Situation In Cambodia 'Critical'

More Debate On Tap For Primary Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — "Who will stay hitched?" was the big question today as the House resumed work on a presidential primary bill tagged as part of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's campaign for the White House.

Debate was halted abruptly Tuesday with a 74-67 vote to adjourn after an amendment stripped out a "winner-take-all" feature reportedly desired by Bentsen.

Rep. Tom Schieffer, D-Fort Worth sponsor of the bill, made the adjournment motion to give himself time to switch enough votes to restore that provision to the bill.

"I haven't given up on anything," Schieffer said.

The House voted Tuesday afternoon to replace "winner-take-all" with a new provision dividing the Texas delegation to a national political party nominating convention according to each presidential candidate's share of the primary vote.

In Schieffer's original bill, a presidential primary ballot would list senatorial district states of delegates, followed in parentheses by the names of the candidates they support.

The top vote getters in a district would get the primary vote.

HOUSE COMMITTEE SUMMONED INTO SESSION—

Vote Demanded On Oil Allowance

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, outvoting their high command, are demanding that the 11 Democrats controlling the Rules Committee quickly clear the way for a floor vote over ending the oil depletion allowance.

With Democratic members of the Rules Committee under direct orders from their party caucus to let the full House determine the fate of the petroleum depletion allowance, the panel was summoned into session today to deal with the $21.28 billion tax cut bill and the depletion allowance.

Both measures would come to the floor Thursday if the rules panel follows the mandate of the caucus, which voted 152 to 99 Tuesday to force the floor showdown.

Among the 99 who sought to keep the oil depletion issue off the floor were such House leaders as Speaker Carl Albert, Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona later hit on one of the main arguments against combining the two measures when he expressed concern that Senate supporters of the depletion allowance might wage a filibuster that would stall the tax cut.

Albert and Rhodes agreed that the House would vote to end the depletion allowance that permits 22 per cent of gross income from petroleum property to be deducted from taxable income up to a top of 50 per cent of taxable net income. Industry spokesmen term this a crucial investment incentive.

The economic emergency tax cut bill itself contains $16.2 billion for individuals — half of it in tax rebates from 1974, half in tax cuts for 1975 — and $5.07 billion of business tax reductions, mainly hiking the investment tax credit as an incentive to buy equipment and machinery.

In related developments, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., and Rep. James Wright, D-Tex., chairmen of Senate and House task forces drafting a Democratic energy program, said they expected to produce a final report by the end of the week.

Ullman said last week that his panel will finish work on the energy package by April 18 and that it will include a gasoline tax as high as 40 to 80 cents a gallon.

Rep. Charles Wilson was the only Texas member to side with the majority of the House Democratic Caucus when it voted 152-99 Tuesday for the House to add repeal of the oil depletion allowance to the tax cut bill.

Texas Democrats voting against the measure were Brooks, Casey, De La Garza, Eckhardt, Gonzalez, Hightower, Jordan, Kazen, Krueger, Mahon, Milford, Patman, Pickle, Poage, Roberts, Teague, White, Wright and Young.

The President, as he has repeatedly in his series of trips across the country, chided Congress for failing to enact a tax cut.

He said at its current pace, Congress might not complete its work on a tax cut until June. "I think that is very ill-advised and extremely serious," he said.

House Democratic leaders say they doubt President Ford's request for more Indochina military aid will win approval, despite Ford's own warning that Cambodia will fall within weeks without it.

"I don't think we can rally the votes," said a high-ranking House leader who asked not to be named. "I think Cambodia will have to go down."

Ford told the House in an unusual letter Tuesday that Cambodia will run out of ammunition in less than a month and without more aid "will be forced within weeks, to surrender to the insurgents."

A knowledgeable House source said a more precise estimate for the time Cambodia can hold out is about 27 days.

— There is a renewed stress on computational arithmetic — the old math — in elementary schools across the country. The new math and its emphasis on theory are being left to junior and senior high schools in many communities.

There is also an increasing emphasis on composition, grammar and spelling in many schools, a change that reflects, in part, the vocal complaints of college professors and admissions officers that many students cannot write English.

Ford Pleads For Further War Aid

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — President Ford declared today the situation in Cambodia is "extremely critical" and said U.S. military aid is urgently needed to help the Lon Nol government survive.

At a hotel ballroom news conference, Ford said "Cambodia will run out of ammunition in a relatively short period of time" unless the U.S. government quickly extends military aid.

Negotiations Possible He said that if the Cambodians are able to maintain their national integrity in the months ahead it will lead to the "possibility of negotiations that would end the war."

Meanwhile, in Washington, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said that probability is "extremely high" that Cambodia could survive if Congress approves emergency aid, but said he could not guarantee it.

No Guarantee "There is no such thing as a guarantee," Schlesinger said.

Under questioning before the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, Schlesinger said some ammunition could be moved in almost immediately if Congress would lift its present $200-million ceiling on military aid to Cambodia.

"They would run out of ammunition somewhere around the end of March, give or take a week," Schlesinger testified. "Once that ammunition is expended, Phnom Penh cannot survive."

Jurors Seated, Testimony Under Way In Brooks Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury of 35 prospective jurors, three more than the required 32, was seated today and testimony got under way in the murder trial of David Owen Brooks, charged in four of the 27 Houston mass murders which startled the nation in 1973.

First on the witness stand was police Lt. J.D. Belcher who outlined how officers first learned that Brooks had "knowledge" of the sensational case.

Lawyers for the state and for the defense completed selection of jurors, three more than the required 32.

The attorneys today struck 10 jurors each and the top 12 left on the list were in four of the 27 Houston mass murders which startled the nation in 1973.

Hatten instructed the lawyers to select three extra candidates because at least two of those chosen earlier may not be able to serve because of medical problems.

Brooks, a 29-year-old who allegedly helped dispose of bodies of young boys killed by the sextuple ruled justifiable homicide slaying of 15-year-old William Lawrence. He is also charged in three other killings.

Lawrence is allegedly one of the 27 youth solicited by ring members. Many of the victims were allegedly tortured and raped before they were slain.

Existence of the ring became known after its leader, Dean Corll, 33, was shot to death during an Aug. 8, 1973 sex and paint-sniffing party. Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, admitted killing Corll, but the death was later ruled justifiable homicide.

Indications Point To Schools Nationwide Returning To Basics

Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles on current changes in American public schools. The following examines the trend toward more traditionalism in teaching techniques.

By TERRY RYAN Associated Press Writer After a decade of experiment and innovation, American schools are shifting gears. From first grade to senior high, there are signs of an increasing emphasis on basic skills and traditional ways of teaching them.

The Midland Independent School District, however, appears to be in a middle-of-the-road position between the conservative and liberal educational approaches.

The district's trustees today are hearing the continuation of the evaluation of the multi-aged open area pilot program which features team teaching in an open area classroom.

Bryant W. Saxon, director of program development and research, said while administrators favor team teaching in open area classrooms, they do not sanction "huge expanses of space without any walls at all" which some schools utilize in an open area approach.

He asserts the district places a high priority on youngsters learning the "three R's" even within the multi-aged framework which proponents tout as offering the child freedom of choice in what he studies.

Saxon said, however, the choices available to the child are of the teacher's choosing and "conform to the teaching of the basic skills that are known to be needed by the youngster."

On the subject of permissive education, he said, "We're as much against it as anybody could be."

Open classrooms and the new math have lost some of their appeal. Federal grants have switched from arts programs to reading. In some communities, parents are demanding — and getting — alternative schools that stress educational basics: report cards and discipline.

"We took for granted that the results were going to be there if we changed," said Robert Wheeler, head of the Bureau of School Systems in the federal Office of Education. "It turns out that some of the innovations were not productive."

Some were productive. The one most frequently cited now by educators is the idea of providing a variety of educational alternatives for pupils and their parents.

Interviews with dozens of educators — teachers, administrators, association officers and state and federal officials — also indicated no widespread retreat from the goal of better meeting the individual learning needs of children. It was the aim of much of the recent innovation.

But the signs of adjustment are many: Partitions were put up last year in the Forest Edge Elementary School in Reston, Va., an "open space" school built in 1971. The same thing was done in New Ipswich, N.H., and team teaching was dropped as well.

Enthusiasm has waned for the open classroom and its accent on allowing children to follow their learning instincts with little interference from teachers and curriculum goals.

Primary Bill Debate To Resume

(Continued From Page 1A) trict—up to its allotment of delegates—would be elected. They would constitute 75 per cent of the Texas delegation and would choose the other 25 per cent.

House Speaker Bill Clayton favored that "winner-take-all" provision. Gov. Dolph Briscoe also told reporters Tuesday he favored a presidential primary and "I could go along with winner take all."

The House voted 99-64 to list on the ballot only presidential candidates who pay a $1,000 filing fee.

Schieffer maintained Tuesday that he wanted Texas to have presidential primaries, no matter who was running.

"Regardless of what Lloyd Bentsen does, we ought to have a presidential primary," he said, adding that his original bill would remove the delegate selection process from "the dark recesses of political back rooms."

In other action Tuesday, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving the state comptroller's department a $472,000 emergency appropriation.

House members also sent the Senate bills enabling cities to sue for delinquent local sales taxes and allowing the Texas Education Agency to donate discontinued textbooks to city and county jails.

Senators adopted nine measures in a one-hour session, including proposals that would:

—Abolish the $300 million limit on bonds that may be issued by the Lower Colorado River Authority for developing electrical generating facilities. "This is one way to achieve a reduction in power rates," claimed the bill's sponsor, Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan.

—Permit real estate salesman who work only on a commission basis to be covered by workmen's compensation insurance.

—Reappropriate $195,359 to cover the rising cost of utilities and food at the state schools for the blind and deaf.

—Specify that the governing boards of community mental health centers are subject to the open meetings law.

—Make a supplemental appropriation of $204,601 to pay utility costs at Sam Houston State University.

—Raise the fees and stiffen licensing requirements for issuing dealer's and manufacturer's license plates and tags for unregistered motor vehicles and trailers. A so-called master license would be issued for $100 with supplemental licenses (paper plates) costing $10. A license now costs $25.

