CLASSIFICATION OF SOIL GIVEN BY FARM AGENT

Government Payments Are Graduated In Accord With Terms.

Preliminary information on the 1936 soil conservation program has been received in the county agent's office according to J. B. Waide, Jr., Bailey county farm agent.

This program classifies crops into three general groups, namely: soil depleting crops, soil conserving crops, and soil building crops. In addition to this classification, there is also a neutral classification consisting of vineyards, fruit trees, idle crop land, waste land and woodlands.

There will be no contracts signed in connection with this program, the county agent stated. Persons wishing to participate in this program will make application for grants and the grants will be paid when it is determined that the applicant has complied with the terms of his application.

The payments are divided into two groups, the soil conserving payments and the soil building payments.

The soil conserving payments shall be made for the purpose of planting soil out of soil building practices on crop lands in 1936 and the carrying out of soil building practices on crop land or pasture in 1936. The total soil building payments will not exceed an amount equal to $1.00 for each acre of crop land on the farm used in 1936 for soil conserving crops and soil building crops, or shall not exceed $10.00 for the farm, which ever is the larger. The soil building payment shall be made to the eligible producer that has incurred the expense in 1936 with respect to soil building practices.

The soil conserving payments will be made with respect to each acre of the base acreage for the farm of any soil depleting crops, any group of such crops which in 1936 are used for the production of any soil conserving crop or is devoted to any approved soil conserving or building practices.

The amount of soil conserving payments will depend on the productivity of the crop land used on all soil depleting crops except cotton, tobacco, peanuts and sugar cane. An average of $10.00 per acre over the entire States for each acre of the base acreage used in 1936 for building up the soil will be made. This amount will vary in the states, counties and communities according to the productivity of the land.

Payments on all soil depleting crops except cotton, peanuts, sugar cane, and rice will be made on a maximum of 10 per cent of the base acreage for the farm.

On cotton the payments for each acre for the base acreage used in 1936 for building up the soil will be five cents for each pound of the normal yield per acre of cotton for the farm. The maximum amount with respect to which payment will be made will be 35 per cent of the base acreage for the farm.

Soil conserving payments shall be divided as follows: (a) 37 1/2 per cent to the producer who furnishes the land; (b) 12 1/2 per cent to the producer who furnishes the work stock and equipment; (c) 50 per cent to be divided among the producers who are parties to the lease or operating agreement in the proportion that the producers are entitled to share in 1936 in those soil depleting crops or the proceeds therefrom which respect to which the soil conserving payments are made.

Classified as soil depleting crops are the following:

- Corn (including broom corn and sweet corn), cotton, tobacco, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, rice, sugar cane, commercial truck and canning crops (including melons and strawberries) (when harvested as nuts), grain sorghums, sweet sorghums and millets, small grains harvested for grain or hay (wheat, oats, barley, rye and small grain mixtures), soybeans (if harvested for crushing).

Classified as soil conserving crops:

- Annual winter legumes, including vetch, winter peas, and erismous clover; perennial legumes, including sweet and alsike clover; perennial legumes including alfalfa, kudzu and sericea, with or without such narrow crops as rye, oats, wheat, barley or grain mixtures, when such nurse crops pastured or clipped green; summer legumes, including soybeans, except when produced for seed for crushing, and vetch, cowpeas, and annual vetches and lupines; peanuts, when pastured; perennial grasses, including bahia, reedtop, orchard Bermuda, carpet or grass mixtures, and Sudan grass, with or without such nurse crops as rye, barley, oats, wheat or grain mixtures.

TRADES DAY IS MONDAY, APRIL 6 AWARDS GIVEN

Buying, Selling In Various Special Sales Offerings Given.

Next Monday, April 6 is the regular Trades Day event in Muleshoe, at which time a large crowd of visitors are expected to be present to fraternize as well as another, take advantage of special merchandise price offerings, participate in free financial benefits offered and otherwise enjoy the occasion.

Arrangements for orchestra music during the day have been made by the committee in charge of arrangements, and in the afternoon, about four o'clock there will be some cash awards made to visiting customers of local concerns.

