

REPORT OVERTHROW OF GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Peace Treaty Is Ratified Today

LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL BE INAUGURATED AT MEETING IN PARIS ON FRIDAY, JANUARY 16

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The treaty of Versailles, making peace between Germany and the victorious allied powers, was put into effect at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon by the exchange of ratifications.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The putting of the league of nations into being, which will be one of the immediate consequences of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Versailles, will occur in Paris at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of Friday, Jan. 15, the supreme council decided today.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PARIS, Jan. 10.—After more than five years Europe was to find peace today.

At 4:00 o'clock this afternoon, in the clock room at the French foreign office, the treaty of Versailles, formally ending the state of war between Germany and the allies, was to be finally ratified and declared effective.

Delegates early today were putting the final touches to the preparations. Latest indications were that Hugh Wallace, the American ambassador, may be present at the ceremony, although the United States will not be a party to the signing. All the allied powers have been invited to attend the exchange of ratifications, but only the 14 nations which have ratified the Versailles pact will sign. This, it was supposed, leaves the way clear for Wallace to attend if he wishes. It was understood, however, he still was awaiting instructions from Washington early today.

The procedure in today's ceremonies, it was understood, will be as follows:

At 4:00 o'clock the German and allied representatives will meet in the French foreign office where Baron Kurt von Lersner and Herr von Simson will sign the Versailles pact. The German representatives will be accompanied by the sinking of the Scapa Flow fleet.

Next the various nations will file ratifications of the Versailles pact. The French cabinet expires January 17 and desires to leave the scene with a clean conscience. The new cabinet, it was believed, will wish to adopt new policies on many questions and the present government does not wish to leave it hampered by unfinished business.

The Fiume agreement was said to provide that Fiume and Zara shall be free ports under control of the League of Nations with Serbian control in the extremity of each city, giving that country access to the sea. A portion of the Adriatic coast will be neutralized, the Serbians guaranteeing treatment to the Italian inhabitants.

Italy receives Itria and several strategic islands but agrees to limit her sea and land armaments in these possessions.

The present peace conference, it was understood, will end with the resignation of the French cabinet, although the British and Italians probably will continue in Paris for organization of the new conference. Premier Lloyd George has been mentioned as president of the next conference, but this plan, it was understood, finds little approval in French circles, the French clinging to their right to the presidency and to Paris as the seat of the conference.

The British delegation yesterday gave up its quarters in the Hotel Astoria. The Italians in the Hotel Astoria VII now are the only delegates retaining their original quarters. The Italian delegation yesterday gave up its quarters until the fate of Fiume is announced formally.

SENATORS NOW WAIT TO HEAR FROM VOTERS

Divided on Peace Treaty and Confused by Developments at Recent Banquet

MAIL IS EXPECTED SOON TO VOICE PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Meanwhile Talk of a Compromise Continues With Little Prospect of Success

By L. C. MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Confused and badly divided in parties over the issue raised by the conflicting positions of President Wilson and William J. Bryan on the peace treaty, senators today were awaiting to hear from the country.

Within a few days it is expected senatorial mail will begin to show whether the people favor Bryan's demand that Democrats yield on reservations or Wilson's insistence that the treaty go into the campaign.

Meanwhile, talk of a compromise continued today to an extent which surprised those senators who believe there is no hope of getting one. These members pointed to the statements of Senator Hitchcock, for the Democrats, and Senator Lehman, for the "aid reservationists," as proof that a compromise is out of the question.

Senator Hitchcock said: "The President's letter set the limit of compromise as 'interpretative reservations.' Democrats never intended to go any further than interpretative reservations. They do not now intend to go any further."

Why News? Yield. They never did intend and never will yield upon the question of repudiating our obligation under article 10.

Lehman said: "All talk of 'interpretative reservations' as the basis of compromise is idle. The reservations must be vital. We cannot yield upon the matter of accepting an obligation under article 10."