Cambodia Plight 'Critical'

(Continued From Page 1A) ers agreed Ford's $522 million additional aid request for Cambodia and Vietnam would not have passed before Ford's warning and they doubted the warning would change that situation.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he had not measured the vote there but think the sooner the better."

Any military aid must be approved first in the House, where all appropriations originate. A compromise effort is under way in Congress to divert some of the present economic aid to Vietnam to military use rather than approve Ford's request for $300 million more in military aid.

No such compromise can be made on his request for $222 million in additional aid for Cambodia because that country has already reached the $200 million military aid ceiling imposed by Congress.

Education Act signed last year by President Ford. During months of congressional debate, attention had focused on provisions in the legislation dealing with school busing.

The shift away from the innovative philosophy of recent years reflects larger changes in society, many educators said. There are some schools, of course, that do not have far to go in going back to basics. School administrators from dozens of states have visited the John Marshall Fundamental School, a back-to-basics public school in Pasadena, Calif. However, officials there said there have been few visitors from the Plains States and

American Schools Shifting Gear, Returning To 3 R's

(Continued From Page 1A) Jefferson County Public Schools system. They stress "mastery of basic skills": reading, arithmetic, English, grammar, literature, spelling and penmanship. There are regular tests in all subjects and report cards with letter grades.

Similar schools are open or planned in California, Maryland and North Carolina. If nothing else, said many educators, they indicate a renewed awareness of achievement as a measure of educational progress.

It was the launching of Sputnik that triggered a re-examination of American education in 1957. Widespread changes came in the next decade when the money of the Great Society started flowing. Federal expenditures for public schools increased from $500 million in 1956 to $2.1 billion in 1966 and an estimated $5.9 billion this year.

In 1965, President Johnson signed the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Title III of the act established federal funding for innovative and exemplary projects. It was a springboard for change. About $14 billion has been spent under the Title III program.

The projects funded under Title III have changed over the years, said Lee Wickline, director of Title III in the Office of Education.

"We have more programs now, for example, that are coming to grips with reading problems," he said. "In 1965, we had a lot that were dealing with the arts and things like that."

Title III money was used to fund experiments in computer-assisted instruction. There are few around now. "Basically, it costs too much," said Wickline. "The cost of education has just gone up so much that it is a major factor in causing school districts not to look toward introducing new programs and ideas."

On June 30, Title III will be consolidated out of existence. It has been combined with nutrition and drop out prevention programs in an extension of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act signed last year by President Ford. During months of congressional debate, attention had focused on provisions in the legislation dealing with school busing.

The renewed interest in traditional approaches shows up even in education's latest innovation. Sometimes called education by choice, it involves offering pupils and their parents a variety of options within a single school.

The education-by-choice schools invariably have at least one liberal, open classroom program. What is new is that some of them also offer an alternative program that is more structured and more disciplined than what most students were getting before.

In Quincy, Ill., students can choose from several "schools" within a new high school complex. There are two very open schools where students call teachers by first names and work out their own study projects and schedules. There is also a traditional school where students sit in rows at lectures, follow a standard curriculum and call their teachers Mr. and Miss.

There are about 300 students in the traditional school, and about the same number in the larger of the open schools. There are 360 students in a flexible school, which combines the two approaches.

"Our philosophy is that there is no one best way for all people to learn or all people to teach," said Brandt G. Crocker, assistant district superintendent. "The system should have built into it a diversity that can appeal to many different kinds of people."

The back-to-basics movement is taking place against a background of declining school enrollments and, according to some educators, increasing parental involvement in school decisions. The estimated 45 million pupils now in public schools will shrink to about 40 million by 1982, federal officials said.

"The typical school is saying: 'We're the educators. We know best what should be done,'" said Crocker. "That isn't good enough. Schools should be selective of what the clients want. That does not mean we roll over and play dead. But it should not be so exclusive that we are not interested in what parents and pupils want."

Next: A look at the new fundamental schools.

Bill Introduced To Establish International Trade Division

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Legislation to set up a statutory International Commerce Division of the Texas Industrial Commission (TIC) drew support before the House

Business and Industry Committee from Odessa and Houston businessmen.

William H. Masterson, executive vice president of Miether Machine Works Inc. at Odessa, and J. L. Joplin, chairman of the board of Oil & Gas Supply Co. and senior chairman of the board of Hutchison-Hayes International Inc., both endorsed the measure by Rep. Dave Finney of Fort Worth.

Finney explained the TIC already has such a division, but the bill is to "give this operation the dignity of statutory authority." He added he's not trying to add any more funds for the division — at least, not yet.

Joplin told the committee of his experiences on a trade mission to Moscow and Romania, saying the TIC laid the groundwork for the visit. His oilfield equipment company is looking overseas for new customers, Joplin added.

"We're trying to expand into foreign markets — we've got to," Joplin said.

Masterson said his company had to go to Mexico to obtain materials for some of its high speed drilling equipment, and the TIC "saved the countless hours."

"If I sound like I'm sold on it," Masterson told the lawmakers, "I am, because it's meant our livelihood to us."

Finney noted other states are trying to capture overseas markets, too.

"We've got to get in there and hustle ourselves," Finney said, remarking that Texas, with its seaports, is in an excellent position for overseas trade.

Finney said Texas is the only state with an office in Mexico to handle trade, giving Texas businesses an additional advantage.

The bill was sent to a subcommittee of Reps. Kenneth Vaughn, Garland, Phil Cates, Pampa, and Chester Clay, Beaumont.

Youths Arrested In Stolen Car; Other Items Recovered

Midland police arrested two teen-agers early today and recovered a stolen auto and several items taken in a recent burglary of the Hogan Park Driving Range.

Police said the youths were stopped for a traffic violation at the intersection of Wall and Big Spring streets shortly before 3 a.m.

Lawmen said the youths told them they had abandoned another vehicle in Big Spring after taking it from the 200 block of West Indiana Street here. The auto which they occupied at the time of their arrest was reported taken from Big Spring.

Items confiscated from the vehicle included 17 golf clubs, two cases of golf balls, two cases of soft drinks and a stereo tape deck.

Both youths remained in custody at city jail today awaiting charges.

Puny Cool Front To Have Little Effect On Texas

Clouds hung low and fog cloaked parts of East and Southeast Texas early today while the rest of the state was clear to only partly overcast.

A cool front too puny to exert any effect on the weather pattern lay nearly stalled along a line from Northeast Texas through the Waco and Midland areas. It was expected to keep on easing toward the south.

Tall city temperatures are expected to reach only the middle 60s this afternoon and inch into the upper 60s on Thursday, following a Tuesday high of 71.

The overnight minimum, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal, was 38, and tonight's low is expected to be in the middle 30s.

Temperatures near dawn slipped a little below freezing in the Texas Panhandle, touching 29 degrees at Dalhart, 30 at Amarillo and 31 at Childress. At the same hour it was 62 at Galveston and 63 at Brownsville on the coast. The Associated Press reported.

Breakfast Not Until Next Week

Ehrlichman Charges May Be Dismissed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The district attorney's office says it will move next Monday for dismissal of perjury charges against John D. Ehrlichman, former White House aide.

Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch said Tuesday, "I feel that it is in the best interest of justice and taxpayers' money not to go forward with the trial here in view of Ehrlichman's conviction and sentencing in two Washington, D.C. trials."

Ehrlichman was indicted for perjury after he denied knowledge of the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

Administration Pledges High Energy Costs To Help New Fuel Developers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration says it will keep energy prices high enough to protect the developers of costly new U.S. fuels against price-cutting competition by foreign oilmen.

Officials say President Ford has not decided how or at what levels to support domestic energy prices.

But they say price guarantees equivalent to oil prices between $7 and $9 per barrel may be needed. This would be $2 to $4 cheaper than present imported oil, but $4 to $6 higher than the pre-embargo oil prices of 1973.

They also say these price guarantees may be achieved in a variety of ways now being considered, including imposition of an oil "price floor," import tariffs, or import quotas, or even some sort of government subsidies to new energy industries. Ford announced the policy Tuesday through his press secretary when reporters inquired about the policy following remarks by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon. His statements had raised questions about whether such a policy was being considered.

As part of its drive to reduce U.S. dependence on oil imports, the administration wants to encourage the development of new energy sources at home

But it fears that the international oil cartel which suddenly quadrupled its prices in 1973 could just as suddenly cut prices, scaring away or undermining huge U.S. energy investments.

In an interview late Tuesday, Simon explained, "We have made the decision that a mechanism is going to be put in place to protect those domestic investments in new energy resources, and that means protecting the price level."

But he said two other key decisions have yet to be made: —At what minimum level, either fixed or flexible, U.S. energy prices should be guaranteed. —And what method would be used to guarantee them.

Simon said his explanation was in line with previous administration statements and that remarks he made Monday night had been misunderstood.

Windmills To Save Fuel? First You Must Have All The Proper Parts

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer
There is a lot of talk lately about using windmills to generate electricity, thereby saving fuel. These things never will be a success until the factories learn to put all the proper parts in the crate in which they ship the machine. Each crate must contain the following:

One pair cowboy boots, high heels, worn down on one side, scuffed.

One cowboy hat slightly greasy and dusty.

One plug of Brown Mule or Tinsley chewing tobacco.

One sack of Bull Durham or Duke's Mixture in case the user is effete and doesn't chew plug tobacco but rolls cigarettes.

Windmills have to be greased, don't they? And that has been the job of the cowboy ever since windmills reached the west.

There is only one time to grease a windmill. This is when the temperature is about 10 degrees below freezing and the wind is blowing at least 40 miles per hour from shifting directions.

That shifting wind means the moving parts of the windmill could create great knots on the cowboy's head or at least knock him off the tower. The machinery supposedly had something to tie down the blades and vanes but not all of them had such advanced aids.

Cowboys were not always the heroic type, overcoming evil or creating it, riding down the dusty street at high noon looking for some villain to send to his doubtful reward. They also had to grease windmills.

Travel about the Southwest and you still see plenty of windmills in operation.

Had it not been for them, large parts of our country could not have been habitable until almost our present generation.

There was no other way to obtain a reliable source of water for man or beast.

