-Oil Industry Grows in South Africa

CAPETOWN — AP—The likelihood of South Africa's leading the world in producing oil from coal was suggested here by S.G. Menell, managing director of the Anglo-Transvaal Consolidated Investment Co.

Ermelo in the Transvaal has the only successful oil-from-shale industry in the world, he said, but producers are not satisfied with the present production and plan more enduring industrial development.

Germans Dig Up Precision Dinner

ESSEN — AP — The German penchant for precision instruments is giving each Ruhr coal miner a fair share of the meals served each day at the mines.

Since a ladle dipped into a kettle might give one man more meat than another, no meat is served in soups or stews. It is doled out separately. Each portion is weighed.

Although bread for sandwiches is cut by a mechanical slicer, loaves may be of irregular shape, so each slice of bread is weighed. Sometimes an extra piece only an inch square, makes up the difference.

Meat or cheese for sandwiches likewise is weighed to the gram.

HORNET MACHINE STARTS SLOW: NEARLY TOO SLOW: HALF, GET FAST

Well, if we'd stopped at West the other evening at the half, it would have been a ball game.

The Hornets, during the first half, faced an inspired Trojan eleven who really wanted to take the measure of the insect from Gatesville, but, even tho they did a pretty good job of "holding" during the first two quarters, they couldn't keep it up.

Anyway, the games in the bag, and awficially, it was not a good game, but we'll drop that part—maybe they've got better eyes than ours, and a lot of other folks.

That's only one conference game in our belts, and there are others a lot more important, pretty close. We were late in the 60, and here's what we got.

Hornets kick and then take over on 36, Bone goes over for touchdown, 12 yards. Dysinger kicks and fails. Gatesville 6,, West 0.

After a series of plays thek kick to Hornets, signals crossed and they fumble on 15, Bone kicks and West takes over on own 49.

West passes for 1st down. They pass again, incomplete.

Bone takes at left end for 12, from own 22 but there's a clipping penalty, putting Hornets on 10 yard line. Bone punts beautifully with a good roll, to the West 35, and quarter ends.

SECOND QUARTER

They pass long and Flentge intercepts on 50. He carries, cuts back and makes 8. Bone on right end fails to gain. Bone is dropped for 7 yard loss. Bone kicks wobbly out on the 21 yard line. They out smart Flentge and kick to the 22, stopped by Lott.

Flentge makes it first down, Davidson fails at end. Flentge takes off from 40 and carries to the 2 yard line. Flentge carries it over. Gatesville 12, West 0.

Dysinger kicks to 30, they fumble but recover on their own 40. Cuenkra passes incomplete, he passes to Lott complete to the Hornet 49. He tries to pass, is rushed, incomplete. West drops 15 yards, holding penalty. Lott punts partially blocked, out on 33, but Hornets get unnecessary roughness penalty. He passes again, Bone intercepts ball on Hornet 35. Bone carries for 1. Bone carries for 7. Davidson attempts to pass runs for 15 yards but there's a penalty for holding.

Flentge carries for 8 yds. Bone punts nicely on the West 15.

Cuenkra passes incomplete, Lott punts out on Hornets 35.

Hornets pass, Flentge drops, Melton on lateral dropped for 3 yard loss. Melton complete to Bone, 20 yard pass and he goes over standing up. But there's a penalty, Hornets offside. Melton passes incomplete. Bone kicks nicely to Cvenkra on the West 35 for no gain. They pass incomplete, Pustejousky loses 3 at center. Bad pass from C and Patterson receives for Hornets on 30. Melton passes to Bone who goes to West 2 yard line as half ends. Gatesville 12, West 0.

THIRD QUARTER

They kick, Gartman takes down on 32, pitch play, ending with Bone and it's 1st down. Davidson carries making another 1st down. Bone goes through big hole over LT from 50 for touchdown. Bone carries over for extra. Gatesville 19, West 0.

Hornets kick ball to Nelson on 25, returns to 28. Next play and they lose 4. Lott kicks to Flentge on 35, he drops but recovers. Bone pitches to Davidson and he carries over for another 6. Dysinger's kick is wide. Hornets 25, West 0.

