Unemployment rate drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a one-month increase, the nation's unemployment rate dropped from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent of the labor force in November, the government reported today.

The drop in the jobless rate equalled the October increase and thus left the unemployment rate at the same level as in September. The government said 7.7 million persons were unemployed in November.

Before the October rise, joblessness had declined over the previous four months from its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May.

However, administration economists attributed the increase to "special factors" and had hoped the downward trend would be resumed in November.

Despite the improvement in November, joblessness is forecast to remain above 7 per cent through 1976.

The unemployment report provided the Ford administration with a second dose of favorable economic news in as many days. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices leveled off last month for the first time since June, easing fears of a new bout with inflation.

In today's report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans without jobs dropped by 300,000 in November to 7.7 million following a nearly equal increase the previous month. Total employment showed little change for the third straight month and stood at 85.3 million.

With declining unemployment and employment about stable, the size of the civilian labor force fell by 460,000 in November to 93 million persons. Figures for Midland and Ector counties continue to fall below the national average, Floyd Wright of the Odessa office said.

The unemployment rate for the two counties for October, the last month available, was 3.7 per cent, down from 4.3 per cent in September, but up from 3 per cent in October, 1974.

Wright said the total work force in the two counties is 84,800. He said 81,640 were employed and 3,160 were unemployed.

St. Nick to highlight parade here

Santa Claus will make his official arrival in Midland Saturday morning.

The jolly gentleman will be the highlight of the annual Midland Christmas Parade that will include eight area marching bands in the 2.5-mile-long parade that begins at 10 a.m.

Parade chairman Sam Blanck said 63 units will participate in the annual event. Parade lines will begin forming at the intersection of Whitney Drive and Andrews Highway. The units entered will proceed southeast on Andrews to Wall Street and east on Wall to Main Street. The parade will then turn north on Main and disperse at the corner of Main and Illinois Street.

Blanck said the Midland Jaycees will sell concessions along the 2.7 mile parade route, while members of the Midland Bicentennial Commission will sell Bicentennial balloons at several locations on the route.

The parade this year is set to the theme "Christmas in America." The 320-member Texas Tech University Red Raider Marching Band will lead the parade, as well as present two additional performances in the city Saturday.

The Tech band will perform a 30-minute marching and musical "halftime" exhibition at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Midland Memorial Stadium. Admission to the performance is free, and those attending may enter the stadium through the west gate.

At 7 p.m. Saturday, the Tech band will present a special Midland concert in the Lee High School gymnasium. Admission is $1 person. Proceeds will help establish a scholarship fund for Midland students attending Texas

Officials seek bodies of Hoffa, one of killers

By TOM RENNER

The body of former Teamster president James R. Hoffa and that of one of his reported assassins were being sought Thursday in a Jersey City dump while federal authorities claimed they were searching for the body of a New Jersey loan shark who has been missing since 1972.

The bizarre body hunt, sources close to the investigation said Thursday, began with a Federal smokescreen in the form of three search warrants issued Tuesday in Newark. Two warrants were for filing cabinets of New Jersey Teamster Local 560 business agent Salvatore (Sally Bugs) Briguglio. Authorities believed, according to the warrants, that two .38 caliber revolvers with silencers and documents may be hidden in the cabinets. The third warrant was for a search for the body of missing Jersey City loan shark Armand (Cookie) Faugno, 61, a close associate of Vito Genovese crime captain Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano. Provenzano is the former boss of Local 560 and a former vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Police and federal sources said that the search for Faugno, missing since Dec. 9, 1972, from his Englewood Cliffs, N.J., home, was actually a cover story for the real object of the hunt — the bodies of Hoffa and an unidentified "wheelman" (driver)-assassin in the Hoffa-abduction-murder.

Even as the search was reportedly under way Thursday night in a Jersey City dump under the Pulaski Skyway, Robert E. Ozer, director of a Detroit federal organized crime task force, was in federal court saying he had witnesses to the abduction and murder of Hoffa.

Ozer had asked U.S. District Court Judge James P. Churchill to order three men to appear in an identification lineup so one of his witnesses could determine if they were the same three men another witness had identified as participants in the Hoffa abduction. "The first witness will identify them as active participants in the abduction and murder of James R. Hoffa," Ozer said. The second witness, he said, saw the abduction and could, perhaps, corroborate the other's statement. The witnesses were not identified but the three suspects that Judge Churchill ordered to appear were identified as: Briguglio, 46, of North Caldwell, N.J.; his brother Gabriel, a member of Local 560, and Thomas A. Andretta, 38, of Hasbrouch Heights, N.J., a mob enforcer for jailed crime captain Joseph (Bayonne Joe) Zicarelli.

A source close to the investigation said that at least seven men were actually involved in the abduction and murder of Hoffa last summer. The sources said that Hoffa's murder was ordered by "the highest echelons of organized crime" and directed by Provenzano who wanted to return to power in the Teamsters.

THE SOURCE said Hoffa was driven by "someone he trusted" from a restaurant in a Detroit suburb to an unidentified location to meet with representatives of Provenzano, including Briguglio, who were reportedly bearing "peace offerings" to end the bitter animosity between Provenzano and Hoffa that had started in the late 1960s when they were together in prison. Police sources said the driver who took Hoffa to the meeting was believed to be his adopted son, Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, who has denied such a role.

O'Brien has, however, admitted his car was near the Machus Red Fox Restaurant on July 30 when Hoffa disappeared.

The source said that the meeting was a setup and that Hoffa was killed, carried in the truck of a car to another location where his body was stuffed in a barrel, transferred to a van and driven to New Jersey for burial. Also killed, the source said, and buried with Hoffa was a participant in the murder who assassins felt was a weak link.

THE DUMP where federal agents were searching was identified as part of a four-acre tract owned by Philip (Brother) Muscatto, of North Caldwell, N.J. Muscatto, who faces gambling charges stemming from a recent arrest in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with New Jersey mob policy racketeer Emilio (the Count) DeLio, was described by police sources as a close friend of Provenzano. "He owes a lot to Provenzano who got him out of some hot water several years ago," a police source said. "He'd do what he was told."

Jimmie Oglesby quits county attorney post

By ED TODD

Jimmie D. Oglesby, Midland County attorney since 1972, this week announced his resignation from public office and his intent to re-enter the private practice of law in Midland.

The 38-year-old Oglesby, who has asked the Midland County Commissioners Court to make his resignation effective Dec. 31, is leaving office shortly before he otherwise might have filed for reelection to a four-year term.

"It's been quite a job," he said in an interview late Thursday. "I really have enjoyed it. It's a tremendous opportunity for a lawyer to meet the people, to deal with the people on a daily basis."

He said the job as prosecutor and as the county's legal adviser is "so beneficial to a lawyer who wants to get experience and to develop."

Though Oglesby did not formally recommend a successor, he did say that his assistant, Leslie Acker, by law would take over the role of county attorney until the commissioners appoint a new county attorney.

In his letter of resignation, Oglesby told the commissioners and County Judge Barbara Culver that he is not leaving office "because of any dissatisfaction or discontent; but, rather, from a deep personal conviction that it is simply time for me to withdraw from public office and enter the private practice of law."

Oglesby's first law job was as assistant county attorney for 1 1/2 years under then Co. Atty. Willie DuBose. That tenure began in January 1967 shortly after Oglesby earned the law degree from Baylor University and ended in September 1968 when he resigned to become a partner in the law firm of Lynch, Chappell, Allday and Culp.

He practiced law there until late 1971 when the county commissioners appointed him to succeed DuBose as county attorney. DuBose resigned to re-enter private law practice.

In 1972, Oglesby ran unopposed on the Democratic ticket for his first four-year term to public office.

Oglesby said his office doesn't handle many "weighty or heavy" matters but that "there is a tremendous volume of work."

In the criminal line, his office prosecutes misdemeanor offenses. Acker, 32, Oglesby's assistant prosecutor since April 1972, was an assistant city attorney here under Joe Nuessle the year before he moved over to the county. He holds the law degree (1970) from the University of Texas.

County Commissioner John Thomas, contacted Thursday, said the commissioners "will handle"

Five children freed by Moluccan gang

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccans occupying the Indonesian consulate released five children from among their estimated 30 hostages and allowed a mediator to enter the building, police said. Another 38 hostages are in the hands of other Moluccan gunmen holding a hijacked train in northern Holland.

The children were freed after two youthful hostages had been pushed briefly onto the balcony of the consulate and threats were made against them by the gunmen, police told a news conference.

Mexican Navy seizes 4 Texas shrimp boats

PORT ISABEL, Tex. (AP) — Four South Texas shrimp boats were in the custody of the Mexican Navy today accused of "illicit fishing activities in national waters of Mexico."

The boats, seized Thursday by Mexican gunboats, allegedly within the 12-mile fishing limit of Gulf waters claimed by Mexico, were taken to Tampico and Tuxpan, two Mexican Gulf ports.

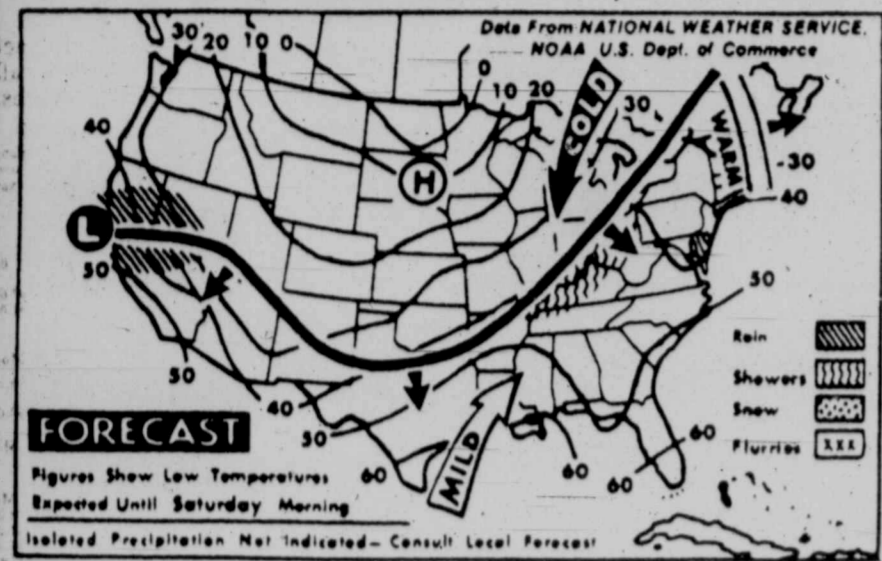

The shrimp boats were identified by the U.S. Coast Guard at New Orleans as the Betty Margaret, the Fantomar and the Miss Thriftyway of Brownsville and the Matsumoto Maru of Port Isabel.

In Brownsville, the Texas Shrimp Association, said it feared the seizure was the result of pressure put on the Mexican Navy to seize the shrimpers. It was the first seizure of U.S. shrimpers by Mexican gunboats since last March.

Mexico claims a 12-mile fishing limit and is about to extend territorial waters control to 200 miles while retaining the fishing limit.

Retired justice combined loves of land, liberty

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — "Come with me ... Walk the 185 miles to Cumberland ... Hear the roar of wind in thickets ... Discover the glory there is in the first flower of spring, the glory there is even in a blade of grass ..."
 So wrote Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in the 1954 letter to The Post that sparked the hike which launched the long campaign to save the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.
 In the many tributes to Douglas after he retired from the Court last month, environmentalists have cited his crusades for the canal and other parks about as often as civil libertarians have quoted his impassioned defenses of free speech. But Douglas' love of liberty and his love for the land should not be put in separate chapters or paragraphs. The two are actually inseparable. The unifying concept is the necessity for space, a cause that Douglas has championed with equal fervor on the trail and on the bench.
 To Douglas, ample space — legal and geographical — is vital for diversity, for creativity, for what he once called "a flowering of man and his idiosyncracies." Individuals must have room to roam, to stretch their muscles and their minds.

 "Freedom of movement," Douglas once wrote, "is the very essence of our free society ... Like the right of assembly and the right of association, it often makes all other rights meaningful — knowing, studying, arguing, exploring, conversing, observing and even thinking." This is the declaration of a civil libertarian, and the conviction of a hiker, too.
 In Douglas' view, the expanses of nature are as precious as the liberties protected by the First Amendment. Therefore the claims of nature should be equally recognized in court. This reasoning seemed to lie behind Douglas' famous dissent in Sierra Club v. Morton, also known as the Mineral King case — an opinion which many lawyers regard as quaint, and which many environmentalists have memorized.

 In that case, Douglas argued that natural resources such as rivers, valleys, meadows, and even clean air should be accorded legal standing "to sue for their own preservation." If a river or woodland cannot plead its own case, then those who "frequent it, or visit it merely to sit in solitude and wonderment are legitimate spokesmen for it."
 Douglas has been just such a spokesman, arguing for natural space as much as for personal privacy, the domain of ideas, and other zones of autonomy that government and society should not invade. In his volumes of writings, many of the most eloquent statements have been those protesting some intrusion — a wiretap, a police raid, a radio on a streetcar, or a highway, or a dam, or military planes flying too low over a chicken farm.

 In most of these instances, Douglas' target has been the government: overzealous police, intolerant legislators, or agencies such as the Forest Service and the Corps of Engineers which, in his view, have become "great despoilers," serving special interests instead of the public interest. But Douglas has not opposed assertive government entirely. Public authority can and should be used, he has maintained, to gain more dignity and opportunity for individuals — to help the poor, to enforce equal justice, to promote economic competition and to combat wretched living conditions which "suffocate the spirit."
 Douglas spelled out this view emphatically when writing for the Court in Berman v. Parker, the 1954 decision that upheld the District of Columbia's ambitious Southwest renewal plan. "The concept of the public welfare is broad and inclusive," he said. "The values it represents are spiritual as well as physical, aesthetic as well as monetary. It is within the power of the legislature to determine that the community should be beautiful as well as healthy, spacious as well as clean, well-balanced as well as carefully patrolled."

 Increasingly, however, communities' desires for calm and spaciousness are colliding with individuals' choices of living styles. In such conflicts, one might expect Douglas to defend the right of individuals to live anywhere and any way they like. But Douglas went the other way last year when the Court upheld, 7-2, a zoning ordinance in Belle Terre, N. Y., that barred the occupancy of homes by more than two unrelated people and thus restricted rentals to student groups.
 Writing for the Court, Douglas said that the ordinance would be suspect if it barred poor people, blacks, all transients, or unmarried couples.

Agent gives toy buying hints

By JUDY GERMANY
Midland County Extension Agent (HE)
The rush is on! From now until Christmas, parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles will be haunting toy departments to select gifts for youngsters.
Many appealing toys that seem to be good buys may be unsafe and inappropriate for the children. Three questions that should be asked before buying a toy, are:
Is it appropriate? Is it safe? Is it worth the cost?
The toy should be chosen with the child's age, interest and skills in mind. Some toys are for age suitability. Toys can be expensive. Many people spend more on toys at Christmas than they can really afford. Many of the expensive toys turn out to be a waste of money because they are seldom played with after Christmas. A successful toy — one that is enjoyed by a child and played with often over a long period of time — meet certain guidelines listed below.
—it is right for his age and stage of development.
—appeals to his special interest.
—gives him something meaningful and fun to do.

such as create a use his imagination, develop a skill, learn about his world, imitate grown-ups or "socialize" with playmates.
You also want the toy to be durable and easy to store. For infants and toddlers, select toys that are washable, too big to swallow and have no sharp corners and edges. Good choices are balls, a colorful mobile for a crib, a soft doll or a string of beads.
Toddlers also enjoy push and pull toys and blocks. Pre-schoolers like toys that can be used in imaginative play.
In buying a toy, also consider if it will be safe for all children in the family because a toy designed for an older child may cause injury to a curious younger brother or sister.

Remember, a toy is a failure if it has no real play value — it leaves nothing for the child to do. An unsuccessful toy can be cute, colorful, elaborate, labeled educational and so cleverly advertised that a child is sure it is exactly what he wants. It also may be exactly what mother, daddy, aunt or uncle always wanted.

DEAR ABBY Daughter molester needs help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I need advice badly and have no one to talk to.
My girl friend told me that from the age of 10 until she was 15, her father continuously molested her every chance he got when no one was home.
She never told anyone about this because he threatened to kill her if she did.
The problem is that there are still seven younger girls at home, and she is afraid he will do the same to them.
What can be done to make her father seek help without others finding out? Also they don't have much money in case he needs psychiatric treatment.
She doesn't want revenge, and she doesn't want the police to lock him up because her mother needs his paycheck badly.
I told her to threaten to call the police if he molests any of the other girls. Do you think that would work? He is a strict father, and all his children fear him.