There is so much wind power that many persons believe it could be used easily to turn generators. The government is spending a million dollars to try to create a reliable system, while inventors across the nation are putting up their own money to prove their point.

This all has been done before. There was a system of home generating long before there was any fuel crunch. We recall the Delco system best but there probably were others.

There was one problem in those days which remains even now: You can't be sure the wind will be constant.

Suppose you used an electric razor. And just as you finished half your face, the wind died and you would have to go to work half smooth and half bearded. People would talk.

Or suppose the wind died and the milking machine stopped halfway through Bossy's juicing. There would be a revolt in the barn.

This was solved by installing batteries so that when the wind died the batteries would take over. They would be recharged when the wind came up again.

We recall one farmer who had a whole room full of batteries and he seemed to spend all his time walking around pouring water in them. Still, he didn't get much electricity out of any of this.

The Rural Electrification Administration ended that. It provided steady electricity 24 hours a day except when a tornado tore down all the lines.

Today, people are experimenting with all sorts of windmill systems. They are building them with cups instead of blades while others look like egg beaters.

One is going up with blades 200 feet long.

Many are privately financed like the six-bladed windmill Vaughn Nelson of West Texas State University and Earl Gilmore of Amarillo College have built.

"We don't want anyone to think we are well on our way in solving this problem," Gilmore says. "We do know there is enough energy, but the questions which must be resolved are storage capacities and energy availability in the time sequence."

What he is saying, "What do you do when the wind stops?"

"The only way the wind can be of any benefit to this region is if we can harness it," says Gilmore whose statement would be approved by West Texas residents whose only comment when the force gets to 75 miles per hour—hurricane strength—is that "the wind's up a little bit today."

There are all sorts of theories about storage. One is that when there is surplus wind its power can be used to extract hydrogen from water and burn the hydrogen to turn a steam generator when the wind dies. Anyone recall the hydrogen-filled

Hindenburg dirigible and what happened to it May 6, 1937?

Another theorist suggests using solar energy combined with windmills.

Prof. William E. Heronemus of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst has the most ambitious program.

Heronemus wants to anchor 14,700 windmills at distances from 12 to 200 miles from shore off the East Coast. They would provide four times the power needed for all the six New England states.

About the time we built the 14,700 windmills, the Arab states would figure out a way to embargo the wind.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of 1975. There are 308 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1531, an earthquake in Portugal killed tens of thousands of people and flattened much of Lisbon and other cities.

On this date — In 1521, the Spanish governor of Puerto Rico, Ponce de Leon, sailed from San Juan on his second expedition to Florida.

In 1802, one of the great figures in French literature, Victor Hugo, was born.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte escaped from the island of Elba.

In 1846, William Cody, the American frontier scout and showman known as "Buffalo Bill", was born in Scott County, Iowa.

In 1918, during World War I, German planes bombed

Verona, Italy. In 1919, Congress established Grand Canyon National Park in Arizona.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin declared that unless the United States halted what he called aggressive actions in Vietnam, the war inevitably would spread behind its original boundaries.

Five years ago: Filipino riot police using tear gas broke up an anti-American demonstration in front of the U.S. Embassy in Manila.

One year ago: Ethiopian army units seized the second largest city in Ethiopia, Asmara, and demanded better pay and living conditions.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Jackie Gleason is 50. Former movie star Betty Hutton is 54.

Thought for today: Prove all things; hold fast that which is good — the Bible.

Dear Abby

She's In Love With Son-In-Law

— By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm crazy, but I'm in love with my son-in-law. Lenny is 22, and he's in love with me. (I'm 37.)

It all started when I went to stay at my daughter's house while she was at the hospital having a baby. (She has one child, a year old.)

I don't know how it happened, Abby, but all at once Lenny hugged me, and before I knew it, I was in his arms and we were kissing like a couple of teen-agers. I've never been so thrilled in all my life. We went the limit, and now I don't think I can live without him. Lenny says he feels the same way about me. He says the difference in our ages doesn't mean a thing to him. Me either. In fact this 22-year-old kid is more of a man than my husband, who is 42.

I would be willing to go anywhere in the world with Lenny, but I don't want to hurt my daughter. Also I have a husband and five other kids at home. Please give me some advice, but don't tell me to give up Lenny. I'm too far gone on him.

SEEING STARS

DEAR SEEING: You had better quit star-gazing and get back to earth. Your daughter and her children need Lenny. And you have a husband and five children who need you. It may have been a thrilling, new physical experience, but it's not the kind of stuff of which lasting marriages are made. Cool it, Mom.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you can settle a bitter dispute in our family. For the last 14 years, my brother has been running for a local county office on the Republican ticket. A few years ago, my sister's husband got interested in politics, too.

MISS INBETWEEN

DEAR MISS: Unwritten laws aren't worth the paper they are written on; furthermore, even though it undoubtedly strained family relations, there is nothing "unethical" about it.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to a man for 13 years, and we had three children. After we were divorced I tried to keep in touch with my ex-husband's parents because I wanted my children to know their paternal grandparents even though I had to initiate all the meetings. (I used to take the kids on the bus. My in-laws had a car and it would have been easier for them to come to me, but I didn't let that stop me.)

Well, I finally met a very nice man who married me and adopted my children. Their last name was legally changed to his. When my ex-in-laws heard the news the told me that since my children no longer had their last name, they didn't consider them their grandchildren — so the didn't care to see them again.

How about that?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Unreal! It's their loss.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Porcelain Art Club Schedules Annual Exhibit Tea Sunday

The Midland Porcelain Art Club's annual exhibit tea will be held from 2-5 p.m. Sunday at the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. Jim C. Johnson is general chairman and Mrs. J. B. McCoy her co-chairman. Mrs. James E. Riddles is social chairman in charge of decorations, which theme will be "Easter," refreshments and registration. She will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Houpt. Members will serve in the house party.

Individual club members will display hand-painted china and glass items which have been completed during the last year. Each member will arrange their own works. Specially arrangements will be for breakfast, dinner or luncheon tables, or punch or coffee parties. Members are requested to have their displays ready before 1 p.m. The Woman's Club will be open at 9 a.m.

Members of the Woman's Club and its shareholding clubs, as well as the members of the Porcelain Art Club and their guests are welcome to attend.

BRITISH COMEDY — Charles Dixon, assisted by Mrs. W. F. Pennebaker, will present a program on a current British play for the Book Review Unit of the Midland Woman's Club Monday. There will be a social period at 11:30 a.m. preceding the luncheon and program at 11:45 a.m. Mrs. Pennebaker and Dixon have been active in the Midland Community Theatre several years. Reservations may be made with Mrs. James B. Henry, 694-0137. Members may bring guests.

Excessive Use

Have you ever wondered what causes floor tiles to loosen? The answer is excessive use of water or harsh cleaners. Re-cement in place immediately. To prevent recurrence, use a mild cleaner and avoid flooding the floor with water when cleaning.

Gifts For Elderly

When buying gifts for elderly citizens, a box of favorite food makes a most welcome gift. Each thing could be wrapped separately. In these days of fixed incomes and high food prices, this is most practical and acceptable.

Midland Rose Society Sets Pruning Exhibition

The Midland Rose Society will be on hand, other than pruning demonstrations, to answer questions from the public concerning the growing of roses in West Texas. If the weather does not permit outside demonstration, the classes will be held inside the garden center.

The following classes of roses will be included: Hybrid Tea, Grandiflora, Floribunda, Climbers, Miniature and Polyantha. The demonstration will cover pruning for exhibit, pruning for an esthetic garden or "why prune at all." Members of the rose society will be on hand, other than pruning demonstrations, to answer questions from the public concerning the growing of roses in West Texas. If the weather does not permit outside demonstration, the classes will be held inside the garden center.

Peach Dish

Drain a can of peaches and place cut-side up in a buttered baking pan. Place a spoonful of currant jelly in the center of each peach and bake for 25 minutes in a moderately slow oven.

Lubbock Party Fetes Miss Lynn

LUBBOCK — Linda Kay Lynn, who will be married at 4 p.m. March 22 to Phillip S. Hollabaugh in the First Baptist Church of Midland, was honored recently with a luncheon and lingerie shower in the Lubbock Club.

Miss Lynn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Lynn of 2602 Lockheed St., Midland. Her fiance is the son of Mrs. Bill Suggs of Abilene and Stephen S. Hollabaugh of Tularosa, N.M.

Mrs. Jack D. Fogerson of Houston was the hostess. The U-shaped luncheon tables were decorated with lemon-lime clay pots filled with continental ribbon flowers in the honoree's colors and accented with ribbon butterflies. Miss Lynn was presented with a corsage of ribbon roses.

This Stock-ing Fills The Hole In Your Budget

Dear Heloise: For several months now this idea has worked so well, I finally hasten to offer it to you or any other gal who adores "nude-toe" panty hose, but has been dismayed at how quickly big toe nails (no matter how short or smooth), pierce through.

I use a 1/4-inch-wide "first-aid tape." (I find them quite transparent and nonallergenic.) Cut off a piece 1-inch long for each big toe, place tape 1/2 inch down from toenail edge and smooth over nail edge and on over the top of the toe.

This will last through several showers, and is so easy to replace. These protective strips are hardly visible and work so well—I haven't had a breakthrough for the longest time!

When I gave this letter to my husband to read, I showed him my toes to check my claim. He approved—and added that this should work for him, too.

as he has been going through his socks lately.

Dorothy Johnson

Dear Heloise:

If you are using your kitchen table and need extra eating space for a snack for your children, pull out a lower cupboard drawer, place a cookie sheet on the top and close the drawer until the cookie sheet fits tightly and you have an "instant table."

Cookie sheets with edges or rims work best.

Mr. Young

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: I've discovered a way to peel, chop and slice onions without tears.

Breathe out of your mouth the whole time you are working with them. No matter what—don't swallow, talk, or shut your mouth.

It works for me!

Mrs. Whaley

Funny or not, it does work!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My suggestion is for those who use powdered skim milk.

I find that if I add a dash of salt to each container of milk and refrigerate overnight the taste is so greatly improved—it is closer to the flavor of fresh milk.

I am careful to use enough of the milk powder to give an acceptable flavor—experience must be the judge of this for each individual.