Buying and Selling
At this time of the year there is considerable demand for cotton seed, and it has been suggested that those having this seed may find a ready market for it at this coming Trades Day. It is also stated there will be several buyers to attend this event, and those having horses, mules and milk cows which they wish to sell, or those having farming implements, household goods, etc., may also bring them for selling or swapping. Free auctioneer services will be afforded those having such merchandise to dispose of.

Big Crowd: Saturday
Last Saturday witnessed one of the largest attendances of visitors and shoppers coming to Muleshoe for several months past, parking space for automobiles being at a premium in the downtown district.

During the afternoon merchandise awards were made as follows: $10 to R. J. Mitchell, star route 2, Muleshoe; $3.00 to Johnnie Glasscock, route 1, Muleshoe; $2.00 to George Short, Muleshoe; The afternoon, however, in Muleshoe was taken up by the Copeland Sudan; Mrs. L. C. Cuthman, Muleshoe, were called for the first award, and that of Nina Mae Jackson, Muleshoe, for second award, but they were not present.

Plan Organization of Muleshoe Baseball Team For The Season

While big league baseball teams are enjoying blamy spring days in the Southland in preparation for the season, the players in numerous other small towns, Muleshoe included, have also begun to talk "baseball," and laying plans for future games.

Monday night a preliminary meeting of local fans and players was held here at which time suggestions for organizing and financing a baseball team in Muleshoe was discussed. The group agreed, according to D. O. Smith, who attended, that Muleshoe should have a good playing team this year.

Last year there was a good team representing Muleshoe, doing excellent playing, and it is believed the successes of last year can again be duplicated this year. It is stated there are several business men here who realize the value of a baseball team to the town, in publicizing, in drawing visitors and more customers, and in other advertising ways worth while, and local business men will probably be called upon in the near future to assist in the organization and sponsoring of a team for Muleshoe which it is believed can easily classify among the winners of this season.

NEW FARM PROGRAM IS LAUNCHED IN TEXAS; SET-UP SIMILAR TO 1935 PLAN; USED BY GOVERNMENT

Farm Agents To Hold Community Meetings Of Information and Organization For Benefit Of Local Farmers.

COLLEGE STATION—Base figures used in 1935 AAA program in Texas will be used in the 1936 farm program being set up under the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, according to a statement issued here by Jack Shelton, Vice Director and State Agent of the Extension Service.

In preparation for putting the program into effect the Extension service staff spent two days studying the plan for the Southern Region as explained by R. H. Rogers, senior agricultural economist from the planning division of the AAA who flew here in company with A. L. Smith, former chairman of the Texas Cotton Allotment Board. Smith has been in Washington for the past two weeks helping to work out details of the new program as they effect Texas and the other Southern states.

Following the conference at College Station, Extension agents in the counties will be called together in group meetings at convenient points in their districts and district agents will lay the general plans for organization and soil conservation before them to take back to their farmers.

At meetings in the counties, the county agricultural agents will explain the terms of the Act and the proposed organization to be set up under it. Election of committees of farmers to administer the work will be the next step.

Closes Successful Revival With Many Additions to Church.

The two week's revival meeting, held by Rev. J. Manley Reynolds, of Three Rivers, at the Baptist church in Muleshoe, closed last Sunday evening.

Large crowds attended the services during the two weeks meeting and much benefit was received from the inspiring sermons. There was much spiritual reviving and some great work done to bring members of the church closer together. There were 12 conversions and several reclaimed.

Sunday morning at the regular church hour, Rev. Reynolds received a unanimous call from the house to return here to be the Baptist pastor. He did not immediately agree but members of the church will know in the near future whether or not he will do so.

Cook was accompanied by Deputy Sheriff W. E. Renfro and Constable J. I. Bartley to Denver, Colo. When a child of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gaede, it is said that Campbell purchased an automobile here and that night flipped out of the county with it. The finance company, backing the deal, being left to "make the sack." The automobile was not recovered, it having been traded off, Cook reported.

