ALLIES CARRYING FIGHT TO ENEMY ON WEST FRONT

IN NUMBER OF LOCAL ATTACKS
ALLIED TROOPS HAVE WON IMPORTANT OBJECTIVES.

GERMANS NOT READY

Epidemic of Influenza and Other Diseases May Delay Onset For Some Time.

The Associated Press war summary says: Another week has passed without the Germans resuming their offensive along the western front. In fact, the Entente Allies during this period have carried the fight to the enemy. These actions have been local in character, but have been fought for important immediate objectives which strengthened the Allied line. At various points the Allies have placed in jeopardy the enemy's tenure of certain parts of the front which have extended their control over wide sectors. This was the notable result of an attack near Belleau Wood on the Marne front by American troops. They did not seek to break through but wanted to reach high ground, which would command the villages of the enemy. This ground is now in our hands. The ground is now in our hands. The ground is now in our hands.

TO MAINTAIN ORDER

Treaty Gives Right to United States—Length of Occupied Not Determined.

By Associated Press
PANAMA, June 29.—Upon orders from Washington American troops began policing Panama and Colon at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The 2 o'clock was taken under the treaty of 1904 authorizing the United States to assume this police duty whenever it was necessary to maintain order. The Panamanian government has protested to Washington against the measure. Because the former administration had refused to correct conditions in the two cities, soldiers in the canal zone were forbidden to enter them and the Panamanian government has refused to accept the mandate of the military authorities was carried out by the Panamanian government. The new administration, under President Uribe, has reported clean up the cities, but in connection with this work, announced that the elections fixed for June 30 and July 7 would be postponed for six months because of the fear that serious disorders might occur if held on the dates set by law.

FIVE DIVISIONS ADDED TO FORCES UNDER PERSHING

GEN. MARCH TELLS OF ARRIVAL OF AMERICAN TROOPS IN ITALY AND OTHER FACTS.

ITEMS INCREASED

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Safe arrival in Italy of the first contingent of American troops was announced today by General Pershing, chief of staff. Sanitary units compose the greater part of the first arrivals but "other special units" also were included. General Pershing reiterated the statement that the bulk of the combatant American troops going to Italy will be sent from the western front. No definite plan for the increase of this force from the United States has been reached, Secretary Baker said later. Material increase during the past week in the forces under General Pershing was indicated by the official announcement that five divisions which had been brigaded with the British for training, have now been returned to the American army. The chief of staff said results have shown American troops are more than holding their own and fine examples of individual valor have been reported. He did not announce the total number of men shipped from American embarkment ports to date but intimated a statement might be made this week. Senators at the military committee were told by General March at their weekly conference that the accounts of the large number of captured Austrians for some unknown reasons were printed only in American newspapers and not in any of Europe. General March disclosed that official reports from the Italian front place the number of Austrians captured at 18,000 and a large amount of war material. The line of the Piave has been entirely restored by the Italian and German forces has been slightly advanced. The achievements of the Italians, however, according to Senators were not minimized. There is no information to confirm reports, General March said, that German troops are being sent to lack up the Austrians. Military opinion, General March found, is that the Austrians are not a serious threat to the Italian front because of the spread over so large a front as to make it impossible to carry through successfully. The Austrian disaster which followed the retreat of the Allies not only in a military sense but psychologically, chief of staff said, because of its stimulating effect upon Italian morale both among the civil population and the army. The practical results in prisoners and guns taken also was of course valuable. The last week American activities in France have been local in character, but the official reports show that the Americans at all times and places have more than held their own. General March said. Fine examples of individual bravery are coming in, he said. Commenting upon the return to General Pershing's command of five divisions brigaded with British, Gen. March said, it showed clearly the success of the plan for using all facilities to give American units their final polishing. He would not have been possible otherwise, he indicated, to have secured so large a trained force under General Pershing in so short a time.

SENATE ADOPTS TWELVE BILLION DOLLAR ARMY BILL

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—In passing the twelve billion dollar army appropriation bill today the Senate emphasized sentiment for enlarging the army beyond the three million men provided in the measure, but declined while awaiting the war department's new expansion program, specifically to allow the President to raise an army of 5,000,000. The measure, a world's record breaker, was sent to conference with a view to enactment next Monday. None of the appropriations for the army's part in the war for the financial year beginning July 1, was reduced by the Senate. Instead of important legislative riders, approved without change, the House clause giving the President with unlimited authority to increase the army by further draft calls and added scores of important legislative riders. Fierce efforts were made today by Senators desirous of specifically ordering an army increase. Many Senators declared in so voting they were chiefly postponing action in accordance with the war department's request for two or three months time to submit the enlarged program. Other provisions. Among many important legislative provisions added by the Senate are the following: Authorizing the President to organize and maintain a Russian legion. Proposing the rank of lieutenant general for Provost Marshal General Crowder. Providing for training and equipment of foreign troops designed especially for the so-called "Pan-American army." Amending the draft law to provide quotas based on the number of men in each age group instead of on state population. Giving effect to the British-American reciprocal draft treaty and other similar conventions which may be concluded and permanently debarring from American citizenship citizens of neutral nations who have filed preliminary citizenship applications and who claim exemption from the draft. Authorizing formation of a 100,000,000 corporation under the aircraft board. Providing distinctive badges or buttons for men discharged or rejected. Authorizing the President to commandeer timber and lumber and conduct timbering operations for aircraft and ship building. Providing medals of honor and distinguished service crosses and other decorations. Authorizing officers to buy their uniforms and equipment from the government at cost. Providing for general offices and promotions for the medical corps.

GOVERNMENT PLANS GO FORWARD FOR HELPING RUSSIA

REPORTS OF GERMAN MILITARY INTERVENTION IN RUSSIA NOT ALLOWED TO HINDER.

ITEMS INCREASED

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Preparations for extending economic aid to Russia went ahead today undisturbed by reports that the German military intervention in the country. Officials declined to comment on the latest confusing reports of developments in Russia and it was apparent they thought there would be no change in the government's plans. The extent to which Germany may be able to exert military force on Russia will depend as much on events on the western front as the willingness to assume further control in the east. Inasmuch as they have done their worst so far unhampered by their peace treaties, there is no inclination here to look for any decided change in the attitude of the Germans. Talk of American military intervention in Russia is not welcomed in official circles. The preparation for any possible contingency a strategy of the situation has been made so that the United States may not be taken unawares. The question of tonnage is believed to have been settled. Since the shipping board has divided transport contracts almost equally among the Atlantic and Pacific yards. There was no official indication today that President Wilson would take the country into his confidence by an early address to congress, leading to the conclusion that plans for helping Russia, aside from the economic aspect for which plans are now under way, have not been completed.

PROFITEERING ON LARGE SCALE IN NECESSITIES

INFLATED GREED AND BARE-FACED FRAUD REPORTED BY FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

PADDED EXPENSES

Tendency Prevails to Increase and Increase and Maintain Prices Against Forces of Competition.

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Profiteering on a large scale on nearly all the necessities of life was reported to the Senate by the federal trade commission as the result of an exhaustive investigation. "Inordinate greed and barefaced fraud," as well as "war pressure for heavy production," the commission reported as the causes. Re-appraisements of properties were made with great concern when it became evident the government was about to fix prices on a basis of return on investment, the report says and salaries, allowances and expenses were in many instances padded to show increased costs. The outstanding feature of its investigation, the commission reported, was the evidence of a tendency to increase and maintain prices against the forces of competition. Of all the big profits, the report says, those of the meat packers and flour millers stand foremost, despite the fixing of prices by the government. Manipulations of the market by the five great packers, Armour, Swift, Morris, Wilson and Cudahy—the commission asserts "embraces every device that is useful to them without regard to the public." The report charges the five concerns have conspired to control the price of the meat industry and "are reaching for like domination in other products." During 1915, 1916 and 1917, the report says, these companies "pocketed" $140,000,000. The experience with steel, flour and coal, says the report, "has tended to price fixing, while stabilizing an ascending market, produces an economic situation which is fraught with hardship to the consuming public and while the public is made to pay for the companies through increasing power of their low cost competitors." Price fixing by the government, the report says, has tended to prevent the market from reaching its normal position at the same time it strengthens the stronger factors in industry in their position and enriches them with profits "which are wholly unjustified." While the price of flour has been stabilized by fixing a price for wheat and a maximum margin of profit for flour, the report shows that profits increased in the flour industry for the years ending June 30, 1916, to nearly 50 per cent in the year ending June 30, 1917. "These profits," it is stated, "are indefensible considering that an average profit of one mill for six months of the year shows as high as 32 per cent." The report declares that unprecedented profits are shown in a survey of the packing industry. In this connection it is said: "The packers, Swift, Morris, Wilson and Cudahy and their subsidiary and affiliated companies have monopolistic control of the meat industry and are reaching out for like domination in other products. Every device that is useful to them without regard to law. Their reward expressed in inflated profits, represents four of these concerns have pocketed in 1915-1916-1917, $140,000,000. However delicate provisions are framed for 'profiteering' these packers have proved upon the people unconscionably. Investigation in the coal mine, the commission states, despite government price fixing large margins of profit have been made. "Large Profits From Oil. In the oil industry huge profits are being made in fuel oil and gasoline, the industry being one where the law of supply and demand still operates. The operation of this law is held to be in part responsible for the heavy profits but a portion of the blame is laid to the spreading of false reports regarding supplies. Steel companies made abnormal profits before the government fixed a price for the product and it is shown that some have since made unusual profits. Profits of the United States Steel corporation are estimated at 24.9 per cent in 1917, as compared with 15.6 per cent in 1916 and 5.2 per cent in 1915. "In practically every one of the industries covered by the report it is shown unusually heavy profits have been made in the last few years. Abnormal salaries have also been shown to have been paid executive officials. "Southern pine producers, the federal trade commission's report on profiteering made public today charges, have been making unreasonably large profits, running as high as 121 per cent on the net investment. "Forty-eight southern pine companies producing 2,615,000,000 feet of lumber in 1917," says the report, "made an average profit on the net investment of seventeen per cent. This is unusually large for the industry as is indicated by the fact that the average profit in 1916 was only 5.2 per cent. In 1917, 47 per cent on the footage of the companies covered was produced at a profit of over 20 per cent, the range of profit was from a

CAUGHT GERMAN SPYING

By their enterprise in taking the initiative unexpectedly the Allies apparently caught the Germans napping and realized their objectives in a short time. The British rectified their line east of Hazebrouck in Flanders. South of the Aisne the French drove the enemy back on their important Amiens-Montreuil sector which bars the open space between the forests of Compiègne and Villers-Cotteret. The fighting here continues. Not only did the Allies straighten out their lines, but they took from the German salients which would have suited admirably as "jumping off" points in future operations. Although the British attacked on a front three and a half miles and the French on four and one-half miles, each effort was intended as a purely tactical operation to harass the enemy. In the north the British wiped out the German salient toward the Nieppe forest northwest of Merville and that town is now menaced seriously. Three hamlets were taken in an advance of a mile and the Germans lost 300 prisoners. Australian troops around Merris, north of Merville made a small gain and took forty-three Germans.