Powdered skim milk makes a product which now tastes better to me than fresh milk, has less calories and saves me money.

Mrs. Horace Tutts

THIS COLUMN is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

The Tall City Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association had its annual Boss Night Banquet Monday in Holiday Inn.

Elmo Lineberger, tax-assessor of Midland, was named Boss of the Year. The presentation was made by last year's Boss of the Year, Cary Geron.

The Boss of the Year selection committee included Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Joe Dorniney.

Mrs. Pauniece Inscore introduced the guest speaker, John Hyde, Midland's city attorney, who discussed his job with the city.

"Mardi Gras" was the theme of the banquet. Mrs. Ned Pilcher was the toastmistress. The invocation was given by Mrs. Alta Gray. The pledge was led by Judy Rust.

Entertainment was provided by a singing quintet from Lee High School.

Mrs. Mae Baucum, chapter president, gave the welcome.

The history of ABWA was given by Mrs. Walter O'Neal, and Mrs. Esther Ruth Jeffords, the chapter's Woman of the Year, gave the vocational report. Faye King gave the ABWA creed, and Mrs. Bobby Alexander gave the benediction.

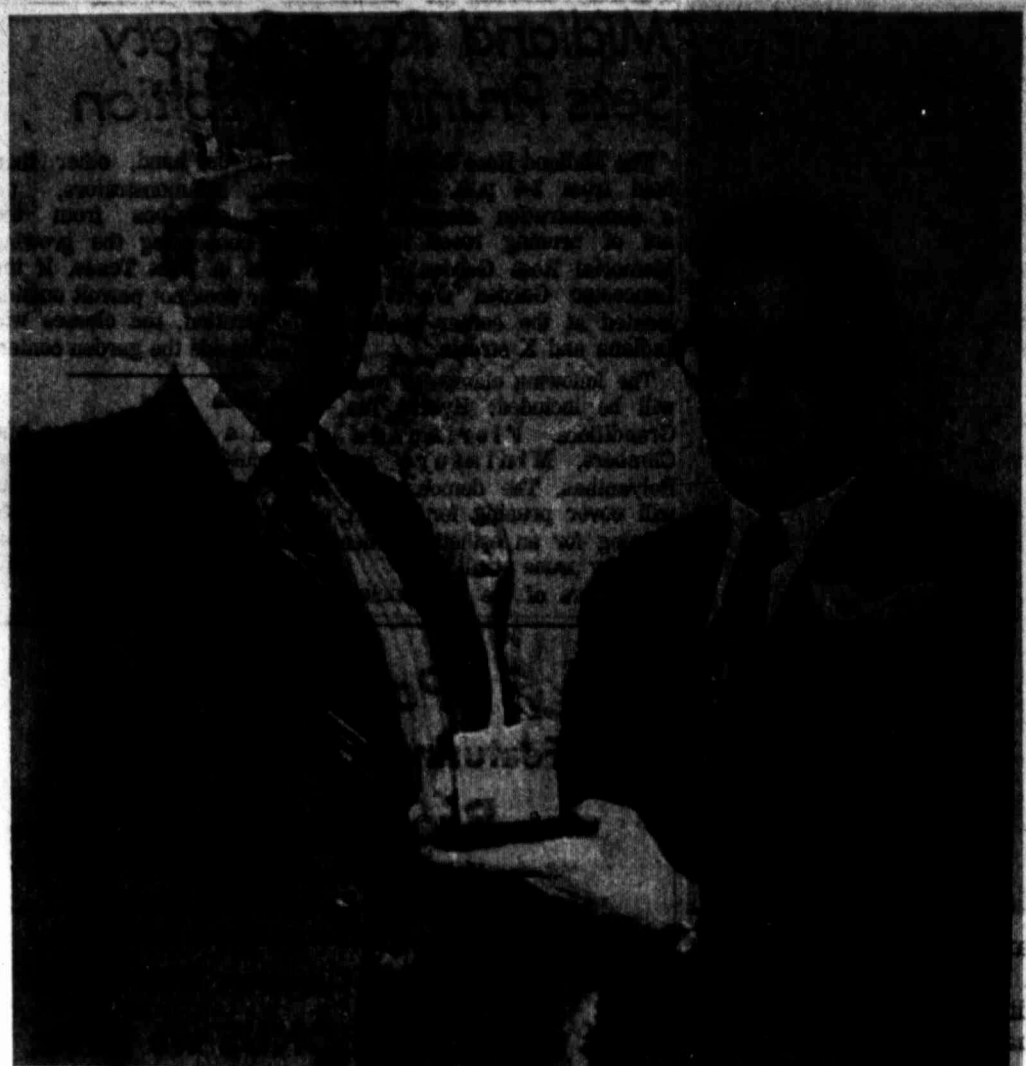

Jewels Program Presented Club

The Woman's Wednesday Club met recently at the Midland Woman's Club with Mrs. Lewis Davis, vice president, presiding.

Mrs. Ben Tarnney presented the program. She discussed the book, "The Great Book of Jewels" by Ernest A. and Jean Heiniger. Frank Hawk, Midland genealogist, also was introduced and presented a talk on gem stones showing slides of famous mines and samples of various stones.

Mrs. William L. Kerr and Mrs. Alan Leeper were hostesses for the tea hour. Red carnations and red, white and blue ribbons, commemorating George Washington's birthday, decorated the tea table.

Easter Ironing
Place the ironing board in good light so that you do not have to squint or bend over your work. Place the basket of clothes to be ironed on a stool beside the board and have a rack for ironed pieces within easy reach. A rubber pad under your feet and watching your posture help prevent fatigue as you iron.

ANNUAL BOSS NIGHT — Elmo Lineberger, left, was named Boss of the Year at the annual Boss Night Banquet held Monday by the Tall City Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Making the awards presentation is last year's Boss of the Year, Cary Geron.

Recycling centers are urging everyone to save empty tin cans, step on them to flatten them, and see they are used again.

But here's a way to put new life into a container and give it a brand-new use. The first step, however, is to open it very carefully and be sure it doesn't get flattened or dented in any way.

Although they are called "tin cans," that name is rather deceptive. For one thing, many receptacles — particularly those containing beverages — are made of aluminum these days. Most are composed of steel which has been covered with a thin coat of tin.

Those used to preserve food are usually enameled on the inside so there will be no discoloration. And, thanks to modern industrial methods, machines exist which can produce as many as 500 containers in one minute.

Small juice cans make ideal desk or dresser containers. But don't remove the top. Instead, use an opener that punches a hole — usually two are desirable so the air can get in and the juice can flow out easily.

Wash the inside of the can and punch two more holes. Work the punched edge so the inside is pushed way back and the sides of the hole are smoothed. You will find these openings are just the right size for a pen, pencil, and blade end of a pair of scissors to slip into without getting all tangled together.

Decorate Outside
Before putting the can to work, however, decorate its outside. This can be done in several ways.

Cover all the outside surface with contact paper, wallpaper, cloth, or any other material that will hide the advertising that tells its original purpose.

Along the top and bottom edges glue a rim of rickrack or a narrow strip of felt to serve as a border. Felt cutouts of initials or flowers or other decorations may be added, or paste decals or magazine pictures if that is preferable. The container can become as tailored or frilly as one wishes.

This kind of holder is particularly useful for colored pencils or felt pens. You can always be certain the one you want will be exactly in the spot where it was last placed — actually, "canned" and preserved" for future use.

Ironing Board Gets Face Lift

By BETTY W. Kinser, Copley News Service
What does your ironing board look like? Well, if it is anything like mine, it looks like it has a bad case of the Brown Crud. Let's give it a face lift. OK?

Spread an old sheet (or piece of fabric) wrong side up on the floor. On top of this, place your ironing board top side down. With chalk, mark around the board onto the fabric. Remove ironing board.

Measure out from this chalk outline about six inches. Make a second chalk outline. Cut on this line. Turn under a one-inch hem around raw edge and machine stitch in place, leaving a small opening. Insert either a heavy drawing or elastic. And — behold! — a new ironing board cover for pennies.

Make two or three so your board can have a new face once a month.

Ironing Cloths
To avoid puckering when ironing around tablecloths, iron from the center to the edge.

CAN HOLDER — This recycled and decorated can, its top punched with holes to hold items tidily in place, makes a handy desk container.

Game Party Held By Woman's Club

The Midland Woman's Club had a bridge and canasta game party and luncheon recently in the clubhouse.

New members introduced were Mrs. C. P. Pope and Mrs. Edna Keith. Ann White was a guest.

High score in bridge was won by Mrs. Robert Bechtel. Mrs. William Sands was the second high winner. Miss White was the guest winner. Mrs. L. R. Floyd won the special prize.

Plans were announced for a benefit Play Day to be held March 25. Prizes will be awarded bridge and canasta winners.

Austinite Wins Music Competition

AUSTIN — Award-winning Texas composer, Mrs. Fran Ledbetter of Austin, has been named first-place winner in a nationwide competition for composers which is sponsored biennially by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

This is the third consecutive time Mrs. Ledbetter has achieved national honors with her compositions in the NFMCC competition.

Mrs. Ledbetter's 1975 entry is a concerto in three movements scored for violin and piano, which will be premiered by her daughter, Lynn, during the annual NFMCC convention to be held April 24-30 in Atlanta, Ga.

Daley Trounces First Primary Opposition In 20 Years

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley has trounced his first primary election opposition in 20 years, and his Republican mayoral opponent said "it's impossible for me to be elected mayor."

Republican John J. Hoellen's wife, Mary Jane, told a newsman by telephone early today that he had withdrawn from the April 1 general election, but she refused to call him to the telephone.

Republican officials could not be reached for comment. Hoellen, who won the GOP nomination easily over two minor candidates in Tuesday's primary, also lost a bid to retain his seat on the Chicago City-Council. And in conceding that loss, he had said:

"If I can't be elected alderman of the 47th Ward, it's impossible for me to be elected mayor."

Hoellen, the only Republican on the council, had agreed to seek the GOP mayoral nomination only after a committee named by the party to find a match for Daley failed to find one. Hoellen headed the panel. Any replacement for Hoellen would be chosen by the Cook County Republican Central Committee.