James L. Gregory Finishes Irrigation Well On His Farm

James L. Gregory, a farmer living about eight miles northwest of Muleshoe has just completed a new irrigation well which is going to prove a valuable adjunct to his crop production this year.

The well is 16 inches in diameter and was sunk to a depth of 94 feet, water being first encountered at the 15 foot level. It is cased throughout the lower casing being perforated for water admission.

He has installed in the well a No. 12 Peerless 2-stage centrifugal pump, capable of handling 1,400 gallons of water per minute, which is now being propelled by an Alice Chalmers farm tractor. However, he expects soon to install a stationary engine to handle the pump.

The well on initial try-out yielded 900 gallons per minute, but on proper development he expects to obtain from 1,100 to 1,200 g. m. The pump has a 50 foot setting.

Mr. Gregory expects to irrigate about 200 acres of crop this year, among which will be 90 acres of cotton, 50 acres of sudan, 25 acres of maize, 75 acres of heari, and has not yet definitely decided upon the balance of crop to be planted.

PIONEERS MEET HELD LAST SUN, AT PROGRESS

Tribute Paid To The Early Settlers Of West Texas.

Notwithstanding a three sandstorm that was raging last Sunday afternoon, citizens of Bailey and surrounding counties, both old-timers and newcomers, comfortably filled the auditorium at Progress, eight miles northwest of Muleshoe in a Pioneers celebration given under auspices of the Community Agricultural and Home Demonstration clubs, a very interesting and instructive program being rendered.

Mrs. William G. Kennedy and Professor Seth Rollins, of the community, had charge of the program. Dr. A. R. Matthews introduced the old settlers, each of whom spoke briefly of their arrival in this new country, many of them telling interesting experiences transpiring during their residence here.

There were several citizens present who had been in the county 20 years or more. John Kropp and Judge J. F. Vaughan, were among the older residents, present, though it was stated that H. G. Kennedy, 87, who was unable to be present because of ill health, was one of the oldest residents of this section. The youngest settler present was a two weeks old babe of a Mr. and Mrs. James, nick named "Gandy" because it was born during a sandstorm two weeks ago.

Judge W. M. Willard, first county judge of Bailey county, gave some interesting statistics regarding the early history of this political subdivision. It was in 1909 that Wm. G. Kennedy and Joe Jennings moved to Austin to get the law changed so as to minimum vote requirements, so citizens of this proposed new county could vote on self government, it having been previously attached to Castro county for judicial purposes. They were successful. The Legislature admitting their plea of 75 minimum votes for such incorporation. It was organized when the county was organized.

Mrs. Harry Willard was the first school teacher of Bailey county, teaching first in the year 1908.

When a child of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gaede was the first to be born in this county. Mrs. Wm. G. Kennedy was one of the first brides to be brought to the county.

Josh Blocker ran the first "pony express" in this county, delivering the mail from Pecos to Hurley post office. Rev. Bearden was the first "horse doctor" while Mr. Gosam was busy engaged in doctoring the humans of this section. Mrs. Bearden said when they came into this county from Farwell, they found some jack rabbits; a couple of antelope and some jack rabbits; but not a house between Farwell and YL community.

The first Sunday school of the county was organized May 31, 1909.

The first agricultural fair of Bailey county was held in the fall of 1908, there being good exhibits, as will be attested by photographic proofs of them still existing.

Mrs. W. G. Kennedy, in speaking of the "fine quality" of criminals in this section, spoke of the early days, told how Sheriff H. B. Douglas used to leave the jail door open so prisoners could go out for noon luncheon. One day he locked the door before a certain prisoner returned to his cell, and came very near "getting thrown in himself by the prisoner" for being so particular Douglas was sheriff of this county for 14 years, during which time he attained a high reputation as an efficient officer.

Jess Mitchell, Muleshoe elder, delivered the principal address of the meeting, speaking on the subject, "Pioneers." Numerous requests were made for a copy of the address, and it will appear in a future issue of the Journal so those desiring may have such.