After his check on the Noyon-Montdidier the German crown prince made a strong attack south of the Aisne for the apparent purpose of getting behind the front of the Allies. A large part of the gains made there have been now recaptured by the French. Important positions were taken from the Germans whose lines were penetrated at several points to a depth of more than a mile. The French bag of prisoners totals 1060. Berlin reports the German troops as striving to break through the front attacks. Merville is the farthest point west the Germans reached in the Lys battle and the British gain these lessons the peril to Hazebrouck. No less satisfactory check on the viewpoint is the French thrust south of the Aisne which also relieved enemy pressure at a more or less vital point.

GERMANS NOT READY

There is reason for believing that preparations are not nearly complete for a resumption of the German drive. Just where the blow will fall is not known, but the German command seems to have some clue to the intentions of the foe. The blow, when it comes is expected to escape the vicinity of the attack of March 21 and May 21. An epidemic of influenza in the German army is reported and this with the reported prevalence of typhoid, dysentery and other diseases may delay the onset for some time. A week ago the Austrians began their flight across the Piave from the western bank where they had received a satisfactory check in the hands of the Italians. It is possible now to view the event in its true perspective and estimate the victory of the Italians as a great and triumphant. General Diaz, the Italian commander in chief, has not pursued the Austrians further than the Piave. There is still danger of another attack being launched against Italy this time from the mountain front with the German forces leading their Allies. For this reason, apparently Diaz is content to hold the Piave strongly and to wait. The situation in Russia is very obscure and while there are indications the sway of the Bolshevik may be near its end, there is no confirmed report of the government of Lenin and Trotsky has been overthrown. The same situation obtains as to Siberia where the Bolshevik and German and Austrian prisoners of war are fighting against the Czech-Slavs on the west and General Semenov's army on the east.

MANY KILLED WHEN BUILDING FALLS AT SIOUX CITY

By Associated Press
SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 29.—The number of dead in the ruins of the three story Ruff building, which collapsed here this afternoon and was burned, was estimated at from 20 to 30 late this afternoon over twenty are missing, but may be accounted for later. Ten tailors who were working in the rear of the top floor of the Ruff building, the part of the building which went down first and Louis Soisets, foreman for F. X. Babue & Sons, contractors who were jacking the building for repairs, died in the ruins. "When the Ruff building fell, the wall crushed two adjoining structures—a grocery and a meat market—and buried employes and patrons in the debris. It also resulted in the imprisonment of persons could be heard above the roar of the flames in the hospital. About eighteen clerks were in the establishment when the explosion occurred. Eight of this number are known to have escaped.

VOTE MONDAY ON INCREASED PRICE FOR 1918 WHEAT

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—After an unsuccessful effort by Senator Martin of Virginia, democratic leader, to have the Senate abandon its proposal to increase the government minimum guaranteed wheat price to $2.50, an agreement was reached tonight to take a vote on the question Monday. Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Gronna and McCumber of North Dakota, Borah of Idaho and others from wheat producing states urged the Senate to stand by its price increase "until the snow flies," despite the prospect of a deadlock with the House, causing failure of the important agricultural appropriation to which the increased price is attached as a rider. Senator Reed of Missouri made another vehement attack upon Food Administrator Hoover, but the majority of the millers were taken under the wing of the food administration and were absolutely guaranteed against loss. Senator Reed said, "Their profits were multiplied three-fold. Every time Mr. Hoover regulated prices for the capitalists he has regulated them up." Mr. Hoover organized the packers in pool trusts," said Senator Reed. He took care to see that they had no reason to protest. "He took care to see that he put money in their pockets," he said, "and he got out of their vision. He took care of the profits of the millers or of the packers." Senator Gore also spoke of "fabulous profits of millers" as shown by the commission's report. He declared that for the government to take grain from farmers at a price less than they might get for it is "unjustified confiscation," adding, "The elevators, millers and packers are subsidized to keep them satisfied."

GARABED TESTED BY SCIENTISTS; REPORT NOT PUBLIC

By Associated Press
BOSTON, June 29.—"Garabed," the engine that its inventor Garabed Garagosian, asserts is a free energy generator, was tested as a private laboratory in this city today by a board of five scientists in the presence of Judge E. C. Finney of the department of interior. The result of the test was not announced, but a report was sent by mail to Secretary Lane of the interior department. Mr. Garagosian was said to be completely satisfied with the demonstration. The test was completed in three hours.

The enemy did not follow and the action was then broken off. No damage was sustained, by any of our vessels."

APPROPRIATIONS OF MORE THAN 22 BILLIONS VOTED

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Congress acted on appropriation bills aggregating more than $22,000,000,000 today in an effort to bring them all before the end of the fiscal year and clear the way for the midsummer recess. Approval of the appropriation bills will be unfinished and the program still, was in such shape some leaders thought it would be impossible to begin the recess until the end of next week, instead of before July 4, as hoped. The naval and sundry civil appropriation bills carrying $1,610,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 respectively were sent to the President for his signature. The Senate passed the army and fortifications bills carrying $1,883,000,000 and $5,409,000,000 respectively. After President Wilson's objections causing his veto were considered, but both houses recessed this evening until Monday.

$12,600,000,000 SPENT BY SINGLE SAM WITHIN YEAR

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 29.—The government today closed its books for the fiscal year just ending—the first full fiscal year in the war—and Monday will open new annual records. Cabinet members and other heads of departments will make reports to President Wilson covering their stewardship of funds and responsibilities for the year-closing today—or technically tomorrow. In government financial history the year will go down as a period of extraordinary spending. In a decade ago more than $12,600,000,000 is the actual outlay since July 1, 1917, to meet the multitude of big bills run up for the army, the navy, the ship building program, airplane construction, coast defense requirements, other government activities and the needs of the Allies for American loans to finance purchases of war materials in this country in peace times. The government spent less than $1,000,000,000 annually. With the addition of the $12,600,000,000 the government spent in the three months of war preceding this fiscal year, the war's cost in money to date has been $13,600,000,000. War activity now is draining about $500,000,000 a day from the nation's public treasury.

"Forty-eight southern pine companies producing 2,615,000,000 feet of lumber in 1917," says the report, "made an average profit on the net investment of seventeen per cent. This is unusually large for the industry as is indicated by the fact that the average profit in 1916 was only 5.2 per cent. In 1917, 47 per cent on the footage of the companies covered was produced at a profit of over 20 per cent, the range of profit was from a small loss to over 121 per cent on the net investment. Where the government has fixed prices on the basis of fair return on net investment, the report hints at padded depreciations, increased salaries of officials, new construction charged off as repairs, fictitious values on raw materials and manipulated inventories.

SWIFT AND COMPANY ISSUE A STATEMENT

CHICAGO, June 29.—Swift & Company issued the following statement: "Swift & Company deeply resent the spirit and manner in which this report has been released. It was issued for release at noon Saturday when officers in many businesses have closed their desks for the week and are usually on hand to answer reasonable and unfounded charges. It tended to throw suspicion about an essential industry which it is publicly recognized as having fulfilled tremendous war demands from the beginning perhaps better than any other industry in the country."

MORRIS AND COMPANY SAY FIGURES ARE INCORRECT

NEW YORK, June 29.—Morris and Company issued the following statement: "In the statement of the federal trade commission as to the profits of Morris and Company, the figures given are misleading and are absolutely incorrect. The profits of 263.7 for the three years was evidently figured on a nominal capital of $1,000,000 and not on the capital invested, while the pre-war profit of 8.6 per cent was figured on the total investment. During 1917 our investment was in excess of $38,000,000 and our profit was 141.4 per cent on this investment and not 263.7 per cent as stated. The average profit on investment for the past three years was 10.95 per cent."

NO INCREASE IN CRUDE OIL PRICE AS NOW FAVORED

ASKS PRODUCERS AND REFINERS FOR PLAN TO STABILIZE PRICES

NEW YORK, June 29.—There will be no change in premiums on the price of crude oil until plans now being considered by the national petroleum war service committee and the producers and refiners of Kansas and Oklahoma have been worked out to stabilize the industry, it was announced here tonight by A. C. Bedford, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and chairman of the committee. M. Requa, director of the oil division, recently said the government was opposed to any further increase in the price of crude oil, but since that time a few cases of additional premiums being offered have been reported. The war service committee then asked the producers and refiners of the Kansas and Oklahoma fields to suggest some plan to stabilize prices which could be recommended for adoption by the committee to effect with the sanction of Mr. Requa.

Thomas A. O'Donnell, who represented the fuel administration, at today's meeting told the committee the government was anxious that the petroleum industry should regulate itself during the war, but was insistent there should be no increase in petroleum prices and there should be bidding among refiners for the existing supply of crude oil. He also made it plain the government would seriously object to any diversion of oil from its present channels. "The fact is frankly recognized," said Mr. Bedford in his statement, "that there is an excess of refining capacity in the United States over the current production of crude oil. The national petroleum war service committee with the cordial co-operation of the oil division is accordingly striving earnestly both to stimulate the maximum production of crude, and at the same time insure to all refiners, both large and small, that their supply of crude in relation to the quantity available as a whole had not suffer the policy of the committee is in this co-operation with the government to preserve the industry in the highest state of efficiency and prosperity, not alone for the war itself, but for whatever opportunities and obligations the after war period may develop."

AIRPLANE FLEETS WHEEL OVER GERMAN TERRITORY

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 29.—Late last night and again today the Germans put down vigorous barrages along the sector north of Merville but no further infantry actions have been reported. Great fleets of airplanes are constantly wheeling over hostile territory today and conducting bitter warfare against the Germans.

BRITISH AVIATORS SHOOT DOWN 17 HUN PLANES

(BULLETIN) LONDON, June 29.—British aviators in aerial combats on the western front Friday shot down seventeen German airplanes and sent six others down out of control. Three British machines are missing as a result of the combat.

OFFICIAL

AMERICAN.

By Associated Press WASHINGTON, June 29.—Capture of 209 German prisoners and the destruction of three German airplanes by American aviators was reported by General Pershing in an official communique today.

The official communique follows: "Section A—In the Chateau Thierry region we again improved our positions. The number of prisoners taken by us at this point in the operation of June 28 has increased to 209 of whom seven are officers. There have been no new developments at other points held by our troops. It is established that our aviators have shot down three hostile machines in the Toul region since the beginning of two weeks."