G. H. S. Pep Rally Prepares Hornets For West

Friday evening the students of G. H. S. had an added attraction at their pep rally when some of the Pep-Squad girls with Mary Manning as their coach put on a skit to give the boys an idea of what would happen if we had girl's football team going to West. During the rally the high school majorettes put on a fine exhibition of twirling after which Drum major Curtis Morgan showed his skill with two batons. It was a Bang-up rally which made the HORNETS feel ready to put another victory on their role.

Grass is on the Move

Out of the sandhills of Nebraska, up from the Chama country of New Mexico . . . all the way from the state of Washington to Texas, there's a flood of livestock on the move. Feeder cattle and lambs raised in the great grass-growing regions of the United States are flowing into the feed lots of the nation. This movement reaches its peak each October, and its significance is of great economic importance to all of us in the livestock-meat industry.

These millions of head of feeder cattle and lambs are nothing more than grass turned into meat. True, these feeders will require a certain amount of grain to finish them as satisfactory meat animals. That's why they go into the feed lots. But were it not for these grazing animals, 779,000,000 acres of the land area of the United States would produce little, if any, human food. In other words, 41% of the total land of our nation consists of grass land which cannot be used for producing other feeds and foods. Also taking into consideration the plowable land used to produce pasture, hay and other forage crops, approximately half of our land would produce no food of human value, were it not for livestock.

Of the total feeds consumed by beef cattle, 78.7% is grass, hay and dry roughages. With lambs, it is 95.6%. These are official figures of the United States Department of Agriculture. Thus, the grain that goes into feeder cattle and lamb rations is but a relatively small part of the feed that makes our meat. A minimum of corn is needed to bring feeder steers from 700 to 1,000 pounds when the principal part of the ration is made up of fodder, corn silage, other available roughages and some concentrates.

In addition to utilizing grass which otherwise would be wasted, the production of livestock furnishes the nation with its finest nutritional food—meat. In the great movement of meat from the Western range to the kitchen range, the stop-over in the feed lots increases the amount of meat. It also levels out the fall flood of livestock into a more even year-round marketing. Thus seasonal price fluctuations are not so marked. In the production of livestock, the majority of America's 6,000,000 farmers and ranchers find the chief means of marketing their grass and other home-grown feeds.

MANY ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

Every three minutes there is a farm or ranch accident. Unless something is done, 19,500 people may be killed in such accidents this year. Another 1,800,000 may be injured. We at Swift & Company want to help cut down this accident toll. That's why we print the pictures and the questions which follow. Little chances not taken, little repairs made, can prevent big accidents. Do you take the chances shown below? Check yourself.

I never handle animals carelessly

Do you have a strongly built bull pen? Do you lead the bull around on a rope because you do not have a bull-staff? Do you approach horses from behind without speaking and patting their rumps to warn them? Then watch yourself . . . one out of four fatal farm accidents occurs in handling livestock.

I approach animals without warning

I am never careless around machinery
 I sometimes take chances with machinery

Do you leave safety shields off power shafts, gears and chains? Wear loose-fitting clothing that may catch in machinery? Operate the tractor on dangerous inclines or banks? Mishandled machinery and equipment are involved in nearly one out of three fatal farm accidents.

SELECTING JUNIOR CLUB STEERS

by W. H. Peters
University of Minnesota

Every boy and girl who enters a junior feeding contest would like to secure a feeder steer good enough to become a champion. In selecting calves with this high aim in mind, the "satisfactory prospect" must be a purebred or high-grade of one of the recognized beef breeds, Shorthorn, Hereford, or Angus.

The calf or yearling steer in thin condition must appear short in legs in proportion to his depth of body, or to put it the other way around, he must appear deep in body in proportion to his length of legs. He must then appear to be wide in his body and thickly covered with muscle, especially over the loin and down through the thighs.

The feeder calf should have a short neck and a short, broad head. He should appear moderately fine or small in the legs and head as an indication that he will fatten smoothly and show quality when fat. Large, coarse-appearing calves and small over-refined ones seldom develop into winners. Calves that appear nervous and easily excited or frightened should be avoided as they are likely to not do well and to be hard to train to lead.