There was congregational singing and some special vocal numbers rendered by Mrs. Wm. G. Kennedy paid a glowing tribute to the pioneer spirit of the old settlers of this area still living, and to those who have passed on into that other land where they may be classed as "new comers," because the pioneers of this county were to be found there for several thousand years. She spoke feelingly of the many hardships these early settlers endured, yet how important their money was to lay the foundation of this great West Texas Empire which is today coming to its own with rapidly increasing population and virgin storehouses of wealth being opened for the blessing future generations.

MERCURY DROP AND WIND

Last Monday morning about 11:00 o'clock a dusky, overcast struck Muleshoe, bringing a much silt with it that lights had to be turned on in homes and places of business for vision.

The blow was high in the air, and while lifting down to earth curtailing visibility, yet there was little movement of the soil in this section. The dust evidently came from some distance north of here.

There was a drop of about 12 degrees in the mercury in less than an hour's time, and Tuesday morning there was light ice. By 10 o'clock Tuesday the weather had practically returned to normalcy again.

ADVERTISING DAIRY SHOW

A group of prominent citizens of Plainview will be in Muleshoe today (Thursday) advertising the Panhandle South Plains Dairy show to be held there April 6 to 9. Hand bills were distributed, placards put up in distant places and general information given to all interested in this event.

Among the boosters here from Plainview were E. C. Kuykendall, Olin Bra-shers, Marion F. Peters, Jack Skaggs, W. E. Thatcher, Virgil Winn, J. W. Walker, C. S. Stubbs and W. W. Evans. Many citizens of Muleshoe and Bailey county are contemplating attending the dairy exhibit.

MORE PAYING ON HIGHWAY 28

Bids will be received by the State Highway department April 7 for completing State Highway 28 through Floyd county, the strip being about 15 miles long, thus closing another gap in this cardinal lane of importance.

Nearly 2,000 New Mexico voters are on the basis of the 1934 election returns, by a State of Texas law, being held by the Supreme court of that state holding the absentee voters law unconstitutional.

MARRIAGE vs. MONEY and MISERY

By JESS MITCHELL

The Good Book says something about "Whom God hath joined together let no man separate" or words to that effect, and we remember several years ago hearing Sam Jones, the evangelist say, "Whom the devil hath joined together let them kick the stuff" out of each other. One is today sometimes tempted to believe that the Devil is making many marriages as is the Lord. While, of course, it is the devil's marriage that largely bust out and get into the daily newspapers, yet occasionally one or two of the Lord's probably go haywire, also. There are probably a dozen marriages made that are reasonably happy and prosperous to every one that is otherwise, but unfortunately these are never played up on the front pages of the daily press with any big headlines.

Divorce, because of unhappy marital relations is on the increase, and for some time there has been much agitation regarding uniform divorce laws so people who don't get along in the same bed or at the same dining table may have to go to Nevada, Arkansas, or perhaps to Mexico to get their marriage laws annulled on pretensions and generally pitious reasons. It is claimed by these proponents of uniformity, that such action would eliminate the enticement of numerous announcement decrees if all states had the same requirements for separation. The railroads, buses and service stations would be chipped out of considerable fare and travel juice. Judges and lawyers would have a better chance of getting on a governmental relief, future victims would be spared the dangers of taking up with some of these second-hand husbands and wives and meeting similar fates in the not distant future, and that the whole round of civilization would be greatly improved as result of such an act by our legislators.

However, the divorce is not so much a legal matter as it is one of morals. Sex cannot be repressed by any laws man may pass, morals can not be elevated by statutes any more than one can force children to attend Sunday school regularly by prescribing a course of Bible study in the public schools. People who have such ideas are only striking at shadows and leaving the real substance unscathed.

A few years ago folks conceived the idea of temporary marriages, and a Colorado judge who, from his large experience with a better judge of human nature, marriage has passed or the honeymoon ended to find themselves in a maelstrom of a less either for life or until the legal blacksmith can file into the link of the marriage chain.

Some men and women of today change husbands with about as much alacrity as they change clothing. They claim high degrees of respectability, yet think no more of getting another man companion than a man does of obtaining a new mistress. Indeed, there are cases on record, some of them only a few weeks old, where husbands and wives have been agreeably divorced, and in less than a day afterwards, swapped about, one husband marrying the other's ex-wife and the other's ex-husband marrying his former wife.