Daley's primary victory had virtually assured that he would be successful in his quest for a sixth four-year term in the April 1 election. No Republican has been elected mayor in Chicago since 1927.

Daley, 72, defeated his closest rival, City Council member William Singer, by well over 200,000 votes in Tuesday's balloting. Two other candidates, Edward V. Hanrahan and Richard H. Newhouse, trailed.

Daley's Chicago machine, frayed after five years of feuding with independent Democrats and the jailing of several of its prominent members, still delivered big for the mayor in his first primary test in 20 years.

But Singer told supporters in conceding to Daley that the mayor's triumph was less a victory for old-fashioned ward politics than an affirmation by Chicago voters of the man who has dominated civic life for two decades.

"When people say it was the machine, they're wrong," Singer said. "It was a personal victory for Richard Daley."

Daley, who suffered a stroke in 1974 and waged only a low-key campaign, told supporters at his headquarters that he was "grateful and thankful for those voters who came out today in this inclement weather and unpleasant day to record their vote."

Singer, 34, had battled Daley with an 18-month ward organizing campaign and a 30-day blitz of spot television commercials. He attacked what he called the poor performance of Chicago schools and municipal corruption. With 2,933 of 3,146 precincts counted, Daley had 432,224 votes to 217,794 for Singer. Newhouse had 58,548 and Hanrahan 37,034.

Visits To Carlsbad Drop During 1974

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Visits to the famous Carlsbad Caverns National Park dropped in 1974.

Supt. Don Dayton says 671,721 persons visited the park last year compared with 840,000 in 1973.

Dayton said only during December was there an increase of visitors over any 1973 month.

AQUATIC UNICYCLIST — Faye Self, 17, of Columbus, Ga., has been riding the unicycle for two years, but she apparently hasn't done much cycling in the water. Attempting a trip across the chilly waters of a stream in a local park, she got off to a fine start but then the act came to a quick finale with a mid-stream wash. However, a little water never hurt anyone and in a few short minutes she was headed upstream for another try. (AP Wirephoto.)

Doctor Says Oilman Too Ill To Testify At Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A physician said that wealthy Houston oilman Ash Robinson is too ill to testify in the trial of his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, who was charged as an accomplice in the 1972 slaying of Dr. John Hill.

Another witness in the trial has testified that Mrs. Paulus Hill, who was the go-between in a kill-for-hire scheme allegedly planned by Robinson, Hill's father-in-law.

Defense lawyer Dick DeGue-rin said he had subpoenaed Robinson as a witness. Dr. Edmund Golden, Robinson's physician, testified Tuesday that Robinson was under indictment on a charge of murder in the 1969 death of his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, who was Robinson's daughter. A hooded gunman shot Hill to death at her home Sept. 24, 1972.

Hill was accused in the indictment of withholding medical treatment from his wife. He was tried once on the charge but the jury failed to reach a verdict. Another trial was pending when he was slain.

"This man (Robinson) has been accused as being involved in a murder," Dr. Golden testified. "This in itself has the man quite upset. Being in the setting of a courtroom (to testify) is additionally strain and stress. His testimony in a courtroom setting would be highly risky at this time." Golden's testimony was taken out of the presence of the jury. District Court Judge Frank C. Rice said he would appoint other doctors to examine Robinson.

It's Ridiculous!

The AFL-CIO now has urged Congress to take steps leading toward nationalization of the oil industry.

This has to be one of its most insane, most ridiculous recommendations of all time.

Yet, it shouldn't be too surprising, coming from George Meany and his henchmen, who apparently have little if any feeling for the free enterprise system which has made this country great.

This is what makes the labor union recommendation appear so strange. It would mean less favorable conditions for the working man.

They also should be aware of the fact that nationalization of the oil industry wouldn't stop there. It would continue on to include other industries.

Blaming the energy crisis on efforts of the big oil companies to "fatten the profits," the AFL-CIO executive committee, meeting at Miami Beach, Fla., urged legislation which would transfer into government hands the authority for importing oil.

"I don't think this is the worst thing that could happen," Meany said. "If the oil companies keep behaving the way they are—conducting their business in complete disregard of the interest of the American people—I think nationalization is inevitable some day."

This unjustified talk about the oil companies operating in complete disregard of the interest of American people is hogwash, pure and simple.

Nationalize the American oil industry? It's too ridiculous even for Congress to consider.

Let's disregard the AFL-CIO recommendation and get on with the business of finding and developing more oil reserves—under the free enterprise system and in the best interest of the American people.

'No Bridge' Complex

Bridges seemingly are a status symbol, insofar as county government is concerned.

And, believe-it-or-not, Midland County does not have a bridge withing its confines... not a single one.

One readily can see the awkward position in which this places a county and its officials. It is one of those "have not" situations which often lead to a "deprived" or "underprivileged" complex which afflicts so many units of government.

County Judge Barbara Culver, in addressing the Rotary and Altruistic clubs of Midland, brought the bridge shortage situation to the attention of her listeners in discussing the county's overall operations.

INSIDE REPORT—

Ford: Wooing The Republican Left!

By ROWLAND EVANS and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — In his frantic quest for enough senators to save the oil import tax, President Ford has totally reversed the old Nixon "hardcore" legislative strategy.

To President Nixon, liberal Republicans were untouchables, scarcely more respectable than newsmen and not to be treated with deference.

That repudiated Nixon's strategy of building a bipartisan "Hardcore" in Congress and neglecting liberals of both parties.

So, camaraderie prevailed for over three hours that night with liberal Republican senators at Mr. Ford's dinner table even though most oppose his oil import tax.

Such opinions were quickly offered. With Sen. Jacob Javits of New York leading the way, Eastern senators complained that the import tax impact on heating oil prices was unfair to their region. The President replied he intended to "tilt" the impact — more on gasoline, less on heating fuel.

The dinner encouraged the White House to hope that, though it believed only five of the 13 Wednesdayers opposed the Democratic bill suspending the Ford import tax, the number of "no" votes had been expanded.

Almost as disappointing was only one Southern Democrat, Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, opposing the tariff suspension.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — It now can be revealed that CIA agents have trained the elite units which guard favored foreign monarchs, premiers and dictators.

This has given the CIA contacts close to the seat of power, according to our sources, in such countries as Ethiopia, Indonesia, Jordan, Laos, Somalia, South Korea, South Vietnam and Thailand.

The CIA has been training palace guards for more than two decades. In the process, the CIA has quietly developed some bodyguards into informants and used others to influence the policy-making.

Thailand is typical. The crack, 60-man protective force, which guards King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit, is directed by a trusted CIA trainee.

"Whoever controls the palace guard in Thailand, controls the crown," one Asia-wise, ex-CIA operative told us. He claimed the CIA has run the palace guard in Bangkok since the 1950s.

Once, high government officials escaped one of Thailand's periodic coups and sought sanctuary in the basement of a CIA agent, our sources recall.

Fletcher Prouty, a former Air Force officer who had been attached to the CIA, described how the CIA saved former Prime Minister Sirit Thanarat in an even more daring exploit. The prime minister was recuperating in a Tokyo hospital.

The CIA rushed the ailing field marshal home in a U. S. military plane and the CIA-trained bodyguards responded with such a bristling display of efficiency that the coup was averted.

Yasawad's present protective force is armed with Thai-made, German designed rapid-fire rifles and are skilled at handling explosives.

They were trained not far from the big U. S. base at Korat, which became a CIA subcenter during the Vietnam War and is still a major intelligence outpost.

Yasawad has acknowledged only the existence of his special 60-man protective force, which is called SWATs for Special Weapons and Tactics.

ENERGY MUDDLE: The leaders in Washington simply don't seem to be able to get together on an energy policy. Yet the nation is in desperate need of a program that will assure enough energy to run our factories, heat our homes and operate our automobiles for the next decade.

In the White House, President Ford has proclaimed there is an energy crisis and has called upon all Americans to sacrifice. Yet Secretary of the Treasury William Simon is saying there is plenty of petroleum just waiting to be pumped from the Alaskan oil fields and offshore oil beds.

On Capitol Hill, Speaker Carl Albert has warned his colleagues privately that the United States must launch an emergency program to develop energy on the scale of the Manhattan Project which developed the atomic bomb.

Take Close Look At Third Party Chances

WASHINGTON (KFS)—Only the coming months and years can tell us whether Washington's Feb. 13 to 16 Conservative Political Action Conference actually will lead to the formation of a new national conservative party.

Before elaborating, I must state that I attended the conference, joining conservative strategist F. Clifton White on a panel to consider "The Republican Party: Does it have a future?"

For one thing, there is a vital question of timing. Many conservatives of both parties are already unhappy, angered by the Ford administration's delegation of domestic planning to Nelson Rockefeller, embittered by the left-liberal palace coup in Congress.

But if they are mad now, their anger will triple by autumn if we have 10 per cent unemployment, chaotic left-liberal control of Congress and clearcut Rockefeller domination of White House policymaking (one hardly can exaggerate visceral rightwing hostility to Rockefeller). Then the situation could really begin to ripen for an essential broad-based bipartisan movement into a new party.

Secondly, conservatives face important internal divisions on economic policy appeal to the neoconservative constituency of South, West and blue-collar areas. These voters, who constitute an increasing bloc of self-identified "conservatives" in current polls, are conservative on taxation and spending matters, but favorable towards "activist" economics that safeguard the jobs and spending power of the average American.

Left to themselves, many of the conservatives who gathered in Washington would be all too willing to play McGovern in divisive fringe issues. Evidence of this emerged in the final hours of the Feb. 13 to 16 conference when the assembled ideologues passed resolutions opposing the Equal Rights Amendment, favoring "right to life" and calling for the re-establishment of the House Internal Security Committee.

Lastly, third-party planning is dangerously focused on Ronald Reagan, whose friends say he prefers the GOP primary route. This could change, because despite the optimism of Reagan's strategists, there is no evidence that he can win 1976 GOP primaries.

For all these reasons, formation of a third party will not be easy. While I think it eventually will come, there probably will be a number of false starts and miscarriages before that day arrives.

We have been bombarded with letters from troubled Americans who are willing to sacrifice for their country but don't know what to do. "How serious is the crisis?" pleaded a Riverside, Calif., housewife. "Isn't there someone in Washington who will tell it like it is?"