TEAMWORK

While we were preparing the "Grass is on the Move" article for this page, a cattleman friend from one of the western range states called to see me. I told him about the article. "It points out," I said, "that lots of food for humans is produced from areas that otherwise would be waste land if it were not for meat animals."

He said, "That's good! There are always misguided people who complain that it's a waste to feed corn and other grains to livestock. They say people ought to eat the grain, instead of turning it into meat. They forget that most of that meat is made of grass, hay and other roughage that people can't eat."

"Another thing too many people forget," he went on, "is the important job you meat packers do in getting meat to the people who want it. I understand that meat travels an average of more than 1,000 miles from producers to consumers. That must be so because we fellows west of the Mississippi raise two-thirds of the livestock. But two-thirds of the meat is eaten east of the Mississippi, where most of the people live. In a way, we who raise and finish the animals are like manufacturers. And you are our sales and distributing departments. Believe me, we need an organization that covers the nation to get our product into every market in this big country. It seems to me that you and we are in this business together, and neither could get along without the other."

It seems to me that he's right! F.M. Simpson.

Agricultural Research Department

Cattle grubs collect a heavy toll from livestock producers each year. Paul Gregg, entomologist with Texas A. and M. College, estimates that grubs cause approximately five million dollars' loss in Texas alone. Cattle grubs are an expensive pest throughout the Gulf Coast states, all the range country and everywhere cattle are produced. They can be controlled. Gregg advocates rotenone and sulphur, applied either as a dust or spray. Consult your county agent about the best time for treating your animals.

OUR CITY COUSIN

City Cousin, dressed up slick, Wonders, "Where is farming's kick?" He'll find out—mighty quick.

Marketing Dairy and Poultry Products. The same nationwide facilities which are used to distribute meat are ideal for the distribution of dairy and poultry products. All these products are perishable and require refrigeration. Many consumers buy their butter, cheese, eggs, poultry and meats from the same store. So, as you can see, it is more economical to have one Swift & Company salesman who sells 16 or more products than 16 salesmen each selling one product. Further, costs are reduced by having the same trucks deliver these products at the same time to the same dealer. By preparing, handling and selling dairy and poultry products, as well as meat, distribution costs are reduced on all these foods. Our objective is to provide wider outlets for the products of America's farms and ranches. We have a booklet entitled "Dairy and Poultry Products" which we will gladly send you. #### Ship Ancy

Up-stream from Niagara Falls a short distance, the weather-beaten hulk of a wrecked yacht lay for years in mid-channel. I saw it once, clinging precariously to the rough, stone river-bed while the swift current lashed violently at its decaying sides. A Canadian, native of Welland County, told me the story of the derelict, a thriller if I ever heard one, and worth repeating.

Several miles up the river, this comfortable little craft rode at anchor one night in quiet water. The skipper and some guests were sleeping peacefully on board when, by some unexplained circumstance, the boat came loose from her moorings. Nobody waked for a long time. The boat drifted with the current, which was not fast at first but gradually gained speed as it neared the falls.

Start Investigation.

The keel was grinding on the nodulated rock bottom before the boat's unsteady motion roused any of the sleepers. Then they all got active at once. Most of them had no idea what to do first. Some actually began accusing one another and trying to fix the blame for losing the anchor—this, with the thundering cataract in plain hearing, destruction only a few seconds away.

The skipper was a man of action and presence of mind. While his guests suffered panic, he went below and blasted a hole in the hull with dynamite. The crippled craft took on water fast and settled to bottom in the swift stream. Then it lodged! Days like months passed before the handful of frightened people could be brought ashore but no lives were lost. Quick action saved them.

Paying the Price

Certainly the skipper loved his boat and hated to sacrifice it. He wished something might have waked him a mile up stream where life and property both could have been saved, but he paid the price of survival. America's ship of state is, this very day, drifting down a channel toward a cataract, the same channel through which Italy, Germany, France and England passed before us.