It has been said when a woman gets a man her worries are at an end, and when a man gets a woman his worries have only really begin; yet that statement is only a half truth for it works "to her end" not just as well. Wedlock ideally, is the carrying out of a mutual contract, not only physically, but mentally, between a certain male and female. True, it is generally a physical that forms the first attraction between the sexes; but there are other characteristics and qualifications in both that must eventually merge for the physical is not all-enduring and when it begins to slip, unless there is something more potent and permanent, the union invariably goes on the rocks.

A fundamental requisite for a holy wedlock is mutual love and respect. No enforcement by law is necessary, wherever such a bond exists, for marriage has become more than a legal contract. It is something that means mutual devotion, affection and fidelity, even unto death, and will endure even if all the laws of man should perish from the earth. Civil marriage contracts are not only a curse to society but a crime against posterity.

There are today multiplied thousands of men and women in this land living lives of legalized prostitution, these women often conceiving children by husbands they actually abhor, giving birth to them in a bitterness of spirit to be reared in an atmosphere of discord and detest, oftentimes stamping upon the nature of these innocent little ones their own racking displeasure to handicap them through a life that not infrequently ends in prison or on the gallows. Notwithstanding the precious prerogatives of jurists and pietists who wall against divorce, these thousands of women who are suffering this bestial bondage of a loveless marriage are entitled to consideration and some relief. People should not be compelled to live together after love, confidence and respect for another has flown, and those who insist upon such relations, social and cobaltive, evidently think a marriage ceremony some sort of thaumaturgic incantation which can sanctify debauchery as a modern exemplification of the ancient rites of Bacchus.

It takes a considerable degree of courage for a husband and wife to go into the courts and bare their tortured hearts, recite their individual grievances against another, be abused and badgered by shyster lawyers, become the cynosure of the rabble and have their dearest friends learn of their desperate degradation, to say nothing of having all this slush and slime caught up by the yawning maw of the yearning daily press and paraded before the public as delicious news morsels. It's difficult for any gentleman to go into court and brand as a wanton the woman to whom he has poured out his most intimate life and upon whom he has bestowed his earthly wealth, perhaps contesting himself a cuckold. Likewise, it is embarrassing to the extreme for a modest, sensitive woman to rehearse in public the various conditions and scenes which have contributed toward making her home a hell.

Me thinks the trouble with marriage is not that divorce laws are too lax, but rather society is too rotten. Human nature, while manifesting new methods of exemplifying it, has not improved very much since the days when the lowly Nazarene trod the hills of Palestine and thundered anathemas against its manifestations. Ever since the Creator contrived two sexes there has been selfishness and baseness running rampant in human nature. Men have been egotistical, grasping and greedy, while women have been filled with false pride, self-centered ambition and void of community spirit.

Human morals in this twentieth century is nothing of which to boast. The bars of chastity are too often ignored, virtue become a nonentity, and purity received a new definition. Men and women both are becoming afraid of the marriage vows. If a woman wants a family she can easily adopt one, for there are thousands of orphan babes and older children in numerous homes and asylums pleading for mothers. If a man wants a housekeeper he can easily hire one, for there are hundreds of women out of work who want jobs and companionship. Both sexes forego marital relations on the grounds that such involve too great future risks, financial and mental, the spiritual life to be lost on weekdays, and there is no need worrying about the physical, for that can be easily gratified and cheaper than having to keep one's wife at home. Some still take chances of continued future conjungality.