Hitchcock did not speak for all the Democrats, nor did Lehman speak for all the Republicans. Within each party there is a decided split. But the fact which seems to grow clearer daily is that there never has been, is not now, and never will be any possibility of getting 44 votes for a compromise, which President Wilson would accept.

Some Democrats appeared today to be in the position of supporting both Wilson and Bryan. This apparent paradox was explained this way, however. Most Democrats agree with Bryan that the treaty ought not to be injected into the campaign. But they also agree with Wilson that it must not be scuttled.

The Republican split is largely due to Senator Lodge's attitude of accepting Wilson's challenge to make the treaty a campaign issue. Many Republicans frankly regard the treaty as "dynamite" in a campaign. They think Lodge ought to go further than he has in trying to get together with the Democrats, ratify the treaty, then let Wilson reject it if he wants to and accept the responsibility before the country.

SOCIALISTS ARE SAID TO BE MASTERS OF THE SITUATION; GENERAL STRIKE IS DECLARED

BRUSSELS, Jan. 10.—Travelers from Germany reaching here today brought unconfirmed reports that the German government has been overthrown. It was reported that the Socialists were masters of the situation and that a general strike had been declared throughout the territory not under allied occupation.

The Brussels report of a German government overthrow are not confirmed from any other source and it may be noted that the dispatches themselves carry their own qualifications, emphasizing the lack of positive information.

If it should prove true that there has been a new uprising in Germany it would appear to have been deliberately timed to coincide with the plan set for putting the treaty of Versailles into effect and creating a state of peace between Germany and the allied powers.

News dispatches from Germany are ordinarily at least 24 hours in reaching this country and the latest messages from Berlin received Friday bore Thursday's date. The messages indicated some unsettledness in labor conditions, particularly in the vicinity of Essen and in the Ruhr industrial basin, but the unrest reported did not appear to be of unusual significance.

The present German government is a coalition one, with strong representation of the Majority Socialists, who have been working in harmony with the representatives of the other parties admitted to the ministry. The present premier, Gustav Bauer, is a Socialist, as also is Friedrich Ebert, the president.

Mrs. Theodore Cory, Who Writes Novels as "Winifred Graham," Now in This Country and Ready to Think a Marriage Bureau Might Be a Very Good Thing.

By Ethel Thurston

SOMETHING has got to be done about it—that is the impression one gets. If you ever read a heap of lonesome letters you might join in this belief yourself. If you were the mayor of a big city and received appeals to find wives for lonesome men in far places you would begin to understand. If you looked over New York, for example, the town which "The Great Desire" calls "The City of the Successfully Single," you would get another slant. And if you heard that awful phrase, repeated in all parts of the world, "superfluous women," you might really get busy.

It is made frankly plain that curtailment of marriage is frowned upon by nations that lost heavily in man power during the four years and a half of war. All these governments view the "surplus woman" problem with anxiety.

Recently the little republic of Uruguay announced an offer of $200 to every new bride, so anxious is that country with a population of only about five persons to the square mile, to populate her rich and fertile lands. War worked havoc with Uruguay's population, too, immigration being at a low ebb during the war, while her young men left constantly for the European battlefields, many of them never to return.

In France, the government is urging women to bear more children, but how can France, with her large number of fine young marriageable sons now dead, expect to increase her population very considerably without either importing marriageable men or suggesting that her women embrace polygamy?

Problem of "Superfluous" Women

Most English visitors to these shores will give cheerful accounts of how their government is adjusting this and that problem created by war's necessities, but ask them what England intends to do with her two million surplus women, and let their cheerfulness of manner give way to a blank stare, while they answer, "I really do not know."

This puzzling question today is engaging the attention of half the world.

Perhaps the solution of this gigantic problem may be found in the suggestion put forth by Mrs. Theodore Cory, the well known English novelist who writes under the name of Winifred Graham.