Numberless weak vessels have plunged helplessly over Niagara to a destruction nobody ever has lived to describe. Just so, many helpless peoples have been swept through revolution to dictatorship because they could not help themselves. Even recently England blasted the sturdy keel of a self-governing nation. The people are safe but their long-cherished liberty is damaged. Figuratively, England's freedom hangs precariously in rough current.

We Can Save All

The United States of America has drifted far but our engines are still in condition and the boat is not out of control. Still there is time for our leaders to save, not only our people from revolution, but the personal freedom our forefathers fled monarchs and despots to obtain and fought desperately to keep. The way to ruin is via central planning, government-management, direction, control, ownership.

Government ownership is full concentration of authority—a pretty name for despotism. The trend is unmistakable, the tragic course is familiar. It is time to turn back under power toward individual liberty: freedom of faith, freedom of speech, the right to own property and the right to buy and sell. While we have the only seaworthy yacht on the river, it's time for quick action.

HANDS ACROSS THE TABLE

Adapted by Wallace West from the Paramount Picture of the same title, based on Vina Delmar's story.

Regi Allen, a manicurist in the barber shop of a swanky New York hotel, has ambitions to marry a millionaire. Although she intrigues the interest of Allen Macklyn, a young millionaire paralyzed from the waist down in a plane crash, Regi has eyes only for Theodore Drew III, society playboy. Drew plans to marry a wealthy society girl after a short vacation trip to Bermuda. He misses the boat when he gets drunk at dinner with Regi and Regi has to put him up in her apartment for the night. Later he tells Regi that he isn't worth a cent his father losing everything in the crash. Regi is in love with him but she thinks he would be better off if he married money. She repulses his ardent advances and he leaves the apartment bewildered. Meanwhile Ted's fiance comes to the Carlton and insults Regi. Disappointed and disgusted, Regi accepts Macklyn's proposal of marriage and a honeymoon on his yacht.

CHAPTER IX
TED hurried out to the Snowden estate in Westchester, only to be informed by the butler that Vivian was staying in town at the Carlton hotel.

"You could marry me for my money and I could marry you because . . . because . . . you give such a good manicure," Macklyn said.

"Well, that's where I go then. Good-bye, Miles. Keep out of draughts."

Nona greeted the listless Regi with the announcement that the day was a wonderful one for her, according to the "aujerjes."

"It's no use, Nona," her friend smiled wanly. "Ted's gone. He's going to marry that Snowden girl. He's got to marry somebody with money. That's the way he is. The same as I am. Yes . . . and I'm going to, too. I'll marry the first rich man that asks me. I'll show him!"

"Somebody in Seventeen-O-two wants a manicure," interrupted Laura. "Asked for Miss Allen. Hurry right up, Regi."

A few moments later Regi entered the presence of a haughty and beautiful member of the four hundred, who sized her up rather unnecessarily.

"You'll pardon the mess," said the young lady as she waved toward the dresses which littered every chair in the room. "I'm inspecting my trousseau." After a lengthy pause she added: "Your name is Regi Allen, isn't it?"

"Yes," answered the manicurist, busy with the slim fingers. "Will you tell me something about your profession? Why do all men attempt to dine with manicurists the minute they sit down. Is it because they are more or less holding hands?"

"I think that's a little exaggerated." "Not from what I hear. Every man I know who has an evening on his hands . . ." she smiled, "on his hands, says I guess I'll get a manicure."

"Oh, does he?" Regi was becoming annoyed. "Well, I don't think he always succeeds." "Oh, I see you're an exception . . . that's why you only dine with men like . . . Theodore Drew, the third, for instance. You can pack up your thought his heart was touched. But now that I have met you, my dear Miss Allen, my fears have proved quite groundless. Now, there's one thing more. Mr. Drew, as you probably found out, is not overly wealthy at the moment and I think it's only fair you should be paid for a week's manuring. . . . If you will find me my purse. . . ."

"Mr. Drew will find your purse," snapped Regi as she walked out and slammed the door behind her.

She went directly from Miss Snowden's room to her daily appointment with Allen Macklyn.

