Pike declines to halt fight on Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise offer from President Ford to head off contempt action against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was rejected today by the chairman of the House intelligence committee.

Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said the House might vote on a contempt resolution against Kissinger as early as this week if the committee agrees with him Tuesday that Ford's new offer is unacceptable and that he should ask for a House vote.

In a compromise from the administration's position Nov. 20, Ford's counsel offered to identify all U.S. covert operations abroad since 1961 that had been requested by the State Department.

But Pike said the committee had subpoenaed all State Department requests for covert operations — not just a list of the ones that were approved.

He said the committee originally was told the State Department requested five covert operations during the 14 years since 1961, but that the number has now grown to 25.

Pike said he was filing a committee-approved contempt citation against Kissinger with the full House today.

Battle may cut Beirut into halves

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Muslim street fighters advanced behind a hail of mortar fire through downtown Beirut today in a bloody drive to encircle their right-wing Christian opponents.

Young leftist gunmen from the "Ambushers" militia occupied the St. Georges Hotel — Beirut's most prestigious — and fought around the Phoenix and Holiday Inn, where Christian gunmen held out against the onslaught, police said.

Witnesses said the Muslim left-wingers were led by Palestinian guerrillas.

They took control of the Wadi Al-Yahud Jewish quarter and Parliament Square, forcing House Speaker Kamal Assad to postpone indefinitely a parliament meeting scheduled for Tuesday.

A police spokesman said scores of the street fighters were killed in the combat and their bodies "virtually littered scenes of the fighting." He said ambulances were unable to enter the area.

If the Muslim forces gain mastery of the seaside hotel area, that would effectively divide Beirut into clearly defined Christian and Muslim enclaves, with the Phalange Christian militia shoved into their Ashrafia and Ein-Rumaneh strongholds and Muslims controlling the remaining two-thirds of the city.

Jeeps with loudspeakers touted Muslim areas in western Beirut appealing for blood to aid hard-pressed hospitals handling the wounded.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal appeals court today upheld the government's deal to dismiss charges against Jake Jacobsen in return for his testimony against former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally.

President outlines 'Pacific Doctrine,' returns to work on domestic matters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford turns his attention to domestic matters this week after proclaiming his Asian trip "beneficial" and indicating that plans are in the works for a trip to the Mideast.

Ford returned to the White House early this morning after a 27,000-mile trip that he said contained "no minuses and many, many pluses." He climaxed his journey in Honolulu with a declaration of a six-point "Pacific Doctrine" for U.S. foreign policy and held out the possibility of future U.S. friendship with Vietnam and Cambodia.

Chatting with reporters just before his jet landed at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Ford was asked if he felt it had been necessary for him to personally make the long journey to China, he replied: "The discussions we had in Peking were mandatory at my level."

Ford said he felt the talks in Indonesia and the Philippines also needed to be conducted at the heads-of-government level.

A reporter, mindful of rumors that Ford now plans to travel to the Mideast early next year, asked about any such plans.

"There are no definite plans," the President replied. But he added that he probably would go to the Mideast "at some point."

Ford said he found his talks in Peking, Jakarta and Manila were "very substantively beneficial."

Ford flew home from Honolulu, where he chose the anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor to reveal his "Pacific Doctrine" in a speech in Honolulu.

"The first premise of a new Pacific doctrine is that American strength is basic to any stable balance of power in the Pacific," Ford said. And, noting Japan's transition from enemy to friend, the President held out the chance of U.S. friendship for Cambodia and Vietnam, saying:

"Our policies toward the new regimes on the (Indochinese) peninsula will be determined by their conduct toward us. We are prepared to reciprocate goodwill — particularly the return of the remains of Americans killed or missing in action, or information about them. If they exhibit restraint toward their neighbors and constructive approaches to international problems, we will look to the future rather than the past."

Back in the capital, Ford is facing decisions on a variety of issues and is expected to sign a bill to provide emergency assistance to help solve New York's fiscal crisis.

Congress is still struggling with tax and energy measures which could draw another pair of presidential vetoes.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb has urged approval of the energy bill which would temporarily lower oil prices, but some conservatives oppose the measure and Ford's campaign director, Howard H. Callaway suggested Sunday that the President might be well advised politically to veto the measure.

Callaway also suggested a veto of the tax measure where Ford is insisting that spending cuts be tacked onto tax reductions and Congress is resisting the idea.

On Sunday the President visited two memorials of World War II, going first to Corregidor in the Philippines and then crossing the international dateline for a morning stop at Pearl Harbor.

The President proclaimed his Pacific doctrine in a speech at the East-West Center at the University of Hawaii, where he said "the healing effects of time are required" in Indochina.

In addition to considering American strength basic to the balance of power in the Pacific, Ford listed these other tenets of his doctrine:

—"Peace in Asia requires a structure of economic cooperation reflecting the aspirations of all the people in the region."

—"Peace in Asia depends upon a resolution of outstanding political conflicts," with the United States "ready to consider constructive ways of easing tensions" on the Korean peninsula.

—"A continuing stake in the stability and security of Southeast Asia."

—"Normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China."

—"Partnership with Japan is a pillar of our strategy."

IRA gunmen might exchange hostage for food, cigarettes

By JAMES R. PEIPERT

LONDON (AP) — Irish Republican Army gunmen holding a 54-year-old postal inspector and his 53-year-old wife under threat of death in the hostages' apartment said today they would consider a police request to swap the woman for food and cigarettes.

"We have asked them to consider keeping just the one hostage and they have agreed to think about it," said Peter Walton, deputy assistant commissioner at Scotland Yard. Police offered their concession after the gunmen made repeated demands for food and cigarettes. However, they said no deals would be made on the gunmen's demand for a flight to Ireland, and that the only place they would go is prison.

Police said there was no confirmation of the identities of the gunmen, but glimpses of them convinced police they had cornered the

IRA cell responsible for the killing of Ross McWhirter, coeditor of the Guinness Book of Records, on Nov. 27, and who may be linked to a recent wave of shootings and bombings in London that has left nine dead and more than 200 injured.

The gunmen — believed to number between three and four — and their hostages are holed up in the living room of the small apartment on the second floor of a four-story building overlooking Dorset Square in north-west central London, a few minutes walk from Regent's Park. The police control the rest of the building, which has been under siege by hundreds of armed security men for two nights.

The gunmen burst into the apartment Saturday night at the end of a gun-blazing chase through London's West End after falling into a police ambush outside Scott's Restaurant in Mayfair, a recent bombing target. Friends of the hostages said they may have been watching "Kojak" the show they normally watch, when the gunmen forced their way in.

"They have made it clear that if we try to break in, they will kill the hostages," said Ernest Bond, deputy assistant commissioner at Scotland Yard. "And we have made it quite plain that they are not going to get any deals."

The hostages are John and Sheila Matthews, who have two grown daughters. Friends describe him as "very calm and quiet," but say "she's a bit nervous — highly strung." On Sunday night Mrs. Matthews asked for aspirin during a 30-second conversation with police. The tablets were sent in.

Drinking water and fresh batteries also were sent in for the field telephone the gunmen allowed police to lower down to them from the roof of the building on Sunday night to establish a line of communication.

The gunmen and their hostages have no access to kitchen and toilet facilities in the two-bedroom apartment, but a portable toilet was hoisted onto the second-story balcony Sunday and it was pulled inside the room.

Digital watches follow 1974 calculator craze

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — Those magical merchandisers of space-age technology who slipped a pocket calculator under every other Christmas tree last year are trying to repeat the trick this season with digital watches. Or, as they put it: "time calculators."

The trade names may be Pulsar, Instar, Litronix, Microma, Spectrax or Chronosplit; the promotional material seems largely interchangeable.

"The next watch you own doesn't have to be a watch at all... it can be a Microelectronic Time Instrument," "Never has a wristwatch done so much," "The most advanced precision instrument a man can own," "The ultimate or perfect watch is already here," "The timepiece of the future."

"The digital watch is probably the greatest breakthrough in timekeeping technology since the sundial," declares Seiko's Richard Jamroz. "What remains to be seen is how the public accepts them."

Initial public response has been enthusiastic. Digital watches have been mass marketed for only the past six months, but stores around the country are reporting big sales. Watch industry spokesmen estimate that 5 per cent of the 50 million watches sold in the United States this year will be digital, which range in price from $40 to $2,750.

Five per cent, or 2.5 million watches, is a substantial figure when you consider that most digitals are now in the $125-$250 price range. Industry observers expect those prices to steadily slip (as did those of their calculator precursors from 1973 to 1975) with a consequent sharp increase in unit volume. "They're gonna be real hot, real hot," predicts Steve Chafitz, a Rockville, Md., dealer who saw the calculator boom coming in 1972. He parlayed his vision into a multi-million dollar business through an aggressive national advertising campaign in 40 publications as varied as Cosmopolitan, The New Yorker, Scientific American and The Wall Street Journal.

"As soon as we get close to Christmas they're just gonna take off. The calculator industry is selling 12 to 18 million units a year, and there're a lot more people who need to wear wat-

Digital watches expected to be '75 Yule craze

"several hundred thousand units," according to a company spokesman.

"The wonderful part of our business is that we have more customers who want our product than we can supply," says Pulsar's Don Nelson. He glances at his wrist "time computer" and announces, "I am now in the p.m. mode. We've become a digital society. This was pertended by the calculator craze and now everywhere you look — on TV, in airports — you see time displayed digitally."

Watching Pulsar's success and the public's quick addition to pocket calculators, several electronics manufacturers — as well as watch firms — began marketing digital watches. About 75 corporations are now turning them out.

Texas Instruments, the electronics giant which fabricates the chips used in many pocket calculators, has just begun manufacturing and shipping its own watches.

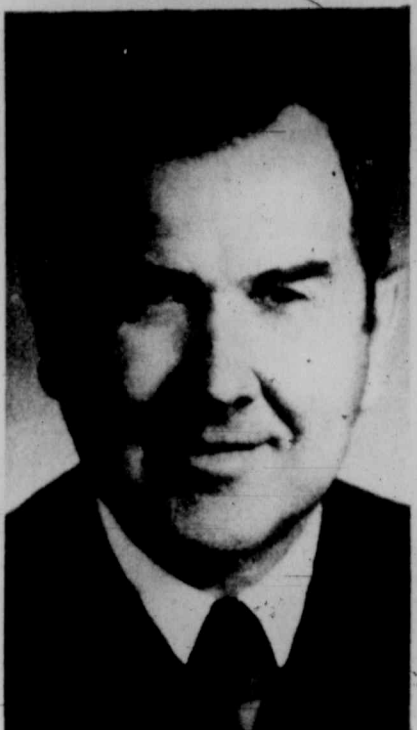

"It became obvious that this was going to be a giant consumer item," says TI's Bruce Brough, "and the company decided to get involved. Our first shipments were made in late August into the Dallas-Houston area, and now they're pretty much into most areas. The marketing department won't say how many have been shipped, but I can tell you there's been a lot — I mean a awful lot."

several hundred thousand units, according to a company spokesman.