"Miss Graham" has to her credit 35 books of fiction, therefore, one readily understands how she can be an authority on questions of romance and marriage, particularly as her own marriage, which has lasted 13 years, has been so very happy. "I wonder, if every happily married woman knew the business of a matchmaker?" asked this beautiful and interesting young woman, who arrived in this country recently for a short visit. "I have not only the instincts," she frankly admitted, "but I do believe I could qualify for an official position of matchmaker. I have had

Does the World Need a "Marriage Bureau"?

Winifred Graham, British Novelist, Who Sees Danger in the Great "Superfluous Woman" Problem, and Has Heard the Cry of Lonesome Men, Thinks That Official Matchmaking Might Be Tried.

When they come from far places to give each other the "once over," or really to make a bargain, why not have the thing happen in the official presence?

Yes, everything is all very nice and comfortable in this girls' club in London, but think of girls rocking all by themselves—playing pool with themselves, perhaps dancing with themselves in the evening! Wouldn't you, Miss America, get awfully lonesome in such a scene?

some success along this line among my friends, for I think it is quite true that a woman who is married and is happy longs to see her girl friends as pleasantly established in life.

"Oh, dear no, I have no ambition to become known as the international matchmaker, as you suggest," laughed Mrs. Cory. "That would be a gigantic job, wouldn't it now?"

"But seriously, I do believe that an International Marriage Bureau might become a most useful institution. I have given this considerable thought at times, because you see I became very much interested in the Mormon question. I wrote a novel on it. I have no patience with Mormonism and its tenets. I do not think plural wives or plural husbands make for the highest happiness or for the best development of humanity.

Consul as Cupid's Aid

"So... why not an International Marriage Bureau, where young men and women, who have no means of meeting and who may live a world apart, may find their perfect mate, through these means of communication?"

"I believe that such a plan could be worked in connection with the consular service of the different countries," explained Mrs. Cory.

"People go to their consuls with all sorts of requests. If their ambition is to be presented at court they hunt up the embassy; if they are seeking light on the integrity and character of someone with whom they wish to do business, perhaps or for some other reason, they look up the consul. Now, why shouldn't marriage, which is by all odds the most important institution, be aided through some such well developed channels of information.

"If such a plan were ever adopted women should be appointed as assistant consuls and put in charge of this work, for women are much more sympathetic, I think, and also they have a keen intuition that would be most valuable in a work of this sort.

"For example, a young man in your great western country or on the broad plains of Western Canada, Australia or some South American country, finds it difficult to meet the girl he would like to marry, and the girl who would be willing to share the loneliness of an isolated ranch or mine or pioneer railroad building or other development, he could write to the country from which he would like to choose a wife and make inquiries.

"I suppose it would be necessary for him to send his photograph and swear to the statement of facts about his character and responsibility. The girl could do the same. Even in normal times there are young men in one part of the world who would like to marry if they met the right girl, and girls in another part, equally anxious to have a home of their own if the right man chanced to come along.

"The whole question of matrimony is in getting the right mate. Now, I can think of nothing more noble than in bringing two young people together who are going to live happily ever after," said this young enthusiast on the subject of marriage.

"The very fact that marriage bureaus have been patronized very largely by old and young, rich and poor, by all sorts of people, shows that human beings are just human beings. Under government supervision such bureaus, I believe, could render valuable service.

"Governments have bureaus for giving free advice on animal plagues, agricultural development, medical subjects and business prospects in foreign countries, so why not a bureau which will deal with the basis of all life and enterprise?"

"Referring to the large number of surplus women in England, which is around two million, Mrs. Cory voiced the opinion, though she said she was a high churchwoman herself, that divorce should be made somewhat easier in England.

Simplify Divorce Laws

"The divorce laws are very hard," she said. "The person bringing the divorce complaint must charge brutality or adultery. People of good breeding, who, because of temperament or some other reason simply cannot get along together, shrink from bringing such charges before the public. A person who becomes involved in such public proceedings in England is not so highly thought of after. So people go on living apart for years, sometimes till death claims one or the other, and then often the one left marries again.