"You're late today," reproved Peter as he opened the door. "We've phoned twice. Mr. Macklyn's been . . ."

"Yes, I know," Regi's tone was savage. "I was polishing up a bride." "Oh, at last," cried Allen when she entered the living room. "My hangnails have been screaming for you." Regi went to his chair, trying to hold back her tears. She put the tray on the arm rest, then no longer able to restrain her feelings, sank down beside him, let her head fall on his arm and, like a hurt child, sobbed convulsively.

"I'm sorry, Regi," he soothed her when he had heard the story. "Don't be sorry for me," she cried. "It serves me right for going back on everything I ever believed. I should have run like mad when I saw what was happening. But not me. I jumped at it. I wanted to get bitten. Well, I got it! And, Allen, it hurts so!"

"You can't run away from love," Regi, he said, stroking her bright hair. "It just comes. I know how you feel. I've been through it. I told you how my love flew out the window when . . . when . . ." He indicated his condition. "when I lost the use of my legs. We're a fine pair, Regi. You and I ought to be ideally happy, because we're through with love."

"Those are the 'only' people who ever are happy, I guess," she answered, drying her eyes. "You think I'm a good egg, don't you?"

"The best." "And I think you're . . ." He was aching to declare his love but did not dare. . . . completely swell. Let's you and I get married. You could marry me for my money and I could marry you because . . . because . . . you give such a good manicure."

"Don't kid about it, Allen," she exclaimed, jumping to her feet. "I'm trying to take it big, but it's . . ."

"I'm not kidding," he told her gently. "But I don't love you." "That's great. I don't love you either. Isn't that a sound basis for happiness? The more I think of it, the more I like it. What do you say . . . is it a bet . . . do we get married?"

"We could never hurt each other, could we?" She looked at him tenderly. "Allen, honestly, you're the top!"

She hugged him affectionately and dispassionately as he took out his handkerchief and wiped away her eyes.

Last Rites Saturday At Baptist Church For Curtis C. Quicksall

A service of last rites honoring the memory of Curtis Cleveland Quicksall, whose tragic death in a motorcycle accident, Thursday, profoundly shocked the entire population of this city and country-side. The rites were held at the Gatesville First Baptist church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Lawrence Hayes, pastor of the congregation of which the youth was a member, was assisted by the Rev. G. L. Derrick as officiants in the ceremonies, which paid highest tribute in eulogies, songs and the profusion of lovely fragrant flowers that banked the altar where the casket rested.

The cortege passed from the church to Restland Cemetery, where commitment ceremonies included military honors. Attending the casket as pallbearers were Dean Clemons, Flavey Brown, Fred Koch, Jr., Nathan Cooper, Overton Wilson, and Louis Schange.

Adding pathos to the untimely death of Curtis Cleveland Quicksall a native son of Gatesville, born to Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Quicksall of this city, April 22, 1923 is that he was a veteran of World War II, having served for three years with Co. A, 2nd Inf., 4th Division in the European, African, and Middle Eastern theaters of operations and received wounds that kept him a patient in McCloskey Hospital for a number of months after returning to the States. He was decorated with the Purple Heart, one Bronze Service Star, American Theater Medal, World War II Victory Medal and Overseas Service Bar. He was a truck driver, and had been employed at North Camp Hood for some five months prior to his death.

Curtis Quicksall married Miss Minnie Olene Vannoy, August 1, 1942, and the couple resided at 2006 Sanders, Gatesville.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Minnie Olene Quicksall; his parent., two brothers and three sisters. His brothers are Vergil Quicksall, who recently sailed for Germany, where he will erve in the U. Ss. Army of occupation; and Cecil Quicksall, Austin, a University of Texas student. Miss Bonnie Mae Quicksall of Beaumont, Miss Erma Lee Quicksall of Dallas and Miss Susie Quicksall of Gatesville, are his sisters. A grandmother, Mrs. Susan Black lives near this city.

The bereaved wife, parents and other loved ones are offered the sincere sympathy of a host of friends, who realize that their loss and the country's loss is incommensurate.