Section B—Of the three planes mentioned in the American official communique of June 28, one was brought down at 9:30 o'clock on the morning of June 24 between Pont-A-Mousson and Thiaucourt by Lieutenant Raymond. Lieutenant Raymond encountered a hostile biplane which dived under his own. Lieutenant Raymond then executed a dive on the hostile plane firing as he did so. He saw tracer bullets entering the fuselage of the enemy plane. The destruction of the hostile machine has now been confirmed. The other two planes were shot down on June 25 by Major Hartney and Lieutenant McArthur. Major Hartney reports that his patrol of four planes answering the call at 8:30 o'clock in the evening encountered two German planes of which one was a biplane rumpier and the other a monoplane. They were flying at an altitude of 4,500 meters. The German monoplane obtained a position over the tail of Lieutenant Hill's machine. Major Hartney fired a long burst at the monoplane which turned over and landed upside down. The German rumpier biplane was pursued by Lieutenant McArthur below the cloud level. The two machines exchanged fire. On emerging from the cloud level the hostile machine went over backwards. Lieutenant McArthur was at one time within 30 yards of the German plane and observed that his tracer bullets entered the fuselage and is certain that the observer was wounded before the plane fell. He fired a total of 226 rounds.

BRITISH.

By Associated Press LONDON, June 29.—Quiet prevails on the British front in northern France according to the official report from Field Marshal Haig tonight. The text of the statement follows: "Beyond the usual artillery activity on both sides there is nothing to report."

FRENCH.

By Associated Press PARIS, June 29.—The war office tonight says: "There is nothing to report except quite marked artillery activity between the Ourcq and the Marne and in the region east of Rheims. The enemy artillery displayed particular activity in the Dorain sector. Our batteries replied with destructive and harassing fires. An enemy detachment was whispered on the Serbian front. British aviators carried out several bombardments on the neighborhood of Zeres."

ITALIAN.

By Associated Press ROME, June 29.—The official statement tonight says: "Near Senon Noventa Di Piave enemy reconnoitering detachments attempted to cross the river. On the remainder of the front there have been artillery duels of varying strength everywhere."

GERMAN.

By Associated Press BERLIN, Via London, June 29.—The German war office admits in its official communication today the activities of the British in the Vieux Berquin, but adds that a counter attack drove the British beyond the western border of the village. At other points, it is declared, the British attacks broke down.

The statement says: "North of the Lys infantry attacks were launched by the British after violent artillery fire. Three assaults against Merris broke down with heavy losses. In the middle battle field the enemy penetrated into Vieux Berquin. A counter attack brought him to a standstill there and threw him back beyond the western border of the village. North of Merville the enemy's attacks broke down under our fire. Southwest of Buequoy strong attacks by several reconnoitering detachments were repulsed. South of the Aisne the French attacked after strong artillery preparation. They were repulsed near Ambleny after stubborn fighting. They gained ground at Cutry but our counter attack threw them back on the heights on both sides of the place. Attempts by enemy infantry to carry the infantry attack further by bringing armored cars into action broke down. At the Villers-Cotterets forest we pursued the retreating enemy as far as his positions of departure and captured prisoners. The enemy suffered a heavy defeat. In the air 19 enemy airplanes were shot down. Twenty Italian prisoners were captured in a minor operation south of Rheims."

BLIND SOLDIERS BEING TAUGHT ELECTRICAL WORK

Associated Press Mail Correspondent.

LONDON, May 28.—Blinded soldiers of France and Great Britain are being taught to earn their living by doing electrical construction following the system originated by an American, Dr. Schuyler S. Wheeler, who recently returned to New York after spending three months here and in France introducing the work. In its present stage the blind are taught to insulate coils for motors and dynamos and do a certain amount of assembling. Dr. Wheeler founded a blind workshop for this work about a year ago in Amperre, N. J., where he is president of a large concern manufacturing electrical machinery. When it became known that the blind were able to do the work an effort to earn good livings in competition with "sighted workers," the French government invited Dr. Wheeler to come to France and teach the blinded soldiers. Subsequently, through Sir Arthur Pearson, the British authorities invited Dr. Wheeler to come to England.

In France two large electrical workshops have been started for the blinded soldiers. The French branch of a large American electrical manufacturing company has founded one at their works in Neuilly-sur-Marne, where more than 500 will be installed. Rene Vallery-Radot, President of the Council of the Society of the Friends of Blind Soldiers and son-in-law of the great Pasteur, has founded the other at Versailles, where several hundred soldiers are receiving instruction.

In England, the British Electrical and Allied Manufacturers' association through Hugo Hirst, President of the General Electric Company, Ltd., working with Sir Arthur Pearson, head of St. Dunstan's and leader in the movement to aid the blinded soldiers, has agreed to foster the movement and give employment to all the blind who may be fitted for the work.

Sir Arthur is most enthusiastic over the introduction of this new industry for the blind. "The sincere gratitude of the blind community of this country," he said yesterday, "is due to Dr. Wheeler for his public spirited and generous action in making the dangerous journey from the United States in order to give the benefit of his practical experience and advice. I have every hope that his action will mean congenial and profitable employment to hundreds or perhaps thousands of blind."

In addition to the soldier blind, it is intended to teach the work to a large number of the blind women of the United Kingdom, for whom there is now practically no employment.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

To a large number of Americans the 4th of July was simply the 4th of July—a day for eating and drinking and a general all-round good time until the war came and then?

The great mass of us are coming to call the 4th of July—the glorious fourth—and that was just a phrase of oratory in political buncombe. Independence Day. As we sit and ponder over that strong word—Independence—during this war-time what burning thoughts must throb within our beings. Around that word is woven the romance of all history. For the independence of mankind Jesus Christ came and died and rose again. In His matchless train march the martyrs and patriots of all earth. Breath that noble word and in your vision-hour you will see the elect of humanity who suffered and served: See them march by, men of men, John Huss and Wycliffe, Kossuth and Garibaldi, Lafayette and Washington, Lincoln and those sons of ours who have fallen on death yonder to-day in this war for the Independence of Democracy and the freeing of races from the bondage of autocracy.

THIS fourth of July needs must be a day of sober reflection, a day wherein all of us will see to it that our house is set in order; a day whereby we will measure up to the heritage bequeathed to us by those who bled at Bull Run, Hill and Valley Forge, and not less at Vimy Ridge and the Marne, and mark it well, the village of Cantigny, the first village captured from the Boches by our Independence men 'over there'; a day wherein we will seriously and sagaciously in the sight of Almighty God and the great cloud of witnesses who have gone on before, renew our faith and allegiance to our country and our flag; that God helping us, no slur nor spot shall stain the honor of country or the glory of flag through word or deed of ours.

Independence Day? It is my day and your day—if you will. Given to us by the unseen hands, of those who fought and wrought in this dear day that fundamentally makes of all days Independence Days! When Arnold Winkelried folded to his heart the hated Austrian spears he was making way for the liberty of mankind just as much as when our forefathers marked the rocks with their bleeding feet at Valley Forge.

It is not enough to set forth in flowing phrase the declaration of independence or to sing in colorful tones "My country 'tis of thee." Of themselves these are but cheap things, but when we put into our declaration of independence life that will sacrifice and serve, and when we sing our national hymn with fire in the heart though the sweat may be upon the brow, THEN do we make of these things, glorious, eternal things and so bring to light the divine in man.

THIS fourth of July we are called upon to do just that, and doing it we will crucify self, and make more sure that our fathers did not die in vain, and that a government of the people and for the people and by the people is a structure that will withstand the onslaughts of all vandals and shelter all sufferers.

"My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing
"Land where my father died, Land of the Pilgrims' pride,
"From every mountain side let freedom ring!"

"DOUBLE-UP."

Double-up? What do yer mean? Well, draw up your chair, Bill, and lets talk this double-up business over. Wait a bit—lets have Mabel and the kiddies in, too. Now were all set, listen; you know this country of ours is at war with Germany and to win this war several things must be done. It is not enough to send men and munitions across the seas. That is a mighty important factor in this Hun-whipping affair. But there is something more than getting into the fight over there. All of us at home must get into the fight over here!

Many a fellow you know out at the shops or rustling in the yards, or yonder in the field simply aches to get a lick at those Huns; he somehow feels that he is just stalling around staying here at home. Now just there is where this double-up business comes in. You Boys and Girls listen to me, I know that you, Bill and Mable are wide awake and more than willing to do your part. You see Uncle Sam says that we had about thirty-five millions of workers in our country when this war broke loose. Since then what has happened? Now you want to get this in your mind and hold to it: It takes men to fight a war. Man-power is the one true deciding factor in this war. It's the man behind the gun and the man behind that man who will "bring home the bacon" and make peace possible. Do you follow me? Alright, now get this: we have taken from good, honest work, two millions of our very finest men, God bless 'em every one, and put a gun in their hands and said in so many words, "Go get the Kaiser's scalp," and so help me, they'll do it too. Take a good big look at what it means; out from offices and factories, from work shops and farms, from yards and mines this array of two million open-eyed quick-thinking "gogetter" Americans have hiked into camps and been "whipped" into the finest soldiers any flag ever saw. But that is only the beginning. Now add to that mighty army at least five hundred thousand sailor-laddies just as good as the boys in khaki, and another like amount for that army of men who are building our ships, men like you and me, Bill, mechanics who know what a day's work too, rain or shine. Now where are we? Just getting a good start and we've made business and our normal system of work look like a dry goods stock after a rousing, get-there-before-the-doors-open and grab-what-you-can July clearance sale! I'll tell you, Old Fellow, as the merchant says of his stock, "It's shot to pieces"! This man Howard Coffin and he's no dead-one by any means if his name is Coffin, says it takes at least forty men to put one aviator up in the air and keep him there. And our Government says we must have fifty thousand of these bird-men if we're going to win this war. Well, it's a cinch we're going to win it, so up will go the fifty thousand human-dickey-birds and God pity the Hun! Now here's the danger: we get that little fifty thousand in our mind's-eye and can't see the real thing, the army of TWO million men to put those fellows up in the air and keep 'em there. But, you say, where does this double-up business come in? Not so fast, we'll get to that in due season as the farmer says when he wishes for water and gets wind.

ers came to this country and went to work in our steel mills and mines and on our railroads as section hands—why man alive you can't build a road nor even repair one without Wops and Bohunks, Dagoes and Greasers. That's what we called them before the war and we kinder looked down upon them too. But today we are seeing this immigrant business in an entirely different light for the war sure did stop that human tide coming to us and also sent a big stream of these hardy workers back to fight, and it's beginning to pinch more ways than one. Whose going to get out your mind and throw gravel? Someone must do it if freight is to keep on the move. And who will do the real rough work that takes mainly good old pure D muscle in mills and on farms? Now you listen real close: today in this land of the free and home of the brave we are short just about fifteen million men to do the work of the nation. Let's put it this way: there is a thirty-five million man-job to be done, and we have only twenty million men to do it! Pshaw! don't that make your hair stand on end? And it's getting worse every day, more work to be done and fewer men to do it. Now comes this double-up affair. It's squarely up to you and me and the boys and girls to double-up in our work. Did you ever see a fellow with one arm or leg? Of course you have. But did you ever notice that he did the work of two arms with that one arm? Why, man alive, there's many a one-eyed fellow who sees more with his one eye than we do with our two good eyes. Why there was a one-legged fellow in our town who could out-hop anything in the county. It looked like he could cover as much ground as any two-legged fellow anywhere. What's the point? They were double-up citizens, and this war is going to be won by men and women, girls and boys who will be "double-up" citizens. Today the man, or woman, for that matter, who just does his duty and no more comes mighty nigh to being a slacker, believe me. We're short men for work, and work that has to be done to win this war. So all of us who claim to be Americans will prove our Americanism by doing two men's work. Aw, you say, that's too much for a fellow. Is it? Let's see. How many men were doing their best before the war by turning out work with the least mistakes and work that done, was done? Mighty few of us and you know it. Why we scrapped almost as much time and material as we put into work that was worth while. Today we have to cut out the lost motion, stop the leaks, tighten up the joints, put in as many licks, but licks twice as good and we'll get there with the bells on and aringing too!