Born of the space program, the digital watch is the latest item to exploit an American fascination with technology that has brought us transistor radios and aerosol cheese, cassette recorders and Tang!

This newest gizmo is built around a tiny quartz crystal which oscillates 32,768 times a second when zapped with an electric current supplied by a miniature battery that lasts up to a year. An integrated circuit (IC) "chip" — similar to ones used in pocket calculators counts the vibrations and converts the pulses into seconds, minutes, hours, days and months. Light emitting diodes (LEDs) or liquid crystal displays (LCDs) then provide a digital readout — at the touch of a button or flick of the wrist on LEDs, or continuously with LCDs. LCDs simply reflect ambient light and consequently need a source of illumination (built into some models) to be read at night. In contrast, some LEDs, which light up on command, aren't bright enough to be read in brilliant daylight.

The Pulsar LED unit was the first digital watch to break into the market, with a few thousand sold at $295 in 1972. Considered the Cadillac of the digital market, it has since sold

Face-saving compromise said possible on taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fight between President Ford and Congress that could mean higher taxes for most Americans next month may be resolved in a way that would allow both sides to save face.

The answer may become evident Wednesday when the Senate Finance Committee begins work on a House-passed bill carrying $13 billion in individual tax cuts, mainly extensions of tax cuts in effect this year.

Unless that bill becomes law by the end of the month, most Americans will see their takehome pay reduced starting in January.

Meanwhile, as Congress begins what is expected to be the next-to-last week of the 1975 session, both houses will devote time to New York City's financial problems. The House will consider a bill to amend the bankruptcy laws to facilitate handling of the city's debts in case of default. The Senate will consider an appropriations bill that includes $2.3 billion earmarked to pay for federal loans to New York already authorized by Congress.

Later in the week, the House will vote on the final version of an energy bill. Although the measure does not go as far toward U.S. energy independence as Ford has asked, his chief energy adviser, Frank G. Zarb, has urged that he sign it. Zarb told the Washington Post that he will remain in office even if Ford rejects his advice.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, meanwhile, is opening hearings into the nomination of Judge John Paul Stevens of Chicago to succeed retired Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. No senator has indicated opposition to Stevens, who is Ford's first nominee to the high court.

On the issue of tax cuts, Ford and Congress agree on the need for extending the cuts that went into effect last spring. But the President says he will veto any tax cut that is not tied to a lid on government spending in the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1.

Democratic leaders insist it is not practical to set spending levels 10 months in advance. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has indicated he may go along with a plan that would extend the tax cuts for only three or four months, rather than for the full year. Then, at the end of that period, Congress conceivably could agree to the spending limitation and renew the tax cut for the rest of the year.

Such a compromise might be acceptable to Ford and thus avert another veto confrontation with the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Cattle industry now looking up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's financially depressed cattle industry appears to be headed for a solid recovery, at least as far as feedlot operations are concerned, according to Agriculture Department livestock experts.

After almost two years of depressed profits, feedlots are filling up, and feeders are once again making money, says George Hoffman, an analyst in USDA's Economic Research Service. "That's not to say that everything's rosy in the cattle industry."

Many ranchers and farmers who have cow herds are still losing money on calves because of large inventories of animals. But further herd cullings and heavy cow slaughter, some experts feel, may put the feeder cattle market back on profitable grounds within a year or possibly sooner.

Cattle feeders began moving cattle back into feedlots this fall.

Money filibuster looms in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate faces more filibustering as it decides whether to come up with $2.3 billion to pay for the emergency loans to New York City that the lawmakers authorized over the weekend. The actual money is contained in a $10.3 billion supplemental appropriations bill before the Senate today.

The bill authorizing the federal loans, but not appropriating the money, was approved 57 to 39 by the Senate early Saturday. The House had approved the loan earlier in the week following President Ford's statement that he would sign such a bill.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who opposes the aid plan, tied up the Senate for 14 hours Friday before it passed the loan authorization bill. He has promised another filibuster against the money bill.

Senate leaders already have filed a cloture petition to end debate on the motion to bring the money bill to the floor. Sixty votes are required to end debate.

Allen has two other opportunities to filibuster: when the legislation actually comes up on the Senate floor and when the conference report on the measure goes to the Senate after the House finishes work on it.

Over the weekend, Allen said he is not trying to hurt New York with his parliamentary moves. "In all sincerity, I'm not trying to embarrass New York on this thing... The Senate hasn't had a chance to shape the bill," he said. "It's not a question of whether they're going to get the money, but when."

Even if a filibuster fails, the money bill probably cannot make its way through both the Senate and the House by the tentative default deadline of Thursday when millions of dollars of city bonds are due.

However, New York state and city officials say the deadline is flexible because holders of New York City bonds would likely wait for the appropriations bill to get congressional approval and President Ford's signature before presenting their notes for payment.

Shrimp boats face fines

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fines as big as $40,000 may be levied against each of three Texas shrimp boats seized by the Mexican navy when they allegedly entered Mexico's 12-mile territorial sea limit.

The government newspaper "El Nacional" attributed the estimated fines to Jorge Torija of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce.

Torija said, according to the newspaper, that the three American boats were surprised last week with their nets in the water inside Mexico's 12-mile limit.

The boats were captured the same day the Mexican congress approved President Luis Echeverria's bill to create an "exclusive economic zone" 200 miles out to sea.

The shrimpers have been identified as the Miss Thrifty Way, the Matsumoto Maru and the Betty Margaret, all of the Brownsville area at the southern tip of Texas.

The boats were seized in the Gulf of Mexico and towed to port in Tampico and Taupan, northeast of Mexico City.

These simple tools can help you save energy.

If your home doesn't have good insulation, you're wasting a lot of energy.

But you can do something about it. By installing proper insulation and weatherstripping, you can lock the heat out in the summer and hold it in during the winter.

And that means you'll be using electricity for air conditioning or heating much more efficiently.

You can check your attic insulation with a ruler. If the insulation is less than six inches thick, you may need to add more.

To check the weatherstripping around exterior doors, have someone shine a flashlight around the edges of each closed door. If you can see light, you may have to add new or replace worn weatherstripping.

Saving electric energy takes very little energy on your part, but it's worth the effort.

DEAR ABBY

Bride prefers baby to bouquet

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter, Phyllis, is getting married and her plans are unbelievable.

In the first place, Phyllis and Rick have been living together for two years and they have a 4-month-old baby. Phyllis wants to walk down the aisle with the baby in her arms and Rick by her side!

Phyllis' father and I have been divorced for 14 years, but Phyllis wants us to walk down the aisle together. Then she's got my present husband and her father's present wife teamed up as a "couple" to walk down the aisle together. (Have you ever heard of anything soinine?)

The wedding will be held in church and the kids are paying for everything. Phyllis and Rick wrote their own vows, and they claim the pastor approved all these plans. Can you believe it?

This wedding should take place in a zoo—not a church. I am happy that Phyllis is finally going to marry Rick, but do you think I should take part in this farce, or should I stay home with a migraine headache?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE: DEAR MOTHER: Unconventional as the wedding may seem, it's the bride's day, and she may do things her way. Please don't get a migraine. Your daughter needs you, and you'd be missing one of the most unorthodox weddings of all time.

DEAR ABBY: This past year, my husband and I have entertained three couples for dinner in our home. Upon leaving, all have said, "We will have to have you over soon."

Well, "soon" never came with any of them. When we accidentally run into them somewhere, they say, "We've been meaning to call you."

Abby, these three couples get together often. We know because we see their cars parked in front of the homes of one or the other. However, none of them has made an effort to include us.

My husband says that I am foolish to stand on ceremonies—that as long as we enjoy their company (and we do) I should invite them back.

I think three invitations without being invited back is enough. I'd like your opinion.

ALWAYS HOSTESS: DEAR ALWAYS: I'm with you. One for one is the proper ratio, but two for none should be the absolute limit.

DEAR ABBY: Eleven years ago, when my son was 5-years-old, I was financially unable to care for him so I placed him in a home where I knew he would be properly provided for. I had no choice, Abby.

Now he is 16, and when he visits me, he makes demands, uses abusive language and treats me in a most cruel and insulting manner. I feel that this is his way of punishing me for having put him in a home.

What is the best way to cope with this situation? I don't appreciate this type of treatment from my own son. Thank you.

DEAR ABUSED: If you can't make him understand that you placed him in a home because you thought it would be best for him, perhaps a clergyman or counselor can. Your son desperately needs to be assured that he was loved—not abandoned.

WASHINGTON warns Christmas order swindle numbers this year.

"These orders are extremely attractive," said Postal Service officials. "Christmas is a time of year who seek to do Christmas time."

Though, a legitimate, the boom in mail during the Christmas season.

"This is a time even more sounds to go what it is," Davis said.

As an example, previous holiday who advertised about $50 less.

"He got the checks for delivering an Postal allowing seizure $200,000 was scheme.

Mail swindler warning aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service warns Christmas shoppers to be wary of mail-order swindlers, who may be operating in record numbers this holiday season.

"These operators offer something at an extremely attractive price and then don't deliver," said Postal Service attorney George Davis.

"Christmas is a busy mailing time because it is a time of busy commercial activity. And those who seek to deceive come out of the woodwork at Christmas time," Davis said in an interview.

Though many mail-order concerns are legitimate, the ailing economy has started a boom in mail-order fraud, and it may get worse during the Christmas season, Postal Service officials say.

"This is a time when the buyer should beware even more than usual. If a mail-order offer sounds too good to be true, then that's probably what it is," Davis said.

As an example of a mail-order swindle from a previous holiday season, Davis cited an operator who advertised a well-known make of camera for about $50 less than its market value.

"He got thousands of people to mail him checks for $19.95 but the swindler wasn't delivering any cameras," Davis said.

Postal inspectors obtained a court order allowing seizure of his bank account. Eventually, $200,000 was returned to people who fell for the scheme.

Another scheme that operated during a previous Christmas season involved misrepresentation of the size and quality of dolls. The dolls mailed to buyers turned out to be much smaller and of poorer quality than those described in an ad.

Davis said another area to be careful of is mail-order franchising, which could involve an obligation to buy holiday greeting cards with the promise that they can later be sold for a profit. "You could end up with a lot of cards that won't sell and would be difficult to give away," Davis said.

Vigil makes no Yule plans

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) — "We don't have any special plans for Christmas," says Elizabeth Nance Bard.

"We just think maybe we won't be here."

She is one of 25 persons who are closeted in a small brick house waiting for the second coming of Christ and the world to end.

The vigil began 70 days ago with believers abandoning their homes and jobs. Mrs. Bard said the group is "in no way discouraged. We just keep praying and studying and waiting for the end to come.

"Christmas, of course, is a special time," she said. "But what we're doing is even more important."

Last week Mrs. Bard broke the group's self-imposed silence to deny rumors circulating about the vigil in this town of 177.

Residents reported hearing "bloodcurdling screams" from the house, and seeing nighttime parades by vigil keepers dressed in white robes.