"If people cannot live happily together it seems a pity to drag out such an existence.

Don't it? I know a titled gentleman of high position in England who has been separated from his wife for a quarter of a century. Now, if these men who are living apart from their wives could be released by the courts from their unfortunate matrimonial position, this action would release a number of men for the matrimonial market, wouldn't it?"

"Why certain people marry is one of the mysteries of life. I recall a most curious kind of engagement which existed during the war. This young girl, an acquaintance of mine, beautiful, a daughter of rich and socially powerful people, carefully reared, confided to me recently that she had been secretly engaged to her father's chauffeur. She said her parents do not know to this day of their engagement. She told this young man, she said. But shortly after they became engaged he went to France. After the war he returned to England and married a workman's daughter. When the girl learned that he had jilted her it broke her heart. This is an instance where if these young people had married the marriage doubtless would have ended disastrously.

Happiness in Clubs

"I believe the great army of unmarried women in England as a rule are not particularly unhappy. England is a great place for clubs. There are working girls' clubs and clubs for students. During the war women became accustomed to living together in barracks in France and in training camps in England. They derive great comfort and pleasure from this mode of living and the association it gives.

"There have been, of course, heaps of marriages since the close of the war. But I believe a man is much more dependent on a woman for comfort and happiness than a woman is dependent on a man.

"They still talk of taxing bachelors in England, but I do not think this is practicable. It would appear as an infringement on personal liberty. Now, with a government marriage bureau marriages would be optional. No man would be forced into matrimony to escape a heavy government tax, and young people who were consciously seeking a mate and a home of their own and the charm and independence and dignity that come to a woman or man happily married, could, I believe, in this way approach Romance, through federal aid, without losing self-respect."

Malaria Germs in Winter

MALARIA has a typical seasonal occurrence, with little or no appearance during the winter months. Whether the germs of this disease pass the winter in the bodies of human beings or of mosquitoes, or both, has been the subject of much discussion.

A recent Public Health Bulletin by H. B. Killeman, reports extensive investigations carried out in Mississippi from February to June, when a search for anopheles mosquitoes disclosed as eggs, larvae or pupae, and led to the conclusion that only the female insects hibernates.

More than 3000 insects were dissected and examined and were found not to harbor malarial parasites; whereas out of 1184 human beings examined 492 were found to be carriers of these germs. Hence the opinion of most previous students of the subject was confirmed, viz. that man and not the mosquito is responsible for perpetuating malaria from season to season. Thus a simple method of ridding mosquitoes of malaria suggests itself—exterminate mankind, and malaria will vanish from the earth.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, and John Heydler, president of the National, fled to Louisiana for a hunting trip. The two executives probably will miss their schedules during the trip, having it ready for submission at the league meetings. A session with the minor leagues is billed for Feb. 12. It is probable the new commission chairman will be selected during the baseball pow wow in February. Gossip here toyed with a half dozen names. Prominent among those was Judge K. M. Landis. President Heydler said he was confident the man named by the committee appointed long ago to nominate a successor to Garry Hiermann would be approved by the two leagues.

FOX WANTS ANSWER TO BID FOR THE BIG FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—William Fox, movie producer, whose bid of $500,000 for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight put him at the head of the list of promoters seeking the fight, was expecting an answer today from Jack Kearns. Fox pointed out that he had given Kearns last night demanding that he be given some kind of a definite answer. When the offer was first made Kearns talked for 48 hours to consider the subject. He failed to answer in that time and another wire was sent which closed: "It is imperative that you promptly reply giving me full details when you will arrive in New York to close contracts."

"TEETH OF THE TIGER" AT THE EMPRESS TODAY

There's something fascinating about a really clever crook in action, especially when he becomes his enemies to catching another of his former habits as was proved by the interest taken in the audiences at the Empress yesterday when "The Teeth of the Tiger," a new Arsene Lupin story, began its two days' engagement that will end today.