Too many men today still have caveman ideas and are lacking in the finer traits of modern civilization. They fail to realize that women in numerous ways their mental and spiritual equal that she has certain feminine traits and inherent rights worthy of recognition, that she should be in many ways a full fledged partner in mundane matters; and sometimes is their superior in spiritual entities. On the other hand, numerous women of today have been literally brainwashed and proven to be gluttonous gold-diggers, marrying a man chiefly for his money and leaving no stone unturned to get the golden ring; but none the less determined in their well wrought plans of selfish gain. Here and there flagrant cases come to light in divorce cases where clearly the intent of rendering a verdict to the woman is in numerous money as a result of getting rid of the man, and not infrequently having other marriage plans in view, if not already agreed upon before the present one is annulled. We have become quite firmly convinced that the reason hundreds of eligible young men do not take wives unto themselves today is not because of the existing economic depression, so much as the existing sex question. Doubtless the majority of young men would like to have homes with their own, but they are afraid of the companionship of some fair one about their heartstone; but they have witnessed so much catastrophe they wisely hesitate. Many young women of today would prefer marriage to a job; but their ideas and ideals have likewise undergone a considerable change in recent years which deters them.

The ideals of the marriage state have been changed very much, the have and there may be seen flagrant examples of lowering them. Still the Church, the State and most of the citizens cling to the old-time sacredness of those vows, many of them adhering very closely to them. Those who fail to recognize these ideals sooner or later find themselves in a maelstrom of woe, for no man can expect happiness to abide in his home if he have no love for his wife, and the woman who has ceased to love and honor her husband would prefer marriage to a job; but her other man, for after all, it is the moral law rather than the legal code which sanctifies and blesses marriage, and the lips before a minister or magistrate never married any man and woman unless there be also assent of the heart. The holy contract is essential and always supersedes the civil contract.

Regulation, reform and enforcement of laws will mitigate some forms of marriage violation; but after all of the real enforcement and appreciation of (this estate is the work of the Church rather than that of the Courts and Legislature. Congress wasting much time and breath arguing over the tariff AAA, and war neutrality, might well employ some of it in direct discussion and legislation of means and measures calculated toward lifting the ideals and raising lofty aspirations of the citizens for cities are as important as economics, the two being very closely conjoined. The Church might very profitably give the heathen a holiday and center more of its energies upon teaching the fact that marriage is more than an agreement of social and physical habitation, an agreement to be entered into by two parties, much as one might agree to buy from another a carload of corn or a haulful of hazelnuts. Fraternal orders might well dispense with much of their formal esoteric jobbering, the continuation of which keeps numerous members from the lodge hall, and devote more of their regular and special meetings to informative matters relating to actual life in the here and the hereafter, how to make it better during time so as to the greater enjoy it during eternity. Public schools might well supplement some of their foolish curriculum of squaring roots, bisecting angles, teaching the difference between Arable and algebra, counting the 'apendages of extinct ichthyosaurs, or trying to prove when the paleozoic period merged into the mesozoic, and inculcate into the hearts and minds of the rising generation some needed teaching regarding the sacred human trinity of father, mother and child. Hope for the future rests largely upon the fulfillment of such suggestions. Man made laws will never prevent mistakes in marriages, sanctify homes nor make folks holy and happy. Almightiness is still the head of the universe. His precepts still have universal right-of-way and supercede all others. The marriage rite has never yet failed, so some folks make failure of it. Civil marriages, shot-gun marriages, marriages for convenience seldom succeed, and like MARRIAGE for MONEY invariably means a marriage for MISERY!

What's Happening In Washington And Other Cities Of Importance

President Roosevelt is enjoying a delightful fishing spree off the coast of Bahama islands, the first evening catching enough for supper.

President Roosevelt last week rescinded the order to stop CCC work, the camps to remain in action for at least another six months.

A new naval treaty removing restrictions as to size of navies and furnishing other mutual protection, was signed last week by Great Britain, France and the United States.

Notwithstanding smudge pots were kept busy in California orchards, a 20 per cent loss of fruit is claimed by growers there during the last three days of last week.

Conviction of Ben Laska, Denver attorney for conspiracy in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma millionaire, was upheld last Friday by the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Since the Supreme court handed out a decision confirming the TVA most of the acrimonious criticism regarding annulling AAA and NRA has been dropped and little is being heard regarding amending the Nation's constitution.

Statistics just released show there have been 23,692 insane and feeble-minded people in the U. S. sterilized up to last January in 28 states where such law is provided, 19,940 being men and 12,452 being women, according to the Human Betterment foundation.