"There is nothing sinister, weird or strange about this," Mrs. Bard said. "Nothing goes on in the house that doesn't go on in a church — a lot of praying and religious study."

Mrs. Bard's comments sparked an editorial Saturday by the Arkansas Gazette, the state's largest newspaper, defending the group's freedom of religion.

"If they left their jobs, closed their businesses and moved to the house in accordance with what they believe one member was told by God in a vision, they have done no harm to anyone, nor have they done anything but mind their own business," the newspaper said.

The Gazette criticized county officials who "will not let well enough alone and show the same respect for religious or lack of religious belief to the 25 on the vigil that they expect for themselves."

Several school-age children were removed from the house by court order and officials had considered using health and safety codes as a pretext to evict the occupants.

The editorial brought some sanity to the whole thing," Mrs. Bard said. "I guess people just needed to know that we're serious about this, not just kooks." People maybe just forget what religion really is.

Democrats eye rules changes

FORT WORTH (AP) — The State Democratic Executive Committee votes today on a set of new rules designed to streamline the party's spring and fall state conventions.

The two-pronged set of rules won tentative approval Sunday.

Among the major rules changes is a provision calling for state conventions to begin between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. to get routine appointments of standing committee chairmen out of the way.

At the end of about three hours of committee meetings, the conventions then will be recessed until the next morning.

In the past, Democrats have started their meetings early in the morning and on some occasions they have run for nearly 20 hours — not ending until just before dawn of the next day.

The proposed rule change is aimed at eliminating such marathons.

No limit is placed on the time the morning session can run, but backers of the proposed change believe it will be much shorter.

Next June, under the new rules, Texas Democrats will hold a "presidential" state convention, probably June 15, in Fort Worth.

The purpose of the convention will be "to elect the party's official nominees" for the Democratic National Committee convention that will be held a month later in New York City.

Both conventions, the presidential and the regular state convention that will be held in early September, will operate under the revised rules that, for the most part, were agreed to by subcommittee members here in a recent two-day long session.

Texas will send 140 delegates to the national Democratic convention in New York City next year. Three delegates from each of the state's 31 senatorial districts will be sent. In addition, an extra delegate will go from each of five senatorial districts, the 7th and 15th districts in Harris County, the 14th in Travis County, the 20th in Nueces County and the 26th in Bexar County. Another 32 delegates will be picked at the June 15 state convention.

Thornton Wilder, 78, dies in sleep at home

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Thornton Wilder, who wrote the theater classic "Our Town" and collected three Pulitzer prizes for his novels and plays, is dead of a heart attack at age 78.

The playwright, novelist, teacher and traveler died in his sleep Sunday while napping at the Hamden, Conn., house he shared with his sister, Isabel, a family spokesman said.

Wilder, who wrote numerous plays and eight novels in his half-century career, was brought to the Hospital of St. Raphael in nearby New Haven about 7:25 p.m. where he was pronounced dead.

Amos Tappan Wilder, a nephew, said Wilder had been in poor health for several years but had continued to travel occasionally.

Wilder won his first Pulitzer in 1928 for the novel "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." The others were for the plays "Our Town" in 1938 and "The Skin of Our Teeth" in 1943.

He also wrote "The Matchmaker" which was turned into "Hello Dolly," the longest running Broadway musical.

Wilder received in 1963 the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian citation, and was the first recipient of the National Book Committee's National Medal for Literature, which was presented at the White House in 1967. The latter honor was for his novel, "The Eighth Day."

Wilder completed his last book "Theophilus North" in October 1973. It was the story of a young man's adventures in the 1920s in the seacoast resort of Newport, R.I.

Thornton Niven Wilder was born April 17, 1897 in Madison, Wis., the second of five children of Amos Wilder, editor of a newspaper. When he was 9, his father was named consul general in Hong Kong and later Shanghai, and Wilder attended German and English schools in China. He later went to schools in California. His first literary effort was scribbled in an algebra book: "The Russian Princess, an Extravaganza."

Wilder studied at Oberlin College and spent a year in the Coast Guard before graduating from Yale in 1920. He taught French for several years before obtaining masters degree from Princeton in 1926.

He studied archeology in Rome and wrote his first novel, "The Cabala," about the city. It was published in 1926, the same year his first play, "The Trumpet Shall Sound," was produced.

In addition to his sister and nephew, Wilder is survived by a brother, Rev. Amos Niven Wilder, Hollis Professor of Divinity Emeritus at Harvard; three sisters, Charlotte of Brattleboro, Vt.; and Janet Wilder Dankin of Amherst, Mass.; and a niece, Katharine Dix Wilder of New Haven.

A memorial service will be announced later. Burial will be private.

Indonesian troops press Portuguese Timor drive

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Pro-Indonesian forces in Portuguese Timor were reported expanding their control of the former colony today with the support of Indonesian troops.

Foreign Minister Adam Malik announced Sunday that factions friendly to Indonesia had captured Dili, the capital of Portuguese Timor, from Fretilin, the leftist Revolutionary Front for the Independence of East Timor, and declared the territory part of Indonesia.

Information Minister Mashur said Indonesian "volunteers" supported the attack on Dili, and a Fretilin broadcast said the Indonesians were pursuing the independence fighters in the hills.

Timor is an island the size of Connecticut and Massachusetts in the southern central part of the Indonesian archipelago. The western half of the island is Indonesian.

The Portuguese government planned to give its half independence in 1978, but on Aug. 10 the UDT (the Timorese Democratic Union) attempted a coup against the Portuguese. Fretilin forces opposed the UDT and took over Dili, and the Portuguese colonial administration fled to an offshore island.

After weeks of sporadic fighting, the UDT and Apodeti (the Popular Democratic Association of Timor) joined forces. Fretilin declared the territory independent, and Malik in a speech last week in Indonesian Timor called on the UDT and Apodeti for an all-out war against Fretilin.

Suspected Nazi evidence sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is sending a lawyer to Israel to work with officials there gathering evidence against alleged Nazi war criminals living in the United States.

The lawyer, who will not have an investigator's role, will detail for Israeli authorities and U.S. consular officials the department's needs for evidence if it tries to deport these people.

The decision to send a Justice Department representative was made after lawyers working for the House subcommittee on immigration, citizenship and international law returned from Israel and said witnesses who could assist the prosecution had been located.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service sent to Israel a list of 55 names of persons living in the United States who have been accused of committing war crimes during World War II, according to Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., the subcommittee chairman.

An assistant to Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi, who asked not to be identified by name, said the department's lawyer who would visit Israel had not been chosen. But he said he would probably come from the Immigration Service.

Ford plans few campaign days

The Washington Post
 WASHINGTON — President Ford's political managers plan to have him campaign only one to three days for the nation's first 1976 presidential primary in New Hampshire on Feb. 24 and again for the Florida primary on March 9.

Howard H. (Bo.) Callaway, the campaign manager, and his chief political deputy, Stuart Spencer, said in a weekend interview the President's effort will rely chiefly on Mr. Ford's incumbency — "on how he does his job."

Callaway said he believes the President will beat challenger Ronald Reagan in what Callaway rated the former California-governor's best northern and southern states. He said in his view "50 per cent plus one" of the votes would constitute victory for Mr. Ford because Reagan has "got to win in his best."

"What advantage is it from a perception point of view for him (Mr. Ford) to go slugging around with 16 Democrats and a Republican?" Spencer asked. "In our view, we have a President and 12 or 13 different challengers in there against him. We will not have a campaign that will put him in there with the others."

Alluding to reports that Reagan will spend 15 campaign days in New Hampshire, Callaway said: "The President can't go up there 15 days. He's an incumbent President. He's too busy."

Callaway said he expects the President to speak at "Chamber of Commerce" forums and the like rather than doing the kind of door-to-door campaigning that has been traditional and effective in New Hampshire.

Spencer said surrogates or "advocates" will be dispatched to the state to fill in for Mr. Ford. Although no one has agreed to do so yet, he said, among those who will be asked are Secretary of Commerce Elliot L. Richardson from neighboring Massachusetts, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, and Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey (R-Calif.), who won about 20 per cent of the New Hampshire Republican vote against Richard M. Nixon in the 1972 primary.

Spencer said he expected the Ford campaign will "bump the lid" on campaign spending in the state — about $170,000 against a legal maximum of $200,000. The emphasis, he said, will be on organization. Chairman already have been selected in four regions broken into 22 areas, each with a chairman. As of now, he said, there are probably 400 local workers ready to campaign for Mr. Ford.

Callaway said the presence in New Hampshire of Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr. and William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader, both backing Reagan, and the fact Mr. Ford is an unelected President, are reasons 50 per cent plus one would be enough to claim victory.

Spencer called Loeb, a bitter critic of both the President and his wife, Betty, Mr. Ford's principal "negative" in the state.

Spencer, just back from New Hampshire, said personal observation and polls by Robert Teeter of Detroit detected great apathy so far among the state's voters and a "softness" toward both candidates.

He said, however, he believed Reagan to be vulnerable on his record in California. But he denied reports the Ford campaign plans to send California Republican state legislators into New Hampshire to campaign against Reagan.

In Florida, Spencer said, 27 county chairmen for Mr. Ford are signed on. He said "advocate" candidates there may include Callaway, from neighboring Georgia, former Secretary of Commerce Rogers Morton, Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.) and former Rep. Les Arends of Illinois, now living in Florida.

Spencer and Callaway said the common situs picketing bill is a major issue among Florida Republicans and they expect the President to veto it. The bill would enable unions to shut down entire construction sites.

BRIDGE Tournament stars face king-size risks

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
 Playing in the finals of a national championship is no bed of roses. You may play so magnificently as to show how much you have learned from reading this column. (How else would you become so wonderful?) But you may pull a boner that your friends will remind you of for years. It's a big risk.

Today we see the last hand of the 1947 national team championship, in which declarer pulled a boner at a grand slam contract. South (I wouldn't dream of naming names) took the king of clubs and led out the ace of hearts.

That was all. It was enough. South could no longer pick up East's queen of hearts. He still needed a spade or diamond finesse (it was not one of your ironclad grand slams), but he could have made his contract if he had played the trumps correctly.

Unsafe Play
 South led the ace of hearts as a safety play, to guard against a singleton queen. It was actually an "unsafe" play, since it put South on the wrong end of a 4-to-1 shot.

If West has a singleton heart, it may be any of the five missing trumps. All are equally likely. There are four chances for the singleton to be a low trump, and only one chance for the singleton to be the queen.

Leading out the ace of hearts is useful only if West has the singleton queen. For the four other possible singletons South must lead the first trump from dummy, taking two finesses through East.

DAILY QUESTION
 How should South play the trump suit if he has AKJ 10 5 in his own hand, with 9 8 3 in the dummy?

ANSWER: South should lead the ace first. If the queen fails to drop, there will still be two trumps in the dummy and South can still take two finesses through East.

Widow filing plan on busing

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Today is a special day in court for Charles Glatt, a desegregation planner who was shot to death Sept. 19.

"I don't want Charles to have died in vain," said his widow, Johena. She and several friends finished the school integration plan he was working on when he was killed and were expected to present the 180-page project in federal court today.