Readers of Maurice Le Blanc's thrilling stories will recall that the final episode left the clever criminal apparently dead. However, it develops—fortunately for the world of fiction and the screen—Arsene survives and is living as a respectable citizen in an American suburb when the action in "Teeth of the Tiger" begins. He becomes involved in the investigation of the murder of his millionaire acquaintance, Henry Forbes. Mystery surrounds the crime, and several innocent persons are suspected. But the master hand of Lupin, trained in the inner workings of the criminal mind, discovers the guilty one and brings him to justice after a series of half-raising adventures. A pretty love story is worked into the plot, which is thoroughly convincing throughout and kept last night's audience baffled as to the identity of the murderer until the last moment. The choice of David Powell to play the role of Arsene Lupin was a happy one. He is a good actor and he looks the part. Marguerite Courtot, long a favorite with screen lovers and a talented actress who seems destined to come into her own, gives an excellent performance in the part of Florence Chandler, the heroine. Others in the capable cast are Myrtle Stedman, Temple Saxe, Joseph Herbert, Charles L. Macdonald, Riley Hatch, Charles Gerard and Frederick Burton. With "Teeth of the Tiger" was shown a two-reel comedy that really deserves the too often used phrase, "a scream." The complete program will be shown for the last time at the Empress today. Having vacated my old office, will open an office within a few weeks in the Kemp & Kell building, W. H. Felder, Dentist. 224 1/2 p.

NEBRASKA WOMEN BOYCOTT EGGS. PRICE DROPS THIRTY CENTS.

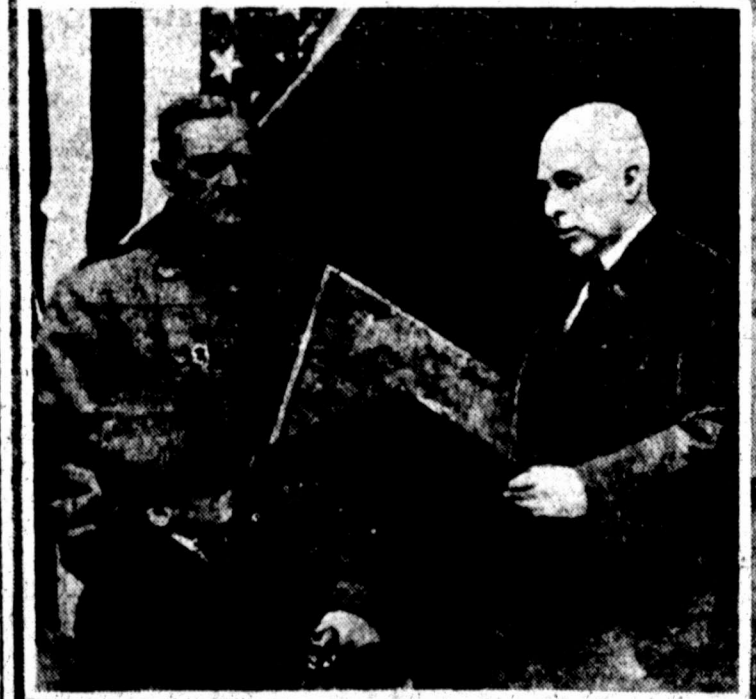

When foodstuff prices went soaring out of bounds in Nebraska thousands of housewives throughout the State contented themselves with verbal protests. Still the prices continued to mount higher and higher every day until the ladies of the State decided to organize. The women's clubs of the State put all their strength into the fight against the food profiteers. A general committee was appointed. On this committee were Mrs. E. F. Bell, Mrs. F. A. Harrison, Mrs. N. E. Hildebrand, and Mrs. C. S. Clayton. The first step in the fight was the boycotting of eggs. The housewives of the State were appealed to. They were asked to stop buying eggs and compiled. Within two weeks the price of eggs dropped thirty cents, from ninety-five to sixty-five cents a dozen.