President Cardenas of Mexico D. F. has lifted the ban on most of the Catholic churches of that country, permitting them to again open and continue their forms of religion, about 16,000,000 citizens of that faith being favorably affected by the new ruling.

The resignation last week of Robert L. Clements, sparkplug of the Townsend old age pension movement, led to predictions of further crackups in the organization's high command by members of Congress which will soon start an investigation of that pension plan. Testimony has already been obtained that the organization had an income of $43,293 during the first 10 months of its existence.

Approximately 4,000,000 seedlings, representing a cost of about $100,000 are now in process of being planted in six West Texas counties as a part of the government shelterbelt program. Also, about 3,000,000 seedlings are being planted this year in West-ern Oklahoma. Work is progressing at an average of 25 miles of planted trees per day.

Deaths From Auto Accidents Increase 58 Percent, 4 Years

Austin, April 1—Deaths from automobile accidents in Texas increased fifteen per cent last year, while the national rate showed a drop of one per cent, according to information in the State Bureau of Vital Statistics. In 1931 the deaths from automobiles totaled 1,148; while in 1935 they had jumped to 1,823—an increase of 58.7 per cent.

To date, statistics apparently have had little effect upon the motoring public. The evident desire to get there in a hurry, overcomes judgment and prompts the use of power under prohibited conditions, with the consequent and inevitable sacrifice of human life. Somehow motorists must be made to realize that a high-powered machine rolling along even at legal speed upon the highway is not a plaything. A clearer conception on the part of the driver that the other fellow is likely to disregard the rules of the road also must be generated. An egotism which prompts one to imagine that he owns the highway, that he is not held down to warning signs and highway regulations, that pedestrians are pests, and causes the operation of a car as though the driver is the only one on the road, such egotism is frequently fatal. But unfortunately, in many instances, the innocent and law-abiding motorist pays the supreme penalty for this type of folly.

When to this appalling loss of life, we add the million others who in the same period have been hurt more or less seriously because of the motor car, the problem assumes vital importance not only to the safety-first people, but to the medical profession whose members are fundamentally interested in the conservation of human life. Let us all cooperate.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president, Tech college, last week made a valuable statement when he told folks of this section to be careful of any relics, heirlooms or mementos of any kind they owned.

DO YOUR OWN THINKING

That this year is going to witness the bitterest political campaign for a long time is clearly apparent. Already politicians are preaching class hatred; declaring the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer, and all that type of bunk. But it isn't so easy to put this sort of stuff over as it once was.

HERE'S SAD NEWS

MEMORIES OF HOME

How often in life we go back to that which we have left, and how often we welcome a chance to return to the very things we abandoned in earlier life. The truth of this is to be found in the yearning in every heart of every small-town resident, now grown to manhood, who in years gone by drifted away to make his home in a large city.

RICHARD LLOYD JONES SAYS Make Others Happy

One of the human fallacies that is not without its virtue is the belief that we need something more than that which we have to be happy. It is this earnest, this seeking for the more perfect thing, that brings us into such happiness as we may know.

THE OLD HANG-OUTS

Do you suppose the word "hang-out" is not in the dictionary because everyone knows its meaning. Hang-outs really play an important place in life, and are more important than most men think of their favorite haunts and other days.

WEST TEXAS 100 YEARS AGO

Members of the 15th, sixth and seventh grades, Muleshoe Grammar school have recently put on a Texas Centennial exhibit in the show window of H. C. Hemington's grocery store. Their object was to visualize Texas history as it was 100 years ago by building the kind of vehicles people used then for their early mail system, also the pony express, ox carts, and stage coaches. Small replicas were built of houses used in West Texas on those days, and the kind of clothing the Indians wore who lived in the plateau states. A number of themes are on display on various topics, for instance: "The Legend of the Sand Hills," "Beautification of Texas Roads," "Expansion of the San Antonio Trail to the Present Road Systems," "Education System and the 17 Supported Texas Schools of Learning." This display is very interesting and has proven to be educational to the school students who had a part in building it. Miss Mildred Bailey, teacher in the grade schools of these classes directed the exhibit.