Glatt was appointed July 7 by U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin to design a plan for Dayton schools. But he was shot to death by a divorced father of seven who told authorities his youngest son was to be bused and that he shot Glatt because "God made me do it."

Neal Bradley Long of Dayton was charged with murder in the case. After Glatt's death, responsibility for his work was taken over by a team headed by Miami (Ohio) University Prof. Dr. William Gordon.

"Many of us hoped we could put together a plan," said Mrs. Glatt. "It never occurred to us that we could get Charles' notes from the court."

About two weeks ago, the court released the notes to Mrs. Glatt, who called on friends who had worked with her husband to assemble the project.

"We didn't do any writing on the plan," she said. "It's not my plan. It's Charles' plan."

The work bears the name Charles Glatt and gave it: "The Quest for Human Dignity in One America." The "Quest for Human Dignity" was in the title of a plan he developed for Indianapolis, and his widow said he wanted it to become his trademark.

Glatt's plan focuses on the pairing and clustering of schools and would involve changing boundaries. It would mean closing about five schools, Mrs. Glatt said, and require busing about 20,000 children of the system's 44,165 pupils.

Pairing and clustering means enlarging attendance zones and splitting schools so they draw from both white and black communities, she said.

Refugee program almost complete, official says

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Saturday that only 153 refugees out of the thousands that poured into this country with the fall of Vietnam and Cambodia remain without sponsors.

Donald G. MacDonald, senior civilian coordinator of the resettlement program here, said there were 4,489 refugees at Chaffee Saturday, but that all but the 153 have sponsors, a person or agency agreeing to help them adjust to American society.

MacDonald said Chaffee's remaining sponsored refugees are waiting for final processing and a ride to their new home.

He predicted the handful left would be sponsored today or Tuesday. "There is no such thing as an unsponsorable human being," he said.

MacDonald said Dec. 20 still is the target date for ending resettlement operations at Chaffee, which received its first refugees May 2,

Two other refugee centers already have closed and a third, Indiantown Gap, Pa., had 549 refugees Saturday. MacDonald said Indiantown Gap could close at anytime.

"I bought my ticket home to Williamstown, Vt., for the 21st," said MacDonald. "I wish now I had bought it for the 18th or 19th."

MacDonald said more than 130,000 refugees had been relocated since the program began. About 7,000 refugees were resettled directly to this country from Asia, he said.

Before closing as refugee centers, Camp Pendleton, Calif., resettled 48,411 and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., 8,688. So far, there have been 45,615 processed through Chaffee and 21,162 through Indiantown Gap.

Eglin closed as a relocation center in September and Pendleton stopped resettlement operations in October, MacDonald said.

The first Indochina refugees to arrive in this country came to Pendleton on April 30.

Pending child, family services bill attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversial legislation for an extensive federal program of child services may get congressional attention next year, but any measure finally approved is expected to be small in scale compared to pending proposals.

The pending bill would set up an Office of Child and Family Services in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It would authorize, subject to later appropriation, $150 million for the present fiscal year, and annual amounts rising to $1 billion in 1978 for a wide variety of child and family services.

These would include day care for children of working parents, health, social, recreational and educational programs outside of school, social services and counseling for families, diagnosis and treatment of physical, mental and emotional handicaps and dissemination of information to parents.

Special programs would be directed to children of migrant workers, Indians and other minority groups.

The legislation has attracted a recent surge of critical comment, some of it from anonymous sources who are mailing circulars attacking the proposals.

Newspapers, broadcasting stations, civic organizations and individuals have been receiving material contending that passage of the proposed Child and Family Services Act would raise a danger of Congressional Record while some others ap-proposed a similar bill but that these referred to proposals by an unofficial organization in Great Britain unconnected with past or present legislation in Congress.

The bill itself has been dormant in Congress since Senate House subcommittee hearings were concluded last summer. No further action is expected this year.

Congressional sources say the full House Education and Labor Committee may take up the measure next year, but that any legislation approved will probably be drastically scaled down from the present proposals, especially in million for the present fiscal year, and annual amounts rising to $1 billion in 1978 for a wide variety of child and family services.

One unsigned broadside in the subcommittee's files, for example, contends that a "charter of children's rights" is becoming a part of this Child Development Act. "No such charter is in the bill," the broadside says. The charter would, among other things, give children the right to bring suit against parents for "inadequacies in their homes and backgrounds," to be protected against "excessive claims" by parents, such as directions to take out the garbage; and to refuse to be taken to church.

The Congressional Record is quoted in support of these assertions. A subcommittee memorandum says some of the allegations could not be found in the would raise a danger of Congressional Record while some others ap-proposed a similar bill but that these referred to proposals by an unofficial organization in Great Britain unconnected with past or present legislation in Congress.

JIM OTIS of St. Louis rises to the occasion as he goes over the top for a first down against the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in big showdown battle in St. Louis. The Cards won, 31-17.

Cards whip Dallas

ST. LOUIS (AP)—For Jim Hart, the mental part of getting ready for the Dallas Cowboys was simple. And Hart, a pro quarterback in his 10th season, Sunday made the physical part of his assignment look equally easy while directing the St. Louis Cardinals to a 31-17 National Football League triumph.

"I was talking to my wife over breakfast during the week," recalled Hart, an errant passer 10 days earlier with four interceptions in a 32-14 Cards loss to the Buffalo Bills.

"I told her my feeling psychologically about this game was that it couldn't get any worse than Thanksgiving Day," said Hart, who redeemed himself with three touchdown passes spilling the Cowboys, 9.

It was suggested to Hart that the victory by St. Louis, 9-3, lodged the Cards firmly in the driver's seat with two weeks left in the National Conference East.

"I guess we are," responded Hart, who for the moment was more intent on savoring the facility of a St. Louis win.

"We're on top," he acknowledged, "but I'm having a tough time thinking about that situation. I don't even know what the possibilities are. All I know is I want Dallas to beat the (Washington) Redskins."

Not surprisingly a subdued Coach Tom Landry of Dallas, whose team is now tied with Washington at 8-4 for second place, was also thinking ahead.

"Whoever wins that game wins the wild card berth," Landry said in reference to the Cowboys' next assignment, Saturday at home against the Redskins. "Even if we'd won today, it wouldn't have done us any good unless we beat Washington."

The postseason expectations of Landry and his team, although not demoralized, were considerably diminished by what the Cards did in 30 minutes.

Boostered by Terry Metcalf's circus catch of a 30-yard touchdown pass, Hart sparked St. Louis to a 14-3 lead at the quarter and afterward upped the advantage to 28-3.

Speedy Mel Gray beat Mel Renfro of the Cowboys for 49 yards and a touchdown late in the opening period, then victimized Dallas Charlie Waters for six yards and another score just before the half.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach filled the air with passes in the closing periods but two were picked off by Roger Wehrli, who had also been a thief in the second quarter.

"It's impossible to give them too much credit," said Landry in saluting the Cards for a "tremendous" first half.

"We knew we had to win," said Cards Coach Don Coryell, who unlike Hart had been acutely aware of what a loss would do to his team.

"We didn't do anything special, we just did it better," Coryell maintained. "We just hope we can make the playoffs. That's the only thing we're concerned about."

Individual Leaders:
 RUSHING—Dallas: Staubach 20-241, Newhouse 14-220, P. Pearson 8-29, Metcalf 14-80, Gray 14-181.
 RECEIVING—Dallas: P. Pearson 5-81, Newhouse 4-29, Metcalf 3-40, Gray 4-43.
 PASSING—Staubach 20-41-288 yards.

Chaps try Frank Phillips

Frank Phillips College of Berger is struggling around the .500 mark, but Coach Chester Story of Midland College warns: "Don't let that fool you. They've probably played a tougher schedule than anyone in the league."

Story's Chaparrals host the Panhandle outfit at the MC gym in an 8 p.m. game today and whether or not enjoys the Christmas holiday break probably will depend in part on how his team fares this week.

After FPC tonight, the Chaps go to Odessa College Thursday and then are idle until after the holidays.

"Frank Phillips probably is as physical as anybody in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference," says Story. "They have two 6-8 men who are tough on the boards."

"They play a slow down offense and we hope to make them play a faster game than they normally do."

The Berger bunch is 4-5 on the year, but is 1-1 in league play. "They won over New Mexico JC on the road and lost to Amarillo College by two on the road."

Two of the non-conference victories came in the Dodge City, Kansas, Tournament, where they lost in the finals to Moberly, Mo., JC, 65-63, in the finals. "Moberly is always close to the top of the national JC ratings every year," points out Story.

The Chaparrals raised their record to 8-3 for the season with an 89-70 win over Angelo State Frosh Saturday night. The game was a welcome change of pace after two emotionally draining contests earlier in the week.

On Monday, MC lost to Amarillo College, the preseason title favorite, on a basket in the final eight seconds, after leading by 14 with six minutes to play.

On Thursday, the Chaps bounced back with a 112-109 win over Howard College, which was fresh from an 83-71 win over previously unbeaten New Mexico Military Institute. "But tonight we'll have to be on our toes and mentally alert if we are to beat Frank Phillips," says Story.

Oiler defense halts San Francisco's bid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Houston Oilers believe the only thing tougher than their defense this season was their schedule.

"If we had gotten into the playoffs with our schedule, we would have had a good chance of going all the way," said Dan Pastorini, the quarterback of the team which beat San Francisco's 49ers 27-13 Sunday.

Houston was eliminated from playoff contention by a Cincinnati victory, a few minutes before taking the field and improving its record to 8-4, best by an Oiler team since 1967.

"We showed a lot of character, knowing that we were out of it," said Coach Bum Phillips.

The Oilers also showed a lot of defense, holding San Francisco's running game to five net yards on 25 rushing attempts. They came home behind in the second half with two long touchdown drives and a final touchdown which was set up by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson's 76-yard punt return.

"There's no magic answer to what we did defensively. We just played like we're capable of playing. We've got a very good defensive team," said linebacker Steve Kiner. "We lost our four games to two very tough teams."

The defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cincinnati Bengals, both playoff bound, each beat Houston twice and lead the Oilers in the American Conference Central standings. They also are the only teams in the AFC which have allowed fewer points than the Oilers.

Next Sunday, the Oilers will be in Oakland to face the AFC West champion Raiders. Pastorini predicts, "That will be a dogfight."

The 49ers, 5-7, will take their one-dimensional offense to Atlanta next Sunday.

"As though we could run the ball but as it turned out, that wasn't a very good plan," admitted Steve Spurrier, the 49ers' starting quarterback who passed for 77 yards before leaving the game in the first half with a bruised elbow.

Larry Schreiber ran for the only San Francisco touchdown, giving the 49ers a 10-6 lead just before halftime. But that one-yard plunge and Schreiber's six-yard gain in the first quarter were the highlights of the 49ers' dark day rushing. Two lost fumbles raised the team's league-leading total to 25 this season.

Spurrier, Norm Snead and Tom Owen combined for 221 passing yards but the Oilers' defense had three sacks which subtracted 26 yards from the gross passing yardage.