JAUNDICED JUDGE? Federal regulations lowering the lead content of gasoline recently were overturned by the courts. The judge who wrote the decision, it now develops, was a former counsel to a major supplier of lead concentrates.

The decision was written by Judge Malcolm Wilkey, of the D.C. Court of Appeals, who called the federal guidelines eliminating lead from gasoline "capricious" and "arbitrary."

We now have learned that the judge for seven years was general counsel to Kennecott Copper, whose Ozark subsidiary produces much of the lead concentrates used in leaded gasoline.

A spokesman for the judge asserted that there was "no conflict of interest" in the decision. He refused to answer specific questions, however, about Judge Wilkey's present relationship with the Kennecott company. The spokesman would neither confirm nor deny reports that the judge has a current financial interest in Kennecott Copper.

A Kennecott spokesman said it was "against company policy" to divulge the names of corporate stockholders.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency has requested a rehearing of the decision. If it is granted, the same Judge Wilkey again will be sitting in judgment.

House Okays F111 Production Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives has approved by an overwhelming majority a proposal to close down the production line of F111 fighter planes produced by the General Dynamics plant at Fort Worth.

The vote came Tuesday night on an amendment by Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., to the budget recession bill.

The final vote was 389 to 3. The bill now goes to the Senate.

President Ford's budget had contemplated about $117 million in appropriations cuts. He wanted Congress that returned to go along, would increase deficits already estimated at $34.9 billion for the current fiscal year.

The F111 cut came to $120.9 million. Both Ford and the Defense Department contended that no more of the planes are needed.

On a voice vote the House rejected an amendment that would have killed the UH-1H (Huey) helicopter made in Hurst by Bell and the ATD made by LTV in Grand Prairie.

"I'm tickled to death we were at least able to salvage the A7s and helicopters," said Rep. Dale Milford, D-Grand Prairie, who was joined in voting against the Conte amendment by area Democrats Wright Patman of Texas, Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Ohio Teague of College Station, and Republicans Jim Collins and Alan Steelman of Dallas.

The budget recession bill now goes to the Senate where Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said he "will extend every effort to reverse this unwise action."

In Fort Worth, a General Dynamics spokesman said production of the F111 would end in 1977 if the Senate goes along with the House. He said a contract for the new F16 light-weight fighter, which General Dynamics will build at its Fort Worth plant, would cushion the shock of the end of the F111 program.

Some Employees Volunteering To Give Up Raises, Work Fewer Hours In Order To Retain Their Jobs

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As unemployment spirals upward, more and more American workers are uniting, but in a very different way. They're volunteering to forgo raises or to work fewer hours or to give up vacation days to keep their jobs.

Cops, airline pilots, garment workers, journalists, electricians, and textile workers are among those who have decided that a partial job is better than no job at all.

Some workers have volunteered to work a four-day week — at four days' pay. Others have turned back pay hikes that were supposed to go into effect under union contracts. Still others are alternating a week's work and a week's unemployment compensation, not always voluntarily.

The phenomenon, reminiscent of the Great Depression of the '30s, is spotty around the country. It involves only a tiny fraction of the nation's $2.1 million work force.

In Georgia, an estimated 75,000 workers, most of them working for 45 firms in the southeastern part of the state, are on a system of "partial layoffs." They work one week and collect unemployment compensation the next.

Orvis Coward, plant manager of Baxley Veneer and Clear Co. in Baxley, Ga., said about 65 per cent of the company's 100 employees are on partial layoffs.

In some cases, unions have initiated cutbacks that in less troubled economic times would be high raises.

At the Washington-Star News, for example, Newspaper Guild members voted 347 to 45 to work a four-day week for four days' pay. The move saved the jobs of 100 of the 560 persons the guild represents.

"It certainly is a sacrifice," said Philip M. Kadis, a reporter who is the Guild unit chairman. "People are cut short with overextended credit, but it was the best alternative under the circumstances."

More than 1,000 Great Lakes Express employees in seven states agreed to a 20 per cent pay cut for the first quarter of 1978. All but 12 of the workers voluntarily agreed to the cut.

Harold D. Doyle, Great Lakes Express president, said that without the pay cuts the trucking company was faced with layoffs of 350 persons and the closing of at least eight of 27 terminals.

In Ardmore, Okla., a Uniroyal plant has gone to a four-day week on alternate weeks for about 1,250 employees.

Ed Estes, industrial relations manager, said the alternate 32-hour week was planned for the first quarter "but the situation will continue under constant review and if the predicted upswing in the economy takes place things could change rapidly."

The well-paid pilots of Pan American World Airways saw the bumps facing their financially-plagued company and voted to take an 11 per cent salary cut. A company spokesman said the move could save Pan Am $10 million a year.

The pilots' average annual salary, including captains and co-pilots without seniority, was $59,110 on Jan. 1. With the cut, they're averaging $52,600.

Panel Chairmen Say Fed Should Help Public Find Comparative Interest Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve should be helping the public find out comparative interest rates on bank consumer loans rather than suppressing the data, two House subcommittee chairmen say.

Reps. Wright Patman and Frank Annunzio, chairmen of the domestic monetary policy and the consumer affairs subcommittees, said the data should have been made available to consumers in the first place.

Patman said he has ordered a staff probe and will hold hearings if necessary to bring out all facts.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is probing whether Federal Reserve Board employees supplied Consumer Reports magazine with Fed figures on banks' interest rates charged on consumer loans.

Chairman Arthur F. Burns requested the probe after the magazine published such a list in its March issue. The magazine had filed suit against the Fed under the Freedom of Information Act to gain access to the consumer loan data and a U.S. District Court here ordered the Fed to supply it. The Fed declined, pending an appeal to a higher court.

The magazine obtained the list from sources it refuses to disclose and published it. On Tuesday the magazine defended its refusal to disclose its sources.

"We're all paying for the Fed to do this through our taxes. Our taxes are paying for this information," a spokesman for Consumer Reports said.

Annunzio said, "At a time when interest rates are at record levels and the country is being hit with both inflation and recession, it is inconceivable to me that Dr. Burns would choose this period to play Dick Tracy."

The data showed a variance of as much as 5 per cent interest in what banks charge for loans to buy cars or other so-called consumer purchases.

Patman wrote both Burns and Banking Chairman Henry S. Reuss of his displeasure over the secrecy of the consumer loans data.

Patman said the consumer loan interest rates, such as published by Consumer Reports, should be available to the public and he questioned the Fed's right to suppress it or harass employees to make it available.

Bell Reports Income Drop

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. president Zane E. Barnes says the company's $16 million drop in income proves "we, like many other businesses, have been caught in the inflationary spiral."

Income for 1974 was reported at $314.4 million, compared with almost $331 million in 1973.

Although revenues increased by 11 per cent, Bell said expenses—the largest, equipment maintenance—rose 15 per cent.

Southwestern Bell served more than 12.6 million telephones by the end of 1974, the report said. This represented a 5.1 per cent increase over 1973.

Operations At Feedlots Being Cut

DALLAS (AP) — American feedlot operators are cutting back the numbers of cattle they are fattening, hoping beef prices will eventually go up and grain costs down.

The operators say if things don't change soon, many of them may be forced out of business.

Most—nearly 80 per cent—of the beef you buy in the supermarket or eat at a restaurant comes from feedlot cattle. Feedlot operators buy calves off the range and for several months feed them expensive, scientifically mixed grains until they are ready for slaughter.

Costs Increase
But feedlot operators say these days they are paying more for the grain the cattle are fed than the slaughterhouses will pay for the cattle.

O. N. Emerson, a feedlot operator from Eagle Grove, Iowa, says he loses about $100 on each animal he takes to the slaughterhouse.

"At the present feed grain prices, roughly $100 a head loss is not too far off," says Emerson, who grows his own corn and purchases a smaller amount of grain than feedlot operators who rely entirely on grain suppliers.

Two or three years ago, corn, for example, cost $2.50 per 100 pounds. It went up to $7 at one point but has now come back down to $5.25. In addition to grain costs, there are transportation, utility and labor costs, all of which have gone up.

Decreases Stock
Emerson now feeds 300 head, compared with 1,000 last year and 4,000 the year before that.

Why does he bother to stay in business?
"It's a stupid reason," says Emerson. "If you've been in the cattle feeding business for 50 years, you get a little homesick for the darn things if they're not in there."

But the feedlot operators are also homesick for the old grain prices, and many are hopeful of a big grain crop next fall to bring their costs back into line. The feedlot business, like any enterprise dependent on the vagaries of nature, has its good and bad years, and most operators are hopeful they can ride out the current downturn.

1,922 Major Feedlots
There are 1,922 major feedlot operations in the country, most of them in the Midwest and Southwest. A major feedlot is one that feeds more than 1,000 head of cattle at a time. The major feedlots turned out a total of five million head of cattle last year.

Like Emerson, most feedlot operators have cut back on the number of cattle they handle. Additionally, many cattle ranchers have decided to feed their cattle less grain and bring them to market sooner. This means more and more cattle are being range-fed only.

KEY CONVENIENCE — Jim Crawley, manager of A-Aaa Accurate Key Co., 2400 W. Ohio, is a highly qualified locksmith and offers quick key making services and information and aid in selecting and installing locks for home protection.

A-Aaa Accurate Key Offers Burglar Protection Advice

A-Aaa Accurate Key Company, conveniently located at the corner of Andrews Highway and Ohio, is easily accessible from all of Midland.

Jim Crawley, manager, is a fine and highly qualified locksmith, understands the problems that good security imposes and continually strives to be available to his customers. While managing the shop, he is also "on the go" in a well stocked and equipped truck which is also radio controlled for better service in emergencies.

Good locks on doors and windows form the first line of home defense. While a determined and skilled thief can break into any home, no matter how well-locked, most burglars are unskilled, and locks that require a great deal of force, which will make a noise, or intricate ones that take time to pick, will deter them.