squarely into the hands of the Potsdam gang and is worse than a traitor. We've all, every mother's son of us, got to double-up somewhere and somehow. Why, a fellow can help clean up the house and wash the supper dishes so that his wife can do a share of Red Cross work, and that's doubling-up in team-work. And take it from me, Bill, the father or mother who let's the girl or boy entertain the soldiers, ride around in the car and play lady, will suffer for it to the end of their earthly days, and that suffering time will double-up for them when Johnnie comes marching home! It's squarely up to every parent to see that our children go to work. It's not enough to buy war saving stamps. Money won't win this war by a jug-full. Germany has been broke financially for eight two years. Man-power is the one, last deciding factor and that means work-power. So by putting all of our boys, and girls to doing something needed to win the war and at the same time all of us men-folks doubling-up by putting in extra licks and making every lick count we will sure take the 'germ' out of Germany and put the everlasting "tie" in liberty and make this old world safe for democracy. Liberty bonds, war saving stamps and thrift stamps are well enough, but a fellow who has the money and buys all the liberty bonds he can get his hands on can be an arch-traitor. Why a liberty bond is a profit-getting investment. The liberty bond must have a double-up citizen owning it, then it begins to look like something! So, folks, it's double-up for us all with a smile on the face and a song in the heart and we'll sure put the "burr" on Berlin. That means we'll all be in the double-up brigade and be sure nuff Americans. Then we can pray for the victory.

A BRIEF EXPERIMENT.

Three wealthy farmers in Stafford county told their neighbors who were soliciting for the Red Cross that they had made their own money and could do as they pleased with it. They gave the solicitors to understand that they were entirely independent of the rest of the people and did not consider it their duty to contribute to the fund. All the farmers in the township held a meeting. Some of the more headed ones proposed the use of tar. But one philosopher suggested something worse. "We'll take them at their word and have nothing to do with them," he said. Every one present signed an agreement to cut off all relations with the three. Then they took the paper to town and had the merchants sign it. The next day one of the three farmers drove to town in his car to buy some supplies. "I can't sell you anything," said the merchant. He went to the bank and the banker said, "Here's your money. I don't want your business." He went to the garage to get some gasoline. "I can't let you have it," said the proprietor. He then went to the telephone exchange to telephone home for gasoline. "You haven't any telephone," said the manager. "You are cut off."

them more than a day to find out that they were all very much dependent upon society for their happiness and welfare. Even if they had been stubborn enough to fight it out to the end, the experiment would have necessitated their leaving the community and of losing perhaps, thousands of dollars, to say nothing of the respect of their neighbors which is valuable beyond computation in dollars and cents.—Wichita Beacon.

The time is coming when everybody will realize fully the dangers that lurk in ice that is impure and improperly frozen. The time is coming, and we hope it will, when ice plants will be under municipal or state inspection, just as the meat prepared at all of our packing plants must be approved by the U. S. Pure Food inspector before it can be offered for sale. We welcome the coming day when ice will be made under rigid regulation for we are mighty proud of the big, modern, sanitary plant that makes your ice. There isn't in the whole country a plant that is equipped better, or that is more cleanly or more efficient. We use pure distilled water in the making of our ice, and every glistening block is frozen hard and solid. Our customers are being served with the best ice that can possibly be made. Ice is used in the preparation and preservation of foods. It must be pure or else the food will be contaminated. It must be pure or else sickness will result! Nothing that you can do will so effectively safeguard the health of the kiddies and the folks at home as to insist on pure ice. Peoples Ice Co. Phone 81-259"

YOUR UNCLE SAM A THRIFTY PERSON AS THIS SHOWS

LOUISVILLE, KY., June 29.—Some of the economies practiced by Uncle Sam in these spendthrift days would make a thrifty housewife envious. The good old days in the army when the soldier was allowed to overdraw his clothing allowance without an explanation are past.

A "basted" pair of trousers, and half worn-out shoes are rejuvenated at the army camps and cantonments and made to serve again. Even the manes of army horses are scrupulously saved and sold to upholsterers.

Torn trousers and worn-out shoes must be produced before a like article in good order is issued. No limit is placed on the amount of clothing a man can get so long as he wears out that which is issued to him.

At Camp Zachary Taylor, near Louisville and at every other training center in the country, no condemned article is allowed to go to the scrap heap if some part of it can be salvaged and used to repair some other piece of equipment. No waste of materials about the camp is allowed to go unnoticed or unchecked.

Too many broken pieces of bread in a garbage can will bring to the commander of the unit a notice from the commanding general of the camp to have his cooks issue bread in smaller slices so that none will be wasted. The general has learned of the waste through daily reports laid out on his desk.

Every pair of shoes condemned as unfit for further use passes under eyes of skilled shoe makers in olive drab, drawn from the ranks. A surprisingly large percentage find their way back into the Quartermaster's stock to be reissued. Some of them are practically reconstructed.

A soldier wears the seat out of a pair of khaki trousers, and gets a new pair. The soldier-tailor in the shops of the condemnation and reclamation division finds another pair which have faded to about the same shade and replaces the missing seat. The garment itself goes back into store and is reissued for garrison wear.

As with trousers and shoes so with every piece of personal equipment issued to a soldier. Nothing is wasted, nothing is scrapped that possibly can be of use, and the scrap material itself is carefully conserved for sale.

All horses used by the army have their manes roached. White and grey hair is kept together while all sorrel, bay and black hair goes into another lot. Each kind of hair is also divided into two lots, that from southern horses and that from northern horses. Dark horses hair brings about seventy per cent more than light.

Southern horses have coarse heavy hair in the mane which is not so valuable as that from the finer haired northern type. Besides the condemnation and reclamation division is ceaselessly at work in every training center pushing a campaign of publicity, and many of Uncle Sam's soldiers when they go back to civil life will go back better business men because they have been trained to watch the little "leaks."

Market Report

Cotton Market

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 29.—An early decline on bearish weather and crop reports was followed by rallies in the cotton market today but the gains were not maintained with close, steady, net 7 points to 8 points higher. After selling at 25.16 October rallied to 25.45 or 15 points net higher and closed at 25.25.

The market opened steady at a decline of 18 points to an advance of one point. There was a bulge on covering but offerings soon increased. July sold out to 27.83 or 22 points net lower while December declined to 24.61, making a net loss of 19 points. Trading interests were good buyers on this setback however and prices rallied during the middle of the morning making net advances of 12 to 10 points.

Later fluctuations were irregular under realizing with near months relatively steady to the close. Private wires reported rain at Texarkana, Texas. There were also reports of rains at two or three points in Oklahoma and in the Memphis district. These conditions inspired the talk of probable rains in drouthy sections over Sunday. One private report indicated a conditions of $4.4 compared with $1 last month and another indicated that business was still restricted by price fixing uncertainties and that all sales for forward delivery were being made subject to revision.

New Orleans Cotton. NEW ORLEANS, June 29.—While there was considerable selling in the early trading in cotton today and again toward the close, the tone was uniformly steady throughout and at one time new crops went to a small net advance. The net change, however, was against values, closing prices being eight to 27 points under the last prices of yesterday.

Selling was based almost wholly on bearish expectation concerning the condition report next Tuesday. Soon after opening the trading months were 19 to 22 points under the close of yesterday. The early loss was soon recovered, and the new crop months moved up to a net advance of six to seven points. Late in the day a burst of selling caused a quick slump.

Official statements from Washington pointing to a more liberal use of low grades of spots were steadying influences but they did not have much effect on July. Locally spots were unchanged.

Grain Market

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 29.—Lower prices for corn resulted on account of improved weather conditions. The market closed unsettled 1/4 to 3/4 down. Corn finished 1/4 off to 1/2 advance, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a gain of 25 cents.

Relief from excessive heat in the southwest was shown and there were Kansas and Nebraska rain reports which induced considerable selling of corn. Besides, the indications pointed to general normal conditions throughout the coming week, instead of the ward spread of the hot 7 days which had been looked for. There was some belated covering in June oats, and that option closed higher.

Liberal shipments of meats made provisions average higher.

Table with columns: CORN, OATS, WHEAT, RYEBAR, SORGHUM, RICE, and sub-columns for various grades and months.

Chicago Produce. CHICAGO, June 29.—Butter, unchanged. Eggs, receipts 8,809 cases; unchanged. Potatoes, higher. Old receipts seven cars; Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota bulk 1.75@1.90; do sacked 2.00@2.10; new receipts, 50 cars; Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma sacked Triumphs 2.50@2.90; do white 2.50@2.75; Virginia barreled cobbler 6.50@7.00.

Fort Worth Livestock. FORT WORTH, TEX., June 29.—Cattle receipts 1,000; steady. Hives $7.50@16.75; stockers $7.00@10.25; heifers $7.50@10.00; cows $5.50@9.50; bulls $6.00@9.00; calves $7.50@14.25.

New York Stocks. NEW YORK, June 29.—Trading in stocks today and not get beyond the normal stage, the market bearing the many familiar aspects of a week end summary session.

Interest was wholly professional and concentrated in a very few issues, notably metals, oils and other shares of like speculative character. Extreme gains in these groups ran from one to two and a half points, with extremely large fluctuations in high grade stocks such as rails, United States Steels and the usual leaders.

ROME, June 29.—At a midnight mass for peace and the reestablishment of peace, charity and fraternity throughout the world Pope Benedict raised his voice in prayer in St. Peter's cathedral this morning. The pontiff, accompanied only by Archbishop Bonaventura Cerretti, secretary of the congregation for extraordinary ecclesiastical effects, went to the cathedral at ten o'clock last night to participate in the ceremonies.

ACCOUNT OF THE FIGHT AT CANTIGNY TAKEN FROM THE STARS AND STRIPES

The following report of the fight at Cantigny is from the Stars and Stripes, the daily paper published for the American soldiers in France.

Our troops made their first attack in force since America's entry into the war when, on Tuesday of this week, they stormed and captured the village of Cantigny and reduced the disturbing salient in the allied line northwest of Mondoville.