HELPING A FRIEND
DEAR HELPING: Tell your friend that she should confide her fears to a clergyman, doctor, teacher, relative or some other responsible adult. Assure her that her father is a very sick man and if he doesn't get help immediately, the consequences could be tragic.
DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged, unattached gentleman who enjoys being well-dressed and well-groomed. I am well-educated and have good manners. I am fully employed in a position that pays a modest salary.

For the last year, I have been the constant escort of a well-to-do widow who is somewhat older than I am. She foots the bills for dining out and attending the theater, symphony, concerts and opera which we both love. (I could never afford it.)

The talk around town—that she is "keeping" me—is totally untrue. She has never given me one penny or paid any of my bills.
Would you call me a "gigolo"? And do you see anything wrong with this arrangement? There is no romantic involvement.
TALKED ABOUT
DEAR TALKED: A

"gigolo" is a man who is supported by a woman. You're not. I see nothing wrong with the arrangement. In fact, I think it's a good one for both of you, and as such, I'd tune out the talk.

Warwick, husband split

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Dionne Warwick and husband Bill Elliott have been granted a divorce after 10 years of marriage.
Miss Warwick, 34, told Superior Court Judge Leopoldo Sanchez on Wednesday that her marriage had irreparably broken down.

Elliot, 41, a dummer and actor, filed the suit for dissolution of the marriage last June 3. Miss Warwick's manager, Paul Cantor, said Elliott is seeking $5,000 a month in support fees. He has already been paid $10,000 to cover various costs.

Lancaster-Kerr marriage told

Cliff Avery of Midland was the best man for the double ring ceremony.
A reception was held in the home of Lieutenant and Mrs. Flynn, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom.
After a trip to Denver, the couple will reside at 2900 W. Illinois St., Midland.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER (Sat. Dec. 6)
GENERAL TENDENCIES Use self-control and do not become involved in any arguments, especially where those in positions of power and influence are concerned. Think of improving credit rating. Good for repairs to property-possessions.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to duties now that will help you get a head start on business matters Monday. Buy needed gadgets. Then out for recreation.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study fine new ideas but wait to start them. A new ally could lead you astray, so quickly sever the connection.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Keep any promises made, though not in the mood, then you insure success. Don't argue with loved one, but be kind.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't show annoyance at partners since soon everything is okay. Keep your end of work. Avoid an opponent or there could be trouble.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at duties even though you want to play. Don't be irked by a fellow worker, but smile and all turns out fine.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't go running off to high-expensive amusements that would not be much fun, anyway. Make this a quiet and happy day, P.M.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make life at home more harmonious and be helpful to kin. A new venture interests you but don't get into it yet.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be most careful in motion of all kinds now and thereby avoid danger. Don't criticize, but reason with an associate, or big argument develops.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't think money will solve vexing problem, since it would only mean further expenditures in the future. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think of the problems of others and yours will then seem small in comparison and you soon solve them. Social p.m.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy at work and you soon are free of despondency. Help the unfortunate. Be careful of a trouble maker. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A friend under pressure may not help you with a problem now. Be more self-reliant. Not a good time for group meetings.

Moist climate keeps skin youthful

Writers hear photographer

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Go northwest, young woman, if you'd keep your skin youthful looking. It seems the "natural humidity and moisture in the air keeps skin from aging rapidly." So says makeup artist Eduardo De La Madrid.

But all is not lost if you live in another area. If you apply moisturizers to the skin, you might get the same effect. Well-known — Eduardo makes beauty forays into cities and towns for a week at a time all year — he was comparing skins in different parts of the United States.

"In Miami and New Mexico women have dry skin because they spend so much time in the sun. In Denver one 27-year-old girl had the kind of dry, wrinkled skin a woman might have in her late 30s. Sun and wind can age the skin rapidly."

In cities where women keep up with fashion — San Francisco, Chicago, New York and others — they may be more attuned to beauty needs than say, Seattle, where they spend a lot of time outdoors, he points out. Even though it lies in the moisture belt, Seattle women can dry their skins prematurely by playing outdoors without providing protection for their skins.

Some women tell Eduardo — which he uses as his professional name — "My husband doesn't want me to wear makeup." But he considers that nonsense because "any husband wants his wife to be attractive." If he doesn't want her to make up it is "because she doesn't know how to do it or chooses the wrong colors or something." If she wants proof, she should compare photographs of herself in black and white and in color. Color makes all the difference, he says.

In fact when Eduardo, 35, arrives in a town he is likely to shake all the sleeping beauties — homemakers and career girls who could be beautiful if only they wouldn't take their looks for granted.

"I tell them the truth ... not only about their bad makeup ... their wrinkled throats that need massaging ... their hairdos that can be improved ... and how they are cheating themselves ..."

He hears excuses, he says. "How can I take 20 minutes a day for a beauty program when I can hardly keep up with the washing, cooking, cleaning and children ...?" is a typical plea.

"If a woman can't take 20 minutes a day to improve herself, she will age rapidly," he tells the woman. It hits home, he says.

Women worry more about aging than any other beauty factor, he has found in his tours. He is national makeup artist for Charles of the Ritz and is its special events coordinator.

In addition to providing makeup advice, he provides information about the effects of household pollutants on the skin and offers exercises that will help tighten flabby skin or ward off deeper wrinkles.

"Makeup can protect against dust, heat and the drying effects of air conditioners in the home. At the same time it can make a woman more attractive if she must answer a knock on her door."

Newer makeups have built-in moisturizers that make it easy to apply makeup smoothly. You don't need to slather it on. A little goes a long way and it can protect the skin.

"You don't get that brightness in makeup that gives that overly made up look. Reds and pinks have a tawny, brownish tone. Ginger, cinnamon, caramel, cornelian brown are all flattering to current fashions and provide a healthy glow."

Eduardo is trying to foil a few fine lines with moisturizer which he uses three times a day, patting it on lined places. He is trying to prove that it can ward off deeper lines at the mouth or between the eyebrows. They are barely detectable now but he is experimenting to see what happens.

"Little wrinkles form at the cleavage and these may not be noticed until a woman wears a low cut dress. She should massage her moisturizing lotion from that area up her chest and neck and out beyond her ears. If she wears long hair, she may not even notice that wrinkles are forming at the neckline behind her ears.

"Certain isometric exercises can help a woman whose neck is beginning to wrinkle," he insists, opening his mouth wide to illustrate how it can contract the neck muscles and help tighten the area.

As for applying hand cream, it is seldom applied properly, in his opinion. It should be smoothed on as if you were donning gloves. If you wring your hands together as you apply it, you are just encouraging wrinkling of the hands, he contends.

Eyeshadow is often overdone and there may be an overuse of blue. "Why not an eyeshadow that matches a dress, scarf, blouse, whatever?" he asks. It need not match your eyes. And if you have blue eyes why not green shadow to make them look bluer. This year's colors include lapis blue, jadeite, a cornelian brown — jewel tones.

He is asked how to make up for the Oriental look and suggests that jade shadow be brought out toward the temples and a brown shadow used "to make a hollow" at the corner of the eye between the eyelid and eyebrow, although he is not encouraging that look. He prefers a pale "porcelain-like" foundation and a powder in an ivory buff to soft beige.

Lutrell teaches a class in photography at Midland College. He started photography as a hobby and developed it into a profession. The speaker related experiences both in still photography and movie photography and advertising, public relations and

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Coast clear with budget helper

Dear Heloise:
I have three boys and they had a drawer full of worn-out socks but the tops were still good.
These socks were the stretch terry type so I cut off the tops for glass sweaters.
I much prefer sweaters to coasters but they are hard to find in the stores. These were free!

Hey, Janet, these are the greatest! You sure had your head on straight when you thought up this bright idea!
They will even fit of soft drink bottles or cans.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:
While sitting at the dinner table discussing my trip to the hospital, my 2 1/2-year-old granddaughter was listening.
I also had my car in the shop getting a new exhaust system.
The phone rang and my granddaughter overheard my husband say "tail pipe" and, with a very concerned expression on her face, she looked up at me and said, "Nanny going to hospital to get new tail pipe?"
Marcine Adams

Dear Heloise:
Just a hint for those who use that liquid laundry detergent for spots.
I buy the large economy size and since it spills easily I put some in one of those empty squirt bottles that liquid dishwashing soap comes in.
Bingo. I get that detergent right on the spot every time without wasting any.
I mark the bottle with a piece of adhesive or masking tape and write the contents on it.
Shirley Procarione

Dear Heloise:
I hear women complaining about large boxes of soap or food stuffs not fitting on shelves.
I simply lay mine down on their sides. All you have to do is punch the hole in the side and be sure that the hole is always up.

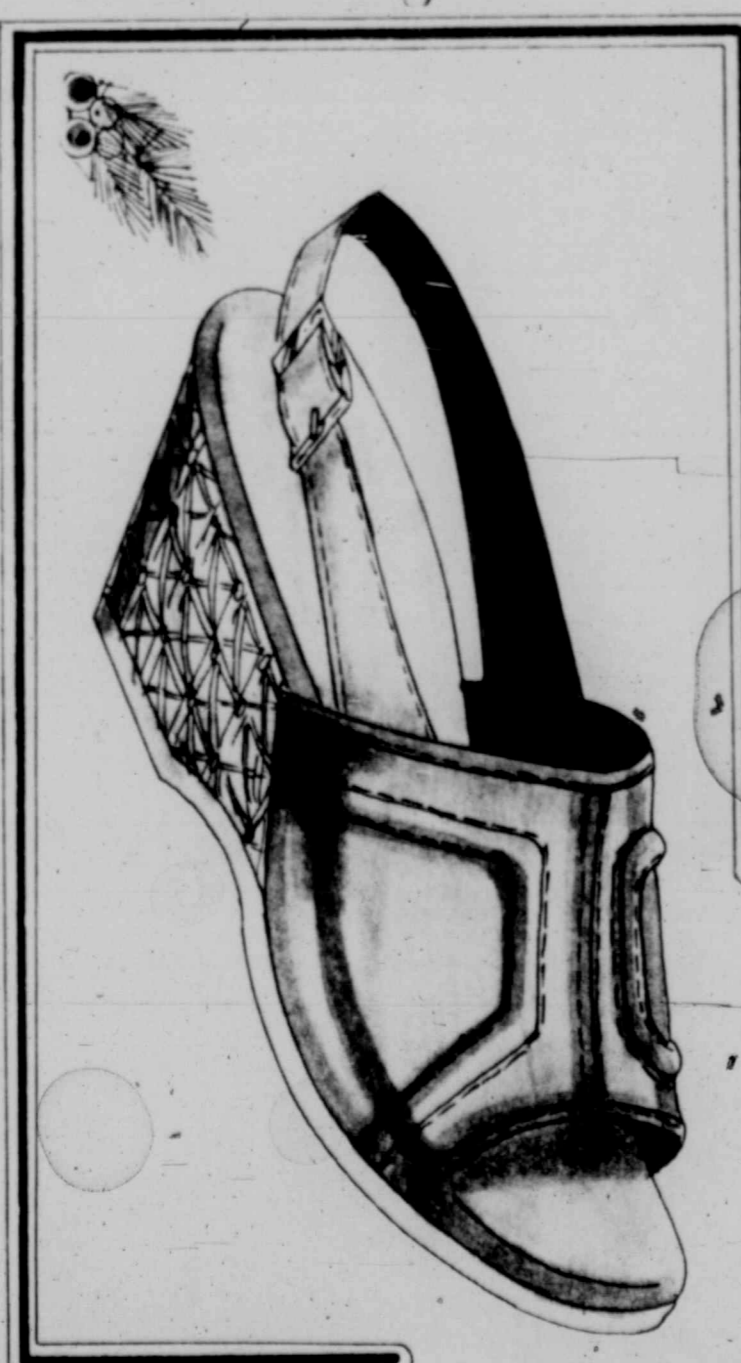

Elvis taking it easier

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Elvis Presley is back on stage after a bout with fatigue, but this time he's taking it just a bit more slowly.
At age 40, the rock 'n roll singer has orders from his doctor to take it easy. The hips that shook so wildly and shocked an older generation move in a more casual manner now.
Instead of the usual two shows a night, Presley will do just one, except on Saturday when he'll do two.

Hugh Scott won't seek reelection

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After 33 years in Congress, Hugh Scott has decided to end his elective political career.

There was no fanfare, no exit in a blaze of glory, as the 75-year-old Philadelphia lawyer called it quits at a Pittsburgh dinner honoring another Pennsylvania Republican.

There was also no news conference, which he had often used with consummate skill to make his point during the 16 years he served in the House and the 17 more in the Senate where he has been Minority Leader since 1969. He has 13 months to go in his present term.

In a brief, written statement Thursday night he said he would not seek reelection next year, alluding to his already long service to his state and his country and to a desire to spend more time in rest and recreation.

Never once did Scott mention the current controversy raging around him, centering on charges he knew about illegal cash contributions to him from the Gulf Oil Corp. for almost two decades.

Scott has been generally silent since the Gulf story broke, but his office released a response on the subject. It said:

"I have never knowingly received any corporate funds from anybody, anytime. I am not going to have any further statement."

Scott...retiring

Scott did not discuss the Gulf case with reporters Thursday, but he alluded to it in remarks at the dinner: "Anyone who lays a hand on me, let them beware. The courts are for that purpose."

Although Scott did not amplify on that statement, sources said he indicated to a closed meeting of Republican leaders that he would consider libel action should he continue to be accused of wrongdoing.

The Watergate special prosecutor's office is investigating the allegations that Scott received $10,000 a year in cash from Gulf, along with other Gulf money matters.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who came to Pittsburgh for the dinner honoring Pennsylvania Republican leader George Bloom, said he was not concerned about the reports and charges that Scott had failed to respond to them.

"I haven't seen anything of any substance that he did or comment on forthrightly, simply and flatly," the vice president said.

But there are some who say Scott, who tagged himself "The Affable Tiger," was more a cat who ran out of his political nine lives.

Scott's biggest undoing was his hawkish support of the Vietnam war and his staunch defense of both President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who both quit in disgrace, forcing Scott to make a 180-degree turn and cry apologetically that he had been used and lied to.

But despite his lame duck status, Scott isn't tossing in the political towel completely.

"I will campaign in 1976 as hard as I know how to elect President Ford and our Republican candidates at all levels," Scott said.

His friends say he hopes to be a strong voice at the Republican national convention next summer in Kansas City, possibly as chairman of the Platform Committee, which would create the policy for the party's presidential candidate.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the assistant minority leader, and Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., are considered likely candidates to succeed Scott in the leadership post.

Grape Creek Lions to receive charter

Paul Bozeman of Midland, governor of District 2-A1, Lions International, will present the charter to the new Grape Creek (San Angelo) Lions Club at its charter meeting scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Grape Creek School.

Tex. Mayer of La Grange, a past director of Lions International, will be the guest speaker.

The Grape Creek club is sponsored by the San Angelo East Lions Club.

President Ford arrives in Indonesia for brief visit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Ford arrived today for a 19-hour overnight stay in Indonesia, which the U. S. government regards as the central element in Southeast Asian stability following the Communist conquest of Indochina.

President Suharto and his wife greeted the American president and his wife and daughter as they stepped from Air Force One into a light drizzle and temperature in the 80s. It had been clear and near freezing when the Fords left Peking nearly eight hours before.

The Indonesian airport welcome included a 21-gun salute, a canopied platform to keep the rain off, 400 honor guards and 400 journalists. But the airport was closed to the public, and there was a heavy guard of police and troops with automatic weapons.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters accompanying the President the visit would be a "review of our relationship and the future of Southeast Asia, in which Indonesia is a key country."

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik described the President's stay as a "working" visit and not just a courtesy call. But American spokesmen said no major issues required top-level attention. The two presidents met last in July, at Camp David, Md., during a visit by Suharto to the United States.

One subject they were certain to discuss this time was U.S. military and economic aid to Indonesia. Ford has asked Congress to approve a total of $42.5 million worth for the coming year. But a senior American official said, "That's a minor problem. It will be handled on the aide level."

The official said Indonesia, the largest and most populous country in Southeast Asia, is "of great consequence" as it and the other four members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Malaysia, Singapore, the Philippines and Thailand — try to organize themselves into a political, economic and "possibly a security grouping."