Liberty Bowl pits Aggies against USC

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An official of the Liberty Bowl football classic says the Dec. 22 matchup of Texas A&M and Southern California will be "the most prestigious game we have ever had."

"Southern Cal is the defending national champion and A&M brings the best record (10-1) we've ever had," said A. F. "Bud" Dudley, founder and executive director of the bowl.

Dudley said he was not dismayed that A&M suffered a 31-6 loss Saturday at the hands of Arkansas.

"You have to remember that Saturday A&M was going for a national championship," he said. "It just happened to be one of those bad days for them."

Under a formula announced earlier, the runnerup in the Southwest Conference title slugout Saturday would be the team meeting Southern Cal in Memphis.

As it was, Arkansas walked away with the game and goes to the Cotton Bowl as the champ, leaving A&M bound for the Liberty Bowl.

Dudley, in New York for a Football Hall of Fame dinner, said he had talked with A&M officials and thinks the sting of the loss to Arkansas is abating.

"I think they're getting over it," he said.

A&M had been the favorite to win the game and one star was baffled by the outcome.

"I don't know how to explain it," said A&M cornerback Pat Thomas.

"I guess it's pretty stupid that a 10-0 team can't pick off the last one," said another A&M standout, linebacker Ed Simonini.

Miller, Graham take World Cup golf crown

BANGKOK (AP)—Next year's World Cup Golf Tournament appears headed for the United States, the country which headed home today with both the team and individual titles from the 23rd tournament.

"That will nicely coincide with the 200th anniversary celebrations," tournament director Fred J. Corcoran said after Johnny Miller rallied in the final round Sunday to win the individual title and teamed with Lou Graham for the team championship.

caddy who has arranged all of the Cup tournaments, said three states in the United States were bidding to host the 24th renewal. He did not name them.

The United States finished at 22-under-par 554 for four rounds over the 6,906-yard, par-72 Navantane golf course, 10 strokes ahead of Taiwan. Japan was third at 565, followed by Australia, 566, and Argentina, 571.

"We played hard to try and win the honor for our country, but I did not expect to win the individual honor as well," said Miller.

The 28-year-old Californian shot a final-round 68 for a 13-under-par 275. That gave him a one-stroke victory over Bob Shearer of Australia and cothir round leaders Ben Arda of the Philippines and Hsieh Min-Nan of Taiwan. Shearer finished with a 69 while Arda and Hsieh each shot 73.

Graham, the U.S. Open winner, came finished with a 70 for a 279 total and fifth place.

Christy O'Connor Sr. of Ireland suggested that in the future the country that holds the World Cup should host preliminary tournaments so that golfers from various parts of the world could get used to the weather and other conditions.

For example, most of the Europeans had stopped playing in October at the colder home grounds and suddenly they had to come here to play a world championship in tropical heat, O'Connor said.

"This is the first and last time I will be playing in Asia," said Brian Barnes of Scotland.

Juan Cabrera of Argentina suffered a dizzy spell in the clubhouse and Venezuelan Neal Machado stopped playing after getting a heat rash.

But Corcoran said the heat did not mean the tournament would not return to Asia. He noted that during the World Cup in Singapore and Argentina, some players had been affected the heat but that the tournament still took place in Bangkok.

"The heat is no major factor and the players will be performing well," he said.

Bradley cops Far East crown

MELBOURNE (AP)—Pat Bradley got so excited at the prospect of winning her first pro golf tournament, she didn't even see the shot that did it.

Miss Bradley, 24, and in her second year on the U.S. women's golf tour, came to the final hole at the Victoria Golf Club needing a birdie to win the Far East Women's Open. She reached the green in two, then lined up a 30-foot putt for her birdie try.

She stroked the ball firmly towards the cup. As it neared the hole, she leaped into the air in excitement—and missed seeing it hit the back of the cup, carom into the air and then drop back in.

That putt gave Miss Bradley her third birdie on the final four holes and a one-stroke victory over fellow American Joyce Kazmierski. She earned $13,000 for her first triumph. That raised her season's winnings to $41,000, after just $10,000 as a rookie last year.

Miss Bradley, who used just 14 putts on her back nine in a final-round 72, had a 54-hie total of 216. Miss Kazmierski, the second-round leader, skied to a 75 for a total of 217.

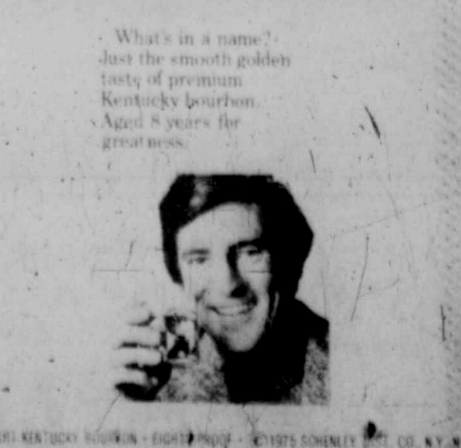

Shelley Hamlin was next at 75-218, while Judy Rankin and Japan's Sayoko Yamazaki were tied at 219.

Miss Bradley set up her victory with a 40-foot birdie putt on the 15th hole. She parred No. 16 and then birdied the 17th by reaching the green from 275 yards away to set up her climactic finishing putt.

Zarb denies reports he will quit office if his advice ignored

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said Sunday he will remain in his post even if President Ford rejects his advice and vetoes the pending compromise energy bill.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, for example, has sold Zarb he is "tilting" toward a veto recommendation of the energy bill. Simon is also strongly opposed to any tax bill that fails to incorporate President Ford's recommendation for a spending limitation. And Simon is opposed, as well, to the picketing bill.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

In a telephone interview, Zarb denied reports he would resign if the President "decides on full decontrol. If that's what he wants, I'll go along with him," Zarb said.

The energy bill compromise, negotiated in Capitol Hill by Zarb, would lower the average price of domestically produced oil — at least for the next year and keep price controls in effect for a 40-month period. A veto, if sustained, would free domestic oil from price controls.

The compromise legislation has come in for heavy criticism within the petroleum industry, and from Republican conservatives.

Disposition of the energy bill poses one of three important sign-or-veto decisions that President Ford must make on key economic issues in the next few days.

The others concern tax legislation that would extend the 1975 tax cuts into next year, and on a labor bill that would legalize broader picketing privileges by construction unions.

In all these cases, the President is confronted by bitter divisions among his economic advisers most closely concerned with the issues.

to picket an entire construction site — a practice known as situs picketing — instead of restricting them to the individual subcontractor against whom they have a grievance.

Secretary of Labor John Dunlop is the principal administration force behind the liberalized picketing bill. In a telephone interview Sunday, Dunlop said the President had indicated "in the presence of leaders of both parties" that he would sign the bill.

The labor secretary said that the bill approved in conference committee last week contains amendments making the bill "more palatable" to those who had opposed it. "I think the dangers of this legislation have been blown out of proportion," Dunlop said Sunday.

On the tax question, Dflop feels that the critical issue is that "tax withholding rates ought not to go up in January. That would be bad economic policy," Dunlop said.

That judgment was supported Sunday also by a group of business leaders, the Committee for Economic Development. In a policy statement, the committee urged extensions of $12 billion in tax cuts without mentioning the $395 billion budget limit for fiscal 1977 that President Ford has said would be required for his approval of a tax cut.

The House approved a bill last week to extend the 1975 tax cuts, but without the spending ceiling. The Senate now takes up the bill, and is also expected to ignore President Ford's insistence on an expenditure limit.

Political leaders on both sides aren't sure whether President Ford will carry through his threat to veto a simple extension of the present tax-withholding rates. But there is no certainty that a veto could be overridden.

Another key economic adviser, Economic Council chairman Alan Greenspan has refused to indicate publicly his position on the three pieces of legislation. But he is reported to have more serious reservations about the picketing and energy bills than on the tax legislation.

Zarb said in the interview that the proposed energy bill "is the best that Congress is likely to pass between now and the election."

"I'd rather explain higher gas bills than why you don't have gas."

Your natural gas bill is higher. And, you have every right to know why.

One reason is lower temperatures brought on by winter.

The main reason, however, is simply that you are paying more for natural gas. Because we are paying more. This chart shows how much:

This increase hurts both you and Pioneer. It adds to your bill and to our cost... a cost for which Pioneer is not entirely compensated. It is passed through without mark-up or additional charges.

Why does gas cost more? Competition... particularly from petrochemical and other industries. The competition for gas has never been so fierce.

We will have to pay more for gas than in the past. But by working together, and without outside interference, you'll have the gas you need today and in the future.

Citizens must decide

Crime resistance must be practiced on the individual, family and community level. Clarence M. Kelley, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said recently in addressing the Rotary Club of Birmingham, Ala.

sider seriously. He made it quite clear that Americans cannot expect a marked reduction in the crime rate until citizens make up their minds to do something about it. Kelley said that as a law enforcement officer and as an American, he is alarmed not only about the appalling level of crime in this nation but also, with the attitudes which permit crime to flourish.

Bombing Lebanon camps: Israel's unfortunate error

WASHINGTON — Israel succeeded in killing several score Arabs in those sure-fire bombing raids on Palestinian refugee camps but, in the long run, Israel is the loser for it. The reaction here and across the world ranges from disappointment (by Israel's friends) to disgust (from the evenhanded) to expressions of outrage (from the unfriendly).

ference table. We had to learn that lesson in Vietnam after two decades of needless killing. The same realities must be confronted in the Middle East. These are strong words from a liberal Democratic senator, nominally a backer of Israel, McGovern's anti-war colleagues were far milder.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
Speaker Carl Albert's checklist

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — Every day House Speaker Carl Albert carefully chronicles his activities in a black plastic binder. Each page is a mimeographed form containing a detailed check list, which he uses to keep a record of his physical fitness.

"I have never in my life had a drinking problem!" the Little Giant from Bugtussie, Okla., told us. "I've never taken a drink when the House was in session. Why no one has ever smelled liquor on my breath when I'm in the Chair." He hadn't touched a drop, he added, in the past six weeks.

INSIDE REPORT: 'Bland' politics seen in court appointment

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — While almost surely avoiding a Senate confirmation fight, the nomination of Judge John Paul Stevens contains subtle dangers for the Supreme Court and again exposes the limitations of Gerald R. Ford's bland presidency.

There is no secret why Stevens, a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago, was selected. President Ford and his justice-hunters were seeking the best qualified nominee likely to win quick confirmation. But in doing so, Mr. Ford furthered a trend toward capture of the nation's highest court by the organized legal profession which could convert it into a body of legal mechanics rather than lawyers.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Albert said his "hum-chew" exercise has helped his throat. His heavy responsibilities, he confided, cause his only real "health" problem — tiredness. His colleagues have noticed the Speaker's weariness. One of his staunchest friends in Congress told us: "Carl hasn't been back on his feet since his trip to China. The jet lag really got to him."