The battle was fought just a year to a day after General Pershing and his staff set sail from the harbor of New York as the vanguard of the bigest military expedition in American history. It was launched on the second day of the great German offensive of the Aisne.

The length of the line involved, in numbers engaged and in magnitude of the objectives contemplated, this battle, when compared with the vast battle developing to the east, was but a minor engagement. But within its limits it was a complete and striking success.

The attack won the description "brilliant" in the official French communiqué, and those who took part in it earned the hearty applause of the French officers, who were full of compliments for the work done by their pupils and allies from overseas in what they call the "American battle of Cantigny."

The village was taken, together with its defenses, by a force of 2,000 men in an attack pressed to a depth of a kilometer and a half along a front of two kilometers and a half. The Germans counter-attacked twice before the day was done and four times the next morning, but the counter attacks were fruitless. In the prisoner's pen when the day was done could be counted more than 200 captives, including three officers and several non-coms.

The importance of the little village of Cantigny can scarcely be measured by its size. Its fall scratched out an embarrassing salient and took from the enemy an ideal observation point from which, with its command of the valley, he could watch what was going on for miles beyond our lines and could direct his fire accordingly.

Furthermore it wrested from him a network of cellars, all linked together, particularly by a long tunnel under a chateau in the southern part of the village, which might be described as the citadel of Cantigny.

The American attack was made with all the new fangled instruments of modern warfare. Tanks, gas bombs, flame throwers, aeroplanes, smoke barrages, machine guns, automobile rifles and heavy trench mortar batteries played their part in the battle of Cantigny. What the Americans did not have of their own they borrowed from the French, for they were French tanks which led the way in the early dawn of Tuesday morning. French batteries shared with the Americans in preparing the path.

The attack was planned for weeks ahead and each man was rehearsed in his part he was to play, and when the great day came each movement was made within five minutes of the time scheduled that had been drawn up long in advance. It was at 6:45 in the morning that the first men advanced with a rolling barrage ahead of them and "Go to it, Yanks," as their battle cry.

In the anxious minds of those who watched there was just one question. Did the Germans know? Had they been prepared? For on Monday morning two of our boys who had known what was coming because they had been carefully rehearsed in their part of it had been taken prisoners in a trench raid. Had these boys been made to tell by the Hun's devilish methods of extracting information from unwilling persons in their power?

That was the question and in the complete surprise with which the onrushing Yanks were received when their barrage lifted could be read a resounding negative. In all the news won position that night, the engineers for the two who, no matter what the pressure, had told nothing.

That answer could have been guessed when 25 minutes after the first advance, the Americans were in possession of the village and the first message over the new wires came back: "We're here. Everything o. k." This message was confirmed by the first report which a swooping aeroplane brought back and the first cheery word of reassurance which came back on the leg of a carrier pigeon.

While the special detachments of flame throwers were mopping up the cellars of Cantigny and the main body of the troops was pressing on to the furthest objectives beyond the village itself, the first dejected string of prisoners began to arrive behind the American lines. They were later escorted by French cavalrymen to a barbed wire pens, from which, coms they would be withdrawn later for questioning.

There were youths among them and then many in their late thirties, men of fair physique, fairly well clad. The American attack had caught them un-ware and at a disadvantage because one regiment was relieving another at the time. They testified that they had been getting hot meals daily in the first lines and that coffee and canned sausages were the chief diet. They were mostly from the Russian front, and there was one who was no German at all, but a Russian Pole, who said that three months ago he, together with many of his people, had been drafted against their will into the German army. He fairly wept for joy when he found two Polish Americans among his captors.

Those boches in good shelters such as that afforded by the long tunnel which would have accommodated hundreds of men, fought stubbornly with machine guns, but the streets of Cantigny were full of the enemy who were dazed by the bombardment and only too anxious to be captured and have done with the whole business.

That at least was the experience of one informal participant in the attack. This was James Hooper, the war correspondent, who had intended to be a cool and detached observer of the attack, but who, in the excitement of the moment, threw discretion to the winds and went over the top with the rest of them—went over the top with the rest of them.

Tagging along behind the troops who had already entered the village and watching fascinated while a tank was firing its cannon at a corner building there, this journalist-on-the-loose was suddenly confronted by 20 Germans who came rushing towards him with hands held high.

"They evidently wanted to be taken prisoner at once," he said afterwards.

PARIS PAPERS DEMAND REPRISALS UPON GERMANS

By Associated Press. PARIS, June 29.—In an effort to organize the defense of Paris against German raiding airplanes, the aviation committee of the chamber of deputies will confer with Premier Clemenceau and recommend the pursuit of German machines which bombard the capital and the creation of three distinct defense zones. The first of these zones will be exclusively for cannon and airplanes, the next will be defended by small balloons and the third will be brilliantly lighted. Reprisals against German cities are demanded by the press.

Charging is not an especially complicated process, but it is an especially important one.

By proper charging, batteries are returned to their proper condition; by improper charging, their life is likely to be seriously shortened.

CARRYING CHEER INTO "NO MAN'S LAND"

Unarmed, Alone, Red Triangle Man Goes Out Under Shell Fire with Hot Drink for Fighters—Gas, Rats and Mud His Daily Lot, Yet He Sticks and Smiles.

PARIS, May 20.—Out in No man's Land seventy American soldiers were digging a new trench under cover of darkness, but the Boche was suspicious, and shells were falling. The hillside was pitted with new holes as the explosions punctuated the blackness. The soldiers laboring away in the night were tired and hungry. Their lieutenant came back in the trench, unscathed some steps into a dug-out concealed in the hillside, where he spoke to the occupant concerning the need of the trench-diggers. Soon this man went trudging up that shell-pitted hill carrying two buckets filled with steaming hot chocolate.

The searching shells, put over on suspicion to prevent just such strollers, burst around him, but the man with the chocolate reached the seventy trenchers and distributed his hot drinks, putting new heart and strength into the men, and they appreciated it as only weary men can, and more, because if there had been an enemy sortie at that time, the hot drink man would have been found without weapon to defend himself. For he saw the beginning of the road which was considered unsafe for travel by vehicles in the daytime. The investigators proceeded on foot over a path torn by shells and through a forest where trees of man's improvisation cunningly filled gaps left by nature.

The lieutenant who suggested that he take out the hot drinks told the story—just one of the incidents which have made the Red Triangle men welcome additions to the fringe of No Man's Land. This secretary is a big-hearted man who stuck to his dug-out there among the watching posts, to be of service to the soldiers. Asked by the correspondent if he wished to go to the front, he hesitated before replying that he did not care to have another man sent who might not be as strong as he and who could not afford to burn his underwear every time he changed.

IN THE STEEL HUT
This man held forth in a new type "Y" hut, a semi-circle of steel twelve feet in diameter, locked together at the edges to make an inverted trough six feet high and eight feet long. It is buried in the hillside, except for a narrow door at the bottom of some steps. It was crowded with American boys of the front line forces when the correspondent looked in. They were drinking chocolate, reading, writing letters to home or buying newspaper articles as the secretary had on sale.

The boys were eating big red apples, too, the gift of the International Apple Growers' Association, distributed free through the Y. M. C. A. No one was hurt in the war zone can comprehend how those boys in olive drab appreciated those American apples, devoured near enough the enemy's line to be tossed over to Fritz.

The dug-out from which the secretary sallied forth carrying hot drinks to the delvers of No Man's Land was only one of several inspected on a tour of the front line trenches made by three investigators who went to see for themselves how the boys from home were shaping up after months under fire. The findings were inspiring.

Wearing steel helmets and gas masks, the investigators left a headquarters village in the morning, proceeding five miles in a Red Cross ambulance over a road kept in good repair by men who worked by starlight. Shells whined far overhead, although sometimes the range was shortened to make them explode in the section traversed by the trio. A brush-screened shed served as a garage for the ambulance at the French Y. M. C. A. The room had four sides and its roof, once considered unsafe for travel by vehicles in the daytime. The investigators proceeded on foot over a path torn by shells and through a forest where trees of man's improvisation cunningly filled gaps left by nature.

Further on the path entered a wide ditch, deep enough to conceal standing men. Where the soil was loose the sides were retained by brush woven between stakes. In wet places there were walks of wood, but these did not keep one's feet above the trench mud, inextinguishable, insidious and able to manufacture itself at the least suggestion of moisture.

The supporting trench led into an advanced trench where soldiers were at their posts. The day was quiet, they said, and only at observation posts were sentinels stationed. Groups of men were at close intervals, ready with machine gun, rifle and bayonet. Piles of hand grenades and heavy boxes of ammunition guaranteed the Hun a hot reception.

Sitting upon the trench step was a poilu, sketching. An artist? Certainly; all the French are such instinctively, for yonder were others drawing. A flapping tent cloth before the entrance of a dugout carried a sign, a little to the right an actress of the Paris comedy or bodily caricature the Kaiser and his pillaging Boche.

"Screeching Shells Break Around the Man with the Chocolate"

AT A FRENCH Y. M. C. A. HUT
The trench led down hill, across a valley and into the ruins of a once thriving little city, now a mass of debris where no building had a roof or unbroken wall. But life was found in the Foyer du Soldat, the French Y. M. C. A. The room had four sides and its roof, once destroyed, had been replaced with a temporary covering heaped with stones to protect it from bursting shrapnel. It was a small room, ten by twelve feet.

There two poilus make chocolate, provide writing material and sell at less than cost little things needed by the soldier. Through the trenches the poilu comes day or night to this haven of warmth, refreshment, fellowship and a lighted candle. He wears a hat of steel, carries a gas mask, and has strapped the goggles and the beloved bidon. His canteen is the last thing he would part with. It is his wine cellar, perennial comfort to the poilu, but when he can get no wine, he fills it with chocolate at the Foyer.

Six poilus entered this Foyer while it was being observed. Each had a cup of chocolate, four took writing material, all asked for tobacco, of which there was none. They were French, and midway in their line was a Foyer had located in a dug-out. It was here that the American correspondent received a real thrill for among the colors department from the ceiling—the tricolor, the Union Jack, the Italian flag, the Union Star and the Stars and Stripes. It was a beautiful room because an undreamed-of spirit dwelt there, because our flag was there.

EAGER YOUNG AMERICANS
From a point near this last Foyer a communicating trench led to the front line where lookouts guarded their posts every moment. Dug-outs filled with men were convenient to the trench. When the sector was quiet the soldiers worked during the night, strengthening and extending their positions, and in the day they slept or tried to invent some recreation. And here, right in the red mouth of danger, the investigators found the boys from the United States. They thought that No Man's Land was something of a bore and were eager to make it undisputed French land. They waited because they must, but they were young to the game and confident of it.