Lee's Dixieland Band entertains Rotary Club

The seven-piece Dixieland Band of Robert E. Lee High School was presented in a special program of music at the Thursday noon meeting of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club in the American Legion Hall.

The program, arranged by Jack K. Daniels, program chairman, was introduced by Ike Nail, band director at Lee High. The selections were announced by Dan Shipman.

Nail explained that the Dixieland Band is student organized and student rehearsed.

Members of the band are James Berry, tenor sax; Jennifer Huddleston, clarinet; Shipman, cornet; Craig Graham, bass; Donna Spry, piano; Amy Dwyer, trombone, and Eric Christianson, drums. All are members of the crack Lee Marching Band.

Prior to the program, it was announced that the club's annual Christmas party will be held at 7 p.m.

Indicted officers relieved

HOUSTON (AP)—Acting Police Chief R. J. Clark says nine policemen indicted on federal charges of illegal wiretapping have been relieved of their duties.

Clark said after his action Thursday that the nine officers would be assigned to tasks that do not involve active police work.

The nine officers were indicted Wednesday along with H. L. Singleton, former head of the police criminal intelligence division.

They are charged on one court alleging conspiracy to intercept wire communications and six counts alleging specific wiretapping incidents between March 15, 1972, and March 1, 1973.

The new federal grand jury received the case Monday and is expected to meet again today.

Soviets react

MOSCOW (AP) — United States Ambassador Daniel Moynihan's charge that the Soviet Union had shown intention to "colonize" Africa is slander, the Soviet news agency Tass says.

Moynihan, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Soviet involvement in Angola proves his point.

Bentsen says Kissinger 'ignores Latin America'

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "treats the world as if it were a triangle — the Soviet Union, China and the United States."

Bentsen said Thursday that Kissinger's approach was "an extension of his own personality" and "ignores Latin America, which sits next door and could become an explosive situation."

The Texas senator spoke at the final stop on a series of news conferences and speeches in the Mississippi cities of Greenville, Clarksdale, Starkville, Vicksburg and Natchez.

It was his second recent visit to Mississippi, whose Democratic nominating convention will be held next month.

Bentsen said he hoped President Ford "accomplishes something worthwhile" on his China trip but that he thinks Ford should have stayed home.

Bentsen said the President "should be here in the country, spending more time on the job and tackling the economy." The senator said he felt the economy would be the presidential campaign's top issue.

Right blocks king

The Washington Post MADRID — Extreme rightists have temporarily blocked an attempt by King Juan Carlos to nominate a prime minister committed to reforming the entrenched Spanish dictatorship, informed government sources say.

As a result, the king has asked the incumbent premier, Carlos Arias, to remain in office for an undisclosed period. Arias, who was named to office by the late dictator Francisco Franco, has three years of his five-year term of office to serve, but he submitted his resignation last week to give the monarch a chance to form a government of his own.

AFTER MEETING with the king earlier this week, he agreed to reconsider his resignation, officials said. Opposition to a maneuver by the king to replace Arias with someone representing the forces of evolution surfaced after Juan Carlos obtained the nomination of his choice, Torcuato Fernandez Miranda, as president of Parliament and head of the 17-man Council of the Realm.

It had been expected that Fernandez Miranda — a close friend of the king, former vice premier and theoretician of the Falange, Spain's fascist party — would be able to ram the king's choice for premier through the council. But he failed to get a majority when he tested the king's candidates, sources said.

"The king is not Franco," said an official, "he could not get his own man as premier so he backed away from a confrontation."

THE COUNCIL'S TASK, among others, is to provide the king with three candidates for prime minister. Since Arias has agreed to remain in office, the council will not have to deliberate on nominations unless the premier decides to adhere to his resignation or unless the king refuses his conditions to "be his own man in order to be free to select his own ministers," officials explained.

Since Franco died two weeks ago, it has become evident that the extreme right, which controls a significant bloc of votes in parliament and in the council, has given its support to Arias, a tough supporter of the dictatorship, although he has advocated limited reforms.

In the past two weeks the right, led by Jose Antonio Giron, a member of Parliament and of the council who heads the 500,000-strong Civil War Veterans' brotherhood, has told the king that major reform will not be tolerated by the men who fought alongside Franco in the bloody conflict.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Action on a proposed reservoir upstream from the Cherokee Reservoir has been postponed by the Water Rights Commission until Jan. 7.

The commission completed a two-day hearing on the proposal Thursday but asked its staff to resolve a dispute over how much water runs through the Cherokee Reservoir, near Henderson.

Texas Utilities Service Corp. of Dallas wants to build a new dam on Cherokee Bayou. The firm says it needs the water for two 750,000-kilowatt lignite-fired electric generating plants.

Opposing the project are the Cherokee Water Corp. and the city of Longview.

TUS says it needs several governmental permits, including one from the commission.

House approves 1976 tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is likely to keep up the heat of his veto threat when the Senate next week begins scrutiny of the House-passed bill carrying $13 billion in personal tax cuts for 1976.

Ford's 2-month-old demand that any tax cut be tied to a lid on government spending was repeated Thursday when the President, in Peking, phoned House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes shortly before the final House vote on the tax bill.

Rhodes, the House narrowly rejected such a link-up in the form of Ford's proposed $39.5 billion lid on federal spending for fiscal 1977, the year starting next Oct. 1.

The vote of 220 to 202 against a spending lid found 218 Democrats and two Republicans overpowering 139 Republicans and 63 Democrats.

The tax cut then was approved 257 to 168, with 225 Democrats and 32 Republicans for the bill, 111 Republicans and 57 Democrats opposed.

Kelly base could lose 1,800 jobs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base, one of five military posts on which this town is economically dependent, will lose up to 1,815 jobs by next summer, the base's director of personnel says.

"The reason that the Air Force made this announcement today is because it takes a long time to work an exercise like this," said Lt. Col. G. R. Davidson, director of personnel at Kelly.

An Air Force announcement said some 1,250 civilian workers would be "involuntarily separated" by June 30 next year to comply with expected congressional manpower cuts.

Approximately 600 other workers who leave their jobs between now and then would not be replaced.

"The exact number to be reduced is dependent upon final end strengths yet to be determined by Congress," a spokesman said.

Davidson said it would be at least 60 days before he got a more clearcut idea of how many jobs would be lost.

"The difference between the House and Senate has not yet been resolved," he said, "so I don't even have what my manpower strength will be come 30 June."

Tax experts release tables of comparison

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional tax staff experts provided this comparison showing what the House-passed 1976 individual income tax reduction plan would mean to some typical taxpayers with normal deductions of 17 per cent.

The bill, which the Senate takes up next week, makes permanent the 1975 temporary law's hikes in minimum and maximum standard deductions, taken by those who do not itemize on their tax returns.

The House-passed bill does not include a continuation of two temporary features of the individual 1975 tax cut law. These features, due to expire Dec. 31, are special tax credits and new payments for low-income persons with children, and a special tax credit for buyers of new homes.

The table shows anticipated tax liability for various income brackets under the old 1974 law, the temporary 1975 law and the House-passed 1976 law.

Testimony ties Pepsi to Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. efforts to overthrow Chile's Salvador Allende, which one senator has called the Nixon administration's Bay of Pigs, may have been triggered by a "Pepsi connection," according to evidence before the Senate intelligence committee.

Testimony taken both in private and at Thursday's public committee hearing shows that on Sept. 15, 1970, Donald Kendall, president of Pepsi Cola and a close personal friend of President Richard M. Nixon, arranged a meeting in Washington among Henry A. Kissinger, then the President's national security adviser, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Augustin Edwards, publisher of Chile's leading newspaper, El Mercurio.

U.S. firms which controlled 80 per cent of Chile's copper production.

No one could say for sure whether Edwards gained his audiences with Kissinger, Mitchell and Helms because of his business association with Kendall or because he was publisher of El Mercurio.

A & M, Hogs seek Cotton

KEVIN STEEN, two-way starter for Odessa Permian is one reason why the Panthers stand 11-1 going into Saturday's Class AAAA quarterfinal football playoff game with Coronado in El Paso. See story, 2-B.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — For Scott Bull, Texas A&M's victory over Texas was like the death row inmate getting a reprieve from the governor. It meant a second chance.

Bull's first shot at quarterback for Arkansas in a "big game" was a disaster. It came against Texas Oct. 18. That day, Arkansas lost five of eight fumbles and Bull had three interceptions. The Razorbacks went down 24-18 and were counted out of the Southwest Conference race on several fronts.

Arkansas stuck to its knitting, as Razorback Coach Frank Broyles likes to say, and, with A&M's victory over Texas, is one victory away from the Cotton Bowl.

"This is what everybody strives for," Broyles said. "We don't have to win two, three, or four games to achieve our goal. It's down to just one game."

The Razorbacks play A&M Saturday at Little Rock. A victory means a share of the SWC title and a spot in the Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl against Georgia.

A&M is 6-0 in the SWC; Arkansas is 5-1, and Texas is 6-1. A three-way tie would mean a trip to Dallas for the Razorbacks because A&M and Texas have played in the Cotton Bowl since Arkansas lost to Louisiana State University in 1966.

The loser of Saturday's game goes to the Liberty Bowl Dec. 22 against Southern California.

Bull says the A&M game is "another chance for me to prove I can play well in a big game."

"Nobody said anything to me, but I think most people probably think I choked in the Texas game," Bull said. "Well, I don't think I did."

Bull said he watched every play in the Aggies' 20-10 victory over Texas. "I thought they had the best defense

I've seen all year, in films or on TV," Bull said. "I think we can run on them, like no one has this year, and score on them, like no one has."

A&M has been devastating on defense. The Aggies lead the nation in total defense, allowing an average of 175.5 yards per game, and in rushing defense, permitting an average of 71.9 yards per game.

The Aggies have stopped their opponent from making a first down on 65 per cent of their possessions. Texas, which entered last week's game as the highest scoring team in the country, managed to make a first down on only four of its 13 possessions.

Bull started the season as Arkansas' No. 2 quarterback, but took over the starting role when Mike Kirkland was injured in the third game of the season: The loss to Texas has been the Razorbacks' only black mark since that time.

Broyles said the Arkansas coaching staff had been amazed at the progress Bull had made and because of new confidence, the 6-foot-5 senior had become more adept at improvising — making things happen.

"He's doing a heckuva job," said A&M Coach Emory Bellard. "He gained a lot of confidence in the past four, five or six games."

Bellard says Arkansas has "worlds of threats."

"They can make sustained marches and they're capable of making the big play," Bellard said.

Arkansas' big-play ability diminished when running back Jerry Eckwood injured a knee against Utah State Oct. 25. Eckwood, who gained more than 750 yards rushing in the first six games, will not play against the Aggies.

Mike Jay started at quarterback for A&M last week, but injured his back and will not play Saturday. David Shipman, the starter at the first of the season, will direct the Aggies' attack.

"We will miss the continuity as much as anything," Bellard said. "Jay has been playing and practicing with the team for four or five weeks now. Shipman was a little rusty, but he's back at full speed and, with a week of practice, should be ready. You've got to remember that the only thing that got him out of the lineup was an injury."

The kickoff is set for 3 p.m. and a crowd of more than 50,000 is expected for the game, which will be televised nationally.

Permian, Ector post basketball victories in tournament play

Odessa Permian, Odessa Ector, Amarillo Tascosa and Lubbock Coronado posted opening round victories Thursday in the Odessa Invitational Basketball Tournament in the OHS Fieldhouse.

Permian had the toughest time winning in taking a 59-53 victory over El Paso Irving's Rockets to remain undefeated in five games. Tom McLemore and James Hunter paced the Permian attack with 24 and 23 points, respectively.

Ector won its fifth game in six outings, taking a 73-67 victory over Caprock. Dwight Randolph ripped the cords for 26 points for the Eagles.

Tascosa defeated Class AAA Pecos, 72-48 and Coronado zoomed past Odessa High, 82-46.

Permian and Tascosa tangled today in the 6:30 p.m. semifinal game while Ector and Coronado meet in the other semifinal contest at 8 p.m.

In another game involving area basketball teams, Greenwood dropped a tough 50-46 decision to Klondike in the opening round of the New Home Invitational Tourney. Big gun for the Rangers was Glen Cox with 16 points.

Ablene High is participating in the Waco Tourney which opens today while Abilene Cooper is in Irving in the Irving Invitational.

Andrews tangles with Kerrville Tivy in the opening round of the Kerrville Tournament today while San Angelo meets San Antonio Lee today in the San Antonio Tournament. Midland High is open until Dec. 11 when the Bulldogs entertain the Levelland Lobos in the MHS Gymnasium.

Also in the New Home tournament, the McCamey girls ran over Wilson, 60-46, while the Crane girls dropped a 61-34 decision to Eldorado in first round action of the Sonora tournament.

The Stanton and Rankin girls both took opening round victories in the Garden City tournament. Stanton defeated Irion County, 49-35, as Bonnie Bladworth had 20 points for Stanton. Joyce Plagens 14 points led the Rankin girls to a 53-35 win over Grandfalls. Lake View defeated Hermleigh, 77-8, in another game while Garden City rolled over the Reagan County junior varsity, 60-32.

Rankin took a 67-61 win over Grandfalls in the opening round of the boys competition in the Garden City tourney with Lynn Parker leading Rankin with 13 points. Iraan, Garden City and Eldorado were other first round winners.

The Stanton Buffaloes won their first game of the year with a big 60-56 upset over AA Reagan County. Doug McCallister tossed in 17 points and Tim Glynn added 16. John Edwards led the Owls with 16 points. The Stanton freshmen defeated Reagan County, 73-45, with Todd Smith scoring 17 points and Joe Woodard 16.

Haynie grabs lead in Far East

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Sandra Haynie held a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Far East Women's Open Golf Championship at the Victoria Golf Club today.

She fired a two-under-par 70 to lead Japan's Sayoko Yamazaki and Americans Sandra Palmer and Joann Washam.

They are followed by Americans Shelly Hamlin, Joyce Kazmierski, Sue Roberts and Judy Rankin; Japan's Chako Higuchi and Australian Gayle Flynn, a professional, and amateur Sandra McCaw with par 72s each.

Miss Haynie had four birdies and two bogeys in her round. She birdied the third with a 12-foot putt, bogeyed the par-3 seventh and then birdied the eighth when she putt her second and two putted from 35 feet. She three-putted the 12th and then sank birdie putts on the 16th and 17th.

She said she had nothing to eat since Thursday because of an upset stomach.

"When I didn't appear at the cocktail party last night the other girls threw out the panic button and called the doctor."

"However, it was only a tourist stomach and nothing to worry about. I have been taking some pills but am hoping for some liquid when I get back to the hotel tonight."

She described her golf as a mixture of good and bad but said she drove well and didn't make any drastic mistakes.

Miss Washam, who led by two strokes at one stage of the day, had the best nine today when she made the turn in a two-under par 34. On the back nine she had a 37.

Dunkel dies in Florida

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard C. Dunkel, founder of the nationally syndicated Dunkel Football and Basketball Index, died Thursday after a lengthy illness. He was 69.

He retired three years ago as head of the research service that he founded in 1929 and expanded into a rating system carried in 140 newspapers across the nation.

Bulldogs run in regionals

Midland High will have the opportunity to avenge the only two cross-country defeats it suffered all year in the AAAA regional meet at Abilene Christian College Saturday morning.

The Bulldogs' lone losses this fall came at El Paso and Amarillo.

Coach Edwin Nixon wasn't too disturbed by the showing in the Border City. After all, El Paso is to cross-country what the Permian Basin is to high school football. However, at Amarillo the team didn't run up to its capabilities.

However, they more than made up for it in the District 5-4A meet at San Angelo last week, taking six of the first seven places. The Bulldogs' winning margin was awesome, a low 17 points, based on the finishing spot of each runner, to 67 for Midland Lee.

Robert Wilson led the way over the two-mile course with a 9:55, giving him four first places for the year.

Harold Stewart ran a 10:09 for second and Jeff Adkins was third in 10:11. After that it was Mike Darden in fifth, David Wolfe in sixth and Pat Darden in seventh.

Midland Lee took second on a 10th place finish by Charles Hamilton, a 12th by Monte Wright, and a 13th by Ed Singleton.

Saturday's meet will be run over a two-mile course at Nelson Park and Division A will get underway at 11:50 a.m. The meet starts with Division B girls running at 11 a.m. and Division A girls running at 11:15 a.m.

Going into the meet the big question for the Bulldogs is, can they run with the El Paso schools?