FLAMES shooting up from the tool house threw a vermillion scar across the snowy mound on the hospital cot. The snowy mound would presently be the last mortal remains of C2098. Ten years ago C2098 was Fred Peral.

Ten years ago C2097, sitting beside the cot in the improvised hospital cell, was Buckley Winston. He was small and dark with shiny black curls, while the soot-topped Peral loomed under his sheet like the mummy of a big red god.

Winston sat there thinking. Sometimes he had to stop because of the noise outside. The men had beaten off the guards with pieces of twisted metal from cell cots and shop machinery. Or again he was interrupted by a slow flutter of Fred Peral's eyelids.

Once Fred had dropped cold fingers on his hand and smiled faintly. "I'm going out . . . at last . . . kid," he had said amiably.

But he had not said it with the bombast of the old days, the days when Buckley Winston followed him around in a haze of envy and admiration.

Fred had seemed to have everything. Yet Winston had taken a small satisfaction in knowing that he was wrong about the woman. She had gone to Fred Peral, naturally. Any woman would. Just as any woman can change her mind. She did that, too. But she did it too late.

Fred Peral had married her before she realized that it should have been little Buckley Winston. Now Fred Peral was going back to her as he always said he would—in his own way. The trusty-orderly shook him and looked at him oddly.

"Yeah," His answer was flat, toneless.

"If we can get the doc in from the outside with a little adrenalin for Peral we can keep him alive. Maybe for months."

"He can't live," Winston managed to say.

The orderly pushed him hard. "Listen, he has a swell chance. But he'll have to have some kinda dope in the next 15 minutes or he'll—prf!"

The orderly motioned toward the watchman's tower, where most of the official reinforcements were concentrated. It looked a mile away through the bars. "You'll handle 'em down across the yard. Take a white flag. It's the only way, see? The wires is all cut."

"But he can't . . ." Winston was repeating thickly.

"Listen, pal," the orderly said, "do I know that? A month or a year don't mean nothing in your life. But if we make me rate, see? And what's more, a little hero stuff will make you rate, too. You wouldn't hate a lil paragon, I guess?" He showed a white smile, case into Winston's fingers and when Winston stayed sitting he slapped his face.

When Winston only licked his mouth and covered the trusty poked him up and thrust him into the corridor. "Don't be a sap. You wanna get outa here, don't you?" he said.

Winston trembled. Did he want to get out of there? He shivered at the mere possibility of freedom and what it would mean to him. He came on with her then, to protest her and together they would wait for Fred Peral to die. Maybe months. Maybe years.

So unless Buckley Winston trotted across the prison yard and got some dope for his heart, Fred was going out. Yes, Buckley Winston would go out—back to her and mother. Wait!

The yard was all bright light and narrow black shadows pattered by searchlights and red flames from the shops.

He gathered up the white linen in one hand and began a slow trot across the yard. A couple of men saw him and followed through a sudden fog of tear gas. By the time the guns got going the whole pack was at his heels.

Winston, hugging the pillow-case under an arm, looked back over a shoulder in some surprise. He had been on the point of waving the thing. He slowed down and stared thoughtfully at the fire blazing about the prison shops. He went warm and glowy as if an impulse from some uncharted star had touched off a flame inside him. He threw away the pillow-case and ran faster, boldly waving his arms. The men swarmed after him gratefully until the guns and gas drove them back, whimpering. Men were running out into the white searchlights waving the pillow-case. Up in the hospital room the trusty turned away from the window, growling an enormous contempt. He pulled the sheet up over Fred Peral's face.

"Tough going, Bud," he said, shaking his head bitterly. "He could've give us a break."

Birds Sing Hymns

Four hundred birds, each in a separate cage and arranged in rows on both sides of the altar join in the music of the services at the chapel of St. Paul, near Sacramento, says Pearson's Weekly. This unique choir is trained and led by Miss Alma Lloyd, an expert in bird music. She starts each hymn by whistling the first few notes herself. Then the birds take up the tune, keeping perfect time in accordance to the movement of their instructor's hand.