A deadbolt lock offers stronger protection and this kind is frequently used today. A good quality deadbolt should extend deeply into the door frame; 1/2" is minimum, 1" is preferred. The deadbolt itself should contain a core of hard metal in the form of a roller which cannot be cut with a hacksaw. Deadbolts are locked and unlocked with a key on the outside and a "thumb turn" on the inside. If glass is adjacent to the thumb turn, additional measures must be taken. One solution is to install high-security glass in the window; another is to install a lock that requires use of a key on the inside as well as the outside, though this could delay an emergency exit unless a key is kept in an accessible spot.

In addition to installing good quality locks, you'll help safeguard your home if entryways are visible and not hidden by shrubbery. Never let your home appear deserted: If you will be away, set timing devices to turn on lights and radios in your use pattern to give the house a lived-in look.

If there's always room at the top, why is there so much shoving going on up there?

Two kinds of families are likely to have antique furniture — the kind with money, and the kind with kids.

Watch out for school children — especially if they're driving.

Trouble with suburbia is that everyone has dreamed of getting away from it all seems to have moved at the same time.

In these days of jet travel, the only long trips are from downtown to the airport.

Take a short trip to Hines-Wood Upholstery, 5109 Andrews Highway, for the best in upholstery work at reasonable prices. Call 694-8891 for a free estimate in your home.

And if you need assistance in making a selection at West's be it bathroom scales, greeting cards or cosmetics three charming young ladies in white jackets, Linda, Vivian, or Mary will be happy to help you.

West Pharmacy and West wishes to express his appreciation to the regular customers as well as to the many new ones who called on them during 1974. They made a good 1974. West anticipates serving your needs in this year.

City Council Will Decide Fate Of Housing Project

After negotiations with the area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) office at Dallas, the Midland Housing Authority has decided to ask the Midland City Council to now decide the fate of a proposed $2.5 million low-income housing project today.

The authority voted to rule out all possible site locations except its original choice — at southeast corner of Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive.

Harry Clark, housing authority chairman, told citizens present, Monday at a housing authority meeting that the authority did not see fit to incorporate the "housing assistance plan," the Big Spring Street and Scharbauer Drive site would not be approved by HUD.

The Housing Authority has failed to gain approval from the HUD officials on the East Midland site because of census tract — minority population — requirements.

Requirements for the federally supported housing projects outlined in recent letters to the local authority revealed that no project would be approved by HUD, unless it allowed minority persons an opportunity to move into an area of growth.

Clark said, "If the council does not approve of the additional project... then the east side site will not be approved by HUD."

He said if the additional project is not approved, the authority will have two choices — to scrap the entire project or to resubmit a complete new proposal. Clark said any new proposal would have to be in West Midland to stand a chance of being approved by HUD.

Professor Hits 'Civil Religion'

WACO, Tex. (AP) — A professor of New Testament, criticizing "civil religion" for serving the state rather than God, says "it is time for a church to be a church."

"It is time to refuse to sanction war, it is time to protest the rape of God's good earth," Dr. Frank Stagg, a professor at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., said Tuesday.

He was one of five scholars attending a conference on civil religion at Baylor University. Stagg chided churchmen for writing off as politics some of the things "highest on the agenda of Jesus Christ."

"Pure religion undefiled before God looks after widows and orphans in their needs," he said.

"Pure religion" does not attribute wars and fighting to God but puts the blame of "human depravity," the speaker said.

In a reference to Watergate, Stagg asserted the government granted amnesty to "convicted criminals, men in high places

Cotton Industry Gets Signs Congress Ready To Help Shore Up Faltering Crop

MEMPHIS (AP) — The American cotton industry, which has been on a downhill slide since last year, got indications Tuesday that Congress is ready to help shore up the faltering crop to insure production this year.

In hearings last week, the industry told the House Farm Committee that cotton producers were threatening to boycott the crop this year because the government-guaranteed target price of 38 cents was well below what it even cost to grow the fiber.

The industry said the United States was facing the possibility of having a cotton crop too small to meet domestic and foreign needs.

The House Agriculture Committee's cotton subcommittee Tuesday approved raising the target price to 48 cents a pound and lifting the loan level to 40 cents a pound, with both moves designed primarily to benefit the small cotton farmer.

"It will help some, but there still is not going to be as much cotton planted as last year," said R. B. Flowers of Tunica, Miss., who raised 3,200 acres of cotton in 1974 and is cutting it back to 2,500 this year.

The industry blames the depressed economy and rising production costs for unprofitable conditions that have been especially hard on farmers.

Costs of such items as fuel, fertilizer and farm chemicals have risen sharply in the last two years, while the price of cotton has been erratic, with a major fallback in prices in 1974.

Dabney Wellford, an executive with the National Cotton Council, said both subcommittee actions should be an incentive to growers to plant cotton, but he pointed out that pro-

Bentsen Sees Balance Between Concern For Environment And Economic Woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economic problems need not lead to an abandonment of concern for the environment, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and he believes creativity and ingenuity can balance the two concerns.

"I'm talking about American creativity in developing alternative sources of energy, such as geothermal, coal gasification or solar energy," he told the National Environmental Development Association in a speech Monday. "And I'm talking about American creativity wisely protecting our natural resources."

Bentsen said the conflict which exist between concern for the environment and the economy are unnecessary confrontations among people "worried about their families, their children, their standard of living, their jobs," and people "worried about their surroundings; their feelings about land, pure water and clear skies."

Bentsen, a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, says the United States can have resource recovery and restoration "with proper planning."

"All we need to do is look down the road, to ask questions about where we are going, and how we are going to get there."

As an example, Bentsen cited legislation to support the development of methanol plants to consume solid waste materials for energy production.

"Methanol can be made from diverse processes from such materials as coal, timber, feedlot manure, sewage plant sludge and garbage," he said. "It can be used as a fuel additive for operating cars or heating homes, cutting consumption of gasoline and oil and helping solve a critical solid waste environmental problem."

He claimed the legislation will also create jobs in construction and methanol plants.

If Clock Runs Out For Cambodian Regime, What Will Happen Next?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
An AP News Analysis

On the eve of its fifth anniversary, the government that took over Cambodia in 1970 finds itself looking at what may be the end of its road.

If the clock runs out for the Lon Nol regime, what then? Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who ran the country until 1970, is waiting, probably impatiently, at his home on Anti-Imperialist Street in Peking for the unfolding of the climactic act in what has been five years of grotesque mixed farce and deep tragedy.

Cambodia is sliced to pieces and it begins to seem that nothing short of massive American military intervention — a most unlikely development in the political circumstances — could save Lon Nol from defeat by the Communist-backed Khmer Rouge.

All Indochina, of course, would quickly feel the impact. South Vietnam would have another hostile state on its border, one with 763 miles of common frontier, and Saigon's situation might become precarious should North Vietnam mount a major offensive.

Some in the West will likely speculate now that perhaps after all, at least as far as Indochina is concerned, there was something to the domino theory that if one state fell under Hanoi's domination, so would the rest, meaning Laos and South Vietnam.

A decision in tortured little Cambodia can set the stage for yet another round of the sort of big power shoving and tugging that has marked the long cold war years. That was why Indochina was all so complicated in the first place.

Sihanouk, then on a visit to Moscow, was deposed March 18, 1970, by his premier, Lon Nol. The Russians, not caring to surrender the advantages of an embassy in Phnom Penh, were so pointedly ambiguous toward Sihanouk that he took to denouncing them regularly from his exile in Peking.

But after American bombing of Cambodia ended in August 1973, Moscow reassessed the prospects, evidently concluding that Lon Nol had a short career ahead. Accordingly, three months later, Moscow dismantled its Phnom Penh embassy staff as if preparing to influence whatever should succeed the Lon Nol regime.

It looks now as if the American military carried with it the kiss of death. About 45 days after Lon Nol took over, the Nixon administration ordered U.S. troops into Cambodia in support of a South Vietnamese invasion against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong hideouts. Thereafter Cambodia was ensnarled in a seemingly hopeless conflict that brought hundreds of thousands of casualties.

Sihanouk, whose Royal Government and United Front in exile bear the unlovely French acronyms GRUNK and FUNK, expects to be recalled to Cambodia. He also expects that eventually the Khmer Rouge will dump him — "spit me out like a cherry pit," as he has put it.

Meantime Sihanouk, now 82, is a key to any provisional settlement, even should he not last long thereafter. Given the complex relationship of the Chinese, Russians and Americans on the Asian continent, however, yet another Geneva conference on Indochina might be in the offing.

But five months after his ouster, he is subject to periods of mental confusion when he seems to believe he is still on the throne, reliable Western sources say.

They add the 82-year-old Sihanouk's radio has been taken away from him, apparently to prevent him from hearing reports about the guerrilla war in Eritrea province.

The Grand Palace, the site of the Selassie's former office, now is the headquarters of the Socialist Provisional Military Administrative Council that overthrew the Selassie's government.

Agency Says Cost Figures To Revamp Seven Railroads Has Tripled Since '73

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revitalizing seven financially ailing Northeastern and Midwestern railroads would cost more than three times the amount Congress estimated in 1973, a federal advisory agency said today.

The U.S. Railroad Association said it would cost $3.6 billion to $7.3 billion over the next 14 years to consolidate and rebuild the railroads into a profit-making quasi-government corporation known as ConRail. The rail association's price tag is for renovating current track and equipment and for purchasing new cars once the railroads have turned their property over to ConRail. The total could be higher if creditors of the railroads are successful in claiming that the government, through ConRail, did not adequately compensate them for their property.

No Recommendations

The association did not recommend just how the funds should be given to ConRail but said the funds and the maintenance work they would allow are the key to ConRail's future profitability.

Legislation already passed by Congress would allow ConRail to collect funds through a government guarantee of any loans made to ConRail by private investors. However, that guarantee is limited to a total of $1.5 billion in loans.

The association's cost estimate came as it unveiled its plan to restructure the seven railroads.

Mills Suffering From Ailments Other Than Drinking Problem, Friend Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills is suffering from ailments other than an acknowledged drinking problem and may never return to Congress, according to a friend.

The opinion was voiced Tuesday after Mills, former chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was discharged from Bethesda Naval Medical Center and entered an undisclosed medical facility for further treatment.

Jury Selection Continues Today In Cuevas Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Jury selection continued today in the capital murder trial of Ignacio Cuevas, the lone inmate survivor in a last August prison escape shootout that left four persons dead.