"One thing that hurt us out there was the size of the field," Nixon explained hopefully. "There were so many in the starting field that it took a sprinter's start to keep from getting lost in the crowd. I think at El Paso, we just ran ourselves out in the first quarter mile or so."

Nixon hopes a smaller field for regional will enable the Bulldogs to run their normal race.

Rebels cop easy win

LUBBOCK — Junior Miller ripped the cords for 27 points Thursday afternoon to spark the Midland Lee Rebels to an easy 90-57 victory over the Lubbock Westerners in the opening round of the Plainview Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Miller also got scoring help from Billy Ray Ennis with 17 more for the Rebels who joined Plainview, Snyder and Big Spring in the winner's bracket.

Plainview blasted Amarillo Palo Duro, 68-48 while Big Spring disposed of Lubbock Dunbar, 65-50. Snyder dropped Clovis, N.M., 66-55 to round out the opening round of action.

Lee plays again today at 5:30 p.m. against Big Spring's Steers in the winner's bracket while Plainview tangles with Snyder at 8 p.m. in the other semifinal match.

Miller scored 25 of his 27 points in the first half as the Rebs were bringing their season record to 4-2 going into today's game with the STEERS.

Chapstop Hawks in 112-109 upset

BY TED BATTLES

BIG SPRING — Midland College made up for the one that got away Monday by upsetting Howard College, 112-109, in a frenzied Western Junior College Athletic Conference game Thursday that saw five players foul out, two players thrown out and Chaparral Coach Chester Story disqualified after three technical fouls.

Monday Midland squandered a 14-point lead at home in losing to WJCAAC favorite Amarillo College 83-81 in the final eight seconds.

Thursday MC won the same way they lost Monday, at the free throw line. Missed free throws against AC let the Badgers escape unscathed and it was the Chaps' ability to convert from the line that kept the Hawks, now 10-2 and fresh from a win over previously unbeaten New Mexico Military Institute, at bay.

Midland's last 16 points came from the line. Midland's sixth win in nine starts came after a foul strewn game which saw 67 violations called.

Four Hawks fouled out and Jeff Jackson got the early exit for Midland. Story's exit came 3:40 into the second half when MC's 6-8 Dan Vanderzee and Howard's Daryl Scoggin were ejected from the game.

"All I did was ask how come Vanderzee was thrown out," Story said later and the inquiry brought two quick techs.

Actually, Vanderzee and Scoggin were innocent victims trying to keep the peace after a scuffle broke out between other players.

Howard's Marvin Johnson converted both technicals and added two more free throws 12 seconds later to give the Hawks a 67-61 lead and it looked like this might be the game's turning point.

Midland rallied on the shooting of 6-5 Jackson Pace and Sim Nickerson to tie it at 69. After falling behind 73-69, Ricky Daniel, Nickerson, Jeff Jackson and Crawford Williams sparked a spurt that saw MC jump to a 78-74 lead and the Chaps never trailed thereafter.

Andrews returned to his West Peabody home after playing second base for the Kintetsu Buffaloes of Osaka. He said he told them when he left he would not be back.
He said he had played every day, but had no desire to return to a style of play and strategy he considered behind the times. "It's too much of a job," he said, noting they have three hour practices before every game.

Research reveals some families prone to cancer

The Washington Post
ORLANDO, Fla. — Women in some families run such a great risk of cancer that doctors recommend the removal of their breasts and ovaries even though there are no signs of the disease, experts reported here Wednesday.
 Both breasts of one 19-year-old woman — whose mother, sisters, grandmother, aunts and cousins had developed breast cancer — were removed as a preventative measure, Dr. Henry T. Lynch of the Creighton University School of Medicine in Omaha told a meeting on cancer and genetics here sponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the National Foundation-March of Dimes.
 He and Dr. Joseph Fraumeni Jr. of the National Cancer Institute also reported on 14 other women from four high-risk families whose ovaries were removed even though there were no signs that cancer was developing in them. Lynch said he has recommended removal of ovaries in other cases in which the patients belonged to cancer-prone families.

 But Dr. Fraumeni said a microscopic examination of the ovaries after removal showed precancerous changes that could not have been detected otherwise had begun in three of the 14 women.
 "Those ovaries are better in the jar than in the body," said Dr. Lynch, a professor of preventive medicine.

FOR THOSE women who run a great risk of developing cancer of the uterus, Lynch said the removal operation could be postponed until the patient has given birth to all the children she wants. The operation is necessary, he said, because diagnostic techniques now available are not sophisticated enough to catch the cancer in time to treat it successfully in many cases.

 Lynch said his study of 5,000 persons in Omaha and Detroit shows the risk of cancer increases largely markedly if there is a strong family history of the disease. If more than three close relatives have cancer, he said, a person runs a 22 per cent risk of developing cancer himself. The risk drops to 10 per cent if only one close relative had cancer.

Lynch said one in 14 Americans belongs to a cancer prone family.
 As an example, he cited the family of the 19-year-old woman whose breasts were removed as a preventive measure. Her two sisters developed breast cancer at an unusually early age — 22 and 29 — while her mother had it at age 42 and her grandmother at age 48. In addition, he said, several aunts and cousins had breast cancer in their forties and fifties.

 The odds on that woman developing breast cancer were as high as 50-50, Lynch said. He recommended immediate breast removal because the yearly X-rays required for early detection of breast cancer would add to her risk.

SOME TYPES of cancer appear to run together in families, Lynch and Fraumeni said. These include cancers of the breast and ovaries, cancers of the colon and the lining of the uterus; and cancers of the adrenal gland and brain. Men in families with histories of female breast cancer often have an increased risk of developing cancer of the gastro-intestinal tract, especially of the colon, said Lynch.

For this reason, he advised doctors to keep an especially close watch on members of cancer-prone families, and cited the case of a family that insisted on special, diagnostic procedures that caught two cancers early enough so they could be treated successfully. They also recommended creation of a national registry of cancer-prone families.

Estrogen pill linked to womb cancer

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Female sex hormone pills being taken by millions of women to ease the symptoms of menopause may be causing womb cancer and should be prescribed cautiously, if at all, a group of doctors warn in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

Their reports have caused the Food and Drug Administration to schedule a full day's discussion of these pills at a Dec. 16 advisory committee meeting.

"We might very well consider" giving "high priority" to preparing new warnings both for doctors and patients, Dr. Marion Finkel, an FDA associate director, said Wednesday.

The pills are mixtures of estrogens or female sex hormones. About 80 per cent of an estimated 6 million to 10 million women who take them use a product called Premarin, made by Ayerst Laboratories, a subsidiary of American Home Products.

Estrogens first came into use to help in menopause some 30 years ago. Their use skyrocketed in the last 15 years, as some doctors strongly advocated them to help hot flashes and discomfort in women in their 50s and 60s, as well as more serious problems like dryness of vaginal tissues and bone deterioration.

A free lecture, "The Power of God," will be presented here Monday night under auspices of Midland's First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The 8 p.m. event will be in Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana St.

Guest speaker will be Horacio Omar Rivas, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lecturership. The native of Buenos Aires, as a member of the Board of Lecturership, is one of approximately 30 Christian Science lecturers who present more than 4,000 talks yearly on six continents. Accompanying him on his current tour of the Southwestern U.S. is his wife Heloisa, a native of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Rivas studied economics at the University of Buenos Aires and was at one time in business in the Argentine capital. In 1967 he moved to Boston to become a translator for the Christian Science Publishing Society and in 1968 entered the healing ministry of Christian Science. He was appointed to the lecturership board a few years later.

Rivas' program here Monday night is the first of two public lectures which the Midland Christian Science congregation will sponsor this season.

Hollingsworth to head presbytery

The Rev. Charles J. Hollingsworth of Augusta, Ga., has assumed his new position as general presbyter of the Presbytery of Tres Rios, Presbyterian Church, U.S., with headquarters here.

The presbytery, in a called meeting last Nov. 13, extended a call to Mr. Hollingsworth to fill the position here. He was received into the presbytery at another called meeting held Thursday afternoon in Midland's First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth and their three sons, Stephen David, 16; Andrew Allen, 13, and Thomas Milton, 11, arrived here earlier this week to establish their home.

A reception for the Hollingsworths was held following Thursday's presbytery session in the parlor of the First Church.

Mr. Hollingsworth, a native of Macon, Ga., holds degrees from the Georgia Institute of Technology, Columbia Theological Seminary and McCormick Theological Seminary.

He held pastorates at Eatonton, Ga., and Rowland, N.C., before becoming associate executive secretary of Charleston Presbytery, Charleston, S.C., in April 1969. He served in that capacity until August 1974, when he became the associate director of the Resourcing System for the Synod of the Southeast at Augusta. He resigned that post to accept the Tres Rios Presbytery position.

Tensions rising for churches

By GEORGE CORNELL AP Religion Writer

A sharpened social conscience among church leaders in South America, coupled with the rise of new authoritarian regimes, is producing heightened tensions between churches and governments.

Arrests or expulsion of clergy have become commonplace in several countries, along with expressions and demonstrations of church resistance. At least a half dozen American missionaries recently have been jailed or ousted and one killed.

"The church is making an explicit effort to associate itself much more boldly and audaciously with the poor and to aid in the liberation of people," says the Rev. Miguel D'Escoto, a Maryknoll priest and experienced hand on the Latin American scene.

"A kind of church awakening has taken place," says the Rev. William Wipfler, Latin American secretary of the U.S. National Council of Churches.

The 7:30 p.m. event will be open to the public according to Gardens Assembly's pastor, the Rev. Paul Cox, as most promising new talent in the gospel music field. The ensemble is headed by John Matthews who has spent more than three decades of which was spent with the well-known Rebels Quartet. Other members of the group include son Dale, daughters Linda and Beverly and son-in-law Sam, Linda's husband.

A pageant, "Christmas in Holland," by Helen Kemp, will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois St.

As a highlight of the third Sunday in Advent on Dec. 14, Memorial Christian's adult choir will present the Christmas Oratorio of Camille Saint-Saens, during the morning service. A nativity drama, "The Promise of Christmas," will be presented by a cast of 40 during the evening worship hour on Dec. 14.

An explanation of the meaning of the Christmas greens will be a part of the service.

Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway at W. Cuthbert St., will hang new Advent banners in the sanctuary during the morning worship hour, beginning at 10:50.

The banners, handmade by a group of members of the Memorial congregation, include the following subjects: Madonna and Child, Christ the Savior is Born, Peace on Earth, Shepherds, Joy, the Wise Men, His Love Still Lights the World and Be Born Again.

Professor, wife give up luxury for simple life

By RUSSELL CHANDLER
The Los Angeles Times

BERKELEY, Calif. — Wandering down an alley behind a grocery store, the bearded man with shoulder-length hair picked up a useful wooden box, an onion and two tomatoes.

Of course, admitted Walter Hearn, a little "glop" would have to be washed off to make them usable.

Thus prepared, the tomatoes (minus bruised spots) and the onion (minus a moldy spot) were dropped into an aromatic curry stew he simmered for lunch.

As he ate, a crew pulled up to cut dead limbs from two eucalyptus trees on the city's esplanade. Hearn hustled over to salvage the branches for firewood.

A destitute, skid-row bum out scrounging? Or an eccentric, a product of this city's dropout counterculture?

Neither. Until several years ago, Walter Hearn, Ph.D., was a $20,000-a-year-plus biochemistry professor at Iowa State University.

He and his wife, Ginny, gave up the security (and the competition) of the professional world in 1972 for a low-income writing-editing career and life in a rangy, comfortable — if somewhat rundown — 53-year-old house which they share with frequent overnight guests and five resident black cats. Like everything else, the Hearns got a bargain on the house, paying $34,000 because its floors tilted on a cracked foundation sitting on an earthquake fault.

Surrounding homes on Arlington Avenue in North Berkeley are in the $70,000 to $100,000 class.

By choice, low-cost living has become a way of life for the Hearns, both in their late 40s.

"We are beginning to feel liberated," Hearn told several visitors. "We think that deliberately lowering our standard of living in obedience to God is part of what Jesus meant by being 'poor in spirit.' The amazing thing is that the quality of our life seems higher than before."

But the couple, who support two teen-age children living elsewhere, admitted that life on about $10,000 a year isn't easy.

"We're still learning how to cut down," commented Mrs. Hearn, a cheerful woman with a twinkle in her eyes. "We're not quite breaking even."

To prepare for their switch to a meager life-style, the Hearns scaled down their cost of living in Iowa to half their income, saving the balance for the Berkeley experiment.

They now make about $8,000 a year and the difference between that and their expenses comes from savings. According to the Hearns, any individual who can't make it on $2,500 a year is "locked into the wasteful, spiritually destructive 'American way of life.'"

"Cutting down doesn't come easy in our society," elaborated Hearn. "Possessions have become the measure of everything, even of spiritual worth, and commercial interests control or dominate most channels of communication. What we have done goes against the American grain."

The Hearns insist that "voluntary poverty" provides a kind of security and freedom nothing else can. And they maintain that Americans hold onto expensive life-styles because of their high-paying jobs, "kidding themselves that they are trading freedom for security."

Revolt against a possessive consumerism was only one of several catalysts precipitating the Hearns plunge into austerity.

Others: ecological concern, the specter of world hunger, opportunities for living out religious convictions in ministry to others, the lure of writing and emphasis on egalitarian marriage with shared roles.

Ironically, perhaps, low-cost living has made the Hearns more — rather than less — materialistic. That is, they are more concerned about the "materials" of life and how they are obtained and used.

Scrounging at vacant lots, dumps and garage sales has netted many "treasures," as well as necessities. The Hearns' waffle iron, for example, was fished from a garbage can. Foraging has supplied berries, fruit, nuts and kept the wood-box full.

Whatever food doesn't end up in the soup pot is recycled through the compost heap — it enriches the rocky backyard soil for a vegetable garden.

Though the Hearns own an aging Volkswagen, they prefer to walk or ride public transportation. They stay out of stores — as much as possible. When they do shop, it's often at a Salvation Army outlet, a thrift shop, day-old bakery or junkyard.

Since entertainment is a luxury, museums, parks and free events are the scene of most leisure activities.

Much of the Hearns' voluntary poverty philosophy was hammered out during a course in simple living which they taught at Crucible, a Christian free university in Berkeley.

They now teach classes for Christian writers in their home, and every Saturday night 30 to 40 persons crowd the conglomerate furniture filling their living room for a house church service.

Walter and Ginny, whose standard dress is jeans and sweatshirts, give more than 10 per cent of their income to Christian causes, and they fast at least one day a week. The money equivalent of the missed meals is given to hunger relief.

The Hearns are not truly poor, of course — not in the way millions of American families are.

They are free from the grinding despair of a poverty-level neighborhood. They do not qualify for food stamps or welfare because their income is too high.

Though they burned most career bridges when they left Iowa, they could probably get — and keep — full-time professional jobs.

They have money in a savings account and own a car. They could — undoubtedly sell their spacious house — flaws notwithstanding — for a nice profit.

The Hearns are aware again."

of the limitations and inconsistencies: the five readily conceded that money and food to care for them could be used instead to help humans.

But they've had the begin to earn more money, we are resolved not to let our standard of living rise along with our income," the Hearns answered.

Hearn. "But we wouldn't do it (have all the cats) Hearn said he'd plunk

What would they do if they received a large sum, say from an advance on book royalties?

"Whenever we do money, we are resolved not to let our standard of living rise along with our income," the Hearns answered.

Hearn said he'd plunk down a good hunk for structural repairs on the house. Mrs. Hearn mentioned she would feel more secure to have money set aside for health insurance (they have none now). But they both stressed that "living poor," as a radical Christian way of life, brings joy, peace and a sense of adventure.

Israeli Arabs refuse to pull guard duty on campus

JERUSALEM (AP) — The 600 Israeli Arabs studying at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem have balked at an order to help guard the campus against Arab terrorist attacks.

Their refusal to watch over dormitories is symptomatic of a dilemma among the 500,000 Arabs of Israel — Palestinians who chose to be part of the Jewish state that came into being in 1948, rather than become refugees. The university controversy, which has sparked demonstrations and sporadic violence, puts into focus the problem of dual loyalty faced by Israel's Palestinians.

"We should not be asked to do this," says Nadir Gegaissy, a 24-year-old law student who speaks for the Arab group. "Our situation is too delicate for us to be subjected to such risks."

The university administration has threatened to evict them from the dormitories, which they share with 6,000 Jewish students. The Arabs have offered to perform any alternative duty, even to swab floors, rather than stand guard.