Alert and undisturbed the American boys, placed the secret of the French trenches. They were ready for trouble. Their eyes were bright and clear, their skin fresh, and they were in form. Each wore a khaki colored steel hat of peculiar shape, held on by a strap under the chin. Each man in olive drab uniform had a dagger and a pistol fastened to his waist. There appeared to be an unusual attraction at one dug-out entrance down a narrow flight of stairs cut in the earth. More soldiers were crowded down into it. A closer inspection revealed the cause—on the entrance was the sign of the Red Triangle. It was the first Y. M. C. A. hut inspected in the front line. There were twenty or twenty-five men in the room, a fifteen by thirty feet room underground, the ceiling of steel supported here and there. Over all was the slope of a great hill. The room had a tiny, but a wireless, with a candle furnished one light. In the corner was a stove, on which steamed a large cauldron of chocolate from which two men filled the cups and canteens of the soldiers. There were tables at which other boys were writing letters, others that were to go out on a one-day journey. Some were reading papers a month old, but in a language and with a message wonderfully clear.

THEY THOUGHT OF HOME

Two husky youngsters, pistoled and daggered ready for action, were engaged in the warlike game of checkers. Finally one of these grim-visaged warriors tipped the checker board and explained, "Oh, checkers, Jim! Let's write to the folks at home." Which they proceeded to do, to the accompaniment of a continuous, deep-toned howl of heavy artillery in the rear and the rattling of the mitrailleuse aimed at a Boche avian which had offered itself as a target. For in the constant presence of sudden death, the suggestion and recollection of home pervaded the huts of the Y. M. C. A.

The secretary of that hut was a lawyer before he came over, teaching a wife and children while he offered a large salary. For in the constant presence of sudden death, the suggestion and recollection of home pervaded the huts of the Y. M. C. A.

The American boy had good company with this secretary for a friend. Possibly when the war is over and the lad has time to think about it he will want to write his appreciation to the man who preferred serving soldiers more than he hated rats, shell and hard work in a cave. As it was, the boys when asked what they thought of the Y. M. C. A. there answered, "This would be a hell of a place without it. With it we have a touch of home, sweet home."

Beyond this hut was encountered the steel one presided over by the secretary, who took the hot chocolate into No Man's Land under fire. Further on, in the debris of another town, in an underground section the Red Triangle was found in charge of a highly educated man who declared that for the first time in his life he was doing work which met a real need and taxed all his strength continually. From there the investigators went on through the narrow flight of stairs cut in the earth. More soldiers were crowded down into it. A closer inspection revealed the cause—on the entrance was the sign of the Red Triangle. It was the first Y. M. C. A. hut inspected in the front line.

There were twenty or twenty-five men in the room, a fifteen by thirty feet room underground, the ceiling of steel supported here and there. Over all was the slope of a great hill. The room had a tiny, but a wireless, with a candle furnished one light. In the corner was a stove, on which steamed a

THE DAILY GERMAN LIE

No. 8. A correspondent in Atlanta, Ga., writes to the Committee on Public Information: "There is a story circulating in this section to the effect that 1,400 men died of pneumonia at Camp Wheeler and that an army doctor, assisted by two Red Cross nurses, spread the infection. It is further stated that he had been detailed to give all the soldiers antipneumonia serum, but he gave them live pneumonia germs instead. Finally he fell sick himself, and when it was suggested that he should be given a nose out of his own stock he protested so frantically that they analyzed the serum and found out what it was. The story runs that they did not shoot him but merely gave him an injection of his own dope, and when they got it to him he said, 'Well, that ends me!'

The doctor's name is not furnished, but it is alleged that he had been one of the most prominent physicians in Macon, Ga., before he went into the army.

This is a perfect specimen of the sort of lie that was circulated in all parts of the country last winter concerning ill health and bad hospital conditions in the army. It is typical in the convincing details that it gives. It is a "good story" which loyal citizens would be tempted to repeat for the sake of its dramatic effect. It is completely untrue. The Surgeon General's office authorizes the statement that "there is nothing whatever in this absurd rumor. All the deaths from pneumonia that had occurred in Camp Wheeler from the day the troops moved in up to the present time do not amount to one-fifth of the number that are attributed by this invention to the crime of the anonymous doctor and his two Red Cross assistants. The pro-German purpose of such stories is obvious. They are designed to discourage enlistments, to arouse opposition to the war, to increase the anxieties of the soldiers' relatives, and to destroy the faith of the American people in their Government and its war work."

No. 9. A correspondent in Kingston, N. Y., reports a story that "A priest in one of the cantonments has written a letter saying that the only way he can get wine for altar services is to smuggle it in."

The German agent in America, as in all the other warring countries, is busily engaged in attempts to stir up every sort of religious quarrel in order to promote dissension. He circulates in this country untrue reports that Catholics are disloyal, that the Catholic Church is secretly pro-German, that the Kaiser has pledged himself to return to the Pope the Church's "temporal power," and so forth. At the same time the same agents put out other stories, equally untrue, to the effect that Catholics are being discriminated against by the United States Government and by the military and naval authorities in all branches of the service. Of these latter slanders the latest report is that a priest who has made an altar wine into camp is merely a new variation.

"entirely unfounded." He writes: "The question of the right, under section 12 of the selective draft act, to have and to use in military camps and military reservations, wine for sacramental and altar services, was submitted to the Judge Advocate General in September, 1917. Under date of September 4, 1917, the Judge Advocate General rendered his opinion in the matter. The concluding paragraph of which is as follows: 'It is therefore the opinion of this office that while the use of wine for sacramental purposes in the religious services in other camps, May 18, 1917, is within the broad letter of the language used, yet, in view of the religious life and history of the country, Congress could not have intended to deny to Catholic and other chaplains the right, under the rules of their respective churches, to purchase, retain and use wine in the places mentioned for sacramental purposes. Therefore, the act of so using wine, not being within the law, is not prohibited.' This ruling, obtained when the camps were opened, has been in force ever since. Consequently, no priest would have to 'smuggle in' wine for altar services."

No. 10. For some time past rumors have been circulating in all parts of the country to the effect that Washington is full of office jobs, "office jobs in bullet-proof jobs," and young men of draft age who have obtained non-combatant positions by means of political pull. These stories have recently taken the form of a newspaper article that has been widely reprinted. This article, giving specific instances of the alleged abuse, can be definitely answered.

After a broad announcement that the War Department has been "loaded with able-bodied young men of draft age who have secured bullet-proof jobs that exempt them from service at the front," the article continues: "The only one of Secretary Josephus Daniels' four sons in service is a second lieutenant in the naval quartermaster's department. The facts are these: Of Mr. Daniels' sons, one is 13 years old and one is 16 years old. A third, 19 years old, has passed his examination for entrance to the Naval Academy and is presently training for active service. The fourth son, 23 years old, the only one within the draft age, enlisted as a private in the Marine Corps and after serving a private in the corps for a year, won his promotion by competitive examination. All appointments of officers in the corps are made from the ranks, strictly on merit. Young Daniels enlisted as a private without his father's assistance and won his promotion in the same way. He is now a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps, stationed at Philadelphia, and training for active service. To criticize him as an office soldier in a bullet-proof job is to perpetrate a slanderous falsehood."

The article goes on: "The son of Secretary of Commerce Redfield is an assistant pay clerk in the Navy Supply Bureau, with rank of ensign. The facts are these: Redfield enlisted last summer in the naval reserve. He was made an ensign in the line, and after serving for a time in the enrollment office, he was assigned to duty on board a submarine destroyer. He had served there for two months when his superior officer reported him as particularly fitted for supply work, an important branch of the service which was in need of men. Admiral Mackenzie, chief paymaster of the Navy, investigated the records of a number of men, including Redfield, and ordered him transferred to the Pay Corps. Redfield still has on file a request for sea duty. He is an American man who stood high in his classes. He is especially valuable where he is, it is charitable to suppose that the editor who criticizes him as an office soldier in a bullet-proof job is the victim of a pro-German slander."

The article continues: "The nephew of Secretary Lansing is a captain in the Army War College. The son of Col. E. M. House is in an office of the State Department. The son of Senator Reed Smoot is a first lieutenant in the non-flying branch of the aviation service on Washington duty. As a matter of fact, Secretary Lansing's nephew is over the draft age. He tried to enlist and he was rejected because of defective eyesight. He took desk work because it was all that he could obtain under the Army regulations. Col. House's son-in-law is also over draft age. He is a civilian doing civilian work in the State Department. Senator Smoot's son, 31 years old, is in the non-flying branch of the aviation service, but he is subject to orders which exempt him from active service. None of these men are 'able-bodied young men of draft age who have secured bullet-proof jobs,' and the editor who lists them as such is deceiving his readers by slandering his Government, and aiding the enemy by printing a pro-German lie."

ROAD DISTRICT NO LONGER EXISTS WHEN BONDS PAID

By Associated Press
AUSTIN, TEX., June 29.—When the bonded debt of a road district has been finally paid off and discharged, such road district is automatically abolished, according to an opinion given by the attorney general's department today. The assumption by the county of the bonded debt of a road district relieves such district of the debt and it no longer exists as a body corporate for the purpose for which it was created, the opinion says.

BRAIN DRILLS FOR SOLDIERS AS WELL AS PHYSICAL

Associated Press—Mail Correspondent

LONDON, May 28.—American soldiers, who prize mental as well as physical fitness, are now being drilled in a "brain drill" recently introduced into the British army. Its purpose is to teach the British soldier to think quickly and to concentrate his mind on what he is doing.

An officer lines up a company and, as a preliminary to the brain drill, puts the men through some simple calisthenics.

"Now," he explains, "when I say 'Do this,' you'll do it; but if I say 'Do that,' you'll do that." He carefully illustrates the motion to be done and then the motions may be done.

SOFT DRINKLESS DAY EACH WEEK MAY BE IMPOSED

Wichita Falls may have to have one "drinkless" day a week in the near future, District Administrator B. F. Johnson stated, owing to the fact that the bottling works and other soft drink dispensers are using up their sugar allowance more rapidly than they should, and also that the sugar regulations are becoming more stringent as time passes. Manufacturers of soft drinks may use only 50 per cent of the sugar used during the summer months of 1917, while ice cream manufacturers may use 75 per cent of the 1917 sugar allowance. All dealers and manufacturers, as well as restaurant and cafe owners, must be issued certificates, permitting them to secure their sugar requirements. For sugar bought for all purposes except by the housewife certificates must be issued. The home ration for sugar is still 3 pounds per person per month, or 3 pounds for every ninety meals served by a boarding house or restaurant keeper. Two pounds for the town customer and 1 for the rural customer continues the sales limit.