A statement issued by the Arkansas Democrat's office said his doctors "do not presently feel he is able to return to work and have advised additional medical treatment at a facility outside the Washington area for a continuation of the treatment he has been receiving at Bethesda."

Mills has not appeared on the House floor or at any committee meetings of the current session of Congress.

A second juror, a housewife, was selected Tuesday during the second full day of interrogation of prospective jurors.

The state is seeking the death penalty for Cuevas. Cuevas is charged with intentionally causing the death of a hostage, Julia Standley, a prison librarian. Also killed in the Aug. 3 shootout were a prison teacher, Elizabeth Besedy, and inmates Fred Gomez Carrasco and Rudolf Dominguez.

Each juror is being sworn in immediately upon acceptance but State District Court Judge Miran A. Love does not plan to sequester the group until the final juror is selected.

He has said he would be surprised if it took less than four weeks to select the 12-member panel.

He first entered Bethesda on Dec. 3 after a widely publicized series of incidents involving a striptease dancer. He announced during his hospital stay that he was being treated for alcoholism and that he would give up his chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee, but not the congressional seat he has held since 1939.

Commissioner Plans Conviction Appeal

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Cameron County Commissioner Russ Fowler said Tuesday he will appeal his conviction on a charge of assault by County Treasurer Ed Lucio.

Justice of the Peace Adolfo Betancourt found Fowler, of Harlingen, guilty and fined him $5 and ordered him to pay $75 in court costs. Harlingen lawyer Claude Carter, who represented Fowler, said he will appeal the case to county court on law.

Flight Service Unit Detailed For Lions

The overall program of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Flight Service Station at Midland Regional Air Terminal was described today noon for members of the Downtown Lions Club in the American Legion Hall.

Harry D. Hood, who is in charge of the Flight Service Station here, was the speaker.

The program was arranged by Lion Duke Jimerson.

The Midland station, according to Hood, serves an area reaching from Seminole and Snyder south to the Mexican border.

Hood reviewed the mission of the FAA in the United States, as well as its role in the community and at Terminal.

He also listed and explained the various types of FAA facilities, including Airway Facility Sector Office, General Aviation Office, Terminal Radar Control and Flight Service Station.

The speaker also mentioned FAA personnel, as related to their selection, training and duties.

Hood, a native of Elk City, Okla., is a graduate of the FAA Management School at Cameron College, Lawton, Okla. He was in charge of FAA Flight Service Stations at Jonesboro, Ark., and Lake Charles, La., before coming to Midland. He also is a former instructor at the FAA Academy at Oklahoma City, and has served the FAA as an evaluation specialist at Houston.

He presently is serving as vice president of the Midland-Odessa Federal Executives Association and is a member of the First Baptist Church.

Criticism Made

Massachusetts Asst. Transportation Secretary Peter J. Metz on Monday said the plan would increase unemployment in his state.

Shapp and Metz made their comments as details of the proposal became known to state and federal officials.

The rail association was established by Congress in 1973 to develop a plan to save the Penn Central and other railroads in the Northeast and Midwest that are reorganizing under the bankruptcy laws.

The proposal is subject to public hearings and will be reviewed by Congress before it is put into effect.

The proposal submitted to Congress by the rail association is the culmination of public hearings and analysis by the Department of Transportation, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroad association.

The plan still is subject to further public hearings and will be reviewed by Congress.

The seven railroads being considered for inclusion in a quasi-government corporation are the Penn Central, Lehigh Valley, Lehigh and Hudson River, Reading, Ann Arbor, Central of New Jersey and the Erie Lackawanna.

The 1973 law provides $80 million to subsidize unprofitable routes that are not included in the corporation. This money will be available to states that agree to put up funds of their own on a 70 per cent federal, 30 per cent state formula.

Heavy Opposition

The proposal ran into heavy opposition in several states even before its official release.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp on Tuesday called the rail association's proposal a disaster and predicted it would lead to nationalization of the railroads.

Some Abandonment Urged

The plan calls for abandonment or subsidization by federal and state governments of 6,200 miles of unprofitable branch and feeder rail lines and extensive upgrading of main line track to permit high-speed freight and passenger trains.

It also recommends that passenger train service be sharply increased in frequency on 17 routes between major cities and that the main track between New York and Washington be reserved for passenger trains with freight trains using other tracks.

The proposal submitted to Congress by the rail association is the culmination of public hearings and analysis by the Department of Transportation, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroad association.

The plan still is subject to further public hearings and will be reviewed by Congress.

Henry Ford Scheduled For Arraignment Today

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Auto executive Henry Ford II is scheduled for arraignment on a drunken driving charge here today, but officials say local rules do not require that he appear in person.

A personal appearance by the 57-year-old chairman of the Ford Motor Co. would be required only if his attorney enters an innocent plea.

Ford was arrested by a highway patrolman Saturday night for investigation of driving under the influence of alcohol. He gave a blood sample at a local hospital, spent a few hours in jail and posted bail of $375 early Sunday. He was back in Detroit on Monday.

A fine of about $315, a suspended 35-day jail sentence and two years on probation is the usual penalty for first-time drunken driving cases. But out-of-state residents usually receive only the fine if convicted on a first offense.

The California Highway Patrol said Tuesday it could not release results of the blood test because it might prejudice the case against Ford.

But the Santa Barbara News-Press said it had learned that Ford's blood-alcohol reading was .16. Under California law, the ability to drive is presumed to be impaired if the level is .10 light green leaves.

Ballet Stars Say They Want Privacy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ballet stars Valery and Galina Panov, whose fight to emigrate from Russia drew widespread sympathy, say they now long for privacy, "to escape from all the people, to be hidden from civilization."

But they credited the press and public opinion for their freedom and said they will be ever grateful.

The Panovs, who will dance in Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium next weekend, indicated Tuesday that they had become weary of publicity and questions about their personal life.

Reason For Name

The peanut got its name because the plant, when growing, resembles a pea vine with to be impaired if the level is .10 light green leaves.

Film Highlights Lions Meeting

A motion picture film "Discovery," produced and made available by Bell Telephone System, was shown as the program highlight at the Tuesday meeting of the Midland Evening Lions Club at the Ramada Inn.

The film dealt primarily with research and development in the area of communications.

The program was presented by George Bush. It was arranged by Ralph Nelson, program chairman.

President Jack Darden presided.

You, West, lead the king of hearts, and East signals encouragement with the eight. You continue with a low heart, and East wins with the ace. East returns a heart to your queen. Where do you find the setting trick?

Can your partner have the ace of diamonds? If so, South bid of one in a suit when have driven the hand to game only four points.

Fate Of Many Legislative Battles Hinge On Outcome Of Filibuster Rule Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill to create a federal confederate of many crucial legislative battles this year on energy, taxes and civil rights could hinge on the outcome of the current Senate fight over revision of its filibuster rule.

If three-fifths of the Senate can shut off a filibuster, instead of the current two-thirds, both sides agree that a minority would be less able to balk at measures to end or reduce the oil depletion allowance or to extend the voting rights law.

"It's more than just symbolic," says Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., who, with Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., is leading the attack on the present two-thirds requirement.

He said the present rule could mean blockage of such measures as extension of the Voting Rights Act, "everything that comes up related to oil and the energy problem" and tax changes.

On the other side, however, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., argued in the Senate recently that the current rule "has never blocked what the nation really wanted."

His argument is bolstered by the record of the last Congress. On seven of eight measures, the Senate succeeded in mustering the two-thirds needed to limit debate — but often not until after several tries.

The lone exception was the

with the king-queen of diamonds and two side jacks. What's more, East would have cashed the ace of diamonds, if he had it, before leading the third heart.

Only One Hope

If your partner doesn't have the ace of diamonds, the only hope is that he has a trump that can be promoted to winning rank.

For this purpose you lead the last heart. Dummy must ruff with the jack, since otherwise East would ruff with the ten. Now dummy's ace and king will draw West's queen, but East's ten will eventually take the setting trick.

Don't make it a habit to lead a suit of which both dummy and declarer are void; such a play usually costs you a trick. Today's hand proves that there are exceptions to almost all rules of play.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-10 6 2 H-A 8 7 D-9 6 5 3 C-10 9 6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Avoid responding to partner's opening bid of one in a suit when have only four points.

The difference between 67 (two-thirds of the 100-member Senate if all senators vote) and 60 (three-fifths if all vote) is shown in these statistics. The Senate has 61 Democrats, of whom 45 are from the North and West and generally are considered liberal and likely to vote for cloture on domestic legislation. A half-dozen moderate Southerners sometimes join them.

Of the 37 Republicans, between 10 and 14 are considered moderate-to-liberal and likely to join with the Northern and Western Democrats.

The remaining senators fall into two groups. Southern Democrats and conservative Republicans are considered unlikely to support any debate limitation except on national security legislation.

The total of liberals and moderates is approximately 65, between the 67 currently required to limit debate and the 60 sought by Pearson and Mondale.

Stock Mart Swings Upward In Some Bargain Hunting

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today in some scattered bargain hunting after two sessions of steep decline.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.38 at 723.56, and gamblers held a slight overall edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

"I don't think there's much in the news to prompt this," observed John J. Smith at Fehnestock & Co. "Undoubtedly we have some bargain hunting here by people who missed the big advance earlier in the year."

Xerox, the most active issue on the Big Board, lost 1 1/2 to 72 1/2 on top of a 5 1/2 point slide Tuesday, when the Federal Trade Commission rejected a tentative antitrust settlement with the company.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off .06 at 75.95. The session began on a slight downward track. But when the declines proved mild, buyers moved in, evidently convinced that the pullback that chipped more than 30 points from the Dow in the first two days of the week had run its course.

Except for Xerox, the glamor issues showed broad strength. Among the active, IBM was up 1/4 at 209 1/4; McDonald's rose 1/4 at 40 1/4; Polaroid added 3/4 at 21 1/4; and Walt Disney Productions gained 3/4 at 38 1/4.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .17 to 42.26. Millmaster Onyx jumped 7/8 to 17 1/2 at the Amex on news of a $18.55-a-share tender offer for the company.