The issue has been made more ticklish because of the recent United Nations resolution branding Zionism, the movement that brought about a Jewish homeland in the Middle East, as racist.

Some Jewish students claim that extremists among the Arabs have seized upon the security problem as a weapon with which to embarrass the Israelis. "They want to be evicted so they can say the U.N. was right in calling Zionism a form of racism," argues one student.

The guard duty amounts to a two-hour vigil for every 40 days in the company of an armed Jewish student. The Arabs would be unarmed.

The Arabs point out that Israel does not draft them into the army because of the dualloyalty problem and they ask why they should be forced to perform guard duty.

"Living in the dormitories is a privilege for both Jews and Arabs," replies David Asulin, 27, of the campus student union which is demanding the Arabs do guard duty. "If a bomb explodes, is it going to discriminate between Jews and Arabs?"

Abraham Harman, president of Hebrew University, says: "Guard duty is a necessary nuisance. But we're not asking any Arab to point a machine gun at Syria or Lebanon."

"If anyone, Jew or Arab, feels it is against his conscience to report a timebomb to the police, then he shouldn't be allowed on the campus."

Many Israeli Arabs feel they will always be outcasts by the very definition of Zionism — to build a Jewish state with a Jewish majority and Jewish government.

Business group head still learning

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — When he was a young man, Richard Kautz of Muscatine, Iowa, said "I didn't particularly have a great admiration for business as a profession, although I did have for individual business people."

Today, head of a huge but closely held corporation that he helped found in 1943 at the age of 27, Kautz is the newly elected chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He concedes that his early attitude was one common among young people, perhaps because of educational experiences, perhaps simply because of youth. "Life is a constant learning process," Kautz said in an interview.

The attitudes of businessmen, he suggested, are developed from their individual experiences, from their knowledge of the risks involved, from their marketing experiences, rather than from rigid adherence to doctrinaire philosophies.

Under his leadership, which begins today and runs for one year, the NAM intends to continue what he maintains has been its aim for the past few years — "to take a positive position rather than a reacting-against-everything role." Not that anyone in the NAM ever admits they played such a role, but that, they concede, has been their image among many people. It is an image they seek to lose.

"This is a pluralistic society," Kautz said. "We're not always going to look good for that reason and we'll have friction and abrasion. But that is strength. I have great belief in the judgment of the American people. I trust them."

Kautz claims not to understand the meaning of the word "establishment," suggesting that nothing in business is so certain as to be established — that NAM members must be innovative, imaginative, competitive or go out of business, as he says some do each year.

Kautz succeeds another Midwesterner, David B. Meeker, president of the Hobart Co. of Troy, Ohio, a manufacturer of a wide variety of machinery for homes, restaurants and factories, much of it associated with food processing.

Kautz' company, Grain Processing Corp., also is heavily involved with food, and more directly. The company, of which he is chairman, is in the "agribusiness," beginning with the processing of corn and grains mechanically and chemically.

Pioneer honors staffers

Twenty-five West Texas employees of Pioneer Corp. operations were honored and a Midland employee won a special citation Wednesday night at an annual awards dinner at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Gomer Alsop, an employee of Pioneer Natural Gas Company (a division of Pioneer Corporation), received the President's Award, his company's top honor.

The award recognizes Alsop's action in "getting involved" to aid two Lamesa policemen Sept. 14 when they were under attack by two suspects.

The Midlander, passing through Lamesa, spotted the trouble at a local drive-in restaurant and immediately went to the aid of the two officers. His action resulted in the apprehension of the two suspects.

Alsop, a Midlander since 1959, serves as Pioneer's district superintendent in the distribution division of the Midland office. He has been employed by Pioneer since 1948.

The remaining 25 honorees recognized at the Wednesday banquet are employees of Pioneer Natural Gas Company and Amarillo Oil Company, a subsidiary of Pioneer Corporation.

Five area residents received awards for 20 years' service to Pioneer.

They are T. E. Nelson of the Tarzan compressor station; James P. Balios, Garland T. Land and Pearl Pittman, all of Big Spring, and J. Dale Young of Odessa.

Fifteen-year awards went to Gary C. Echols of Odessa; Anna Ledbetter, Melvin Louis, Mary McCullough and Corus L. Schmidt, all of Midland, and Ruth B. Manuel and Bill Norris of Big Spring.

Cited for 10 years' service were Midlanders Wayne Cloe and Milton V. Mow and Odessans Ron Humphries and Jerry Newton.

Pioneer employees earning five-year awards included W. L. Goode, Sharon Taylor, Edward C. Farris, Wade Hankins, William F. Walker and Floyd Linville, all of Midland; Jim Colbaugh of Odessa, and Earl Bavousett and Larry G. Holtzclaw, both of the East Goldsmith Compressor Station.

Fugitive radical Abbie Hoffman pays visit to Texas

By ROBERT HEARD

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Fugitive radical Abbie Hoffman says the arrest of a Patty Hearst—or anybody else—can be accomplished when the FBI wants it badly enough.

But "... they have to use illegal means," he told his friend, Austin Sun editor Jeff Nightbyrd. "With systematic use of illegal techniques, anyone is vulnerable to capture."

Nightbyrd reported in a copyrighted story Thursday that Hoffman, perhaps the best known radical still hiding from the law, was in Texas around Thanksgiving and that he interviewed him for two days.

Nightbyrd says Hoffman told him the capture of Patty Hearst "freaked out" the entire underground.

Hoffman, a founder of the Yippies and one of the Chicago Seven accused in the disruption of the 1968

Democratic National Convention, has eluded capture for more than a year and a half. He is wanted in New York on charges of possessing cocaine.

Nightbyrd says he worked with Hoffman providing medical and food services at the Woodstock festival and later in anti-war activities.

Hoffman made contact with him through a woman after more than two years, Nightbyrd said. The woman convinced him over the telephone she spoke for Hoffman by recounting how Nightbyrd lost $20 to Hoffman shooting pool in Miami.

Nightbyrd said he failed to recognize Hoffman when he first saw him at a major Texas airport because Hoffman had disguised himself to look like a wealthy oilman. "Hey, what's happening Jeff?" said Hoffman, who has had three nose operations since going underground. Only then did Nightbyrd recognize him.

They wandered unrecognized in a major Texas city, drove through the countryside and danced at a honky tonk, Nightbyrd said.

Asked about the effect of Patty Hearst's arrest, Hoffman said: "Everybody freaked out for a number of reasons. Number one, they (the FBI) learned tons about how an underground works just from putting that much energy into a case. They began to understand an aboveground support system."

"Number two, they got an incredible amount of publicity. They know where they score points, and who's going to give them headlines. The FBI's an enormous public relations firm. They always have been."

"She shared my problem of being easily recognized," Hoffman said.

"In such a situation, you have to be highly critical of yourself, especially in the first year... (to avoid) even the slightest mistake. There's a discipline you have to establish within yourself. You must think, 'I'm so stupid. Somebody could catch me if they wanted to.'"

"Patty's situation was different from mine," Hoffman said. "I'd been helping people for four or five years and I had friends all over. Patty was kidnaped, then converted in five or six weeks. She only had six friends that were underground, and they were all in the same room. She wasn't a part of a total network, although she imagined herself part of a revolutionary movement, which is true. But that's abstract. It's not concrete."

"I have a variety of identities which I change from time to time."

he said. "But even then it gets sticky. My face was known to thousands of people before, and I'm afraid someone will recognize me."

Nightbyrd, whose weekly newspaper has a press run of 12,000, says he was shocked when Hoffman said, "I think we better talk globally because I've adopted a much more orthodox Communist view... I think it's time people should say they're Communists. I used to say I was an anarchist or maybe a hedonistic Communist, but around the world people understand the force that's fighting for them is communism."

Nightbyrd says he told Hoffman this is the reverse of Hoffman's previous philosophy of individual action and that Hoffman agreed.

"It means the end of sex, love, dope, art, individuality and doing things you want to do," Hoffman conceded.

"Forced to do things. No liberties. Unhappiness. Everything. Totalitarian state... but you know, I've talked to over 20 people who've been to China. Not heavy movement types, but actresses, radio commentators, scholarly people, and they say you don't find unhappiness."

"Now that's pretty amazing. Look what's been done in Cuba. Or how the togetherness of the Vietnamese enabled them to win the war."

"You've got to love America," Hoffman said. "I don't think you can frighten or shock people into revolution. You can't incite them into revolution. You have to, in a sense, want to save the country, not destroy it."

Nightbyrd says Hoffman has had at least two jobs since going underground, including a teaching job.

Bullock says state can save money by spending

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock says in order to save money, state government should spend more money for training and merit raises.

Bullock testified Thursday before a subcommittee of the Joint Advisory Committee on Government Operations, the so-called Little Hoover Commission on government efficiency.

Eighty per cent of the total state budget is for salaries, Bullock said, and instead of arbitrarily cutting the number of state employees, state agencies should emphasize increased productivity by the employees they have.

Bullock said he fired a lot of people after he took office last January

"because they weren't productive."

"The morale of the people who were doing it (their job) went up 100 per cent," Bullock said.

State government employs 170,000 people, he said, but compared with IBM, for example, which has 156,000 employees and spends $90 million to train them, state government spends almost nothing to train its workers.

subcommittee, suggested the across-the-board raises were needed to keep up with the cost of living.

"Cost of living!" Bullock said. "Cost of doing a job—that's what I'm interested in."

Bullock said he favored interagency agreements but cited two examples where he tried to get them and was turned down.

The Department of Public Safety could help him collect $15 million the state is losing today on fuel coming into the state in big trucks, but the DPS attitude, he said, is to avoid becoming involved in another state agency's bailiwick.

And he said he is going to have to string his own agents along the border to collect the tax on cigarettes coming into Texas, when Alcoholic Beverage Commission agents could do it at the same time they collect taxes on alcoholic beverages.

presentation of the award at the 22nd annual meeting of the Keep America Beautiful.

The presentation of the engraved sterling silver bowl was to be made by Ralph P. Davidson, publisher of Time Magazine and a member of the national directors of Keep America Beautiful.

Accepting the award with the Briscoes will be J.D. Wright, Dallas, president of the Beautify Texas Council, a statewide organization which entered Texas in the national competition.

The citation said that "typical of the council's accomplishments was a successful pilot junk car removal project carried out with the Jaycees in North Texas and expanded to cover the entire state. The council contacted every county public works director and city manager asking their support and published the complete 'how-to' information for communities."

Other honors scheduled to be made to Texas include the reelection of Grand Prairie to the national organization's President's Society, the presentation of a first place award cooperatively presented by the Federal Highway Administration and Keep America Beautiful to the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, and the presentation of a special merit business award to Willowbrook Inc. of Dallas.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for a man who is charged with the slaying of a veterans hospital nurse, have asked for a change of venue and strict limitations on news accounts of the trial.

Mrs. Mary Margaret Moran was abducted from the Audie Murphy Veterans Hospital parking lot last summer. She was found five days later alive, despite being stabbed several times and left in a sun-seared vacant lot. She died a day later.

Donald Gene Franklin is accused in the abduction-slaying.

Among pre-trial motions by Franklin's lawyers to presiding District Court Judge James E. Barlow was one which would bar all courthouse broadcasting.

Singer, composer won't switch from gospel to pop

By HOLLIE I. WEST
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Alex Bradford, composer of the music and author of the lyrics for the new gospel musical at Ford's Theater, "Your Arms Too Short to Box With God," spends much of his time acting as a catalyst for the careers of pop singers.

He's personally helped along Dionne and Dee Dee Warwick, Judy Clay and C. and the Shells, who as young backup singers on record dates, performed material he had written.

And he has written for Nancy Wilson, Della Reese, Sam Cooke and Jackie Verdell. Gospel historian Tony Heilbut has written of Bradford: "His compositions for LaVern Baker in the early '60s may have been the first marriage of gospel and pop sounds in the pre-soul era."

An example of this amalgam product is "Am I Wrong?" a song Bradford wrote in the early '60s. A portion of the song's first lines read: "I like good whisky — Am I wrong? Lord — I like pretty women — Am I wrong? Lord."

Bradford is also an engaging singer, as his performance in "your Arms Too Short" attests. His voice ranges from the dark, throaty tones of a field holler to the ringing, falsetto notes of a sanctified cry. Little Richard probably borrowed his famous falsetto technique from Bradford.

In Bradford's music, composition and performance are neatly merged to the point where it is hard to distinguish whether he has composed a melodic line or improvised it.

Such credits raise the question of why Bradford hasn't concentrated exclusively on pop music and all its commercial rewards? Surely this would be an easy transition for the 48-year-old artist who composed the music for the successful "don't Bother Me, I can't Cope" and part of the score for the equally successful "Black Nativity."

But Bradford, composer and performer of one of the biggest selling gospel records ever — "Too Close to Heaven," which sold more than a million copies in 1954, says he hasn't been tempted, like many of his fellow artists such as Aretha Franklin, Lou Rawls, and Sam Cooke and Johnnie Taylor, who have switched from gospel to pop. And his refusal is not only based on his religious beliefs.

"I've sung the blues and lived the pop life," he says, raising his eyebrows and pursing his lips. "When I was in the ARmy, I used to entertain the troops at camp shows by singing the blues. And I've written many songs for pop singers. I really don't need to make any transition. I've already been there."

"I also know that many artists who switch to pop forget all about gospel, and I can't do that. Besides, it's too late in my life to switch. I'm almost 49 years old. I don't want to have to do what Rufus Thomas does — dress up in capes and weird costumes, and go on 'Soul Train' singing the 'Funky Chicken' and trying to look cute for the young folks. That's being a freak."

As a child in Bessemer, Ala., where he was born Jan. 23, 1927, Bradford grew up in the midst of a rich and varied musical tradition — gospel, blues, country and light opera — that has shaped him today. He heard Roberta Martin, Clara Ward and Mahalia Jackson as a youth, and he was once given a thrashing by a class-conscious music teacher for trying to teach his classmates Clara Ward's moaning hymn style.

Bradford's ambitions, he says, lie in theater. "I want to be a well-rounded composer, actor and musical performer," he says, waving his hand around his hotel room.

He says he prefers theater work to touring with a gospel or pop group, and one of his goals is to take part in what he calls a "soul production" of

"Porgy and Bess."

Several years ago Bradford says he suggested to record producer Jerry Wexler that he (Wexler) record the Gershwin opera with Wilson Pickett as Porgy, Aretha Franklin as Bess, Bradford conducting the chorus and Quincy Jones directing the orchestra. The idea never took life, but Bradford is still hopeful that it will.

Right now, he is busy revising "Your Arms Too Short" by inserting eight songs that were in the original European production. The show was widely criticized for not having enough substance in the second act.

Bradford's future plans call for him to stop performing in about five years. "I am not establishing a workshop in New Jersey (he is currently director of the Greater Abyssinian Baptist Church of Newark). This would be an independent group where I can put on my own work. I like to think of it as a training ground for religious theater."

Bergman's 'Flute' regarded as opera film breakthrough

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — The Coronet Theater on Manhattan's East Side is a twin cinema, and paired there currently are Ingmar Bergman's film version of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and one of the latest specimens of porno-chic, "The Story of O."

As you approach the place, you see a line of sidewalk standees stretching almost to the Queensboro Bridge, and you think, "Aha, prurience triumphs again." Then you discover that the line is for Bergman and Mozart, and that indeed, for most showings, you have to fight your way inside the theater.

From the standpoint of box-office appeal alone, Bergman's "Flute" has to be regarded as a breakthrough of sorts in the realm of opera film.

Fortunately, the triumph is more than a matter of popularity. It's an artistic achievement of the rarest kind, a marriage of disparate media that has so often turned out to be a mismatch. This genuinely magical "Flute" lives up to just about our every expectation of what opera on screen ought to be — it's beguilingly sung and acted, photographed with exquisite care and imagination, loftily and enchantingly conceived, and directed with what can only be called genius. If the film succeeds as a fusion, it is because of a peculiarly happy entente among singularly compatible elements. "The opera provides its producer with continuous opportunity for spectacular—and contrasting scenery and lighting: the Queen of the Night, sinister blue, versus Sarastro, warming yellow; the fire, the water; the animals; and so on. In many ways the opera would do well in the movies," wrote George Martin 15 years ago in his "The Opera Companion."

Girls Ranch open house scheduled Sunday at 2

Open house will be observed from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at High Sky Girls Ranch, in connection with its celebration of 15 progressive years of service.