Certainly Hugo Black, who as a Senator from Alabama lacked legal experience but proved a towering figure on the court, could never pass ABA muster today. No member of Congress would even be submitted by the Ford White House. Considerable conservative sentiment built up in recent weeks for Rep. Charles Wiggins of California. But Wiggins, lacked long legal experience and was backballed as "undistinguished."

West Germany still one of world's busiest spy centers

By MURRAY SEEGER
The Los Angeles Times

BONN — West Germany continues to be one of the world's busiest spy centers, even though the espionage trial of Guenther Guillaume and his wife has been in the news for six months and most observers expect them to be found guilty shortly on at least some of the charges.

Guillaume's arrest in 1974 exposed West German espionage operations high in government and forced the resignation of then-Chancellor Willy Brandt, who only recently has recovered his political standing as chairman of the Social Democratic Party (SDP).

The chief federal prosecutor, Siegfried Buback, has asked the court to give Guillaume 15 years and his wife 10 years in jail. They already have been in custody 18 months.

Regardless of the court decision on the Guillaume's, however, espionage goes forward at a steady pace.

German authorities estimate there are 15,000 spies of various types working against the interests of the Bonn government at any one time. While the counterintelligence services claim to "neutralize" about 700 agents a year, the Communist governments have stepped up their efforts.

In his annual report on security last spring, Interior Minister Werner Maihofer said Bonn's counterespionage agents uncovered twice as many spy contacts in 1974 as in 1973 despite improved political relations between Germany and its Eastern neighbors.

Mathofer admitted the counterintelligence agency had erred seriously in failing to uncover Guillaume's work earlier.

The East Germans, he said, were interested in the usual military and political secrets but also were anxious to uncover escape systems from the Communist world.

The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency also has a sizable force in the country because of the proven ineptness of the Bonn Counter-Intelligence Office (BFV), the size of the American military presence in the country and because Germany is the reception point for a large number of defectors across its long border with the Communist world.

The greatest number of agents operating in the federal republic come from East Germany, which operates a remarkably large espionage service. The next largest contingents reportedly come from Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union.

"The Soviet embassy in Bonn is unusual compared with other Soviet embassies because of the relatively smaller complement of KGB (espionage) agents on its staff," a qualified source said. "They seem to let the East Germans and Poles do their work for them."

The KGB maintains a large base just outside East Berlin, however, and in East Berlin itself, KGB agents work openly. A foreign journalist who recently found himself being followed by two apparent agents startled them by asking, and receiving, directions in Russian.

Guillaume, according to court testimony, was typical of the hundreds of agents whom East Germany slipped across the border to the West 20 years ago before the Berlin Wall was erected.

Although he was then a captain in the East German intelligence service, Guillaume was able to disappear into Western bourgeois life as a "political refugee." Actually, he was a "deep plant" of the Communist spy master, Col. Gen. Markus (Mischa) Wolf.

Guillaume started his new life by selling hot dogs in Frankfurt in 1956, and the following year became an enthusiastic worker for the local SPD. He was so diligent that in 1969 he was invited to take a minor job in Bonn, and three years later to move up as a personal aide to Brandt.

In that job he appeared to be the perfect "beamer," or German bureaucrat. He hustled around with a full briefcase, never far from Brandt's shoulder, and had a reputation for being efficient and friendly to newsmen.

There are times when Germany seems to suffer from a "spy mania." Magazines and newspapers frequently exchange accusations that their opposition has fallen victim to the KGB's notorious "disinformation" practice of planting false stories.

Beirut again torn by civil war's terror

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem and Christian gunmen reoccupied key buildings in downtown Beirut today in a new explosion of all-out street fighting, security forces reported.

Militiamen from the left-wing Moslem "Ambushers" group fired rockets and mortars from the 40-story Mour Tower, an unfinished office building that was their deadliest redoubt in the last big round of Lebanon's eight-month civil war.

Meanwhile, police said, the right-wing Christian Phalange Party's militia resumed control over the 500-room Holiday Inn which was damaged by fire and rocket hits during it was a Phalange stronghold during fighting.

Security forces that had been occupying the buildings under a cease-fire agreement pulled out of the embattled city center, leaving the way clear for another major struggle for the seaside tourist hotels.

Gunfire rattled through the streets around the hotels. Ambusher troops were in full control of the Qantari district on a hillside overlooking St. George Bay and the hotels along its shore.

"Both sides are rushing reinforcements to their old positions," said a security force officer.

Local militiamen in the Ein Mreisseh neighborhood — between the seaside U.S. Embassy and the hotels — closed off their streets and warned they would not allow their district to become a battleground. They refused passage through to leftists, rightists and security forces.

"We will fight only if attacked," said one. "But we will shoot to kill anyone who tries to infiltrate our neighborhood."

The district, where Moslems and Christians live side by side, was a leftist staging area against Christian gunmen in the hotels during fighting three weeks ago. Residents were seen moving canned food and bottled water into basement shelters.

The government warned residents to stay off the streets and closed schools and all public offices.

There were savage rocket and mortar duels during the night between the Christian stronghold of Ein Rumanneh and the neighboring Moslem area of Chiyah, one of the chief battlegrounds in the eight-month-old civil war.

There was small-arms and rocket fire all morning in several other areas, including the middle-class Qantari district and the seaside hotel area that was the center of fighting three weeks ago.

Heavy explosions from shoulder-fired grenades boomed out there and in the downtown commercial center near the palm-fringed Martyr's Square that was once the center of Middle East commerce.

The outgunned, outnumbered security forces stayed out of the combat zones, and there was no accurate estimate of casualties.

For seven hours, firemen were unable to get to a fire in the fuel oil tanks of the Qantari building housing the offices of The Associated Press.

A REMINDER of the past sits along side a fence on North Big Spring in Midland. The old wooden wagon, complete with iron-rimmed wheels, was an important part of the Permian Basin's past before the coming of the motor age.

President outlines 'Pacific Doctrine,' returns to work on domestic matters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford turns his attention to domestic matters this week after proclaiming his Asian trip "beneficial" and indicating that plans are in the works for a trip to the Mideast.

Ford returned to the White House early this morning after a 27,000-mile trip that he said contained "no minuses and many, many pluses." He climaxed his journey in Honolulu with a declaration of a six-point "Pacific Doctrine" for U.S. foreign policy and held out the possibility of future U.S. friendship with Vietnam and Cambodia.

Chatting with reporters just before his jet landed at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Ford was asked if he felt it had been necessary for him to personally make the long journey to China, he replied: "The discussions we had in Peking were mandatory at my level."

Ford said he felt the talks in Indonesia and the Philippines also needed to be conducted at the heads-of-government level.

A reporter, mindful of rumors that Ford now plans to travel to the Mideast early next year, asked about any such plans.

"There are no definite plans," the President replied. But he added that he probably would go to the Mideast "at some point."

Ford said he found his talks in Peking, Jakarta and Manila were "very substantially beneficial."

Ford flew home from Honolulu, where he chose the anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor to reveal his "Pacific Doctrine" in a speech in Honolulu.

"The first premise of a new Pacific doctrine is that American strength is basic to any stable balance of power in the Pacific," Ford said. And, noting Japan's transition from enemy to friend, the President held out the chance of U.S. friendship for Cambodia and Vietnam, saying:

"Our policies toward the new regimes on the (Indochinese) peninsula will be determined by their conduct toward us. We are prepared to reciprocate goodwill — particularly the return of the remains of Americans killed or missing in action, or information about them. If they exhibit restraint toward their neighbors and constructive approaches to international problems, we will look to the future rather than the past."

Back in the capital, Ford is facing decisions on a variety of issues and is expected to sign a bill to provide emergency assistance to help solve New York's fiscal crisis.

Congress is still struggling with tax and energy measures which could draw another pair of presidential vetoes.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb has urged approval of the energy bill which would temporarily lower oil prices, but some conservatives oppose the measure and Ford's campaign director, Howard H. Callaway suggested Sunday that the President might be well advised politically to veto the measure.

Callaway also suggested a veto of the tax measure where Ford is insisting that spending cuts be tacked onto tax reductions and Congress is resisting the idea.

On Sunday the President visited two memorials of World War II, going first to Corregidor in the Philippines and then crossing the international dateline for a morning stop at Pearl Harbor.

The President proclaimed his Pacific doctrine in a speech at the East-West Center at the University of Hawaii, where he said "the healing effects of time are required" in Indochina.

In addition to considering American strength basic to the balance of power in the Pacific, Ford listed these other tenets of his doctrine:

— "Peace in Asia requires a structure of economic cooperation reflecting the aspirations of all the people in the region."

— "Peace in Asia depends upon a resolution of outstanding political conflicts," with the United States "ready to consider constructive ways of easing tensions" on the Korean peninsula.

— A "continuing stake in the stability and security of Southeast Asia."

— "Normalization of relations with the People's Republic of China."

— "Partnership with Japan is a pillar of our strategy."

IRA gunmen might exchange hostage for food, cigarettes

By JAMES R. PEIPERT

LONDON (AP) — Irish Republican Army gunmen holding a 54-year-old postal inspector and his 53-year-old wife under threat of death in the hostages' apartment said today they would consider a police request to swap the woman for food and cigarettes.

"We have asked them to consider keeping just the one hostage and they have agreed to think about it," said Peter Walton, deputy assistant commissioner at Scotland Yard. Police offered their concession after the gunmen made repeated demands for food and cigarettes. However, they said no deals would be made on the gunmen's demand for a flight to Ireland, and that the only place they would go is prison.

Police said there was no confirmation of the identities of the gunmen, but glimpses of them convinced police they had cornered the

IRA cell responsible for the killing of Ross McWhirter, coeditor of the Guinness Book of Records, on Nov. 27, and who may be linked to a recent wave of shootings and bombings in London that has left nine dead and more than 200 injured.

The gunmen — believed to number between three and four — and their hostages are holed up in the living room of the small apartment on the second floor of a four-story building overlooking Dorset Square in northwest central London, a few minutes walk from Regent's Park. The police control the rest of the building, which has been under siege by hundreds of armed security men for two nights.

The gunmen burst into the apartment Saturday night at the end of a gun-blazing chase through London's West End after falling into a police ambush outside Scott's Restaurant in Mayfair, a recent bombing target. Friends of the hostages said they may have been watching "Kojak," the show they normally watch, when the gunmen forced their way in.

"They have made it clear that if we try to break in, they will kill the hostages," said Ernest Bond, deputy assistant commissioner at Scotland Yard. "And we have made it quite plain that they are not going to get any deals."

The hostages are John and Sheila Matthews, who have two grown daughters. Friends describe him as "very calm and quiet," but say "she's a bit nervous ... highly strung." On Sunday night Mrs. Matthews asked for aspirin during a 30-second conversation with police. The tablets were sent in.

Drinking water and fresh batteries also were sent in for the field telephone the gunmen allowed police to lower down to them from the roof of the building — on Sunday night to establish a line of communication.

The gunmen and their hostages have no access to kitchen and toilet facilities in the two-bedroom apartment, but a portable toilet was hoisted onto the second-story balcony Sunday and it was pulled inside the room.