Causes of Shortage.
The necessity for the sugar economy is explained in the following report issued by E. A. Peden, Federal Food Administrator for Texas.
"On account of an unexpected serious shortage, by reason of many sugar factories in France being destroyed in the recent German drive, direct losses through submarines, and shortage of crops in many countries, it is now necessary to put public eating places, manufacturers of bakery products and wholesale and retail dealers, handling sugar, on a certificate basis, and it will be necessary for all those mentioned to obtain from the state headquarters of the Federal Food Administration for Texas, certificates before they will be permitted to purchase sugar. These certificates will only be issued upon receipt of sworn statements, blank forms for which will be furnished by the Administration.
"As close an estimate as can be made indicates a reasonable expectation from all sources of about 1,600,000 tons of sugar for the United States consumption during the last half of the present year. This is based upon the maintenance of the present meager allied ration. An improvement in shipping conditions would of course relieve this situation as quantities of sugar are unavailable markets. The West Indian crop will be available in six months.
Must Reduce Consumption.
"This supply of 1,600,000 tons necessitates a considerable reduction in consumption. To provide three pounds of sugar per month per person for household use, to take care of our Army and Navy and to provide for the necessary preservation of fruit, milk, etc., will require about 1,500,000 tons of sugar for the six months. A household consumption of three pounds per person, together with the special allowance for home canning means a reduction of some 25 per cent in these branches of consumption from normal but it is nearly double the ration in the Allied countries and is regarded as ample for every economical use.
"In the plan of distribution which will now go into force, the less essential users of sugar—that is, confectioners, soft drink manufacturers, tobacco manufacturers, et cetera, will be hit the hardest. The Administration regrets intensely any action that will cause hardship to any individual, but the situation is due to the Germans, not to this Government. There are a number of substitutes available to the confectioners upon which no restrictions are placed."
If you believe in the United States Government, buy War Savings Stamps, Thrift Stamps and War Savings Certificates may be obtained at the National Bank of Commerce.

Books in the Kemp Public Library will be ready for circulation on Monday morning, Miss Polly Roberts, librarian, having returned to the city last week in time to complete preparations for bringing the advantages of the institution into broader use. Immediately the reading rooms have been in use since the opening of the building about two weeks ago and have already become very popular, especially with the children who keep the juvenile reading rooms filled. The 4000 volumes in the library, including reference books, fiction and juvenile works will be constantly added to, a large number of books having already been ordered, with new orders being sent in at frequent intervals. As soon as possible lists of books available at the library will be published.
In the meanwhile any information desired may be had by calling 906 or seeing the librarian and her assistant in person. The building is open from nine until twelve in the morning, from three until eight in the afternoon during the week, and from three until six on Sunday afternoon.

NEARLY TWO INCHES RAIN FELL ELECTRA SATURDAY MORNING

A good rain, averaging about an inch and three-quarters, fell in and around Electra early Saturday morning. The precipitation at Holliday amounted to about an inch, with a half inch at Byers and Petrolia. Good rains are reported at Quanah, Chillicothe, Vernon and Bowie, along the Denver, with light showers at Kirklind and Goodlett. No rainfall was reported along the Northwestern. The precipitation here was very light with high winds and electrical storm of Friday morning repeated Saturday. The rain at Electra was accompanied with strong winds which effected a little damage. Telegraph posts along the Northwestern were blown down by the wind which appears to have been general over this section of the state.

ALLENDALE NEWS.
Most farmers have finished harvesting. The yield will be very light this year.
Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Boalvin visited friends over near Iowa Park Sunday.
Mrs. R. F. Brown returned home Friday from a two weeks visit with relatives in Wellington, Texas.
Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Allen and family were out from Wichita Sunday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Ludolph.

relatives till Tuesday. He was accompanied home by his wife and daughter.
Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gwinn spent Saturday and Sunday in the city visiting relatives.
Every one is kept quite busy these days trying to keep cool. Old settlers say this is the hottest weather they ever experienced in this country.
There are numerous ways in which you can help the Government in these war times. One of the most important of these ways is by practicing economy and depositing the money saved in a strong bank such as the National Bank of Commerce. 4 per cent compound interest paid. 41-1tc

I cannot follow in all their sequence and to their denouements all of the incidents that were so constantly coming up in our experiences; they appeared as things happen in life and not in books, in that casual, detached and unrelated way in which life weaves its mysterious romance, without the regard for unity that enslaves the artist, largely because, I suppose, our vision is not broad enough in its scope to embrace the whole of the action. In romances the war, or the earthquake, or the calamity, is an incident in the life of the individual; in life itself the incidents were in incident, and usually a most insignificant and pitiable incident of the war, or whatever the calamity might be. Indeed, the little difficulties followed so swiftly one on another that there was not always time to follow them to their end. It was not a woman in trouble or the latest American arrival to get out of the country, there seemed to be always a British Red Cross ambulance to be concerned about. No sooner had the Duchess of Sutherland been released than three Englishmen, belonging to the ambulance band serving at the railroad station at Schaerbeck, disappeared. We found them eventually where most of those who disappeared during all the time in Belgium were to be found, at the Kommandantur. The three young men, of course, were charged with spying. The Red Cross ambulance had remained in Brussels and had nurses and attendants under the assurance that they would be respected in accordance with the Hague Conventions. The phrase, however, was beginning to lose some of its magic, and when the three were arrested, I tried to arrange not only for their release but for their departure by way of Holland. The German physician who was then at the Red Cross, a Dr. Sturtz, wished to send them to Liege; when objection was made—Liege being more directly in the route to Germany than to Holland—the doctor produced a written order in German and signed by Mr. Wyatt, the young Englishman at the head of the ambulance, in which he expressed his willingness to go to Liege. Dr. Sturtz insisted on this. Wyatt was young and in a difficult position; he could not read German and not only had he not known what he was signing, but he had signed it under threats of the Germans. I pointed all this out for Dr. Sturtz's benefit, and argued that it was not only unfair but in most cases illegal to sign a man to a signature of which he had no knowledge. The point escaped the German mind and for the time I could obtain no decision.

The Germans Discussed Things. The Germans, indeed, had a policy, not impractical, one must admit, of preferring to discuss the shortcomings of others rather than their own. When I went to see them they always introduced some other disagreeable topic before I could selfishly mention my own; they always had some complaint at hand, usually about an American or the Legation or one of our English proteges.

At that moment when I would go to see the visit of the secretary of Legation to Louvain they preferred to discuss. They were beginning to feel the reaction from that monstrous horror, though they were slow to realize it as a monstrous horror themselves. One young officer then temporarily in Brussels, remarked to me that the chair was not of great importance, and that he failed to see why so much ado was being made about it. "After all," he said, "nothing of great value was destroyed." I spoke of the library and the vision of the old priest bursting into sobs as he tried to articulate the word "bibliothèque" but he said that there was little of real importance in that. I do not mean to write unkindly about him; he was in reality not bad at heart, but always really and even anxious to do favors and little helpful deeds. He had come to see me in an effort to get Gibson and Poussette and Bulle to testify that they had seen civilians firing at Louvain. Several other officers called on the same mission, among them von S—, who in civilian life was a banker, and he was so much a civilian always that even his uniform did not militarize him. He was a man of education and culture and he felt the stigma on his hand that Louvain had indelibly placed there. The younger military men among them did not have much concern about it; they were forgetting it and awesoming on visions like it. A Talleyrand said "on peut militariser un civil, mais on ne peut pas civiliser un militaire." ("One can make a soldier out of a civilian, but one cannot make a civilian out of a soldier.") I had not the slightest intention of making any such evidence to go back for the simple reason that the young men had no means of knowing who it was that was firing and that even if civilians had fired it would not be surprising. That which had been going on for three days was enough to make any civilian fire, if he had anything to fire with, and his firing three days after the horror had begun could not throw the slightest light on the question of the initial responsibility. I told them that I should have to ask, in any event, the advice of the Government at Washington, and von Lancken, with his knowledge of the way of diplomats, trained or untrained, remarked that the matter of the request I would probably so word it as to suggest the answer desired. I should not wonder if he were correct in that suspicion; at any rate, the testimony was not forthcoming. And yet, not all of the visits we received were so prolific in difficulties. When they had not to do with some flagrant and exasperating injustice, or some revolting cruelty, they might be of that minor quality that was amusing in a cynical way. Some Frenchman—Talleyrand is but a name, since the witty French sayings of the last century are attributed to him—has said of some deed that had been referred to as a crime: "It is worse than a crime; it is an infamy." Thus we had the story of a certain chateau near Brussels who tried to be polite to the German General who had quartered himself and his staff in her chateau, thinking it the best of it. She asked the General:

"At what time will you have dinner?" "Never mind about that," he said, "I have already given orders." And its pendant, that of the gouvernante in a chateau in the Ardennes where German officers were quartered one morning an officer drew his revolver and said to the gouvernante: "I have a notion to shoot you."

"Why?" she asked. "Oh, simply because I feel like shooting some one today." Then she replied calmly: "Why don't you shoot yourself?"

No More Flour. When we got home that September evening from Louvain, Gibson and de Leval were waiting for me to say that during my absence word had come that there was at least no more flour in Brussels. The situation as regards food had grown more and more desperate and now it had come to be acute. It was not a surprise; ten days before we had made the first effort to meet the situation that was now upon us. Mr. Daniel Heineken, the American who had so efficiently organized the relief for the stranded Americans, had been in to confer with me and, on the twelfth of September, to be exact, since the date is not without interest, he and Mr. Millard K. Shar, an American engineer resident in Brussels, had gone to see certain members of the German administration to discuss possible means of getting relief. A simple fact will express the whole difficulty of the situation; in normal times of peace Belgium must import from four-fifths to five-sixths of her total food supply; the most intensively populated, the most intensively cultivated country in the world, this was the best she could do. Now, ravaged by war, with crops ungathered and industry dead, the need was greater and the ports of entry were closed by England on the sea. We had heard, however, that there were certain stores of wheat in Antwerp, belonging to the Belgian Government, and Laygnon, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, had contrived to get a letter through to me saying that the wheat, or a part of it, would be sent through to Brussels if we could contrive the means. The excellent Heineken had been busy at work and he assured us that the Facha would consent to its coming. Heineken, indeed, could work marvels. He had large financial interests in several countries, Germany among them; he could speak German, and he could be addressed as a Herr Doktor himself, if necessary, since he had a degree of Ph.D. from a German university. He was a member of the Comité Central d'Alimentation de Secours, and he had worked untiringly to aid in the work of charity, a work that so soon became a work of justice.