Jack Kyle Daniels, executive director of the ranch, located just north of Midland, said the public is invited and urged to attend the open house event.

He said tours will be conducted to and through all facilities of the ranch, which presently is home to 19 girls.

The ranch's latest addition — the Marian Blakemore Recreation Center — will be viewed for the first time by open house visitors.

Daniels said the goal of the ranch is to provide a good home environment in an authentic West Texas ranch atmosphere so that girls served may respond by growing into maturity as useful and responsible citizens. Midland and the surrounding area provide enrichment by the use of public schools, religious nurture in local churches' and cultural and civic activities to which the girls are invited. The ranch has served as many as 42 girls at one time. The ranch is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Girls Ranch officers are Edwin A.

Dwyer, chairman of the board; K.M. Jastro and Winston Barclay, vice chairmen; Mrs. James Mims, recording secretary; Mrs. Rufe Bynum, corresponding secretary, and James W. Lacy, treasurer.

Farmers' auction set at Texas Boy's Ranch

LUBBOCK — Farm machinery, tools and livestock will be sold Jan. 17, 1976, in a regional farmer's auction to benefit Texas Boy's Ranch, located 2 1/2 miles east of Lubbock on Liberty Road.

The auction will be held at the Texas Boy's Ranch, a new facility currently expanding its farm capabilities and constructing a second cottage to house troubled boys.

Jaycee Chapters throughout West Texas are cooperating for this venture with the Lubbock Jaycee Chapter acting as coordinator for this first annual farmer's auction.

"We hope that the farmers from this area have had a successful crop this year and that they have inventoried farm equipment and livestock that they need to auction off," said Roger Engels, executive director.

Costly grass fires

Grass fires and high winds go hand-in-hand at this season of the year... and they are as hazardous and as expensive as can be. The grass fire which spread across 20 square miles of range land, north of Midland last Saturday will cause range losses into the millions of dollars. The acreage burned certainly is unfit for grazing this season and, if the rainfall is short next year, the unfitness period will be extended. The fence damage alone runs into the thousands and thousands of dollars for the ranchers involved. This is why it is so important for everyone to be particularly mindful of the hazards involved when visiting on or traveling through the West Texas range country. It takes so little to start a costly prairie fire — a lighted match or burning cigarette tossed carelessly from a moving vehicle or by a person walking or riding across a pasture is likely to start a fire at this particular season.

Midland and adjacent counties practically every day this week. Fire departments from area cities have been on the job in attempting to control the fires. They have been assisted by scores of volunteer firefighters. A great big "THANK YOU" is due every person involved in firefighting efforts.

An expression of appreciation also is due the unidentified motorists who stopped to extinguish a grass fire which apparently had just started minutes before, along the railroad right-of-way just east of Midland Wednesday night. This was a most thoughtful and helpful gesture. Other persons perhaps have done likewise in similar instances of late.

The ranchers themselves are taking various steps to prevent the spread of grass fires. Wide strips of land in many instances have been graded just inside fence lines to serve as "fire breaks." Similar strips also have been graded at other vantage points. But high winds often will cause grass fires to jump fire breaks or even roads and highways. Prevention actually is the important and most effective method.

And a good general rain right now certainly would help.

Christmas Parade

Yes sir, Santa Claus is coming to town... on his annual pre-Christmas Eve visit to all the boys and girls of Midland and other Permian Basin Empire cities. And the Retail Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce has arranged a gigantic parade to be staged Saturday morning in honor of the distinguished visitor from the North Pole. It will be the largest and most colorful of all of the Midland Christmas parades of the past. It will be a tremendous Christmas pageant in itself. "Christmas in America" is the theme. Hundreds of persons, scores of units — marching and motorized — and bands galore, headed by the Texas Tech Red Raider Marching Band, are involved. And you're invited... so please don't miss it.

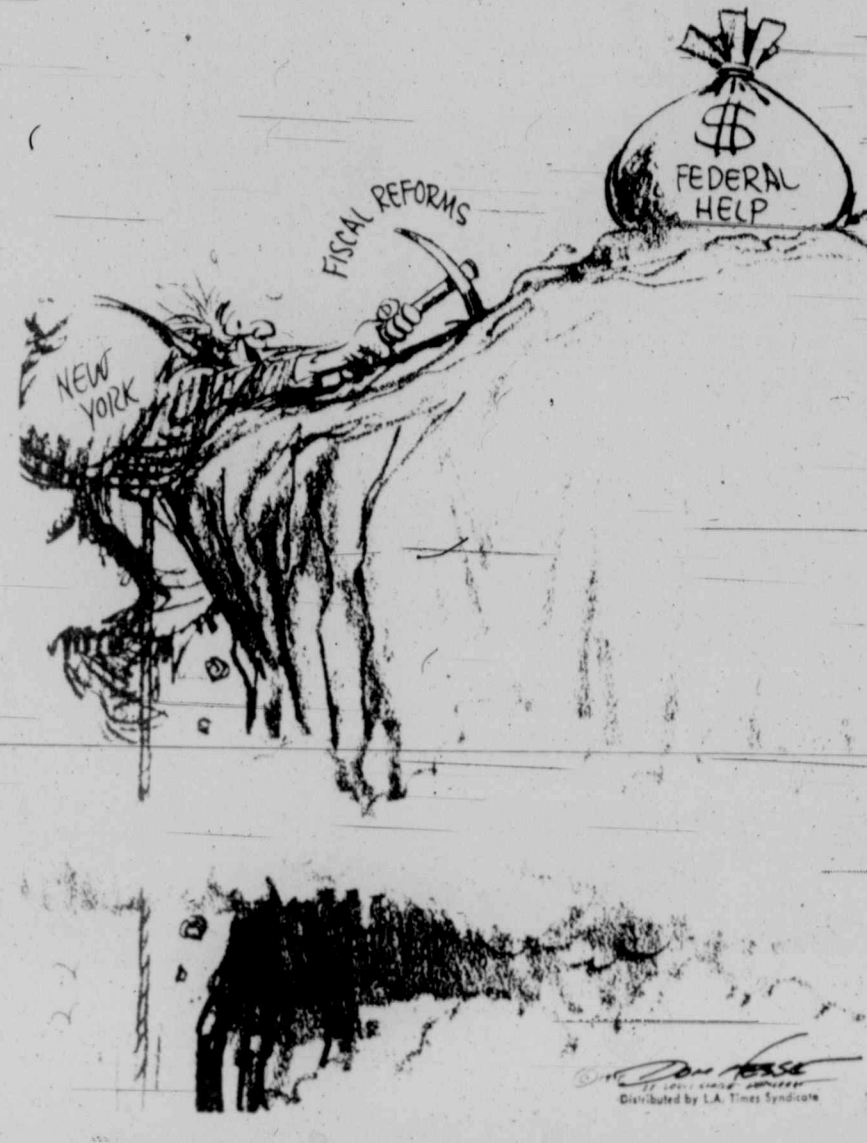

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Latin America seemingly playing 'Watergate' game

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service
Latin America seems to be playing Watergate. Evidence abounds. Consider just Latin America's three largest countries. In Mexico, the harshest critics of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) seem to be other members of the PRI. In Brazil, some hard-line members of the armed forces have gone out of their way to create serious problems for President Ernesto Geisel, himself a retired four-star general. In Argentina, the Peronists give signs of determination to bring down the government of President Maria Estela Peron, widow of the late Gen. Juan Domingo Peron. The Buenos Aires Herald, probably South America's most prestigious English language daily, commented recently that the situation in Argentina is very similar to that of the Watergate affair in the United States. By that the Herald meant that Argentine politicians seem to be planning the legal ouster of Mrs. Peron without giving any thought at all to the heightened political chaos that surely will follow. What makes Argentina somewhat unique, though, is the fact that the principal force behind the move against President Peron are, nominally, at least, Peronists. The opposition Radical Party contributes its bit to the campaign but, were the Peronists ever to rally behind a single cause or a single person, the loose Peronist coalition could easily outvote the Radicals and the other parties. In other words, were the Peronist factions to set their differences and ambitions aside for the time being, Mrs. Peron's government could survive, at least until 1977 when her term is supposed to end. Not that the attractive 44-year-old former entertainer has given Argentina particularly good government. But even had she had the education and training it takes, the political turmoil in Argentina is, and long has been, such as to make government virtually impossible. In the years between 1955, when the Argentine armed forces ousted Gen. Peron, and 1973, when the Peronists returned to power, eight different men held the presidency. Five were army generals, presumably picked for their competency by their peers. Three were civilians, two of whom were popularly elected. None of them was able to last a full term. Further complicating Argentina's plight, which by now includes a dismal economic situation, with the highest inflation in Latin America, is the guerrilla warfare that is being waged in the northern province of Tucuman. There the Argentine army has felt it necessary to call on the air force for support against the rebels. Fighter-bombers have been used to attack guerrilla camps. In Brazil, too, according to some observers, the government is divided against itself. Internal differences within the armed forces are what is causing President Geisel's administration its worst problems. Geisel appears to have unsettled some of Brazil's other top military leaders with his talk of "distension," by which he means some relaxation of the harsher aspects of the nearly 12-year-old military dictatorship. These hard-line officers fear that

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — In the early 1970s, district attorneys appointed by President Nixon began investigating Democratic governors across the country. The governors now are convinced that Nixon used the federal law enforcement machinery to knock the Democrats out of power in as many states as possible. Suddenly, Democratic chief executives in several states found themselves under searching federal scrutiny. Among them were Kentucky's Wendell Ford, Louisiana's Edwin Edwards, Maryland's Marvin Mandel, Oklahoma's David Hall and Pennsylvania's Milton Shapp. Hall was convicted, although the FBI transcripts used in his trial had been altered. A former Democratic governor, Illinois' Otto Kerner, was also convicted. And only last week, Mandel was indicted. In contrast, only one Republican governor, West Virginia's Arch Moore, got into trouble with the Justice Department. Tax agents had found that, as a congressman, he had lived like a millionaire during the 1962-67 period. He bought a home in the fashionable Potomac hunt country of Maryland where he kept horses and threw lavish parties. Yet he reported only $45,000 in taxable income during the entire five years.

The Internal Revenue Service recommended that Moore be prosecuted for his alleged failure to pay $168,000 in taxes. But the Justice Department, which was so eager to prosecute Democrats, let Moore off the hook. Now Moore is facing new charges of accepting illegal campaign contributions. He slipped around to see the friendly Republicans at the Justice Department last October. Once again, he has managed to escape indictment, although a Justice Department spokesman insists the case against him hasn't been closed. Several Democratic governors got together, meanwhile, at their 1973 governors' conference to discuss the Nixon plot against them. Shapp complained Richard Thornberg, then the U. S. attorney in Philadelphia, not only had started an investigation of him but had leaked grand jury findings to Republicans in the Pennsylvania legislature. Thornberg subsequently was appointed assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, with authority over all the investigations. Mandel last month fired off a confidential, 19-page letter to Thornberg, charging that he had been the victim of a political witch hunt. He charged, for example, that the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover had delivered a file full of reports about his sex life to then Atty. Gen. John

INSIDE REPORT: Unsilent Schlesinger may be Reagan helper

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The Oval Office pipe dream that a sacked James R. Schlesinger would disappear into the mists has been exploded by this fact: Schlesinger is prepared to inform and advise Ronald Reagan on defense matters. This does not mean the former Defense Secretary summarily fired by President Ford is joining Reagan's presidential campaign. Schlesinger is willing and eager to talk over defense matters with any presidential candidate ("right on down to George McGovern"). But Sen. McGovern has not asked his advice, Reagan has. Schlesinger's willingness to advise Reagan shows how badly he has been misjudged by the White House. After the national notoriety achieved by his ouster in the Halloween Massacre, Mr. Ford's advisers figured Schlesinger would soon retreat from the headlines to a cushy corporate job providing financial security for his large family and muzzling him permanently. "They don't know their man," a Schlesinger intimate told us. "He feels very deeply about these matters, and, in a gentlemanly way, is going to give Ford hell." The matters he feels deeply about are defense and detente. And he could indeed be giving the President hell if the administration persists in further defense budget cuts and further compromises in a SALT II agreement. With Schlesinger planning maximum use of the media, Mr. Ford may well find him more troublesome out of office than he ever was at the Pentagon. His relationship to Reagan is only a small (but the most intriguing) part of this trouble for the White House. Although Schlesinger has become a hero to the Republican right, he is well to the left of Reaganite conservatism on both economic and social issues. With a Ph.D. in economics, Schlesinger dissents from both the Ford and Reagan budget policies and feels more public spending is desirable today. But the threat to this nation's survival posed by rising Soviet military prowess eclipses all other issues for Schlesinger and provided the basis for mutual esteem between him and Reagan while he was still Secretary of Defense. Schlesinger was one of three members of the Ford cabinet Reagan admired, the others being Treasury Secretary William Simon and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. At the very time he began doubting the President's grasp of national security issues, Schlesinger told friends Reagan is a highly intelligent fellow. After the Halloween Massacre, Reagan was among the many public figures who telephoned Schlesinger. He casually expressed hope of tapping Schlesinger's expertise, but nothing was pinned down. That expertise became critical when Reagan opened his presidential campaign Nov. 20 with dangerously meager preparation on defense issues. Interviewed by Lou Cannon of the Washington Post, Reagan conceded he gave a "bad answer" to a defense question at his opening press conference and added he would welcome any assistance from Schlesinger. With Schlesinger willing to help, a call from Reagan staffers is expected shortly. This is a most unpleasant surprise for the White House, which did not expect Schlesinger's performance on NBC's "Meet the Press" Nov. 23, painting a bleak picture of the U.S.-Soviet military balance. Since Mr. Ford's political aides thought Schlesinger would make no political waves, his refusal to endorse the Ford candidacy was particularly unnerving. Even then however, the White House saw his "Meet the Press" appearance as valedictory. In fact, it is only the beginning. Avoiding any corporate or academic job and working out of a modest office here at the Johns Hopkins School for Advanced International Studies, Schlesinger plans a crusade for adequate defense spending. Forthcoming are an appearance on CBS's "Face the Nation," articles for Reader's Digest and Fortune and selected speaking engagements. Much of this will be aimed at convincing the business community it should not validate V. I. Lenin's prophecy that profit-hungry capitalists would sell the rope for their own hanging. He will attempt to show U.S. businessmen that an uncritical quest of detente without adequate defense is suicidal. But Schlesinger will also target the Ford administration if it persists in the $7-10 billion reduction in the next defense budget which triggered his firing. Preferring to look upon this budget cut as a political aberration, Schlesinger will not hesitate to attack the President if it is not corrected. Similarly, he will go public against any strategic arms limitation (SALT) agreement if Mr. Ford agrees to Soviet demands for prohibiting U.S. cruise missiles. Thanks to the bungled Halloween Massacre, Dr. Schlesinger has been transformed from a shadowy don to a vital public figure whose word carries heavy weight. That he is refusing to return to the shadows deeply affects President Ford, the President's campaign for election and the nation's security policy.

CHICAGO (AP) — A less expensive, less painful process for extracting tissue samples from patients with abnormal pap smears soon may gain widespread use in the United States, a Chicago physician says. The process, called colposcopy, "is many years old — it's been used in Europe and South America for a couple of decades," said Dr. Hugh Grimes, an obstetrician-gynecologist at St. Joseph's Hospital here. "But it's just begun to be used in the United States."

A national seminar on the process is scheduled today and Saturday in Chicago. Grimes, the seminar's program director, said Wednesday there are only 75 to 100 physicians in the country who know how to perform a colposcopy.

"At the outset, most people thought we didn't need another process," said Grimes, explaining why colposcopy was slow to catch on in the United States.

Grimes said an abnormal, or positive, smear "usually indicates a malignancy or the precursor of a malignancy," better known as cervical cancer.

"After you get a positive pap smear, you have to find out where the abnormal cells are coming from," he said.

Most U.S. doctors now "secure a specimen from the cervix by conization — cutting to secure a specimen that is shaped like an ice cream cone — to find the abnormal area that is causing an abnormal pap smear," he said.

The average size of the three-dimensional conization specimen is 2½-by-2-by-1 centimeters, he said, while the average colposcopy sample is one-half centimeter in each dimension.

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When a hand looks very simple it's irksome to stop and think. It's far more convenient to play the hand by instinct for a few tricks. Then you can stop and think of an excuse for having massacred a cold contract.

South ruffed a diamond in dummy, returned to his hand with a trump and ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump. Now he had to find a way to get back to his own hand to draw West's last trump.