Digital watches follow 1974 calculator craze

The Washington Post — Those magical merchandisers of space-age technology who slipped a pocket calculator under every other Christmas tree last year are trying to repeat the trick this season with digital watches. Or, as they put it: "time calculators."

The trade names may be Pulsar, Instar, Litronix, Microma, Spectrax or Chronosplit; the promotional material seems largely interchangeable.

"The next watch you own doesn't have to be a watch at all ... it can be a Microelectronic Time Instrument;" "Never has a wristwatch done so much;" "The most advanced precision instrument a man can own;" "The ultimate or perfect watch is already here;" "The timepiece of the future."

"The digital watch is probably the greatest breakthrough in timekeeping technology since the sundial," declares Seiko's Richard Jamroz. "What remains to be seen is how the public accepts them."

Initial public response has been enthusiastic. Digital watches have been mass marketed for only the past six months, but stores around the country are reporting big sales. Watch industry spokesmen estimate that 5 per cent of the 50 million watches sold in the United States this year will be digitals, which range in price from $40 to $2,750.

Five per cent, or 2.5 million watches, is a substantial figure when you consider that most digitals are now in the $125-$250 price range. Industry observers expect those prices to steadily slip (as did those of their calculator precursors from 1973 to 1975) with a consequent sharp increase in unit volume. They're gonna be real hot, real hot," predicts Steve Chafitz, a Rockville, Md., dealer who saw the calculator boom coming in 1972. He parlayed his vision into a multi-million dollar business through an aggressive national advertising campaign in 40 publications as varied as Cosmopolitan, The New Yorker, Scientific American and The Wall Street Journal.

"As soon as we get close to Christmas they're just gonna take off. The calculator industry is selling 12 to 18 million units a year, and there're a lot more people who need to wear wat-

Moluccans losing courage

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP)—Some of the South Moluccan nationalists holding more than 30 hostages aboard a stranded train in northern Holland are beginning to lose courage after defying the Dutch government for six days, the leader of the Moluccan community says.

"I could read from the faces of one or two that they do not want to go on," said Johan Alvarez Manusama, president of the self-styled Republic of the Moluccas, after boarding the train Sunday to plead with the young gunmen to surrender.

But Manusama held out no hope of early capitulation by his compatriots who seized the train last Tuesday or another group of South Moluccans who occupied the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam last Thursday.

Decision due on bond proposal

Midland Parks Commissioners will decide whether to seek City Council approval of a $4.3 million bond proposal when they meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the conference room at City Hall.

The proposal, tabled from the Commission's last session, has been termed "the most major and crucial event taking place in the Parks and Recreation Department since its beginning."

Five separate items comprise the proposal, including some $300,000 to be allocated for a recreation center with an area for senior citizens and $465,000 to go for city swimming pools. Recommendations are to close and demolish Hogan Pool, to construct a new pool in the northeast center of the city and to renovate Half, Ulmer and Washington pools.

Also included in the proposal are $598,500 worth of new park development and land acquisition, $1,283,810 worth of improvements to existing parks and $888,000 for development and equipment at Hogan Park.

Commissioners will also discuss a vacancy in its panel membership caused by George Vineyard.

In other action, the Commission will:

- Consider a request by Ken Garrison to purchase Golf Fun Inc., operators of the Hogan Park Driving Range, from Monte Garrison;
- Hear a report on City Council action on the use of the Showmobile by Dwayne Casbeer Dec. 6 and on the sale of two adult tigers at Cole Park Zoo;
- Hear a report on the Nov. 19-21 annual meeting of the Texas Recreation and Parks Society; and
- Review a progress report.

Midkiff students included on 'Who's Who' list

Donald D. Cole, Cathie S. Raley, Hugh M. Jackson and Edith E. Smith were tapped for the honor which nationally features fewer than 4 percent of the nation's 6,500,000 high school juniors and seniors.

Students listed in the ninth annual edition of "Who's Who" represented 20,000 of the 24,000 public, private and parochial schools in the country.

The four Midkiff students, in addition to being featured in the publication, also will compete for scholarship awards and will participate in the publishers' annual opinion poll of teen attitudes.

Area weather expected to remain fair, warm

Texans can count on a slow warm-up in their pre-Christmas weather for the next several days, forecasters promised today.

Overcast skies lingered across the east half of the state this morning, keeping temperatures there mild. West Texas, fanned by light winds, was cloudless and temperatures near dawn again slipped a little below freezing in places, the Associated Press reported.

Along with seasonal temperatures, official observers predicted a gradual disappearance of clouds in East Texas while fair weather lingers in the west.

Christmas craze this year is digital watches

"several hundred thousand units," according to a company spokesman.

"The wonderful part of our business is that we have more customers who want our product than we can supply," says Pulsar's Don Nelson. He glances at his wrist "time computer" and announces, "I am now in the p.m. mode. We've become a digital society. This was portended by the calculator craze and now everywhere you look — on TV, in airports — you see time displayed digitally."

Watching Pulsar's success and the public's quick addition to pocket calculators, several electronics manufacturers — as well as watch firms — began marketing digital watches. About 75 corporations are now turning them out.

Texas Instruments, the electronics giant which fabricates the chips used in many pocket calculators, has just begun manufacturing and shipping its own watches.

"It became obvious that this was going to be a giant consumer item," says TI's Bruce Brough, "and the company decided to get involved. Our first shipments were made in late August into the Dallas-Houston area, and now they're pretty much into most areas. The marketing department won't say how many have been shipped, but I can tell you there's been a lot — I mean an awful lot."

Born of the space program, the digital watch is the latest item to exploit an American fascination with technology that has brought us transistor radios and aerosol cheese, cassette recorders and Tang.

This newest gizmo is built around a tiny quartz crystal which oscillates 32,768 times a second when zapped with an electric current supplied by a miniature battery that lasts up to a year. An integrated circuit (IC) "chip" — similar to ones used in pocket calculators counts the vibrations and converts the pulses into seconds, minutes, hours, days and months. Light emitting diodes (LEDs) or liquid crystal displays (LCDs) then provide a digital readout — at the touch of a button or flick of the wrist on LEDs, or continuously with LCDs. LCDs simply reflect ambient light and consequently need a source of illumination (built into some models) to be read at night. In contrast, some LEDs, which light up on command, aren't bright enough to be read in brilliant daylight.

The Pulsar LED unit was the first digital watch to break into the market, with a few thousand sold at $295 in 1972. Considered the Cadillac of the digital market, it has since sold

Citizens must decide

Crime resistance must be practiced on the individual, family and community level. Clarence M. Kelley, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said recently in addressing the Rotary Club of Birmingham, Ala.

He made it quite clear that Americans cannot expect a marked reduction in the crime rate until citizens make up their minds to do something about it. Kelley said that as a law enforcement officer and as an American, he is alarmed not only about the appalling level of crime in this nation but also with the attitudes which permit crime to flourish.

"Today's young people," Kelley said, "often develop their values through exposure to influences which do not always provide them with strong moral foundation they need to resist the temptations of crime."

"Such examples of abdication of individual responsibilities were, I'm sure, unthought of among those who founded this nation. Our founding fathers were well aware that life was not meant to be without sacrifice or without certain compelling obligations."

- 2. On what fearful occasion did Jesus say to the apostles, "It is I; be not afraid"? John 6: 16-20.
- 3. Who "came and ministered to Jesus in the wilderness"? Matthew 4: 11

INSIDE REPORT: 'Bland' politics seen in court appointment

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — While almost surely avoiding a Senate confirmation fight, the nomination of Judge John Paul Stevens contains subtle dangers for the Supreme Court and again exposes the limitations of Gerald R. Ford's bland presidency.

There is no secret why Stevens, a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago, was selected. President Ford and his justice-hunters were seeking the best qualified nominee likely to win quick confirmation. But in doing so, Mr. Ford furthered a trend toward capture of the nation's highest court by the organized legal profession which could convert it into a body of legal mechanics rather than lawgivers.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Speaker Carl Albert's checklist

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — Every day House Speaker Carl Albert carefully chronicles his activities in a black plastic binder. Each page is a mimeographed form containing a detailed check list, which he uses to keep a record of his physical fitness. He diligently answers the questions in a hasty, pinched calligraphy.

"I have never in my life had a drinking problem!" the Little Giant from Bugtussle, Okla., told us. "I've never taken a drink when the House was in session. Why no one has ever smelled liquor on my breath when I'm in the Chair." He hadn't touched a drop, he added, in the past six weeks.

Albert said his "hum-chew" exercise has helped his throat. His heavy responsibilities, he confided, cause his only real "health" problem — tiredness. His colleagues have noticed the Speaker's weariness. One of his staunchest friends in Congress told us: "Carl hasn't been back on his feet since his trip to China... The jet lag really got to him."

Bombing Lebanon camps: Israel's unfortunate error

WASHINGTON — Israel succeeded in killing several score Arabs in those sure-fire bombing raids on Palestinian refugee camps but, in the long run, Israel is the loser for it.

These are strong words from a liberal Democratic senator, nominally a backer of Israel. McGovern's antiwar colleagues were far milder. Sen. John Tunney (D-Calif.) said he was "disappointed" with the raid, but understands Israel's problem in coping with Arab terrorism. Sen. Thomas Eagleton (D-Mo.) feels it was "regrettable" but won't pass a value judgment. Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) says he deplores violence by both Arabs and Israelis and urges new efforts for peace.

Well, let's be less timid. No question that Israel is beset by terrorism and is increasingly alienated in the world community. The ambivalent language offered Israel by Secretary Kissinger is no comfort. So when Israel gets hit, Israel strikes back.

There are other ways for the Israelis to punish Arab terrorism. Massive bombing is the wrong way, and the massive silence from most antiwar congressional figures, and presidential candidates like Eugene McCarthy, reflects the same kind of cowardice. American tax dollars in the form of the most powerful, up-to-date and unstoppable American weaponry for Israel should not be spent this way, and it's high time someone in Congress said so.

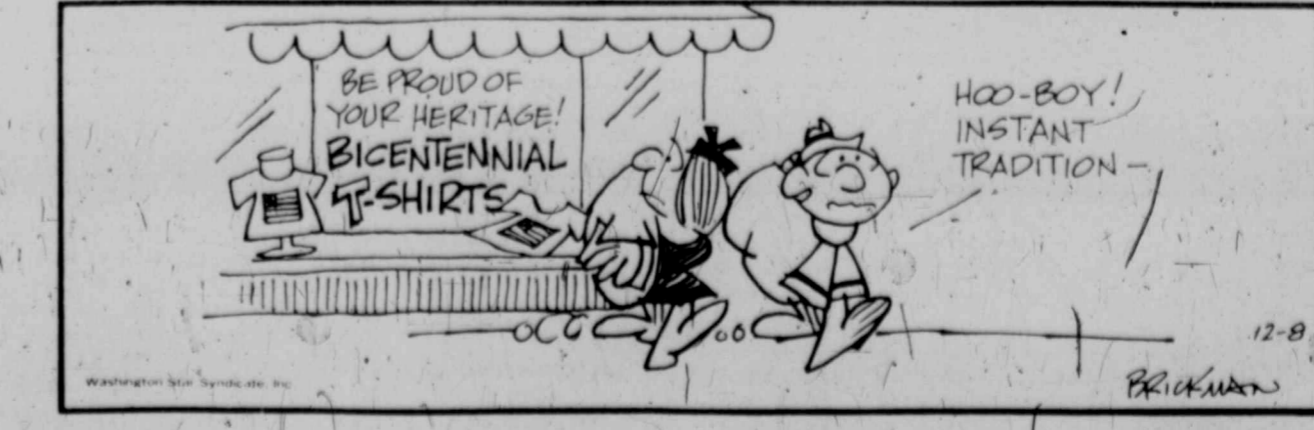

Between that early waking and late bedding, Carl Albert occupies the third most powerful position in the land.

is, what kind of response?