There may have been in Brussels men in and out of that committee who suspected what the wheat would be used for, but I doubt if any one fully realized it. I am sure that I did not; in my house breakfast was brought up punctually, luncheon and dinner were announced at the usual hours; that was the least of my concerns. I had never known what it was to be hungry in all my life, or to know what it would be like, never known what it was to go hungry; the appetite of the golf links, of course, was but one of the many pleasures of the experience—and there was a waiting table below. Remember the words of the prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread," had never had for me. I fear, other than a poetic meaning, my own attitude toward food was innocent of the death of the dog for whom nourishment is provided, though it was not as gracious or as grateful as that of a lap dog, since I did not even know it was not prepared to somewhat fastidious taste. I speak of my own attitude in this respect as a confession and as an illustration, too, since it was the attitude of nearly every one that I knew, on both sides of the Atlantic. The war was soon to bring us face to face with great elementary facts of human existence; we were, as Kitchener said, to taste the salt of life. And there was this phenomenon; the rich were as badly off as the poor, for not all their money could buy the old prayer was, to acquire significance, it was to become the principal concern of each moment, not only for us, but vicariously for seven millions and ultimately for ten millions of people. So that now I never see anyone idly crumpling bread at dinner without a shock. But we had no notion then, and we had had, we never could have accomplished what we did; the monstrous task would have appalled us. Just then that autumn evening it meant merely that there were certain stores of wheat in Antwerp; there were stores, the German right flank from the rear—a thing that your military man would say could not be done—that is, go around by Maestricht into Holland and enter Antwerp from the north. And as he was going this way we decided that it was best to take advantage of the opportunity and send out the two old ladies with him. We had been concerned about them, there was too much danger in the air; no one ever knew. The recollection of the mother of Madame Pouillet, who, at eighty years of age, had walked all night all the way from Louvain into Brussels, was ever present and too suggestive; and there were always those horrid tales of what happened whenever the Germans were checked anywhere—for Belgium not only suffered from German victories but paid the penalty of all their (torries, too. We would be easier with the dear old ladies away, and as we were to see them go. They had been so fine, so brave; never a word of fear, playing cards in their room, keeping away from the windows lest the German planes should see them, and they were to be blown up by bombs from some air craft the pieces fly that way; taking their walks and drives—and disappointed when their trip to Paris—like the Germans.

And so, it was agreed that Gibson should go with them in the motor to The Hague and leave the three there, for sending through the wheat, they join them and escort them to London. We asked for the passenger-schienen.

Misunderstandings Grow. While we were engaging in the first negotiations for the revictualing of Belgium another curious and complex series of events were mounting to the climax that had been inevitable from the beginning; the duel d'esprit between the Bourgeois and the Germans was rapidly approaching an acute phase. When Max's affiche asking his "Chers Citoyens" to make one further sacrifice, to take down their flags and to await the hour of reparation, was covered, the night of the white paper by the military authorities, this did not close the incident, for Max was arrested by the German authorities. The Commandant of the place, Major Buxy, had sent a note to the Hotel de Ville with four German soldiers and informed him that he was under arrest.

In the meantime "I submit," Max replied, and so went on gallant home to be informed that he was a prisoner and would be sent to Germany. Max bowed. He said: "I cannot continue to discharge my duties to the end, but I must submit. However, I have the satisfaction of having done my duty. You told me at the beginning that you wished to avoid trouble and difficulty in Brussels; I know the temper of my people better than you do, and if I had not interposed myself between you and the population of Brussels, should have had blood shed here. Therefore, I cannot regret having done what I did. I am glad, too, that up to this time when my authority ended, the population of Brussels should have had no blood shed here. Now that you have made me a prisoner, I find a certain relief in the fact that I shall not be responsible for what occurs here."

General von Lutwitz started; he had not foreseen such a result, and he said, "Wait a minute," and went away. At the end of a quarter of an hour he came back, looking somewhat flushed, extended his hand and said: "You are free."

The story got abroad; Max expressed the resistance of the splendid, proud old city; people could liken him to St. Michel, the city's patron saint, with the dragon beat down under his feet. Just as he stands forever on the tower of the Hotel de Ville. The town had suddenly fallen into admiration; everywhere there were little plaster busts and pictures of the Burgomaster, growing very popular, too popular, I feared, in my walks through the charming old streets that twisted about in the lower town; for to an old head used to politics, which are everywhere the world over the same in essence, this phenomenon had a meaning and a danger too apparent.

Brussels Ordered to Pay. On the afternoon of the twenty-fifth of September, going from the Gare du Nord to the Gare du Midi, in the Galerie Borthier to the Galerie St. Hubert, where there was more life and movement, I saw, in the rue de l'Escauyer a new affiche, and stopped to read it.

The German Government ordered the payment of bonds de requisition, having good reason to suppose that the city would voluntarily pay the whole of the war contribution that had been imposed upon it. It was only on that condition that the exceptional treatment which the city of Brussels had enjoyed could be all the other cities in Belgium in which the bonds de requisition would not be paid until after the conclusion of peace. Now that the city of Brussels had enjoyed the right to remain one more week only and will forward no bonds de requisition will be paid by the government treasury.

THE GOVERNOR. Baron von Lutwitz, Major General. Brussels, 24 September, 1914. The announcement of the German Government was that was not perhaps instantly seized by the small group that so lightly read it. They did not, I fangled, all of them at least, feel its full presentiment of impending evil—hurried home. On the 20th August Burgomaster Max and General von Jarosky had some parliaments as to the millions of francs which the German had demanded from the city. Max had declared as he had told von Jarosky in our presence, that he could not procure the entire sum. However, he agreed to try to procure a million and a half down and within eight days following eighteen millions and a half; and he tried to induce von Jarosky to reduce the sum demanded to twenty millions. Von Jarosky said that he had no power to do this; he promised to use his influence with the superior officers of the army to have it done, or at least to reduce the millions had been paid. The contribution, as it was so politely termed, war having ended, of so many captives were to see them go. They had been so fine, so brave; never a word of fear, playing cards in their room, keeping away from the windows lest the German planes should see them, and they were to be blown up by bombs from some air craft the pieces fly that way; taking their walks and drives—and disappointed when their trip to Paris—like the Germans.

The General also agreed, at the request of the Burgomaster, that the night days the German authorities would make no further requisitions of food or provisions, either in the city or in its faubourgs or from the inhabitants. This agreement was drawn August 24th, signed by von Jarosky and the Burgomaster, and witnessed by Grabowski, the Consul Aulique of the German Legation. At the very next day a German General came to Brussels, and the Burgomaster that he would not serve this convention unless Max made it possible for him to bring at once to Brussels from St. Trond, a place northeast of Brussels, some stores of food and provisions that he had there. Max wrote a protest to von Jarosky insisting that the convention had been regularly signed by the German government.

And again, on the 27th, two days after the agreement made by von Jarosky to the effect that there would be no more requisitions for eight days, a superior officer sent by a General charge of an army fifty kilometers from Brussels, came to the Hotel de Ville and ordered Max to furnish him with Major Buxy, head of the garrison at the Hotel de Ville with four German soldiers and informed him that he was under arrest.

In the meantime Max had succeeded in obtaining a respite of thirty days for the payment of the fifty-five million francs. It had been decided among the delegates of the various communes (Greater Brussels comprised fifteen communes, each with its Burgomaster) but the Burgomaster of the old history Brussels had always been regarded as the chief authority, and he had insisted that the Commune of Brussels would pay twenty millions and the other communes thirty millions, divided among them proportionally to their population. The city—that is, the Commune of Brussels proper—made its payment regularly and when the thirtieth of September came, the city was only a million four hundred thousand francs left for the city to pay. The suburbs communes had not succeeded in making their thirty millions, and the Commune of Brussels was obliged to press the funds necessary to pay its part of the other communes.

On the 26th of September Baron von Lutwitz, the official set of Brussels, followed the example of M. Max wrote to M. Dufaure, the Director of the Deutsche Bank in Brussels, that the certificates of 100 francs, which were only 50 francs in value, should be accepted by the Governor General's publicatio.

When I returned to the Legation von Lutwitz was waiting there to see me. He had a letter from the Mayor of Brussels, which was discussing the measures that they had to take in view of a situation that was growing more and more alarming; oil difficult to obtain, the gas plant and the electric light plant which belonged to the city would soon have to cease the production because coal was grown scarce; the bakeries could no longer bake the bread; it was difficult to get coal to Brussels, the railways were taken by the German authorities for their own transport; the canal going down to Charleroi was being repaired and was no longer navigable; horse wagons, all had been requisitioned; only means of transport that remained were the tramsway, which would carry only our interurban; the city fathers were discussing all these questions and how they could be remedied. The Mayor of Brussels had ordered the Burgomaster to report to the Military Governor, von Lutwitz, and he was informed that he had been relieved from his functions as Burgomaster and that he would be sent to a fortress in Germany.

Greater Vitagraph's remarkable silent drama which will be seen Monday at the Gem Theater on Monday. A lucky shot wins for Duncan, as one of

TRIANGLE FEATURE AT THE GEM TUESDAY

Marian Emilen, the young authoress involved in the mysterious death of Farnum Walton, the celebrated illustrator, may count herself fortunate in having a powerful political friend, who she might find herself languishing in prison, a victim of the police dragnet. Miss Emilen was observed with Walton at the notorious Schloss cabaret the night of Walton's death. She was seen to start suddenly from his table toward the door leading to the street. A telephone message halted her. From that moment until the moment she was apprehended by the police her movements were mysterious. She was seen running through the streets the early part of the morning after the murder. The police seized her and placed her under detention. Then George Hamilton, the powerful politician, took a hand in the case. Absolutely convinced that Miss Emilen was innocent of the death of the illustrator, his mantle of protection was spread over the captive, and brought her assurance and calm. "Who Killed Walton?" Triangle's gripping mystery photoplay, contains this vivid, intensely dramatic action. That sterling portrayer of character roles, J. Barney Sherr, plays the role of this politician with a big heart and fine intelligence. Mary Mersch, former Keystone comedy favorite, plays Marian Emilen, the lead.

"I never felt better in my life than since taking the first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I had a bad case of indigestion and bloating and tried all kinds of medicine. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is all and more than is claimed for it. On my recommendation our postmaster's wife is using it with good results. It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and always the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—Mack Taylor and druggists everywhere." adv.

TRUTH!

In the annals of American History, is a "Cherry Tree" story that has ever influenced our opinion of George Washington. The incident was but a trifle in the early life of a busy, prominent man. It is an example of how trifles can influence our daily lives—and how a reputation for TRUTH will remain unchanged through the years. TRUTH is the backbone of our advertising—we are careful to allow no over-estimates of quality or value. Rather, we under-estimate the goodness of our merchandise in our ads. No salesperson is permitted to misrepresent anything—the TRUTH must sell the goods. For TRUTH begets confidence and only through keeping the confidence of the public can we grow and prosper.

BARWISE SCHOOL DISTRICT OVERSUBSCRIBES QUOTA

N. A. Monroe, who conducted the sale of the W. S. S. Friday, June 28, wishes to thank the school trustees for the co-operation and the manner in which they handled their district in the sale of the W. S. S. The trustees of this district had made a house to house canvass previous to June 28 in behalf of the W. S. S. and by doing so had every family in their district represented on Friday afternoon at the school house. Their quota being $2890, same was oversubscribed $660. There is a big per cent of the families in this district tenants with their crops at present burned up, therefore, I consider that they deserve a great deal of credit for over-subscribing their quota as they did. N. O. MONROE.