Impossible Task

It was an impossible task. South tried to reach his hand with a club, but West ruffed. If declarer had led a heart from dummy instead, East would have taken the trick and would have led a club.

It's true that West could have defeated the contract by opening a heart and ruffing an opening a heart and ruffing a club return, but the contract was unbeatable with the actual diamond opening lead. South should take the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond high, get to his hand with a trump, ruff another diamond high and lead dummy's last trump to his own hand. Declarer is then in his own hand to draw the last trump and claim the slam contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-K1032; H-KJ1074; D-J; C-AK4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You plan to bid clubs next and then raise spades to game. The idea is to show the shortness in diamonds by bidding the other three suits.

South took the ace of diamonds and instinctively drew one round of trumps with the ace. Instinct does a better job with animals than with such lords of creation as bridge players.

Vatican list may drop Early day Pope's name

Agence France-Presse VATICAN CITY — Catholic historians have reluctantly decided that Pope Adrian V must disappear from the Vatican official papal list, following a recent encyclical by Paul VI.

Deacon Ottobono Fieschi of Genoa was elected Pope in July 1276 and took the title of Adrian V. Thirty-two days later he died (Aug. 18, 1276) at Viterbo.

There has always been theological discussion over his papacy because he had never been either a priest or a bishop.

During the lengthy Vatican II conclave here there was discussion over whether a man who was not a bishop could be elected pope.

But this whole delicate subject has never really gone much further than discussions between Church historians and theologians.

Now the question of Adrian V has come up again following the publishing last Nov. 13 by Pope Paul VI of a document, "Romano Pontifici Eligendo," on the conclave.

In it the Pope wrote: "If he who is elected Pope has not been ordained bishop, this must be done at once."

Father Umberto Betti of the Franciscan University in Rome commented over Vatican radio: "With this ruling it would appear that a newly elected Pope cannot be considered as the real Pope, successor of Peter and vicar of Christ for the universal church, as long as he has not been ordained bishop."

Complaints filed

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Paul Ragsdale accelerated his three-year campaign to stop alleged job discrimination in state hiring with the announcement Thursday that he was filing complaints against 32 state agencies.

Ragsdale, D-Dallas, told a news conference the "Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in San Antonio had substantiated his charge of 'overt discrimination' by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department."

This "favorable determination" means, Ragsdale said, that if the department cannot work out a hiring practice that suits Ragsdale, he will file suit in federal court against the department.

"I'm tired of trying to work with that group over there," said Ragsdale, a member of the Black Legislative Caucus.

In other states, Ragsdale said, federal courts have ordered state agencies to hire more blacks, Mexican Americans and women.

From April 1974, when he filed the complaint against the parks and wildlife department, to June 1975, Ragsdale said, the department "refused to make any substantive changes in their employment practices."

For example, he said, the number of blacks making at least $10,000 a year increased only from zero to one.

Earlier, Ragsdale had received a favorable determination against the comptroller's office, but he said filing on one agency at a time would mean that "equal employment opportunity in state employment might not be realized until the year 2000."

The 32 agencies

against which Ragsdale said he will file were selected after a two-year study by his staff, Ragsdale said.

There may be more later, he added.

Such action would not be necessary, Ragsdale said, if Texas had a "meaningful EEO program at the state level."

Unemployment rate drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a one-month increase, the nation's unemployment rate dropped from 8.6 to 8.3 per cent of the labor force in November, the government reported today.

The drop in the jobless rate equalled the October increase and thus left the unemployment rate at the same level as in September. The government said 7.7 million persons were unemployed in November.

Before the October rise, joblessness had declined over the previous four months from its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May.

However, administration economists attributed the increase to "special factors" and had hoped the downward trend would be resumed in November.

Despite the improvement in November, joblessness is forecast to remain above 7 per cent through 1976.

The unemployment report provided the Ford administration with a second dose of favorable economic news in as many days. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices leveled off last month for the first time since June, easing fears of a new bout with inflation.

In today's report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans without jobs dropped by 300,000 in November to 7.7 million following a nearly equal increase the previous month. Total employment showed little change for the third straight month and stood at 85.3 million.

With declining unemployment and employment about stable, the size of the civilian labor force fell by 460,000 in November to 93 million persons, moderating a relatively strong growth in the labor force evident since last March.

Despite the improvement in the jobless rate, the government said the average duration of unemployment, after declining in October, rose in November to a new high — 16.8 weeks — for the current period. An increase in the number of persons unemployed for 27 weeks or more and a sharp decline in short-duration joblessness were blamed.

St. Nick to highlight parade here

Santa Claus will make his official arrival in Midland Saturday morning. The jolly gentleman will be the highlight of the annual Midland Christmas Parade that will include eight area marching bands in the 2.5-mile-long parade that begins at 10 a.m.

Parade chairman Sam Blanck said 63 units will participate in the annual event. Parade lines will begin forming at the intersection of Whitney Drive and Andrews Highway. The units entered will proceed southeast on Andrews to Wall Street and east on Wall to Main Street. The parade will then turn north on Main and disperse at the corner of Main and Illinois Street.

Blanck said the Midland Jaycees will sell concessions along the 2.7 mile parade route, while members of the Midland Bicentennial Commission will sell Bicentennial balloons at several locations on the route.

The parade this year is set to the theme "Christmas in America." The 320-member Texas Tech University Red Raider Marching Band will lead the parade, as well as present two additional performances in the city Saturday.

The Tech band will perform a 30-minute marching and musical "halftime" exhibition at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Midland Memorial Stadium. Admission to the performance is free, and those attending may enter the stadium through the west gate.

At 7 p.m. Saturday, the Tech band will present a special Midland concert in the Lee High School gymnasium. Admission is $1 per person. Proceeds will help establish a scholarship fund for Midland students attending Texas

Officials seek bodies of Hoffa, one of killers

By TOM RENNER
Newsday

The body of former Teamster president James R. Hoffa and that of one of his reported assassins were being sought Thursday in a Jersey City dump while federal authorities claimed they were searching for the body of a New Jersey loan shark who has been missing since 1972.

The bizarre body hunt, sources close to the investigation said Thursday, began with a federal smokescreen in the form of three search warrants issued Tuesday in Newark. Two warrants were for filing cabinets of New Jersey Teamster Local 560 business agent Salvatore (Sally Bugs) Briguglio. Authorities believed, according to the warrants, that two .38 caliber revolvers with silencers and documents may be hidden in the cabinets. The third warrant was for a search for the body of missing Jersey City loan shark Armand (Cookie) Faugno, 61, a close associate of Vito Genovese crime captain Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano. Provenzano is the former boss of Local 560 and a former vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Police and federal sources said that the search for Faugno, missing since Dec. 9, 1972, from his Englewood Cliffs, N.J., home, was actually a cover story for the real object of the hunt — the bodies of Hoffa and an unidentified "wheelman" (driver)-assassin in the Hoffa-abduction-murder.

Even as the search was reportedly under way Thursday night in a Jersey City dump under the Pulaski Skyway, Robert E. Ozer, director of a Detroit federal organized crime task force, was in federal court saying he had witnesses to the abduction and murder of Hoffa.

Ozer had asked U.S. District Court Judge James P. Churchill to order three men to appear in an identification lineup so one of his witnesses could determine if they were the same three men another witness had identified as participants in the Hoffa abduction. "The first witness will identify them as active participants in the abduction and murder of James R. Hoffa," Ozer said. The second witness, he said, saw the abduction and could, perhaps, corroborate the other's statement. The witnesses were not identified but the three suspects that Judge Churchill ordered to appear were identified as: Briguglio, 46, of North Caldwell, N.J.; his brother Gabriel, a member of Local 560, and Thomas A. Andretta, 38, of Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., a mob enforcer for jailed crime captain Joseph (Bayonne Joe) Zicarelli.

A source close to the investigation said that at least seven men were actually involved in the abduction and murder of Hoffa last summer. The sources said that Hoffa's murder was ordered by "the highest echelons of organized crime" and directed by Provenzano who wanted to return to power in the Teamsters.

THE SOURCE said Hoffa was driven by "someone he trusted" from a restaurant in a Detroit suburb to an unidentified location to meet with representatives of Provenzano, including Briguglio, who were reportedly bearing "peace offerings" to end the bitter animosity between Provenzano and Hoffa that had started in the late 1960s when they were together in prison. Police sources said the driver who took Hoffa to the meeting was believed to be his adopted son, Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, who has denied such a role.

O'Brien has, however, admitted his car was near the Machus Red Fox Restaurant on July 30 when Hoffa disappeared.

The source said that the meeting was a setup and that Hoffa was killed, carried in the trunk of a car to another location where his body was stuffed in a barrel, transferred to a van and driven to New Jersey for burial. Also killed, the source said, and buried with Hoffa was a participant in the murder who assassins felt was a weak link.

THE DUMP where federal agents were searching was identified as part of a four-acre tract owned by Philip (Brother) Muscatto, of North Caldwell, N.J. Muscatto, who faces gambling charges stemming from a recent arrest in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with New Jersey mob policy racketeer Emilio (the Count) DeLio, was described by police sources as a close friend of Provenzano. "He owes a lot to Provenzano who got him out of some hot water several years ago," a police source said. "He'd do what he was told."

Jimmie Oglesby quits county attorney post

By ED TODD

Jimmie D. Oglesby, Midland County attorney since 1972, this week announced his resignation from public office and his intent to re-enter the private practice of law in Midland.

The 38-year-old Oglesby, who has asked the Midland County Commissioners Court to make his resignation effective Dec. 31, is leaving office shortly before he otherwise might have filed for reelection to a four-year term.

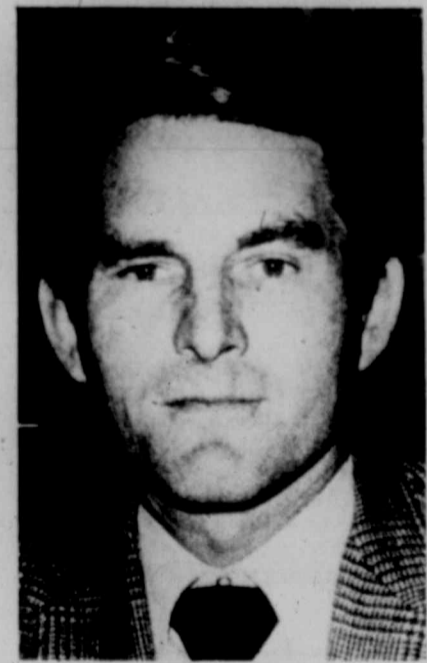

"It's been quite a job," he said in an interview late Thursday. "I really have enjoyed it. It's a tremendous opportunity for a lawyer to meet the people, to deal with the people on a daily basis."

He said the job as prosecutor and as the county's legal adviser is "so beneficial to a lawyer who wants to get experience and to develop."

Though Oglesby did not formally recommend a successor, he did say that his assistant, Leslie Acker, by law would take over the role of county attorney until the commissioners appoint a new county attorney.

In his letter of resignation, Oglesby told the commissioners and County Judge Barbara Culver that he is not leaving office "because of any dissatisfaction or discontent; but, rather, from a deep personal conviction that it is simple time for me to withdraw from public office and enter the private practice of law."

Oglesby's first law job was as assistant county attorney for 1½ years under then Co. Atty. Willie DuBose. That tenure began in January 1967 shortly after Oglesby earned the law degree from Baylor University and ended in September 1968 when he resigned to become a partner in the law firm of Lynch, Chappell, Allday and Culp.

He practiced law there until late 1971 when the county commissioners appointed him to succeed DuBose as county attorney. DuBose resigned to re-enter private law practice.

In 1972, Oglesby ran unopposed on the Democratic ticket for his first four-year term to public office.

In the criminal line, his office prosecutes misdemeanor offenses.

Acker, 32, Oglesby's assistant prosecutor since April 1972, was an assistant city attorney here under Joe Nussle the year before he moved over to the county. He holds the law degree (1970) from the University of Texas.

County Commissioner John Thomas, contacted Thursday, said the commissioners "will handle"

Lovington man charged in theft

BIG SPRING — The 27-year-old assistant manager of a Lovington, N.M., department store has been charged in Big Spring with felony theft following his arrest in an alley behind a Big Spring hardware store.

Charged with felony theft was Jim Billings, who was transferred to county jail. Bond was set at $5,000 by Municipal Judge John R. Coffee.

City patrolman John Burson said he was making a routine patrol behind the store when he noticed the back door open and a nearby parked vehicle's trunk ajar. Burson arrested the man who attempted to drive the car away.

Merchandise in the truck of the car was valued at over $5,000, police said. Items included among the merchandise were more than 14 guns and rifles, a large amount of ammunition, three CB radios, two watches, eight hunting knives, a spray paint rig and other merchandise.

Burson said entry was gained through the roof of the building.

Job Corps recruiting in area

By ED TODD

The Job Corps is in the midst of a recruiting drive in West Texas to round up poor, unskilled, hopeless and, sometimes, hapless youth.

The aim is to turn-around the youths' lackluster lives, teach them some money-making skills, and get them out of the Job Corps and into the labor market.

"The whole idea is to get the youngsters off the streets and working... so that they can become productive citizens," said Homer Sanchez, a high-level Job Corps recruiter.

Sanchez, state coordinator for the Texas Employment Commission's Job Corps recruiting efforts, and Job Corps counselor Leroy Pollock were in Midland this week to voice the scope and purpose of the 11-year-old program.

With Sanchez and Pollock were TEC Job Corps recruiting specialist Ruby Freeman of Midland and two corpsmen from the Gary Job Corps Center at San Marcos.

Pollock, who counsels at the 2,200-corpseman Gary center, said the Job Corps offers "tremendous opportunity" for youths in its training programs covering 26 trade skills.

Training periods last from six months to two years.

And during that time, the youths may study for their high school completion certificates through the General Educational Development (GED) program.

Training at the centers spans the building trades, such as carpentry and masonry and heavy equipment operation and maintenance, welding, automotive mechanics, and food preparation.

To qualify for corps training, a youngster must be between 16 and 21, unskilled, and living within the poverty level.

As it turns out, most are school dropouts, Sanchez said.

"They don't necessarily have to be dropouts," he said, "but we have mostly dropouts."

Many youths were on state welfare rolls. Some had been on probation for criminal offenses.

The Job Corps' scope, Pollock said, is to change underprivileged men and women "from the role of tax-users to that of taxpayers."

Last year, he said, the Gary center placed 96 per cent of its trained corpsmen into the work force.

Beginning next February, Pollock said, the Gary center will become co-educational. Some other centers are enrolling women, too, he said.

"We're liberated," Pollock said. "If they want to be heavy-equipment operators and if they can handle it

But for women with a bent for lighter tasks, key operation is offered, he said.

The two corpsmen on the recruiting team were here this week James Hubert, 18, of Lubbock, who is taking his training in automotive mechanics, and Ira Tenpenny, 16, of Texarkana, who is learning welding. Both are working on their GED.

In addition to their training, room and board, clothing, and medical care, corpsmen are each paid $30 per month as "spending money." And once a corpsmen has completed his training, he is given "readjustment pay" amounting to $50 for each month spent at the center.

The Job Corps was launched in 1964 as part of the late President Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty program.

"The Job Corps has been a successful program," according to TEC manager Ed Miller. "We've had some good success" in bringing up the level of education of the youths and in teaching them job skills qualifying the formerly unskilled for the labor market.

Hugh Scott won't seek reelection

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After 33 years in Congress, Hugh Scott has decided to end his elective political career.

There was no fanfare, no exit in a blaze of glory, as the 75-year-old Philadelphia lawyer called it quits at a Pittsburgh dinner honoring another Pennsylvania Republican.

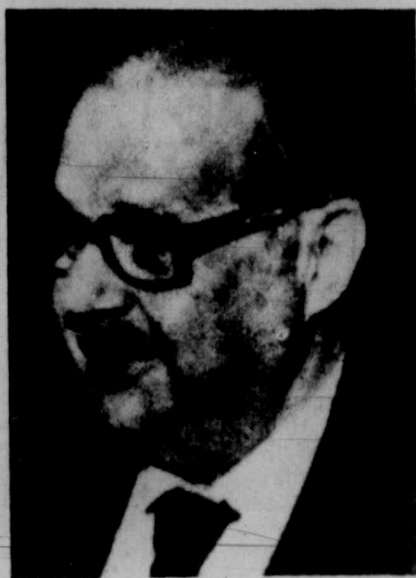

There was also no news conference, which he had often used with consummate skill to make his point during the 16 years he served in the House and the 17 more in the Senate where he has been Minority Leader since 1969. He has 13 months to go in his present term.