Soviet computer scheme turning into 'total mess'

By ROBERT C. TOTH
The Los Angeles Times
MOSCOW — Science is one of the gods of Communism. Its name is used to give an aura of infallibility to political policies. The economic-based ideology is often labeled "scientific Marxism-Leninism."

for devising equations (which only computers can handle) to optimize the use of scarce resources. Many of the standard Western approaches, such as minimizing input and maximizing output, were developed using his work.

He was the first Socialist economist to get the award and the Soviet press made much of it, but with some discomfort. As the Literaturnaya Gazeta asked him: "Why should work based on research into a Socialist economy be awarded a prize by a scientific organization in a Capitalist country?"

Trial of terrorist gang may produce impact

By MICHAEL GETLER
The Washington Post-Outlet
STAMMHEIM, West Germany — An extraordinary criminal trial which is beginning to strain Germany's post-war democratic traditions drags on here, week after week, in a fortress converted into a courthouse. Thick concrete walls guard against missile attack. Steel netting overhead provides protection against helicopters carrying bombs.

equivalent to a habeas corpus law in Germany, though normally detainees are held for no more than six months. Prosecutors contend that lining up some 1,000 witnesses and 1,800 separate files of evidence to build an airtight case simply consumed time.

criminal code. One would permit a judge to monitor all verbal and written contact between a lawyer and his client if the latter is being held on charges relating to the formation of criminal organizations. The second would provide jail sentences of up to five years for anyone who failed to report to police if he had knowledge about criminal activities under the broad sections of the code dealing with armed underground organizations.

Recognizing this potential, the Communist Party Congress in 1971 ordered construction of a nationwide automated management system. Every industrial plant, enterprise and office was to have or share a computer into which would be fed all data.

The plan called for 1,600 computers, costing $6 billion, to be operating by the end of this year, and a total of 10,000 computers — no total cost figure available — working by 1990, when the system is to be completed.

So far the grand scheme has turned into a "kovardak," or total mess, for a variety of reasons. Not least of them is that ideologists cannot live with the objective answers that computers give if fed correct information.

Several academicians trying to devise a management system wanted to use the accepted Western programming approach that would minimize input and maximize output in a particular industry.

But they were told from above, according to a Westerner who keeps close contact with the subject, that "that approach is not correct. We are seeking to minimize input, not maximize output."

Even if ideology were put aside, the Russians start with enormous difficulties in trying to build a national automated management system. Their computers are a decade behind the West, give or take a few years, in both the machines "hardware" and in instruction programs "software" for them.

As a measure of this, the United States has about eight times more computers than the Soviet Union (62,000 vs. under 8,000). Some 70 per cent of U.S. computers are third-generation machines (using integrated circuits) while 70 per cent of Soviet machines are first-generation (vacuum tubes) and most of the rest are second-generation (transistors).

The Russians are currently building, in cooperation with their East European allies, the "riad" series of third-generation computers. These are very similar to the IBM-360, perhaps even an exact duplicate of the one they allegedly stole in West Germany in the mid-1960s before they were allowed to buy that model.

"Practically no existing Soviet computer is good for the management system," said another dissident. "Riad is better but in my opinion still not good enough. We would be better off buying used Western machines, which are now a glut on the European market, but prestige demands that we buy only new ones, which are very expensive, or build our own."

Scores of technical problems exist with Soviet-made units today. Many of them are openly discussed in the Soviet press: —Failure rate and "outright shoddiness" of new machines is so bad that "it is impossible, as a rule, to avoid a thorough-going reconstruction of them," complained academi-

Inside the courtroom, four thin, gray-faced defendants — two men and two women — sit handcuffed to their guards. They are the alleged leaders of the notorious "Raader-Meinhof gang," a band of extremist left-wing terrorists who, in the late 1960s and early '70s, spread urban violence and fear of anarchy through much of Germany's orderly and discipline-conscious population.

One of these rulings made it legal to exclude a lawyer from the defense if there is "a strong suspicion" that he supported the criminal aims of defendants, presumably by such things as passing communications or weapons in and out of prison or for other "improper activities" that were not specified.

The legal fallout affecting most Germans is the "radical's decree" promulgated in 1972 on the heels of a wave of urban terrorism. In essence, the decree empowered the 11 German states to investigate the personal allegiances and lives of some 3 million civil servants, including not only bureaucrats but teachers, mailmen and even locomotive drivers.

But the distinction may seem small but the effect is to hobble the computer. The Soviets will not let all the variables in an equation vary. Specifically, they set the production target from the start.

In the West, a company tries to maximize profit. Instead of saying they intend to produce 1,000 units of some product, the capitalists start by asking the computer how many can be produced and sold at greatest profit with the least investment of capital, labor and raw materials.

The computer may find that an output of 800 units gives the lowest per unit cost and greatest profit, and that the additional cost of producing those extra 200 units is not economically justified.

To let the computer set the target here, however, would be to surrender the father-knows-best power of the party to the machine, which is ideologically unacceptable.

The more fundamental problem, however, according to both Western and dissident specialists here, is that all prices in this economy are fixed arbitrarily. A worker's wage is not a measure of his worth on the job, the price of bread no reflection of its production cost, the interest on investment capital no indication of its true economic value.

The irony of the situation was seen last month when Leonid Kantorovich won half the Nobel economics prize

When the party congress reconvenes next February, all the 1,600 computers it ordered into operation by this year undoubtedly will be reported operating. But, one skeptical Soviet writer asked Glushkov, "What percentage are standard, how many are real and how many merely exist on paper?"

He did not answer except to say, "It is difficult to be philosophical about the disillusionment that obviously exists" and openly wondered if the new congress might curtail the program.

In time, many of the existing problems with the automated management system could be solved. Then the Russians, although never getting full value from its because of ideological constraints, will at least get an accurate report card on the inefficiencies within their industry, according to one Westerner.

But a dissident with first-hand knowledge of the subject doubts the automated system will ever work even to that degree.

"The problem that looks insurmountable to me," he said, "is that the leaders in enterprises and ministries and the party are not really interested in using computers. Both the bureaucrats and the ideologists fear they will lose power to the machines."

For a variety of reasons, the proceedings have made little progress since the trial began in May. In fact, they have fallen into a pattern of disruption and delay, and the trial is no longer on the German front pages.

It was this ruling that also brought protests from four American lawyers, including former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who pointed out that none of the dismissed lawyers had been indicted or convicted of any crime.

Since the decree became effective, according to unofficial estimates, 400,000 to 600,000 cases have been investigated. Reports of the number of civil servants dismissed or applicants rejected for jobs after such inquiries vary from about 100 to several hundred a year, depending on whether one believes government or unofficial estimates.

In the West, a company tries to maximize profit. Instead of saying they intend to produce 1,000 units of some product, the capitalists start by asking the computer how many can be produced and sold at greatest profit with the least investment of capital, labor and raw materials.

The computer may find that an output of 800 units gives the lowest per unit cost and greatest profit, and that the additional cost of producing those extra 200 units is not economically justified.

To let the computer set the target here, however, would be to surrender the father-knows-best power of the party to the machine, which is ideologically unacceptable.

The more fundamental problem, however, according to both Western and dissident specialists here, is that all prices in this economy are fixed arbitrarily. A worker's wage is not a measure of his worth on the job, the price of bread no reflection of its production cost, the interest on investment capital no indication of its true economic value.

Two of the lawyers were subsequently arrested — and then released. Their files were seized. The remaining lawyers asked for the trial's postponement on the grounds that the files had fallen into the prosecution's hands, but the court rejected the motion.

In April, the West German Constitutional Court upheld the defense lawyers' dismissal and gave its legal blessing to another of the amendments passed during the "Blitzgesetz," giving the government the power to limit the number of defense lawyers. This was inspired by the fact that at some points in the pre-trial proceedings the Baader-Meinhof defendants had more than 20 lawyers collectively.

Another amendment adopted by parliament was aimed at any attempts to sabotage the proceedings by outbursts in court or by hunger strikes. It provided that, for the first time in Germany, trials could be carried on without the accused being present if the accused was deemed responsible for disrupting the proceedings.

Before the trial began the defendants staged a five-month hunger strike. And at the trial they launched numerous outbursts against the German legal system and the presiding judge.

Last month the supreme court put force behind the parliamentary vote by ruling that the defendants could in fact be tried in absentia, though also deciding that the defendants should not be prevented from attending the trial if they so wished.

The court ruling came after a team of doctors and psychiatrists examined the defendants. The team found that prison conditions were a factor in the defendants' rather poor health, but the court ruled that the hunger strike was at least partly responsible and that therefore the four could be tried in absentia.

The European Commission on Human Rights also rejected the contention that the imprisonment was a form of "torture by isolation." As a result of all this, however, the defendants' prison regime is now less rigid.

The cabinet has given its approval to two other amendments to the Illinois law defines death

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois has a new law defining death as "the irreversible cessation of total brain function according to the usual and customary standards of medicine."

The bill received strong support from the Association of Illinois Transplant Surgeons. The law was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker Sept. 11, 1975.

Dr. Frank P. Stuart, chairman of the association, said, "In a theoretical sense, there might be no need to define death since the law for years has authorized physicians to determine individually the criteria for and the time of death."

However, said Dr. Stuart, some Illinois physicians feared lawsuits if they discontinued ventilatory support even for a patient whose brain was totally dead. They would leave "brain death" patients totally under the control of ventilatory machinery until the heart and lungs failed several weeks later.

Most Illinois neurosurgeons were already comfortable with the concept of brain death, said R. Sturat. With the permission of the patient's family, they would frequently arrange to salvage the kidneys. The kidneys could then be transplanted to kidney disease patients.

There are officials here who acknowledge long-range doubts about the wisdom of some of the new legislation. Others, however, point out that Germany is susceptible to infiltration and subversion from bordering Communist countries and that the national past makes the German people particularly wary of terrorist disruption.

One official raised another point: "You simply can't compare German law with Anglo-Saxon law because the Germans traditionally respond to problems differently."

TWO RUSSIAN bears give publicity in Washington. The Soviet Circus opened Friday in the nation's capital.

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. (AP) — Paul VanderMaat, in front of a judge to answer a speeding ticket, argued that the ticketed air that precedes a thunder storm affects a speed radar unit.