In a brief, written statement Thursday night he said he would not seek re-election next year, alluding to his already long service to his state and his country and to a desire to spend more time in rest and recreation.

Never once did Scott mention the current controversy raging around him, centering on charges he knew about illegal cash contributions to him from the Gulf Oil Corp. for almost two decades.

Scott has been generally silent since the Gulf story broke, but his office released a response on the subject. It said:

"I have never knowingly received any corporate funds from anybody, anytime. I am not going to have any further statement."

Scott did not discuss the Gulf case with reporters Thursday, but he alluded to it in remarks at the dinner: "Anyone who lays a hand on me, let them beware. The courts are for that purpose."

Although Scott did not amplify on that statement, sources said he indicated to a closed meeting of Republican leaders that he would consider libel action should he continue to be accused of wrongdoing. The Watergate special prosecutor's office is investigating the allegations that Scott received $10,000 a year in cash from Gulf, along with other Gulf money matters.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who came to Pittsburgh for the dinner honoring Pennsylvania Republican leader George Bloom, said he was not concerned about the reports and charges that Scott had failed to respond to them.

"I haven't seen anything of any substance that he did or comment on forthrightly, simply and flatly," the vice president said.

But there are some who say Scott, who tagged himself "The Affable Tiger," was more a cat who ran out of his political nine lives.

Scott's biggest undoing was his hawkish support of the Vietnam war and his staunch defense of both President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who both quit in disgrace, forcing Scott to make a 180-degree turn and cry apologetically that he had been used and lied to.

But despite his lame duck status, Scott isn't tossing in the political towel completely.

"I will campaign in 1976 as hard as I know how to elect President Ford and our Republican candidates at all levels," Scott said.

His friends say he hopes to be a strong voice at the Republican national convention next summer in Kansas City, possibly as chairman of the Platform Committee, which would create the policy for the party's presidential candidate.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the assistant minority leader, and Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., are considered likely candidates to succeed Scott in the leadership post.

Grape Creek Lions to receive charter

Paul Bozeman of Midland, governor of District 2-A1, Lions International, will present the charter to the new Grape Creek (San Angelo) Lions Club at its charter meeting scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Grape Creek School.

Tex. Mayer of La Grange, a past director of Lions International, will be the guest speaker.

The Grape Creek club is sponsored by the San Angelo East Lions Club.

Right blocks king

The Washington Post MADRID — Extreme rightists have temporarily blocked an attempt by King Juan Carlos to nominate a prime minister committed to reforming the entrenched Spanish dictatorship, informed government sources say.

As a result, the king has asked the incumbent premier, Carlos Arias, to remain in office for an undisclosed period. Arias, who was named to office by the late dictator Francisco Franco, has three years of his five-year term of office to serve, but he submitted his resignation last week to give the monarch a chance to form a government of his own.

AFTER MEETING with the king earlier this week, he agreed to reconsider his resignation, officials said.

Opposition to a maneuver by the king to replace Arias with someone representing the forces of evolution surfaced after Juan Carlos obtained the nomination of his choice, Torcuato Fernandez Miranda, as president of Parliament and head of the 17-man Council of the Realm.

It had been expected that Fernandez Miranda — a close friend of the king, former vice premier and theoretician of the Falange, Spain's fascist party — would be able to ram the king's choice for premier through the council. But he failed to get a majority when he tested the king's candidates, sources said.

"The king is not Franco," said an official, "he could not get his own man as premier so he backed away from a confrontation."

THE COUNCIL'S TASK, among others, is to provide the king with three candidates for prime minister. Since Arias has agreed to remain in office, the council will not have to deliberate on nominations unless the premier decides to adhere to his resignation or unless the king refuses his conditions to "be his own man in order to be free to select his own ministers," officials explained.

Since Franco died two weeks ago, it has become evident that the extreme right, which controls a significant bloc of votes in parliament and in the council, has given its support to Arias, a tough supporter of the dictatorship, although he has advocated limited reforms.

In the past two weeks the right, led by Jose Antonio Giron, a member of Parliament and of the council who heads the 500,000-strong Civil War Veterans' brotherhood, has told the king that major reform will not be tolerated by the men who fought alongside Franco in the bloody conflict.

Reservoir action postponed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Action on a proposed reservoir upstream from the Cherokee Reservoir has been postponed by the Water Rights Commission until Jan. 7.

The commission completed a two-day hearing on the proposal Thursday but asked its staff to resolve a dispute over how much water runs through the Cherokee Reservoir, near Henderson.

Texas Utilities Service Corp. of Dallas wants to build a new dam on Cherokee Bayou. The firm says it needs the water for two 750,000-kilowatt, lignite-fired, electric generating plants.

Opposing the project are the Cherokee Water Corp. and the city of Longview. TUS says it needs several governmental permits, including one from the commission.

President Ford arrives in Indonesia for brief visit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Ford arrived today for a 19-hour overnight stay in Indonesia, which the U.S. government regards as the central element in Southeast Asian stability following the Communist conquest of Indochina.

President Suharto and his wife greeted the American president and his wife and daughter as they stepped from Air Force One into a light drizzle and temperature in the 80s. It had been clear and near freezing when the Fords left Peking nearly eight hours before.

The Indonesian airport welcome included a 21-gun salute, a canopied platform to keep the rain off. 400 honor guards and 400 journalists. But the airport was closed to the public, and there was a heavy guard of police and troops with automatic weapons.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters accompanying the President the visit would be a "review of our relationship and the future of Southeast Asia, in which Indonesia is a key country."

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik described the President's stay as a "working" visit and not just a courtesy call. But American spokesmen said no major issues required top-level attention. The two presidents met last in July, at Camp David, Md., during a visit by Suharto to the United States.

One subject they were certain to discuss this time was U.S. military and economic aid to Indonesia. Ford has asked Congress to approve a total of $42.5 million worth for the coming year. But a senior American official said, "That's a minor problem. It will be handled on the aide level."

The official said Indonesia, the largest and most populous country in Southeast Asia, is "of great consequence" as it and the other four members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Malaysia, Singapore, The Philippines and Thailand — try to organize themselves into a political, economic and "possibly a security grouping."

National League of Cities calls for resumption of revenue sharing

MIAMI BEACH — The National League of Cities Thursday called for a national full employment policy and immediate renewal of revenue sharing, which local officials say they need to begin their budget planning early next year.

The delegates also called for setting up contingency plans to continue city services if public employees strike and for an end to the "red lining" of minority neighborhoods by lending institutions as poor investment risks.

Ending their 51st annual conference here, the delegates also approved resolutions urging an end to U.S. aid to countries that allow the production or exportation of heroin and calling for increased support for minority business development and full voting representation for the citizens of the District of Columbia.

Delegates endorsed creation of an income support system to minimize the effects of "high level, systemic unemployment." They gave no guidelines on how it should work, but said the federal minimum wage should be high enough to "assure that those who work benefit more than those who do not." the league called for creation of more public jobs and for a public works program.

The league did not call for a federal takeover of welfare costs, as some of its speakers had urged.

An anti-busing resolution, introduced from the floor by the Texas delegation, came at the very end of the day-long final meeting. No anti-busing resolutions had been reported out of the various league committees.

Mayor Jay Cooper of Prichard, Ala., questioned whether there was a quorum, and a number of delegates — including those from Deep South states, walked out. A roll call showed 142 delegates present, out of 425 needed for a quorum, and the five-day conference was adjourned without the busing issue getting to a vote.

The league has refused to take a position on busing for years.

Earlier, delegates voted not to change their existing policy on handguns. They are now on record in favor of handgun registration, and stronger, more certain penalties when handguns are used in the commission of crime.

The league urged the federal government to consolidate all of its civil rights enforcement activities into a single agency, said government and private industry should stop packaging goods in plastic or other non-biodegradable products, and called for a national energy policy to save energy and reduce dependence on foreign oil.

Soviets react Bentsen says Kissinger 'ignores Latin America'

MOSCOW (AP) — United States Ambassador Daniel Moynihan's charge that the Soviet Union had shown intention to "colonize" Africa is slander, the Soviet news agency Tass says.

Moynihan, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said Soviet involvement in Angola proves his point.

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "treats the world as if it were a triangle — the Soviet Union, China and the United States."

Bentsen said Thursday that Kissinger's approach was "an extension of his own personality" and "ignores Latin America, which sits next door and could become an explosive situation."

The Texas senator spoke at the final stop on a series of news conferences and speeches in the Mississippi cities of Greenville, Clarksdale, Starkville, Vicksburg and Natchez.

It was his second recent visit to Mississippi, whose Democratic nominating convention will be held next month.

Bentsen said he hoped President Ford "accomplishes something worthwhile" on his China trip but that he thinks Ford should have stayed home.

Bentsen said the President "should be here in the country, spending more time on the job and tackling the economy." The senator said he felt the economy would be the presidential campaign's top issue.

On other subjects, Bentsen said: —He opposes a bill to impose different controls on prices of old and new oil. "It increases our dependency on the Middle East, which is now up to about 40 per cent," he said.

—He favors reducing taxes by $15 million and cutting spending by most federal agencies. But he said he felt the defense budget should stay the size it is now.

House approves 1976 tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is likely to keep up the heat of his veto threat when the Senate next week begins scrutiny of the House-passed bill carrying $13 billion in personal tax cuts for 1976.

Ford's 2-month-old demand that any tax cut be tied to a lid on government spending was repeated Thursday when the President, in Peking, phoned House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes shortly before the final House vote on the tax bill.

Rhodes later told reporters that Ford repeated his vow that "he positively would veto this bill if it did not have a ceiling" on federal spending linked to it.

After getting this word from

Rhodes, the House narrowly rejected such a link-up in the form of Ford's proposed $39.5-billion lid on federal spending for fiscal 1977, the year starting next Oct. 1.

The vote of 220 to 202 against a spending lid found 218 Democrats and two Republicans overpowering 139 Republicans and 63 Democrats.

The tax cut then was approved 257 to 168, with 225 Democrats and 32 Republicans for the bill, 111 Republicans and 57 Democrats opposed.

In the Senate, there are signs the bill might be split apart for fast consideration of the tax-cut features, leaving until next year the more controversial and time-consuming tax revisions approved by the House.

"soon" was Senate Finance Chairman Russell B. Long's reply when asked when he expects a tax bill to get to the Senate floor. Senate sources say that means something like the week of Dec. 15, or right before Congress adjourns for the year.

The lawmakers face time pressures imposed by the Dec. 31 expiration of the existing tax cuts.

The House-passed version contains a sweeping series of proposals that House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said would collect $3 billion presently "guarded by tax loopholes and preferences."

Before approving the final bill, the House voted 379 to 27 to purge a feature which would have provided $165 million next year in special tax refunds for some high-income investors, including a reported $15 million for Texas businessman H. Ross Perot.

Here's how the bill would affect a typical couple with two children and $15,000 of basic annual income. That couple paid $1,699 in taxes under the 1974 law. They'll pay $1,579 under the temporary tax cuts for this year, and they would pay $1,510 under the House-passed bill.

However, if existing law vanishes on schedule at midnight Dec. 31, they'll be back under 1974's law and be paying $1,699 again.

There's some talk in the Senate of seeking a way to buy time for congressional-presidential compromise next year through a simple extension of existing law for, perhaps, three months or maybe even six months.

The question then becomes whether Ford would veto such a three-month tax cut extension.

"I did not ask that specific question," Rhodes told reporters who asked about his longdistance conversation with the President in China, "but in my opinion he would."

Kelly base could lose 1,800 jobs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base, one of five military posts on which this town is economically dependent, will lose up to 1,815 jobs by next summer, the base's director of personnel says.

"The reason that the Air Force made this announcement today is because it takes a long time to work an exercise like this," said Lt. Col. G. R. Davidson, director of personnel at Kelly.

An Air Force announcement said some 1,250 civilian workers would be "involuntarily separated" by June 30 next year to comply with expected congressional manpower cuts.

Approximately 600 other workers who leave their jobs between now and then would not be replaced.

"The exact number to be reduced is dependent upon final end strengths yet to be determined by Congress," a spokesman said.

Davidson said it would be at least 90 days before he got a more clearcut idea of how many jobs would be lost.

The difference between the House and Senate has not yet been resolved," he said, "so I don't even have what my manpower strength will be come 30 June."

Washington (AP) — Congressional tax staff experts provided this comparison showing what the House-passed 1976 individual income tax reduction plan would mean to some typical taxpayers with normal deductions of 17 per cent.

The bill, which the Senate takes up next week, makes permanent the 1975 temporary law's hikes in minimum and maximum standard deductions, taken by those who do not itemize on their tax returns.

The House-passed bill does not include a continuation of two temporary features of the individual 1975 tax cut law. These features, due to expire Dec. 31, are special tax credits and new payments for low-income persons with children, and a special tax credit for buyers of new homes.

The table shows anticipated tax liability for various income brackets under the old 1974 law, the temporary 1975 law and the House-passed 1976 law.

Testimony ties Pepsi to Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. efforts to overthrow Chile's Salvador Allende, which one senator has called the Nixon administration's Bay of Pigs, may have been triggered by a "Pepsi connection," according to evidence before the Senate intelligence committee.

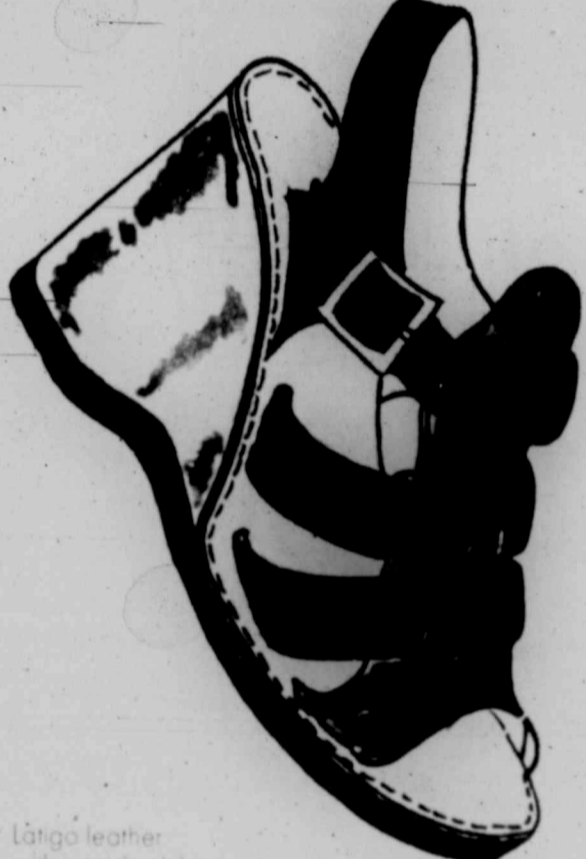

Testimony taken both in private and at Thursday's public committee hearing shows that on Sept. 15, 1970, Donald Kendall, president of Pepsi Cola and a close personal friend of President Richard M. Nixon, arranged a meeting in Washington among Henry A. Kissinger, then the President's national security adviser, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Augustin Edwards, publisher of Chile's leading newspaper, El Mercurio.

U.S. firms which controlled 80 per cent of Chile's copper production.

No one could say for sure whether Edwards gained his audiences with Kissinger, Mitchell and Helms because of his business association especially compared with Kendall or because he was publisher of F as ITT and the various Mercurio.

Swindlers hit bonanza in many Southern states

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Oil swindlers are striking it rich in naive investors if not in petroleum, say officials of seven Southern states meeting in Atlanta to plan strategy against get-rich-quick schemers.

Basin activity includes project in Azalea field

An application for a dual completion in the Azalea field 18 miles southeast of Midland in Midland County has been filed at the Railroad Commission of Texas office here.

It produced 29 barrels of 31-gravity oil and seven barrels of water per day, on potential test taken through perforations at 5,035-5,039 feet. Total depth is 5,083 feet. Treatment was not reported.

He branded their operations "an imminent danger to the public." Officials say the companies generally have addresses in oil-rich Texas or Oklahoma but try to sell oil securities in other states.

F. P. Knott survey. No. 11 J. J. Gibson, inside production in the field, gauged 1.55 million cubic feet of dry gas on calculated, absolute open flow potential test, taken through perforations at 6,143-6,168 feet. Total depth is 6,324 feet.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 35, F. P. Knott survey.
